Wing takes top command honor

The 64th Flying Training Wing has been selected as Air Training Command's best overall safety program for fiscal year 1991. The wing won the ATC To Promote Safety (TOPS) trophy - the top safety award presented in the command. The wing also received an achievement award for ground safety.

Reese improved its ground safety record by reducing fatalities related to the work place, motor vehicle accidents and sports and recreation, according to safety officials.

"The people at Reese made these achievements in all areas of safety possible," said Col. Bill Henny, wing commander. "Their dedication, professionalism and unflinching concern for one another made the difference."

"The commander's and the unit safety representatives' emphasis on safety were responsible for the wing winning this award," said Lt. Col. Rick Robinson, chief of wing safety.

The award promotes safety awareness over the entire spectrum of ATC operations. The award is presented to the ATC center or wing whose overall safety program is determined to be the best for the fiscal year.

"The wing, as well as ATC, had a tremendous year in safety while recording the best flying year in history," Colonel Robinson said. "The competition was extremely keen according to the people I talked to at ATC headquarters."

Chuck Gerrior, chief of the ground safety section, noted that incident rate in 1991 causing lost military duty time decreased even though man-hours increased.

The safety division was also noted for doing extremely well during the unit effectiveness/operational readiness inspection in February.

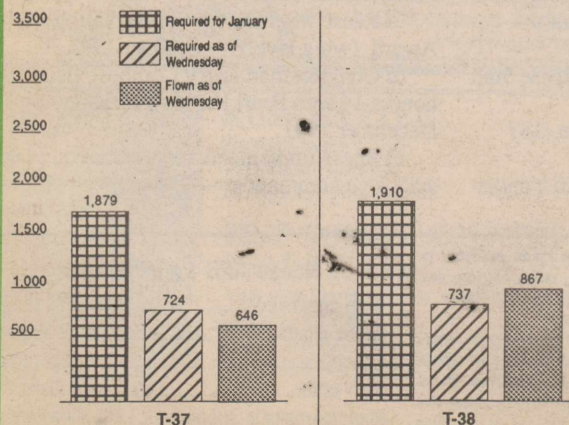

The wing was also awarded the National Safety Council Award of Merit in 1991.

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

Capt. Jim Kuehn, left, wing safety, debriefs an in-flight emergency with Capt. Bruce Rowe, T-38 check section. Attention to safety procedures by people throughout the wing helped Reese claim ATC's top safety award.

From my perspective

by Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

By now most of our Reese men, women and families have returned from the holidays, closing out the book on 1991 and opening up 1992.

As I reflect over 1991, the Reese family exceeded my every expectation. Our primary mission was to produce the highest quality officers and pilots for the United States Air Force and our allies. We did exceptionally well—graduating 291 young pilots eager to meet the challenges of tomorrow. We did this flying 56,925 sorties and 69,606.7 hours combined in our aging T-37 and T-38 aircraft all of which are older than our graduates. To highlight our successes even more, we did this all without one Class A or B mishap! In fact, we really shined in our safety efforts, garnering the Best Overall Safety Program in ATC—with significant reductions in on and off duty military mishaps and reportable civilian injuries. Super effort . . . keep it up! Reese people met the challenge—when called up to support Operation Desert Storm—more than 50 of our folks deployed in minimum time to emerge victorious and return without the loss of life or injury and a great sense of pride and honor. Some of our people are still deployed in support of Operation Desert Calm.

In late spring the concept of reorganizing the Air Force and the way we do business only seemed to be a distant rumor. However, by July we were in the midst of massive changes in our wing organization. Reese was selected to lead the command as the test base for the new concept. The test was to last a year; however, we did so well in the planning, executing and modifications that by the close of the year, all Air Training Command undergraduate pilot training bases were reorganizing to look like Reese. We must keep in mind that all these changes were conceived, tried and tested by our Reese professionals—I am proud of your efforts.

Top Flight was born in the summer and Reese garnered numerous honors at both competitions, including Top Wing at Top Flight II. We have proven to everyone in the command that Reese has unsurpassed quality instructors and maintainers whose superb esprit, camaraderie and teamwork go hand in hand to train and provide the world's greatest Air Force with top notch military aviators.

Our preparations for the newest aircraft and mission in the Air Force, T-1/SUPT, have been second to none. Soon we will see the arrival of our first T-1 aircraft—a long-awaited day that will usher in a new era of undergraduate pilot training.

Kudos

During the past year I received numerous letters of appreciation and personal thank yous directly reflecting the pride, enthusiasm and service of our Reese professionals. I'd like to share a few of those comments as extracts from personal letters addressed to me regarding our people, facilities and attitudes.

Col. Bill Grosvenor, ATC/IG:

" . . . compliments all the way around! The base looks great—inside and out . . . As to your guest quarters, you don't have to worry about taking second place to anyone . . . Thanks and compliments to all who greeted us—main gate guard, billeting clerk, O-Club staff, etc. All great people."

Brig. Gen. Dave McIlvoy, Office of the Secretary of the Air Force:

" . . . The base looked great—but most impressive was the enthusiasm and professionalism of all your personnel. I must say I cannot figure out how to improve the graduation day events that you have put together at Reese."

Joseph P. Brandt, father of UPT graduate:

" . . . I want to express my appreciation to you, your staff and the members of all the units that planned, organized and participated in the graduation ceremony."

Darrel V. McClanahan, father of UPT graduate:

"I can honestly say that I have seldom enjoyed anything as much as treading about on the red carpet that the Air Force training people spread out for the graduates' families. From sunrise until late-night, there was fine hospitality. I was very impressed by the effort they put forth to make us feel a part of the year-long experience of the youngsters. It was a great day!"

Col. Bill Cairney, Command Coordinator Aerospace Physiology, USAFA:

" . . . Capt. Bedesem and TSgt. Peets handled our arrival and arrangements with such individualized attention and smoothness that I felt like a very special guest of the 64th FTW, rather than just a casual visitor.

" . . . I sensed an attitude in the way they carried things off that was clearly beyond the requirement and therefore very refreshing.

" . . . Your people come through with a quality I have rarely seen.

" . . . Your VOQ quarters were impeccably in order and your billeting people were as polite and accommodating as one could ever ask."

Col. Austin W. Roberts:

" . . . We have stayed in some nice quarters at military installations but we want to assure you that we have never been treated as nice or had as nice quarters as your base provided."

Col. Martin C. Johansen:

" . . . noticed the sparkling nature and beauty of Reese . . . even more well-kept and your personnel have a glowing pride in their base and its mission.

" . . . Your Reese Inn sets an example for the whole Air Force to try and emulate."

Mayor B. C. McMinn, Mayor of Lubbock:

" . . . I do appreciate the hospitality always shown me when I visit the Air Base."

So as the individual held accountable and responsible for Reese Air Patch, I want to tell you that I am very proud of our team and our accomplishments. We have some tremendous challenges ahead of us, but I know with folks like yourselves and our replacements, we shall prevail.

Keep up the great work and we will do even better in 1992!

ATC commander condemns discrimination

Treatment must reflect fairness and sensitivity

by Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Ashy
Commander, Air Training Command

We still experience some instances of discrimination in the military today despite major efforts to eliminate this type of unacceptable, illegal behavior.

We in Air Training Command have a special obligation to eliminate this type of behavior and to set the proper example.

Since ATC is where our young officers and recruits get their start in the Air Force, and make the transition from American society, we have the first opportunity to plant the seed that promotes behavior supporting fairness and equality to all individuals.

It is imperative they know and understand the fact that racial and sexual discrimination is not only morally wrong, but against the law and is not tolerated in the Air Force.

I ask that everyone, from every echelon of leadership and down to every person, do a self-analysis as we begin a new year. This great, free nation in which we are so fortunate to live and serve is about equality. Our treatment of our fellow men and women must reflect fairness and sensitivity.

Right is right and wrong is wrong, and we need to continuously improve. If we have those who cannot change their thoughts and actions to comply with the rules in this regard, then they must be dealt with swiftly, surely and fairly.

We've made good progress in the past, but I believe we can do better if everyone is knowledgeable, sensitive and helping us collectively work this vital area. I ask for your assistance. Thanks.

"We have the first opportunity to plant the seed that promotes behavior supporting fairness and equality to all individuals."

Seven 'bucks' get new stripe

Seven wing members picked up their fourth stripe Thursday as staff sergeant promotions were announced.

The local selections came from a pool of 113 eligible members, for a 6.19-percent promotion rate. That exceeded the Air Force rate for this cycle (5,027 out of 85,581 for 5.87 percent) and the command rate (261 of 4,846, 5.39 percent).

The local selections are:

□ Linda Barnett, 64th Mission

Support Squadron.

□ Todd Caro, 64th Medical Squadron.

□ Dedrick Lewis, 64th Logistics Squadron.

□ Ruben Martinez, 64th Communications Squadron (projected gain).

□ Elizabeth Pitts, 64th Operations Support Squadron.

□ D'Undra Royall, 64th OSS.

□ Jack Sage, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

Incentive plans approved for voluntary outs

by MSgt Linda Lee
Air Force News Service

Military members who voluntarily leave the service may qualify to get money from one of two new Defense Department incentive packages recently approved as part of the National Defense Authorization Act for 1992 and 1993.

The two packages, the voluntary separation incentive and special separation benefits, were designed to help the services cut personnel strength by 20 percent and realign the force structure during the draw-down. DOD officials hope the payments will ease transition to civilian life and minimize involuntary separations.

The options will be offered to some servicemembers who have between six and 20 years of service. Eligibility will be based on job skills, time in service and pay grades, said Christopher Jehn, assistant secretary of defense for force management and personnel. DOD has not yet set limits on the number or types of separations; the services will decide because they know what they need, Mr. Jehn said.

The voluntary separation incentive is annual payments for a period twice as long as the years a member served. The amount of each payment is 2.5 percent of the member's final annual base pay times the number of years served. For example, an E-6 with 10 years of service would receive $4,695 per year for 20 years, or a total of $93,906.

VSI payments can be bequeathed to a servicemember's survivors and will be paid until the term ends, Mr. Jehn said. The money is taxable. The entitlement cannot be sold.

Under the special separation benefits package, servicemembers will receive a lump-sum payment of 15 percent of annual base pay times the number of years served. For example, the same E-6 would receive a flat, taxable $28,172. Mr. Jehn said a person who takes this option may be eligible for certain involuntary separation benefits, including two years of commissary and exchange privileges and up to four months' medical coverage.

Servicemembers who accept either package incur a Reserve duty obligation.

The special separation choice, for instance, carries a three-year commitment. Under the voluntary separation incentive program, the Reserve duty and yearly payment periods are the same. That is, the E-6 with 10 years' service is required to serve 20 years in the Reserve components.

Reserve and force management officials are working on the policy governing Reserve duty for servicemembers who elect VSI and SSB.

Program costs and savings aren't readily available at this time, Mr. Jehn said. Those figures depend on the number of people who select the packages and which one they take, as well as their current pay and allowances.

Capt. Christy Giroux teaches a patient how to do her own blood sugar test.

(A1C Jose Alejandro)

Mission maker

Have you ever met someone and asked them "how do you find the time to do it?" Capt. Christy A. Giroux, 64th Medical Squadron, seems to handle it well, and even enjoy it.

"I enjoy change and variety," she said. "With so many different things to do, there's never a dull moment."

As nursing staff development officer, Captain Giroux plans, develops, implements and evaluates nursing staff development offerings to include orientation, skill competency, in-service and continuing education programs.

She also serves as the hospital volunteer coordinator, where she orients and places volunteers throughout the hospital. She serves as a patient educator-resource person, where she teaches patients about diabetes, injections and other problems. She teaches CPR, she is an advanced cardiac life support instructor and she works with the squadron booster club.

When she breaks away from her activities at the base, she enjoys spending time with her 7-year-old daughter Katie, who attends Reese Elementary. She also likes dancing, singing, computers and crafts.

The captain received her nursing degree from Indiana University in 1979. She earned her masters degree in management from Webster University in 1988.

Her future goals are to serve as nurse program manager for recruiting in Indianapolis, and to pursue an additional masters degree in nursing.

MAC bases transfer as AF restructures

SCOTT AIR FORCE BASE, Ill. — Rhein-Main AB, Germany, will transfer to U.S. Air Forces in Europe April 1 and Military Airlift Command's C-130s and accompanying overseas assets will transfer to USAFE and Pacific Air Forces as part of Air Force-wide restructuring.

The move is part of the disestablishment of Military Airlift Command and the establishment of the Air Mobility Command. Col. Al Willis, the AMC transition team director, said the transfer includes all theater-based tactical airlift wings, theater C-130 aircraft and crews, and associated theater C-130 support activities.

Under a proposal sent to Air Force Headquarters, MAC will retain overseas strategic aerial ports, maintenance, and command and control resources to meet its worldwide responsibilities. To house these assets, MAC will establish airlift support groups. These responsibilities will transfer to AMC this summer when the new command is activated.

AMC will also transfer its theater-assigned C-130 operation and maintenance funds to USAFE and PACAF, and will organize, train, equip and provide C-130s to theater commanders.

MAC will remain the single C-130 weapon system manager, the gaining command for Air Reserve component tactical airlift C-130 assets, and retain responsibility for standardization of C-130 regulations, tactics, training and operating procedures.

Additionally, the command will manage strategic airlift aircraft maintenance facilities and personnel; strategic aircrew staging; and infrastructure to include strategic aerial port operations, passenger service, and airlift coordination centers among other functions.

With the deactivation on April 1 of the 322nd Airlift Division, Ramstein AB, Germany, and the 834th Airlift Division, Hickam AB, Hawaii, MAC will transfer to USAFE:

□ Rhein-Main AB, Germany, with 3,000 manpower authorizations.

□ The 435th Tactical Airlift Wing, Combat Support Group, C-130 maintenance and support and 37th Tactical Airlift Squadron, at Rhein-Main.

MAC will transfer to PACAF:
□ The 374th Tactical Airlift Wing at Yokota AB, Japan, and its accompanying maintenance and support.

□ The 21st and 345th Tactical Airlift Squadrons, and roughly 950 manpower authorizations at Yokota AB.

□ The 17th TAS, its maintenance operations and about 350 manpower slots at Elmendorf AFB, Alaska.

Some manpower authorizations from each organization will transfer from MAC to USAFE and PACAF for C-130 staff expertise.

The transfer of theater-assigned C-130s will remove some of the command overhead at Rhein-Main, RAF Mildenhall, England, Yokota and Elmendorf. As a result, MAC will establish or restructure organizations to align units functionally while maintaining its global airlift system.

The mission of these units will not change drastically but will focus on providing command and control, aerial port and maintenance support, Willis said.

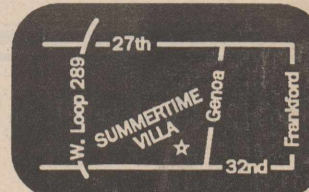

While the restructure enhances unity of command by placing theater assets under one commander, C-130 operations will continue to provide the interface with strategic airlift to provide AMC's global airlift its global reach capability. (MAC News Service)

Screening gives wing members chance to help those in need find a Needle in a haystack

A needle in a haystack. Finding one is difficult. But what's more difficult is saving a patient who needs a bone marrow transplant. That's because matching two people's bone marrow is a 20,000-to-1 shot according to officials in the Naval Medical Research Institute in Bethesda, Md. People at Reese have a chance coming up to narrow those odds. A marrow donor screening drive is set for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Jan. 27 in the 64th Security Police Squadron. The screening is not difficult according to its organizers. "It takes about 20 minutes at most, and it's similar to what you'd do donating blood," said TSgt. Mike Gutierrez, SPS. "You fill out some consent forms and give some blood sample. That's all there is to it." All servicemembers, family members and Defense Department civilians are being recruited as donors and are eligible to be recipients. Sergeant Gutierrez added that Desert Storm veterans are also eligible; currently, Desert Storm participants can not donate blood because of a parasite infection that has been detected in some gulf vets. For more information, contact Sergeant Gutierrez at 6589.

Programs put food on table

by MSgt. Donald Minnis family support center

Two local programs have helped families live a little better for a number of years. They are the holiday food fund and the South Plains Food Bank.

The holiday food fund begins when members of the organization solicit funds from squadrons and other organizations throughout the year. These funds are held in a non-profit account until needed.

The account is managed by the family support center under the control of the board of directors.

Every year, around holiday time, a call is made to commanders and first sergeants asking for names of Reese families that could use assistance. The board of directors reviews the submitted lists and decides who to provide funds to.

Each family selected receives a $40 check to be used at the commissary or, if civilian, a local supermarket. After the holidays, any unused funds can be used through the year for special situations as requested by commanders and first sergeants.

This past holiday season, 49 checks totaling $1,960 were given to families identified.

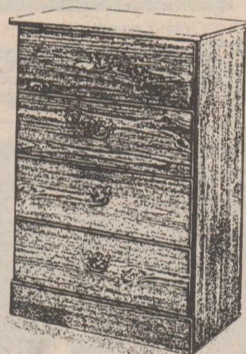

Another program that aids Reese personnel is the South Plains Food Bank. The family support center is a member of the food bank and may issue vouchers for food. When someone is identified as needing food assistance, a voucher for either 50 or 100 pounds of food is issued, depending on the size of the family. The individual presents the voucher at the food bank where the food is furnished.

Anyone needing assistance should see their commander or first sergeant, who will make the referral to the family support center.

FLUORIDE

We have some good news and some bad news

We have some good news and some bad news.

Good news: The number of cavities children get has dropped dramatically since fluoride was added to toothpastes and drinking water. In fact, many children today reach their teenage years without having a single cavity.

Bad news: Unfortunately, excessive fluoride can cause problems. Fluoride occurs naturally in West Texas water, and the levels of fluoride peak in summer.

Base bioenvironmental officials said Reese has been told by the Texas Department of Health that its water sometimes exceeds the maximum allowable fluoride level. Public law states that fluoride in water must be less than 2.0 milligrams per liter. In August, the Reese level was 2.3.

The bad side is that this makes fluorosis — a discoloring of teeth enamel — a greater possibility in children 14 and younger. Fluorosis ranges from barely noticeable discoloring to pitting of the enamel surface.

The good side is that fluoride does fight cavities, and the cosmetic damage from fluorosis does not harm the teeth.

The 2.3 level of fluoride in Reese water last August was not common according to bioenvironmental officials, and dental experts on Reese said the risk of fluorosis is low. The average Reese level in 1991 was 1.2 according to 1st Lt. John Bell of bioenvironmental.

"My office takes water samples eight times a month and sends them to the dental officer," he said. "The dental clinic ensures the water is safe to drink."

For added protection against fluorosis, Capt. (Dr.) Michael Najera of the dental clinic offered the following tips, either of which will work:

□ Have children drink only bottled or purified water, which has no fluoride.

The clinic can provide fluoride drops that can be added to bring the water to an optimum level.

□ Have kids drink a mix of bottled and tap water.

For more information, call the clinic at 3321 or bioenvironmental at 3327.

Changes reflected in electronic filing rules

Procedures for electronic filing in the 1992 tax season have been released by the Internal Revenue Service. In 1992, taxpayers nationwide may file electronically where there is a balance due on the return. This was not so before.

All electronic filers must file a revised Form 8633 (Application to Participate in the Electronic Filing Program), whether or not they have participated in the program before.

An electronic filer must also ensure that the Electronic Filing Identification Number and/or the Electronic Transmitter Identification Number assigned to it by the IRS is not used, or transferred to, any other entity.

A tax return cannot be electronically filed after Aug. 15, notwithstanding the fact that the taxpayer has been granted an extension to file. IRS Form 4868 (Application for Automatic Extension of Time To File U.S. Individual Income Tax Return) cannot be electronically filed. Further, an amended tax return cannot be electronically filed. A taxpayer must file an amended tax return on paper in accordance with the instructions for IRS Form 1040X (Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return).

Finally, a tax return that has a foreign address cannot be electronically filed. Armed Services post offices are not considered foreign addresses.

For more information, call 3505.

Six receive Article 15s

Six wing members received Article 15 punishments during the first quarter of the 1992 fiscal year for a variety of offenses under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

According to staff judge advocate, Maj. Edmund S. Bloom, commanders imposed punishments based on factors such as the seriousness of the offense and the prior service and disciplinary record of each offender. The offenses and punishments were:

□ A staff sergeant was reduced to the grade of senior airman, ordered to forfeit $500 pay per month for two months, restricted to Reese for 30 days, and ordered to perform 30 days extra duty for engaging in three instances of dereliction of duty, violations of Article 92, UCMJ, making false official statements on two occasions, violations of Article 107, UCMJ, and for soliciting another military member to engage in a dereliction of duty, a violation of Article 134, UCMJ.

□ A sergeant received a suspended reduction to the grade of airman first class and was ordered to forfeit $150 pay per month for two months for theft of base exchange property, a violation of Article 121, UCMJ.

□ A sergeant was ordered to forfeit $150 pay for one month and to perform seven days extra duty for engaging in drunk and disorderly conduct, a violation of Article 134, UCMJ.

□ A sergeant was ordered to forfeit $150 pay for one month and to perform seven days extra duty for engaging in disorderly conduct, a violation of Article 134, UCMJ.

□ A senior airman received a reprimand and was ordered to perform seven days extra duty while awaiting discharge for assaulting his wife in violation of Article 128, UCMJ.

□ An airman received a suspended reduction to airman basic and was ordered to forfeit $150 pay for one month and perform seven days extra duty for consuming alcoholic beverages while under age and engaging in drunk and disorderly conduct, violations of Article 134, UCMJ.

Carolyn Johnson

CHAMPUS news

As Reese's health benefits advisor, Carolyn Johnson hears a great number of questions about CHAMPUS and other health benefits. One of the more common questions is:

Q: I brought my husband (a retiree) into the emergency room at Reese for care. They were unable to treat him, so he was transferred to a civilian hospital in Lubbock. The civilian hospital admitted my husband and kept him for four days. Now I am told I need a non-availability form. Why do I need this form if the emergency room sent my husband downtown?

A: The non-availability statement is required by CHAMPUS even when the patient is referred from Reese. The only time the NAS is not required is if the patient has primary health insurance, or lives at least 50 miles from Reese.

Kids take on coaches

This past weekend in YABA, the kids bowled against their coaches, Steve Morris, Charlie Madgwick, Pat Bray and James Fields.

In the Pee Wee division, the coach's ball had to hit the bumpers twice before hitting the pins. Coach Bray bowled a 56. Three children beat or tied her score. They are: Derrick Ash, Krystle Abdo and Justin Dawson.

In the Batan division, the coach bowled one game, while the children bowled two, the highest score winning. Coach Fields bowled a 162. Five children beat his score. They are: Kerri Kirkpatrick, Scott Gorenc, Amanda Campbell, Kevin Heffner and Chris Madgwick.

In the Prep division, the coach bowled two games to the children's three games, the highest score winning. Coach Morris bowled a 295 series. Eight beat his score. They are: Jim Mitchel, Brian Gorenc, Charlos Ferrand, Kim Lee, Amanda Gabel, Josh Bray, David Barber and Brent Spreall.

In the Junior/Major league, three coaches, Charlie Madgwick, Steve Morris and James Fields, bowled against the oldest group. They had to beat the coaches total pins plus a handicap. Eight beat their score. They are: Julie Stiffles, Tom Carbaugh, Micah Wallace, Brian Lee, Terri Barber, D.J. Ferrand, Kathy Carbaugh and Angela O'Malley.

The next event will be a city tournament, scheduled for the first two weeks in February at the Lubbock Bowling Center, 4020 Avenue Q.

Racquetball tourney scheduled

The Black History Month open classic racquetball tournament will be held Jan. 25-26 at the physical fitness center. The tournament will be double elimination in the men's and women's beginners, intermediate and advanced categories. Start times will be announced.

For more information, call 1st Lt. James Gordon, 3143, or Gary Grant, 3783.

Training camp dates change

The AirForce's men's basketball training camp has been moved from McClellan AFB, Calif. to Vandenberg AFB, Calif. The dates remain the same, March 21-April 4. The Armed Forces men's basketball championship is April 5-10 at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

The AirForce chess training camp will be held at Andrews AFB, Md., July 25-August 1.

For more information on either camps, contact Sgt. Ken Cathey at 6020.
