ROAD WORK

Housing streets set for overhaul

After a one-month delay due to weather, construction on Reese Village streets resumed Feb. 25 and will continue through June.

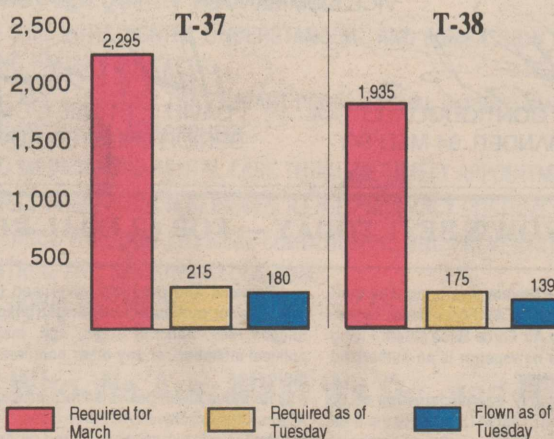

Officials in the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron said the contractor plans to complete all remaining concrete work by next week, which consists of removing and re-paving valley gutters that run in the middle of Mitchell Boulevard, George Street, and Harmon, Andrews and Yount Drives.

The "milling" on the streets was scheduled to start by today (as of press time) according to 1st Lt. Robert Howland, 64th CES.

"This process involves removing the top inch of the existing asphalt and resurfacing," he said. "The contractor will start the millwork at the corner of McGuire and Fourth Street."

A phasing plan has been devised to minimize traffic see "Housing," Page 10

Sortie tracking

Temporary shuttle service upcoming

Shuttle service will be available for several days beginning Tuesday to help people get around the ongoing work on Hangarline Road.

Asphalt will be put down on the north end of the road down to Reese Boulevard (North Main Street) beginning Tuesday, preventing people from walking on it. The contractor is expecting the resurfacing to take three to five days, according to Maj. George Clark, 64th Contracting Squadron commander. The Tuesday start date and the duration could change due to weather.

Capt. Albert Whitley, chief of transportation, said the shuttle will begin its daily run at about 5:40 a.m. at Bldg. 955 (Lockheed) and run in a continuous loop until 6:40 p.m. On the first day of operations, however, service will begin at 7 a.m. Two shuttles will run during expected peak hours from 7 to 8:15 a.m. and 2 to

Mr. Cawthern assembles a J-85 engine.

Lockheed member named best in ATC

Command cites jet engine technician

Scott Cawthern, assistant dock chief of the Lockheed J-85 engine shop, has been recognized as one of ATC's best maintainers, capturing the command-level 1991 Lt. Gen. Leo Marquez Outstanding Aircraft Maintenance Technician Award.

Mr. Cawthern is responsible for disassembly, cleaning, inspection, repair and reassembly of J-85 engines.

Mr. Cawthern was an active participant in an employee working group that suggested more efficient methods of shop operation when faced with a reduced allocation of flying hours and personnel. The branch now operates with 10 fewer people, while producing an equal or higher-quality engine.

"I enjoy working an engine from the ground up and having it pass inspection at the test cell," he said. "I am proud of what I do, and work as hard as I can to do it right."

"Scott is an outstanding technician, demonstrating capabilities far beyond those normally expected of an individual of his age and experience," said Geary Wallace, Lockheed contract manager.

"I didn't get this award on my own," said Mr. Cawthern. "It takes more than one person to come up with a quality product."

Mr. Cawthern has been at Reese for about four years — two in the Air Force and two as a Lockheed employee.

In his spare time, he likes to work with the youth in his church, and aspires to be a future youth director. He also served as a special coordinator for the Lubbock area Special Olympics.

"I'm impressed with Scott's desire to help people on a spiritual level through his church activities and his involvement with Special Olympics," said Fred Goodspeed, propulsion branch supervisor. "He is also an exceptional jet engine technician, capable of accomplishing all aspects of jet engine repair."

Mr. Cawthern and his wife Pam now call Lubbock home.

Top services manager Reese captain captures 1991 command honor

64th Services Squadron Commander, Capt. Steve Governale, has captured honors as ATC's top services manager of the year for 1991.

In command of SVS for the past two years, Captain Governale credited the people working for him as a big part of his success.

"With all the different sections and responsibilities that the squadron has, there's no way I could do my job — let alone do it well — without great people working with me," the Florida native said. "They're the ones who really deserve the credit."

As evidence of that, many of the sections and people in SVS have earned ATC honors themselves.

Most recently Roy "Judge" Chisolm, manager of the Reese Enlisted Open Mess, was cited as the top EOM manager in the command. Also, the Reese Furnishings Management Office has been best in ATC for three of the last four years, and the Caprock Cafe captured the 1990 Hennessy Trophy.

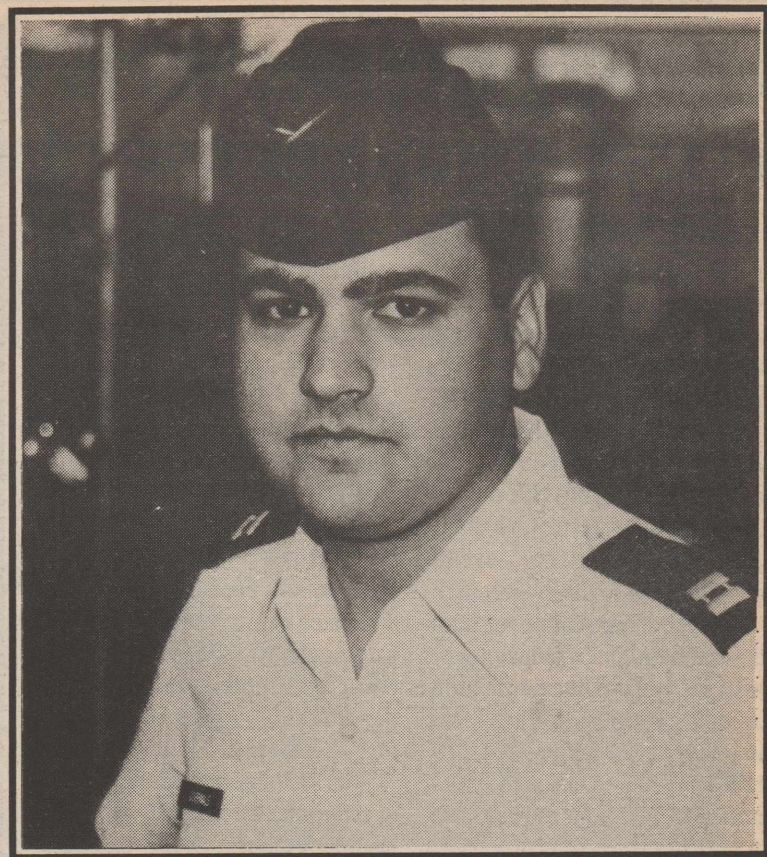

Additionally, SVS was named the best services squadron in ATC in 1990 (small base category) under Captain Governale's command.

1991 was a particularly challenging year for the captain. Under the wing reorganization, SVS absorbed MWR; the result was the smallest squadron on base becoming the largest with over 300 members.

"Captain Governale's superb organizational talents and leadership abilities were crucial to making this merger a success," said Col. Ken Hess, 64th Support Group commander. "His efforts and those of his people earned this recognition."

In addition to his work on duty, the captain is active in the base community. He's president of the Reese Company Grade Officers' Council and a member of the Air Force Association.

His award was just one highlight of the captain's last two weeks. This past weekend, he announced his engagement to Stacie Garmire of Sacramento. They are planning their wedding for sometime in June.

Education center earns annual command award

The Reese Education Center was recently presented the 1991 ATC Outstanding Education Services Program Award in the small base category.

Reese will now represent ATC in the annual Nathan Altschuler Award for Excellence in Educational Programs competition.

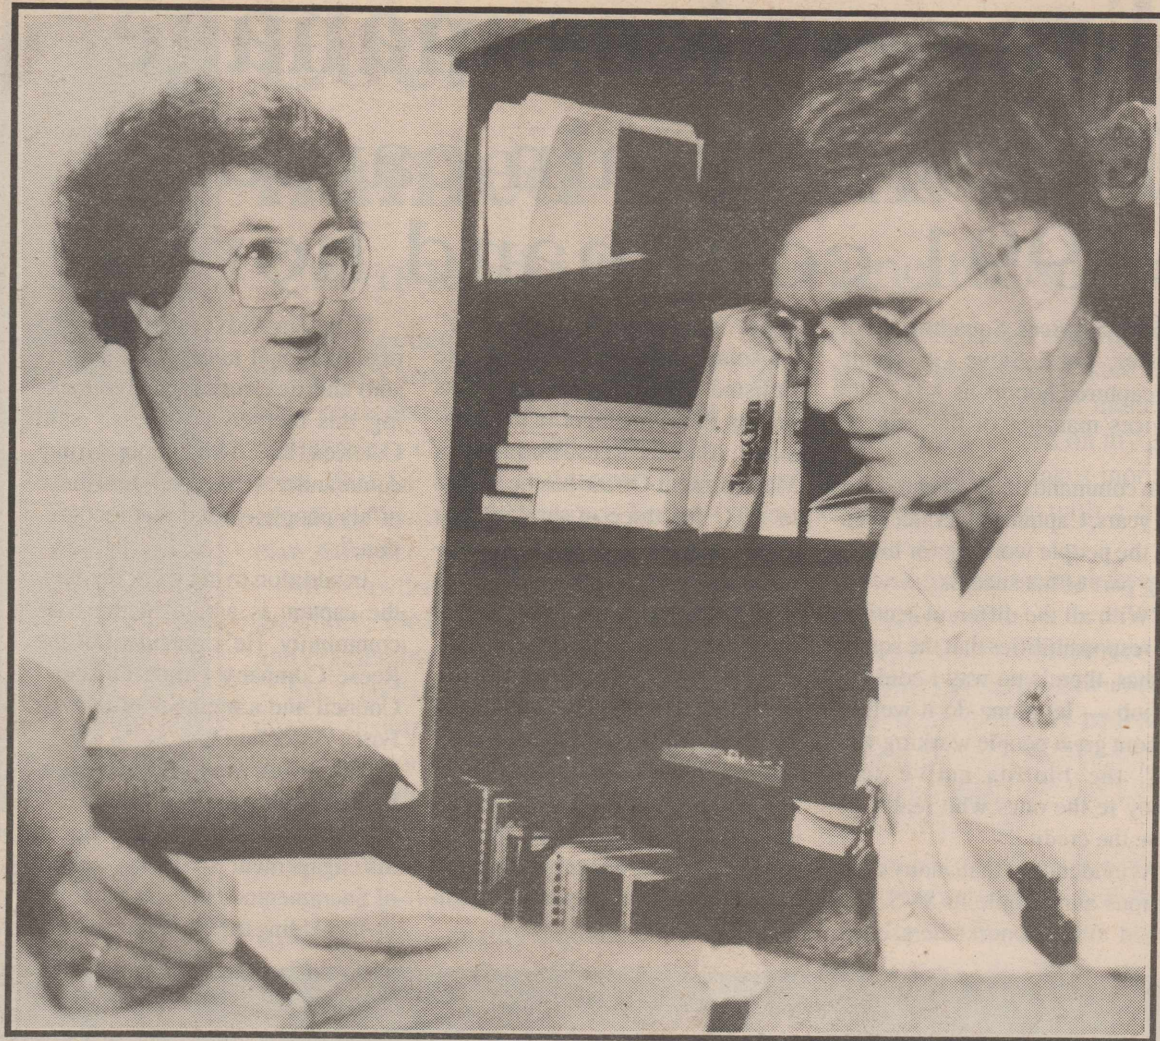

According to Jeffrey Wilbur, education services officer, several items attributed to the award, such as enrollment increases in both undergraduate and graduate programs, college credit examination programs, commissioning programs and overall degrees awarded over the past year. During the year, almost 650 military enrollments and 35 degrees were recorded.

"Winning this award wouldn't have been possible without the efforts of everyone in the center," said Mr. Wilbur. "We make every effort to make sure all students are getting the information and assistance they need. That's what we focus our attention on."

In addition to increased enrollments in all educational programs in 1991, the center added two new master's degree programs through Wayland Baptist University and opened an independent study area in the center where students have study materials and educational videos available for their use.

"This is a remarkable achievement which represents an intense, dedicated effort," said Maj. Linda Cunningham, 64th Mission Support Squadron commander. "Super programs and super people — that's what makes things work."

Mr. Wilbur credited the success of the center to the staff, including Drilma Handley, WBU counselor; Mary Margaret Mayekawa, guidance counselor; Jim Featherston, director of South Plains College at Reese; Lynn Dodds, education technician; SSgt. Phil Duffy, NCO in charge of education services; and Andrea Shealy, testing specialist.

New wing covers protecting aircraft, saving time

In June 1983, a severe hailstorm hit Reese producing 4 inches of hail, wind gusts up to 92 mph and 3.7 inches of rain. Damage was estimated at $1,006,700. Fortunately, only $10,000 of the damage was to aircraft. One of the major factors contributing to the minor damage to the aircraft was wing covers.

The vinyl covers, lined with padding, were wrapped around the wing and secured with velcro. They are put on the aircraft each weekend and when severe weather is expected.

According to Bill Lyon, survival equipment and egress senior mechanic, the crew chiefs' main complaints about the wing covers were bulkiness, a poor fit, the time it took to put them on and the fact that they wouldn't stay on the aircraft.

"A regulation from ATC headquarters came in last year with a tentative design for new covers," said Mr. Lyon. "We put the design on the aircraft, made some minor adjustments and went to work."

The total project will take 4,000 yards of laminated vinyl covering, two semi-truck loads of padding, miles of bunji cord and a pick-up truck full of hardware to hold it all together.

"I remember when I came back to Reese after Desert Storm and everyone was still complaining about the wing covers," said Emsy Crawford, a Lockheed survival equipment specialist. "The next thing I know, I'm on the sewing machine making them."

According to Mr. Lyon, about 103 sets of the wing covers are being made here, approximately a six-month effort.

"These are some great folks we have working in the survival equipment shop," he said. "They have really 'gotten after it' on these covers. They have done an outstanding job."

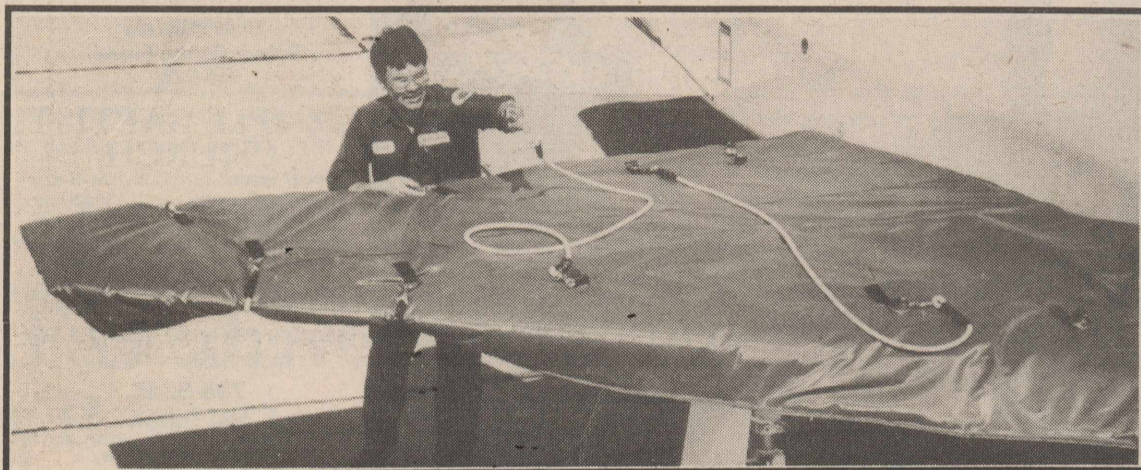

According to Ron Stryker, flightline manager, the new covers will take crew chiefs a third of the time to install as the old covers did.

"When we have bad weather on the horizon, you don't have any time to waste with bulky wing covers," said Mr. Stryker. "We'll be able to get the covers on the aircraft before the storm comes, and when it comes, we'll know that the aircraft will be all right."

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

Mr. Crawford (above) sews new wing covers. Doug Litke (left) puts one of the new wing covers on a T-38.

Wing executive officer finishes career

by 2nd Lt. Kyle Voigt
staff writer

Lt. Col. Bob Millican will close out his Air Force career Thursday in the same place it began 20 years ago. He will mark the end of his time in service with his final flight in the T-38 and a retirement ceremony.

Colonel Millican, the wing executive officer and a Reese UPT graduate, said he is packing up his belongings to move to El Paso, Texas. There he plans to join his father in the family farming business.

Born May 31, 1949, and raised in El Paso, Colonel Millican graduated from Ysleta High School. From there, he went to college at Texas Tech University and earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy. Colonel Millican received his Air Force commission from Texas Tech ROTC in May 1972, and earned his wings April 20, 1973.

"The day I received those silver wings was one of the greatest days of my life," he said. "The only memory that comes close was leading and employing a 12-ship formation of 'Eagles' (F-15's) as a mission commander at Red Flag exercises."

After his first tour as an instructor pilot at Reese, Colonel Millican was handed an assignment that today's UPT students can only dream of. He moved to Holloman AFB, N.M., in 1977 where he was a member of the initial cadre in the McDonnell Douglas F-15 Eagle. As a member of the 8th Tactical Fighter Squadron - "Black Sheep" - Colonel Millican began his many years as an Eagle driver.

From there, he moved to Osan AB, Korea, in late 1980 where he was an exercise planner and later the executive officer for the 314th Air Division deputy commander for operations. In 1981, he returned to the "Black Sheep" for two more years.

In 1983, Colonel Millican became the aide de camp to the commander of the 5th Air Force at Yokota AB, Japan. In the summer of 1984, he moved to Ramstein AB, Germany, as the aide de camp to the commander in chief, United States Air Forces Europe and the commander of the Allied Air Forces Central Europe.

"As a general's aide, I learned more professionally and personally than during any other assignment in my Air Force career," the colonel said.

In 1986, Colonel Millican returned to the cockpit as the assistant operations officer for the 22nd TFS at Bitburg AB, Germany. While still at Bitburg, he also served as the director of current operations and as the director of readiness for the 36th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Before returning to Reese, Colonel

Millican attended British Air War College at RAF Cranwell in 1988.

During his final tour at Reese, the colonel has served as a T-38 instructor pilot, director of safety, special assistant to the base commander, special assistant to the wing commander and inspector general.

Colonel Millican's 20 years have been directed by one philosophy, he said. "If you take care of your people, they will take care of the mission."

Colonel Millican has received the defense meritorious service medal and the meritorious service medal with one oak leaf cluster. He will receive his second oak leaf cluster at his retirement ceremony Thursday. He has also received three commendation medals, three achievement medals and one joint service commendation medal.

Colonel Millican has one 12-year-old son, Michael, who lives in Lubbock. He will begin terminal leave after his retirement ceremony with an effective date of retirement of June 1.

AFAF drive continues as Reese lends support

The 1992 Air Force Assistance Fund Campaign runs from Feb. 24 through March 28 with a goal of raising $4.4 million. As of Wednesday morning, Reese members had already exceeded the local goal of $14,670 by $401.

AFAF raises money for four charitable organizations benefiting active-duty, Air Force Reserve, Air National Guard and retired Air Force people and their families, including surviving spouses and their families according to Capt. Albert Whitley, Reese AFAF project officer.

Donations can be made through cash contributions or payroll deductions. Last year's goal was $4.5 million. Donations totaled $5.5 million. Reese people donated $24,032, exceeding their goal by more than $6,000.

Organizations benefiting from the campaign are:

□ The Air Force Aid Society. The AFAS is the official charity of the Air Force, helping eligible people handle financial emergencies. The program helps active-duty and retired individuals as well as guardsmen and reservists on active duty.

Assistance is provided through grants or interest-free loans for things such as food, rent, utilities and other essential goods and services. The aid society also sponsors three tuition assistance programs for college-level education.

In 1991, the society helped 29,593 Air Force people and their families with nearly $19 million in no-interest loans and grants.

□ The Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows and Dependents Home Foundation Inc. Located at Fort Walton Beach near Eglin AFB, Fla., the home foundation cares for retired enlisted families. Those eligible include widows and widowers, 55 or older, whose spouses were retired enlisted people from the regular Air Force, ANG or Reserve.

□ The Air Force Village Indigent Widows' Fund. This fund maintains the Air Force Village in San Antonio. The village is a life care community for retired officers, spouses, widows and family members.

□ The Gen. and Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay Foundation. This foundation was established in 1990 to provide direct support to indigent officers' widows who need financial help.

More information on AFAF is available from unit project officers or by calling Captain Whitley at 3356. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Shuttle

 5 p.m. Throughout the day, the shuttles' route (see map, this page) will go from Bldg. 955 to:

- Bldg. 930
- Bldg. 820
- Hangar 70
- Bldg. 79
- Bldg. 670 (for Hangar 82)
- Hangar 92
- Bldg. 110 (for 52nd, 54th Flying Training Squadrons)

Once the shuttle reaches Bldg. 110, it will double back on its route, making each stop in reverse order. "The shuttle should make each stop every 15 minutes or so," said Captain Whitley. "During peak hours when there are two shuttles operating, that waiting time will be cut in half." He added that time spent at each shuttle stop will depend on how many passengers there are, but estimated the stop time to be one minute. In areas where the shuttle will operate, transportation officials ask that people park only in designated spots so that the shuttle will not have difficulty making turns.

Housing

 disruptions in the housing area (see map, this page). Notification letters will be sent to affected occupants prior to the start of each phase. CES officials stressed the importance of cooperation from housing residents. For personal and vehicle safety, housing occupants are encouraged to observe posted construction barriers. Limited curbside parking and heavy dust can be expected during this period of construction. To prevent delays on construction, occupants are not to water lawns while their particular section of housing is being done (a recent edition of the "Village Crier" mistakenly said the watering ban runs throughout the course of the entire project). For information on this matter contact SSgt. Tone Sanchez at 3922.

Women play increasing role in armed services

Women play an ever-increasing role in today's armed forces. More than 11 percent of the active force and 13 percent of the ready reserves are women.

In actual numbers, almost 235,000 women are currently on active duty, while about 151,000 serve with the reserve components. Another 4,300 women are on duty with the Coast Guard, 2,600 on active duty and the remainder with the Coast Guard Reserve.

At Reese, 214 women help make up the active-duty force — 74 officers, 140 enlisted — according to base personnel officials.

During Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm in the Persian Gulf, more than 33,000 women were assigned to the combat zone.

The combat exclusion laws and service policies were in effect during these operations.

As a part of the largest U.S. military operation - over 500,000 servicemembers -- since establishment of the all-volunteer force, women filled every type of job required. They weren't relegated to administrative and medical missions. They piloted and crewed helicopters and reconnaissance aircraft, and pulled security, construction and intelligence duties. Women were assigned to Patriot missile battalions and served as unit commanders. They drove trucks and were responsible for chemical and biological defense and decontamination.

Women were killed in action, and two were held prisoners of war by the Iraqis.

The role of women in future conflicts may be determined during the next few years. A presidential commission meets this year to make recommendations on women in combat. Recommendations may include opening all or a few of the currently closed career fields or leaving the laws and service policies in effect.

Currently, 52 percent of Army positions are open to women; Navy, 59 percent; Marine Corps, 20 percent; Air Force, 97 percent; and Coast Guard, 100 percent. (American Forces Information Service)

Commission opportunity to expand

The Air Force has expanded the list of degree disciplines to be considered by the upcoming Airman Education and Commissioning Program Selection Board.

Enlisted people who wish to pursue a degree in computer science, computer engineering or electrical engineering may now compete for the program. The other degree disciplines to be considered by the upcoming board include meteorology, nursing, physician assistant and physical therapy.

The selection board will convene June 16 at the Air Force Military Personnel Center, Randolph AFB, Texas. The application deadline is May 19, or May 12 for those applications needing waivers.

For more information or help with applications call the Reese Education Center at 3469. (Air Force News Service)

Base members are liable for their actions

by Lt. Col. Joseph Buchwald
64th FTW comptroller

The following are several recent reports of survey where people on base were held liable for their negligence:

- A lost flight suit cost a lieutenant $174.23.
- A lost flight jacket cost a captain $118.85.
- Another lieutenant lost $79.63 because of lost flight gear.
- A sergeant who damaged a government vehicle was held accountable for $101.78.
- Another damaged GMV cost a staff sergeant $81.36.
- A lost typewriter cost a staff sergeant $100.

Nobody wins when government property is lost or damaged. The individual who has to pay loses money, and the Air Force has to spend time and money to replace or repair the equipment. Remember:

- Don't hit anything with a government vehicle. Use caution when driving.
- Don't sign as an account custodian until you have inventoried everything and seen everything with your own eyes!
- Don't leave flight gear, especially jackets and suits, unattended or unlocked.

For more information on reports of survey, call me at 3518.

Looking to the future

Leaders look toward smaller, leaner force

by TSgt. Sarah L. Hood
Air Force News Service

WASHINGTON — The fiscal 1993 budget, one the secretary of the Air Force sees as responding to the wide-ranging realities facing the service, is also helping leadership move the Air Force toward becoming a smaller, more effective force of the future.

"The chief (of staff of the Air Force) and I are in the business of designing a new Air Force," Secretary Donald B. Rice told Congress Feb. 20. "We're trying to start with nearly a clean sheet of paper and design a new Air Force for the future from the ground up."

Secretary Rice and Chief of Staff Gen. Merrill A. McPeak outlined their plan for reshaping the Air Force to the House Armed Services Committee. In testimony, Rice said the reshaping and restructuring of the Air Force were being driven by the demands of a new era — new thinking, new security challenges and opportunities, new fiscal constraints and new technology.

"For the first time in nearly half a century, we are sculpting a defense strategy without the image of an implacable and monolithic Soviet Union," the secretary said. "The president has outlined a vision of security without super-power confrontation."

While Secretary Rice feels no need to have forces ready to fight a global war on a moment's notice, even in a new era the United States is still the pre-eminent force for world stability. Consequently, the Air Force faces two challenges: retaining the ability to deal with any threats to U.S. interests around the world remaining since the end of the Cold War, and prepare for challenges in the 21st century. These have to be faced amid rapidly dwindling resources and competing national priorities, Secretary Rice said.

The 1993 budget request, adjusted for inflation, is 7 percent below the 1992 level enacted by Congress and 29 percent below 1985. The Air Force budget for 1993, also adjusted for inflation, will be 34 percent less than 1985's. In terms of manpower, military end-strength will be 26 percent smaller than the mid-1980s — the largest percentage cut by any of the services to date, Secretary Rice said.

But while recruiting, training and retaining the best people is still one of the Air Force's highest priorities, the secretary said current plans for cutting manpower also pose one of the greatest challenges.

"Our concerns are the timing of the drawdown, breaking faith with a successful all-volunteer force, helping people transition to civilian careers, preserving the right mix of skills and experience, and preparing and motivating the force that remains."

The Air Force has reduced its end strength by more than 123,000 in the last seven years. This year's proposals will further reduce the force by about 35,000 toward a goal of 449,000. By the end of fiscal 1995, military end strength will total 428,000.

To meet those objectives, accessions have been constrained, and use of voluntary early release and early retirement programs has been encouraged. With the exception of several officer selective early retirement boards, most reductions, so far, have been made through voluntary means, Secretary Rice said. The voluntary separation incentive and special separation benefit offer new avenues to help avoid involuntary actions.

"If acceptance rates for VSI and SSB are high, we hope to avoid involuntary measures in fiscal 1993," he said.

The Air Force is also continuing to reduce civilian end strength. Civilian numbers have decreased by about 47,000 in the last seven years. Proposals for this fiscal year include further reductions of more than 4,000 civilians toward a target of 213,870, 20 percent less than the fiscal 1986 level.

Secretary Rice expects to reach the fiscal 1992 target through a hiring freeze and attrition, but a reduction in force could become necessary in 1993.

The Air Force also has more than 2,200 fewer aircraft than in the mid-1980s and in the last two years more than 1,000 aircraft have been taken out of the active force.

"As all of the services cut back, we will have to deepen our cooperation and sharpen the contributions we make to joint operations, ensuring what we bring to the table is cutting edge and relevant to the security demands of a new era."

Secretary Rice believes those demands "play to the inherent strengths of air and space power." He said that during these uncertain times when the scope of future challenges will be difficult to predict, space forces allow the Air Force to monitor activities around the world and be familiar with the battlefield "even before our forces arrive."

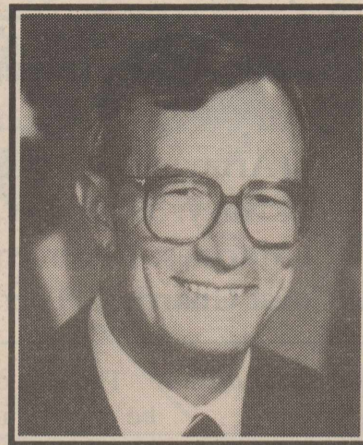

"Ours will be the force of first and last resort." But, Secretary Rice added, a response will not necessarily have to be lethal. "A helping hand or a clenched fist — airpower can, and has, delivered both."

Illustrating the plan for the future of the Air Force is the vision statement — Air Force people building the world's most respected air and space force... global power and reach for America. Backing up that vision is quality. "Quality Air Force describes our approach to reorienting, restructuring and resizing aerospace forces," Secretary Rice said.

Careful attention to people, training and education, infrastructure, advanced technology research, reliability and maintainability in fiscal 1993 reflect the commitment to quality.

Having a vision of the future is not enough, Secretary Rice said. There must be the intent to carry that vision through.

"We are the best Air Force in the world today. But we want to keep improving the definition of best, then beat it and define it anew."

Secretary Rice

"We're trying to start with nearly a clean sheet of paper and design a new Air Force for the future from the ground up."

Notes

Open house meeting set

Anyone interested in setting up a booth at the May 24 base open house should attend a meeting at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Reese Enlisted Open Mess.

AFA, Daedalians meet Thursday

The local chapters of the Air Force Association and Daedalians will hold a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the Reese Officers' Open Mess. The guest speaker will be Lt. Gen. Michael Nelson, deputy chief of staff for plans and operations on the Air Staff.

Dress will be coat and tie. R.S.V.P.s can be made by calling Capt. Steve Governale at 3006.

Accounting announces closing

Effective immediately, the Reese Accounting and Finance Office will be closed from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. every Thursday for training. Anyone needing emergency assistance at these times can call 3432.

Passover feast scheduled

A "Seder" — the Jewish feast of Passover — will be conducted at 7 p.m. March 24 in the Reese Chapel by Rev. Sol Rosen, pastor of the Rose of Sharon Judeo-Christian Fellowship.

Chapel officials said the reverend "will present the meal in its Jewish context and then give the full Christian meaning." Everyone on base is welcome; call 3237 for reservations.

'Angel' volunteers sought

Nominations are being sought on base for outstanding volunteers of the year who can be recognized under the "angel" recognition program.

Nominations packets have already been distributed on base, and submissions are due to the Reese Family Support Center by April 3. Call 3305 for details.

School improvement possible

A free video program on improving in school is being offered weekday afternoons from 4 to 4:30, 4:30 to 5 and 5 to 5:30 in the Reese Youth Center. Grade school and high school videos are available.

The only supplies needed are pen and paper. To sign up, stop by the center or call 3820.

Kids can get PCS help

Family members between 6 and 18 who will be going to a new base in the near future can get information about their next station and possibly a pen pal through the Kids in Touch with Kids program.

Anyone who would like to find out more, or who would like to be a pen pal to kids coming here should call the Reese Family Services Center at 3306.

Insurance information needed

People who are going to be admitted to the base hospital and who have insurance besides the Civilian Health and Medical Plan of the Uniformed Services should bring certain information about their other coverage with them.

This includes company name, policy number, effective date, company address, who is covered and expiration date. Officials in the 64th Medical Squadron said that this information is usually on a wallet-size card that is provided with the policy. For details, call 3521.

Pesticides require clearance

All pesticides used on base, including those used in self-help and contract work, must be checked by the pest management section. A number of items besides the pesticides themselves are affected by this requirement.

Not all pesticides are approved for use on military installations. For details, call 3663.

Banquet highlights month's activities

Black History Month came to an end Saturday night with a banquet in the Reese Officers' Open Mess attended by retired Gen. Bernard Randolph.

In his remarks, the former commander of Air Force Systems Command pointed to black history as a "reminder of our foundation."

"A foundation is something that can be built upon, so the black history observance reminds us that all Americans have a lot to be proud of," he said. "Throughout American history, black men and women have played some proud and often difficult roles, and we've made contributions to the culture, the enrichment, the advancement and, of course, the defense of this great nation."

The banquet closed a month of cultural, spiritual, recreational and social activities on base. One event, a contest at Reese Elementary School, gave students a chance to display their knowledge of black history. First- and second-place finishers, respectively, included:

- Fourth grade — Brad Everts and Sandy Campbell.
- Third grade — Johnny Joe Vargas and Jesse Koester.
- Second grade — Tracy Cole and Jason Smith.

□ First grade — Patty Marcelino and Sandra Garcia.

SrA. Leslie Randolph, who supervised the contest, said, "I believe that by exposing children to different cultures, we'll help them build a multicultural background for future generations."

Black History Month organizers said all the events went well. First Lt. Cleve Turk, project officer, credited the events with offering everyone on base "an insight into the many aspects of black culture."

Quality performer

If there is a "jack-of-all-trades" in the 64th Medical Squadron, it is SrA. Nicole Gayle.

As a medical technician in the primary care clinic, Airman Gayle assists physicians in minor surgery procedures, screens patients and performs various medical procedures for the variety of clinical specialties that function out of primary care.

"I know a little bit about everything," said Airman Gayle. "Trying to keep organized is the most hectic thing, but it's satisfying to be able to manage it."

The native Canadian will attend an allergy-immunization course in the near future so she can be the back-up technician in the immunization clinic.

According to Capt. Sarah Taylor, charge nurse of pediatrics and primary care, Airman Gayle is "dependable, responsible and a very valuable asset to the hospital."

She is currently enrolled in South Plains College, and has completed over 30 hours towards her associate's degree.

In her spare time, she enjoys roller skating, reading books and spending time with her husband Ray.

Medal of Honor winner dies

WASHINGTON — Medal of Honor recipient Forrest L. "Woody" Vosler, a technical sergeant in the Army Air Corps in World War II, died of a heart attack Feb. 17. He was 68.

Vosler earned his medal Dec. 20, 1943 while on a B-17 mission over Bremen, Germany. When the bomber in which Vosler was serving as radio operator and gunner was severely damaged by anti-aircraft fire, it was forced out of formation. Vosler was wounded in the legs and face by shrapnel and had metal embedded in both eyes.

He volunteered to be thrown out of the aircraft to lighten the plane, but stayed with the Flying Fortress, managing to operate the radio by touch and continue sending distress signals. After the bomber was ditched in the English Channel, Vosler crawled out on the wing and held the wounded tail gunner in place until crewmembers helped him put the gunner in a boat. # EWC offers scholarships

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club has scholarships available to graduating seniors who have maintained "B" averages or better during their junior and senior high school years.

The amount of each scholarship and the total number given will be determined by the amount of funds available and the number of eligible applicants. The amount available appears to be at a record level, according to EWC officials.

"The money we were able to raise at the sweetheart ball will allow us to help more students than ever before," said Marilyn Braskett, EWC president. The ball raised nearly $11,000.

EWC Scholarship Committee chairperson Mary Greenwell said that one special, $1,000 scholarship will be awarded in the name of Chapters 1068 and A1068 of the Air Force Sergeants Association. This money was donated during the sweetheart ball in the support of the program and all the sweetheart candidates.

Students applying must be family members of active-duty or retired military of any grade or service, or civilian or contract employees at Reese. They must also attend high school in Lubbock or the surrounding area.

Candidates must complete an application, including two written recommendations from their high school principal or counselor and another teacher, an official high school transcript, college board scores, as applicable, and an essay entitled "Why I Want to Further My Education."

Application packages are available from the students' senior counselors, at both the Reese Enlisted and Officers' Open Messes, or from Mrs. Greenwell, 793-7142 or 792-1539.

All applications and supporting material must be postmarked no later than April 24 and addressed to: Mary Greenwell; 4304 18th St., No.15; Lubbock, Texas, 79416.

AFSA plans convention

Divisions 6 and 10 of the Air Force Sergeants Association will hold its annual convention April 2-4 at the Radisson Airport Hotel in San Antonio.

The divisions boast more than 21,000 members and are two of the 16 divisions within AFSA, representing a total of more than 167,000 Air Force enlisted members, both active duty and retired, Air Reserve and Air National Guard and their families. At Reese, Chapter 1068 and its auxiliary have nearly 400 members according to SMSgt. Mike Braskett, chapter president.

"The convention gives members in the region an opportunity to get together, discuss association business and items of concern to all members, and to plan the goals of the division for the coming year," Sergeant Braskett said.

AFSA members are considered among the leaders in providing charitable services to Air Force enlisted members, their families and their local communities. The division's many chapters sponsor, participate and volunteer in many charitable functions, including enlisted recognition programs, professional military education, aiding less fortunate airmen and senior citizens and supporting mentally and physically handicapped adults.

For more information on the convention or AFSA activities, call Sergeant Braskett at 3617. (ATC News Service)

IM volleyball to begin Tuesday

The 64th Operations Support Squadron looks to defend their championship crown as the intramural volleyball seasons begins Tuesday.

The intramural volleyball season begins with a showdown between the 64th Security Police Squadron and the 64th Medical Squadron "B" team at 5 p.m. Games are scheduled to be played every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 5, 5:45, 6:30, 7:15, 8 and 8:45 p.m.

"We're holding more matches on the game nights to give the teams more games per week than last year," said Gary Grant, sports specialist. "The shorter volleyball season will also give squadron softball teams more time to practice before the softball season starts."

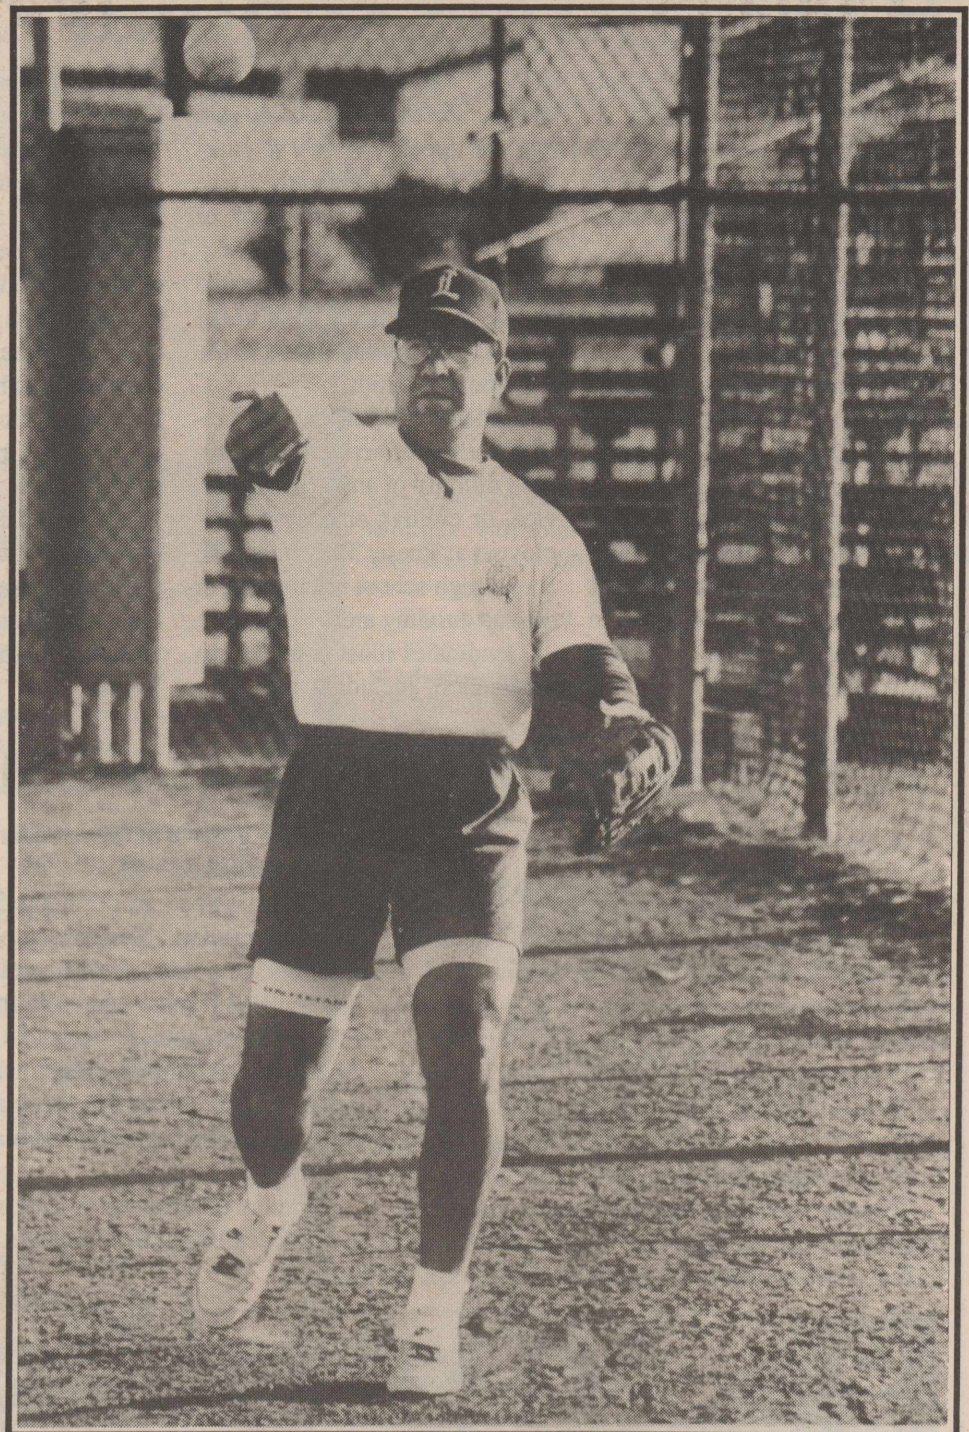

The American League will be composed of seven teams. They are the 33rd Flying Training Squadron, 35th FTS, 52nd FTS, 54th FTS "A," 54th FTS "B," 64th Communications Squadron and the 64th SPS.

The National League is made up of six teams. They are OSS, 64th Logistics Squadron, 64th Mission Support Squadron, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 64th MedSq "A," and 64th MedSq "B."

The regular season is scheduled to end April 9. Eight teams will move on to the double-elimination playoff round. The eight teams will be made up of the top three teams in each league and the two next best records regardless of division.

"We're looking to have a lot of good match-ups this season," said Mr. Grant. "Teams have been practicing hard. Many teams are already looking to make the playoffs." For more information call A1C Joseph Jackson or Mr. Grant at 6020 or 3783.

Warming up for the season

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

TSgt. Joe Hinojoza, T-1 Test Team, tries out for the men's base softball team Monday. The men's varsity team will begin their season March 30. The over-35 softball team will begin their season March 31 and the women's team starts April 1. All varsity and over-35 softball league games are scheduled to be played at the Burl Huffman Field.

BEECHCRAFT IS PROUD TO HAVE DELIVERED
THE FIRST T-1A JAYHAWK TO REESE AFB.

Beech Aircraft Corporation is proud of the part it played in the development of the T-1A Jayhawk and delivery of the first airplane to the Air Training Command at Reese AFB.

The entry of the T-1A into the Air Force inventory marks another chapter in a long and proud history of Beech providing training aircraft to the U.S. military.
