Improvements Underway At Britt Field

By Wheeler Sports Assoc.
As many of you are aware, the Wheeler Sports Association and the Wheeler Lions Club are working together to improve the playing fields and facilities at Tom Britt Memorial Park, a Lions Club property. A notice was released announcing that we have been awarded grant money by the Bivins Foundation (through the Amarillo Area Foundation). The grant money is to be used in providing electricity and lighting to the baseball/softball fields. They will match every dollar we raise up to $37,500, which could result in a grand total of $75,000 between our funds and theirs. Through the incredible generosity of members of our community, we have already received donations totaling $35,000 of our $37,500 goal.

We are now asking for donations for the other expenses associated with the project. Although electricity and lighting represent the largest expenses by far, there are other expenses to be taken into consideration, such as dirtwork, fencing, new dugouts, and establishing grass in the outfields, to name a few. The $75,000 can not be used for purposes other than electricity and lighting, as per the terms of the grant.

If you would like to donate financially, please make checks payable to the Tom Britt Memorial Park account under the Wheeler Area Activities and Improvements Council (you may abbreviate it WAAIC). The check can be dropped off at Charles Kuntz's office or mailed to PO Box 489 in Wheeler.

We understand that it is difficult to try to fundraise in the middle of a historic pandemic in which many members of our community may have been furloughed, laid off, or struggling to find work. However, that very situation could also provide us with an abundance of manpower and volunteers to help the project reach completion more quickly. Even if you are unable to donate financially, but would like to donate your time and labor, that would be welcomed also.

It is also important to inform the public of an outline of the project plan, time frame, costs, and phases. Improvements on the baseball/softball fields have been discussed for several years now. The ideas and plans have changed and evolved over time for one reason or another due to a lack of funding, manpower, and/or inopportune timing. We

I was informed Thursday of the error about the Dance. The ad order showed up in my emails; the dates for insertion were correct.

After receiving the notice I went back to the emails; the order was sent in 2015. I must have a ghost in my computer, who wanted to dance.

STORM REPORT

As Reported by...
Stormie Meriwether,
Tenth Grade Student

Dear Friends, The Coronavirus can't stop us! The Wheeler Class of 2020 had a perfect graduation outside at the courthouse. It was a beautiful day. All the seniors wore black gowns and black masks. They sat six feet apart. Alex Davis and Brady Bailey gave speeches. Coach Bailey told about the scholarships. I like the big screen. I loved the baby pictures of all the seniors. Good luck, Seniors!

Monday was Memorial Day. We put flowers on the graves of our families in Hinton, Shamrock and Wheeler. We talked about what the real meaning is. Memorial Day is to remember all the men and women who died for our freedom. We went to see Ben Britt's grave. It is so sad that he died, but I hope everyone will always remember what he and the others did for our country. I hope we will always be free.

Happy Birthday, neighbor

Merely Mustard

A few weeks back I wrote some thoughts about sleeping. Unfortunately, they remain only thoughts for me; I haven't yet solidified as habit the practices about which I wrote. But now I want to mention another fundamental health practice: exercise. Doesn't the word itself seem almost obscene? It probably conjures up visions of P.E. teachers or some other authority figure standing over you, or behind, or whatever position of dominance is applicable, forcing compliance with an exercise activity that, though not inherently distasteful, and even possibly enjoyable if entered into voluntarily, becomes tortuous under the heavy hand of the authority imposing it. Therefore, let's just call it movement, for the purposes of this piece. Also, before we get too far along, I want to disclaim any notion that this column is intended as a health-oriented, or sort of life coaching piece. In truth I don't know what it is, and I often find myself grasping at straws as to what it should be on any given week, but in any case I don't want to give the impression, or allow the incorrect assumption to go unchallenged, that I have it all together, and possess knowledge superior to what is commonly available. In fact, whatever knowledge I do possess may not even be applicable, but I share it because I do believe there are aspects of this piece that grope for the truth, which hopefully make the remainder worth bearing. As someone more eloquent similarly said, expressing the same concept with more brevity, "There's a blaze of light in every word."

So, movement. It is what it sounds like – the human body is designed to move. It is quite an intricate and elaborate structure, but amazingly durable and resilient. Its effectiveness and lack of required maintenance causes us to overlook its magnificence, like a car that just works and doesn't give trouble until it really is in trouble. But if you think about it, it is obvious we are designed to move. A problem is our lifestyle discourages movement, in a way, by virtue of so many mechanized devices that make our lives easier by doing some of our movement for us, and also by the challenge of making time for it all in a busy schedule. I believe it is this particular point I want to address, because I have been hobbled many times by a feeling that I didn't have time to do some kind of movement. This is a cop-out, as the reality is we all have time for whatever our greatest priorities are. But there is a real temptation to think that I lack the time to engage in movement. Part of this is my subconsciously not wanting to go through whatever degree of discomfort I would encounter in movement, because there is always effort and discomfort in moving. If that were not so, the machines that move for us would probably have never been invented, much less sold. But the other part is feeling like there isn't adequate time to do anything worthwhile. I won't discuss the factors that may have led to a deprivation of time, other than to merely mention that often for me I would have had more time if I had managed my time and commitments better, but to one degree or another there is often a reality of lacking time to do a full-on "workout", and many times this has stopped me from doing anything at all.

And that is a false dichotomy which I wish to expose – just because I may lack the time (for whatever reason) to do a full-length workout does not mean that I can do nothing. There is always ample time to do something. I have recently become convinced of the benefit of doing some movement activity for even as little as five minutes. Five minutes is sufficiently long to enable you to do something that will increase your pulse and respiration, making your heart and lungs more capable and efficient. I believe five minutes can be enough to stimulate a release of the neurotransmitters dopamine and serotonin, which affect mood and motivation, among other things. And most importantly, five minutes is enough time to start a habit of movement, or keep such a habit ingrained. It is too easy to shrug off the opportunity to move because there isn't sufficient time to complete the optimal, planned session, but that doesn't help us move down the road at all. Instead, why not do something brief, keep your habit in place (or start, or restart it), and try to make the time for the planned session the following day?

Whatever the case, the point is to find something you enjoy that involves movement, and do it, even in small portions, which have potential to become recurring patterns. A final point I would make is that for me, if I am able to complete this as one of the very first things I do in a day, I am better off than if I waited until a later time in the day. For one thing, it gets it out of the way early, and even if the rest of the day goes off the rails, I will still have gotten done what I need to. But the magic of it is that it also helps me stay on the path for the remainder of the day (or at least further in to the day than if I didn't move in the morning), which protects against the day going haywire at all.

I am reticent to sound preachy and I hope that is not how this comes off, although to the extent being exceedingly verbose tends to be an attribute of preachers, I admit

I am being preachy in that respect. Exercise, moving, whatever you call it – it boosts your immunity, aids digestion, and just helps you feel better. It isn't complicated, so don't make it complicated – just do something, even for a few believe that we now have a solid plan, funding, availability of manpower, and the COVID-19 pandemic presents us with a unique opportunity to get a head start on the project.

The plan involves reorienting the baseball/softball fields, or "flipping" them, so as for the home plates to be more centrally located within the park complex, radiating outward from the center. The west field will be expanded to 312 feet to be regulation size in order to accommodate the possibility of hosting high school baseball, while the east field will be 250 feet to accommodate Little League baseball and softball. Both fields will also be used for adult co-ed softball. In the process of flipping the fields, larger and better dugouts will be built, there will be an alleyway between the fields, lighting will be improved, and the outfields will be sprigged with bermudagrass and greatly improved over the existing ones.

A rough estimate of the different phases of construction can be found below. It is not the final or all-inclusive plan, just a rough outline.

Phase One
 Estimated Time Frame: 4-8 weeks

Take down all existing fences

Dirtwork to level both fields and prepare the surface

Set home plate and field dimensions, both fields

Set new poles and lights, both fields (if possible)

Phase Two
 Estimated Time Frame:

4-8 weeks

Sprig bermudagrass in both outfields

Construct dugouts, both fields

Put fence up around both fields

Set up scoreboards, both fields

Phase Three
 Begin construction on press boxes, both fields

Begin construction on centrally located concession stand/restrooms

UPDATES:

Last weekend (May 8th-10th), all of the fences were disassembled and moved off to prepare the fields for dirtwork. Dirtwork is expected to take place over the next several weeks.

Graduation

by Rix Quinn

Congratulations to 2020's high school seniors! Never have so many grads not walked across a stage via computer connection to receive a virtual diploma from someone wearing cap-and-gown, mask, and rubber gloves.

I'll never forget the day I graduated high school. I recall an early June evening, so hot even my cap's tassel sweated.

I'm sure the guest speaker said something important. I think it was something about "facing the future." (What else was there to face?)

Since that long-ago night, I've been to more commencements than a cap-and-gown salesman. I even know all the words to "Pomp and Circumstance," which is pretty tough since it's an instrumental.

But -- more important for you -- I've compiled a list of graduation speech sayings, and what they might really mean. Whether you go to an in-person graduation, or a virtual one, the advice may come in handy. So, adjust your mortar board, hum the alma mater, and keep reading:

1. "You've prepared for this day for 12 years." -- Meaning: Congratulations for staying in school.
2. "Today you leave yesterday behind." -- Meaning: The school will assign your old locker to someone else.
3. "Your wonderful town looks the same as I remember it." -- Meaning: The speaker hasn't been back to town in 83 years.
4. "You are the leaders of the future." -- Meaning: Your time will come. For right now, take a job that will make your car payment.
5. "The road of life has many turns." -- Meaning: Prepare to hear something inspirational.
6. "I want to thank your wonderful principal and vice-principal for inviting me today." -- Meaning: The speaker doesn't remember their names, but he does remember their titles.

7. "Tomorrow, graduates, you start a new life." -- Meaning: Weekly allowance stops, job begins.

Try this for Mosquitoes

So how do we go about our lives coexisting with these annoying bloodsuckers? The internet has your soon-to-be-mosquito-bite-free back! Below we have a video with the exact steps on how to do this, but the steps are the following.

The first step is to find a bottle of pop and cut the top off with a serrated knife. You then create a concoction which you will put into the bottle consisting of:

- A 1/4 cup of brown sugar
- 1 full cup of warm water
- 1/4 teaspoon of yeast

You then proceed to mix it and place it in the bottle. You then turn the top of the pop bottle around and put it into the bottom. The mosquitoes will go into the bottle as they will be attracted to this irresistible mixture and won't be able to get out. That's it! This surprisingly simple trick is super easy to do and will keep the mosquitos away.

WHEELER I.S.D. 2020 GRADUATION: The west side of the courthouse square in Wheeler was set up for Wheeler High School's 2020 graduation. Dr. Lee Ann Hillhouse, president of the Wheeler School Board, posted: "On behalf of the Wheeler ISD School Board I would like to publicly thank our Wheeler ISD Administration and Staff for planning and executing a truly unique graduation experience for our 2020 graduates and their families. It was obviously not the ceremony any of us could have imagined 6 months ago but we are very thankful we were able to do what we did. I would be very remiss to not also thank everyone responsible for setting up the stage, the sound, the radio coverage and the big screen viewing...(Cornerstone Church and all the businesses and individuals involved—I would leave someone out if I tried to name you individually)..every piece was important in making sure we could all share in the moment!! And once again to thank Sylvia Shuler for providing the music that adds so much every year. It's takes a village and we have one of the best! The other county schools had wonderful, meaningful ceremonies as well and then all came together to Drag Main again! Thanks to all the area churches for making the post graduation event special for this great group of kids!
