64th MDG activates four squadrons

Four new squadrons were activated under the banner of the 64th Medical Group here Sept. 30.

The squadron activations are part of the Air Force's continuing transition to the "objective wing" structure.

The units activated, and their respective commanders, are: 64th Medical Operations Squadron, Lt. Col. Kathleen Dobbs; 64th Medical Support Squadron, Capt. Robin King; 64th Aerospace Medicine Squadron, Lt. Col. Timothy Philpott; and 64th Dental Squadron, Lt. Col. (Dr.) Ronald Pratt.

"The activation of these four squadrons helps define the mission of the 64th Medical Group," said Col. Monica Figun, 64th MDG commander. "It brings us into alignment with other organizations in the objective wing structure."

Organizational symbols for the new squadrons are: 64th Medical Operations Squadron — 64th MDOS, 64th Medical Support Squadron — 64th MDSS, 64th Aerospace Medicine Squadron — 64th AMS, and 64th Dental Squadron, 64th DS.

General Pratt cites importance of joint operations

Southwest Asian joint task force provides blueprint for military future

by J02 Bruce A. Moody,
JTF-SWA Public Affairs

IN THE ARABIAN GULF REGION (AETCNS) — In the future, U.S. military goals will be met by sister services and coalition forces serving along side each other.

That is the message of Maj. Gen. Everett H. Pratt Jr., who assumed command of Joint Task Force-Southwest Asia in September.

With downsizing and changing national strategies, the talk in Washington, D.C., is about how to make this concept work, according to General Pratt.

But the future is now in the Arabian Gulf region, as JTF-SWA conducts Operation Southern Watch using forces deployed by the U.S. Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine Corps, as well as the air forces of the United Kingdom and France.

General Pratt

"I think you could use this as kind of a laboratory for joint and combined operations in the future," he said.

General Pratt, who also has been nominated to become the vice commander, United States Air Forces in Europe, and director of the European Air Combat Operations Staff, Ramstein AB, Germany, said he hopes to learn more about joint and coalition warfare while serving as the task force commander.

"In other theaters, unfortunately, you only get to talk about it over textbooks and study it in the classroom," he said. "Here it's every day. We live it, we breathe it. Not only I, but everybody should learn from this experience." General Pratt also said the mission of JTF-SWA is as important to day as it was when it was established.

Though it's a goal for the future, General Pratt said coalition warfare is not new to us.

"World War II was a great example of coalition warfare," he said. "Our experiences with NATO of the past 40-odd years have all been a combined coalition effort, and we've got the same coalition effort here."

According to General Pratt, the military will develop strategies of a combined nature in the same way it's developing joint warfare.

"I don't foresee us going alone anywhere in the world. So the more we take the opportunity to work with our allies, our friends around the world, like we're doing here, it will help us in the future."

Fire Prevention Week begins Sunday

Senior Reese leadership points to need for fire safety practices at work, home

by Col. Roger Brady
64th Flying Training Wing Commander

Fire Prevention Week, Sunday through Oct. 15, marks the observance of one of America's worst fires, which occurred in Chicago, Oct. 9, 1871.

That fire took 250 lives, destroyed 17,430 buildings and caused $168 million in damage.

Despite unparalleled technological advances in our society and improved fire prevention programs, fires continue to kill more than 6,000 Americans annually, injuring over 30,000 innocent people and causing a staggering loss of $3 billion per year in property.

President Warren G. Harding proclaimed National Fire Prevention Week in 1922 and it has been observed every year since.

This year's theme, set by the National Fire Protection Association, is "Test your detector for life!"

With the combined effort and support of all, we can make a positive change and prevent needless destruction, injury and loss of life.

The continued vigilance toward reducing fire losses is a goal that can be accomplished this year and in the years to follow.

Help us lead the way at Reese and protect our people with the best fire prevention program.

by Col. Terry Weimer
64th Support Group Commander

In 1993 more people died in home fires than in any year since 1981. On the average, 13 people a day die from home fires. Some are burned; over half die from smoke inhalation, often while they sleep.

Tragedy and pain from fires affect the lives of thousands of Americans each year.

While you may be able to replace some of your household goods you can never replace the life of a loved one.

Colonel Brady

This year's Air Education and Training Command Fire Prevention Week Slogan is "Let's be partners in fire prevention." Simply stated, each one of us must be committed to eliminating needless destruction.

We must work as a team and make a special effort to be partners in fire prevention. Not just during Fire Prevention Week, but through all 52 weeks of the year.

A careful walk-through of your home, checking high-risk items such as kitchen appliances, water heaters and electrical wires, goes a long way to help protect your life and belongings.

Here at Reese, we have an excellent track record on preventing fires.

This is a direct result of fire-conscious individuals. Let's not rest on our laurels. Take that extra step to ensure our homes and work places are kept free from hazards.

The base fire department will place special emphasis on fire prevention throughout the week with numerous activities and displays.

Please join us in these activities and learn more about fire safety.

by Maj. Leonard F. Fischman
Reese Fire Marshal

Fire!

It is a terrifying word when shouted in the still of the night.

Fires occur in more than 1,500 homes in this country every day — one house catches fire every 57 seconds. Four out of every five deaths occur in the home and for every fire death, there are over 100 burn injuries.

Within Air Education and Training Command, there were a total of 32 fire incidents during fiscal year 1994.

We have experienced two small fires in military family housing here.

Fortunately for us, no one was hurt. This is due to every person on Reese aggressively identifying and eliminating fire hazards in their homes and work areas.

The fire department will conduct several fire prevention activities during the coming week. Please support the firefighters in their effort to maintain our excellent fire prevention record.

I encourage everyone to be a part of the solution and not one of the statistics.

Remember to "test your detector for life!"

From your perspective

"A Careline column provides one of many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call. You can call the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273. If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone. Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you."

Col. Roger Brady, 64th FTW Commander

Well done!

I'm calling to express my appreciation for the help I received from Bob McGraw at the Reese Photo Lab. He was extremely helpful and stopped the project he was working on to help me. He handle my project in a very short time with minimal hassle. He did a great job. We are very fortunate to have someone like him in the photo lab.

I appreciate your kind words. Our photo lab.graphics personnel take great pride in providing you, the customer, with timely, quality services. I'm glad to have Bob McGraw on the Reese team.

When will you spray for bugs?

I was wondering if they are going to spray for the caterpillars in Reese Village? I called housing maintenance and they said entomology was not going to spray this year because a contractor was going to do it. The caterpillars are getting really, really bad.

Unfortunately the spraying of trees for caterpillars in Reese Village was scheduled for the same week the roads were being resurfaced. Because of this conflict, the spraying was rescheduled for the following week. Your trees should have been sprayed by now. If you have any further questions, call grounds maintenance at 3431.

Is resurfacing necessary?

I would like to know why it was necessary for the streets in Reese Village to be resurfaced. The streets appeared to be in good condition. Now we can't rollerblade on the streets or push strollers. In addition, the kids are tracking the tar into the house. The loose rocks are also getting tossed by passing cars and in some cases the rocks are damaging the parked cars.

The streets in military family housing were "chip sealed" the end of August as part of a three year cycle of preventative maintenance of the base roads. The purpose of chip sealing is to fill in surface cracks that allow water to get below the road surface and damage the road by producing pot holes and ruts. A secondary benefit of chip sealing is to improve vehicle breaking distance in wet and icy conditions.

If we did not chip seal the roads every three years, we would have to resurface the road every five to nine years. Resurfacing costs the Air Force four times the cost of chip sealing and requires the roads to be torn up for three to four months instead of just for two or three days. The last major roadwork in housing was completed in Aug. 1992 when we rotomilled and re-laid the top layer. The road surface should fully "cure out" in two months, depending on weather conditions, and become smoother.

In the meantime, you're right. It's annoying and I regret the inconvenience. I run on the streets several times a week and I don't like it either, but, it's the best way to preserve our roads. Bear with us — this too shall pass!

Reese and Lubbock - a Loyal Partnership

We in Lubbock and the South Plains area appreciate the model relationship which exists with the Reese Air Force Base community. This relationship which has endured for years because of the many valuable friendships made, is among the best base-host community cooperation efforts.

Reese and Lubbock people are amazingly similar. Both are inherently outgoing, friendly and industrious. Their tastes, likes and dislikes parallel in many ways. Many Lubbock area natives are in the Air Force. Many others make their homes in West Texas while stationed here, and many return to live in Lubbock after they separate from the Air Force.

Reese workers — officers, enlisted men and women, civilian employees and contractors — will earn combined salaries of more than $80 million this year. Most of this payroll will be spent in Lubbock and the surrounding area. Air Force people with their stable income can afford quality goods and services.

You can increase your chances of winning Reese customers by advertising in The ROUNDUP, the base's weekly — and only — newspaper, published by Chandelle Publications in Lubbock. Through The ROUNDUP, Reese people and their families find out what's happening on base, in Lubbock and in the Air Force.

You not only increase your chances of tipping the profit scales in your favor by placing ads in the base paper, but you also help out the military. The number and depth of articles depend on the size of the paper. Your advertising, then helps your business while it helps keep Reese people informed.

National Energy Month observance begins

Reese focuses on new, old ways to conserve resources

by John Kain
Reese Energy Manager

October, a time for festivals, falling leaves, Halloween, and contemplating energy conservation. It is National Energy Month once again and we all should spend some time helping our environment, Reese and ourselves.

You may feel like you are being bombarded by articles, slogans, tips, or flyers on energy but it is necessary to keep it in the forefront of everyone's thoughts. Presidential Executive Order 12902 has tasked us to conserve 30 percent over the 1985 baseline in lieu of the previous 20 percent requirement.

This puts a lot of pressure and responsibility on the commanders of all government agencies and we all know how pressure and responsibility rolls down hill. My job as energy manager is to make this information available and hopefully you will think about it and take on some of the responsibility.

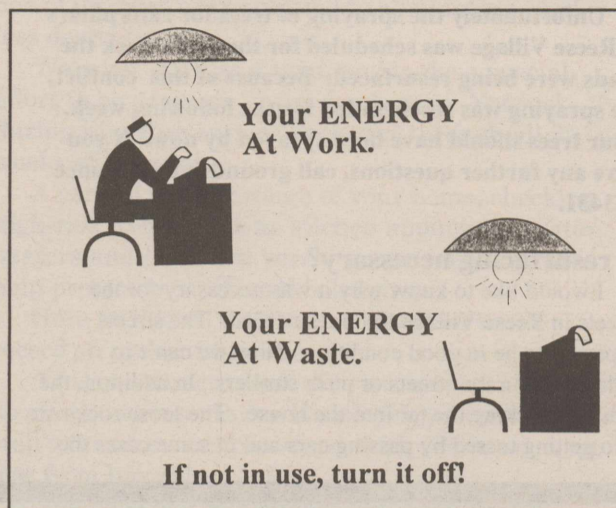

Rather than bombarding you with the same old energy trademarks, "turn your lights out when not in the room," or "set your thermostat up in the summer and down in the winter," I think it is time to use some new, old trademarks; "ride sharing," "bicycle riding" and "dressing for the occasion."

Ride sharing or car pooling mean the same thing. It is basically described as more than one person using the same mode of transportation to get to the same place. Every day I see many cars arriving from Lubbock at the same time, with only one person on board.

Every time I stress car pooling I hear, "There is no one I work with who lives in my area." That may be true, but someone else in another building might. Think about it, you would be doing your part to reduce the carbon monoxide levels in the atmosphere, make new friendships, and save on gas consumption which could lower gas costs.

Bicycle riding is another mode of transportation which reduces carbon monoxide levels, helps make new friends and reduces gas consumption. In addition it also gets you fitness points. I know if I lived in base housing, across the street from where I worked, I would ride a bike or just walk almost every day. I know the weather plays a big part in your mode of transportation but there is bound to be one or two days a week when the weather is great for bike riding.

My last new, old topic is dressing for the occasion. You are probably wondering what this has to do with energy. Well, October also marks that time of the year when it is too hot for heat and too cool for air conditioning. We in the civil engineers catch a lot of flak during this time of the year because your office is cold in the mornings and you want heat, and by 2 p.m. you want air conditioning.

To eliminate this problem in my office, I wear a light sweater or jacket in the morning and in the afternoon I take it off. This is dressing for the occasion. You know when you get up in the morning and it is 45 degrees outside, your office is going to be cold when you get there, so be prepared.

We have several things planned to promote National Energy Month. There will be a poster contest held at Reese Elementary. Posters will be posted on base beginning Oct. 17. Prizes will be given to the winning poster from each of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th grades and an additional prize will be given to the overall winner. Cash awards have been donated by the Reese Federal Credit Union and the Company Grade Officers Council.

There will also be displays of energy saving devices, one from the civil engineer self-help store. One house in base housing will be equipped with the new fluorescent energy savings light bulbs on the front porch and in the carport. These light bulbs only consume 13 watts of electricity but provide 60 watts of light.

One multi-parking carport will be equipped with fluorescent spotlights and controlled by a motion sensor and photocell. This fixture will automatically come on when someone approaches it and will be disabled during the daylight hours.

Everyone is welcome to go by and look at these fixtures if you want to see one up close. They will soon be available at the self-help store.

Currently we are experimenting with a natural gas fired air conditioner in one of the base houses and we should have some good evaluation numbers by next summer and could be installing more in future renovations.

Let's help do our part to reduce energy consumption. Ride a bike one or two days during the month, car pool a couple of times (who knows you may like it), turn off a light or turn off your air conditioning. Just remember, "our future is today."

DOD, DOE hold teleconference on energy

The Department of Defense joined the Department of Energy in a live, two-hour, nationwide satellite teleconference from Washington Monday to kick off the observance of National Energy Month.

TeleFEMP BROADCAST 1 is the first step in a new campaign of interactive communications for everyone concerned with federal energy management.

"And when you say federal energy management, remember that DOD accounts for almost three-fourths of federal energy facilities consumption at a cost of more than $3 billion per year," said Millard Carr, director for DOD energy management policy.

The Office of Federal Energy Management fashioned the program format. Planners designed the program to inform the widest possible audience about energy management resources. The program also talked about the tools available to achieve the new federal energy efficiency and water conservation goals of President Bill Clinton's Executive Order 12902.

The program, which invited audience participation and questions, covered solar energy, new-technology applications, energy savings performance contracting, partnerships with utilities, federal energy efficiency fund and other related topics.

Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., and Laughlin AFB, Texas, were among the first sites to commit to downlink participation.

"DOD has been very active in energy conservation. DOD planners have successfully reduced operational energy requirements through increased end user efficiency and systems efficiency on the energy supply and distribution side," said Carr. (AFPS)

Key provisions of Executive Order 12902

□ By 2005, federal agencies' energy consumption must be 30 percent lower than fiscal 1985 levels in British Thermal Units per gross square foot. The Environmental Protection Agency required 20 percent savings by 2000.

□ Increase energy efficiency in agency industrial facilities by at least 20 percent by 2005 compared to fiscal 1990 and requires agencies to implement all cost effective water conservation projects.

□ Conduct surveys to establish priorities for comprehensive facility audits within 18 months.

□ Requires agencies to develop and begin to implement a 10-year plan to conduct or obtain comprehensive facility audits based on the surveys.

□ Requires the Department of Energy to develop a program to significantly increase use of solar and other renewable energy sources and to assist agencies in their efforts to meet the program goals.

□ Obligates agencies to designate buildings to showcase the best energy and water efficiency and renewable energy technologies to the public.

□ Requires a national workshop be held regarding perceived barriers that slow the utilization of audit, financing and contractual mechanisms or complicate their use.

□ Requires the DOE to develop a model set of recommendations to be used by agencies to identify and eliminate internal regulation, procedures or other barriers to the implementation.

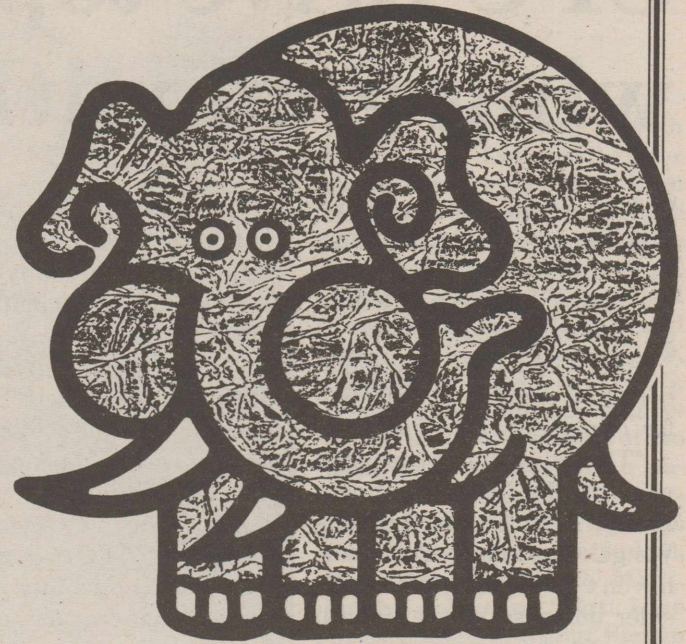

□ Compels agencies to strive to purchase products in the top 25 percent of their class for energy efficiency, wherever such products are cost-effective and meet performance requirements.

CFC drive tops $69,000, wing goal within grasp

Two weeks into the Reese Combined Federal Campaign, the wing has topped the $69,000 mark, placing the wing within grasp of its goal of $95,000.

As of Wednesday, wing members had contributed $69,974 for 74 percent of the goal.

"The wing has responded well thus far," said Col. Roger Brady, 64th Flying Training Wing Commander. "Those who haven't given yet need to consider doing so now and we'll close out the campaign in the usual Reese fashion -- as winners!"

The colonel added that CFC contributions all go to worthwhile programs, many which help those who can't help themselves.

"You aren't just giving dollars," said the colonel. "You are touching people's lives in a positive way. You can't put a price tag on that."

According to Capt. Amy Rosenquest, CFC co-project officer, each contributor can select a specific agency or can elect to have their contribution distributed through the general fund to all agencies.

Every contribution goes to the agency designated. While cash contributions are accepted, most federal employees use the payroll deduction program.

For additional information, call the appropriate CFC project officer. They are: Wing staff — 1st Lt. Gene Cassingham, 3063; 64th Operations Group — Capt. Eric Bass, 3806; 64th Support Group — 2nd Lt. Jose Aleman, 3655; and 64th Medical Group — Capt. Oswald Johnson, 3723.

General Pratt lauds effort of JTF

sues is happening throughout the ranks, according to General Pratt.

"The leadership is fully engaged," he said. "Any time you take soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen away from home and put them in field conditions, you are obligated, as a minimum, to give them a dry bed to sleep in and good chow. We obviously try to do much more than that. We know that in some areas we have some short comings, and we are working those. We have seen some improvements, and I believe we will continue to see conditions improve."

Since the 4404th Composite Wing Provisional extended some of its key billets, there has been talk of extending the tours of JTF troops. But General Pratt stressed that this is unlikely.

"For the foreseeable future I don't see any change in the status of the people coming to the JTF," he said. "I think they'll stay on the same type of rotation they've been on."

After meeting with many of the men and women who support Operation Southern Watch, General Pratt said his impression was very positive. "I think we're doing it well. I've always been a proponent of 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it.' I don't think the JTF is broke, so I don't plan on doing any fixing."

He said people have an understanding of what they're here for and why they're here.

"I'm very, very pleased with the professionalism, discipline, and the attitude of all the folks in the JTF," he said.

AF suggestors save millions

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Cashing in on high-value suggestion awards was easy for 74 people whose 24 proposals helped the Air Force save more than $89.2 million last year.

For their efforts, the high-savings contributors were each presented the Air Force Chief of Staff Annual High-Value Suggestion Award at a Pentagon ceremony Sept. 6.

The awards were presented by Gen. Thomas S. Moorman Jr., Air Force vice chief of staff, to 52 of the suggestors who attended the event.

The awardees had previously received their monetary awards, which totaled $458,746.

Of that amount, the maximum award — $25,000 — was presented to three individuals and three groups.

Part of the Air Force Suggestion Program, high-value awards are big-money payoffs — each more than $10,000 — to people whose individual or team suggestions result in large savings, said Al Gibbs, Air Force's Suggestion Program policy manager.

Air Force-wide, there were 30,000 suggestions submitted last year.

They resulted in more than $242 million in savings and netted suggestors more than $3 million in cash awards.

More than $24,000 of the Air Force total was the result of suggestions by Reese personnel, according to Reudell Turner, Reese Suggestion Program Manager.

Reese people submitted 65 suggestions in fiscal year 1994. Suggestors received a total of $5,160 in awards with a single award of $1,130 going to SrA. Darrell Rieves, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, for a suggestion on how to cut costs on runway light maintenance.

The 64th CES edged out the 64th Medical Group as the top organization generating suggestion savings.

Suggestions by the 64th CES netted $12,242 while the 64th MDG suggestions cut costs by $10,402.

Over the past 20 years, more than a million suggestions have been submitted, Gibbs said. These have saved the Air Force more than $3.1 billion and, in return, suggestors have received more than $55 million in awards.

Volunteer puts service ahead of dollar sign

by Ralph Monson

In an era where pursuit of "big bucks" has accomplished what a world war couldn't, a member of the Reese family has a different approach to life.

Players and baseball owners, whose failure to reach a collective bargaining agreement has cancelled the 1994 baseball season and world series, could learn something from the unselfishness of Margaret Lutz.

Lutz is a Red Cross volunteer who puts in a 40-hour week as a receptionist in the 64th Medical Group radiology section.

She doesn't make a dime.

"I'm just having fun," said Lutz, who is married to TSgt. Gary Lutz, 64th Civil Engineer Squadron. "My kids are in school now and I just enjoy working with people."

As much as she enjoys her work, the 64th MDG enjoys having her as a volunteer.

"An organization is often rated by the first impression a person gets when they come into contact with it," said MSgt. Robert Bates, her supervisor in the radiology department. "Fortunately for us, Peggy, as the receptionist, is our first point of contact with the community."

"Her cheerful demeanor and constant smile, combined with the empathy she affords all patients, enhances our reputation as well as providing the quality service our patrons deserve," he said.

Sergeant Bates points out that proof of her excellence can be found through the hospital's questionnaire program. Over 98 percent of people who responded, rated service as excellent (the highest rating) and many have lauded Lutz by name.

Lutz has been volunteering for the 64th MDG for about 18 months.

In recognition of her volunteer efforts, she has been selected to receive the city of Lubbock's Extra-Mile Award, presented annually to a select few women who have "given unselfishly of their time and energy."

The award will be presented in November.

M.A.S.H. OLYMPICS

by Ralph Monson

The 64th Medical Group tested its ability to rapidly perform key elements of its deployment mission and had a "bit of fun" at the same time.

Competing in the group's second annual M.A.S.H. Olympics, Sept. 27, 64th MDG members were judged on their ability to perform a variety of deployment related activities.

These included tasks such as the deployment bag relay, litter relay and patient assessment and treatment event.

On the lighter side, there were events such as the bed pan relay.

According to TSgt. Theresa Faulk, NCOIC of 64th MDG readiness, the olympics incorporates many of the mandatory readiness training activities into a competition that not only enhances mission performance, it boosts unit morale as well.

Defense kills three drives with interceptions

by A1C Tim Dempsey
Sports Editor

Three interceptions by the 64th Medical Group's bend-but-don't-break defense led the team to a 20-0 shut out against the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, Sept. 29

After a scoreless first quarter, the 64th CES was driving when the 64th MDG's Sgt. Rodney Smith intercepted SrA. Mike London's pass and returned the ball 80-yards for a touchdown. The 64th MDG made it 7-0 with the extra point.

But, the 64th CES came right back, moving downfield in the two-minute offense. This time it was Amn. Warren Bengé who stopped the drive, intercepting Airman London again to end the half.

The 64th CES offensive continued to move the ball in the second half, but, with the same results. Airman Bengé's second interception of the day gave the 64th MDG the ball on its own 20-yard line. From there, SrA. Lee Gray tossed a 60-yard bomb to A1C Ed Lara to put the 64th MDG up, 13-0.

Airman Gray hooked up with Airman Bengé for a second long score, covering 60 yards, and cementing the win. The extra point was good and gave MDG a 20-0 lead.

The 64th CES offense battled to put something on the board, but successive sacks by AB Chip Kidd and SrA. Ed Garcia preserved the shut out.

Sports update

Falcons to take on Navy

The Air Force Academy Falcons begin their pursuit of the coveted Commander in Chief Trophy when they host the Midshipmen of Navy on Saturday.

The trophy is presented annually to the service academy with the best record among the three teams. In recent years, the Air Force has dominated its sister academies.

The Falcons have won 11 of the last 12 meetings with Navy, but, that lone loss came just last year at Annapolis, Md, 28-24.

Both teams have struggled this year, but back-to-back wins against the University of Texas at El Paso and San Diego State have the Falcons on the move, while Navy is 0-4 heading into Saturday's game.

The Falcons are led by one of college football's most respected coaches, Fisher DeBerry, and an improving defense, sparked by linebacker Steve Russ. Navy's fortunes rise and fall on the arm of quarterback Jim Kubiak, who already holds 14 school offensive records.

The game is not scheduled to be televised locally.
