From my perspective

by Lt. Col. (Col. select) Thomas Loftus 64th Medical Group Commander

We at the 64th Medical Group have received numerous inquiries in the past months about TriCare, and as the implementation date for our region (VI) is May 1, 1995, I feel it is essential that we view the basics of the TriCare health delivery system.

Unless changed by national health care reform, TriCare will be the military's version of "managed care." Under this plan, a network of health professionals provide services for a fixed fee or percentage of costs, as long as customers agree to use doctors and hospitals within the network. For complicated problems beyond the expertise of the network doctors, patients would be referred to specialists outside the network.

Under the new program, current CHAMPUSeligible patients will be offered the choice of three different benefits programs.

The first option is TriCare Prime. Under this plan, patients will formally enroll with a primary care provider who will be responsible for providing all of the patient's primary care services and arranging required specialty care. At the 64th Medical Group, all of the primary care providers will be military physicians, and upon enrollment, patients will be guaranteed timely appointments with their primary care provider. Since the military is responsible for active-duty members' medical care, they will be automatically enrolled at no cost.

Under the second option, TriCare Extra, care at MEDGP will continue on a space-available basis. This option applies when patients obtain civilian medical care and use the civilian network of doctors established under TriCare Prime. Patients will remain responsible for their current annual CHAMPUS outpatient deductible amount, but will pay a reduced CHAMPUS costshare for their medical charges. Active-duty family members will cost-share 15 percent of their outpatient care once their annual deductible is met. Retirees and their families will also have a reduction in their cost-share to 20 percent.

The third option is TriCare Standard which provides the same benefits currently offered both in the military facility and with the standard CHAMPUS program. No enrollment is required and care will continue to be available at MEDGP on a space-available basis. If a patient obtains care with a civilian doctor who is not a part of the contractor's civilian health care network, then standard CHAMPUS cost-shares and deductibles apply.

For active-duty members who choose TriCare Prime, the proposed fee schedule will be: family members of active-duty in grade E-4 and below will be enrolled at no cost; active-duty family members of E-5 through O-10 will be required to pay $35 for one family member or $70 for two or more family members per year to enroll. CHAMPUS-eligible retirees and their family members will pay $50 per person or $100 per family to enroll. Once enrolled, outpatient care at MEDGP will continue to be provided at no cost. Each office visit with a civilian doctor off-base will cost between $5 and $15 per visit.

The TriCare contract is currently scheduled to be awarded Oct. 1, with services starting May 1, 1995. For more information, about the TriCare program, call the managed care office at 3581, and please save this article for future reference.

From YOUR perspective

Editor's note: The following note is from wing commander Col. Roger Brady, addressing his concerns for future Carelines.

A Careline column provides one of the many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call.

If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone.

Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Under-age drinking?

I saw a pitcher of beer being sold to a minor at the bowling alley last night. The minor did not drink any of the beer, but it still soncerns me that the alcohol was sold to him in the first place.

We checked into this and determined the pitcher of beer was purchased by the parent of the young man. He evidently carried the pitcher to the table behind lanes one and two. This certainly had the appearance of an illegal sale, and good judgment would dictate that minors not be involved in any way — period.

Our employees are well aware that they are not to sell alcohol to minors and are instructed to check two identification cards if in doubt of any patron's age. We continue to reaffirm this point.

Thank you for your concern.

Why so much sexual harassment training?"

Social actions NCO answers wing members' questions

by TSgt. Walter G. Lilley Reese Social Actions Superintendent

ome time ago, I was tasked by the chief of social actions to coordinate the basewide scheduling for sexual harassment training, mandated by regulation annually. Since I began, I have been asked, "Why do we need so much training on sexual harassment?" I want to answer that question in two

Education is the most effective tool used to combat discrimination, of which sexual harassment is a subcategory. The Air Force leads the way in reducing sexual harassment incidents in the military; however, there are still challenges with individual perceptions of what is acceptable and what is not acceptable behavior.

Education helps clear the gray areas and gives potential victims the information necessary to understand what constitutes sexual harassment and where to file a grievance. As long as there are people serving in the armed forces, there will likely be human relations problems. Education and awareness can only serve to help prevent potential human relations incidents.

The second reason the training is necessary is that laws on discrimination are constantly changing and we all need to be aware of them. Did you know the Supreme Court recently announced an expanded definition of sexual harassment in the workplace? The recipient of sexual harassment no longer has to prove that the offensive behavior left him/her psychologically damaged or unable to do their job. In the past, victims of sexual harassment had to prove physical or psychological damage in order to win a sexual harassment case. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said the law, as applied to sexual harassment, was violated when, for any of a variety of reasons, "the environment would reasonably be perceived, and is perceived, as hostile or abusive." She added that "no single factor is required." These changes affect us all and need to be disseminated.

For these reasons, we conduct annual training. Take this training seriously; learn all that you can about this problem and make necessary changes in your behavior or that of your subordinates. The American military is replete with examples of skill and bravery from the Revolutionary War to the Persian Gulf Conflict where women and men worked side by side to defeat the enemies of our country and allies. Let's stand together to defeat sexual harassment, an internal enemy that can destroy the cohesion of your unit.

Reese wins energy award again

Wing earns AETC honor for fifth time in six years

by SSgt. Mike Breslin Editor

For the fifth time in six years, Reese has won the $50,000 AETC energy management incentive award in the small base category.

Pair earn life support honors

by SSgt. Mike Breslin Editor

Two Reese life support technicians are AETC's best of 1993.

MSgt. Gilberto Guzman Jr., 64th Operations Support Squadron, and SrA. Robert Palos, 54th Flying Training Squadron, earned honors as the command life support senior NCO and airman of the year, respectively.

Sergeant Guzman, a New York native, had his hands full during the past year. Besides getting ready for the command inspection in April, he worked on the decentralization of wing life support, as each squadron took over their respective life support

His work was so good that the job was completed three months ahead of schedule, prior to the Quality Air Force Assessment. That caught inspectors off guard, who had, to revamp their plans one week prior because of the quick work of Sergeant Guzman and his colleagues,

"They didn't think we'd be decentralized by then, so they planned to inspect one large life support section," Sergeant Guzman explained. "Instead, they had to inspect several different sections and rate each one."

The change in plans was apparently to the inspectors' liking. They gave Sergeant Guzman a "commendable" for geant, "perseverance" was a big part of that project.

"We had to work with a lot of people to make them comfortable with the change," he said. "This was something completely different to what they were used to, but we all pulled together."

At the squadron level, Air-"Sergeant Guzman's inge- man Palos and his co-work-his efforts on the decentrali- nuity and leadership skills ers were key players in executing the decentralization plan. Squadron officials said their hard work paid off and life support in the 54th FTS excelled on the QAFA.

Originally from Indiana, the airman's work consists largely of maintaining and inspecting the equipment used in the air by wing pilots. Though it might seem a boring task to some, Airman Palos said he sees the value of his work every time a pilot returns safely from a mis-

"When they (pilots) are up in the air, the equipment has to work right," he said, exemplifying his point by saying, "You only get one chance to try out a parachute."

Like Sergeant Guzman, Airman Palos' expertise is shared with his co-workers. His knowledge of life support systems was so great that he was chosen to conduct aircrew continuation training. Every training objective was met under his supervision.

During the year, Airman Palos was selected for quarterly and annual honors at the group and wing level.

"Airman Palos' superb work has a major factor in the success of our squadron's transition to a new, decentralized life support function," said Lt. Col. Terry Gilbert, 54th FTS commander. "Rob is simply one of the best -- a quality performer in everything he does."

graduates today

Twenty new Air Force pilots will receive their wings when Reese SUPT Class 94-07 graduates during a ceremony at 9:30 a.m. today in the Simler Theater.

Army Lt. Col. Rhonda Cornum, Brooks Army Medical Center, Texas, will be the guest speaker at the graduation. Colonel Cornum is a flight surgeon and a decorated veteran of the Persian

The ceremony is open to the base, and will be followed by several events in the Reese Officers Open Mess. They include a buffet from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., a parents' social at 6:15 p.m. and a dinner-dance at 7 p.m.

During the ceremony and dinner-dance, awards will be presented to students and permanent party members. They will include the commander's trophy (top graduate), "top stick" (best in flying training), academics, distinguished graduate, leadership and outstanding second lieutenant.

Permanent party awards will go to the outstanding academic, flightline and simulator instructor pilots, maintainers and mission makers.

PROBLEM CHILD?

Workshop scheduled for concerned parents

by Neil Davidson Reese Family Advocacy Treatment Manager

☐ Find your child hard to raise?

☐ Find the child's behavior hard to understand?

□ Often battle the child?

☐ Feel inadequate or guilty as a parent?

☐ See your marriage or family life being affected by the child?

The "Attention Deficit-Hyperactivity Disorder Workshop" scheduled for April 21 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Reese Manor will address these issues.

If you answered "yes" to three or more of the above questions, then you should definitely attend the workshop to learn how to find out whether your child has this disorder and how to get help. The "difficulty" you are facing may not be just you - it may be a medical problem of your child which

Even if you answered "yes" to less than three of the above questions, you may still wish to attend the workshop to learn how to distinguish "normal" child behavior from "disordered" behavior, in case you or a friend face this difficulty in the future.

Holy pilgrimage possible in May for military Muslims

by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Leslie Peine Reese Senior Chaplain

Making a holy pilgrimage called the "Hajj," has been made easier for American Military Mus-

In 1993, more than 80 American Muslims from various branches of the armed forces took part in the Hajj. Through this new program, which is again being sponsored by the military section of the American Muslim Council, it is possible for American military members and their Muslim spouses to take part in this holy event.

The Hajj will be from May 8 through 30. The program can accommodate 100 military Muslims at Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, to include food, accommodations, transportation and education. In addition, safety is ensured for sponsored Muslims, as well as emergency medical care, should it be needed. Knowledgeable Saudi guides will accompany personnel throughout the Hajj.

Sponsorship does not include airfare to and from Saudi Arabia, Hajj visas from the Saudi Embassy, payment of airport and/or customs fees or the cost of a sacrificial lamb (about $100) dur-

'Spousal support'

Family support director seeks to 'bring out best in people'

by TSgt. David P. Masko Air Force News Service

Nothing brings a smile to Phil Thierry's face more quickly than an Air Force spouse being assertive and saying, "Yes, I can!"

Thierry, director of the Reese Family Support Center, is a self-proclaimed "motivator," someone who tries to bring the best out in people.

"What I want our military spouses to realize is they have rights," said Thierry, who recently held a personal growth seminar for spouses at Reese. The rights that Thierry preaches are contained in what he calls "the five basic rights of assertion."

☐ You have the right to do anything as long as it does not said. hurt someone else.

☐ You have the right to maintain your dignity by being properly assertive — even if it hurts someone else — as long as your motive is assertive, not aggressive.

☐ You always have the right to make a request of another person as long as you realize the other person has the right to say

☐ You must realize that there are certain borderline cases in interpersonal situations where the rights are not clear. But you always have the right to discuss the problem with the person involved and so clarify it.

☐ You have the right to attain your rights.

For families who live in a military environment - in which the activeduty member often assumes a dominant role these "rights of assertion" are all important because it fosters a sense of worth for the individual, Thierry

The focus on personal growth began after the Pentagon started putting women - both active duty and spouses — in areas where they were under intense stress, doing things they never did before, he said.

change of command planned

Command of the Support Group will change hands during a 10 a.m. ceremony April 18 in front of wing headquarters, as Col. Bob Brooks hands over the reins to Col. Theron Weimer.

Colonel Brooks is moving to Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he will be vice commander of the Civil Air Patrol. Colonel Weimer is currently deputy commander of the 12th SPTG at Randolph AFB, Texas.

Colonel Brooks

Everyone on base is welcome at the ceremony.

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club is accepting applications from high school seniors for their annual scholarship program. Seniors who are family members of retired and active-duty members of any service, as well as children of contract or civil service employees at Reese, are eligible.

Applications are due April 22 and are available at the enlisted club. For details, call MSgt. Marsha Ptomey at 885-1290 between 6 and 9 p.m. week-

Taxes due April 15

April 15 is the deadline to file federal income tax returns. People who don't think they will make it can ask for an extension by sending Internal Revenue Service Form 4868, "Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File U.S. Individual Income Tax Return," to IRS by April 15. This option gives taxpayers until Aug. 15 to file federal taxes. However, people should pay any taxes owed when filing for an extension to avoid paying interest. Interest on unpaid taxes begins accumulating on April 15 and continues to accumulate until taxes are paid.

For more information, contact your unit tax advisor or the base legal office at 3505. (American Forces Information Service)

Good Cents Tips

(NAPS)—Here are some electrifying tips that will help you save both money and the environment. They come from the experts at the Good Cents Home Program®, the country's largest energy-efficiency program, licensed by nearly 300 utilities nationwide.

Double pane windows and insulated doors greatly reduce heat transfer and air infiltration.

- Set the thermostat at 78° or more in summer, 68° or less in
- Clean or replace heating and air conditioning filters monthly.
- · Take five-minute showersthey use less hot water than do
- Use your dishwasher rather than wash by hand, but wait till it's full
- · Fill empty spaces in your freezer with ice.
- · Use the microwave as frequently as possible.
- · Cover cooking pots and fit pot size to burner size.

If you are in the market for a new home, consider an energy-efficient Good Cents® Home. A Good Cents® Home adds comfort, convenience and value. Because a Good Cents® Home is more energy-efficient, you'll save money on your monthly utility bill.

Contact your local electric utility company for more information about Good Cents® or send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "The Good Cents Guide To Energy Fit Homes," 64 Perimeter Center East, Atlanta, Georgia, 30346-6401.

Flyers still lead in late season charge

by A1C Timothy E. Dempsey 64th FTW Public Affairs

With only two more weeks in the regular season of intramural volleyball, the 35th Flying Training Squadron "A" (6-1) heads the National League and is looking to hold off the competition.

The 35th "A," who has already clinched a playoff spot, defeated the 64th Communication Squadron Monday night, 2-1, taking the first and third games, Monday.

CS (4-3) is currently in a playoff spot.

As for first place in the AL, the 52nd FTS (7-0) continues to destroy any opponents who get in their way. The 52nd FTS enjoyed a bye Monday, as they rest and prepare to try to finish the season with a perfect record.

In other NL games, the 64th Mission Support Squadron (4-2) is second place. They beat the 64th Security Police Squadron (2-6) Monday night in two games.

The 64th Medical Group "A" (3-3) is still in the hunt for a playoff berth in the National League. Their match Monday against the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron (2-4) was postponed until April 18.

The 64th Operations Support Squadron (3-5) improved their record by handing the 35th FTS "B" (2-4) a hard loss. After the 35th FTS "B" won the second game, OSS battled The 64th Logistics back to win a close third game and the match.

LS earns crucial bye

by A1C Timothy E. Dempsey 64th FTW Public Affairs

The intramural racquetball season is over and the playoff picture is set for this upcoming week at the base gym.

The 64th Logistics Squadron (8-1) finished the season tied for the best record with the 52nd Flying Training Squadron and the 64th Medical Group. Based on regular season results, LS picked up a bye, moving them directly into the championship match.

MEDGP will face the 52nd FTS to find out who will meet LS for the league championsip.

Other teams who completed the season were the 64th Mission Support Squadron (6-3), Lockheed (4-5), 64th Civil Engineer-ing Squadron (3-6), 64th Security Police Squadron (2-7) and the 64th Commun-

Your Computer's Clock

(NAPS)-Here are some surprising facts about computers and clocks which you should note:

These small batteries power your PC's real time clock and memory back-up. They provide longer service at lower cost than existing lithium batteries.

 The real time clock in your computer, as well as its back-up memory, are powered by a battery. This back-up memory is called CMOS memory.

 The battery commonly known as the computer clock battery will last only a few years. When it goes dead, your PC won't run, causing project delays, lost work time, emergency repair expenses and major inconveniences.

· To avoid these problems, you should replace your computer clock battery every few years as part of a preventative maintenance program.

• One computer clock battery reported to offer longer service life than existing lithium batteries most often found in PC computers is the Rayovac 844. This brand is the battery of choice of over 50 desktop computer manu-

• There is a national network of independent computer service companies called "Official Rayovac Preventative Maintenance Centers" that sell and install replacement batteries, and set up routine replacement schedules to help avoid the experience of CMOS failure.

For help in avoiding problems caused by a dead computer clock battery and in finding your nearest Official Preventative Maintenance Center, call 1-800-881-CLOC (2562), or write to: Rayovac Corp., Technical Sales, P.O. Box 44960, Madison, WI 53744-4960.
