U.S. forces in Europe gear for additional support

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — American airmen in Europe will be a lot busier in the coming months helping ensure the hard-won Bosnian peace plan has a chance to work.

U.S. military forces in Europe are expected to bear the brunt of the burden of the peace support plan outlined by President Bill Clinton during a national television address Monday night.

The members of the Air Force's busiest command will be helping ferry the peace implementation force to Bosnia and the material to sustain it.

But though some in U.S. Air Forces in Europe won't like the increase to their already high operations tempo, most will take the added work in stride, said Maj. Gen. Jeff Cliver, the command director of operations.

Command members will be "proud to play a role" in the coalition effort, he said during a recent interview at Ramstein Air Base, Germany. "We're planning for the peace implementation program in Bosnia. Everybody is jumping for that."

The Air Force will conduct airlift operations from the airport at Tuzla in northern Bosnia. After the long civil war, it is the longest undamaged airstrip remaining in the former Yugoslavia. And the headquarters for all American forces in the country will also be in Tuzla, defense officials said.

"Our people don't mind doing a little more work than their share ... this is our theater," he said. "They're ready and willing. That's the commendable part, the attitude of all the folks support, flightline, aviators.

"They're fired up," Cliver said. So if the president orders troops into Bosnia, the initial airlift operation will be an Air Mobility Command show, Cliver said. "We'll get busier because we'll handle all the movement of troops and equipment. The business at Ramstein and Rhein-Main (AB, Germany) is going to pick up quite a bit.'

Once AMC pulls out, Cliver said USAFE will sustain the troops. "Our theater airlift control guys will be very busy for months, maybe a year.'

The added work will come at what President Clinton called a decisive moment in the effort to end hostilities. "Now that the parties to the war have made a serious commitment to (Continued on Page 4)

World AIDS Day

Annual observance focuses on awareness, education

by Capt Michael Acoba Chief, Public Health

Today, another World AIDS Day, will come and go.

It's been many years since HIV and AIDS arrived to plague the world's populations.

Since then, other diseases have come and pushed HIV and AIDS awareness to the back of everyone's mind: Ebola virus, Hanta virus, Dengue Fever, E.coli, just to name a few. However, HIV and AIDS continue to devastate the U.S. along with the rest of the world. In recognition of World AIDS Day, Public Health and Health Promotions would like to review some of the most often asked questions about HIV and AIDS

What's HIV? HIV stands for: "Human Immunodeficiency Virus". This is the virus that causes AIDS. HIV attacks white blood cells and destroys them. The white blood cells are your body's soldiers against foreign invaders... the various germs we come across day to day.

White blood cells are responsible for recognizing foreign invaders and helping destroy them. As a result of HIV infection, the ability to fight-off disease is weakened. HIV remains in the body for life, and usually waits for several years before it begins to cause symptoms.

What's AIDS? AIDS refers to the "Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome". This is the disease caused by HIV. Because HIV weakens the ability to defend against disease-causing germs, HIV infected persons develop life-threatening diseases that normal, uninfected persons easily overcome.

This is the final and most severe stage of HIV infection. It usually takes around ten years to develop AIDS after initial infection with HIV. The time from development of AIDS to death is usually about 2 - 4 years.

How's HIV transmitted? Since we hasn't changed much. All cases involve a direct introduction of an infected person's body fluids into another person's body. Examples include:

□ Intimate sexual contact with an infected partner first learned of HIV and AIDS, this her infant through the birthing process or breast milk □ Accidental exposure of a medical worker to body fluids of a HIVpositive patient. (A special note concerning emergency situations: If responding to a car accident and per-

Don't be blinded by myths Know the facts about AIDS

□ Sharing contaminated needles or syringes for drug use □ From an HIV-positive mother to forming CPR, there is potential for being exposed to the HIV virus. Anyone trained in CPR should carry protective gloves and pocket resuscitation masks in their vehicle so that they can safely respond in emergency situations.)

How's HIV not transmitted? HIV is not transmitted by daily, casual contact, such as:

- Hugging or touching
- Coughing or sneezing
- Sharing utensils
- Shaking or holding hands
- Sharing a drink or food
- Insect bites
- Toilet seats
- Money
- Doorknobs
- □ Kissing

Again, you must have received infected body fluids into your body to become infected. A few special notes concerning blood donations: Medical workers and blood bank workers all use sterilized equipment when taking your blood.

Medical personnel change the equipment between each donor, so you are not exposed to the previous person's blood. Also, all blood donations are tested for HIV before being used.

How's HIV infection prevented? There are several key elements to preventing infection with the HIV virus.

Education about the disease ... what it is, how it's transmitted, how to prevent transmission. The more you know, the better protected you are.

□ Safe sex (abstinence is the safest, avoid multiple partners, use latex condoms).

Avoid drug use...alcohol and drug use can cloud your judgment and lead you to do things you normally wouldn't do.

□ Be careful when responding to emergencies. Emergency medical service personnel use gloves and other protective measures to prevent HIV infection.

Reese Public Health personnel will answer questions about HIV and AIDS and are available during duty hours at Ext. 3534.

Safety Early morning or evening jogging during the fall and winter months of extended darktip ness will require extra precautions. Wear light-colored clothing with reflective stripes.

MSAF tackles BMT obstacle course

LACKLAND AIR FORCE Force life. Part of what he was BASE, Texas (AFNS) — Twenty-five years ago he did it to graduate from basic military training. Now, during a recent visit to Lackland's BMT "confidence course," he did it to see if young men and women are just as ready and eager as he was to be an airman.

CMSAF David J. Campanale said it's all too easy to dismiss the confidence course as just another physical fitness test. "It's not necessarily about physical attributes, because they get a lot of instruction in the face of the unknown. And this builds strength, confidence and leadership."

Campanale is also convinced that the sense of urgency that the confidence course produces enables trainees to triumph over difficult circumstances. This kind of training, he says, "will take them through the rest of their Air Force careers." Prior to tackling Lackland's 20 obstacles, Campanale referred to his visit as akin to being a proud father who's just seen a son or daughter graduate. In fact, he seemed so enamored by the trainees that he was seen in the evening watching them drill.

He also made it a point to talk to as many new airmen as possible, asking questions and telling them stories about Air questioned about by the trainees was the drawdown and how it's affecting the Air Force people

"You can see here at Lackland and other bases the quality of our basic trainees," Campanale said. "By the end of next year, we should be down to about 395,000 (active-duty) people in the Air Force. We did lose a lot of good people, but we have a lot of great people still here and coming in."

On confidence course day something all basic trainees must run and pass in their fourth week — a training instructor remarked how pleased he was to see Campanale come out and run with 600 cheering trainees. All were risking embarrassment from their peers if they failed.

"This course is hardly a cake walk," the TI said. "He (Campanale) will have to do some pretty strenuous hurdles."

TIs have dubbed the course "the rinse cycle" because it changes the way you look and feel when you finish. "It gets you dirty, and wet, like being put in a washing machine," said Airman Basic Rosny Mathieu. "But it's fun."

Campanale said the aspect of "fun" is all-important to learning, especially for people facing a challenging career in the Air Force. In fact, the chief

CMSAF David J. Campanale hangs over one of the water obstacles at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. The chief master sergeant of the claims he's had so much fun during his Air Force career that he would start all over again. "I mean it," he says. "We've got a good life."

As chief master sergeant of the Air Force, it's now Campanale's turn to be the adviser to leadership on matters concerning welfare and progress of the Air Force enlisted corps.

To do this, Campanale's style is to use his initiative as a direct expression of his ambition.

As the top enlisted airman, he said he also realizes this ambition must always be expressed in action that provides for the common good of the Air Force.

At an obstacle called "the mine field," a TI yells "Now!" Then all hell breaks loose, as stacles, and didn't get wet! (Photo by Robin Cresswell) the sound of machine-gun fire

Air Force successfully completed all 20 ob-rattles in the distance. Campanale knows instantly this means business as he follows a trainee into one of the most difficult obstacles on the course.

It's not easy to relate to someone in basic training someone who's 18 or 19, fresh out of high school. But on this day, a 43-year-old man did.

Future promotions look bright

Remember the talk? When the drawdown is over, promotion rates will get better. Well, they have!

For the first time since the drawdown began, enlisted promotion rates to all grades exceeded desired minimums.

Not only did we exceed desired rates in 1995 but we expect enlisted promotions to remain healthy for the foreseeable future.

We are confident we'll be able to promote at the minimums or better in the coming years.

One thing never changes — we will continue to see those who perform the best and study the hardest get promoted.

Family Space-A travel expands

As part of the services' continuing Quality of Life initiatives, family member access to space-available travel has been greatly expanded.

The following changes were effective Oct. 20:

□ Command-sponsored family members stationed overseas may now travel unaccompanied within the overseas area and from/to the continental United States.

□ Their priority is behind accompanied family members and ahead of retirees.

□ Family members may now travel accompanied, within the CONUS, in connection with a family emergency. Their priority is the same as the active-duty sponsor.

One family member may now travel with their sponsor, within the CONUS, on house hunting or permissive TDY. Priority is the same as the active-duty sponsor.

AF announces chief promotions

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFNS) — The Air Force selected 632 of 3,850 eligible senior master sergeants for promotion to chief master sergeant, representing an overall 16.42 percent selection rate for the 95E9 cycle.

The average selectee score for this cycle was 670.78 points, based on the following:

- □ 134.99, performance reports
- □ 395.80, board score
- □ 64.85, U.S. Air Force Supervisory Examination
- □ 31.46, time in grade
- \Box 22.17, time in service

 \Box 21.50, decorations

The average selectee has 4.16 years in grade and 21.18 years in service.

A complete list of the new chief master sergeants is posted on the AFPC Internet home page. The address is http://www.mpc.af.mil/ and then click on "Enlisted Promotion Information."

Those selected will be promoted throughout calendar year 1996.

Talking to AFPC made easier

The Air Force Personnel Center is working hard to keep the lines of communication open.

□ The AFPC "Hotline" has handled over 400 calls in the last two years, responding to over 97 percent within three duty days (1-800-652-5475 or DSN 487-5475).

□ An AFPC Call Center has also been established to cover single point, real time information and assistance to Military Personnel Flight and orderly room personnel (1-800-558-1404 or DSN 487-7849).

□ You can also get current personnel information from the AFPC homepage on the internet (//www.mpc.af.mil).

Operations tempo to increase as Bosnian peace plan proceeds

(Continued from Page 1) peace, we must help them in that effort," Clinton said Nov. 21 in a statement to the media at the White House Rose Garden.

The president wants to send 20,000 American combat troops to Bosnia to help maintain the peace.

"All the parties have asked for a strong international force to supervise the separation of forces and to give them confidence that each side will live up to their agreements. Only NATO can do that job. And the United States as NATO's leader must play an essential role in this mission," Clinton said.

"Without us, the hard-won peace would be lost, the war would resume, the slaughter of innocent people would begin again." But will yet another increase in the USAFE operations tempo lead to a less combat capable command? "No," Cliver said, though he added that USAFE's training and combat readiness levels are at the minimum level precisely because of the contingency support role the command took on after the Gulf War.

However, he also said most of the command's nine fighter squadrons are not far from the next higher level of readiness.

"We just can't fly enough training sorties to get to the next level," he said.

This, in turn, allows for support from other major commands, which allowed all but two of USAFE's weapon systems to meet the Air Force goal of a maximum 120 days of temporary duty per year. Air Force established the goal — 30 days for training, 90 days for contingency support — to prevent extended TDYs to units and people with unique missions whenever possible and to ease stress.

Only USAFE's Harmequipped F-16s and fleet of small support aircraft — C-21s, C-20s and C-43s — might surpass that goal this year, Cliver said.

And it is because of the support received from active-duty, Guard and Reserve units that "we're kind of getting organized," Cliver said. AMC has already promised to augment its USAFE counterparts during the Bosnia contingency, he said.

"Folks in America are pretty good about providing help," Cliver said. "If we call, most days they haul. They know we're strapped over here."

War Highway repair work under way The repair of War Highway between the Main Gate and Fourth Street began Thursday. The south-bound lane will be closed and the north-bound lane will become a two-way street during the first phase of repair. Additional repair work will be going on near the picnic area and Ruby's. Reese personnel should expect disruption of traffic flow and parking around these projects.

FEHB open season continues

The annual Federal Employees Health Benefits open season runs through December 11.

During the open season, any eligible employee who is not currently registered may enroll and any eligible enrollee may change from one plan or option to another, from selfonly to self and family, or make a combination of these changes.

Employees wishing to enroll or change their enrollment must complete a Standard Form 2809, Health Benefits Registration Form.

These forms are available from the Affirmative Employment Section, Civilian Personnel Office, Ruth Hardwick or Olivia Schrecengost, and must be completed and submitted to that office prior to the close of business on the last day of open season.

Enrollees wishing to continue their current enrollment do not need to take any action during this open season.

Before the open season began, current enrollees should have received a copy of their current health plan's brochure and a notice of the 1996 rates.

Anyone considering enrolling or making an enrollment change, needs to contact the civilian personnel office to obtain a copy of the 1996 FEHB Guide. This guide contains a comparison chart that gives general information about each plan and shows the biweekly and monthly premium rates. a s

52

Civilian personnel officials advise people to not rely solely on these booklets when deciding to enroll in or change enrollment to a specific plan.

Brochures of all the plans are available for inspection at the civilian personnel office. Due to the limited quantity available, the brochures need to be retured after review. If health plans are changed, beneficiaries should keep the brochure for a complete description of benefits.

64th Logistics Squadron

The 64th Logistics Squadron provides sustained supply, fuels, and transportation support to the 64th Flying Training Wing and associated units, enabling them to fulfill their missions.

A proactive approach is utilized by all functions to ensure vital services and parts are provided when and where they are required. The squadron assists the wing in sustaining a high degree of readiness by maintaining critical aircraft spares and mission essential vehicles, and by effectively handling the movement of assets and personnel to and from Reese.

World-wide deployment capability is maintained to support national security objectives.

Materiel Management

agement Flight includes the stock control, equipment management, retail sales, and mobility elements. This flight manages all items included in the base supply and equipment accounts and ensures items are requisitioned and/or on hand to support the wing mission.

Combat Operations

The 64th LS Combat Operations Support Flight directly controls the operations of all research, demand processing, mission capable and repair cycle support element functions within base supply. The flight manages all decentralized supply support functions within the aircraft maintenance complex. It establishes and implements policies and procedures for these functions. Transportation

The 64th LS Transportation Flight provides surface freight, packing, crating, passenger and personal property support for the wing. It also provides maintenance and operations support for over 250 government vehicles.

Senior Airman Pete Adams, 64th LS, issues a jacket to Airman Tim Seeley, 64th SPS

Fuels Management

The 64th LS Fuels Management Flight handles all fuel and liquid oxygen required to meet the mission requirements for the wing. The contractor, Allied Management of Texas, receives and issues approximately 1 million gallons of fuel each month.

Materiel Storage and Distribution

The 64th LS Materiel Storage and Distribution Flight mission is to receive, inspect, store, protect and maintain accountability of all supplies and equipment managed by the chief of supply. The flight manages over 60,000 square feet of storage space in five different locations with assets valued at over 17 million dollars.

Management and Systems

The 64th LS Management and Systems Flight has 24 personnel assigned and acts as the oversight authority for base supply. It manages all computer operations, accountable documents, inventories, funds, customer service and training, reports of survey, and the surveillance and analysis programs.

CHAMPUS eligible beneficiaries who enrolled in TriCare Prime should be receiving their TriCare

Prime identification cards in the mail. The front side of the card contains information such as date of enrollment, personal data on the beneficiary, the beneficiary's assigned Primary Care Manager (PCM), and PCM's phone number (885-3515).

The backside of the card will have 1-800 telephone numbers for the Health Care Information Line and the Health Care Finders.

If you have enrolled in TriCare Prime but have not received an Identification card, you may call 1-800-406-2832 to find out the status of your application. When you receive your TriCare Prime identification card, you will also receive a TriCare member handbook.

Please review this handbook carefully! It will provide essential information on proper use of TriCare Prime. We have noted that some handbooks are missing the first six pages. If this is true with your copy, please call the TriCare Service Center at 1-800-406-2832 so they can mail a corrected copy to you. If you would rather pick one up, please visit the TriCare Service Center.

TriCare's start date was Nov. 1. The Roundup and the Commander's Access Channel will continue to provide information on TriCare and the enrollment process. For additional information or assistance, please stop by the TRICARE Service Center (Bldg. 1300, room 342) or call 885-2999/1866. Cookies for Airmen Carolyn Jones bags cookies during the 1994 Cookies for Airmen campaign at Reese. The 64th Support Group is conducting the cookie drive again this year. Donated cookies should be taken to the Reese Family Support Center or the 64th SPTG commander's office on Dec. 12 and 13th, The cookies will be distributed to more than 300 single airmen in the dormitories on Dec. 15. Military members living off base can pick up cookies after 3 p.m. on Dec. 15, or on Dec. 18, at the center. For additional information call Pam Appell, 885-3079.

lected from each squadron stating age, sex and a brief description of what the child wants (shoes, toy, clothing & etc.). No names, please!

The Chapel should receive each squadron requests in a sealed envelope no later than Sunday.

All gift requests will go up on a tree displayed in the Chapel Sanctuary. Individuals will be asked to select a "star" which represents an individual, take it home and wrap a gift.

The gift should be received by Dec. 17 to be placed under the tree. Point of contact for this project is Peggy Melloy, 885-1065 or 885-3237.

Communication workshop set

The Reese Family Support Center is sponsoring a communication workshop for parents and their teenagers.

"True Colors" is a fun, fast-paced workshop designed to help parents and teens understand their personality differences and get along better with one another by creating unity and valuing differences. "True Colors" is on Dec. 9 from 9 a.m. to noon at the center. Call 3305 to reserve a place for you and your teen.

Career workshop scheduled

Active-duty members and spouses who are within 180 days of retirement or separation, or who have retired or separated since Oct. 1, 1990, may attend a free Civilian Career Options Workshop (ie. Transition Workshop), scheduled for 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Dec. 12-15 with Thursday afternoon and Friday morning being a mandatory part of the members out processing.

This will be held at the Reese Family Support Center.

This workshop was especially developed for military members and their spouses separating or retiring from the military. Resumes, veterans benefits and more will be covered. Reservations are required by Dec. 8 and can be made by contacting the center at extension 3305.

Steve Goodall, 64th MSS, scrambles for yardage during the title game against the 64th LS. Logistics won the game, 27-20.

64th Logistics Squadron rallies for IM flag crown

by Senior Airman Tim Dempsey Sports editor

The 64th Logistics Squadron ended the 64th Mission Support Squadron's undefeated season, 27-20, in the intramural flag football championship game here Nov. 21.

A last minute touchdown strike from quarterback Pete Adams to guard Mark Capps gave the 64th LS the comefrom-behind win.

Adams finished the game with four touchdown passes and a key interception in the endzone. Capps, also with a stellar performance, had two sacks along with the game winning reception.

In the first quarter, quarterback Steve Goodall, 64th MSS, went to the air to hit Antoine Banks on a 60-yard touchdown bomb. However, the play was called back for a guarding-the-flagpenalty. The determined offense overcame the penalty and continued to drive the ball down the field. On second down from it's own 48-yard line, Goodall connected with Eric Bass for a 58-yard touchdown. The point-afterattempt was incomplete and the 64th MSS led 6-0.

The 64th LS started the next series on it's 20-yard line. After driving to its 48-yard line, Adams hit Jay Tiumalu for a 40-yard gain to the 64th MSS

2-yard line. On second-andgoal, Adams found Terry Hughes open in the endzone for the touchdown. The PAT was complete to Rico Dyer and the 64th LS took the lead 7-6.

Capps dropped Goodall for an 11-yard loss on the first play of the 64th MSS insuing drive. The quarter ended a play later

In the second quarter, the 64th MSS drove the ball down to the 64th LS 16-yard line. On fourth and goal, Capps recorded his second sack, dropping Goodall on the 64th LS 28-yard line. After reaching the 64th MSS 37-yard line on a Adams-to-Dyer option pass, Tiumalu found himself on the receiving end of a 38-yard touchdown pass from Adams. The PAT failed and the 64th LS lead remained 13-6.

The 64th MSS offense quickly cut the lead to one point on a 37-yard touchdown pass from Goodall to Banks. The PAT pass failed.

Defense dominated the rest of the period, leaving the 64th MSS down by one point, 13-12, at halftime.

In the second half, the 64th MSS drove from its own 17yard line to the 64th LS 18yard line, before Adams picked off a pass from Goodall in the endzone.

The 64th LS then began a long drive that was hampered by penalties. From its 28-yard line, Adams kept the ball on an option and scrambled 58-yards to the 64th MSS 2-yard line. The following play he hit George Jackson for the touchdown. The PAT was incomplete and the 64th LS was back on top by seven points, 19-12.

On the following 64th MSS drive, Jackson picked off a pass from Goodall on first down. The 64th LS offense held the ball to end the quarter.

After the 64th LS offense stalled in the beginning of the fourth quarter, the 64th MSS offense started on it's 32-yard line and drove down to the 64th LS 13-yard line. On first down, Goodall scrambled under pressure to find Banks in the corner of the endzone for a touchdown pass. Goodall kept the ball on the PAT conversion as the 64th MSS took the lead 20-

The 64th LS took over the ball late in the quarter and drove down to the 64th MSS 13-yard line. On fourth-andfour, Adams rolled left and reversed his field to find Capps open in the right corner of the endzone for the touchdown. Adams ran the ball into the endzone for the PAT for the final score of the game, 27-20.

The 64th LS only loss this season was to the 64th MSS. Both teams ended the season with 12-1 records.

The 35th Flying Training Squadron (9-4) knocked off the 54th FTS (7-6) in the consolation game, 28-20.
