Reese police to begin bike patrols

Texas Tech patrolmen train SPs

Beginning in mid-July, people of the Reese community will see some unfamiliar sights around the base.

The 64th Security Police Squadron will begin bike patrol.

Five members of the squadron completed 40 hours of classroom and practical bicycle maneuvers June 26-30. They learned how to conduct basic tactics of a normal vehicle patrol while on bikes. These tactics include responding to alarm activations, traffic stops, domestic disturbances and assisting people who have locked themselves out of their vehicles.

The training was conducted by Capt. Eddie Huckabee, Texas Tech Police Department, who has also taught other local police agencies.

The bicycle program fosters more of a one-on-one relationship between the 64th SPS and the base community. Also, it saves tax payer money by not using gasoline and avoiding high maintenance costs on motorized vehicles.

The members of the new program are SSgt. Paul Perez, Jr., SrA. Vibol Ros, Amn. Angela Holmes, Amn. Linwood King and Amn. Rick Vargalio.

AF announces force structure changes 11 bases affected by realignment, management actions

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Eleven active-duty Air Force bases will be affected by force structure, realignment and management actions during this calendar year, the Air Force announced June 30.

These changes are required to execute the fiscal 1996-97 president budget, achieve efficiencies or make organizational changes, an Air Force statement said.

The decisions on these proposed actions will be made only after the appropriate environmental analyses have been completed and Clean Air Act conformity requirements have been met.

The bases and units are:

□ Luke AFB, Ariz. The 56th Fighter Wing's international flying training squadron will deactivate. Its training mission and 12 F-16s will transfer to the Air National Guard at Tucson International Airport Air Guard Station. This action will result in a decrease of 245 full-time military and two civilian manpower authorizations.

□ Robins AFB, Ga. Air Force will place the Perimeter Acquisition Vehicle Entry Phased Array Warning System in caretaker status and inactivate the 9th Space Warning Squadron.

"This action is a result of budget constraints and a reduced threat; however, other methods exist to ensure adequate warning to sustain nuclear deterrence," the Air Force statement said.

The action will result in a decrease of 107 full-time military and five civilian manpower authorizations.

□ Barksdale AFB, La. The 2nd Bomb Wing will retire four B-52H aircraft, resulting in a loss of 126 full-time military manpower authorizations. As part of Air Combat Command's initiative to inactivate the 99th Wing at Ellsworth AFB, S.D., the 99th Electronic Combat Range Group will deactivate and range management functions will consolidate at Nellis AFB, Nev. This will result in a loss of 99 full-time military and 13 civilian manpower authorizations. Also, the B-52 weapons school and test mission, currently at Ellsworth AFB, will realign to Barksdale, resulting in an increase of 90 full-time military authorizations.

□ Nellis AFB, Nev. The 57th Wing's 561st Fighter

Week 9

The Air Education and Training Command Inspector General Quality Air Force Assessment Team is scheduled to arrive at Reese on Sept. 11. This condensed checklist will help prepare for the visit by highlighting key areas to clean up on a day-by-day basis. For more information call Lt. Col. John Shackelford at 3033.

Monday

✓ Self-assessment Checklists

Do you have the answers? Ensure everyone in your organization does.

Tuesday

✓ Training Records

Review everyone's records for proper certification/documentation to do their jobs. Are OJT folders standardized?

Wednesday

✓ Tech Orders, Regulations

Do a thorough publications check. Look for currency, necessity of regulations themselves. How do your binders and labels look? Check for accuracy of Forms 21.

Thursday

✓ Publications

Check currency of unit master publications library/files. Order new publications if needed.

Friday

✓ Supply Accounts

Check most current computer print-out. Does your "checkbook" balance? Check your CA-CRL. Do a complete inventory. Is all ADPE accounted for? Is your equipment custodian current and up-to-speed.

CPO chief vows to keep civilian workers informed by Cindy Birge

Chief, Civilian Personnel

I know the BRAC Commission's recommendation to close Reese has hit us civilians hard.

Our future is uncertain. We are anxious for information so we can start planning. We want assurances our families are going to be taken care of.

I pledge that we will keep you informed every step of the way.

We will always tell you what we know to be true today, but many things will change as we travel the road to closure.

In the past couple of weeks, we've had requests for information we have been unable to provide because we don't know the answer. Employees have left our office angry and frustrated because we haven't been able to tell them what they want to hear.

We won't be able to provide some answers until certain decisions are made. We can't put together a time table of events until we know when the last class is leaving. We can't tell you when BRAC funds will be available for PCS moves.

But I can assure you, as soon as I do know the answers, we will convey that information to you.

For planning purposes, let me tell you what I do know. We have formed a Reese Worker Transition Committee who will assist in efforts to help employees make a successful transition to a satisfactory job in the shortest possible time and serve as a communication liaison for employee needs.

The committee represents all civilians on Reese including contractor, AAFES, and NAF personnel. JobSource+, our local Lubbock industry council, will be providing an employee orientation to all civilian employees in the Simler Theater on July 19, 20, and 21 regarding some early intervention services they can offer us. These services include assessment and testing, labor market information, job search and job readiness workshops, etc.

For appropriated fund employees, the civilian personnel office will be conducting retirement briefings for all eligible employees, including those eligible for early retirements, in July and August. We will be publishing a success brochure in early October which will tell you everything you need to know about closure — whether you are retiring, staying in the local area or relocating.

We will also start conducting town meetings in late October. We will have meetings for people remaining in the local area, for people who plan on relocating, for people who might be interested in separation incentives and for any other important topics.

I promise you that we will do our best to keep you informed, but we also ask you to keep the two-way channel of communication open. Your concerns, ideas or recommendations are always welcome. Please forward them to your personnel office or your worker transition committee member.

Food safety key to summer fun

Summer is here and that means lots of back yard cookouts. Don't let the fun time turn into a nightmare; plan for food safety.

Here are some tips to help keep food safe:

- ❑ When shopping for perishable items such as meats and dairy products, get them last.
- ❑ Check the "date of pack" or expiration dates on products to ensure they are good.
- ❑ Go directly home from the store and place perishable items in the refrigerator.
- ❑ Don't leave meat on the counter to thaw. The product may reach the "danger zone" (41 to 140 degrees) long before you intend to use it.
- ❑ Always wash your hands before cooking and after preparing different foods to ensure there is no possibility of cross-contamination.
- ❑ Keep perishable foods in a cooler as long as possible. Pack with plenty of ice and keep it in the shade.
- ❑ Cook meats thoroughly, especially pork. Ensure pork and poultry have no red or pink meat left when serving.
- ❑ Keep food covered to avoid exposing it to flies

Cruz Alleman, Reese Commissary meat department manager, checks the "sell by date" on some steaks.

❑ Discard perishable food if it has been at room temperature for more than four hours. After four hours, the level of toxin produced by bacteria may be enough to cause illness. (Courtesy of 64th MDG Public Health, 3534)

AF announces force changes

Squadron will inactivate and its 26 F-4G aircraft will begin retiring. This will result in a decrease of 972 full-time military and one civilian manpower authorizations. Also, the Combat Rescue School will receive two HH-60G aircraft, resulting in 100 additional full-time military manpower authorizations and the Joint Employment Tactics School will relocate from Ellsworth AFB, resulting in an increase of nine full-time military authorizations. In addition, ACC will consolidate all range management functions at Nellis resulting in an increase of 30 full-time military and 13 civilian manpower authorizations.

□ McGuire AFB, N.J. The 305th Air Mobility Wing will receive six additional KC-10A aircraft, resulting in 180 full-time military manpower authorizations.

□ Holloman AFB, N.M. The 4th Space Warning Squadron will inactivate and its mission will transfer to the Colorado ANG, resulting in a decrease of 353 full-time military and 13 civilian manpower authorizations. In addition, the 4th Space Surveillance Squadron will realign to Holloman from Lackland AFB, Texas, resulting in an increase of 113 full-time military and three civilian manpower authorizations.

□ Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C. The 4th Wing's last six KC-10A aircraft will depart from McGuire AFB. The manpower impact remains as previously announced.

□ Minot AFB, N.D. The 5th Bomb Wing will inactivate the 72nd Bomb Squadron and begin losing 14 B-52H aircraft, resulting in a decrease of 476 full-time military manpower authorizations.

□ Ellsworth. The 99th Wing will inactivate, resulting in a loss of 222 full-time military and nine civilian manpower authorizations and the B-52 weapons school and test mission will realign to Barksdale AFB, resulting in a loss of 90 full-time military authorizations. In addition, the Joint Employment Tactics School will relocate to Nellis AFB, resulting in a loss of nine full-time military authorizations.

□ Lackland AFB, Texas. The 4th Space Surveillance Squadron (Medina Annex) will transfer to Holloman AFB, resulting in a loss of 64 full-time military and three civilian manpower authorizations.

□ Randolph AFB, Texas. — In mid-1996, Air Education and Training Command will convert 452 full-time military to 452 civilian aircraft maintenance manpower authorizations.

In late 1995, the Air Force will centralize a number of civilian personnel functions in a new directorate within the Air Force Military Personnel Center. This action will reduce civilian manpower authorizations at bases throughout the Air Force and will result in an increase of 410 civilian manpower authorizations at Randolph.

Another announcement with additional changes is expected to be issued by Air Force officials later this summer, the statement said.

Service with a smile

Below-the Zone stripes presented

Two reese airmen received below-the-zone promotions to senior airman last week. At left, Cmdr. J.B. Hollyer, 35th Flying Training Squadron operations officer presents new stripes to SrA. Brad Miller. At right, 1st Lt. James Chitty and MSgt. Tony McCurdy, Accounting and Finance Office, present new stripes to SrA. Eric Kremer.

AFMPC outlines special selection boards

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another Air Force Military Personnel Center article designed to explain the officer promotion process. This one is on special selection boards.)

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The purpose of a special selection board, or SSB, is to replicate a central selection board that was previously held. The SSB gives reconsideration to officers who were not properly considered by that central selection board.

There are two reasons for considering an officer by an SSB. They are:

□ Administrative error — An officer will be considered by an SSB if AFMPC determines that an officer should have been considered on the original central board but wasn't, or the officer wasn't considered in the correct promotion zone or competitive category.

□ Legal error and material error — An officer who was considered by a central selection board but not selected may be considered by an SSB if the secretary of the Air Force, or a person acting on behalf of the secretary, determines one of two things: first, that the action of the board that originally considered the officer was contrary to law or involved material error of fact or material administrative error; second, that the board did not have before it for its consideration information that should have been available in compliance with Air Force regulations and policies.

Generally, three SSBs convene a year; one in the spring, one in the summer, and one in the fall. The decision to grant an officer an SSB reconsideration must be made not later than 30 days prior the SSB. This means an officer's appeal under Air For Instruction 36-2401, Correcting Officer and Enlisted Evaluation Reports, or AFR 31-3, Application to the Air Force Board for Correction of Military Records, must be received at AFMPC not later than 90 days prior to the SSB.

Who does an officer compete against on an SSB?

Following each central board, the board secretariat selects a sampling of records to replicate that board for the Special Selection Board process.

In general, five records are chosen from the lowest-scoring officers who were selected for promotion and five records are chosen from the highest-scoring officers who weren't selected.

These benchmark records are then copied, or frozen in time, and maintained at AFMPC for use on SSBs in the future. The benchmark records aren't releasable under the Freedom of Information Act.

How does the Special Selection Board process work?

When considering line officers, board members for SSBs come from the different major commands, career areas and aeronautical ratings.

Joint, reserve and acquisition representation is also included when required. Just as with central selection boards, nearly an entire day is spent preparing board members for the task ahead with briefings on the process and a trial run exercise.

Scoring is also the same as on central boards with board members scoring by secret ballot without benefit of discussion.

The scoring scale used depends on the board they are recreating, either a 6- to 10-point scale or a Yes/No vote for boards with 100 percent promotion opportunity, such as a captain's selection board.

An SSB will consider the record of the officer as it would have appeared to the original board had the officer been properly considered.

Every effort is made to prevent board members from distinguishing the officer being considered from the benchmark records.

To be selected for promotion by an SSB, an officer's score must exceed the scores of all the benchmark non-selected officers and equal or exceed the score of at least one benchmark selected officer.

Competing against both non-selects and selects from the original board replicates as much as practical how the officer would have had to compete on the original central selection board.

People with questions concerning SSBs, or about the officer promotion process in general, should contact the Reese Military Personnel Flight at 3145.

Beech to build JPATS, delivery set for 1999

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas -- The first of the new JPATS aircraft to be produced by Beech Aircraft Corporation will be delivered to Randolph and the 12th Flying Training wing in fiscal 1999, according to Air Education and Training Command officials.

The first of the production aircraft is scheduled to be off the assembly line in December 1988.

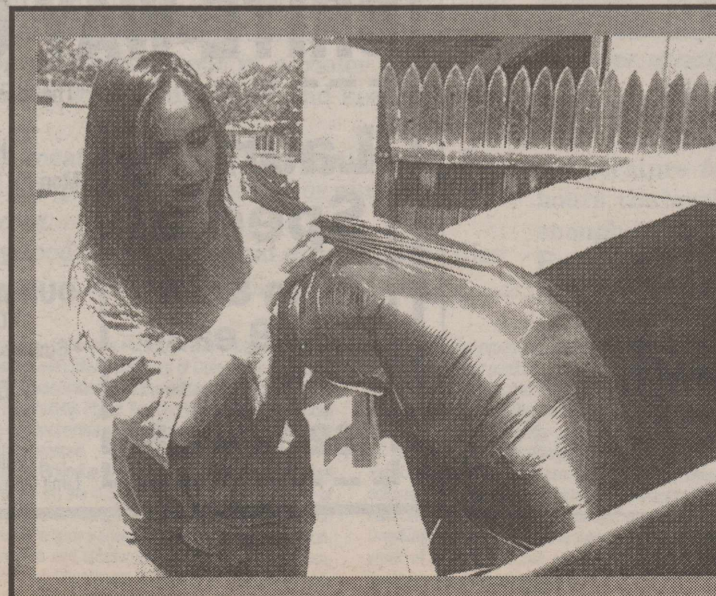

The aircraft will replace the aging Air Force T-37B and the Navy's T-34C.

The T-37 has been in use for the past 36 years and the T-34 for 21 years. The Air Force is to receive 372 aircraft.

Gen. Billy J. Boles, AETC commandner, said the "JPATS aircraft will provide America with the best value, joint-service primary pilot training package available, and insure that we provide the best possible training for our future Air Force and Navy student pilots."

AETC currently uses the T-37 at its four pilot training bases -- Reese, Laughlin AFB, Texas; Columbus AFB, Miss., and Vance AFB, Okla.

The aircraft is also used at Randolph to train instructor pilots and at Sheppard AFB, Texas, in the Euro-NATO Joint Jet Pilot Training program.

Places to go and things to do in Lubbock

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Maintain Your Cool In Summer

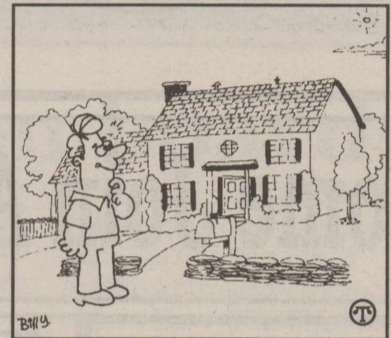

(NAPS)—Here are some surprising facts that may save you some time, grief and money.

Did you know that when building a home, you should photograph everything that goes underground like pipes and wires to make repairs easier? Did you know that a dirty pair of men's work boots outside a front door can dissuade would-be burglars? And did you know that insulation helps a home not only stay warmer in winter, but cooler in the summer?

These time, money and grief-saving hints are important to keep in mind—particularly the third one, as warmer than normal temperatures are predicted for this summer in 13 of the 16 regions across the U.S. by the 1995 Farmer's Almanac. If you were planning to reinsulate your home in the fall, to bring it to today's energy standards, you should reconsider doing it now.

Why? Because by reinsulating to today's recommended R-Values for your geographic area, you can save money on your electric bills this cooling season and have a more comfortable home to boot.

In today's busy world, you're probably thinking that you don't have the time to tackle a project like this—but you don't have to. Local professional insulation contractors are trained to do this type of work. To locate an insulation contractor, simply look in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory, ask friends and neighbors for recommendations or call the local contractor's association.

An insulation contractor will conduct an audit of your home and recommend ways to bring it up to today's energy standards. When your contractor recommends insulation, ask for a high-quality, thermally-efficient material, which will cover all nooks and crannies in an attic and entirely fills wall cavities, such as Insul Safe III® Blown-in Fiber Glass. This type of insulation will help to ensure that cooled air stays within a home. In addition, it is noncombustible throughout the life of a home, is noncorrosive to pipes and wires and does not promote vermin or pests.

For more information on hiring an insulation contractor or which insulation materials to use, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 or call 1-800-782-8777.

CMSAF discusses enlisted concerns

POPE AFB, N.C. — CMSAF David J. Campanale addressed issues concerning the future of enlisted members during a visit here in June.

"I meet with Congress to speak for enlisted members, and I'm here to find out what is important to you, what is being done well, and what can be improved," Chief Campanale said.

Opening the floor to questions, Chief Campanale heard from staff and technical sergeants concerned with the results of their promotion tests. There were flaws in thousands of answer sheets for the Specialty Knowledge Test and the Promotion Fitness Examination taken in January.

"My personnel police are on guard," Chief Campanale said. "The flawed tests are being rescored by hand and will not affect promotion results. Trust your chief master sergeant of the Air Force."

Another concern dealing with promotion results was frocking. Frocking means members would "sew on" their stripes as soon as they are notified that they've been selected for promotion, instead of waiting for their promotion sequence number. The pay increase associated with the promotion still would not take effect until the line number comes up.

"Frocking makes sense to me," said Chief Campanale. "In my mind it is logical, and in my heart it is the right thing to do. However, as we approach it, little hairs on the back of my neck stand up." The chief went on to say that, in addition to further studies, checks would be made with the other services who already frock their promotees to avoid possible pitfalls in joint work environments.

The chief said that everyone's promotions are in his or her own hands. "There is not a day that goes by that everyone should not study. There is dead time in every day. Instead of waiting until the last minute or taking leave to study right before the test, this time should be used to study. Allocate a time and stick to it." Overall, the promotion system is good, as it gives all enlisted members a chance to advance if they want to, Chief Campanale said.

While off-duty education is important, Campanale said, it "will not count for any promotion points, but it gives the enlisted person who has it an intrinsic value against someone who doesn't have it."

The Enlisted Evaluation System was another subject the chief touched on.

"I told my boss (Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman, Air Force chief of staff) that the EES was OK, that it just needed a little cleanup work. One change we're making is that everyone will be getting performance feedback, from airmen basic to myself. Any commander or supervisor who does not give feedback doesn't deserve the position."

The quality of new airmen was a concern for some noncommissioned officers who felt new airmen are not qualified, and some are disrespectful. Chief Campanale disagreed, saying, "Recruiters and (basic training instructors) are the street machines of the Air Force. They are doing a tremendous job. Our airmen are qualified. If their performance or attitude is not as it should be, it is the supervisor's senior NCO's job to correct it. It is the supervisor's job to weed out those who are not quality. The best way to handle the problem is to tell the person and show them the right way. Stand them up at the position of attention and let them know — they'll get the message."

Other concerns included pay raises and medical care. "Next year there will be a projected 2.4 percent pay raise and projected 2.8 percent raise in the basic allowance for quarters," he said. "It is not an earth-shattering improvement, but some ground has been broken."

In the medical care department, Chief Campanale described TriCare as one of the greatest things that has happened in a long-time. "There aren't any premiums or enrollment fees (for active-duty military and families) and it grants you better access to quality medical care," he explained.

AF scrutinizes senior officer travel

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force has taken steps to more closely scrutinize senior officer travel, said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman in a statement issued June 27.

And commanders "were again" reminded "to avoid even an appearance of abuse or misuse of government resources," General Fogleman said in the statement.

General Fogleman was responding to a Department of Defense inspector general report into the possible misuse of an Air Force C-141 by Gen. Joseph W. Ashy, commander in chief of U.S. Space Command at Peterson AFB, Colo.

The report criticized General Ashy — then a lieutenant general — for also using an Air Force C-21 to fly with his wife round-trip from Colorado Springs, Colo., to Washington for his four-star promotion ceremony the same month.

Inspectors questioned why the general didn't stop in Washington en route to Colorado Springs from Naples. General Ashy has since voluntarily paid $5,020 for the round-trip flight from Colorado Springs to Washington.

Inspectors also identified problems with the way Air Force public affairs officials handled the matter.

General Fogleman's statement indicated that the Air Force vice chief of staff will be "immediately notified of and will oversee all matters, including public affairs activities, involving alleged misconduct by senior Air Force officials."

General Fogleman stressed that he and Air Force Secretary Sheila E. Widnall "are committed to the principles that govern the effective release of information — maximum disclosure of information with minimum delay."

In December 1994, the DOD IG initiated a formal investigation — at the request of Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa — primarily into a September 1994 flight General Ashy took from Naples, Italy, to Colorado Springs on board an Air Mobility Command C-141.

The report criticized the use of a C-141 aircraft for the transportation in lieu of commercial transportation.

"With respect to the C-141 flight from Naples to Colorado Springs, General Ashy did not ask for — or seek — a special airplane," said a spokesman for Ashy at U.S. Space Command headquarters in Colorado Springs.

"Steps have previously been taken to strengthen the oversight of general officer travel," General Fogleman's statement read, adding that the Office of the Secretary of Defense revised its prior guidance on the use of government aircraft and air travel on May 9.

AMC missions involving senior officer travel on heavy aircraft — for example, C-141 — are now more closely scrutinized and funded as validated Special Assignment Airlift Missions instead of training flights.

IM softball hits final stretch

by SrA. Tim Dempsey
Sports Editor

Intramural softball enters its 10th week of the grueling 13-week season as teams begin to sort out the playoff picture.

In the American League, the 52nd Flying Training Squadron, the 64th Security Police Squadron and the 64th Communication Squadron are looking strong as they prepare to plunge into the playoffs.

The 35th FTS was knocked off in the championship game last year by the 64th SPS. The team is leaving most of the National League pack behind as it attempts to capture this year's title.

The only NL team currently standing in the path of the 35th FTS is the 64th Logistics Squadron. These two teams are scheduled to meet Monday at 5 p.m. to determine who is the best in the division. The 64th Medical Group "A" has stumbled in recent weeks, but is still a strong contender to clinch a top playoff seed.

The games scheduled for this week, should shed some more light on who's going and who's staying for the crown of the diamond.

Starting at 5 p.m. Monday, the 64th LS battles the 35th FTS, the combined team of the 64th Services Squadron and the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron plays the 64th MDG-B at 6 p.m., the 64th MDG-A faces the 64th Mission Support Squadron at 7 p.m. and the 64th MSS meets the 52nd FTS at 8 p.m. to wrap up the night.

Only three games are scheduled for Tuesday, beginning with the joint team of the Navy and U.S. Marine Corps playing the 64th MSS at 6 p.m., followed by the 64th MDG-B taking on the 64th LS at 7 p.m. and finishing with Lockheed going after the 64th Operations Support Squadron at 8 p.m.

The 54th FTS has to play a double header Wednesday as it meets league rival the 64th CS at 6 p.m. followed by the NL powerhouse, 35th FTS, at 7 p.m. The T1 Jays close out the night against the 64th LS at 8 p.m.

The 64th LS is pitted against league adversary the 64th MDG-A to make up the main event Wednesday at 5 p.m. Other games include the 52nd FTS against the 64th MDG-B at 6 p.m., the 54th FTS meeting the 64th SVS/CES at 7 p.m. and Lockheed closing out the week against the 64th SPS.

With U.S. Savings Bonds, the more you give, the more you receive.

Every day, we pass a little of ourselves on to the next generation. When it's best to go fishing, which bait to use, how to cast, what makes a keeper. The knowledge that we give stays with them forever. And we hope we've made their lives a little richer for the learning.

Giving U.S. Savings Bonds also passes an important lesson on to the future generation. Bonds can teach our children how to save, how interest grows and how a small investment can help make their dreams come true.

Buying U.S. Savings Bonds contributes to a solid and secure America for generations to come. What a great way for you to say, "I believe in your future!"

Bonds are as easy to buy as they are to give. Buy them at half their face value through your local bank. U.S. Savings Bonds are like friendships — the longer they're kept, the more they're worth.

So share the tradition of U.S. Savings Bonds. They're the gift that gives back more than you've given.
