AF leaders have 'zero tolerance' for involvement with extremists

WASHINGTON — Air Force policy is "clear, simple and direct" on extremist group activity, said Air Force Secretary Sheila E. Widnall.

Recent statements by Widnall, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman and CMSAF David J. Campanale emphasized the Air Force's "zero tolerance" policy on extremist and hate group activity.

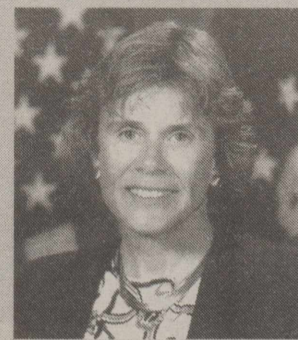

"Active participation in such extremist groups is totally unacceptable and will result in administrative or disciplinary actions," Widnall said in an April 4 statement.

The 1995 bombing of the federal building in Oklahoma City, Okla., raised concerns for determining just how many servicemembers may be involved in extremist group activities.

The issue became even more urgent in December when two white Army soldiers from Fort Bragg, N.C., were accused of murdering two black citizens of nearby Fayetteville.

A former military member is charged in the Oklahoma City bombing and the Fort Bragg soldiers allegedly are members of an extremist group.

Widnall

Department of Defense policy prohibits servicemembers from actively participating in such extremist group activity, which includes publicly demonstrating or rallying, fund raising, recruiting and training members, or organizing or leading such organizations.

DOD policy also strongly discourages military people from joining extremist groups, officials said.

After the murders in Fayetteville, Air Force directed a review of all activities over the past two years.

Officials reported a small number of incidents and the Air Force has already taken disciplinary action against those individuals whose actions violated Air Force policy.

Widnall and Fogleman further directed a survey of wing commanders to ensure that these commanders felt that guidance was clear and that they had the necessary authority to act.

The commanders unanimously responded that they had the guidance and the authority they needed to create the right climate on their bases.

Widnall said she was not surprised by the "extremely low number of cases involving Air Force people" and called the results of the review "a truly 'good news story.'"

"We are not, however, blinded by past successes," she said in the statement. "We will ensure that our commanders are empowered to combat this threat, and that our people understand their responsibilities."

Fogleman said the service will not tolerate "hate groups which violate human dignity and threaten the cohesion and effectiveness of our units."

The Air Force has a "zero tolerance" policy for religious, ethnic, sexual or racial harassment, he told a recent gathering of company grade officers and civilians at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

"It's not only the law of the land, it's morally 'the right thing to do," Fogleman said.

"As we draw down the force, both people and force structure, it is essential for commanders and supervisors to cultivate an environment of trust, cooperation, and teamwork.... Every individual must contribute to ensure we are getting the most from our resources," he said. But the Air Force cannot expect people to achieve their "full potential in an environment where harassment or prejudice exists," said Fogleman.

Campanale, in an April 10 message stated that Air Force people "think together, act together and serve their country" for a common good.

"That means we all must realize that we have service in common, regardless of race, creed, color, nationality, or origin," Campanale said.

"We serve with this broad perspective and we carry that (perspective) into the community. We realize that people are just people — no one is better than anyone else," Campanale said.

"In our business, in any endeavor, there is absolutely no room for hate groups," he said.

Military must prevent the 'war within'

Diversity of armed forces remains key to military mission readiness

Capt Eric R. Bass
Chief, Social Actions

When you get up each morning, put on your uniform and look yourself in the mirror — what do you see?

Do you see someone who wears the uniform with ultimate pride, ready to defend your family, friends and our national interests at all costs?

If you don't see that, it's time to look for another line of work.

If you don't feel that you can peacefully and effectively serve side-by-side with someone of another gender, racial or ethnic group, it's time to look for another line of work.

Hate breeds war. Hate for someone that is based on skin color is one thing that can severely damage our ability to be ready for, and go to, war if necessary.

America is a conjugation of many different races and ethnicities. When we raised our hands and took the oath, we made an agreement with our country to serve it to the fullest. This means that when we are prepared to protect our white children, our black students, our hispanic business people, our asian/pacific islander teachers, and anyone else who makes up our wonderful country.

To remain focused, we have to keep this in mind on a daily basis. Our day-to-day business is preparing to defend America at all costs. When we pick up a gun, jump in a cockpit, pack ammunition, pack deployment bags, inventory medical equipment, prepare to launch a missile, prepare orders, etc., we are telling America, "Rest easy, I'm here to make sure you stay free." Protecting "freedom for all" is our business.

In order to fully protect freedom, we must have 100 percent of our warfighting resources ready to respond. The most important of these resources is our people.

If we are warring with ourselves because of hate, racial or gender differences, we have destroyed our main resource for preserving peace.

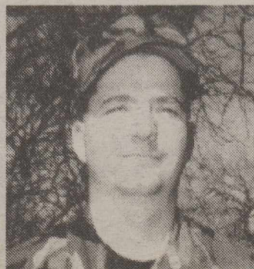

Our military is very diverse. If we can't effectively deal with the differences of people, our potential enemies won't need to worry about destroying us — we will do it to ourselves.

Remember: "How can we be prepared to serve freedom if we are already at war with ourselves?"

Earth Day

Reese joins worldwide observance today

No subject in recent times has aroused and perplexed Americans more than the debate over environmental cleanup.

They are in agreement about only one thing: they would like to rid themselves of all the garbage and stop hurting the environment.

Today, even with tough environmental laws, the United States finds itself hip deep in garbage. According to a recent congressional study, every American produces roughly 10 pounds of garbage a day. This is enough to fill five million large trucks, which, if placed end to end, would stretch around the world twice.

To get rid of all this garbage and heal the planet, Earth Day was started. Until the first Earth Day, in April, 1970, the ecology movement was limited and confined to small nature organizations. But Earth Day caught the imagination of America, and caused people to take a hard look at recycling, landfills, dumps and garbage.

For the Air Force, pollution prevention and environmental cleanup also became part of everyday operations and a "must do" program. Secretary of the Air Force Sheila Widnall has said the Air Force is committed to cleaning and protecting the environment through restoration, compliance and pollution prevention and planning.

"We know we have an obligation to the American people to practice and promote positive resource stewardship," Widnall said. "We cannot, and must not train in ways that harm rare plants and animals, or destroy sensitive ecosystems."

Still, environmental problems continue to exist because man has not yet learned to fully respect nature. Some serious concerns for the planet include:

- Shrinking rainforests
- Global warming
- Thinning of the ozone layer
- Contamination of the ground waters
- Contamination of the oceans and fish in the oceans
- Increased air pollution
- Problems with finding a safe way of disposing nuclear waste

To help remedy some of these environmental problems, the Air Force devotes considerable personnel and financial resources to stewardship. For instance, the Air Force's environmental budget for last year was over $1 billion.

"We now realize that the environment of our installations is composed of more than just game animals and endangered species," Widnall said.

"However, this is not enough. We

About the front page

Senior Airman Shanise Elliott, 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, holds the Earth in the palms of her hands to illustrate the importance of Earth Day.

The wing will celebrate Earth Day from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today with a variety of special events at Reese Manor and at the Reese Exchange.

Reese and Texas environmental officials will provide information on how to protect the environment. Several seedlings and other nursery items will also be given away.

must establish new policies to fully integrate our stewardship responsibilities with the military mission."

The secretary said the entire Air Force must help and participate. On this 26th anniversary of Earth Day, Air Force bases around the country will have open houses, plant trees, have nature field trips for students and put the finishing touches on programs to beautify and cleanup their environment.

The purpose of this Earth Day is to examine the problems that the ecology movement is focused on. It's becoming increasingly clear to Air Force people, and all Americans, that pollution prevention is critical to our future.

Texas Forestry Service to present Reese third Tree City USA award

by Steve Jones
Environmental Flight

Trees make a world of difference in our world.

They lend beauty and value to our homes, conserve energy, help clean the air, and provide homes for urban wildlife. They are used as fuel and building materials, windbreaks to prevent soil erosion, and shade from the hot sun.

"Tree City USA", a National Arbor Day Foundation program, recognizes communities for developing and continuing a good tree-care policy. For the third consecutive year, Reese has earned the "Tree City USA" recognition.

Shelley Abendschan, from the Texas Forestry Service, will present the award to base officials at this year's Arbor Day observation.

The ceremony will be at 10 a.m. today at Reese Manor. It includes planting a flowering pear tree, donated by Jenco Nursery, near the facility. Children from the base child care center will help plant the tree.

Since its beginning in 1872 when more than one million trees were planted, Arbor Day has spread beyond the borders of the United States and is celebrated in many countries of the world.

J. Sterling Morton, journalist and originator of Arbor Day, noted, "Other holidays repose upon the past. Arbor Day proposes for the future."

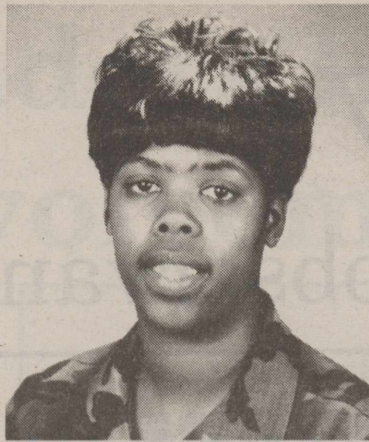

Take pride in your community and help your environment by planting a tree.

Help us celebrate Arbor Day and leave a legacy that our children will remember with pride.

Reese recognizes five 'special angels'

Five 'special angels' were recognized Wednesday for their voluntary support of the Reese and Lubbock community.

The five recipients of the Reese Angel Awards are: Staff Sgt. Glenn Stanton, 64th Medical Group; Staff Sgt. Kip Huston, 64th Security Police Squadron; retired Lt. Col. Ronald Preston; Lydia Larson, 64th Contracting Squadron; and Senior Airman Tamika Canady, 64th Logistics Squadron.

Stanton was cited for his work with various community programs, including: the Black and Hispanic Heritage committees, Project Intercept, Project Hope and Camp I Can. He is also a mentor at Frenship Intermediate School.

Canady was recognized for her work as a mentor at Estacado High School, Camp Blue Yonder advisor, Reese women's basketball coach and for several other activities.

Huston's volunteer efforts included support of youth bowling, the Make-A-Wish-Foundation and the squadron unit advisory council.

Larson was honored for her service:

as a field manager of the Youth for Understanding International Exchange, in her church and as a host family participant.

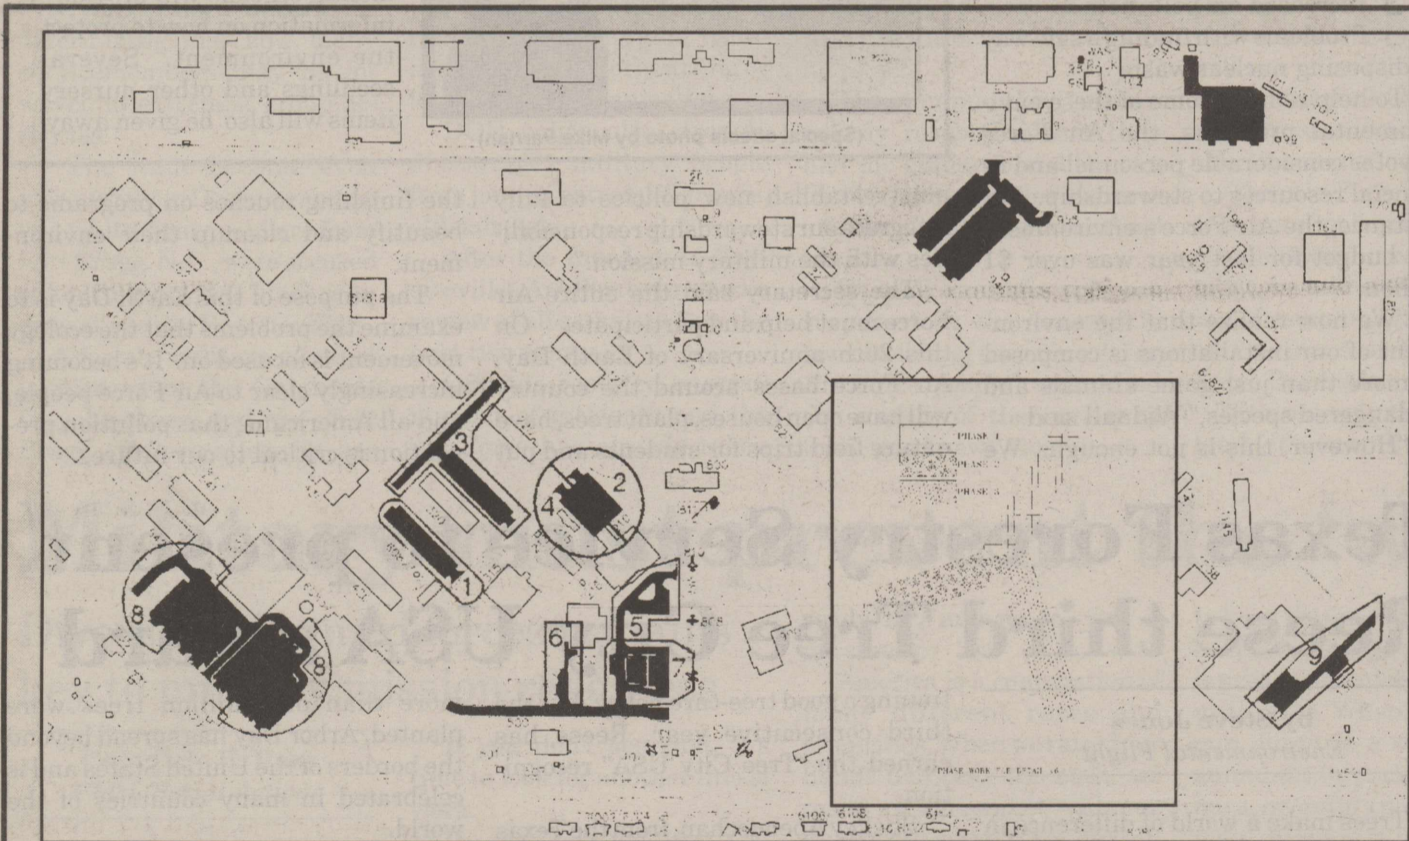

Preston has been a long-standing volunteer at the Reese Pharmacy.

Other volunteer of the year nominees, and their primary area of service, included:

Staff Sgt. Christian Prado, 64th Communications Squadron — Estacado High School; Airman 1st Class Danielle Bowlson, 64th CS — Reese Honor Guard; Tech Sgt. Carrie Dorrance, 64th CS — Lubbock Youth Symphony Orchestra; and Staff Sgt. Ronshella White, 64th Mission Support Squadron — multiple community programs.

Others are: reserve Lt. Col. Marian Getzelman — Reese Chapel; Cynthia Lubic — Reese Legal Office; Sheryl Owens — multiple community programs; Winston Boedeker, 64th CS — First Baptist Church; Ethel Klingaman — Reese Legal Office; Betty Fouts — 64th MDG; and Ruth Hardwick, 64th MSS — multiple community programs.

(Editor's note: The Roundup inadvertently switched the photos of Klingaman and Fouts in last week's issue.)

Repaving projects begin Monday

Several Reese parking lots and driveways will be repaved over the next four weeks.

A major resurfacing of the Reese Chapel and the Mission Support Squadron parking lots will begin on Monday. In order to provide adequate parking during the resurfacing, the lot will be repaved in three phases.

According to 64th Civil Engineer Squadron officials, the phased renovation will ensure that two-thirds of the parking spaces remain available throughout the project. Each phase will take four days to apply two coats of emulsion coal tar seal and allow curing time. The repaving is expected to be finished by May 17.

Phase I (see inset) will be Monday - May 3, Phase II will be May 6 - 10, and Phase III will be May 13 - 17.

Each of the other areas (see map) will be repaved as scheduled:

- 1 — Bldg. 421 parking lot, Tuesday - May 3
- 2 — Bldg. 210 parking lot (one-half), May 3 - 8
- 3 — Bldg. 320 parking lot and E Street from 2nd Street east, May 9 - 11
- 4 — Bldg. 215 parking lot (one-half), May 14 - 17
- 5 — Bldg. 210 parking lot, May 17 - 22
- 6 — Driveway from South Gilbert to Bldg. 310, May 21 - 24
- 7 — Driveway from South Gilbert to parking lot by Bldg. 310
- 8 — Commissary parking lot (one-half) and Reese Exchange parking lot (one-half), May 27-31
- 9 — Rear access road to 64th Medical Group, May 28 - 31

Cycling helmets now mandatory

Wearing bicycle helmets on Department of Defense installations is not only mandatory, but makes plain sense, Reese and Air Education and Training Command safety officials recently reiterated.

The goal of the DOD policy, which requires every cyclist to wear an approved helmet, is to enhance the safety of its riders in the traffic environment and to protect its most valuable resource — people.

More than 500,000 riders in the country visit medical emergency rooms annually for bicycle-related injuries, ranging from road rash to severe head injuries.

The mission of the 52nd Flying Training Squadron is to train student pilots in the airlift/tanker track of Phase III Joint Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training.

It was the first squadron to conduct joint pilot training in the Air Force.

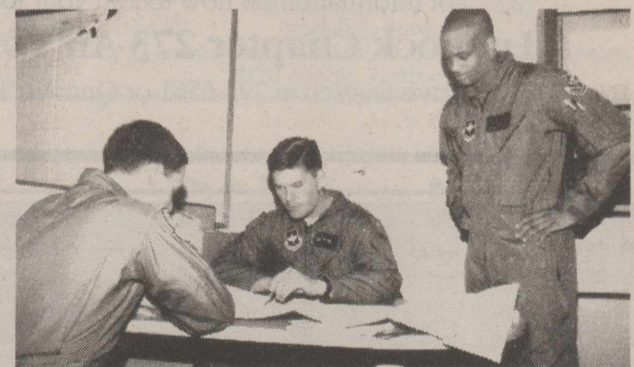

Utilizing the Beechcraft T-1A Jayhawk, students learn the importance of teamwork and the "flight crew" concept. It is the only military trainer in the world to incorporate state-of-the-art avionics/instrumentation and glass cockpit into pilot training.

The squadron programs, supervises, and flies 30 aircraft and 10 simulator sorties daily to train over 150 students yearly. The squadron has won the Air Education and Training Command T-1A Top Flight award for the third straight year for the best aircrew.

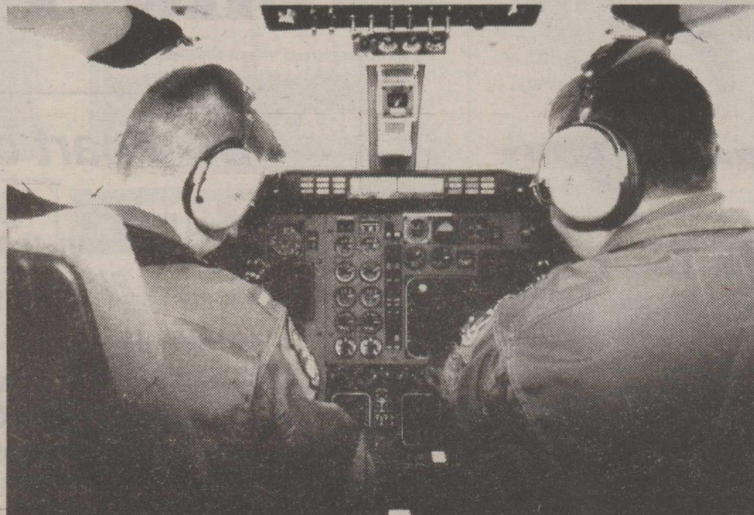

The T-1A is powered by two Pratt and Whitney turboprop engines, each developing 2,900 pounds of thrust. The aircraft weighs 11,000 pounds empty, with a maximum takeoff weight of 16,100 pounds. It has an operating altitude of 41,000 feet and a range of 2,100 miles.

News notes

52nd, 54th FTS change commanders

The 52nd and 54th Flying Training Squadron have slated change of command ceremonies. Lt. Col. Mark Gallagher will replace Lt. Col. Robert Herris as the commander of the 54th FTS, Tuesday at 9 a.m. at base operations. Lt. Col. LeeRoy Martin will replace Lt. Col. Mark Richardson III, as commander of the 52nd FTS, May 3 at 9 a.m. in the T-1A Hangar.

Limited medical services May 8

The 64th Medical Group will conduct annual medical readiness training on May 8. In-house medical services will be limited to emergency ambulance service and military sick call.

Happy Landings program set

Spouses of active-duty personnel who are interested in learning more about the Air Force way of life are invited to attend the Happy Landings program at the Reese Family Support Center, May 8. The program begins at 8:30 a.m. and runs through 2:30 p.m. Reservations are required. Call 3305 for additional information.

AFSA meeting scheduled

The local chapter of the Air Force Sergeants Association will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in Ruby's. The speaker will be Richard Broxson, Foundation Health marketing manager. He will discuss the TriCare health program. Other agenda items are the chapter budget and important legislative updates.

Dress for Success seminars set

The Reese Options Career Center will host a Dress for Success seminar for women May 14. A seminar for men will be held May 16. Both seminars are from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Call 3305 for more information.

Civilian SOS nominations sought

Nomination packages for civilian employees to attend Squadron Officer School in residence are due to the Air Force Personnel Center by May 30.

Candidates must be permanent GS-9, 11 or 12 employees with at least three years of continuous civil service by the beginning of fiscal year 1997. A secret security clearance is also required.

Civilians must meet the same physical fitness standards as military students. Call Nina Dailey at 3803 for additional information.

Uniforms required

Military personnel are reminded that they are required by regulation to wear the appropriate military uniform when attending military appointments. This includes final outprocessing appointments.

ROCC slates Career Planning Seminar

The Reese Options Career Center will be offering a Career Planning Seminar May 9 from 4:30 to 6 p.m. The workshop will be held in the family support center classroom. For more information call Pam Appell or Kay Dyer at 3305.

Micro jet

The Bud Light Micro Jet, the world's smallest jet-powered aircraft, will fly at the Reese Air Show May 18 and 19. The micro jet, which weighs only 1,000 pounds fully loaded with fuel and pilot, can fly up to 350 miles-per-hour and has a climb rate of 3,000 feet per minute. Several other civilian aerial demonstration teams are also scheduled to perform at the air show. The featured attraction will be the May 18 performance of the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds.

Auto skills center tests new hours

The auto skills center will be testing new operating hours on Thursdays. The test will begin this Thursday and run through the end of May. The new hours will be from noon to 8 p.m. The purpose of the test is to gain information on patron demand for later operating hours during the normal week. For more information call 6590.

Shop smart tour slated

A "shop smart" commissary tour is scheduled for May 4 at 8:30 a.m. Learn how to read food labels, plan strategies for healthy meals, find foods rich in antioxidant vitamins and calculate total calories from fat. To register call Master Sgt. James Koranda at 3860.

AF accelerates chevron wear date

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- Air Force has accelerated the mandatory wear date for the new enlisted chevron from Oct. 1, 1999, to Oct. 1, 1997.

The original date coincided with the mandatory wear date of the new uniform. But since sales of the old chevron have tapered off, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman agreed to accelerate the new chevron wear date by two years, said personnel officials here.

When Air Force introduced the new service dress uniform in February 1994, enlisted members could only wear it with the new chevron. Air Force changed that policy in November 1994, however, to allow people to wear the new chevron on the old uniform coat.

"Since then, and especially since last August when new chevrons became available through the supply system, people pretty have much stopped getting the old chevrons," said a personnel spokeswoman.

The new chevrons have bolder stripes than the old chevrons. They also make it easier to identify senior enlisted members -- master sergeants, senior master sergeants and chief master sergeants have stripes above and below the star. Senior airmen and sergeants both will wear the new E-4 chevron, which has three stripes with a star.

People promoted during this year's promotion cycle should be able to get the new chevrons through their unit supply system, the spokeswoman said. The new stripes also are available at military clothing sales stores.

Enlisted awards banquet theme contest

Plans are underway for the 1996 Enlisted Awards Banquet scheduled for Nov. 23, 1996. Send your theme suggestions along with your name, organization, date and daytime phone number to Senior Airman Katenna Edwards at 64th CPTF/FMA. The banquet committee will select the best theme and award a $100 savings bond to the winner. Entry deadline is May 7.

Private weapons firing scheduled

The base firing range will be open for privately owned weapons firing on Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Call the firing range at 3848 for reservations.

American flag disposal

What will you do with your American flag when it is no longer serviceable? AFPAM 36-2241 states a torn flag may be professionally mended, but a badly torn or tattered flag should be destroyed.

When the flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, destroy it in a dignified manner, preferably by burning.

Reese Village residents are requested to turn their flag in to the housing office for a replacement flag. Organizations requesting the proper disposal of a U.S. flag should call Staff Sgt. Kip Huston at 3948 or drop it off at Bldg. 500.

Team members of the 54th FTS intramural volleyball championship team.

54th FTS powers past 64th MSS for intramural volleyball crown

by Senior Airman Tim Dempsey
Sports editor

To win the intramural volleyball championship, the 54th Flying Training Squadron had to win three straight matches Tuesday at the fitness center.

And win it did!

The 54th FTS captured the intramural volleyball crown by spiking the 64th Mission Support Squadron 15-3, 15-5 in the final game.

To get to the title game the team had to beat the 64th Medical Group and beat the 64th MSS in the first of two games.

The 54th FTS started the night with a close game by beating the 64th MDG 14-8 when time expired. In the second game the team was running on jet fuel as it dissected the 64th MDG 15-1 to win the match and advance back to the winners bracket.

The 54th FTS never let off the throttle as it soared past the 64th MSS 15-3 in the first game. The team then blasted the 64th MSS in the second game, 15-1, to win the match. The victory forced another match with the 64th MSS since it was the only team to go through the winners bracket undefeated in the double-elimination tournament.

The tone of the championship match was set by long volleys, power spikes and blocked spikes as both teams battled for the title.

In the first match, the 64th MSS jumped out to a 2-0 lead. However, the overpowering spike blocking ability of the 54th FTS proved to be too much for the 64th MSS. The 54th FTS, playing on adrenaline, came back to take the first game 15-3.

In the second game, the 54th FTS jumped out to an early 11-0 lead before the 64th MSS came back by scoring three points. The 64th MSS then closed the gap to 12-5. Finally, the 54th FTS nailed all three last points to secure the crown, 15-5.

AF Bowlers Score High at Armed Forces Championships

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE (AFNS) — The 1996 Armed Forces Bowling Championships were held at Ft. Jackson, Columbia, S.C., April 6-12. Air Force bowlers scored high marks as they competed against top Army, Navy, and Marine bowlers.

Maj. Mark Seifert, Scott AFB, Ill., placed 1st in the Men's All Events competition with a 205 average. "It's outstanding that the Air Force is able to send athletes to this type of competition," said Seifert. "It brings the services together for some friendly rivalry. In today's environment of joint services, I think it's a real achievement to have all these bowlers compete against each other."

Seifert teamed with Master Sgt. Steven Bergan, also from Scott AFB, and secured 1st place in the Men's Doubles Event with a 212.9 joint average.

The Air Force women also bowled well. Tech. Sgt. Christina Coy, from Brooks AFB, Texas, place 3rd in the Women's All Events competition with a 188.5 average. Coy teamed with Staff Sgt. Karen Glacken, also from Brooks AFB, and took 3rd place in the Women's Doubles Events with a 189.8 joint average.

Totaling all players' scores, the Air Force Women's Team ranked second behind the Army team, with a 26,542 pin count.

In the Mixed Doubles Events, Seifert teamed with Capt. Patricia Fox, Tyndall AFB, Fla., and took 3rd place with a 194.6 joint average. The Air Force Men's Team finished in 3rd place overall, with a total pin count of 28,138. The Navy men placed 1st and Army 2nd.

Technical Sgt. Coy and Senior Airman Robert Sense, from Grand Forks AFB, N.D., qualified to participate in the Team USA competition. This event is for amateurs only and is scheduled from August 15-22 at St. Louis, Mo.
