19th AF commander to visit Reese Monday

Maj. Gen. Thomas West, 19th Air Force commander, will make his first official visit to Reese Monday.

The general, who assumed command of 19th AF on Nov. 15, 1995, will be here through Tuesday morning.

"We are excited about showing General West the best pilot training wing in the command," said Col. Randy Gelwix, 64th FTW commander.

"We have great people doing outstanding work here and this visit will give my boss a chance to see that personally," said Gelwix.

During the visit General West is expected to tour base facilities; receive briefings on topics such as joint specialized undergraduate pilot training, base closure and environmental restoration; and receive flight training missions in Reese training aircraft. He is also scheduled to discuss issues with Reese people.

JSUPT to transfer to Vance AFB

New joint flying training squadron will activate July 1

The Air Force's joint specialized undergraduate pilot training program will transfer from Reese to Vance Air Force Base, Okla., according to Air Education and Training Command officials.

The transfer is mandated by Reese's scheduled closure in 1997. AETC officials said the 8th Flying Training Squadron will activate at Vance as a joint training squadron on July 1, 1996, and fly the T-37B Tweet aircraft.

Navy instructor pilots currently at Reese will begin transferring to Vance in March, 1996. The first Navy students are expected to attend class 97-06, which begins March 12, 1996.

Joint T-1A Jayhawk pilot training with the 52nd FTS at Reese will begin drawing down in September, 1996. The 32nd FTS at Vance will begin receiving Navy instructors by late 1996, with the first Navy students entering with class 97-06.

According to 64th Operations Group officials, 22 Navy and Marine Corps aviators have successfully completed the T-37 phase and 19 have graduated through the T-1A phase of JSUPT here since June, 1994.

Pilots in the exchange program are paving the way for the introduction of a common training aircraft with the Joint Primary Aircraft Training System program, scheduled for delivery in 1999.

Mentoring: Another way to show you care

by Col. Randy Gelwix
64th FTW Commander

Think back to that exciting time in your life when you were learning how to drive. Before you went "solo" ... driving by yourself ... there were probably many people helping to train you to handle the job.

You received training in how to operate the vehicle itself and on the rules of the road; in fact, you had to pass a written and a driving test to show that you were capable of acting as a responsible driver before you were licensed.

Quality Air Force

General Boles reviews QAF, eyes future improvements

by Gen. Billy J. Boles
AETC Commander

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AETCNS) — I recently had the pleasure of attending the annual Quality Symposium at Montgomery, Ala., and participated in several events and discussions.

The feedback from the symposium provided a common theme: it's now time to review the results from our efforts implementing Quality Air Force and take the appropriate action.

During the Air Force Quality Council meeting, Air Force senior leadership listened to a review of each command's progress implementing QAF.

The review included feedback from people across the Air Force on QAF education, QAF awards, QAF criteria — our template for improvement — and QAF assessments.

Some of these reviews have already started.

First is the QAF reengineering study of current organizations and their roles in QAF implementation. The AF Management Engineering Agency is leading this effort with help from major

For those who need to sign up for QAF education, make sure you bring real-world problems to the classroom. This approach will increase our return on investment in our QAF education efforts and help us integrate continuous improvement in our daily operations.

General Boles

command and wing level experts from the QAF, manpower, and inspector general functional areas.

Another ongoing review is led by the Air Force Inspector General. This review is taking a hard look at QAF assessments and the Baldrige-based QAF criteria.

As Air Force people move from command to command, there is a lot of variation in grading and assessment methodology, resulting in confusion and inconsistent focus on compliance.

They are addressing this area and representatives from every command, direct reporting unit, and forward operating agency were unanimous in their views of compliance as an integral part of quality.

These study groups will present their findings and recommendations to the Air Force Quality Council in the spring and we will follow shortly thereafter with command policy.

In the meantime, we need to sharpen our focus on "payback" in quality efforts in AETC in two areas: QAF education and continuous improvement efforts. Many of our people receive QAF education during accessions, technical training, flying training, and Professional Military Education. Many others receive this QAF education again at our AETC bases.

We need to eliminate redundancy by documenting training the first time. To help in this area, our command QAF office will distribute new Air Force procedures for QAF education documentation within the next few weeks.

For those who need to sign up for QAF education, make sure you bring real-world problems to the classroom. Sign up for training in groups and contact your instructors well ahead of your class date, and provide them a description of your toughest group problems.

They can help you learn how to use the appropriate tools at the appropriate times during class, and later with follow-up calls.

This approach will increase our return on investment in our QAF education efforts and help us integrate continuous improvement in

That leads to a second area for increased payback: sharing our successes. If you can improve results in a work area common to all AETC bases, make sure you let the other bases know how you did it.

Whether it's greater customer satisfaction, improved safety, or dollars saved, there's great potential to multiply those great results 10-fold if you spread the word through your QAF offices and headquarters staff.

We're doing the same at headquarters. We've received information on every team that competed for the Chief of Staff of the Air Force Team Quality Award at the Quality Symposium and will provide points of contact for each team to our headquarters staff and all base QAF offices.

The QAF study groups reporting to senior leadership in the spring are a sign of the times — reviewing results and adapting to changes to ensure the highest standards of mission accomplishment.

Let's lead the way in AETC by focusing on payback in our command QAF efforts.

Pressure of closure does not excuse domestic violence

by Maj. James Moody
Staff Judge Advocate

As base closure nears, one of the problems we will have to face head on is the potential for domestic violence.

It often happens that the pressures of a closing base result in tensions and frustrations which some personnel deal with through abusing those closest to them.

One recent example is that of SrA Gregory Kelly, who was convicted in December at a Special CourtMartial for two specifications of assault upon his wife. At the trial, Kelly pled guilty to having struck his wife on the body while visiting her family in Tennessee and to having repeatedly kicked her in the stomach until she lost consciousness while in their on-base residence here at Reese.

After accepting the plea of guilty, the military judge sentenced Kelly to be reduced to the grade of E-2 and to be confined for four months. The maximum punishment at a Special Court Martial is reduction to E-1, forfeiture of two-thirds pay per month for six months, confinement for six months, and a Bad Conduct Discharge.

This case should be a reminder to all personnel of the consequences of translating stress into violence. A conviction by a court-martial is a federal conviction.

There are too many options available for people who are having personal problems—behavioral medicine, the chapel, the legal assistance program, family support, to name only a few—to allow oneself to step over the line into criminal conduct.

Contact the legal office at 3505 for more information.

Be cautious of high-pressure fund-raisers

by Eugene Ronningen
AFOSI special agent

You're enjoying a pleasant evening at home when the telephone rings or there's a knock at the door.

Instead of a friend, relative or someone from work, the person says she or he represents a police, firefighter or some other association seeking your charitable pledge.

According to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, not all such associations should be considered suspect because "most have been involved in activities that have helped the police force, firefighters, and the public."

However, there have been instances in the U. S. where people have been duped into giving to nonexistent charities or to those that collect donations with the majority of funds going toward fundraising expenses.

How do you make an educated decision?

The Council of Better Business Bureaus offers the following suggestions:

- Always ask questions?
- What will your money specifically support? Does it support local police, firefighter or other organizations (state, national, etc.)?
- How much of your money will actually go to the police, firefighters, etc., and how much goes to promotion, overhead telemarketing costs, administrators, etc.?

Be careful if you are told all the money is going to the organization, because most have at least some fund-raising expenses.

□ Find out if all, part or none of your contribution may be deductible under federal income tax laws. Just because an organization is tax exempt does not mean that your contribution is automatically tax deductible.

□ Ask for written materials describing the group's programs and finances. Charities with nothing to hide will encourage your interest.

□ Be wary of promises or suggestions that your donation will give you "special treatment" from your police or firefighters.

In addition to the above, the Council of Better Business Bureaus provides the following Holiday giving tips:

- Do not give cash. Write out a check to the charity's full official name, not to any individual.
- Look at the name carefully. Some charity names sound the same.

There are many charities raising funds for similar causes.

□ Do not be pressured to give money on the spot. The charity that needs your money today will welcome it tomorrow.

□ Lastly, be especially wary of anyone who supplies vague answers to your questions, gives excuses why they can't send you written materials, or persistently contacts you even after you've said no.

If you want more information on a charity contact the Better Business Bureau (763-0459) or the local charity registration office of the Texas Attorney General's office (747-5238).

If you suspect possible criminal activity, get as many details as possible and report those to the security police at 3333 and the AFOSI office at ext 3414.

If you live off-base report it to the local civil police.

Texas increases speed limits

With the recent changes to the Federal Highway Act of 1995, the posting of highway speed limits is the responsibility of the individual states to implement.

The current State of Texas traffic rules are as follows:

- During daylight hours the posted speed limit on divided four lane roadways and interstate highways is 70 mph. The speed limit drops to 65 mph at night.
- During daylight hours the posted speed limit on all other state highways is 60 mph. The speed limit drops to 55 mph at night.
- The primary thing to remember is that the posted speed limits are designed for ideal driving conditions.

Three Reese medical and legal officers were notified of selection for promotion to the next higher grade here Thursday. Selected for promotion are: from right, Maj. James Moody, 64th FTW Staff Judge Advocate; Lt. Col. (Dr.) Richard Rowe, 64th Medical Group; and Capt. (Dr.) Dean Schultz, 64th MDG.

January paychecks to see at least 2 percent increase

Mid-January military and late-January civilian Air Force paychecks will be fatter for everyone, according to Reese and Air Education and Training Command comptroller officials.

All will receive a pay raise even if the 1996 Department of Defense Authorization Bill is not signed soon.

"If the bill is not signed, the pay raise for military people, which will be reflected in their Jan. 12 paycheck, will amount to a 2 percent increase in base pay, basic allowance for subsistence and basic allowance for quarters," said Col. Rod Wood, Air Education and Training Command comp'roller.

"When the bill is signed, the raise will reflect a 2.4 percent increase in base pay and BAS and a 5.2 percent increase in BAQ," said Wood.

"Once all the legislative hold-ups are resolved and the bill becomes law, the raise will most likely be retroactive to Jan. 1. However," cautioned the colonel, "we won't know until the bill is signed whether it will be retroactive."

CONUS civilians will receive a minimum 2.4 percent increase in salary in their Jan. 26 paycheck, plus any applicable locality pay regardless of whether the 1996 Department of Defense Authorization Bill is signed. "That's because civilian pay raises are included in separate legislation which has been approved," said Wood.

What difference will it make to military paychecks when the Defense Authorization Bill is signed into law?

"An airman first class with three years service, with dependents, will receive about $33 per month more until the bill is signed, and about $49 per month after the full pay raise is implemented," said Wood.

"A captain with eight years service, with dependents, will see an overall increase of about $76 with a 2 percent raise, and $108 with the full pay raise."

Mentoring expected to pay dividends for Reese, AETC

Now, imagine a system where if you can ride a bicycle it is assumed that you can drive a car. The only way you become a better driver is through feedback on how you are doing—when you hit the curb, you know that you messed up. Doesn't make much sense, does it?

In practice, though, the military system of advancing personnel into positions of increasing responsibility often works just this way; personnel are placed into positions of responsibility based on past performance, but with little formal training on how to do their new job. One piece of the solution to this problem is "mentoring."

According to Webster, a "mentor" is an instructor or guide. In the military, a mentor is a supervisor who cares enough about his or her subordinates to begin preparing them early for their next job. Mentoring takes some forward-thinking on the part of the supervisor; like any teacher, a mentor's efforts may not bear fruit for months or years.

In our business, mentoring can take many forms. It can be a formal training session where the supervisor and subordinate discuss a particular aspect of the responsibilities the subordinate could expect in his next job.

Mentoring can be a pop-up situation where the supervisor brings the subordinate into his or her thought process in handling a daily situation. A third form might be the subordinate "shadowing" his or her supervisor to meetings or other duties, then discussing how questions or other situations were handled.

The number of ways a leader can be a mentor is only limited by the leader's imagination and creativity.

You may say, "We already have mandatory feedback. What's the difference?" Feedback is based on a person's present duties, and is only partially useful in preparing that person for increased responsibility. As I've pointed out, feedback on bike-riding won't help much when you are dumped in the left seat of a car for the first time. As supervisors, we need to make a conscious effort to train our replacements—we need to do more than just give feedback—we need to be good mentors.

You'll soon see a policy letter from me with an accompanying wing instruction outlining the 64th FTW's mentoring program. In many cases, the only change for supervisors will be some minor documentation requirements to record your mentoring.

For supervisors not so familiar with mentoring there will be some additional effort involved, but the results will be well worth the work.

Our goal is a more efficient and lethal military. Leaders who use mentoring to show how much they care for their people, will make it pay off in spades in years to come.

Youth Need Helping Hand To Get Involved

(NAPS)—Is America's community life in trouble?

Many observers point to a number of disturbing trends. Civic groups, service clubs, fraternal organizations, even parent-teacher associations are struggling to maintain their memberships in many parts of the country. Since 1973, the number of Americans who say they've attended a public meeting in the past year on town or school affairs has fallen from 22 to 13 percent. Municipal and school elections in some areas are drawing less than ten percent of eligible voters. The number of hours Americans spend volunteering dropped by one billion from just 1991 to 1993.

There is, however, good news as well. According to a recent survey commissioned by The Prudential, today's teenagers believe strongly in the importance of community involvement. Ninety-five percent of high school students interviewed said it's important to volunteer for community activities, and nearly two-thirds said individual responsibility—not government programs—is the way to solve community problems.

"There's an urgent need across our nation today for greater citizen involvement in local, community affairs," says Prudential Chairman and CEO Arthur F. Ryan. "And our best hope may lie in reinforcing the very positive attitudes we found among young Americans, and helping to convert these attitudes into a life-long habit of community involvement."

The Prudential survey also indicated teens often don't know how to get involved in community activities. They need help in first identifying the sheer breadth of volunteer opportunities that exist in most communities for young people—in health care, environmental projects, helping the less fortunate, substance abuse programs, crime prevention, recreation, the arts, animal care—and where to go to learn about them. They need help figuring out what kind of volunteer activities would be best suited to their own skills and interests. Finally, they need help in understanding the basic principles of successful volunteering.

The Prudential Spirit of Community initiative was launched to help address these needs. The initiative includes a nationwide awards program for outstanding examples of community service by young people, a community youth leadership training program, a "Catch the Spirit" booklet of information and ideas on how youngsters can get involved in community activities, and more.

TIPS ON

Staying In Touch

(NAPS)—If, like most travelers, you like to "phone home" from the road, you may find the results of a recent survey something to talk about.

The survey, commissioned by AT&T, found that frequent travelers call their office three times more than they call home, though it's their personal moments on the phone that are the most remembered. Here are a few more findings:

- One-third of the respondents said calling home is the most important reason for making long-distance calls. Women are more likely than men to phone their families (35 percent versus 28 percent).

- Travelers keep in touch in a variety of ways: 90 percent use the telephone, 10 percent named cellular telephones, six percent use personal computers and four percent use fax machines.

- While traveling, survey respondents reported that their calls are placed from: hotel rooms (98 percent), the airport (78 percent), an office (52 percent), cars (34 percent), restaurants (30 percent), and planes (20 percent).

- The average business traveler makes 20 long-distance telephone calls per trip while away.

TRIPS

ing In Touch

A recent survey discovered frequent travelers average over 20 long distance calls per trip.

using in the future. Some of their suggestions:

- A plastic card embedded with the person's fingerprint that can be used at pay phones, eliminating the need to memorize calling card access numbers.

- Dick Tracy-type two-way walkie-talkie radio that uses satellite technology to make long-distance calls.

- A computer chip that, installed in a portable phone, would allow telephone calls to find him anywhere in the world.

For people looking to save money while they travel, customers should always remember to call 1 800 CALL ATT and to use their AT&T True Choice™ Calling Card.

BTZ stripes

64th MDG transfers OB/GYN care off base

In association with the implementation of TriCare, the 64th Medical Group Obstetrical/Gynecology Clinic will no longer be providing obstetrical medical care.

According to Staff Sgt. Lynne Davenport, NCOIC of the OB/GYN clinic, pregnancy tests can still be obtained, providing the patient is at least 10 days passed missed menses. An appointment for a pregnancy test should be scheduled through the appointment desk with either the primary care manager or the OB/GYN clinic.

If the test results are positive the patient will be referred for downtown care.

Pregnant active-duty members will process referral through the 64th MDG Alternative Care Office and will receive all OB care at the Texas Tech Medical Plaza, located next to University Medical Center.

Active-duty OB patients will be given paperwork to see public health and to generate a profile change along with the OB referral sheet.

These forms can be obtained through the assigned PCM or OB/GYN clinic. Family member referral paperwork will be processed by the TriCare office.

Prenatal vitamins and iron will be prescribed by the downtown provider. These prescriptions can be filled by the Reese pharmacy, providing the medication is in stock.

"Once referral has been written to begin care downtown, OB patients must decide on a provider immediately," said Davenport. "This will ensure a provider has been designated to give medical care should problems or questions develop."

If any problems or questions arise during the pregnancy OB patients must call their OB provider directly for advice.

Davenport said the postpartum exam should be scheduled with the provider who delivered the baby, especially if a C-section has been done.

To optimize a future baby's health, a woman should make an appointment through the 64th MDG appointment desk before attempting to become pregnant so as to discuss diet, exercise, vitamins and general health.

For more information call the OB/GYN clinic at 3242 or 3593.

T-38 IP becomes BEET chief

Getzelman

Lt. Col. Hal Getzelman, an IP in the 54th Flying Training Squadron, assumed duties as the Base Exercise Evaluation Team chief here in December.

Getzelman is a command pilot with nearly 3,500 flying hours. He is a veteran of Desert Storm with 78 combat hours. He has flown F-15, F-106, T-38, T-37 and T-33 aircraft.

A graduate of the Air Command Staff College and Squadron Officer School, he holds a master's degree in space operations and a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

He graduated from the Air Force Academy in 1976 and earned his pilot wings at Vance AFB, Okla., in 1978.

The colonel was the Quality Advisor, Headquarters Air Combat Command, Plans Directorate, Langley AFB, Va., before coming to Reese in 1994.

Tax change requires DOD to include non-taxable income on W-2 forms

The Defense Finance and Accounting Service will begin reporting non-taxable earned income on military member's W-2s.

The change is in response to a change in public law which now requires the Department of Defense to report Basic Allowance for Quarters, Basic Allowance for Subsistence and Combat Zone Tax Exclusion as earned income.

These non-taxable allowances will be reflected on every member's W-2, however, not every member will need to use this figure when filing their taxes.

Member's claiming the Earned Income Tax Credit will be most effected by this change. The amount will be shown in block 13 of the W-2 and includes both cash and in-kind benefits the member received.

For members claiming EITC, the figures in blocks 1 and 13 of the W-2 must be added to determine the total earned income.

Military members may claim EITC if they have a qualified child and neither's adjusted gross income is more than $24,396.

Military members with more than one qualified child may have adjusted gross income up to $26,673 and still qualify for EITC.

Dependents must meet relationship, residency, age, and identification requirements to qualify.

TriCare Update

by 1st Lt. Ward Hinger
Reese TriCare Director

There still seems to be some confusion as to how a TriCare Prime member seeks urgent or emergency medical attention.

An emergency is defined as a sudden and unexpected medical condition or the worsening of a condition that threatens loss of life, limb, or sight and requires immediate treatment. If you experience a medical emergency, proceed to the nearest emergency room available. If you are treated for an emergency and/or hospitalized as a result, without the involvement of your primary care manager, you or a family member must contact your PCM within 24 hrs of receiving care. If you are outside the Lubbock area please call a health care finder at 1-800-406-2832. The Health Care Finder will be a crucial link between you and your PCM as well as assist the facility rendering the care with billing procedures.

Urgent care is defined as medical services which are required for illness or injury that would not result in further disability or death if not treated within 24 hrs. If you are in the Lubbock area and are in need of urgent care please call your PCM to make an appointment. If your PCM is unable to see you within 24 hrs, the PCM will provide authorization for you to be seen by another physician. If you are outside the Lubbock area and are in need of urgent care please call a health care finder. Failure to obtain authorization for all non-referred/non-emergency services will result in a point-of-service option and you will be responsible for an annual deductible of $300 per individual or $600 per family and subject to 50 percent of the cost share of the CHAMPUS maximum allowable charge.

For additional information or assistance, stop by the TriCare Service Center (Bldg 1300, Rm #342) or call 1-800-406-2832. If your concern is not remedied in a satisfactory manner please call 885-3521.

Former LMLM employee receives commission

Former Lockheed Martin Logistics Management mechanic Mike Wood received his commission as a 2nd Lt. in the Air Force at ceremonies conducted at the Officers' Training School, Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. on Nov. 22, 1995.

Wood, who was also prior enlisted Air Force, served as a mechanic in the Aero Repair and Flightline sections of Reese's T-38 Aircraft Maintenance Unit.

The commissioning oath was administered by retired Air Force Col. Dave Dietsch, the contract manager for the aircraft maintenance contract here. Wood received his degree from Texas Tech in accounting. His wife, Lea, is also a former Lockheed Martin employee, having held several positions including Mr. Dietsch's executive secretary.

Lieutenant Wood will enter the accounting and finance career field. His first assignment will take the couple to Los Angeles Air Force Base, Calif.

A visit to the financial services office is crucial for updating entitlements such as hostile fire pay, imminent danger pay and combat zone tax exclusion. Changes to your leave and earnings statement address may also be made so your LES goes to your home address instead of your squadron during your deployment.

DFAS cashier office changes hours

The Defense Accounting Cashier office will be closed for lunch due to reduction in cash payments effective Monday. The new hours of operation are from 7:30 to 11:15 a.m. and reopens from 12:45 to 4:15 p.m.

Weingarten Rights

One of the rights provided to bargaining unit employees under the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 deals with representation of employees during investigatory interviews. This right is known as the Weingarten Right and is as follows: "The exclusive representative (local union) must be given the opportunity to be represented at any examination of a unit employee by a representative of the agency (Air Force) in connection with an investigation, if: the employee reasonably believes that the examination may result in disciplinary action against the employee, and the employee requests representation." Questions may be resolved by calling the employee management relations section in CPO at 3974.

CPO hosts lunch

The civilian personnel flight will host a lunch Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. The subject covered will be long term care. When civilian employees become unable to care for themselves, neither medical insurance or MEDICARE will pay for long term care. For more information or reservations call 3803 or 3804.

64th SPS, 64th MDG-A lead leagues into season stretch

With three weeks left in the intramural basketball regular season here, 11 teams are battling for eight spots in a double-elimination playoff tournament.

The 64th Security Police Squadron and the 64th Medical Group-A remain undefeated.

The 64th SPS (6-0), top team in the American League, will face stiff competition Wednesday at 5 p.m. when it meets the 52nd Flying Training Squadron (5-2). The 52nd FTS is tied for second place in the AL with the combined team of the 64th Communications Squadron and 64th Services Squadron.

The 64th CS/SVS is slated to meet the second place team in the National League, Lockheed Martin Logistics Management (6-2), Tuesday at 8 p.m. The 64th CS/SVS will play an important game against the 35th FTS Thursday at 7 p.m. The 35th FTS (3-3) is still in the playoff hunt with a 3-3 record.

However, the 35th FTS has to play the 64th MDG-A (6-0), who is on top of the NL, Tuesday at 7 p.m. The 64th MDG-A will meet the 64th Logistics Squadron Wednesday at 8 p.m. The 64th LS (5-2) is a half game behind LMLM in the NL standings.

The 54th FTS, 64th Operations Support Squadron, Navy and 64th MDG-B are all still in the running for a wildcard playoff slot.

The 54th FTS (4-4) will try to sink the 64th MDG-B (2-4) out of the playoff picture Tuesday at 6 p.m. The 64th MDG-B will also play LMLM Wednesday at 7 p.m. and the 52nd FTS Thursday at 8 p.m. The 64th OSS (4-4) will lock heads against Navy (3-4) Wednesday at 7 p.m. and play LMLM the following night at 5 p.m. Navy will look for a way to stop the 64th SPS Thursday at 6 p.m.

The 64th Civil Engineer Squadron (0-12) and the 64th Mission Support Squadron (1-11) has dropped out of the league.
