

LETTER FROM MISSOURI.

Since my last letter three superannuated members of the Southwest Missouri Conference have been transferred from the roll of honor to the roll of rest in the mansions of the blessed—J. M. Proctor, W. M. Prottzman and L. R. Downing.

James Madison Proctor was born in Jessamine County, Ky., January 8, 1823; licensed to exhort in 1842; to preach in 1847; joined the St. Louis Conference in 1846; married in 1850, and died at his home in Buffalo, Mo., September 18, 1902. He reached the honored age of four-score years, less three months and twenty days. He published the tidings of salvation to his fellow-men for sixty years, and had an appointment to preach the Sunday following his funeral. "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith, and much people was added unto the Lord" by his ministry. He was esteemed by all who knew him as one of the very best of men. He rests from his labors, and "his works follow him."

William McKendree Prottzman was born in Marietta, Ohio, February 19, 1817; joined the Church in Wood County, Va., in 1842, and was licensed to preach the same year. He joined the Kentucky Conference in 1847; was transferred to the St. Louis Conference in 1850; married in 1851, and died in Boonville, Mo., October 27, 1902, aged 85 years, less three months and twenty-two days. Some of the papers say he died in his 88th year, some in his 89th. These statements are not correct, as he did not quite complete his 88th. He was a local preacher six years and an itinerant fifty-four. He ranked easily among the great men of the Church. For twenty-two consecutive years he was Secretary of his conference, and no conference ever had a better one. He was three times a member of the General Conference, and took a most active part in its work. Save Bishop McTyeire, there was no better Church lawyer among us. He was also a correct parliamentarian. Bro. Prottzman was also a great preacher. He had only a few superiors in the pulpit.

Lewis R. Downing was born in Lincoln County, Mo., October 8, 1832; joined the Church in 1849; was licensed to preach in 1853; joined the Missouri Conference in 1857, and died in Kansas City, Mo., October 31, 1902, aged 70 years and 23 days; date of marriage not given. Bro. Downing was a versatile man, a voracious reader, a writer of no mean ability, and probably had the most extensive vocabulary of any preacher in our State. He preached forty-nine years—twenty-four in the local ranks, twenty-two effective itinerant, and three in the superannuated relation.

The wives of all these men are yet living.

Bro. Proctor and Prottzman were both members of our Veteran Preachers' Association. They were present and assisted in its organization, the latter acting as chairman. This occurred in Kansas City two years ago, and was the last conference any of these brethren ever attended. Of the twenty-seven veterans then enrolled, nine—one-third—have since died. These brethren all ranked well and wrought well, and have now gone home to enjoy the "rest that remains to the people of God."

"One by one we cross the river."

Thinking of these noble men brings me to think of another fact worthy of a place in this letter, which is: Of the six men who have wrought on the tripod of the Nashville Christian Advocate during the last quarter of a century, three of them were Missourians; two of them were born here and the other came when only a small boy.

Then the journal of the last General Conference shows that Missourians were conspicuous as chairmen and secretaries of committees in that body.

We have also produced two Bishops, and have more in training.

Now we want and I hereby nominate St. Louis as the proper place for the next General Conference to meet, as it will meet on the centennial of Methodism in the State.

W. S. WOODARD.

FROM ARIZONA.

As you published the letter I sent you, it encourages me to write again. At my time of life it gives me great joy to know that I can, in any way, contribute to the pleasures of others. I have been breathing in this earthly house a little over eighty-two years. When I am removed out of it, I have the blessed assurance of a building not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. It has been about forty-seven years since I was appointed, by the proper authorities, as an exhorter in the M. E. Church, South, and was ordained L. E. by Bishop Keener at San Marcos about thirty years ago. Am still glad to preach the good old gospel whenever opportunity offers. I have resided in this (Salt River) valley nearly sixteen years, and have noted many changes in that time. When I first came here the Indians used to come in town clad only in their savage nakedness—men, women, boys and girls. There are several reservations not far from Phoenix, and the Indians could then be seen in town, any day, sitting or lying along the sidewalks, women with their "jupones" and the men stretched on the ground asleep. A city ordinance was afterwards passed forbidding Indians in town without clothing on, and for several years the women bought goods by the yards—bright-colored calico or red bandannas—in which they wrapped themselves, while the men wore common "overalls" and knitted undershirts for full-dress occasions. Now all that is changed, and the Indians appear upon our streets clad very much as other people are.

The United States Government maintains an Indian school near our town, where they have eighty acres of ground and numerous fine, large brick buildings. There are about eight hundred boys and girls in the school, who are well-instructed and well cared for, and are giving eminent satisfaction to the teachers in their improvement and development. Religious services are held every Sunday afternoon in the chapel attached to the school. As they are taught English, the pupils all seem to fully comprehend the sermons, and the congregational singing—all Indians—is fine. The school has an excellent band of music, and are often employed to play in Phoenix and elsewhere. Many of them exhibit much musical ability and natural talent for that and other desirable things. They seem to comprehend the necessity of the Christian religion, and the obligations of the Church. Only last Sunday seven of these students were received into full membership of the M. E. Church.

Chinese are also plentiful in our midst, some of whom, from time to time, are brought into the Church. The Indians, after completing the course at the Industrial School, make excellent workmen and domestic help. They are employed extensively by our citizens, especially as house girls and coachmen. Each pupil is taught some particular trade, some of them becoming very proficient. The grounds are lighted by electricity, and electric railway connects the school with the city.

Old Indians can nowadays be seen returning to their reservations in wagons, carrying with them rocking chairs, bedsteads, sewing machines, cook-stoves, etc., the same as civilized people, and some of them even wear hats, showing that they, too, are partakers of the benefits offered by civilization.

A few Sundays ago, as we were returning from church, we were met upon the way by an old Indian with long, flowing locks, who rushed forward with a happy countenance, and, taking us by the hand, extended, showing he wished to shake hands with each one of the party, in turn. Seeing by our manner that we did not quite understand the reason for this demonstration of Indian friendliness, he instantly and eagerly produced a little, old, much-worn hymn book, which he patted tenderly on the back as he pathetically raised his eyes above. Passing the book reverently to us, he again grasped our hands more fervently than before, thus making plain to us what words could not have told. He could not understand our English speech nor we his Indian tongue, yet, by quick perception, he was able to take in the situation, and by two happy resort to the little passport he felt was sure, brought us to recognize the Christ-power speaking even from a savage breast and making plain the universal brotherhood.

I will write you another time about our excellent camp-meeting grounds, which we use every year.

THOS. R. STEWART.

OUR ST. LOUIS LETTER.

This scribe has found out at last what it is to be an itinerant preacher. He received two good appointments in two Annual Conferences on two successive Mondays. Returning from Dallas last May, I told Bishop Wilson that the time limit would move me from Kansas City District, and indicated to him a desire to return to the pastorate, inasmuch as I had been a pastor only one year in the last nineteen. He pleased me by appointing me to Jefferson City, where we have the best church building in the Southwest Missouri Conference and a reported membership of over five hundred. There I began my pastorate, preaching to good audiences on Sunday, September 28. After organizing my Board of Stewards Monday night, I left for Fayette to move my household goods to the State Capital. But Tuesday noon I learned from the St. Louis papers that I had been transferred to the St. Louis Conference and appointed to the St. Louis District.

In 1870 I was admitted on trial into the St. Louis Conference. The conference was divided that year, and I fell on the western side of the line of division. So now, after thirty-two years, I am back where I started—in the St. Louis Conference. My predecessor, Dr. W. F. McMurry, had served the district but one year. His administration was remarkably successful, and for years to come his term is likely to remain the standard by which to measure the success of other presiding elders. He was taken from the district to fill Centenary, our great downtown Church, with a membership of over fourteen hundred. He is succeeding there, and in seven weeks has received one hundred and nine members.

We have fourteen Churches in the city, which reported to the last conference a membership of 6823. Five suburban charges, with a membership of 655, are included in the St. Louis District. Four of these I can reach by the electric cars, and the fifth is not far away. But, while the district is easy to travel, it requires more work than any district I have ever served. To preach in these nineteen churches and hold Quarterly Conferences is only a part of the presiding elder's work. A large part of the work of our City Mission and Church Extension Society falls upon him, and his strength and capacity are taxed to the utmost.

A notable figure in Missouri Methodism for fifty years has recently passed away—Rev. William McKendree Prottzman, who died at the home of his niece, Miss Anna L. Clark, in Boonville, Mo., October 27, 1902. He was born at Marietta, Ohio, February 19, 1815, and after laboring a few years in Western Virginia and Eastern Kentucky, was transferred to the St. Louis Conference in 1850. He preached a few years in St. Louis, but the greater part of his ministry was spent in the territory now included in the Southwest Missouri Conference. He was two years in the Missouri Conference and two years in California. As Conference Secretary, member of the General Conference and President of the Board of Missions of his conference, he rendered very efficient service to the Church. Probably his best work was done in the office of presiding elder. He took great interest in his young preachers, and looked carefully after the welfare of all who served under him. In his prime he was a very popular preacher. Nearly thirty-two years ago I heard him preach three hours to an audience that listened with great interest to the last. A night or two later an appeal to the unconverted led twenty to the altar, eight of whom were converted that night. He was low in stature, but a man of great physical strength, with a voice of wonderful compass and power. Nature rarely does as much for any one man as she did for William M. Prottzman. He was one of the founders of Central College and of the Methodist Orphans' Home in St. Louis, and President of the convention which planned Morrisville Institute, now Morrisville College. He was a good man, who loved Christ and the Church, and loved his fellow-men.

Another member of the Southwest Missouri Conference who died since its last session was Rev. L. R. Downing, a cultured Christian gentleman of more than ordinary gifts as a preacher. His early ministry was spent in the Missouri Conference, but since 1888 he had belonged to the Southwest Missouri. He was about 70 years of age, and had been superannuated for three years.

Dr. and Mrs. Hamill closed a three days' Sunday-school institute last night at Centenary Church in this city. The attendance was large from the first session, and the interest was well sustained to the close. Our Sunday-school Superintendents' Union helped make the institute a great success. The work of Dr. and Mrs. Hamill is of a high order, and will tone up our Sunday-school work wherever they get before our people. They are leading a great forward movement in that very important field.

Our new Cabanne Church, in the northwest part of the city, was dedicated November 2 by Bishop Candler. It is a beautiful and well-appointed stone structure, costing about $25,000. The new St. John's is not quite completed, but the auditorium has been used for two Sundays. This church will cost about $200,000.

NEW WESLEYAN HOUSE IN LONDON.

The "London Notes" in the New York Tribune of July 26 contained the following interesting facts:

"The Royal Aquarium, now destined to be replaced by a Wesleyan House, has always been an anomaly. Originally planned as a fashionable resort for the West End in winter and summer, it had a brief career as a temple of music, science and art, with an orchestra conducted by Sir Arthur Sullivan, promenade concerts directed by Sir Julius Benedict, picture shows arranged by Sir John Mil-lais, and fisheries exhibitions ordered by Mr. Frank Buckland; and when its fortunes languished with a lack of support from Vanity Fair, it was converted into a catchpenny variety entertainment for the masses.

"With the close of the year these anomalies are to cease. . . and on the cleared site will rise a cluster of Wesleyan buildings opposite the Jerusalem chamber of the Abbey. Wesleyan architecture is seldom picturesque, and invariably prosaic and simple; but the environment of the Abbey will be materially improved by the removal of the vulgar and hideous structure which now flaunts its matinees and sideshows in the historic precincts of Broad Sanctuary. The Wesleyans will not be outside the range of their own traditions when they transfer their religious headquarters from John Wesley's home, in City Road, to Broad Sanctuary, for Charles Wesley was a Westminster boy and Captain of the school, living in Little Dean's Yard and learning to love music in the Abbey, where the memorial to him and to his brother is now seen. If Wesleyanism has become a powerful rival of the English Church in the affections of the middle and lower classes, it has been largely due to the fervor and heartiness of the hymns written by its sweetest singer, whose soul was attuned to music by the daily services of the Abbey. The Wesleyan service retains a large part of the liturgy of the English Church, so that when the Methodist House has taken the place of the Aquarium and Rev. Hugh Price Hughes is preaching there on Sundays, and not in St. James' Hall, there will be an approach to harmony in the undertones on either side of Broad Sanctuary. Indeed, Canon Henson of St. Margaret's, who has recently been fraternizing with the Wesleyans, may easily lose his way and find himself in the Methodist Chapel in place of the historic Abbey.

"The Wesleyans, like the Roman Catholics, who have built their cathedral in Ashley Gardens, with a high tower visible from long distances up and down Victoria Street and across St. James' Park, have made a close approach to Westminster Abbey. They have no intention of abandoning their natural headquarters in City Road, where John Wesley lived, worked and died; nor is there any evidence of decline in their working power among the poor and the out-cast in the East End. While Wesleyanism is nobly carrying out in the most benighted regions of the maze of metropolitan London the ideas of its founder in systematic organization, work and consecrated zeal for the evangelization of the masses, it has also taken up with vigor and ardor during recent years work among the educated middle class in the West End, and the purchase of the Aquarium is a fresh proof that the spirit of John Wesley's own words, repeated in the memorial at Westminster Abbey, 'I look upon all the world as my parish,' still animates a powerful religious communion. The Wesleyans at Westminster will be at the religious center of the United Kingdom. They will have two halls, one for three thousand and another for one thousand auditors; they will have ample accommodation for their missionary societies and committees, and a publication center near the traditional home of Caxton; and they will have not only a unique site, but also a good business investment, for Mr. Perks, who has conducted the negotiations, is one of the shrewdest men in England. The price is $330,000, but it includes the Imperial Theatre and several houses, as well as the Aquarium itself."

A TUG OF WAR.

Coffee Puts Up a Grand Fight.

Among the best of judges of good things in the food line, is the groceryman or his wife. They know why many of their customers purchase certain foods.

The wife of a groceryman in Carthage, New York, says: "I have always been a lover of coffee, and therefore drank a great deal of it. About a year and a half ago, I became convinced that it was the cause of my headaches and torpid liver, and resolved to give it up, although the resolution caused me no small struggle, but Postum came to the rescue. From that time on, coffee has never found a place on our table, except for company, and then we always feel a dull headache throughout the day for having indulged.

When I gave up coffee and commenced the use of Postum I was an habitual sufferer from headache. I now find myself entirely free from it, and what is more, have regained my clear complexion which I had supposed was gone forever.

I never lose an opportunity to speak in favor of Postum, and have induced many families to give it a trial, and they are invariably pleased with it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SALVATION FROM ANXIETY.

Fear is the curse of mankind; its most common forms are worry and anxiety, whose ravages are apparent in care-lined faces, whitened hair and bent frames. Christ came to remove this burden, to bring peace to troubled hearts, to reveal to earth's anxious ones a God of love, whose care embraces all his creatures, provides for the smallest bird, and clothes the grass and the field lily.

God as a sovereign, all-powerful, awe-inspiring, was the Jehovah of the old dispensation, but Christ came to reveal God as the Father, whose infinitely loving care numbers the very hair of our head. His teachings are full of this theme: Be not anxious for your life; be not anxious concerning food or raiment; be not anxious for the morrow. Which of you, by being anxious, can add a cubit into the measure of his life? If, then, ye are not able to do even that which is least, why are ye anxious concerning the rest? Not a sparrow falls on the ground without your Father. Fear not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows. Will an earthly parent give his child a stone for bread, or a serpent for food? If the earthly parent desires good for his children, how much more shall the heavenly Parent, infinite in love and power, bestow good gifts upon his beloved off-spring.

The only-begotten Son, coming from the bosom of the Father and living in close communication with him while on earth, sought to impart to his disciples something of the peace and joy which were his, even in the midst of rejection and suffering, by revealing that great love which yearns over its beloved children. During these precious hours in which Christ and his chosen followers were alone for the last time before his death, with the shadow of the cross upon them, when sorrow had filled their hearts, he to whom these fast approaching sufferings meant most turned to the anxious disciples with the words: "Let not your heart be troubled;" and in tender tones assured them of the Father's house and of the Father's love.

We believe that "God is love," that "all things work together for good to them who love him," but of what practical value is this belief to us? How much does it influence our every-day living? Have we accepted salvation from anxiety? God is omniscient, we believe; then he knows our lives from the beginning to the end, and understands to the fullest extent our wants and our possibilities. God is omnipotent, we believe; then he is fully able to accomplish his designs. God is love—infinite, unchanging love; this we believe; love which desires the best for his children; the grandest, noblest, highest things for us.

Shall we doubt such a God, such a Father? Do not our very doubts and anxieties hinder us from understanding his leadings, and from receiving the good gifts which he stands ready to bestow.

In the office of an active Christian noted for her habitual cheerful spirit is the motto, "Don't worry." More potent than this motto are the words of Christ: "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Would it not be well to place these words where they may be a constant reminder, remembering that this is not only an expression of consolation, but a command. We are actually commanded to be cheerful, happy, with peace in the heart. "Let not your heart be troubled" by failure, past mistakes, sins even, if repented of and forsaken, or by the petty irritations and annoyances of daily contact with our fellow men. "Neither let it be afraid" of possible sorrow or sickness for ourselves or our dear ones, of changes which must some day come, of loss of our best beloved, of separation and of loneliness. "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Our Father's all-wise, all-powerful, all-loving care embraces his creation and his creatures. To those who yield trustingly to his will there can be no anxiety.—E. S. Paul, in Christian Work.

THE CHIEF GOOD.

We make a mistake when we dwell chiefly on the temporal benefits of religion in recommending it to those who are without. The world tells us that we make a mistake in dwelling so much on the invisible advantages of religion. Men of the world say that we should win more people to our way of thinking if we should say less about pardon and regeneration and heaven, and more about the aids which Christianity affords in our daily tasks. It is true that our religion does bring temporal good. It is good for the body, for the intellect, for the family, and for the nation. The chief good, however, is not temporal, but spiritual. It is not outward, but inward.

The newspapers tell us that a celebrated clergyman of the Established Church in England has proposed that theaters be established in connection with all the Churches, and that some of the chief men of that communion have approved the suggestion. Whatever may be said in favor of amusements and recreations, it would appear to be quite clear that the Church is not the place for them. When the Churches offer worldly amusements as inducements to win the unconverted they will lose their charm. This is precisely the secret of the world's attractive force. To this argument on the part of the Churches the ungodly will quickly reply: "If this is the good you have to offer we pray you to have us excused. We can find all these things in the world. We prefer to go where we can find the genuine article."

Unless the Churches can offer something which men can find nowhere else they may as well close their doors. The early Church did offer something which could not be found in the world, and it proved to be a powerful attraction. The early Christians were poor, persecuted, afflicted, tormented, despised. They had no worldly allurements to offer those whom they invited to go with them. But men were drawn to them for all that. They came in multitudes and said, "Let us come in and share your lot." They did so because they saw that these despised and persecuted disciples of Christ had something which the world had not. They had something which the world could not give. They had something which everyone wanted. They had love, genuine, pure, sweet charity. They had freedom from sin and fear. They had no more fear of prisons and fagots than Daniel had of lions. They had victory over death. They marched out to meet death with a smile and a song. Men wanted this. It is, indeed, the chief good. Let us speak seldom of other advantages of religion, but dwell with emphasis on this spiritual good. If Christians have this spirit, if they show by their conduct that they really have this highest good, they will find it difficult to persuade men. Without it we can do nothing.—N. Y. Advocate.

SUGGESTIVE.

All the best things in this world are scattered with a lavish hand, and we do not know how rich we are until we sit down to reckon up our treasures. The love of parents, the affection of brothers and sisters, the help of teachers, the sympathy of friends, the companionship of books, the gift of children, the joys of home are given to all sort and conditions of men. If those you love and who love you have been spared to you another year, there ought to be a thanksgiving season in your home. What is any failure in business, or calamity in fortune, or disappointment in ambition, or weariness in labor, or infirmity in health compared with the loss of a husband or wife or child? Into many a home death has come and a glory has vanished from the earth. But even in these homes there is reason for thanksgiving, and the sorrow should not be that of those who sorrow without hope. The promise of the life eternal is ours, and ours the expectation of a glad reunion.—Charles E. Jefferson, D. D.

We are not to think of heaven as at an infinite remove. It is very near to us. The same laws of divine goodness prevail there as here. Heaven and earth are provinces of one blessed kingdom. The change is from the basement story where the heat and noise and dust of labor perplex and weary, to the lofty chambers which command the glorious sunset views and look away to the sun-rising, and are open to healthful winds and the song of birds. We are ourselves, it may be, on the stairway; we have been far up where it seemed as though a slight shock would burst open the door and let us through.—J. O. Means, D.D.

MADE LIKE UNTO GOD.

A crystal is sometimes formed in the embrace of a boulder of granite. To clear it of its rough inclosure, and to bring its beautiful facets to the light, nature submerges it in deep waters, shatters it by tempest, and abrades it by contact with stones and mud and the rubbish of the sea. Thus a redeemed soul is, by the plan of God, immersed in the cares and toils and enticements and usefulness of a world of sin, so that by sheer resistance to evil, and abrasion with depravity, it may be polished to the transparent image of Him who made it.—Austin Phelps.

We must conclude that this is true when we remember that it was not by chance that we were placed in the world. The Lord could have placed us in the very position that we would choose for ourselves if he had seen fit to do so. But "knowing our frame," he knew where we were most needed.

Something extra rich in the Epworth tone

Do you know what it is that makes some pianos so much sweeter toned than others? Well, it is mostly in the way the sounding board is made.

The tendency nowadays is to cheapen this part of the piano. That's why the tone of so many pianos grows "thumpy" or "metallic" after awhile.

Years ago before this cheapening process began the old-fashioned German method of making sounding boards prevailed. It was all hand-work, slow, painstaking and requiring great skill. There was something very sweet about the tone of those old hand-made pianos which many of the modern instruments lack.

Epworth sounding boards are made after the old reliable German method, by hand—and by old-time German experts. The result is the Epworth tone is remarkably sweet and mellow, not only when new, but you can depend upon it lasting.

Our Catalogue tells all about it, also tells how to save $25.00 to $50.00. We send Epworth Pianos to reliable people anywhere in the United States on trial. If piano suits you may pay for it in cash or easy payments as agreed. If piano is not perfect and satisfactory to you it comes back at our expense of freight both ways. Nothing could be better than that.

The special object of this treaty is to obtain positive advantages for our products, particularly sugar, which is the principal basis of Cuban wealth. It can be hoped from the sympathy with which the American people regard us, and from the manifest interest which President Roosevelt entertains in the prosperity of Cuba, that a reasonable arrangement by means of this treaty can be arrived at."

THANKSGIVING.

My humble heart, O God, I pour
Out now in thanksgiving and praise;
To save my soul Thou gavest Thy Son,
And Thou hast kept me all my days.
Then, if I spent for Thee my strength,
And spent my breath in thanks to Thee,
All would fly upward in the scale,
If weighed against what Thou dost for me.

A THANKSGIVING PREDICAMENT SOLVED.

I feel sure that I own one of the dearest and queerest old ladies for an auntie, and also one of the jolliest and brightest young girls for a cousin, than any one you know.

Aunt Kate is perfectly lovely, but you must know her very well to fully agree with me on that point. She was "born and bred" in the South, and was raised to think that all kinds of mental labor was degrading to any one but the negroes, who at that time did all of the work in the house and on the large plantation surrounding her pretty home.

When Aunt Kate was 19 years old, Uncle Fred, who was traveling for his health, stopped at her home, and while resting there from his travels for a few days fell desperately in love with this dainty little lady. His affection was returned, and a year later Uncle Fred married his little Southern sweet-heart and took her back to his home in Massachusetts.

Everything was so different to Aunt Kate—so few negroes for servants, the weather so cold, and so many strange ways and customs to become acquainted with. The same people whom she thought queer, in turn thought and said the same of her.

Lucy, Aunt Kate's daughter, is the dear little cousin I told you of. Lucy was 16 on her last birthday. She is a very pretty girl. She favors Aunt Kate decidedly, and by just looking at her picture you would imagine that she had never seen the northern side of "Mason and Dixon's line," for she looks so truly like a Southern girl. But you can't talk with her more than five minutes before you are fully aware that she was raised in Massachusetts. She is very proud of the fact.

One morning about 5 o'clock, while visiting Lucy last summer, I was startled out of my sleep by the loud "wh-r-r, wh-r-r—" of an alarm clock near our bed. Lucy jumped up, laughing at my sudden bewilderment, and smothered the noise of the clock in the bed clothes.

"What on earth do you mean by getting up at this unearthly hour, Lucy?" I asked in surprise.

"Why, it's 5 o'clock, young lady—not such an 'unearthly hour,' do you think? But if you'll promise not to say anything about it to mother, I'll tell you."

"Of course I promised, and Lucy 'fessed up."

"Well, you see mother thinks it's just horrid that I love to cook and work around in the kitchen and the house. She wants me to be really and truly lazy, Fayry, and I just can't stand it. Old Jane, the cook, doesn't mind my coming into the kitchen to learn, and she says I am 'a real help,' so I am going down to learn how to make those waffles that we are all so fond of."

I was wide awake by this time, for the very idea of a young girl getting up to help the cook with breakfast because she wished to learn was beyond anything I had ever heard. Why, at home it is all I can do to get down to breakfast in time to eat with the family at half-past 8, without getting up to help cook.

"Can you cook very well?" I asked. "Oh, no! Nothing like as well as grandma and Aunt Martha," she answered, "but hope to some day. Papa thinks it's nice of me to learn. I cook all the time when I go to grandma's or Aunt Martha's."

I got up with Lucy that first morning, but after that the clock rang off every morning while I was there without arousing me enough to more than notice Lucy get up and leave the room. Lucy always came back to our room and woke me in time for breakfast, and as we always came down to the dining-room together Aunt Kate was none the wiser of the laziness of one of her girls' and the eagerness of the other. I rather think that Uncle Fred knew all about it, though, for I learned accidentally that he also arose with the sun.

One morning, on a very cold, cloudy day, Lucy proposed trying a new candy recipe which she had clipped from a late magazine, so we went down to the kitchen and were getting things ready to make the new caramels, when we heard Aunt Kate calling us. Lucy hurriedly untied the big kitchen apron she had donned, and went to Aunt Kate, telling me to see to things while she was gone.

"What were you doing, Lucy?" Aunt Kate questioned.

"Why, mother, I found a recipe for a new kind of caramel candy, and we were just trying it," Lucy answered promptly.

"My dear child, you know there is no need of your making your own candy, and you must come out of the kitchen immediately. That is not the place for my girls."

Well, Lucy made no objections, but came running into the kitchen with an odd little smile on her face and said:

"We're caught this time, but just wait till we go over to grandma's. She will help us make them, and then they'll be caramels fit for a princess. She started to say princess, and then, laughing, changed it and said 'for any girl in America.'"

About a half-hour afterwards a delivery man brought us two of the finest boxes of 'bonbons' that I have ever seen. Aunt Kate had phoned for them, so that we might not be too badly disappointed. Auntie didn't seem to realize that it wasn't the candy we wanted so much as the fun of trying our success with the new recipe.

Before my visit was over I had persuaded Uncle Fred and Aunt Kate to say, "Yes, Lucy may come to see you in November and spend Thanksgiving with you."

Of course, Lucy and I were jubilant over the prospect, the thought of which made our parting a little more tolerable.

About a week before Thanksgiving Lucy was to arrive. Old Dick, our coachman, drove papa and me to the city. Before the train had stopped Lucy saw us and waved to us. She was so pretty in her smart gray walking suit in which she traveled.

Aunt Sallie, our cook, was delighted with Lucy, and the pretty young Northern girl and the old negro soon became very good friends, simply because Lucy held in such high regard Aunt Sallie's vocation—that of cook.

Great preparations were being made for Thanksgiving Day. Mamma had invited several of our cousins and two or three old friends of hers from the city to dine with us on that day, so Aunt Sallie was kept very busy for a week beforehand, baking cakes and making all kinds of pies.

The evening before Thanksgiving Day, Lucy and I were in the kitchen watching Aunt Sallie, when she suddenly fell over on the table near which she was standing.

"Do you feel sick, Aunt Sallie?" we cried.

"Oh, honey, I do! know what's the matter wiz old Scille. I guess one ting botherin' me is this of cranbe's sauce. I jus' can't git it right."

"Let me try, Aunt Sallie," Lucy said, jumping up, and she took the sauce-pan and berries into her own hands without waiting for Aunt Sallie's answer. The old darky remonstrated a little at first, but let Lucy try. Lucy had seen her grandmother make cranberry sauce often, and understood exactly what to do, first and last, in preparing it. The sauce was soon made, and when it had cooled it "jelled" beautifully.

The next morning carriages came from the city early, bringing our guests. We were all in the parlor. Lucy and I were playing a gay rag-time duet that we had learned last summer, when I noticed mamma excuse herself and leave the room. Very soon Lucy made some excuse to leave also.

Mamma had been called to see old

Aunt Sallie. The girl who was helping her in the kitchen, like most young negroes, had lost all presence of mind when she saw Aunt Sallie fall helplessly to the floor in a fainting fit. The first thing Susan did was to cry "O Lordy!" and then call mamma.

Mamma is a very frail, nervous little woman, and when she arrived at the scene of trouble was really so excited that she could be of no service whatever. Mamma had hardly begun to realize the situation before Lucy followed her down to the kitchen. Susan, the girl who was holding Aunt Sallie's head in her lap and trembling visibly when Lucy stepped in.

"Why, auntie! Aunt Sallie!" she said in surprise. Then, as the situation dawned on her mind, Lucy ran over to the water bucket, and seizing a dipper full of water, sprinkled some on Aunt Sallie's ashen-hued face.

"Unbutton her dress, Susan," she commanded, in calm, clear tones, "and, Auntie, will you please fan her with this turkey-wing, while I raise the windows?"

Lucy's tones commanded obedience, they were so full of assurance to those around her. Mamma was soon fanning vigorously with the large turkey-wing, and Lucy opened the windows and doors, so that a strong, cold draught of air blew over the old darky.

Aunt Sallie opened her eyes, and the first thing she said was, "Sue, child, don't let dem apples burn." With Susan's help she was able, after a few minutes, to walk out to her room in the yard back of the house.

Mamma was at first so troubled about Aunt Sallie's condition that she did not think about the unfinished dinner and her guests in the parlor, but Lucy saw the problem at once.

While mamma was out at Aunt Sallie's room, Lucy rolled up her sleeves, tied on a big kitchen apron and went to work. She looked at the turkey.

It was baking nicely. The potatoes had not been mashed for the salad, so Lucy set Susan to work at that, while she tasted the different things that were cooking, to see what had or had not been seasoned properly. She was sweetening the apples when mamma came back to the kitchen, and seeing Lucy looking so much at home and so busily at work she was at first too much astonished to speak.

"Now, Auntie, don't say a word," she said, laughing. "Susan and I can finish up beautifully. Yes, indeed, I know how to cook. Grandma and Aunt Martha taught me," she answered to mamma's look of incredulity. "Just taste this, if you don't believe it!" and she gave mamma a taste of the salad she had just finished moulding into the salad dish.

Lucy says that mamma tried to demur at first, but soon remembered that there was no one else to undertake the dinner, and that the taste of salad conquered her. She offered to help in any way she could, but Lucy waved her out of the kitchen immediately.

"There is only one thing I wished to ask you, Auntie. May I have ambrosia for dessert? I can't make the dessert Aunt Sallie intended preparing."

"Why, yes, indeed. That will be lovely. I really wanted that at first, but Aunt Sallie doesn't make ambrosia to suit me, somehow."

I went to look for Lucy a short while afterwards, and found her with her cheeks unusually rosy from bending over the stove while frying the oysters. She ordered me to set the table in my most artistic style, while she filled a large cut glass bowl full of the pretty white and gold ambrosia.

In following out some of Lucy's unique ideas, I managed the table beautifully. I had never seen it look prettier or more tempting. In the center of the table was the large yellow pumpkin, fashioned into a lovely scalloped basket, which Lucy had made the day before. It was filled with glossy red apples, large oranges and bananas, and was surrounded by a wreath of dark red chrysanthemums and gray moss.

Lucy saw that everything was in readiness for dinner, even to placing the pitcher of water on the table.

With the extra help that we had engaged to wait on the table, Susan could easily serve the dinner after Lucy's many explicit directions, so we ran up stairs together and I helped Lucy change her clothes and arrange her hair nicely before going down again.

The dinner passed off without the least thing that could have made it unpleasant? And Lucy? Well, Lucy's soft brown eyes actually twinkled when mamma nodded and smiled at her to show how well pleased she was.

Mamma had managed some excuse for Lucy's absence without saying "She is cooking dinner," and it was not until some time afterwards that any of our guests knew who had saved the Thanksgiving dinner.

Mamma has wonderfully changed her opinions about some things, one of which is that her daughters shall all learn to cook, as she now considers it very much of an accomplishment to be able to cook a Thanksgiving dinner.

I wonder if Aunt Kate would think the same way if she were ever to be helped out of a predicament of that nature, as my dear old Lucy helped us.

SALESMEN'S TRIALS.

Bad Food is One of Them.

Road traveling is rather hard on salesmen. Irregular hours, indifferent hotels and badly cooked food play smash with their digestion.

An old Philadelphia traveler tells how he got the start of his troubles by using Grape-Nuts. "For years I was troubled with a bad stomach, which gave me constant headaches and pains all through my body, caused by eating improper food. I spent considerable money on doctors, who said I had indigestion, and after taking medicine for a year and it doing me no good, I decided to go on a diet, but the different cereals I ate did not help me. If it hadn't been for the advice of a friend to try Grape-Nuts, I might be ailing yet."

I commenced to feel better in a short time after using the food; my indigestion left me; stomach regained its tone so that I could eat anything, and headaches stopped. I have gained in weight, and have a better complexion than I had for years. At many hotels, the salesmen will have nothing in the line of cereals but Grape-Nuts, as they consider it not only delicious, but also beneficial for their health in the life they lead." HOME LIFE.

The home should be the most sacred place on this earth. No one knows or realizes what home and the pleasures of home life are, until they stay away from home awhile. Religion or Christian worship should begin at home and is just as essential there as it is at Church or anywhere else.

"One principal part of religion," says Archbishop Tillotson, "consists in the setting up the constant worship of God in our families, by daily prayers to God, every morning and evening, and by reading some portions of the Holy Scriptures at those times." And this is so necessary to keep alive and to maintain a sense of God, and religion in the minds of men, that where it is neglected I do not see how any family can in reason be esteemed a family of Christians, or indeed to have any religion at all.

Certainly when we take into account how consistent this custom is with the principles of Scripture, how well adapted to the wants of our nature; how strongly urged upon us by good men, it is difficult to understand its omission by those who profess themselves to be Christians.

To those, indeed, who avowedly give up the world to come, it is not surprising that this or any other holy custom should be distasteful. Oh! to think how many families, who claim to be Christians, neglect this duty of devoted family prayer.

This present day, so far as experience teaches me, there is not one family in one hundred that pays any attention to or takes any part in the worship of God in their homes. Some of them generally get warmed up during a big meeting or revival, but when that is over they never think of it any more until the next meeting.

Love is another essential element of home life. We have kindred worthy of purest love. Our parents, our brothers and sisters, our children, our life-long companions—intelligent, devoted, pure and kind—how richly they deserve the warmest affections of our hearts! They share our sorrows, and we share their joys. The younger of either sex should remember that all the little attentions, salutations, civilities and graces of "society" are as strictly due in the home circle to sisters, brothers, parents and others, as at a party, and that courtesy, like charity, begins at home.

"Best be those feasts with simple plenty crowned, Where all the ruddy family around, Laugh at the jests or pranks that never fail, Or sigh with pity at some mournful tale."

True family affection rarely fails or disappears. The children may grow up and scatter, but the current of love, like a river, will flow on ready to bear upon its peaceful bosom in the after years the trembling barks of life to glad reunions near the open sea.

In the trials, vicissitudes and dangers of the earthly lot, this love reveals its constancy, its tenderness and power.

Would you make the most of life? Choose its highest road, its divinest form. This will put you in harmony with the natural laws that insure success. "It will clothe you," as the interior expresses it, "with virtues and graces that are essential conditions of getting along in the world."

The records of poverty tell us the wicked are the unfortunate. Those who have yielded to the lower nature are in troubles manifold and in extra ratio to such yielding. Those on the other hand who live for the higher nature and who serve God, have at their doors the best rewards and success of this life. Virtue, integrity and holiness at last win the race against their opposites.

As in Roman armies the conquered nations had to serve, so the armies of the kingdom, the things of this world conquered for Christ become servants to the soul.

Such a life secures this world for us, by moderating the wants of the lower nature. Lower passions are never full, so the man who lives for this world will be able to write Solomon's words over it all. It is too empty to fill the heart; every road of merely human ambition leads to Alexander's tears and despair.

There are two roads to human happiness. One is the road that promises to take us to all we want. That road is endless. It is chasing the mirage. The cruel city of our worldly aim flies on. The other way to happiness is the road that takes us to a contented mind, and simple wants and absorbing spiritual aims. On this path it is all the same, so far as happiness goes, whether we own a kingdom or only the narrow outlook through the window of the stekroom, if only God fill us with a sweet and holy content, prosperous times have come. They will take us only toward bitterness and sorrow unless we serve ourselves by first of all serving God.

W. COFFMAN.

NO.

This is a little word, and yet to say it sometimes requires a great deal of moral courage. Many a young man takes his first glass, and the next, and the next, because he fears that his refusal will excite the ridicule of his companions. Thus he forges round himself, link by link, the chain of habit which, like the cobra's coils, relaxes only with the death of the victim. Will you have a cigar, a julep, a glass of wine? Will you join a Sunday game of ball, a game of cards, etc.?

The young man who has at all times, the moral courage to resist such temptations and unhesitatingly to say "No" deserves more credit and is more of a hero than he who routs an army or sinks a navy.

The young woman who can unwearily decline the cup of pleasure when she sees it is but the gilded cup of vice, will not have to pass her old age with the vulture of remorse gnawing at her vitals.

It is not brawn alone that makes a man; nor is physical beauty or homeliness all there is of woman. For God created man in his own image, and so long as the divine guest is entertained in the heart, his image will shine in the face, regardless of the tear-dimmed eye, the sunken, faded cheek, or the sun-browned complexion.

In the breast of every man and woman is planted the power to resist temptation, and this power grows by being exercised, while to ignore its existence and idly yield to the pleasures of the passing moments will dwarf its proportions and leave its possessor powerless in the clutches of a devil who will laugh at him for his weakness.

He who can not in youth resist the temptation to take a dime from the drawer may not, in manhood, find it difficult to take a much larger sum; whereas, if every boy and girl of to-day would resolve, and keep that resolution, to say "No" when evil temptations assail them, the moral light of another generation would be to that of the present time as is the light of the noontide sun to the twinkling of a star.

ELSIE MALONE McCOLLUM.

DON'T LOOK AT IT.

I once learned a lesson from a dog we had. My father used to put a bit of meat or biscuit on the floor near the dog and say, "No," and the dog knew he must not touch it. But he never looked at the meat. He seemed to feel that if he looked at it the temptation would be too strong; so he always looked steadily at my father's face.

A gentleman was dining with us one day and he said: "There is a lesson for us all. Never look at temptation. Always look away to the Master's face."

Yes, this is the good old way; do not look at temptation. "Avoid it, pass it by." When the thought of doing wrong in any way comes into your heart, you may be sure it comes from Satan; so do not look at it, but look up to Jesus and ask him to keep you and make you more than conqueror over every temptation, through Him that loves you.—Selected.

MAKING AND KEEPING FRIENDS.

Making friends is easy to the girl who is bright and happy, whose society gives pleasure and who is gentle, but the keeping of them demands more than this.

To keep a friend don't get too intimate with her. Have your own thoughts and permit her to have hers.

Do not demand too much of her in the way of confidence.

And do not be too aggressive, wanting to know why she hasn't done this and why she doesn't think as you do. If her style of dress is not beautiful, don't tell her; it will only offend her, because deep in her heart she is convinced that she knows a great deal more about it than anyone else.

Do not find fault with a friend's friend and do not expect to be the only one given a corner in her heart.

Be as considerate of her feelings as if she were a stranger and remember that politeness is an everyday garment, and not one intended only for holidays. To sum up in a sentence, preserve the courtesy of the beginning to keep the friendship to the end.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effected form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, the excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate, people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

Many are satisfied to live in Northwest Texas, having proved the value of the land in this region as a good Crop Raiser. Not only Cattle, but Wheat, Cotton, Corn, Feed-Stocks, Cantaloupes, Garden Truck and Good Health flourish here—in a district where Malaria is impossible and very little doing for Jails and Hospitals. Land, which is being sold at really low figures—the constantly increasing demand is steadily boosting values—is still abundant; and Farms and Ranches of all sizes, very happily located, are being purchased daily.

TEXAS ANNUAL CONFERENCES.

Bishop E. R. Hendrix.
North Texas, Terrell, ..... Nov. 28
Texas, Crockett, ..... Dec. 3

EDITORIAL BIRDSHOT.

The itinerant wheel is getting in its work.

A Bishop at this season of the year is a very interesting individual.

The presiding elder holds many secrets at conference times that would surprise preachers and people were they spoken.

It is well enough to want your preacher returned next year, but if you do not get him maybe you will get a better one in his stead.

When a man has filled a position so long that it can not get along without him, then it is a good time to change him off for another one.

When a preacher is in great demand the authorities have but one trouble in placing him, and that is in determining which congregation shall have him.

If a preacher never does much in Church enterprise, the presiding elders do not wrangle over getting him, and the people do not fall over one another in their rush to obtain him.

Sometimes it looks like a man ought to be sent back to his work, such is his hold upon his people and his grasp of their needs, but it may be he is needed worse in some other field.

If you are not put up to preach at the conference at a time when you think your talent is in demand, just comfort your heart with the reflection that some of the poorest sermons of the whole year are heard on conference occasions.

It matters not how much anxiety we may experience about our next place of labor, our recompense is found in the fact that such is the efficiency of our system that we are sure to get an appointment where we will get a support and where we will find souls to save.

THE BRANCH PUBLISHING HOUSE NUMBER.

By reference to our pages in this issue, our readers will observe that considerable space is devoted to the interests of the Branch Publishing House. It presents an inviting bill of fare for the holidays. In it will be found illustrations of the stock of books carried by the House and the prices at which the books can be purchased. These prices are just as reasonable as the market affords, and the works thus presented are especially adapted to the needs of our own people. For this reason we are not surprised that our Branch House has done such a marvelous business in Texas. It has brought our own literature and that of other publishers to our own doors, and our preachers and people have bought extensively. As a distributor of books among our people the Branch House has been from the beginning a phenomenal success. In this respect it has wonderfully conserved the interests of the Church in Texas and demonstrated the indispensable necessity for its existence in these parts. Our preachers all over the State are replenishing their libraries with the latest and best books now produced, and the reading habit among them has gone beyond anything in their previous history. When books are afar off, even preachers are often slow to order them, but when you bring them under their eyes they see them and make haste to invest in them. This is done by the Branch House. The preachers come to Dallas and look through the stock and carry back great bundles of good books. And then Mr. Everett has large supplies of select books shipped to all the conference sessions for sale, and there the preachers inspect them and buy them. Then, too, our people are investing in good books, and our Sunday-schools are purchasing libraries for free distribution. So that the Branch House has sold a marvelous quantity of good literature to our Texas preachers and people. The fact is, it is a fixture as one of the pressing needs of our Texas work. Our success is now bound up with its perpetuity in this great State. Therefore, let all our readers turn to the pages of this issue, in which the advertising matter of the Branch House is found, and go through them with care, and the result will be that they will make large selections of these good books for their tables and home libraries. Investments in these good books will pay any home a large dividend in the way of good influence and rich intelligence.

A SUGGESTION TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

No paper in the connection has such a long and valued list of correspondents as the Texas Advocate. We glory in them, and the other organs of the Church envy us in this, our good fortune. During the year now beginning we not only want to hold the number that we have, but we want to increase it even more largely. Scores of our best preachers and laymen rarely ever write for us. We want to make an improvement right here. Let every layman and every preacher feel that the Advocate is the medium for news, suggestion, communication and symposium. So, if you have a thought that has been a benefit to you, jot it down and send it to the Advocate, and it will be a benefit to many others. Such matter will help to make a good paper.

But we want to make a few suggestions, and we hope our correspondents will observe them: 1. Do not write your articles too long. Take time and condense. This is a business age, and people will not read a long, wordy communication. They want substance, and not verbiage. If you will observe, we follow this rule in our editorials. If they were printed in the same sort of type in which the other matter appears in the paper, they would not be much over a half column in length. And the preachers tell us that the editorials are read by the people. If you have more matter than you can condense in a reasonably short article, then reserve some of it for a second. A column and a half, or a two column, or a two and a half column article finds but very few readers. Such matter is all right for a review or a book, but not for a weekly paper. 2. Write

W. P. WILSON

In the Advocate of October 22, I noticed a picture of Judge J. H. Moore, with the statement that he had served as superintendent of the Sunday-school at Thompson since 1872. Center, Texas, can furnish a longer record. W. P. Wilson has served the Sunday-school as superintendent since its organization in 1871. I am sure that there is not a more consecrated, zealous and faithful worker in all our Methodism.

Center, Texas. C. R. CROSS, P. C.

on only one side of the sheet of paper, write with pen and ink, and write legibly. A slipshod and slovenly manuscript is an irritation to the editor and a source of ugly words to the printer. 3. Do not begin your article with an explanation or apology. Leave out all such matter and come at once to the subject you want to communicate. Space is too valuable for surplus stuff. 4. Leave out all trite platitudes. Such uninteresting things drive an intelligent reader away from an article containing them. 5. Eschew all questionable slang. The Advocate has no place for it and will not print it. Write in good, plain and elegant English, and, as far as possible, use words of one and two syllables. Great, big, cumbersome words obscure your meaning and lay you open to the charge of pedantry. 6. Leave out all offensive personalities and reflections. Do not try to sting the brother from whose opinions and judgments you differ. Pound him unmercifully with facts, figures and arguments, but not with adjectives and ill-temper. Now, if you will comply, in some measure, with the above suggestions, you will always be welcomed by the Advocate. We are now looking for one thousand men and women who have something to say and who know how to say it in a brief and interesting manner, and as we find them we will make the Advocate glow and radiate with their best thoughts and brightest wit and humor. Won't you be one of that number?

A SUNDAY IN COOPER.

Several weeks back I promised Rev. E. L. Spurlock to give him last Sunday with his work at Cooper. So last Saturday at 9 o'clock I took the Cotton Belt to go as far as Commerce and there got the Midland for the rest of the journey. The rain was coming down in torrents and the earth was drenched with water. Between Wiley and Nevada there seemed to be a genuine flood, and for nearly a mile at one place we looked to be crossing an unbroken stream that covered the woods and the fields in every direction. At Commerce I was too late to get the Midland, as it had been gone two hours. It was then 1 o'clock, and I determined to put in the time pleasantly. So I walked up to the square, looked around for a while, and spoke to a number of people whom I chanced to know, and then wended my way to the parsonage, where Rev. R. C. Hicks and his good family live cozily and comfortably. There I spent the afternoon and evening most delightfully. There is no communion more agreeable than that enjoyed in a Methodist parsonage. Bro. Hicks is a man of good books, well read, and up in all things pertaining to the Church. His good wife and four children make up a well-ordered and happy household. He has done well in the Commerce Church, notwithstanding the fact that the dry weather for two successive years has cut business very short. The spiritual state of his Church is good, and his people want him returned.

At half-past 8 o'clock the Midland train arrived, and in half an hour I was at the Cooper depot, where Bro. Spurlock was in waiting for me. We were soon seated around an old-fashioned wood fire, with everything homelike and comfortable. This is his second year at Cooper. He has a good membership, a parsonage which has been greatly improved and a church building that is meeting present demands, but his people will have to erect a new structure at an early day. Such has been the development of the work under Bro. Spurlock's ministry that Cooper has asked to be made a station next year. This can be readily done, as there is enough of the work left for a good circuit. Wherever he goes, things come to pass. He is an untiring worker, and the people follow his leadership. He is strong of body, large in mind and persistent in effort. He is not only a good preacher, but he is an efficient pastor, and withal a student of good books. A local paper contained the following notice of him and his work:

Rev. E. L. Spurlock filled his pulpit last Sunday evening for the last time before conference convenes. He preached one of the best sermons of his pastorate in Cooper, further endearing himself to those who have listened for two years to his helpful and soul-lifting presentation of the gospel of Christ. Not alone the members of the Methodist Church, but outsiders as well, hope for his return to Cooper. When the present pastor took charge of the work two years ago, there was a circuit of four Churches, with the membership of 250, paying pastor $165. Since then there has been a net gain of 207 members, 256 professions of religion and two works formed out of the original one—one a circuit that will pay next year $450 to the pastor, the other now paying $700. The Church has expended during the two years just ending for improvements on property and for pastor's salary and other expenses over $2000, and has paid out for missions, both home and foreign, near $500.

Cooper has a population of 2000, a splendid court-house, a good business, with a large section of country to draw from, excellent schools and well-organized Churches. And it is a prohibition town, with the laws well enforced. Liquor has no place in the community, and the people will never bear to its coming back again. Such is the sentiment against it that even many men who were at first opposed to local option are now heartily in favor of it. There is no doubt but prohibition is a success wherever the people really want it; and most places in Texas want it. And this reminds me that I failed, while speaking of Commerce, to say that local option is also a success in that community. The old barrooms have a lonely and forlorn look. Some of them are still continued from page 8. standing there with their signs unre- moved, but they are only sad remind- ers of their former devilry. The Mayor of the town told me that he acts also as City Judge, and that local option has taken nearly all his busi- ness from him. They rarely ever have a misdemeanor now, and the lock-up stands open most of the time.

Now, going back to Cooper, I want to say that on Sunday morning we had a large congregation, notwith- standing the mud and inclement weather. The service, I think, was greatly helpful to us all, and the people gave appreciative attention to the word. The singing was fine, and the whole Sunday-school remained at the church service. I was delighted with this, for most of our Sunday-school children leave for home as soon as the Sunday-school adjourns. I met many who knew me through the Advocate, for we have a great many subscribers there. Bro. Spurlock puts the paper among his homes. He says it is a great help to him in his work. I had a most delightful stay at the parson- age. Bro. Spurlock, his good wife and son know how to dispense hospitality. How I do enjoy these little excursions from the treadmill of the office among the preachers and their people! I get to touch the real life of the Church and to find out the needs of the strug- gling workers. And when I know these matters, then I know much bet- ter how to write in such way as to help them. If the Advocate has any merit in my department, it is because the editorial matter grows out of the actual lives of our preachers and peo- ple. But this is already too long.

TEXAS PERSONALS.

At Commerce, the other day, we met Rev. W. L. Clifton, the old war- horse of the North Texas Conference, and he is in good health and fine spirits.

Rev. R. G. Mood, of Henrietta, called to see us on his way to Terrell, and gave a good account of himself. He is looking well and hearty, and has had a fine year.

Rev. W. L. Nelms D.D., of George- town, was in the city last Monday on business, and made us a pleasant visit. He has moved into the parson- age, and is ready for work in the Georgetown Station.

Rev. D. F. C. Timons, of Texar- kana, dropped down to the city last week and ran in to see us for a few minutes. He is winding up matters for conference, and getting ready to move, as this is his fourth year.

Rev. Jerome Duncan, of Hillshoro, was in to see us the other day. He is starting off on his second year with good prospects. He loves his people and they are equally in love with him, and success is in store for them.

Rev. Benjamin Bounds was in the city last week and out in his appear- ance in this office. He is now living at Hereford—away up in the Panhandle. He was on his way to conference. He is as jovial as ever and there is not a sour streak in him.

We notice in the Daily News that a great reception was tendered to Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker at Temple the other afternoon, as a farewell expres- sion of the people of that city, prior to his coming to the North Texas Con- ference. He is greatly beloved by all classes down that way and they regret to see him move from them.

Preachers Wanted.

I want a young man, single, or a mar- ried man with a small family, for the Dumas charge, in the Clarendon Dis- trict. The charge will pay from $40 to $50 salary. He must be well recommend- ed and able to do good work. Address me at Clarendon, Texas. JAS. M. SHERMAN, P. E.

To supply a charge of six appointments in Mangum District, Indian Mission Con- ference. Besides the salary the charge will pay, there is an appropriation of $25. A single man preferred. Apply at once, and inclose recommendation of your pres-iding elder or preacher in charge. W. S. P. McCULLOUGH, P. E.

THE LAW GOVERNING BEER LICENSE.

We were forcibly struck with your article in the Advocate in regard to a change in the law on licensing beer saloons. By all means, we should have the law changed, requiring beer sa- loons to pay the same tax as other sa- loons, thereby placing all on an equal- ity. And, in addition to this change, let us have a law upon our statute books holding a saloon-keeper respon- sible in damages to the family for the death or injury of a patron of his place in the event that death or injury oc- curs from an accident resulting from the inebriated condition of his patron. Such a law is now in force in some of our sister States, and said law has been held good by a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Our great preacher and temperance lecturer, Geo. Stuart, in one of his famous temperance addresses, said: "The Church members hold the bal- ance of power in the election of our law makers, who make the laws creat- ing and controlling our license sa- loons, and therefore the Church mem- bers are responsible for the continu- ance of the license saloon." This be- ing an undisputed fact, will not the Christian people of our fair State arise in their might, through petitions to our Representatives, with such irresistible force that they will be heard and thereby moved to action, causing such amendments as may be needed to hold the saloon influence under proper re- straint until the time shall come when we, by one mighty stroke, can drive it from our fair State?"

THE LORD'S SUPPER ONCE MORE.

In glancing over the new Discipline I see that it is made the duty of each presiding elder to inquire, "Has the sacrament been administered?" How long this has been the law I do not know. This writer has been in hear- ing distance as a pastor for thirty- eight years, and it is strange how lit- tle has been said on the subject. It would come in so nicely at the fourth Quarterly Conference each year. If not, why not? Should any be dis- posed to complain, it would be so easy to show that they were complaining against law, and their own law, at that.

Our purpose, however, is only to call attention to this splendid polity of ours. A live man always on the spot to tighten every bolt and keep Metho- dism moving with the regularity of the planets.

We have already seen Bishop Mc- Tyeire's estimate of this sacrament in his last moments on earth. Certainly if he had need of it then, when he had nothing to do but die and go home to heaven, how much more do we who are in the midst of the great battle against the flesh and the devil need it all the time. HOW TO MAKE BIG SOAP BUB- BLES.

It is a great sport to make soap bub- bles, but it is twice as much fun if the bubbles are big ones, strong enough not to break when they are floated to the floor. Bubbles twice as big as your head, or as big as the biggest kind of a football, can be easily blown by any one who knows how to mix up the soap-bubble material. To make the big bubbles, take a piece of castile soap about as big as a walnut. Cut it into a cup of warm water, and then add a teaspoonful of glycerin. Stir well, and blow from a small pipe. This will make bubbles enough to last all afternoon. And this is all you care to make in one day. To make pink bubbles, add a few drops of strawber- ry juice, and to make yellow ones put a little orange juice.—Christian Guardian.

RUTH AND NAOMI

Ruth 1:16-22.

Golden Text: "Be kindly affectioned one to another."—Rom. 12:10.

From Doctor Torrey's Gist of the lesson, we take the following:

Exposition. 1.—Ruth's Love for Naomi, 16-18. Ruth, the heroine of this story, and one of the most beautiful women of the O. T. was a Moabitess by birth (ch. 2:6). The Moabites were not only heathen but under an especial ban (Deut. 23:3). Yet Ruth was exalted by God through faith to become the ancestress of Jesus Christ (Matt. 1:3, 5, 6). The man she married was the son of a woman who had been a harlot. The purpose of this story in the history of Israel is to show how God even under the old dispensation was "no respecter of persons" (cf. Acts 10:34, 35). In some respects Ruth was very like Mary the mother of Jesus (Luke 1:26-29). This story belongs to the time of the judges (v. 1). From it we get a more pleasant view of the time of the judges than that which we get from the Book of Judges. The Book of Judges presents to us the warrior side of the time, Ruth the pastoral side. The warrior side of any age is the worst side. Naomi is returning to her people and they have reached the dividing line between Moab and Judah. Three times did Naomi urge her daughters-in-law to return to their homes (vs. 8, 11, 12). It was not that she did not desire their company, but she sought their gain. There seemed to be nothing for them to gain by going on with her (v. 12). The one daughter-in-law, reluctantly, forsook her, the other came to her (v. 13). It illustrates that place in our experience when we have to decide whether to leave home and friends and every thing and go on with Christ, or to turn our backs on Christ and go back to the world and loved ones. Ruth's attitude toward Jesus should be. From the worldly standpoint Orpah seemed to make the wiser choice. But in the issue Ruth gained the most, she became the mother of a long line of kings and of the Christ, one of the most honored women of history. When we become Christians we may suffer the loss of all things but we gain infinitely more than we lose (Phil. 2:8; Ro. 8). Orpah went back, Ruth, she forsook Jehovah also (v. 15). Probably she pitied Ruth as she went back to the delights and ambitions of Moab, but Ruth needed no pity. Ruth had one more chance to go back. Naomi bade her final appeal to Ruth to go back upon Ruth's love for Orpah. One of the strongest motives for loving nature's in forsaking the Lord is love for those who are in the world. But while Ruth loved Orpah she loved Naomi more (cf. Matt. 19:27). No love of any human being will draw away from Jesus the one who really loves Him (2 Cor. 5:14). Orpah was "not far from the kingdom" (cf. Mk. 12:34) but she did not enter it. Naomi would not have them go with her without fully counting the cost (Luke 14:25-28). Ruth's reply to Naomi was one of the most beautiful that ever fell from human lips (vs. 16, 17). It shows what pure love existed in those rude days. It illustrates wonderfully what our attitude should be toward Him whom we love supremely. Ruth meant every word of it and lived up to it. Do we when we say it to Jesus? It was probably in the first place love for Naomi that made Ruth love Naomi's God. If we live as we ought and manifest the life of our God we will draw men to the love of Him. The proverbial relation between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law is anything but that pictured here, but it was loyalty to Jehovah that made the relation so tender and beautiful in this case. In many a case to-day the professed Christianity of mother-in-law and daughter-in-law doesn't make the relation any happier because the professed Christianity is not real. Ruth was really making a choice of Jehovah (ch. 2:12). Quite likely the life of Mahlon, her husband, had had much to do with it. More real heroism of faith was shown in the action of Ruth than in the daring exploits recorded in Judges. The truest heroism to-day is displayed by the self-sacrificing acts of tender women in home life, and not by the Deweys, the Hobsons and the Funstons. Ruth did not stop to ask where Naomi was going, whither-soever it might be she would go also. So we should go with Jesus (Jno. 12:26). It paid Ruth and it will pay us. The humblest hut in Bethlehem would be sweeter to Ruth than the finest palace in Moab because Naomi was there (cf. Phil. 1:23). Christ's people should be our people, Christ's God our God. Where Christ dies we should die (Gal. 2:20). We should be buried too with Him we love (v. 17; cf. Ro. 6:4). But we can go beyond Ruth in her words to Naomi; for we not only die and are buried with Him, but also rise with Him (Eph. 2:6; Col. 2:1). Ruth would think of nothing as separating them but death; even death will not separate us from Christ (Ro. 8:38, 39; 2 Cor. 5:8; R. V.; Phil. 1:23). Naomi saw the wholeheartedness of Ruth's love and accepted it and said no more about her going back. Christ will accept that kind of love from us and no other (Luke 11:32).

2. Not Naomi but Mara, 19-22. They came to Bethlehem, the house of bread, a good place for hungry wanderers to come. We will find our Father's home a home of bread when we come out of Moab, the far country (Luke 15:17-24). Naomi was welcome home, the one who has been in Moab always is, and there will be a great stir when she comes back. Naomi had gone out full and came back empty. The one who goes into Moab is quite likely to come back empty. The people could hardly believe it was Naomi, and it is hard to recognize in the spiritually empty and starving backslider the Naomi we once knew. Naomi was quite right in attributing her present emptiness to Jehovah (vs. 20, 21; cf. 1 Sam. 2:7, 8). Yet Naomi was to blame, for she never should have gone into Moab. Blessed was that misfortune, bitter though it was, that brought her back out of Moab into Canaan (cf. Heb. 12:11). But Naomi was not as empty as she might be, for she had Ruth (ch. 1:15). We are quite likely to overestimate our sorrows and underestimate our possessions. Naomi rightly considered her misfortunes as Jehovah's testimony against her sin (cf. 1:2). We may seem to escape famine by going into Moab (v. 1), but we will lose more than we gain in the long run. It was providential that they got back just in the time of barley harvest (chs. 2 and 3). Every little detail of our life is arranged by God (Ro. 8:28).

STONE BY STONE.

Tom and Robert were walking through the woods. They came to a stream of water, both stopped, deliberating what was best to be done.

"I am going to leap it," said Tom.
"I am going to work my way over, stone by stone," said the more prudent Robert.

Tom leaped, and, missing his footing, fell into the middle of the stream, whilst Robert, working his way carefully from one stone to another, landed safe and dry on the other side.

Boys, learn this lesson while yet young; the shortest way often appears the longest. Do not try to leap across the stream of difficulties that separates you from the shores of success. Perseverence, diligence and determination are all stones cast across the stream of life. A leap will bring you down among them wounded and bruised. But, conquer them, stone by stone, and ultimately you will reach the other shore—the coveted land of success. Remember, do not leap; work your way across the stream, stone by stone.
—Lutheran Standard.

YOUNG LINCOLN'S LIBRARY.

When Abraham Lincoln was a small boy, he had very few books. There was no need for him to consult a list of "the hundred best books." His earliest possession consisted of less than half a dozen volumes—a pioneer's library.

First, of course, was the Bible, a whole library in itself, if properly understood, and containing every sort of literature—stories, poems, dramas, addresses, orations, histories, some simple enough for the youngest child, others taxing the wisdom of the learned. Second, was "Pilgrim's Progress," with its quaint characters and vivid scenes related in simple, vigorous English. "Aesop's Fables" was a third, and introduced the log-cabin boy to a wonderful range of characters—the gods of mythology, the different ranks and classes of mankind, and every animal under the sun. Fourth, was a "History of the United States," in which there was the charm of truth and a modern tone, and from which were learned the lessons of patriotism which Lincoln's manhood put into action. Last came Weems' "Life of Washington," a queer, stilted book, but one full of detail which made Washington seem a living example.

These five books were the beginning of Lincoln's education; and what wise man has outgrown them all?

From the Bible, "Pilgrim's Progress" and Aesop the boy Lincoln learned the power and beauty of plain English words, and saw that the grandest thoughts and most poetic imaginings needed only the strong little words of every day. When, therefore, in later life he wished to be sure he understood any matter, it became his custom to translate it into words such as a child can understand.

Read again the Gettysburg address and the second inaugural, and learn how Lincoln could make the home-spun words of common use move the hearts of his fellow men.—St. Nicholas.

Not everybody, even among grown people, can do great things for God; but the youngest Christian can do little things for God. Are you pleasant at home? Are you industrious at school? Are you good-tempered among your playmates, and obedient to your parents? These are all little things, but they can be done for God, and God notices and blesses them.

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT'

Conducted in the interest of the W. F. M. Society and the W. H. M. Society. Address all communications to Mrs. Florence E. Howell, 170 Maston Street, Dallas, Texas.

WEEK OF PRAYER—W. H. M. SOCIETY.

The W. H. M. Society of Morrow Street Church observed the week of prayer at the appointed time, and we feel thankful in our hearts for this beautiful service. We become more interested in the grand work as we study its different phases and feel encouraged to nobler things when we note its wonderful progress.

On Sunday following, our pastor kindly rendered us the evening hour for the purpose of bringing our work before the ladies of the Church. There were four splendid papers read, on the following subjects: "The Origin and Purpose of the W. H. M. Society," "Our Schools," "The Relation of the Business Movement to City Missions" and "Literature and Titling." As a free will offering we received $10, and as a fitting close to our week of prayer we made our pastor, Bro. J. G. Miller, a patron of the Educational Endowment Loan Fund, and Sister Miller a member of the Preachers' Wives Loan Fund.

We have about forty members, but only fourteen take Our Homes. We hope to have a wider circulation of this splendid little paper in the near future.

We have been planning for some time to show in some way our love and sympathy for our Mission Home in Dallas. So during the week of prayer, we began collecting jars of preserves that we might fill a barrel and send to that worthy institution. With happy hearts and ready hands the work was soon accomplished, and may God bless the recipients and help them to live consecrated Christian lives.

This has been a good year at Morrow Street. We have built our pastor a study that cost us $248, and put over $100 worth of furnishings in the parsonage. We have accomplished something on all lines except the Reading Course. By the time our Annual Conference convenes we will be able to report near $600 collected and expended. We would not have been able to make so full a report had it not been for the wise leadership and untiring energy of our dear President, Sister Bolton, whom to know is to love.

MRS. A. W. CUNNINGHAM, Recording Secretary, Waco, Texas.

NEW HOME MISSION SOCIETY. A Woman's Home Mission Society was organized at Fort Arthur, Texas, with fourteen officers and seven home-care members. Officers as follows: Mrs. M. E. Harlin, President; Mrs. M. E. Richey, Vice-President; Mrs. George McCalland, Treasurer; Mrs. M. W. Richey, Secretary; Mrs. C. C. Gorber, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. C. C. GERBER, Corresponding Secretary.

TO AUXILIARIES OF WEST TEXAS CONFERENCE.

As the minutes of our last annual meeting are now out, and as many of the officers have changed, I write this notice to give addresses of the two that I presume reports will need go to. All reports due to the Treasurer should be addressed to Mrs. G. W. Collier, 111 East Houston Street, San Antonio. All communications going to the Corresponding Secretary should be addressed to Mrs. E. M. Hines, Euclid, Texas.

MRS. T. F. SESSIONS

A MODEL AUXILIARY MEETING. The Secretary supplies the pastor with the announcement, and he reads it plainly and distinctly. The Church has 50 women as members. Seventy-five of these are members of the auxiliary, and forty is the average attendance. The President studies the program and knows every feature to be brought out. Ten minutes before the hour, she is in the church, and greeting her members who come in. Bibles in hand. Promptly at the hour the organist begins the music and all join heartily in singing a familiar song. The President, at some one appointed by her, reads the Scripture lesson and leads the prayer, which may be individual or sentence prayers, in which many will join who are too timid to pray alone. This is a fine way to train women to pray in public. Each member answers to roll-call with a Scripture verse. Items of miscellaneous interest, personal experience or editorial condition. The bright concise minutes are a correct record of the preceding meeting. The Corresponding Secretary reads letters of interest, notices or extracts from the official organ, board and annual reports. The Treasurer distributes notes containing a statement of the financial standing of each member, asking them to pay their dues quietly to the credit. A thank offering can be dropped in the box on the table at any time during the meeting. The agent for official organ reports list of subscribers, new names, and stresses the importance of reading the paper and the Reading Course. She has many subscribers who are not members of the auxiliary. The standing committees report visits to sick, sorrowing and strangers, charity work, and garments distributed. Decoration of church, condition of parsonage and many other items which differ in each auxiliary. Throughout the meeting a spirit of harmony and cheerful acquiescence on the part of the members to perform any duty assigned is evident. The secret of this and the success of the auxiliary is that the members are constant in prayer for their work, officers, pastor, Church and each other. This auxiliary is an inspiration to itself, the pastor, Church and community. I have never seen one with all these perfections, but believe it possible to attain this degree.

This article is intended to be suggestive, and is prayerfully written by request of the Executive Board of the Home Mission Society, Northwest Texas Conference. MRS. A. C. JOHNSON, Corsicana, Texas.

NOTICE.

A joint meeting of the Executive Committees of the Home Mission Societies of the two conferences, Texas and East Texas—has been called for December 5 and 6. The annual meeting of the Conference Society has been postponed. Due notice will be given later of the time and place of the annual meeting. Any pastor or desiring help in parsonage building must have his application in the hands of the Corresponding Secretary by December 1. Those in the East Texas Conference send to Mrs. George Harlan, Orange, Texas; those in the Texas Conference send to me, at Houston, Texas. No application can be considered unless signed by the trustees and approved by the presiding elder and quarterly Conference of the charge from which it comes. MRS. O. T. HOTCHKISS

W. F. M. SOCIETY. The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of Trinity M. E. Church, Dallas, held an open meeting Sunday evening, November 16, Mrs. M. E. Boyer presiding. An interesting program was furnished. Music adapted to the service. Some very earnest helpful talks were made by the pastor, Mrs. R. W. Thompson, Mrs. S. D. Thurston and others. MRS. MAMIE HAUGHTON, Corresponding Secretary.

A CITY BOARD OF MISSIONS.

At the near approach of the National Thanksgiving Day, the thoughts of the truly appreciative naturally turn in gratitude to the Great Giver of all good gifts, as they try to recount the many blessings which have crowned their lives since the last annual period of thanksgiving. While our feelings of gratitude swell up from our hearts there comes, too, the thought of those needy ones of God's creature who have not had the many blessings, temporal and spiritual, which others have enjoyed, but whose lives are barren of much that gives joy to this life and hope for the life to come. It is for the cheering and aiding of such needy ones that many of the followers of Christ in our city have entered into various organizations and have built and equipped a number of charitable institutions, thus demonstrating that they have in them "the same mind that was in Christ," of whom it is written that while upon earth "He went about doing good."

Among the more recent organizations having in view the assistance of the needy, extending aid to such in both spiritual and material things, is the City Board of Missions, composed of representatives from the various Methodist Churches of our city and other Christian organizations. This organization has for its President Mrs. L. H. Potts, 277 Worth Street; for its Vice-President Mrs. W. C. Young, 25 Wall Street; for Second Vice-President, Mrs. W. M. Crook, 618 Third Street; Treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Nichols, corner McKinnon Avenue and Pearl Street; Secretary, Mrs. W. H. Howell, 170 Maston Street. The following ladies compose the board: First Methodist Church—Mrs. W. C. Young; Mrs. G. M. Sabel; Mrs. E. C. Thomas; Mrs. W. H. Howell; First Street Church—Mrs. L. S. Barton; Mrs. L. H. Potts; Mrs. J. L. Johnson; Mrs. J. H. Webster; Trinity Church—Mrs. J. M. Nichols; Mrs. E. T. Watson; Mrs. L. C. Morgan; Mrs. W. H. Howell; First Street Church—Mrs. W. H. Potts; Mrs. W. M. Robly; Mrs. E. M. Rose; Haskell Avenue Church—Mrs. W. L. Hanson; Oak Lawn Church—Mrs. C. B. Gillman; Oak Cliff Church—Mrs. W. M. Crook; Mrs. Henry Dorsey; Mrs. G. A. Turner.

The pastors of the Methodist Churches thus represented are ex-officio members of the board. The board is fortunate in having secured the services of Miss Ertelle Haskell, who will act as city missionary for the board, she having had the benefit of a course of training in the Sagreitt Bible and Training School of Kansas City, Mo., an institution of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for the training of workers for both home and foreign missionary work. Miss Haskell is a young lady of fine Christian character, and comes with high recommendations by the training school mentioned, and the board looks for her a cordial and respectful welcome in whatever home of our city she may enter in the discharge of her appointed work.

This is but a beginning of a special line of city mission work which the board is desiring to do, and as time goes on it is hoped that much good may be done, many needy ones in our midst be aided and cheered, and many erring ones helped to a better life.

THE UNION OF THE EAST TEXAS AND TEXAS CONFERENCE FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

The knowledge of the change made by the General Conference in the status of the Texas Conference was not known to me, the Corresponding Secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Texas Conference, until on my way to the meeting of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions last June—too late to advise with the Executive Committee of the Texas Conference Society. Meeting Miss L. P. Lane, Corresponding Secretary of the East Texas Conference Society, at the depot on her way to Charleston, S. C., to annual meeting of our board, I found she was in entire ignorance as to the change. Thus we were left to our own devices.

We wrote to our respective Presidents on our arrival at Charleston. The annual meeting of the East Texas Conference Society was to be held at Marshall, Texas, June 12. The President, Mrs. Heartsill, on hearing from Miss Lane as to the change, sent me a pressing invitation to attend this meeting on my way home. Mrs. Philpott, our President, advised it. Never did one poor, weary brain do more thinking in the same space of time. Days were slipping away, and much to do. At last I felt I had my plans laid. I placed them before Mrs. M. D. Wightman, President of the board, and Mrs. S. C. Trueheart, Corresponding Secretary of the board. They listened, then questioned, then advised that I attempt to carry out my plans as I had outlined to them.

The first item was: "The East Texas Conference Society continue to act as a Conference Society until March 1, 1903, the close of the present fiscal year." I asked Mrs. Trueheart to offer this as a resolution at the annual meeting of the board. This was done. See Twenty-Fourth Annual Report, page 156: "On motion, the East Texas Conference Society was instructed to go on with their work until the close of the present fiscal year, and also to send a representative to the next board meeting," thus placing the official sanction on the plan we wished to carry out, for a continuance of the work for the year was necessary to its completion.

Miss Lane left that evening, feeling deeply the loss of her Conference Society, but determined to work for it as heretofore, trusting in its new relations it might be a power in the land.

After the close of the meeting of the Woman's Board, I followed Miss Lane to Marshall, and received a warm welcome from the officers and members of the East Texas Conference Society. Of course, they felt their change of relation and could not see the necessity for it (neither could I).

Mrs. Heartsill did much to soothe and calm, and after earnest prayer we began our work.

Item 1—To accept the resolution of the board to continue their work unchanged to the close of the fiscal year—March 1, 1903.

Item 2—That the District Secretaries go with the territory, continuing their work without change.

Item 3—At the close of the fourth quarter, all auxiliaries and juvenile societies will make their reports as usual, the Treasurers of same making final and prompt remittance to their present Conference Society Treasurer, who will in turn make her last remittance as Treasurer of the East Texas Conference Society, the District Secretaries reporting as heretofore to Corresponding Secretary, Miss L. P. Lane, sending duplicate to President. This closes the work of the East Texas Conference Society.

Item 4—At the regular time during the first quarter, District Secretaries will send to all auxiliary and juvenile societies blank reports, with the name "East" marked out. This will be their first report as belonging to the Texas Conference Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. No change but the marking out of the word "East" but Treasurers of these societies must remit all moneys, dues, conference fund, etc., collected during the quarter to Mrs. M. E. Steele, Treasurer Texas Conference W. F. M. Society, Houston, Texas. District Secretaries will report to Mrs. S. S. Park, Corresponding Secretary Texas Conference Society, Rodgers, Texas; also, send a duplicate report to the President, Mrs. Sallie Philpott, Dew postoffice, Freestone County, Texas. Thus the change is effected.

Item 5—A committee, composed of the President, Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer of East Texas Conference Society, be appointed to confer with a like committee of the Texas Conference Society. No call has been made.

Item 6—To settle the place for the meeting of the united Conference Society next June. Invitations for next annual meeting of the united Conference Society were asked for from the auxiliaries, to be sent to the annual meeting at Bastrop. Invitation was given to the officers and members to meet with us there on the 20th.

With warm words for our Conference Society, farewells were spoken, and we left, anxious to reach our home before the Sabbath.

We made our report to the Texas Conference Society. It was commended and approved. The committee asked for at the East Texas Conference was appointed. Invitations were received from Henderson and Palestine, asking that the first meeting of the united Conference Society might be held with them. Palestine was the unanimous choice. A resolution was passed to leave to the decision of the joint delegation at Palestine all points not decided at Marshall.

A vote of thanks was also passed for the courteous attention accorded the Corresponding Secretary while arranging for the union of the two Conference Societies.

We hope that the future will prove the wisdom of the work done. We feel sad at the loss of our Austin District, and will give it up with regret at the close of our fiscal year. May they thrive in the future as in the past, and prove a blessing to our sisters to whom they go.

Sisters, we have difficult work before us. Let us ask wisdom from Him that giveth to all liberally.

MRS. S. S. PARK,
Corresponding Secretary Texas Conference W. F. M. Society,
Rodgers, Texas.

THE LOVE OF NATURE.

Of all esthetic sentiments love of nature possesses the advantage of being the one which, even though pushed to excess, does not disturb the equilibrium of body and mind. Love of nature is the sole emotion which is absolutely hygienic. One may die of an exaggerated love of music, etc.; one simply becomes healthy from an exaggerated love of nature. Air and light! The Greek were right to philosophize in the open-air, in the gardens and groves. A ray of sunlight sometimes helps one more to understand the world than an eternity of meditation in some gray room. The emotion that arises from the contemplation of a landscape, of a sunset, of a stretch of blue sea, of a snow capped mountain, or even the blue dome of the sky itself, is absolutely pure, neither too depressing nor too immoderately gay. In the presence of nature one's esthetic sensibilities become the means of refreshing and resting one, instead of fatiguing one, and if nature has its moods of sadness, they contain a touch of the infinite which enlarges the heart. The immensity of nature and of the all-enveloping heavens becomes, for those who feel it, a constant source of stoical serenity.—Great Thoughts.

IN SEWING MACHINE WOOD WORK

WITH ALL THE LATEST ATTACHMENTS

THE ABOVE ILLUSTRATES OUR NEW SWELL FRONT DROP head furniture fitted to our ball bearing stand. The design of this case is patented and controlled exclusively by the factory furnishing this machine. It is furnished regularly in Oak or Walnut finish, at $23.50. The front of the table is beautifully curved with the long center drawer made to conform. The drawers are of the swell front pattern formed to correspond with the corners of the table and made up of three thicknesses of wood with the grain crossed, and bent to form, which makes them very light, yet strong. The drawer cases where the drawers slide are fitted with raised platforms, and the sides of each drawer are extended below the bottom of the drawer proper, thus forming guides which fit closely to the case platform, and serve to guide the drawer so that it will slide in and out readily. This construction insures the drawer always working freely and never binding or sticking, a very common complaint and source of annoyance with the ordinary style of construction. The technical finish is very high and the grain of the wood is all carefully selected, and, as a result, the general appearance is extremely rich and pleasing. One year's subscription to the Texas Christian Advocate and this fine machine for COTTON—Howard Herman, infant son of J. C. and Carrie Cotton, was born May 2, 1892, and died October 4, 1892. Only a few months was the precious life, but given to these these home, when God in His wisdom saw fit to take the little flower and transplant it in His garden, where there is no pain, no sorrow nor death. Cheer up, dear parents. Weep not for your darling, for we know he has gone to rest. Only pray that you may live to meet him in heaven. Thank God for a home where we can go and meet our loved ones and live throughout eternity. His aunts,

ALICE DABBY.

HALL—Mrs. John S. Hale, formerly of Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas, was born May 14, 1822, of religious parents, and died November 14, 1892, near Patrick, McLennan County, Texas, of typhoid fever complicated. After twenty-eight days of patient suffering, he passed over triumphantly to be with his mother, who went up in that twenty-three years ago. All that a kind father, brothers and friends could do could not keep our brother here. His Christian father, of Duval, Texas, was with him to the last. We loved him. He was struggling to finish his education to preach the gospel, but a merciful God took him with sad hearts we laid his body to rest in Bosqueville Cemetery, November 18, 1892, to await the resurrection morn. He was converted when 5 years of age and joined the M. E. Church, South, and not being fully satisfied with his experience, sought a deeper work of grace and obtained satisfaction to himself and know for himself of God's love shed abroad in his heart by the Holy Ghost given unto us. The blessings of God be with the family of our brother.

J. A. BOWERS.

Death, Texas.

PAYNE—Jeff D. Payne was born March 28, 1861, in Hopkins County, Texas. He was married to Miss E. E. Walker, January 1, 1887, professed religion, and joined the Methodist church, under the ministry of Rev. W. A. Stuckey, in July, 1890, and lived a devoted Christian till the time of his death, which occurred November 2, 1892, at his home near Pine Forest, Texas. He is missed by all who know him. Payne that he was a noble, good man, one of the best in the community in which he lived. He was true in all the relations of life to the limit of his knowledge. If he failed at all, it was in judgment that erred, and not his heart, and he was possessed of very fine common-sense. Mrs. Payne was a very devoted husband and father, kindly and lovingly anticipating and supporting all the wants of his family to the limit of his ability. He leaves a wife and two little boys, several brothers and sisters and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his departure. He will be missed from the church, social and family circles, but it should afford all great consolation to anticipate the happy reunion in the home in the skies, whither all may go and join him through Him who loved us and redeemed us with his own precious blood.

W. T. MORROW.

BALLIO—Miss Kate, daughter of Paul and Martha Ballio, was born June 28, 1888, and died October 18, 1892. Miss Kate was indeed a bright girl, full of promise, and loved by all who knew her. Although very young, being only in her 10th year, she had secured a State certificate, and was to have begun her school on Monday before she died on Thursday. She professed religion and joined the Church in one of our services this year, and being a very excellent singer, attended us in some of our protracted meetings, singing to the delight of all who heard her. She is greatly missed from our choir here below, but she left the assurance behind that she has gone to join that blood-washed choir in the beautiful city of God. In conclusion, I would say to the parents: you have one more jewel in heaven that is looking from those windows upon you as you are toiling here below, and you have the assurance that when your feet touch the margin of the river of death Miss Kate will meet you there with a host of holy angels to convey you across the chilly waters and land you safely with God and the angels on the other side. May God's ministering angels hover around you, and with their shining fingers point you to that home where sickness and sorrow shall cease, is the prayer of your humble pastor.

used as an element. No better insight into his character may be found than that which was manifested in his tender love and affection for his mother. With all who knew them this was a matter of general remark. In his childhood and youth it was characterized by perfect obedience to all her commands and precepts, and as he grew to manhood, it ripened into a zealous regard for all her wishes relative to his life and conduct. From the time that he was old enough to do manual labor he sought employment, and was anxious that he should not be a burden to his father, and his earnings were always subject to the needs of the family. This desire to be a help rather than a burden led him to seek employment on the rice farms of Matagorda County last fall, but his delicate constitution was not strong enough to resist the malaria of this region, and on Saturday, November 1, 1892, he died of congestion of the brain at Bay City, Texas, aged 21 years, 8 months and 4 days. None but those who have passed through a similar trial can truly sympathize with Mrs. Callaway and his family in this the greatest affliction that has come to them. I bespeak for them the prayers of all who read this, that the Lord and the staff of the Lord, be their comfort. C. N. MORTON, Bay City, Texas.

DOUGHERTY—Era, daughter of Geo. and India Dougherty, was born September 2, 1891, and died November 15, 1892. Little Era had been a sufferer most all of her life. Her stay on earth was of short duration, but of sufficient length to endear herself to parents, grandmother, brothers and sisters. The smiles and prattle of the little one will be seen and heard no more in the home, but there is a brighter day coming. Thank God for the hope of the father, the mother, the mother, brothers and sisters, and the promise that we shall know each other there. May Era's death be a little monitor to beckon her parents, brothers and sisters to a happier clime, where partings are no more. We laid her remains to rest at Shelby, Texas, November 16, 1892.

JNO. R. McCLESKEY, Lingville, Texas.

STUBBLEFIELD—J. W. Stubblefield, Jr., was born in Houston County, Texas, July 14, 1889, and fell asleep in Jesus November 18, 1892. He leaves behind to mourn their loss a father, three sisters, his mother and one sister having preceded him to the glory world. John was just in the bloom of young manhood, with all the prospects of a bright future before him, but he was called away so early in life we can not understand now, but we know God's ways are the best, and in the last great day he will make all things plain. Think not, loved ones, of John as gone from us forever, though he has left your earthly home, he has just gone on before you to the home of the soul, and there, on that far-off, peaceful shore, so free from all sorrow and care, with mother and sister, he is waiting for you at the beautiful gate. His cousin, MARY SHUPPTINE, Jacksonville, Texas.

ALEXANDER—Another good man has gone to his reward, a most noble life, a noble heart, a noble soul, a noble character, a noble life, a noble death. Paul Alexander, who was born in Mississippi, April 5, 1842, passed to the unseen but glorious shore November 4, 1892. He died with cancer, and the last few months of his life were months of extreme suffering. Mrs. Alexander was a good Christian man and loyal Methodist, having professed religion as early as 1867, on which day he also joined the Church of his choice, and has remained a faithful member since that date. He was married to Miss J. E. Coates, in Lauderdale County, Miss., January 2, 1868. After a residence of two years in Lauderdale County, he moved to Coryell County, Texas, where he remained until his death. He was the father of seven children—four boys and three girls. He left his family deeply bereaved, but with the blessed hope of a meeting in the sweet by and by. He is gone, but his good influence still remains, and will remain until the waves of time are beating upon the eternal shores. His life and godly example were not only a blessing to his own family, but to all who knew him. We say farewell till the resurrection. J. R. HALL, Oglesby, Texas.

WINFREY—A letter from the grief-stricken parents, Mrs. E. and state: Mary H. Winfrey, of Webberville, Texas, informs me of the death of their noble son, Frank O. Winfrey, at the home of his parents, which occurred on the morning of November 7, 1892, having lingered through thirty-five days of that dreadful disease, typhoid fever. This intelligence carries me back in memory to my boyhood days, when his grandfather, Dr. I. D. Hill, now of Austin, Texas, and I were friends and companions in Tallapoosa County, Ala. Frank was born July 28, 1880, being in his 23d year when he died. He was converted and united with the Church of his parents—the Methodist—at the age of 16 and lived a consistent life thereafter. He had received a good business education in the commercial school at the Southwestern University, and was entering active life with fair prospects of success. During his long illness he was patient in suffering, and died leaving a host of friends that will feel their loss; but chief among the mourners is the smitten family circle, whose sorrow can be assumed by him only who has said, "I am the resurrection and the life." Why one in the flower of young manhood should thus pass away is one of the insoluble mysteries of Providence, but Christian faith realizes that "He doeth all things well." E. S. SMITH.

RHEUMATISM

ACUTE AND CHRONIC, MUSCULAR, MERCURIAL, ARTICULAR AND INFLAMMATORY.

Some people have been suffering from Rheumatism so long that they can scarcely remember the time when they were entirely free from an ache or pain, and have long since forgotten the joys of a painless existence. They are at the mercy of every ill wind and their misery is aggravated by exposure to cold or sudden changes in the temperature. They become walking barometers and most accurate in weather predictions, the increasing pains in muscles and joints foretelling the approaching storm or the coming of bad weather. It is from these constant sufferers that the great army of rheumatic cripples is recruited. Their bodies are worn out by the incessant pains and the joints become so stiffened and bent that they are at last compelled to give up or hobble about on crutches.

Nobody ever outlived Rheumatism; the disease never loosens its grip or leaves of its own accord, but must be driven out by intelligent and persistent treatment through the blood, for Rheumatism of every variety and form is caused by an over acid condition of the blood, and the deposit in muscles, joints and nerves of corrosive poisons and gritty particles, and it is these irritating substances that produce the inflammation, swelling and pains, which last as long as the blood remains in this sour and acid state.

Bowling Green, Ky. Gentlemen:—About a year ago I was attacked by acute Rheumatism in my shoulders, arms and legs below the knee. I could not raise my arm to comb my hair. Doctors prescribed for me for over two months without giving me any relief. I saw S. S. S. advertised and decided to try it. Immediately I commenced its use I felt better, and remarked to my mother that I was glad I had at last found some relief. I continued its use and am entirely well. I will always feel deeply interested in the success of S. S. S. since it did me so much good. Yours truly, MRS. ALICE MORTON, 311 Twelfth Street.

To cure Rheumatism permanently the blood must be purified and invigorated, and no other remedy does this so well or so promptly as S. S. S. It refreshes and restores to the thin acid blood its nourishing and health-sustaining properties. And when strong, rich blood is again circulating through the body the acid poisons and irritating matter are washed out of the muscles and joints, and the pains at once cease and Rheumatism is a thing of the past. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable medicine and does not derange the stomach like the strong mineral remedies, but builds up the general health, increases the appetite and tones up the digestion.

Through our Medical Department the pain-racked, despondent Rheumatic sufferer will receive helpful advice from Physicians of experience and skill without charge. Write us fully about your case. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

LET DEFINITE RESULTS OUR PREACHING

Preaching the gospel is reaching the children of men and spiritual truth. True, media through which this is and effectual means of accomplishing it. Then when the gospel is preached we have a right to expect in the first place people convinced, brought to repentance. Our Church service is adapted and results ought to be forth Christ has promised as much pulpits trust in the promise with his given conditions, they ought to follow the proclamation message. A preacher who in and year out and does the required at his hand and the year has no visible fruit soul-saving, may well doubt the efficacy of his call to the ministry. Examine into his fidelity to mission. There is something in a barren ministry. Whether in the city station or country Church, it is proof positive is a serious lack somewhere. Needs to take his Bible, go to place, get down on his knees, his crying unto God until the of his unfruitful ministry are removed. Are you preacher and have you charged a Church? If so, you had the cause and at once proceed help you get out of this barrenness. Then your ministry forth fruit and the Church of her lethargy. In the next ought to be established in firmness under an efficient need to be rooted and ground as it is in Jesus. To a people ed the word of God will be the world will not have str for them. But as it is, many Methodists find more delight in things of sense than in the
