King to hold town hall here next week

State Representative Ken King (R-Canadian) will be in Clarendon next week as he tours House District 88 to talk about the upcoming 86th Regular Legisla-tive Session.

Rep. King will be at the Bairfield Activity Center on Wednes day, October 17, from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and will solicit feedback constituents on issues of vital importance to them and their communities.

"Before beginning another lative session, it is important that I receive input and ideas from the constituents of District 88 to help me effectively represent and advocate for our community," King said.

City water project moving forward

The City of Clarendon's water infrastructure project continues to move forward this week as the foundation for the new er standpipe has been poured on the east side of town.

City Administrator David Dockery says that portion of the project will proceed as soon as the new tank can be manufactured and delivered.

In the meantime, contrac-tors are locating water lines in the neighborhoods of Fourth and Collins on and Third and McLean as well as on Clarendon Avenue ahead of installing underground bores in those areas as soon as

Dockery also says the city hopes to see pipe start going in the ground in those areas next week

The Great 25 were en through a blinded process by the Great 25 Committee panel based upon the established criteria with each nominee's accomplishments in the fol-lowing areas: 1) Leadership qualities, 2) Service to the community, 3) Compassionate caregiver and 4) Significant contributions.

As a registered nurse, Bond is a case manager for Kindred Hospice and was nominated for her caring and competent work on behalf of her patients and their families. Her nominator said her leadership was exemplified by her kind and considerate approach to her co-workers as well as those for under Kindred's manager of clinical practice, Twilia Chumney, said Bond is an amazing nurse who doesn't rec-ognize the impact she has on people because she is so humble.

"Sis started nursing in the waiting room comforting women in labor as they waited on delivery time," Chumnev said. "Sis now works in the waiting room of Heaven comforting people for their next journey. It takes an extraordinary person to be strong enough to the excitement of a baby being born taking their first breath of life and then witnessing the sadness of a person that has lived life taking their last breath. Sis definitely has the Heart for both challenging jobs but has been where God meant her to be... holding hands and leading both babies and adults on their very own special jour-ney. On brave wings, Sis flies."

Bond's service to the community has been seen through her active role as a foster parent for ten kids through the years, her support for local law rcement, and her support of the Children's Miracle Network.

Her nominator also said that Bond exhibited the qualities of a compassionate caregiver by going over and above the physical needs of her patients to also tend to the emotional and spiritual needs of both her patients and their families and caregivers. She has even gone so far as to make sure some patients have realized their dreams, as was the case with one patient who wanted to ride a horse in their lifetime and Bond made it possible and was by the patient's side when that dream

During a career that has spanned more than 30 years, Bond's significant contributions to nursing are the way she brings a wealth of knowledge and comfort to her patients. She serves with both her mind and her heart, the nomi-

After-school program encouraging young artists

By Roger Estlack
The creative talents of junior high and high school students have been uncorked over the last few weeks thanks to an after-school program sponsored by Clarendon's Les Beaux Arts Club.

For five years now, en's organization establ in 1927 has worked to establish a volunteer art curriculum in the Clarendon public school system in conjunction with the club's annual arts festival. Club members work with elementary students, and a volunteer professional artist has worked with older students. But this year, the club went a step further and employed a professional artist to help guide about two dozen stu-

With Rafael's help, the club has taken its ACE (Art Cultivates Enlightenment) Program to a new level, offering a seven-week afterschool class that helps students working with different kinds of

Count on us to continue to serve you

The first full week of October is National Newspaper Week every year, and the Enterprise again joins in the celebration to remind everyone of the importance of a free and independent press.

It's easy to find "information" about what people think is happening in your community. But if you want verified news you can count on, then you can always turn to your hometown paper. The Enterprise reports on the meetings you don't have time to attend, let's you know what's about to happen with your local taxes, keeps up with the local football teams, and so The newspaper also serves as the eyes and ears of the people keeping a watchful eye on the proceedings of local commentary governments, making sure they keep their activities between the lines and above board.

The watchdog role has always been a tough one in a small town where the opportunity exists that the public officials being scrutinized by the paper could be close friends of the paper's staff or could be the person sitting next to the editor tomorrow at the local person studing fiext to the entire to the control control or at the focal restaurant. And yet local news men and women across America continue to fight the good fight and work hard to bring you the best information possible.

Your newspaper fills other roles as well, not the least of which is the community's de facto history keeper. The first draft of history is right here in your hands. Twenty-five, fifty, or a hundred years from now someone may pick up this paper to find out what was happening with our city, how the local sports teams were doing, or to find their ancestor's obituary. Issues of our paper going back 140 years are an invaluable or our paper going back 140 years are an invaluable resource as the triumphs and tragedies of our lives unfold in black and white. The future will be no dif-ferent as the news of the present becomes documented

But that's for the people of tomorrow. The most important role remains here and now as we stay on top of everything from City Hall to the Courthouse to College Hill and the local school boards. Citizens do not just have a right to know what's happening at those places, they have a need to know. The actions of local boards and elected officials are important to report so that voters can decide if they want to continue to support those people or vote for someone else or even throw their own hate in the ring.

And just as important is the need to keep up with the world around you. What's happening with the Cotton Festival? What are our school kids doing? When will the arts festival be held? All of these questions can be answered just by picking up your Clarendon Enterprise, and you can count on us being here next week with more information that you need. and the week after that and the week after that.

Of course, we do change with the times. We're online and on Facebook and on Twitter. But regardless of the medium you choose to get your Enterprise news through, you can be assured that it is always there for you to keep you better informed.

Your hometown paper has been spreading the word in these parts since 1878, and we're not stopping carves designs on silver. He'll take a small chisel and tap on it with a spe-cial hammer he made. He says most silversmiths and engravers make their own tools. After he is satisfied with the design, he'll polish it with another special instrument. He puts his work on bits, spurs, belt buckles and pistols. He is perhaps best known for making badges from five peso coins for law enforcement officers.

"All kinds," he says. "Anybody from our local or area sheriff's depart-ments. I've probably made badges from every sheriff or deputy in the panhandle plus the rest of the state. I've done them for the secret service, FBI, United States Marshall Service, just all over. There is a limited number of people authorized to do badges for them. I'm lucky enough to be one of them."

He's a former high school and college basketball referee and did engraving in his spare time. His business increased when the local sheriff brought in a Texas Ranger.

meeting and he showed some of his Ranger buddies what I had done and it just took off from there. I stopped being a referee to devote fulltime to my silversmithing. That really pleased my wife because that meant I wouldn't be traveling at night so

His badges are in great demand by law enforcement people all over the United States and beyond. He has sent his creations to England and Australia. "I've done close to six hundred agencies, federal, state and local. I've also made dog tags for cowboy's dogs, just about anything you can think of. Some guys want me to put designs on handcuffs. I built a set of spurs for President George W. Bush. I keep a picture of those on the wall."

He works long hours in a barn studio behind his house.

"I usually get out here about one o'clock after lunch and work until three or four o'clock in the morning seven days a week. I have to in order to keep up with the demand. That box over there has about fifteen hundred to two thousand orders. On some of the firearms that I've engraved, some people had to wait two to four years for me to get them

For relaxation he plays blues harmonica. He's quite good and gave me a short sample of his playing. Then he got out his guitar and played a tune on that. He keeps he instruments around to get him away from the tedious work. He got his musical talent from his mom, who was a professional singer. Kevin is selftaught and does everything by hand. His studio is like a museum with pictures, old equipment and shelves full of inter-esting items. The walls are completely covered with his memorabilia.

THE POWER OF the PRESS

Kavanaugh's effect on High Court

By Noab Elam

After much delay due to allegations of sexual assault, Brett Kavanaugh was confirmed into the Supreme Court on Saturday with a 50 to 48 majority basi cally along party lines.

However, Democratic Senator of West Virginia Joe Manchin did vote in favor of Kavanaugh due to the fact that if he voted against him, it would be almost impossible for him to get reelected in November. Nevertheless, the vote was closer than it should be because Democrats aren't willing to vote across the aisle at all recently.

But to be fair, most Republicans have also refused to vote across the aisle. That is actually how the nuclear option was invented and is the only reason both Kavanaugh and Gorsuch have been confirmed into the Supreme Court.

Disregarding the refusal to com-promise, Senate democrat's antics with this confirmation process have just been disgusting. They have used Christine Ford to viciously attack Kavanaugh and try to delay the confirmation until after the election, which would most likely give the democrats the majority and stop Kavanaugh. Then after the hearing, they were calling for an FBI investigation even though Kavanaugh had already been through six and have come up clear in all of them.

And of course Jeff Flake, the Democrats' hero on the republican side, has called for another one before the confir-mation vote. However, Mitch McConnell called for a cloture on Friday to opt out of this ridiculous filibuster type move, which was exactly right on his part.

The reason Democrats in politics are so frightened by Kavanaugh being on the Supreme Court is because of the implications and effects he could have discussed is Roe v. Wade. Even though Kavanaugh has not stated that he would vote to reverse the controversial case, his position on the issue is more towards the dissenting opinion than that of former Judge Kennedy, who was the swing vote in the past for the case. He also views religious liberty as a guaranteed right by the First Amendment. During the hear-ing, he stated that "religious speakers and religious people have a right to their place in the public square." And lastly, his views on Net Neutrality go directly against Obama's as he has stated in dissent opinion in 2017.

This Supreme Court seat Kava-naugh has just filled is an extremely important one. It will potentially affect many cases, including some of the most controversial, such as Roe v. Wade. Noab Elam is a senior at Clarendon Hig School.

Journalism matters in your town

By Jim Zachary, Valdosta Daily Times Beyond the noise of the Beltway and the daily vilification of national media outlets, are community newspa-pers serving cities, counties and regions throughout the U.S.

Your local newspaper is far from being The Fake News. Your newspaper is most definitely not The Enemy of the People.

In fact, the paper is the eyes, ears and voice of the people.

The people who work down at the paper are your friends, neighbors or maybe even your relatives.

They are dedicated men and women who work hard every day to inform, educate and entertain you.

Perhaps presidents and political media when they feel as if they are under

But not like this President Donald J. Trump's all-out assault on journalists is beyond the pale.

When he calls the media the enemy of the people and says the news they report is fake, he has gone way too far.

If he feels the need to push back against certain reports because he believes those specific stories contain false information, that is fair game.

But to malign journalism itself and to paint all journalists with one broad stroke is irresponsible and even danger ous to an open and free society.

The media must play an important role as the Fourth Estate, hold government in check and shine the light on all the actions of our governors. That is the very intention of the First Amendment.

The president does not seem to understand, or care, that all journalists everywhere - even here in your hometown - feel they are under constant

That includes the reporter sitting next to you at the county commission meeting, the editorialist questioning a property tax increase by local govern-ment and the photographer taking pic-tures at your child's school play.

Each of these local journalists is meone's son, daughter, husband, wife, father, mother, brother, sister or cousin. They are not your enemies or the purveyors of fake news.

They have no desire to spread falsehoods.

They are decent people with tons of integrity. Many of them are young people just getting started in their careers, full of idealism and hope that in their own small way they can help make their own little corner of the world a better place.

Just imagine how it must make them feel every time someone parrots the loose words of the president and calls them The Fake News and The Enemy of the People.

Actually, they see themselves as truth tellers whose only desire is to serve their community. They do so by going to city council meetings, covering high school football games, telling the stories of your neighbors, sharing information about things to do, and, yes, by hold-ing local government accountable when necessary

You may support President Trump and his policies, but please do not join the president in his vitriol toward the press and vilification of the fine, hardworking men and women who are out covering meetings and events in the community each day.

It might even be nice during National Newspaper Week, when yo see a reporter at a community event, your club or organization, at your child's school or covering a public meeting to go up to them and simply thank them for what they do.

Jim Zachary is the editor of the Valdosta (Georgia) Daily Times.

Facebook announces large breach

Hi gang, Let's Pray for our farmers, this weather is not helping them as they try to get their crops to market. The weather people are saying we should get a lot more snow this year and that would be nice. I remember the snows that we use to receive. Stacked up on the fences and sometimes would be 17 inches deep. Bob Anti-scammy Sammy

by Lesley Fair Attorney, FTC Division of Consumer & Business Education There's former Van Halen front man Sammy Hagar, NFL legend Slingin' Sammy Baugh, and the incomparable Sammy Davis, Jr. All notable in their own right, but did they win back $586 mil-lion for defrauded consumers? We didn't think so. That's why we have another pick for the Sammy Hall of another pick for the Sammy Hall of Fame. FTC attorney Karen Dodge and FTC Midwest Region team members Joannie Wei, Elizabeth Scott, and Doug McKenney were just honored with Samuel J. Heyman Service to America Medals, also known as Sammies, for negotiating the historic $586 million settlement with Western Union. Thanks to the work of the team and other FTC colleagues - and in cooperation with staffers from the Department of Justice - hundreds of thousands of consumers who lost money through fraud-induced money transfers will be getting refunds.

The FTC alleged that Western Union facilitated consumer fraud through its global money transfer system. According to the complaint, the company was aware that fraud was afoot, but looked the other way and profited from the wrongdoing of scammers, including some of its own agents. In addition to negotiating business The Service to America Medals were created in 2002 by the nonpartisan, nonprofit Partnership for Public Service. Among the highest honors a federal employee can receive, the Sammies acknowledge excellence in government. Karen and the Midwest Region team were the winners in the Homeland Security and Law Enforcement category. Congratulations to our FTC colleagues. Facebook breach: what to do next by Lisa Weintraub Schifferle Attorney, FTC, Division of Consumer and Business Education

Facebook recently announced the largest breach in the company's history. The breach affected about 50 million users, allowing hackers to take over their accounts. If you use Facebook, you may be wondering what to do next. Here are a few steps you can take. First, you probably want to know more about the breach. According to Facebook, the attackers took advantage of a weakness in the "View As" feature, which lets people see what their profile looks like to others. The hackers stole digital keys that keep you logged in to Facebook so you don't need to re-enter your password every time. Facebook says they've fixed the vulnerabilities and reset digital keys on 50 million affected accounts, plus an additional 40 million accounts that used the "View As" function.

To better protect yourself after this breach: Watch out for imposter scams. With access to your Face-book account, hackers can get a lot of information about you. That information could be used to impersonate people you know or companies you do business with. If someone calls you out of the blue, asking for money or personal information, hang up. Then, if you want to know for sure if the person calling you was really your family member or was really from a company you know and trust, call them back at a number you know to be correct before you give any information or money. And remember: anyone who demands that you pay by gift card or by wiring money is scamming you. Always.

Consider changing your pass word. Facebook says that it fixed the vulnerability, so there's no need to change your password. But, to be safe, log in and change your pass-word anyway. If you use the same password other places, change it there, too.

Don't forget to change your security questions, as well – espe-cially if the answers include information that could be found in your Facebook account.

For more information about what to do after a data breach, visit IdentityTheft.gov/databreach and watch the FTC's video on What to Do After a Data Breach. If you learn that someone has misused your personal information, go to Identi-tyTheft.gov to report identity theft and get a personal recovery plan Because recovering from identity theft - and data brea with a plan.

The legend of the lemon meringue pie

Ole Jim and I have been mar- ready-made ried a very long time and we mar-ried at a very young age, 18 and 16. ried at a very young age, 18 He obtained a job from Cudd Bros. trucking making the priestly sum of $30.00 a week so we went house hunting in Clarendon. We found a furnished one-bedroom apartment over the It'll Do motel for half his paycheck, $15.00 a week and we were in paradise. I loved my little apartment, the only downside was the outside staircase which became slick when it rained.

Ole Jim's birthday came around and being the sweet bride of the 1950s I asked what cake he would like. He rolled those brown eyes around at me and said he really wanted a lemon meringue pie. I remember kinda gulping because there were no in myself and fr the recipe on the Crisco wick. picks can and proceeded peggy cockernu... ----ardwick • 874-2886 pie crust. I bought a package of Jell-O lemon pie filling and used the meringue recipe on the box and let me tell you, it was a beautiful pie. His Mom and Dad, Mildred and George Cocker-ham, shared that pie and George Cockerham fell in love with me and in his eyes this daughter-in-law could do no wrong. The legend of the lemon meringue pie has been passed down all these years, and this year the honors fell to #1 daughter. She passed the test and is taking over for Mama cause Ole Jim rolled those brown eyes at her and said yum-yum

Thank you Lord for the beauti-ful rain you sent us, we are ready for more.

I hope everyone is registered to vote because October 9 is the last day to register. There is so much controversy and the only way it will be resolved is at the ballot box. Tues day, November 6, is general elec tion day this year with the governor, lt. governor, one senator, and many others up for election. Early voting will be held Oct 22-Nov 2 at the Donley County courthouse annex After you have registered please follow through and vote.

Downtown was a hot, stinking mess last Thursday morning, October 4, after a semi-truck loaded with lettuce caught fire on US 287. Emergency personnel on the scene said apparently the truck's brakes caused the fire. No one was injured in the disaster.

Art: Program spurs students' creativity Continued from page one

"Rafael lets us do what we want then he explains it and teaches us how to make it better," McCon-nell said. "He teaches us how to make new colors and how to change

Eighth grader Nathan Estlack agrees with McConnell that mixing colors has been one of the most interesting aspects of the class.

You can take three colors and make an infinite number of colors,"

Estlack said.

Mycah Woodard is a ninth grader who finds art relaxing and also wishes it was a regular class.

"I think it's pretty cool, and I think it's helped a lot of people," Woodard said. "It gives me piece of Rafael says his class is individually based and focuses on the ele-ments and principals of design.

"I try to allow them to discover something about the creative pro-cess," he said. "We question what they did and critique each other."

With such a diverse age group, Rafael has to work with a wide range of talents – some students have been doing art for years while others are just beginning - as well as a wide range of confidence.

"My job is to encourage them to build on success and support them where they are at," he said.

Students can become frustrated while working on their art as they creative blocks, but Rafael says persisting through those moments can teach students a lot about life.

"The lessons you learn through the creative process apply every-where, whether they become artists or scientists or entrepreneurs," he said.

Rafael gives all the credit for the program to the arts club.

They are the ones that have made this happen and have volun-teered their time," he said.

Williams said part of the agree-ment the club made with the kids who enrolled in the art project was that they must enter two of their pieces in the annual Arts Festival, overcome challenges to get their which will be held October 27 and work just right and to to push through 28. One piece will just be in the gallery, but the other piece will be sold to help raise funds for the club and support future projects. Students can also enter other pieces in the show for a small fee.

Rafael's art class will come to a close on October 17, but Clifford said the members of Les Beaux Arts Club continue to hold out hope that the school will see fit and find it in the budget to create a permanent art program at the school.

"We anticipate that teachers and administrators will see a difference in these students' academic perfor-mance as a result of their exposure to the arts," Clifford said. "We also believe that to have a well-rounded student, the arts need to be a part of the curriculum"

Representatives pass three tax reform bills

VASHINGTON – Congress Mac Thornberry's office announced that the U.S. House of Representatives has passed three bills as a part of "Tax Reform 2.0:" H.R. 6760 – "Protecting Family and Small Business Tax Cuts Act of 2018," "H.R. 6757 – "Family Savings Act of 2018," and H.R. 6756 – "American Innovation Act of 2018."

These three bills build upon the "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act" that was signed into law in December.

"These three bills continue to take steps forward for our economy and our country. Over the past year, we have seen jobs created, growth in our economy, and hardworking Americans keep more of the money they earn," Thornberry said. "It is now up to the Senate to continue this

According to Thornberry, "Tax Reform 2.0" will help individuals and their families in the following ways: by permanently extends tax reform provisions that currently expire in 2025, including: Lower individual tax rates and larger stan-dard deduction; Higher child tax credit; Doubled estate tax exemption; and Higher alternative minimum tax threshold.

The bills also allow individuals to deduct their medical expenses if they exceeded 7.5 (instead of 10 per-cent) percent of their adjusted gross income through 2020; create a new Universal Savings Account (USA) to offer a fully flexible savings tool that families can use at any time; give flexibility to also use education savings to pay for apprenticeship fees to learn a trade, cover the cost of homeschooling, and help pay off student debt

The bills also help reduce taxes allowing American families to access their retirement accounts on a penalty-free basis to use as they see fit when welcoming a new child into the family, whether by birth or adoption. And allows families to replen ish those retirement accounts in the Small business will benefit by Making the 20 percent deduction for pass-through business income permanent; Allowing new businesses to write off more of their initial start-up cost; Allowing start-ups to expand by bringing in new investors with-out triggering limits on their access to tax benefits like the R&D credit for activities conducted in their early years; and Helping local businesses provide retirement plans to their

"We have seen a lot of posi-tive outcomes from the 'Tax Cuts and Jobs Act,' and I am hopeful that we will continue to see a healthier economy, more jobs, and Ameri-cans living a higher quality of life," Thornberry said.

AgriLife Extension to offer food manager certification training

PAMPA - A professional to have one certified food manager food manager certification training course, "Food Safety: It's Our Business," will be offered Oct. 17-18 by the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service in Gray County.

The meeting will be at the Gray County Annex, 12125 E. Frederic Ave., Pampa. The fee will be $125, Ave., rampa. The fee will be $123, and preregistration is due Oct. 12. To register for the course, call 806-669-8033. The fee includes training, materials and a national food man-ager certification examination.

Under the Texas Department of State Health Services jurisdiction, each food establishment is required on staff. A food manager's certifica-tion is valid anywhere in Texas for five years

This program is designed to prepare foodservice managers to pass the certification examination and provide valuable education regarding the safe handling of food, said Joan Gray-Soria, AgriLife Extension family and community health agent in Gray County.

Statistics indicate that food-borne illnesses continue to be a health issue in the U.S., Gray-Soria said. Each year, one in six Americans will become sick, 128,000 will become hospitalized and 3,000 will die due to a foodborne illness

By attending the course, food-service managers will learn about: identifying potentially hazardous foods and common errors in food handling; preventing contamination and cross-contamination of food; teaching and encouraging personal hygiene for employees; complying with government regulations; maintaining clean utensils, equipment and surroundings; and controlling

For more information about the course, call Gray-Soria at 806-669-

Broncos' Noab Elam, Dalton Benson, Zane Sneathen take down a Cowboy last Friday night during their 47-0 victory over Plains.

Broncos stampede Plains Cowboys

andy Anderberg The Clarendon Broncos blasted another team as they approach their District games by shutting out Plains last Friday in Littlefield, 47-0. They now prepare for their District opener against Stratford this Friday.

Clarendon played a strong game on both sides of the ball and posted 365 yards rushing and 49 yards passing on the night. Quarterback Noab Elam was three for five passing with two touchdowns as he connected with brother Preston Elam on both accounts. P. Elam also posted 171 yards rushing in eight carries. "I head coach Clint Conkin said. thought our offensive line blocked really well."

The Broncos' offensive line opened several holes for their rushers and Ryan McCleskey followed Elam with nine carries for 122 yards and one touchdown in the third quarter. Collin Butler had three carries for 50 yards and one touchdown in the third quarter on a 47-yard run. Aaron Roys carried twice for 19 yards and Jordan Evans caught a pass and picked up eight yards.

Defensively, the Broncos were overs in the game and stopped the Longhorns from getting into the end zone. Dalton Benson was a work-horse and had 10 tackles, one sack, and two interceptions. Jamal Butler had nine tackles and recovered a punt in the end zone for the Broncos' first score of the game and Caton Grahn had seven tackles and one OB sack. The strength of the Bronco defense runs deep as P. Elam added six tackles and two interceptions. Clay Ward grabbed five tackles, and N. Elam had five tackles. Roys and Harm Drenth each made good on fumble recovery and McCleskey had a sack

a sack.

Several junior varsity players got in the game and racked up good stats. Koyt Tucek played well and grabbed three tackles, a caused fumble, and fumble recovery. Aiden Caudle had five tackles and a sack and Rhett Caison had two tackles and one sack.

The Broncos will kick off their District schedule Fri., Oct. 12 at Stratford beginning at 7 p.m. After an open game on Oct. 19, the Broncos will travel to Booker Oct. 26.
