gain; we must give to obtain; we must be humble to be exalted; we must be least to be greatest; we must die to live.

A man is never in worse company than when he flies into a rage and is beside himself . . . Don't be what you ain't, Jest be what you is; If you is not what you am, then you am not what you is. If you's jes' a little tadpole, don't try to be a frog; if you's jes a common tail, don't try to wag the dog. If you's jes' a little pebble, don't try to be a beach. You can always pass the plate if you can't exhort and preach, don't be what you ain't, jes' be what you is, for the man who plays it square sure's goin' to get "his" . . .

How can one succeed? Do all the good you can; in all the ways you can; to all the people you can; as long as ever you can.

Stand up, preach up, pay up, and never give up, let up, back up, or shut up in the cause of Christ, and the church will be built up and stay up.

A person should hear a little good music, read a little poetry and see a fine picture every day of his life in order that worldly cares may not obliterate the beautiful which God has implanted in the human soul . . .

I'm sure I would not care to be so elegant a man that I should be ashamed to see the place where I began, for in a life of ups and downs, we all may win or lose, and some wear chains and some wear crowns, and some wear cast-off shoes . . .

Christians walk by faith but hope invigorates the steps in this walk . . . Feet that are shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace (Eph. 6:5) do not make good dancing feet . . .

JUST A MINUTE

An Observation About Time

I have only just a minute, only sixty seconds in it, forced upon me. I can't refuse it, didn't seek it, didn't choose it, but it's up to me to use it. I must suffer if I lose it, just a tiny little minute, but eternity is in it.

Life has but two ends, and one has been used. We must take care of the other . . .

The clock of life has been wound but once, and no man has the power to tell just when the hands will stop, at late or early hour . . .

To lose one's wealth is sad indeed; to lose one's health is more; to lose one's soul is such a loss that no man can

Final Memorial Day Report Issued by DPS

Twenty-four people lost their lives over the Memorial Day weekend in traffic accidents across Texas, according to Trooper L. B. Snider, Public Information Officer for the Department of Public Safety in Amarillo. The count is lower than the projected 35, but obviously is higher than need be, says Snider, who credits publicity as a primary aid to the lower-than-expected death count.

One-vehicle accidents were the leading type of fatal accidents at 11 taking 11 lives. Seven two-vehicle wrecks claimed eight lives.

Comer-Daily Vows Exchanged In Candlelight Ceremony

Christi Camille Comer became the bride of Darrell Irvin Daily in a formal candlelight ceremony repeated June 4 at First Baptist Church in Eastland, Texas. Tom Goodman, church pastor, officiated. Background for the ceremony was formed by a 15-tier candelabra archway flanked by twin nine-branch candelabra and enhanced by greenery and black and silver bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Comer of Cuero, and is the granddaughter of Leo Comer of Silverton and the late Willene Comer and Milton and Zeldia Dudley. She is a niece of Mary Davis. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Daily of Center Point, Texas.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a fitted gown of white satin and Alencon lace with a sweetheart neckline and pouf sleeves and adorned with hand-beaded lace and sequins. The full skirt dropped from a vee waistline and swept into an oval cathedral-length train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was attached to a bandean of satin, seed pearls and crystalline leaves and iridescents. She carried a cascade bouquet of calla lilies and stephanotis.

Attending her sister as maid of honor was Cami Comer of Cuero. Bridesmaids included college friends of the bride, Maria Cantu and Cindi Tate of Austin and Tonya Hargrove of Burnet. They wore soft black daytime sheaths with short organza pouf sleeves, flat pleated satin bows at the shoulders, and square necklines. Matching grosgrain pumps completed their ensembles and each carried a single long-stemmed calla lily.

Best man was Donnie Daily of Amarillo, twin brother of the bridegroom. Dennis Daily of Center Point, another brother, Charles White of Eastland and Eugene Wilton of Fort Worth were groomsmen.

Little Miss Kailey Howell of Coleman was flower girl and wore a tea-length black and white checked ensemble with a full scalloped hemline. Ringbearer was Attis Comer of Lubbock, cousin of the bride. Carrie and Danny Duckworth, niece and nephew of the bridegroom, of Center Point, lighted the candles.

Mother of the bride chose a cranberry crinkle crepe tea-length ensemble accented with pearls and rhinestones. The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a pale pink tea-length gown with a lace overlay of pastel hues. Their corsages were designed of cymbidium orchids.

Sherry Shiller of Arlington presided at the registration table which featured a picture of the couple in a crystal frame, accented by square brass and etched glass candleholders with lighted votive candles.

A reception was held following the ceremony in Carlton Hall at the church.

Mrs. Darrell Irvin Daily

Four individual bride's cakes were displayed on tiers of a wrought iron tree which was enhanced by fresh calla lilies and greenery. The bride's bouquet completed the table decor.

Groom's table featured chocolate cake and chocolate-covered strawberries served with coffee. Cake was topped with an original bridal couple fashioned from strawberries dipped in white chocolate.

Members of the houseparty included Mary Davis of Silverton, Doris Dudley of Tulia and Jeanne Graham of Lovington, New Mexico, aunts of the bride; Joani Duckworth and Cathy Jacobs of Center Point, sisters of the bridegroom; Stephanie Daily of Amarillo, a sister-in-law, and friends Kathy Howell of Coleman and Karen Hughes of Eastland.

JUST A LITTLE BOY

He stands at the plate with heart pounding fast.

The bases are loaded; the die has been cast.

Mom and Dad cannot help him, he stands all alone.

A hit at this moment would send the team home.

The ball meets the plate; he swings and he misses.

There's a groan from the crowd, with some boos and some hisses.

A thoughtless voice cries, "Strike out the bum."

Tears fill his eyes; the game's no longer fun.

So open your heart and give him a break.

For it's moments like this, a man you can make.

Keep this in mind when you hear someone forget.

He's just a little boy, and not a man yet.

Joseph A. Hill Chapel on the campus of West Texas A&M University in Canyon was the scene of the marriage of Cindy Talbot and Kenneth Allen Sarchet at 7:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 28, 1994. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Jim Shelburne of the Paramount Terrace Christian Church in Amarillo.

Large bouquets of pink roses, gerbera daisies, delphiniums, Sweet William and grape leaves were placed on marble pedestals on either side of the altar. The couple's memory candle was placed at the back of the nuptial area and the candles were entwined with pink roses, greenery and large pink gerbera daisies.

Brandon Sarchet, son of the groom, lighted the nineteen candles in a standing candelabrum which was accented with greenery and flowers. Pink bows accented with greenery and flowers marked the pews along the bridal aisle.

Serena Shafer was flower girl, and Casey Manning, son of the bride, was ring bearer. Serena wore a dress of teal blue as she scattered flower petals along the aisle.

Maid of honor was Tracy Maston, friend of the bride. Molly Sarchet, daughter of the groom, was bridesmaid. They wore princess-style dresses of pale pink brocade designed with short jackets that buttoned in back. Crocheted lace accented the hems of the short sleeves and the bottoms of the jackets. Their shoes were dyed to match, and they had matching bows in their hair. They carried nosegay bouquets of deep pink roses, pink gerbera daisies and greenery.

Guests were seated by Jim Nelson of Amarillo and Jordan Sarchet, son of the groom, who also served as groomsman. Best man was Brandon Sarchet, son of the groom.

Guests were registered by Patti Callan.

Escorted and given in marriage by her son, Joshua Manning, the bride wore a full-length gown of candlelight silk shantung designed with a hand-beaded and sequined portrait collar. The back of the gown swept into a full chapel train accented by a large bow, the streamers of which were hand beaded. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, large pink gerbera daisies, delphiniums, Sweet William and greenery.

To carry out bridal tradition, she selected items old, new, borrowed and blue, including the coin that the bridegroom's grandmother, Gladys Worrell Hill, placed in her shoe on her wedding day in 1929.

Special musical selections featuring "Sunrise, Sunset," "Man from Snowy River" and "Unchained Melody" were played during the ceremony by Sheryl Anderson, pianist.

After lighting the unity candle, a special presentation of sterling silver cross pendants on silver chains with basket-weave design signifying the weaving of two families into one, was made to Brandon, Jordan, Molly, Joshua and Casey, children of the bride and groom.

RECEPTION

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Country Home Bed and Breakfast south of Canyon. The bride's table held a four-tier Italian cream cake iced in a basketweave design, and an arrangement of deep pink roses, Sweet William, gerbera daisies and greenery. Pink and candlelight cream cheese mints were served, along with fruit punch. The napkins were imprinted with "Ken and Cindy, May 28, 1994." Presiding at the refreshment table were Cathy Rocsko and Patti Callan, and Cathy Nelson was a member of the houseparty.

After a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico and Colorado, the couple is at home at 1100 Commerce in Silverton.

The bride is majoring in elementary education at West Texas A&M University and is currently employed at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

The groom attended Texas Tech University, and is employed by Diamond Business Services in Amarillo.

Parents, have you wished for the opportunity to change your style of parenting? Do you wonder what your children would be like if you had done some things differently? Few parents would be willing to go to the lengths that Robin Williams did as Mrs. Doubtfire.

As the father, he fell into the trap that many parents do. He tried to be the children's best friend, rather than a parent. The parents have become too permissive. Because of busy lifestyles and careers, parents succumb to feelings of guilt when it comes to their children. To ease these guilty feelings, they give their children much more than they really need. Children learn quickly that the farther they can push their parents, the more they can get away with. Today's parents are not ready to deal with that. Rather than taking the time to train and discipline their children, they take the easy way out and give in.

According to Dr. Kevin Leman, "What kids really need today is lots of Vitamin N for 'NO's' and Vitamin R for 'RESPONSIBILITY'." As Mrs. Doubtfire, Mr. Williams' character was able to see how children can still love and respect their parents.

Children need and want guidelines and discipline. It is up to each of you, as parents, to set limits and enforce them. It may be an adjustment at first, but at least you won't be changing into "Mrs. Doubtfire's" body every day.

CRP:

MAKING A GOOD INVESTMENT BETTER

Over the past sixty years, strong conservation programs have grown to be a very important element of federal farm policy. This commitment reached its peak with the passage of the 1985 and 1990 Farm Bills. In my opinion, there is no better illustration of the success of federal farm conservation policy than the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

The Conservation Reserve Program was authorized in the 1985 Farm Bill and reauthorized in 1990. Its primary goal was to reduce soil erosion on highly erodible cropland. Under multi-year contracts, the U.S. Department of Agriculture pays farmers to protect this land by planting grass or trees. Farmers receive annual payments and a one-time "cost share" to defray part of the expense of conservation plantings. Most CRP contracts will expire by the year 2000.

Some argue that programs like CRP are desirable but too costly. The facts actually show that the reverse is true. One study by the University of Michigan reports that CRP has produced between $3 and $11 billion more in gains than costs. Dozens of additional studies confirm that the 37 million acres retired in CRP have been a winner for farmers, taxpayers, the federal government, and society at large.

The studies show that CRP has brought about a savings of $1.6 billion in reduced soil erosion, $500 million in reduced wind erosion, and water quality benefits of $3.6 billion. The federal government and taxpayers have saved $500 million annually due to forgone crop subsidy programs. Net farm income has increased $9-20 billion because of rental payments to farmers and higher prices for farm commodities. In addition, wildlife benefits have increased almost $10 billion, including boosts in small game hunting.

In the 13th District, that boost in small game hunting has come from an increase in the pheasant population. With the pheasant population on the rise, thousands more hunters have visited the area, thus giving a boost to small businesses.

Most CRP acres have been planted in grass. But the CRP also contains 2.4 million acres of trees, 2 million acres of special wildlife practices, 410,000 acres of wetlands, and 5,200 miles of filter strips protecting water bodies.

The first CRP contracts, covering about 2 million acres, will expire on September 30, 1995. In 1996 and 1997, approximately 22 million acres of CRP contracts will expire. Right now, the CRP land area is somewhat larger than Iowa. But by the time the 1995 Farm Bill expires, it will be no larger than Hawaii, unless Congress provides otherwise in the 1995 Farm Bill. So far, there has been no indication from either the Administration or Congress that more CRP enrollment will be provided.

As for the 13th District, over 7,500 CRP contracts are held on over 1.4 million acres of land.

U.S. SENATOR

KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Legislation will provide necessities to colonias

One dominant theme in the history of America has been the struggle of immigrant families. They often arrive in this country with little but hope, determination and the desire to work. They ask for no handouts. Driven by a burning desire for a better life for themselves and their families, they have worked hard, educated their children and become model citizens.

The story continues. Today's chapter takes place all along the U.S.-Mexico border. Thousands of immigrants there are working hard, doing their best to live productive lives. Despite their best efforts, they live, unfortunately, in pockets of intractable, structural poverty, known as colonias.

Mostly in Texas and New Mexico, colonias are nothing more than neighborhoods. There are more than 1,200 unincorporated communities that house about 300,000 American citizens and legal residents on our side of the border.

Residents of colonias typically live in poverty, without clean water or sewage treatment. It is often, sad to say, a poverty on a scale not seen in the U.S. since the Great Depression.

If John Steinbeck were alive today, he would find that the California conditions he wrote so movingly about continue to exist — this time along the U.S.-Mexico border.

New Mexico Senator Jeff Bingaman and I are trying to turn federal attention to these inhumane living conditions. We are sponsoring an amendment that would allow the Environmental Protection Agency to issue grants to build safe drinking water and waste treatment facilities for colonias.

Congress last year earmarked a $500 million appropriation to help communities that face acute threats to public health. The Administration has asked for at least $60 million of this to be spent on colonias improvements.

These funds have already been set aside in an account. This is not a request for new money. The Hutchison-Bingaman amendment would authorize the EPA to make the grants immediately for colonias improvements in Texas.

I am working with Montana Senator Max Baucus, chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, and Rhode Island Senator John Chafee, the committee's ranking Republican. They have promised me their assistance to make sure that legislation is enacted before the end of the government's fiscal year on Sept. 30.

The colonias' problems are not new. Texas and other state and local governments along the border have already made efforts on their behalf. Texas taxpayers have been picking up the tab, but this is also a federal problem, and the federal government should share the responsibility.

These American citizens want to make an honest living and prepare a brighter future for their children — much as previous generations of immigrants have wanted throughout history. Of course, government can not solve all of their problems. But if government provides the very basic necessities — safe water and clean surroundings — I'm confident they will do the rest.

Veterans Benefits Enhance Training

According to Bilye Kesler, Veterans County Service Officer for Briscoe County, Texas employers who have hired or are considering hiring U. S. military veterans may be able to have their training programs approved for veterans' benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights. While most Americans know the 50-year-old G. I. Bill provides benefits for military veterans attending college, the legislation also provides benefits for veterans participating in on-the-job training.

Virtually any on-the-job training program can be approved for veterans' benefits if the program lasts from six months to two years and if pay increments indicate the veteran's progress in learning new skills. Veterans also must be employed for 30 or more hours each week. The U. S. Department of Veterans Affairs has designated the Texas Education Agency (TEA) as the state agency responsible for determining which on-the-job training or educational programs qualify for veterans to receive benefits. Employers can contact the TEA to determine if their employees who are veterans can receive training program benefits under the G. I. Bill.

It is expected that more than 100,000 discharged service men and women will join the 180,000 currently unemployed

Texas veterans over the next three years. These veterans will provide Texas employers with additional opportunities to qualify for veteran-approved training programs. Approval for G. I. Bill veteran benefits enhances employers' training programs because:

★ the benefits enable and encourage employers to recruit experienced new employees;

★ the veteran receives a regular training allowance in addition to job wages, and has a strong incentive for high-level performance;

★ the training occurs in the employer's place of business and uses the employer's training methods;

★ veterans have proven employment histories, are well disciplined, learn quickly and follow instructions.

For more information, contact the Veteran Eligibility Information Office, U. S. Department of Veterans Affairs, 800-827-1000.

Disadvantaged Being Targeted by FmHA

Socially-disadvantaged groups are benefitting from a special loan program offered by Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). "FmHA is reaching out to members of socially-disadvantaged groups to help them obtain their goals of farm ownership," said George Ellis, Texas FmHA State Director.

Applicants must be a member of the following race/ethnic origin groups: black (not of Hispanic origin), Hispanic, American Indian or Alaskan Native, Asian/Pacific Islander, or women.

The socially-disadvantaged outreach is mandated by the Agriculture Act of 1987, and defines a Socially-Disadvantaged Applicant (SDA) as "an applicant who has been subjected to racial or ethnic prejudice or cultural bias because of his/her identity as a member of a group without regard to his/her individual qualities."

Under this program, FmHA will try to find persons in the SDA categories who are interested in farming. FmHA will be prepared to sell or lease, to those applicants who qualify, a farm held in inventory if any are available in the county of the applicant's choice. FmHA also can provide other loan and technical assistance, if needed, to help the borrower get started.

The SDA statistics (all categories) so far in Fiscal Year 1994 (as of March 31, 1994) are as follows:

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG), the 1994 crop finally has gotten off to a decent start following a series of beneficial rain showers during the month of May.

Current estimates indicate 90 to 95 percent of the acres designated for cotton have been planted and producers are rapidly finishing the job. Some replanting also is being reported because of hail damage that accompanied several of the recent storms.

In general the crop is in good shape and growing well in most areas. A shortage of subsoil moisture continues to loom as a major player in determining how the 1994 crop will fair.

"One of our biggest concerns at this time is the fact that much of the rainfall we have received was not able to penetrate very far into the plant's root zone, leaving a dry area between the plant and the deep moisture further down," explains Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President. "For the moment, things are looking pretty positive and we are glad to have the opportunity to get off to such a good

The delayed start of the 1994 crop was partially caused by the dry conditions left over from 1993's near-record crop. The Texas Agricultural Statistics Service (TASS) released final cotton production figures for the 1993 crop June 2.

The 25 PCG counties that make up the High Plains topped the list with the first 11 cotton-producing counties. Gaines County once again brought home the title of top producing county with total production of 408,500 bales. Lubbock County was number two with the production of 319,900 bales.

The top 11 cotton counties in Texas for 1993 were (in order) Gaines, Lubbock, Hale, Terry, Hockley, Dawson, Lynn, Lamb, Floyd, Crosby and Yoakum.

"Overall the 1993 crop turned out to be one of the best in many years in terms of overall production," notes Johnson. "We produced a total of 3,458,800 bales from 2,992,200 harvested acres."

Johnson adds that 1993 was a good crop for producers as well as for other area residents since the farm level value of the crop is expected to total over $1 billion dollars, most of which goes directly into the area economy.

Final production numbers for the 1993 crop show the 25-county area produced 3,458,800 bales with an average yield of 555 pounds per acre. The TASS figures also show that only 7.75 percent of the acreage originally planted to cotton was lost during the growing season.

In Briscoe County, there were 38,900 acres planted to cotton, and 37,600 acres were harvested. The yield per harvested acre was 535 pounds, and the number of 480-pound net weight bales was 41,900. This county ranks 27th among the cotton-producing counties in Texas.

Young Workers Should Understand Value of Social Security Survivors Benefits

by Terry Richardson
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

I read a sobering statistic the other day—a person dies every six minutes in the United States as a result of an accident. And accidents are the leading cause of death among young men and women in the 25-44 age group.

These statistics represent real tragedies in life—the loss of a wife or husband, mother or father, son or daughter. Families grieve and try to pick up the pieces of their lives.

The personal grief is too often accompanied by considerations of how to replace the loss of income caused by the worker's death. Insurance helps in about two-thirds of the deaths of younger workers—but only as a lump-sum payment and usually in a much smaller amount than many would suppose.

Social Security is a bulwark that most survivors can rely on, though. This fact is seldom thought of when people think about the Social Security program.

The Social Security taxes you pay also go toward providing survivors insurance. In fact, the value of the survivors insurance you have under Social Security is probably more than the value of your commercial life insurance.

When someone who has worked and paid into Social Security dies, survivor benefits can be paid to certain family members. These include widows, widowers (and divorced widows and widowers), children, and dependent parents. Right now, 98 out of every 100 children could get benefits if a working parent should die. In fact, Social Security pays more benefits to children than any other federal program.

I know that many young workers in their early 20s haven't started their families yet.

FREEDOM WILL PREVAIL AS LONG AS OUR FLAG CAN FLY

When looking upward to the sky
We still can see our banner fly,
And fill us all with confidence,
Because of what it represents:
The freedom which we have enjoyed,
That no aggressor has destroyed.
It signifies our sacrifice
And willingness to pay the price,
That all throughout our history
Combined to keep our nation free.
Since laws of God have set the tone
Of those adapted for our own,
Through faith our flag has come to be
The symbol of our liberty;
So let's resolve to take a stand,
And keep it waving in our land.
