The Universal Peace May Be Attained By a National Money Plan

We herewith publish that part of chapter 36 of The Book that relates to international exchange. One will get much information from reading the whole chapter but we print, herewith, only that part which relates to trade between nations:

The next proposition is, that we should have a money that will not be exported, that will remain in the nation that makes and controls law declaring a moratorium on sale it for the functioning of its civili- of real estate under mortgage forezation. It is not necessary to say tution. that the money proposed will not be exported, as it is redeemable in services in the United States and for that reason will not be exported. They say that a moratorium law is unconstitututional. They say that because the constitution says that no law impairing the freedom of contract is constitutional that a law that extends the time of payment of a debt is, therefore, unconstitutional. If this be the law then there is no way or hope for unfortunate debtors to be protected from the Shylock who demands under the plea of contract his pound of flesh. If it is not the law then a great injustice has been done to thousands of people who now need the protection of a moratorium law. But getting back to the question of the sacredness of contracts, if the legislature is powerless to pass a law that will regulate or control the terms and kind of contracts then that rule ought to be applied to any and all attempts by law to interfere with contracts.

If this is the law then I would like for somebody to tell me why from the days of Moses to this good hour all people and every nation and their courts recognized and enforced the law to regulate and prohibit the collection of interest beyond a certain sum. No appellatte court in this state or this nation has ever denied the right of the legislative power to pass a law prohibiting the charging of interest beyond a certain sum. If the sacredness of contract will prevent the control by legislation of the time when a right may be enforced then certainly a law could not be enforced that sought to prevent the enforcement of the right itself.

Hereafter in Texas if some money lender undertakes to collect a contract agreement for eighteen percent hands of progressive state officials party's national conventions were interest then when he attempts to enforce it and the man who entered into this sacred contract undertakes to but lost the election of their can- contested in knockdown and dragplead usury, all the Shylock will have to do is to plead the constitution and the freedom of contracts and he will be allowed to collect eighteen percent or twenty-eight percent or ten percent a month as now collected in margin of votes. Fearful that that I've had the patronage belong-

Again I want to call attention to the fact of the bankruptcy law which has been upheld by every appellate past year to keep them secure in I've had unsavory appointments in court in this state and nation, and let's see how it works. If I give my friend a note for One Thousand Dollars and get his money, and next month when the note falls due and he seeks to collect his note, under the bankrupt law I can go into court and plead that I have since been discharged by a bankruptcy court and I will themselves to meet any emergency about a man—I've had other enthereby not only escape payment but I am absolutely absolved and freed from ever having to pay my debt. that may present itself. The payment of my debt is put off forever and the courts of the country will sustain me. But you ask why will the government permit the pasage of a usury law and a bankruptcy law in the face of the constitution. The answer and the reason is that it has been decided by the law of good morals from time immemorial that nobody should be allowed to use the freedom of contract to oppress his fellowman. Civilized society has will come also a lifting of Governor long since agreed to the proposition that though there may be abuses of the right that it is better to provide Langer's moratorium proclamathe protection of a usury law and a bankruptcy law rather than let advantage be taken of the misfortune of tion against mortgage foreclosures. a great majority of the people. The usury law may be abused; the bankruptcy law may also be abused, but they both provide a limitation on the wrong kind of a contract and the public good has caused the courts of all countries to uphold the principle even where the freedom of contract is destroyed.

The moratorium law is a human law, and if the sovereign law-making power of the country is not allowed to put reasonable limitations upon the time and manner of payment of debts then the people had just as well give up hope and acknowledge themselves the unfortunate victims of unconscionable enforcement of most. unconscionable contracts.

This senatorial district is composed of Leon, Madison, Grimes, Walker, San Jacinto, Montgomery, Polk, Trinity and Houston Counties. There are approximately 25,300 votes in the district, and there are five candidates announced for the position. As it is a special election only a plurality of votes is required to elect. Mr. Turner claims that he is the only farmer candidate in the race and that he was the first to announce for the office. He says that since his announcement four lawyers have announced against him. He claims that on account of his long experience as a country merchant and a large farmer in the Trinity bottom that he is better qualified to represent the people of his district frighten him into reimbursement of their losses. Insull, by reathan any lawyer could hope to be. He points to the fact that his bounds associations, sensed the danger of the breed of experience as to the trials and tribulations of the farmer enables him to know the needs of the farming and laboring class of people better than any smart lawyer who never filed a hoe, tied a hamestring or plowed a furow.

that the burden of taxation on the farms, ranches, and homes of the country can be removed as a step to bringing about a permanent recovery of agriculture.

Mr. Turner also calls attention to the fact that he is the only man that was ever elected from his home counties of Madison and Leon three times without opposition and was never defeated prosecuted by those who had been induced to gamble on a game farmer.

Mr. Turner has raised a question that sooner or later is going to be raised everywhere. The idea is gaining force in all directions that we have too many lawyers in the legislature, and a great many people believe that our present troubles of government including high and oppressive taxation can be laid at the high finance exploded. Who or what will be next? door of too many lawyers being elected to pass laws without any knowledge or experience on their part of the many needs of the people. The race in Mr. Turner's district brings this question squarely before the people of that district and the people of the state will look with great interest as to the outcome in that dis-

THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL

(By SAM H. CANTRELL)

A journey through West Central Texas is more than a pleasure trip; it is an eye-opener to the vast possibilities where the sheep and goat industry thrives best. The greatest mohair markets in the world are located in West Central Texas. The soft wool of the sheep and the hair of the goat is shipped to all parts of the world there to be made into fine clothing which are worn by the highest of rulers as well as the most humble subject.

Give the sheep and mohair industry a chance and millions of dollars will flow into Texas. Why should these products be shipped thousands of miles to every part of the globe to be turned into finished products by foreign labor, when Texas has millions of unemployed people. Should these people not be put to work good; if it does not, then it is eveil and we should have none of it. ness world that are unscrupulous, and yet they do not think it is so they will have food to eat and clothes to wear. It could be done and that quite well. The Colorado River will be harnessed and its water power turned into an electric current which will reach for many miles. Why should the power capable of being developed be permitted to go unsought by industry. Would it not be better to turn this upon them. vast power into factories for the making of clothing, thus take up all the wool and mohair now being produced, furnish producers of the products a market and enrich hard pressed owners of flocks and herds. What is lacking to accomplish such a purpose. Texas needs outside capital.

Capital will not flow into a field where an income canont be realized except possibly for a short time. In order to interest capital, it is necessary to demonstrate to investors the possibility for safe, sound, and beneficial investments. Such may be accomplished through displays of potentialities.

A Texas Centennial would demonstrate to outside peoples the and needs no restraint. potentialities favorable for industrial development. All grades of wool and of mohair could be displayed before the eyes of visitors. Prize sheep and prize goats would be seen by thousands of people who had never had a chance to see the source from which they had gotten their fine-texteured clothes. Centennial trails would lead visitors throughout the sheep and goat areas so not evil, such statutes become themselves an eveil and cannot be they might get a first hand knowledge of the vastness of that in- too speedily repealed and abolished.

THE THREE CONSPIRACIES

History will one day record the fact that the decline and fall of the American Civilization of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries was due primarily to three gigantic economic conspiracies, namely (a) The National Bank Act of 1863, (b) The fradulent Demonetization Act of 1873,, and (c) The Federal Reserve Act of 1913.—Sy Foster.

Wool and mohair would find a ready and steady market. And thousands of small retail establishments would soon grow up and furnish employment to millions of workers.

Why cannot Texas have woolen mills and cotton mills. Our wide acres produce the major portion of the raw materials. Shipments have to be made far off and return shipments add to the cost our consumers have to pay. Cheap power will become available and capital must now to Texas to establish new industries. The Texas Centennial will be an eye-opener for capital.

INSULL AND CAPONE

(By I. B. ALFORD)

"Not guilty," said the jury in the Insull case. "Capone must serve out his eleven years sentence," said the Federal probation officer, Col. Joel Moore. The similarity of the two cases is that both were proven guilty by the testimony as per court records. The distinction between the two cases lies in the fact that A! Capone had defrauded the Government out of a few thousand dollars in the matter of paying his income taxes; whereas Insull was merely guilty of fleecing the gullible public out of a hundred million dollars, more or less, in the sale of proven bogus securi-

The above news items concerning Capone again sustains the renown adadge that it is impossible to evade the undertaker and the tax collector. The thousands of bureaus necessary to sustain our American democracy must have money to keep the machinery of administration well lubricated, to the end that all the departments may function normally,—and all employees draw their salaries. But when it comes to the small matter of hailing a promoter before a court of competent jurisdiction on the common charge of inducing the general public to invest their life savings in bogus securities it just won't do, doncher know, to push a matter like that too far. No one can tell where such a thing might end; for, as it will be recalled, Insull testified in his defense that what he was doing, everybody else was doing at the time. He showed that even the president of the former administration was on record in indorsement of the plan then recognized as legitimate business. He proved, moreover, that even after the Honorable Henry A. Turner of Madisonville, Texas, was a crash came in 1929, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., advised the Amerstatement was played up by stock promoters, within and without would soon be on the upgrade again.

The trouble was that they were all mistaken about the matter. They thought they could, by another transfusion of "confidence" into the sick body of inflated stock, bring the apparent corpse back to life. But because further inflation of ficticious values was impossible the darn thing blew up with a national, an international disastrous effect. When the smoke resulting from the explosion began to clear away, and the general public, who had gambled through, and with, Insull in the expectation of getting something for nothing, realized that their investments did not pan out as planned they all joined in the chase of Insull with the view apparently to hounds on his trail. Having lost their money and his own as well in his "frenzied finance" dream with which all of them were strongly in favor of a reorganization of our tax system so parently pretty good bedfellows. But came a time when the wolf pack was left high and dry with no inviting green pastures in realizing that their prey, General Public, had escaped them, they true to the wolf instinct, gave chase to their once recognized leader. In the end they brought him back to face an indictment of confidence. A jury of twelve people who passed upon the merits of the case evidently decided that Insull and his sixteen co-defendants were no more guilty than the hundreds of associates with them when they were all taking in the shekels from the thousands of the gullible public. Just another inflated bubble of

If her greatness is to remain a heritage to our posterity Demo-

It should give the most thoughtless and inconsiderate pause. With our every act so freighted with responsibilities, how careful we should be with whatever is proposed or attempted.

No plan should be proposed or policy attempted until it has been squared with the square of Democratic virtue, weighed in the scales of Democratic justice and found to stand true to the plummet of Democratic righteousness.

The first test of any measure's Democracy is: Does it recognize and safeguard man's inalienable rights?

If it does it is good, and we should hold fast to that which is What are "inalianable rights?

REAL PROPETRY TAX

(By SAM H. CANTRELL)

Days may become brighter for some peoples, but for the property taxpayer the day for collection becomes a dark cloud on his mental horizon. As each collecting period approaches, property owners begin to pinch themselves in order to save the few dollars that will pay their taxes. Home to those who possess such has more meaning than words can describe. And to see that home gradually being sunk each year into the tax load and the mortage load causes many eyes never to close each night.

Home Sweet Home originated with the pioneer who crossed over mountains into an unknown country, there to establish for nimself a few acres to till and to own. The imprint of homeowning has been deeply imbedded in the hearts and minds of our people. And that feeling will be slow to fade away. So when taxes on homes become unbearable, it may be assumed that a ighteous rebellion will take place. It is essential that taxes be payed to governments in order that social functioning be maintained. Each day brings about more complexities in our social structure. Each day calls for the need of more tax money. The question is, shall property taxpayers shoulder the burden of taxation, or shall taxation be distributed upon all. By means bear it. The load would be removed from real property and shifted to those who spend most. When taxation is taken off of real property, rents should be owered accordingly. A lowering of rents would permit real roperty to become saleable once more.

How do rents affect individuals. The wage-earner invariably pays rent. When he has so much in wages paid him, if rents are high he is compelled to take that amount from food and clothes. When rents are low, he has more to spend for food and compelled to charge high rents, and if property taxes are low the woner can lower his rents. Thus the wage-earner as well as the selected man is ably restored the boy's sanity. He returned to his home, the only "city of refuge" known to him. His father, who was rethe selected man in health. the salaried man is benefitted by low rents. Low rents can be sponsible for his very existence, deliberately betrayed his confieffected through a Sales Tax which shifts the burden from real property. The difference that can be effected through a lower rent will several times pay the Sales Tax levied on the wage-

If present conditions continue of high taxation on real property, it will only be a matter of some few years until tenant farmers will be paying a one-third is undermined, civilization itself is doomed. inoculated he attempted for self protection an escape to foreign climes. So, long as these financial wolves were chasing and must eventually have to pay delinquent taxes, and in order to meet must eventually have to pay delinquent taxes, and in order to meet Mr. Turner has published a platform and he also says that fleecing the gullible public, and getting by with it, they were apparently pretty good hedfallows. But assess that parently pretty good hedfallows. But assess that demands will have to assess more rent. Our 240,000 tenant which to promte their schemes. Still hungry for dividends, and small per cent in a Sales Tax would not begin to match the amount assessed in added rent. Through a Sales Tax the owner of land would be released from a heavy burden, and many tithes now assessed on tenants would disappear since it would no longer be necessary to retain them. A Sales Tax would be a boon to every provide $200 per month income for the remainder of our lives.

A FATHER'S PROBLEM

(Editorial in American-Statesman)

A St. Paul youth, aged 18, went out on a holdup one night recently, got involved in a fight with police, and shot and killed a patrolman. He got away and dragged himself home, seriously wounded. When he got home, his father quickly learned what

What should a father do in such a case—nurse his son back to health, keep his mouth shut, and pray that the whole affair could Counties Road Bonds can be done without effecting the Highway be hushed up, or step forward with Spartan courage and let the law take its course?

This St. Paul father took the latter alternative. He called a doctor, then he called the parish priest—and then he called the police, and saw his son taken away to jail to be indicted for second-degree murder.

"It was the only decent thing to do," he says. "I hope no other father has to do what I did.'

This man had about as hard a decision to make as any father could face. He met it with considerable fortitude. Do you think he did the right thing?

Editor's Note.—It all depends on the circumstances. If there were many previous offenses, indicating that the boy was incorigible; if the father had, "by precept and example," done all that he could do to "train up his child in the way he should go in order that when he grows older he would not depart therefrom;" if all home ties and environments in this case were such that parental influence was not effective in an effort to restore 'the prodigal son;" if the father was incapable of proper and effective advice and rulership in dealing with his eighteen-yearson, then there was perhaps a measure of excuse to mitigate this pubic acknowldegment on his part that he was incapacitated to deal effectively with his own household.

There is manifestly a mistaken idea generally extant as to the most effective means of dealing with crime. Punishment is only a minor factor, and is little effective in preventing crime. To argue that punishment will serve as a satisfactory object lesson to others is silly, and without psychologic value. Too much like closing the stable door after the horse had escaped. A major preventive of crime is proper training. It is still good psychology of a Sales Tax taxation would be placed upon those most able to as well as sound common sense, to "train up a child in the way he should go." Growing up in the habit of proper respect for the law, of a liberal consideration of the rights of others, of justice and equity in dealing with our fellows must ever run counter to the course of criminality. No; he didn't do the right thing. In shifting his parental reponsibility in dealing with this minor, guilty, perhaps, of a first offense, he merely fumbled in an effort to play a very ordinary game of heroics. His boy had unfortunately participated in the too common custom of attempted highway banditry. In the fight which ensued he was seriously wounded. This experience probdence by turning him into the hands of the police.

If this father had himself been of exemplary character he would have called the doctor-didn't need the priest-and let the law take its course without resistance on his part.

The sstrongest social tie on earth is that between father and

(By W. A. Chaffee in Liberty Bell)

I AM INTEREST: Originally known as Usury The Master forbade my practice, warning all men Even Christ turned me down and cast met out The Cannonical laws in middle ages, forbade my use. Martin Luther claimed my users should be hanged My users could not be buried on consecrated ground. Estates of my users forfeited, their children disinherited. The fourteenth Century brought me classed with murders. For Centuries I fought for recognition but to no avail for I was looked upon as most base and Cruel by men. Wherever I appeared I was despised and condemned Yet I struggled on unceasingly, fighting for my use. I used every crooked mind and crooked scheme whispered in the ear of Man, that wealth was power conceived the plan of GREED, the road to wealth. Men listened, my hearers multiplied in numbers. They made laws for my use. They defied their Master: I crept into the minds of millions, seeking Wealth and Power Even nations adopted my use and fell into line. Great companies and Corporations were formed for me Now my agents cover the earth in about everything Even ruthless methods are applied to my gain My rate of toil is being increased beyond power to pay. Today my toll runs into Billions and Billions a year Yet I will multiply the debt of man and Nations That my toll will greatly increase from year to year. The rich and poor alike are mine, wealth is my aim. Their Master now am I. I have the power and law, The Master that gave man life, only can give him liberty. He may open the eyes of man and rebel against me But until then Men and Nations, must pay my price. Men working, fighting, scheming for wealth and power Yet they cannot escape me, I AM INTEREST.
