Grand Restoration! County courthouse renovation ready for first public viewing on Saturday

by JUANELL JONES

For the first time in two years, Lynn County citizens and visiting dignitaries will be invited inside the Lynn County Courthouse, to view the historical restoration that has been underway since 2017. At 2 p.m. on Saturday, July 20, the public is invited to the grounds of the courthouse for official Rededication ceremonies, followed by tours of the four-story monument to the Classical Revival style of courthouses built in the early 20th century. The Lynn County Courthouse was built in 1916, and is a major architectural gem that stands sentry in the center of the town square of Tahoka, the county seat.

Architectural details ... The restoration of the Lynn County Courthouse, down to the tiny details in the ornate capstones of the columns at its main entries, is finished (almost). Lynn County citizens are invited to come view the restoration, and step inside the courthouse for the first time in two years since the project began, this Saturday, July 20 at 2 p.m. (LCN PHOTO by Juanell Jones)

It has been a long, arduous endeavor to restore Lynn County's Courthouse, a venture made possible by a $4.8 million grant awarded to the county from the Texas Historical Commission's (THC) Courthouse Preservation Program. The grant was awarded on July 20, 2016 (the year the courthouse actually turned 100 years old), to help fund the $8.9 million historical restoration. With only a few finishing details to be completed in some areas on the basement level, the renovation project is now mostly complete, and it is anticipated that all courthouse offices will move back into the building in August.

Citizens touring the courthouse will see details that have been painstakingly researched and adhered to according to the rigorous historical standards of the Texas Historical Commission, right down to the color of the paint on the walls, period honeycomb tiles in the foyers and hallways, beautifully detailed wood doors and railings, and vintage interior windows featuring star-patterned glass.

The district courtroom's third-story balcony has been restored, and with the gold-leaf etchings lining the pale green walls near the ceiling, period lighting, restored vintage wooden seating (including an oak witness stand and chair pulled from many years' display at the Tahoka Pioneer Museum and polished to its original beauty) and restored wood floors, the 106th District Courtroom on the second floor is a show-stopper. And, while the look is entirely vintage, the courtroom does have modern features, such as the latest in security/video/audio systems, and thankfully, heating and air conditioning.

The County Courtroom, which historically was on the first floor of the building but in modern years has been in a basement-level office room, is once again on the first floor's northeast corner. It features the original pale District Courtroom ... The District Courtroom on the second floor of the Lynn County Courthouse has been beautifully restored, and by the time Saturday's rededication ceremonies and courthouse tours are offered, should have the original wood chair seating installed.

Apollo 11 Moon Landing 50 YEARS AGO GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

Amazing facts about the Apollo 11 Moon Landing

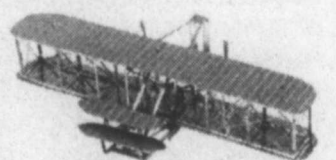

July 20, 1969 - [4:17 pm EDT] Apollo 11 becomes the first manned spacecraft to land on the moon.

Crew: Neil Armstrong (commander), Buzz Aldrin (lunar module pilot) and Michael Collins (command module pilot)

The crew traveled 240,000 miles from the Earth to the moon in 76 hours.

The first humans to walk on the Earth's Moon landed on July 20, 1969. "That's one small step for (a) man, one giant leap for mankind." Those were the famous remarks made by astronaut Neil Armstrong as he made the first human footprints on the Moon. Armstrong and Aldrin spent 21 hours, 36 minutes on the moon's surface, according to NASA.

Armstrong carried with him a piece of wood from an airplane that belonged to the Wright Brothers.

The first recorded flight was achieved by the Wright Brothers in 1903, 66 years before the first manned lunar mission. Thus, Neil Armstrong saw it fit to take with him pieces of wood from the pioneering Wright plane as well as a piece of fabric from the plane to symbolize the great progress made in aviation. Armstrong held these in his "personal preference kit" (PPK). The Wright Brothers, like Neil, were from the state of Ohio. The artifacts now sit in the Smithsonian museum in Washington, D.C.

What was left on the Moon?

A commemorative plaque that read:

Here Men from the Planet Earth
First Set Foot Upon the Moon
July 1969 A.D.
We Came in Peace for All Mankind

The astronauts left several other items on the surface of the Moon, including a U.S. Flag, and pictures of human beings as well as audio recordings of several different languages to represent the global significance of the mission. Medallions bearing names of the three astronauts who perished in Apollo 1 on the launch pad and the two cosmonauts who perished in a similar accident were also left on the surface of the Moon.

QUARANTINE

After returning to earth from the Apollo 11 Moon Landing, the astronauts had to be placed into quarantine. After landing on Earth, the three astronauts were promptly taken to a quarantine facility where they remained for 21 days. The reason behind this strange action was to prevent contamination of any microorganisms carried by the crew from the Moon, as the astronauts were returning from very uncharted territory. Nobody in the space program was sure whether or not the lunar surface was sterile. Of course, later studies confirmed the Moon to be void of any forms of life.

Did you know?

The lunar spacesuits were created by a lingerie company. Playtex, a company better known for inventing the Cross Your Heart bra, was hired to create the suits that would protect astronauts from the moon's airless environment and temperature extremes for the Apollo 11 Moon Landing. Playtex's industrial division, ILC Dover, has designed every NASA spacesuit since then.

NASA officials worried they might blow up their spectators. The massive Saturn V rocket used for the moon missions almost shook itself apart during the Apollo 6 test flight in 1968, so NASA knew that a launch pad explosion was a real possibility. Just in case, NASA seated Vice President Spiro Agnew, former President Lyndon Johnson and other VIP guests three and a half miles away from the pad during the Apollo 11 liftoff.

Just in case ...

If Apollo 11 had failed, President Richard Nixon had a speech ready. Although the Apollo 11 now has a cemented place in world history, at the time of its launch its success was not so certain. The mission had such a large risk of failing, in fact, that President Nixon had a speech at the ready in case of catastrophe. As nobody had ever once landed on the Moon, it was not known whether or not it was even possible to takeoff from the Moon in order to return back to Earth. Thankfully, there was never occasion for the use of the speech, although copies of the text have since surfaced.

Apollo 11 Moon Landing 50 YEARS AGO GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

on the MOON!

Armstrong and Aldrin spent almost a full day on the Moon's surface after landing on the moon July 20, 1969. The period spent outside the probe while on the Moon is known as "extravehicular activity", or EVA, a term that covers any astronaut activity performed beyond the Earth's atmosphere. Due to the many experiments the astronauts conducted on the Moon as well as placement of the many instruments involved, the total EVA lasted 21 hours and 36 minutes. However, only a few hours of time was spent on the lunar surface itself, as the astronauts took breaks in the probe as well.

green walls as well. Most of the remainder of the interior walls in the courthouse are a pale yellow maize color, another color which was determined to be historically accurate by the THC, which sent teams of researchers throughout the courthouse during the pre-construction months to determine original details.

Per the instructions of county officials, a piece of history on the top floor of the building has been left completely untouched — the original jail cell for the county. On the southwest corner of the third floor, citizens can view the 1916 cell, complete with words carved on the walls and primitive sink/toilet facilities.

The jail was used in the early days of county history, and the site was the catalyst for a murder within the walls of the courthouse in 1936, when Deputy Sheriff F.E. Redwine, 58, was transporting a prisoner to the jail. The prisoner, 42-year-old Elmo Banks, was charged with the murder of the deputy after he reportedly wrested Redwine's gun from his pocket or his hand (there were no witnesses) and shot the deputy multiple times. A janitor in the building, Clyde Jones, heard the shouting and gunshots, and ran up the stairs about the time the assailant came down another flight of stairs. A massive man-hunt ensued, and Banks was caught and tried within six days after the crime. According to an article in a 1936 edition of The Lynn County News, "Banks' crime was the most heinous and dastardly ever committed in Lynn County."

There are still, to this day, faint bloodstains on the marble walls of the third floor that are believed to be stains from the murderous assault. The stains are no longer red, but a faint discoloring can be seen if one knows where to look (ask a county official).

Other, happier occasions occurred within the walls of the 100-year-old courthouse, of course, with marriage licenses and property deeds recorded, marriages performed by Justices of the Peace, court proceedings that brought justice to victims and their families, and multitudes of other county business enterprises that have recorded the history of the citizens of Lynn County over the past century.

The two-year restoration project has been overseen by Lynn County Judge Mike Braddock and the Lynn County Commissioners Court, comprised of commissioners Matt Woodley, John Hawthorne, Don Blair and Larry Durham. Komatsu Architecture designed the restoration plans, and JC Stoddard Construction Co. headed the project. Jerry Kissling, Superintendent, was the Construction Foreman.

Kissling, who has worked on nine courthouse historical preservation projects, said that the most difficult part of Lynn County's project was that there were no original design plans left to assist with the renovation.

"We had no plans, so we didn't know where anything was behind the walls, so we just had to figure everything out," Kissling told The News. In response to the question, what was most difficult, he also replied with a grin, "On which day?" alluding to the myriad of decisions that had to be made each day according to problems or issues that continually arose.

Kissling added, "Now, although the structure of this building is still 100 years old, all of the electrical wiring, plumbing, waterlines, heating and air, security systems, elevator — it's all like a brand new building behind these walls."

"This has been a long and difficult project, but we are very pleased with the outcome," said County Judge Mike Braddock. "Originally, we began seeking grant funds from the Texas Historical Commission preservation program in 2003, and an overall master plan was approved in 2006, but no grant funds were approved at that time. Then in 2009, initial grant funds for the first phase of the project — the planning phase — were approved. Finally, in 2016, the construction funds were approved in Round IX grants, and the restoration project began in 2017," he explained.

Earlier county officials, including former County Judge H.G. Franklin, and former commissioners Keith Wied, the late J.T. Miller, Brad Hammonds, Danny Martin, and the late Don Morton, were all involved in the early days of the planning phase of the project, and helped to bring about the restoration project. Tahoka Mayor John Baker was also significantly involved in the process, submitting the original grant application on behalf of the county, as well as several of the subsequent updated grant submissions.

Current county officials, knowing that the construction funding would require significant matching funds from the county, had been earmarking funds for the restoration project for years, contributing approximately $4 million in local funds (including $1 million financed in certificate of obligation bonds) for the renovation.

"I believe that the citizens will be pleasantly surprised in the new 'old' look of this historical structure," Judge Braddock said. "When we first started this project approximately two years ago and it was said that the paint colors were going to be the original green and yellow, there were bad facial expressions from people," he said with a laugh. "But you will be amazed with the finished project colors," he added.

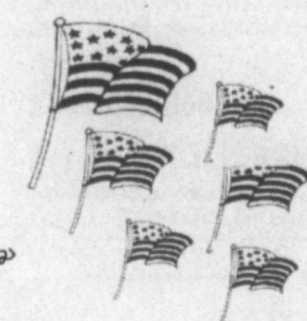

"The moving of our offices back into the courthouse will be controlled chaos, but we will move one office at a time, over a two to three day period," the judge explained. "The elected officials and employees have made the very best of being relocated but are very excited about getting back in the courthouse," he said.

The only county offices remaining where they are currently located will be the Justice of Peace Pct. 1 office, in the brick building on Hwy. 380 across from the Lynn County Law Enforcement Center, and the County Tax Assessor's office (which also includes voter registration/vehicle licensing) in the county's annex building on the west side of the square, at 1521 Ave. J. All other county offices will be returning to the courthouse in August.

Period floor tiles ... The honeycomb tile flooring, 100 years old, was painstakingly repaired where needed, during the Lynn County Courthouse restoration project. This tile flooring is in the foyer and hallways, and workers were busy last week finishing up the repairs on the floors in time for Saturday's upcoming grand rededication ceremonies at 2 p.m.

What's that smell?

During the Apollo 11 moon landing, Astronauts Armstrong and Aldrin described the smell of moon dust as "wet ashes in a fireplace." Oddly enough, the smell is only apparent in space — our planet's oxygen-rich atmosphere renders it scent-free.

Apollo 11 Moon Landing 50 YEARS AGO GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

HOUSTON, WHAT'S ON THE MENU?

What did the astronauts eat on their eight-day trip? They had 70 bite-size and dehydrated food items to choose from, including beef stew, spaghetti with meat sauce (an Armstrong favorite) and scalloped potatoes. The first meal eaten on the moon was bacon squares, peaches, sugar-cookie cubes, pineapple grapefruit drink and coffee.

The astronauts landed on the Moon with only 25 seconds of fuel to spare.

In a span of just 12 minutes, the astronauts would have to bring their lunar module, the Eagle, from 50,000 feet above the moon — orbiting around it at several thousand miles per hour — to the surface in what was basically a controlled fall.

Unbeknownst to anyone at Mission Control, unvented air had pushed the Eagle farther and faster apart from Columbia than planned, and it was on a path that would overshoot its carefully chosen landing spot by four miles.

At several hundred feet above the moon's surface, Armstrong could see a large crater with boulders the size of cars. He took over control from the computer and flew the Eagle manually, slowing the descent dramatically to only 9 feet per second. Maneuvering with only about 25 seconds of fuel left, he located a lunar landmark as a reference point and settled the Eagle onto the Sea of Tranquility so softly that neither astronaut felt the impact.

The probe had a fuel limit set where upon reaching it, automatic abort of the landing would begin. The probe landed 25 seconds before reaching this point. What this means is that if the probe were 25 seconds late on its landing, automatic abortion of the mission would have occurred, forcing them to travel back to the Columbia that was orbiting the Moon.

I declare this ROCK

The astronauts declared "moon rock and moon dust samples" to customs when they returned to Earth. In 2015, Buzz Aldrin tweeted a "travel voucher" that outlined the nature of expenses incurred from his trip out of the atmosphere, just like somebody would for a trip of a more Earthly nature. In addition, he revealed that the astronauts were required to sign customs forms upon their return to Earth, upon which they declared to be carrying "moon rock and moon dust samples".

The Moon landing on July 20, 1969 was watched on television by an estimated 600 million people.

The record-breaking event was seen by millions of viewers around the planet. In the days preceding the mission, media outlets all over spoke extensively of the mission, leading to widespread public anticipation.

Apollo 11 Moon Landing 50 YEARS AGO
GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

The Eagle has landed!

The Apollo 11 spacecraft consisted of the command module, Columbia, and the lunar module, Eagle. The Apollo lunar module was called the "Eagle," after our country's national bird.

We're GO for #11

Apollo 11 was the fifth manned mission of the Apollo program.

Although there were three astronauts sent to the Moon, only two of them actually stepped on it.

Many people who have knowledge of the Apollo mission believe that the probe carried only two astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin, with Armstrong being more famous of the two. While it is true that the module that landed on the Moon carried the two astronauts, they were three in total when they left the Kennedy Space Center, Florida on July 16th, 1969. When the Apollo spacecraft approached the Moon, one module was left orbiting around the Moon and was piloted by the third astronaut named Michael Collins. Although Collins did not experience the glory of stepping on the Moon's surface firsthand, the mission would not have been possible without him.

"That's one small step for [a] man, one giant leap for mankind"

The exact phrase uttered by Armstrong has been disputed.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind" is a phrase familiar to many, but did you know that its accuracy has been disputed by Armstrong himself? The exact quote, Armstrong claimed, is actually "that's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." Although many claimed to not hear this subtle variation, linguists have confirmed that Armstrong does in fact utter "a", leading to the quote to most officially be presented with the article in brackets.

Apollo 11 Moon Landing
50 YEARS AGO
GIANT LEAP FOR MANKIND

Hello?

On the moon, astronauts Armstrong and Aldrin took a phone call from President Richard Nixon, who said, "This certainly has to be the most historic phone call ever made from the White House."

Astronaut Neil Armstrong couldn't afford an astronaut life insurance policy, but he wanted to ensure that his family would be provided for. So all three astronauts, Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin and Michael Collins, signed hundreds of autographs that could be auctioned off for money should the mission go awry.

400,000

As a whole, the Apollo program required the skills of approximately 400,000 engineers, technicians, and scientists.

After reading a passage from the Book of John in the Bible, astronaut Buzz Aldrin took communion on the moon — another first for mankind.

Two sentenced to jail terms in 106th District Court proceedings

by JUANELL JONES

The Honorable Reed Filley, 106th District Judge, ruled on five criminal cases heard in district court proceedings in Tahoka on Tuesday, July 9, including two sentenced to jail terms for their crimes.

• Michael Lam, 31, pled guilty and was sentenced to 2 years jail time in the Texas Dept. of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) system in a Judgment of Conviction by Court-Waiver of Jury Trial, for Evading Arrest with a Motor Vehicle, a third degree felony offense that occurred Sept. 3, 2018.

• Brittany Williams, 28, was sentenced to 12 months jail time in TDCJ in a Judgment Adjudicating Guilt for a state jail felony offense of Forgery that occurred March 30, 2017. On May 22, 2018 in district court proceedings, she had originally been assessed Community Supervision, a fine of $1500 and payment of court costs, for the offense.

• Dakota Wade Dixon, 27, was sentenced to 6 years Deferred Adjudication Community Supervision in two separate cases, with both offenses occurring on Dec. 5, 2017. One charge was for Violation of Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax Requirements, for purchasing tax-exempt dyed diesel fuel for use by a motor vehicle on a public road or highway, with sentencing including a $2500 fine plus $213.40 restitution and court costs; and the other charge was for Possession of a Controlled Substance in Penalty Group 1, with sentencing including a $2000 fine, $180 restitution, and court costs. Both were second degree felony charges.

• Ulises Alejandro Ortiz, 20, was sentenced to 4 years Deferred Adjudication Community Supervision plus $500 fine, $180 restitution, and court costs for third degree felony charges of Possession of Prohibited Substance in a Correctional Facility, for an offense that occurred March 18, 2018.

• Domingo Ortiz, 56, received modification of probation, to remove an interlock device with camera from his vehicle. He had originally been sentenced on March 17, 2013 for Driving and Operating a Motor Vehicle While Intoxicated with 2 or more Previous Convictions, to 10 years Community Supervision and to have an interlock device with camera on his vehicle for the duration of community supervision.

A Grand Jury was also called in Lynn County on Tuesday, in the 106th District Court. Bianca Cirillo Baker, 65, was arrested this week on a felony Grand Jury Indictment for Theft of Property From a Non-Profit between $30,000-$150,000. She was released on a $35,000 bond.

Two traffic accidents occurred in the county during the past week, and a report of a reckless driver had an account of an elderly man driving the wrong way on the wrong side of US 87 early last Tuesday afternoon.

The Lynn County Sheriff's Office received several 9-1-1 calls at approximately 2:30 p.m. last Tuesday reporting that an elderly man driving a black Cadillac was driving northbound in the southbound lanes of US 87, in the vicinity of the FM 400 overpass. One caller said the Cadillac was almost hit by several semi-trucks as it traveled on the wrong side of the road. Deputies responded to the scene and drove all the way to the county line, but were unable to locate the vehicle, as it had apparently either moved to the correct side of traffic or turned off the highway.

At 12:43 p.m. Saturday, the SO received a call from Anthony Solid, of Big Spring, who was driving a red Dodge Journey. He reported that he had an accident after a tire had fallen off the vehicle while driving in the US 87 southbound lanes near FM 211. No injuries were reported. DPS responded to the scene and the vehicle was towed.

Another accident occurred at 10:31 a.m. Sunday, July 14 at CR 13 and US 87, when a blue 2005 pickup reportedly spun out through all the lanes of traffic and ended up in a cotton field on the east side of US 87. The driver was identified as Victor Alonso Rivas Jr. of Lubbock. No injuries were reported, and DPS worked the accident.

A caller reported that an elderly couple appeared to be stranded in a beige car on the side of the road just north of Tahoka, at 2 p.m. last Wednesday. A few minutes later, the SO received a 9-1-1 call from the driver of the beige car, asking for an ambulance because his mother needed medical assistance due to being out in the heat too long. Lynn County EMS transported the woman to Lynn County Hospital.

Tahoka Volunteer Fire Dept. was paged to a grass fire at Belew Farms about 2 miles south of Tahoka on the east side of US 87 at 2:43 p.m. Friday, when a control burn got out of control, reportedly damaging a utility trailer and getting close to a barn structure.

Tahoka VFD responded to another grass fire at 5:31 p.m. on Friday, just north of Tahoka at the FM 400 overpass, which was extinguished.

On Thursday, July 11, Wilson Volunteer Fire Dept. was paged out to a grass fire 5-10 miles south of Slaton on FM 400. A member of the Wilson VFD checked on the fire and canceled the page, reporting the fire had been put out. It was thought to be an illegal burn, and a deputy was notified.

Two calls reported aggressive dog behavior, including one on Friday from Grassland reporting that a neighbor's Pit Bull wouldn't let her dog out and also reporting it had killed her kittens. A caller on Sunday from Wilson reported that a neighbor's dog had chased his son when he tried to throw out the trash, and tried to bite him when he fell. Deputies responded to both incidents.

A handgun was reported stolen from a vehicle, in Tahoka Police reports this week. On Monday, Dusty D. Young reported a Smith & Wesson MP40SHLD taken from a white 2015 Dodge Ram pickup parked in the 2000 block of Ave. R, sometime during the past month.

A Tahoka woman filed her 2002 Chevrolet Suburban as stolen and pressed charges against her daughter for Unauthorized Use of a Motor Vehicle on Saturday, after she allowed the daughter to borrow the vehicle and then she failed to return it.

Police arrested a 29-year-old Tahoka man on charges of Intoxicated Pedestrian, after being dispatched to a fight in progress at South 2nd and Ave. N at 3:20 a.m. Saturday. The officer reported approximately 15 people standing there and several witnesses gave reports about the fight, which was allegedly instigated by the 29-year-old.

Police took a report at 10:50 p.m. Saturday from Melissa Vega, who found when she returned home that two vehicles at her home had been egged, a blue Ford F150 and a gray Nissan Altima, that were parked in the 2300 block of N. 2nd. She told officers she had been away from her home since July 9 and had just returned, finding the vehicles egged and also finding that notes had been left on her door, which she gave to police.

Police arrested a 28-year-old Tahoka man at 1 a.m. Saturday on an outstanding Lynn County warrant for Criminal Mischief, after responding to a complaint about a social media video that allegedly depicted the man pointing a gun at a 12-year-old girl.

Lynn County Jail held 39 prisoners during the past week, including 25 held for Ector County, and 14 for Lynn. Local arrests included one for the Grand Jury indictment, one for Criminal Mischief, one for Public Intoxication, two for possession of drugs, and one for Violation of Motor Fuel Tax Requirements.
