Fourth Annual International Food Festival On August 6, 2016 Was Very Successful!!

The Church of the Nation Family, Pastor Roy and Linda Davis hosted their Annual International Food Festival at 5902 11th Place on Saturday 6, 2016. It was a very successful program, according to those who were in attendance.

A special "Thank You" goes out to all who supported this event to make it a great success. The countries which were represented at the food festival were: China, Italy, Mexico, Caribbean, and America with New Orleans thrown in for some Bayou flavor. There was also a drink station that was worked by the Church of the Nation Youth.

All who attended this wonderful evening event was entertained by live music from Richard and La Familia, and also Darren Mann and The Levites.

There is competitive competition between the teams to make the a lot of fun. The food booths were judged on food and decorations. This year, Mexico "swept" the competition winning the award for both food and decoration. The booth was named El Luck Holy Taco Cafe in honor of founding members, Charles and Talluah Luck, for their dedication to God and the Church of the Nation Family.

Once again, THANK YOU to all who supported this FESTIVE evening event of FOOD, FUN, and FELLOWSHIP!!!

Instead of using a trophy case, Simone Biles can now store her medals on Channing Tatum

1. "My theory is that she's so tiny that she has a harder time holding onto the ground than actually ... just going up. Because she just, I don't know, she's just always flying away. I think she's got really strong toes, and [they help] her hold onto the ground." This is a thing Channing Tatum said about Simone Biles at least once on Earth, which is now widely available to the public thanks to his appearance on Ellen. Of course he was joking, but that's still a weird thing to say — maybe it was the delivery of the joke. At least they both go to meet each other. Speaking of which ...

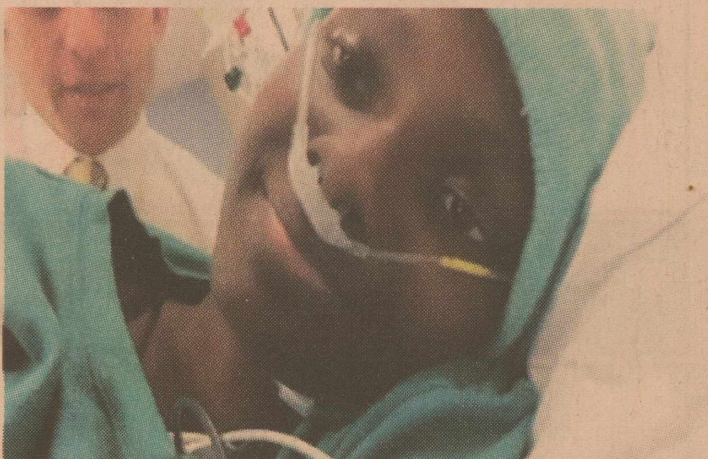

2. On a relatively less weird note, Ellen DeGeneres surprised Biles with a gift: In honor of her winning multiple medals in Rio, she got Biles a new storage method, which is just Channing Tatum holding her medals while standing on a podium. Between this, dominating Rio and freaking out over Zac Efron, this has been an awesome summer for Simone Biles.

This Type of Cancer is a Growing Concern in the Black Community

There are all different types of cancer. Leukemia is one type that involves the production of abnormal white blood cells in bone marrow. There are four different types of the more common forms of leukemia, but one type is increasing concern in the black community.

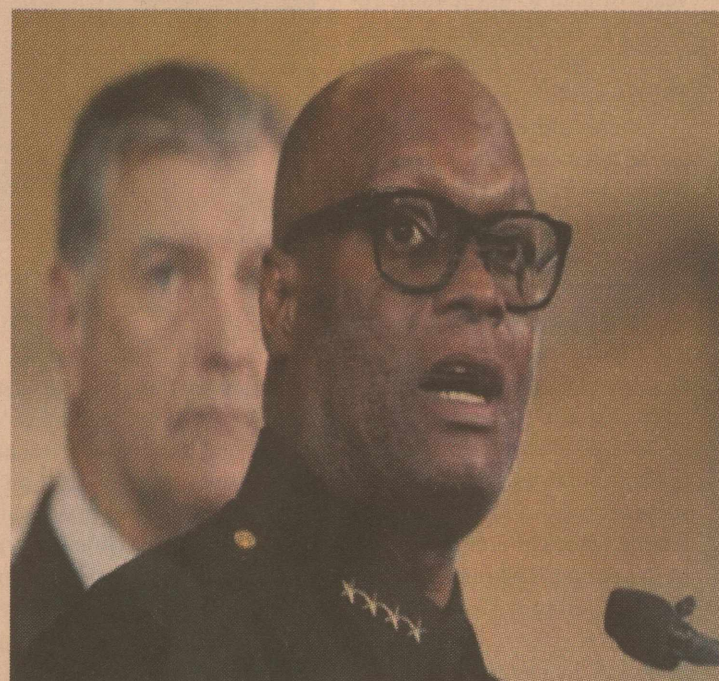

A study done in 2013 showed that African Americans with this type of cancer did not live as long as other patients with the disease, in spite of receiving the same treatment. It's called Chronic Myeloid Leukemia (CML), also known as chronic myelogenous leukemia. It primarily affects adults, and occurs in about 6,000 people in the U.S. every year. Although it represents 10-15 percent of all the different types of leukemia, it has become a growing concern for African Americans.

What researchers know
What researchers know about the cancer is that this type of leukemia typically grows slowly, but it can quickly accelerate and spread to just about any part of the body. They also found a link between CML and an abnormal chromosome known as the Philadelphia chromosome (Ph chromosome). Further, they know that the disease is usually diagnosed in its chronic phase (early stage) when treatment is very effective for most patients.

What researchers don't know
What researchers don't know is why people develop the disease. They also do not know why this form of leukemia is becoming more prevalent in the black community, or why blacks with CML may not live as long as other patients with the disease. Because of the disparity with which this cancer affects African Americans, it is definitely a cancer they need to know more about.

Dallas police chief announces retirement

Dallas, Texas -- Dallas Police Chief David Brown announced on Thursday, September 1, 2016, that he is retiring from Dallas Police Department.

Brown has been an officer with Dallas police for 33 years. He rose to national prominence in the wake of the fatal shooting of several police officers in July.

Brown will continue to lead the department until October 22. He announced his retirement through the following statement: "After much prayer, I am announcing my retirement from the Dallas Police Department after 33 years as a Dallas police officer. My retirement will be effective October 22, 2016.

Serving the citizens of Dallas in this noble profession has been both a true honor and a humbling experience.

Thank you to Mayors, City Managers and Dallas City Council members past and present for allowing me to serve. Thank you for the service you have provided for this great city.

I became a Dallas cop in 1983 because of the crack cocaine epidemic's impact on my neighborhood in Oak Cliff. I wanted to be part of the solution. Since that time I have taken great pride in knowing that we have always been part of the solution and helped to make Dallas the world class city it is today.

Let's always remember the fallen officers including the five officers on July 7, 2016, and the brave men and women of the Dallas Police Department for their sacrifices to keep Dallas safe. Their memory will remain with all of us forever. I know the people of Dallas will never forget the ultimate sacrifice they made on the streets of our city that awful night.

Officers, your extraordinary service will forever be etched in my heart and will serve as a guidepost for me in the next phase of my life. You will always be in my prayers.

I want to thank my family for their love and support.

This is a difficult decision. I pray for your understanding and well wishes.

Finally, I want to acknowledge my Lord and Savior Jesus Christ for my life, health, and strength. I pray for His continued blessings over my life.

Thank you Dallas and God bless!!"

Rise in Suicide by Black Children Surprises Researchers

The suicide rate among black children has nearly doubled since the early 1990s, while the rate for white children has declined, a new study has found, an unusual pattern that seemed to suggest something troubling was happening among some of the nation's most vulnerable citizens.

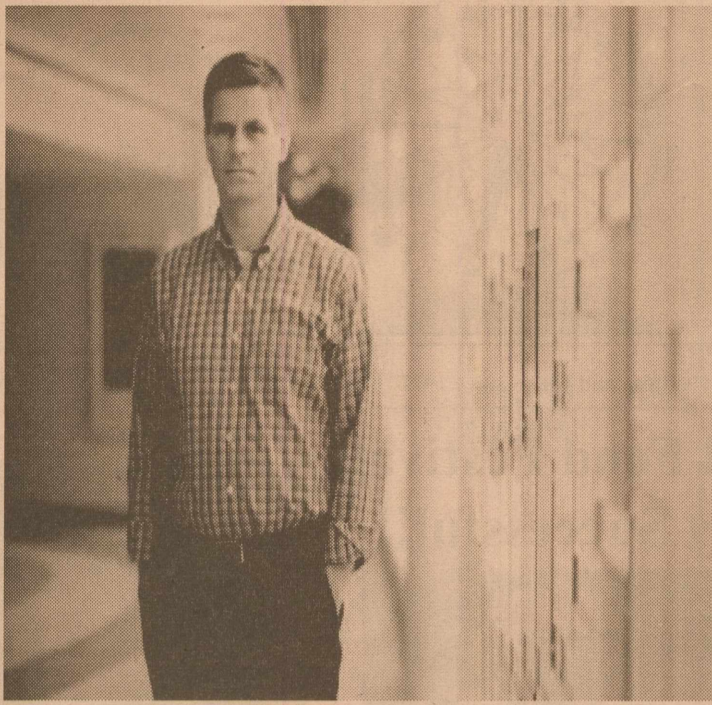

Suicide among children ages 5 to 11, the age range the study measured, is rare, and researchers had to blend several years of data to get reliable results. The findings, which measured the period from 1993 to 2012, were so surprising that researchers waited for an additional year of data to check them. The trend did not change.

Suicide rates are almost always lower among blacks than among whites of any age. But the study, published in the journal JAMA Pediatrics on Monday, found that the rate had risen so steeply among black children — to 2.54 from 1.36 per one million children — that it was substantially above the rate among white children by the end of the period. The rate for white children fell to 0.77 per million from 1.14.

It was the first time a national study found a higher suicide rate for blacks than for whites of any age group, researchers noted.

"I was shocked, I'll be honest with you," said Jeffrey Bridge, an epidemiologist at the Research Institute at Nationwide Children's Hospital in Columbus, Ohio. "I looked at it and I thought, 'Did we do the analysis correctly?' I thought we had made a mistake."

The researchers used national data based on death certificates that listed suicide as the underlying cause. In the study, they offered a few possible explanations for the difference,

Jeffrey Bridge, in Columbus, Ohio, led a study that tracked suicide rates for ages 5 to 11 from 1993 to 2012. The white rate fell. Credit Maddie McGarvey for The New York Times including that black children are more likely to be exposed to violence and traumatic stress, and that black children are more likely to experience an early onset of puberty, which can increase the risk of depression and impulsive aggression. But it was not clear whether those characteristics had changed much over the period of the study and would account for the sharp rise.

Sean Joe, a professor of social work at Washington University in St. Louis, who has studied suicide among black youth and did not take part in the new research, pointed out that suicide had long been one of the few negative health outcomes that have affected blacks less than whites.

A departure from that trend happened from the mid-1980s to the 1990s, when rising suicide rates among black teenagers narrowed the gap with white teenagers. One hypothesis was that the rate was driven up by easier access to guns; another was that there had been a cultural shift, in which young blacks were not as religiously observant as older blacks. In that thinking, religious faith had conferred a protective quality that had made older blacks less vulnerable to suicide.

"What it means to grow up young and black has changed," Professor Joe said. "Something happened that put black teens at risk."

He added, "I find the rates for children even more troubling, because they are the most vulnerable."

The finding seemed to buck other trends by race. Among adolescents of both races, for example, the rate declined over the same period, falling for blacks more than for whites, according to figures Dr. Bridge provided. The rate for black boys rose sharply. The rate for black girls also rose, but the change was not statistically significant, he said.

The way the children were dying seemed to provide some clues. Dr. Christine Moutier, chief medical officer for the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, who read the study, pointed out that gun deaths among white boys had gone down by about half while staying about the same for black boys, signaling that gun safety education may not be reaching black communities as effectively as white ones.

Suicides by hanging, on the other hand, roughly tripled among black boys, while remaining virtually unchanged for whites.

"He uncovered something very significant in the data," she said, referring to Dr. Bridge. "Viewed over all, that age group looked like it was flat."

She said the traditionally lower rates for blacks had often been attributed to strong social networks and family support, religious faith and other cultural factors. "That makes me wonder whether there is something in those protective factors that may have shifted in the wrong direction over those two decades," she said.

By Renetta Howard

Many, many years ago, when I completed high school at Southern Christian Institute in Edwards, Mississippi, where I earned fifteen cents an hour working as a student, upon my graduation, the school closed its doors forever. I had planned to stay there to enter college because it was a junior college and as valedictorian of my class I was to receive a scholarship upon my return. With the sad news of closing, the graduating seniors and junior college students had to look for other options to complete college work. As it were, Jarvis Christian College in Hawkins, Texas was a sister school and the Dean from Jarvis came to SCI and offered all of the students work for fifty cents an hour if we chose to attend Jarvis. Having no other plans, I hastened to take him up on the offer. Two weeks later, I was on the Tri-State Bus to Hawkins, Texas. Ironically, I arrived in Texas about a week before the Juneteenth celebrations.

I was surprised that after a week of working in extreme heat, the kind I had never endured, preparations were taking place to celebrate Juneteenth on the nineteenth of June. At first, I thought it was an early 4th of July activity and I was informed that it was the celebration of the end of slavery in Texas. Therefore, I envisioned it as a celebration of the Emancipation Proclamation which had been issued by President Abraham Lincoln on September 22, 1862, preliminarily and was effective on January 1, 1863. Little did I know that it was not until June 19, 1865, over two years later, that U. S. Major General Gordon Granger and his soldiers arrived in the Galveston-Houston area, with the news relayed that slaves were free.

My reaction to this news was immediately a feeling of resentment that the slaves had been robbed of two years of freedom. What I did not know was the fact that the slave owners were not willing to immediately let their subjects be free. Because of the hostilities incurred by this slow moving information, many free men and women began to desert the plantations of their previous owners and many were killed in an attempt to escape. The final unquestionable freedom arrived with the passing of the 13th Amendment to the United States Constitution on December 6, 1865. The Juneteenth celebrations as a joyous day for the Black people of Texas had its official beginning in 1866. According to Opal Lee, a staunch organizer and supporter of Juneteenth celebrations in Fort Worth, Texas, about 45 states now celebrate Juneteenth as a state holiday and she is on a crusade to have it declared as a National holiday. She has worked to have the state of Texas issue a special license plate honoring Juneteenth and is set to begin "Opal's Walk to DC" on Thursday, September 1, 2016 from Baker Chapel AME Church on Humbolt Street with her walking supporters. She plans to arrive in Washington D.C by December, 2016 with enough signatures by October 1 to get a proclamation from President Barack Obama to make Juneteenth not just an independence day but a National Juneteenth Independence Day as it is the oldest Black American holiday observance in the United States. This octogenarian deserves to be applauded for her tenacity and supported in her efforts. May we get 'in cinque' and support her and may the 'Force' be with her.

Beyond the Rhetoric By Harry C. Alford

Is the NAACP still relevant?

When was the last time someone asked you to take out a membership into the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People? Did you say "I am not colored"? Yes, the name is outdated and should be addressed by its membership. My father was proud to be a lifetime member. I took out a membership once in 1988 and have not been asked since. There is something missing here. Usually single memberships represent the decision making of an organization like this. The federation or chapters were once the backbone of such a "national" association. But in America chapters or Black chapters cannot be depended on for funding and strong leadership. The largest NAACP chapter is the city of Detroit. Considering the economic state of Detroit paints a dismal picture of this once proud and strong association.

During the Civil Rights Era the NAACP swelled in chapters and individual memberships. We won a lot during the famed era but the fervor sort of lost its need after obtaining the goal and implementation of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The next time you have a civil rights complaint call your local chapter of the NAACP and see what happens - usually NOTHING! What drives the NAACP today are major corporations and Hollywood. Within this structure are major trade unions who have no commitment to diversity. The big bucks they give annually are a method of buying peace and public relations. Construction unions are some of the most racist organizations in this nation. But you can't tell that to the leadership of the NAACP. "Construction unions have been our friends. I don't know why any Black group would criticize

SOUTHWEST DIGEST BECAME THIRTY-NINE YEARS AND ONE ISSUE OLD ON SEPTEMBER 11, 2016!!! THIS N THAT as well as many others are happy that the SOUTHWEST DIGEST reached its' THIRTY-NINTH BIRTHDAY AND ONE ISSUE when this issue was published on THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 2016! The actual birthday is on SEPTEMBER 11, 2016! As we recall the historical event begun on WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1977 which was on a THURSDAY MORNING SEPTEMBER 11, 2016 at approximately 2:00 a. m. when the first issue was developed then it was printed at approximately 4:00 p.m. The name of the newspaper was called THE LUBBOCK DIGEST but it was changed in few weeks to THE SOUTHWEST DIGEST!!! This was done because many of the readers wanted to involve all areas of THE SOUTH PLAINS OF TEXAS as well as the Eastern Part of NEW MEXICO..... Although a very dedicated person in the development of this HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT none other than EDDIE P. RICHARDSON, JR. who was determined that HIS DREAM would become a REALITY and it did..... RICHARDSON and T. J. PATTERSON, SR. hooked up until RICHARDSON passed away..... Both became like brothers. ... They went through many situations together and refused to quit..... With the help of GOD and supporters it has happened!!

them", Ben Jealous, former NAACP President.

Of late, a few chapters of the association are starting to see the picture and raise protests about the trades. New York City is a fine example of that (<http://nydn.us/2bw78RC>). If the national leadership continues down that path the NAACP is destined to fail. Right now the association membership levels are below 1% of the Black population of our nation.

What initially caused the existence of the NAACP (1909)? It was a northern white liberal group known as the Niagara Movement. This group came together and placed W.E.B. DuBois as their spokesperson and "Leader". His immediate role was to discredit and oppose Booker T. Washington, Founder of the National Negro Business League (1900). Mr. Washington's work and mission (economic empowerment of the American Negro) was indeed a powerful message. He built 39 chapters in cities throughout the South. One of his most popular one was Greenwood, outside of Tulsa, Oklahoma. It became famous (known as Black Wall St.) and was burned to the ground by racist elements - Not long after the mysterious death of Mr. Washington. There would be other examples of destruction of Black business districts emulating the teachings of Mr. Washington.

If ever you visit Tuskegee University, a fine institution that Mr. Washington built and developed with the support of Henry Ford, Andrew Carnegie, President Theodore Roosevelt and other national leaders, please stop to hear the actual Atlanta Debates. This is a recording of the debates between Mr. DuBois and Booker T. Washington. In my opinion, Mr. Washington won.

Today, many of the local chapters of the NAACP are tribal.

For instance, when I lived in Indianapolis the local president would not accept nor sell any new memberships. Why? He had enough votes to win any upcoming elections and he would not dilute that advantage through growth of his chapter. Many people in Indianapolis would complain to the National Office but that didn't seem to do any good.

The NAACP must break away from the "grasp" that unions have on the chapters and their Board of Directors. Remember that stupid practice of "School Busing"? Our children would get up at very early hours to be bused across town and then return home in the late afternoon. Offended whites would leave that school and put their children into private schools. This went on to the detriment of Black students and families alike. It was like we were forcing our children onto people who weren't Sunday morning services begun at 10:10 a. m. with our Sunday School Superintendent Sister Barbara Johnson presiding. We Praise God for all knowledge we receive during Sunday School.

The subject of the Sunday School lesson was entitled "Love For Others." The scripture text was Romans 12:1-2; and 13:8-10.

The morning lesson was taught by Sister Johnson, and reviewed by Pastor Canady. It was a most meaningful lesson. Everyone present had something to take home with them!!!

Paise the Lord for the knowledge.

 The Sunday morning devotion was conducted by Brother

Tommy Parker and Sister Barbara Johnson.

Pastor Canady entered the Church with the Choir singing "This Little Light of Mine."

The morning sermon was delivered by Pastor Canady. His subject was "The Foolishness of the Preaching of the Gospel." His scripture text was I Corinthians 1:18-19.

The well received message was very informative and well appreciated by all in attendance.

Pastor Canady brought the sermon where all in attendance could understand.

The morning announcements were read by Sister Barbara Johnson, and the Prayer List was read by Sister Ruby Robinson.

We thank God for what both of you have done. May God continue to bless each of you. Keep on doing what you are doing for St. Matthew Baptist Church!!!

New Light Baptist Church News

3013 Idalou Road Rev. Kenneth O. Jackson, Pastor

On Sunday morning, August 28, 2016, church services of the New Light Baptist Church, 3013 Idalou Road, got underway with all members and Rev. Kenneth O. Jackson, our Pastor, praising God!!

Church School started at 10:00 a. m. with Pastor Jackson teaching the lesson.

There was Morning Worship which begun at 11:00 a. m., with our devoted Praise Team leading the way. Afterwards, a testimony period was held. The Responsive Reading was printed in Psalm 124:1-8. This was followed by Altar Prayer which was led by Pastor Jackson, with the congregation singing "O' How I Love Jesus."

Sister Linda Green read all the morning announcements and announced all of the upcoming events which are scheduled to be held in the Lubbock community.

The morning offering was held and directed by appointees.

The Melodious Voices of New Light Baptist Church sang: "Sign Me Up," "O Lord Help Me," and "Shine On Me." What a blessing!!

Pastor Jackson preached the sermon entitled "Through It All The Church Is Indestructible." It was printed in Matthew 16:13-20.

The Church has been in existence for over 2,000 years. The Lord had to stimulate the Church as it came upon a great persecution. Jesus said upon this rock, I will build my Church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against us.

Things will come up against the Church, but the Church is indestructible.

It doesn't matter what nation it is, we are all the same.

Through it all, we have had some dark times, but we made it.

The people of God are always going to be around. It doesn't matter what you do or say, nothing will stop the Church!!

Jesus took care of us all upon Calvary.

Through it all, learn to put your trust, concern, and life in Jesus!!

Some glad morning when this is all over, we will all fly away from here.

With the spirit being high, the song after the sermon sung was "O How I Love Jesus."

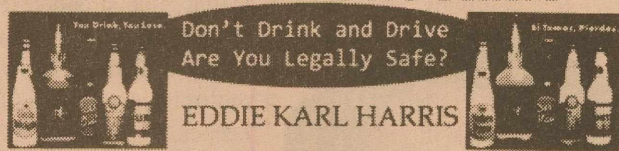

Looking for a Church Home, then do come and visit the New Light Baptist Church. Our Pastor will be glad to meet you. Our doors are always open for you and your family members.

The Southwest Digest Proudly Introduces: Mr. Derrick McCruse, Executive Director of 5Linx

Derrick McCruse Bio:
God day! My name is Mr. Derrick C.E. McCruse, Sr. and I am a servant to the Lord Jesus Christ, a Loving Husband, and a dedicated Father to six children. A Houston Native by way of Boston Massachusetts for the last 8 years before the Lord allowed my family and I to reside back in Texas in one of the Friendliest cities, Lubbock.

I am a Wireless Engineer for a Telecom Company that allowed me to transfer to Lubbock back in 2014. I met my Lovely wife, TaShelia McCruse while in college at Alabama State University studying for a degree in Computer Graphic Design. We both have a desire to serve God and His people while raising a family that mirrors Gods image.

I am happy to say that my few recent years in Lubbock has been a spiritual refreshing by becoming a member of a Local Church, Kingdom Life Fellowship, where Pastors Johnny & Karen Davis reside as Leaders of the Ministry.

The city of Lubbock has also been refreshing with friendly-helpful people, non bumper to bumper traffic, great weather and easy-go living & lifestyle.

I truly believe in the 3 F's of Life: FAITH, FAMILY & FINANCE. We should commit to our FAITH in Jesus Christ, LOVE our FAMILY and find multiple ways to generate FINANCES for our homes. The 5LINX Business is a leader in Direct Selling that has made more millionaires than any other industry alone.

The Business has given me the opportunity not to only bring extra income to the home but it also gives the value that a JOB (just on bills) didn't provide. I am able to help others while helping myself, the truth in being a servant: "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again" Luke 6:38 KJV.

Our homes and communities today ought to be built on a strong foundation. When we look at our ourselves and surroundings we should find opportunities to effectively create simple ways to increase hope, inspiration and economical standards. Its our job, our commitment, our chance to advance God's plans here on earth

If you were to look a second back into history its his-tory or her-story that made the difference not their-story but your story that can change the future NOW!

I request and ask that whatever you do, do it unto the LORD. I am giving this life that I live the best that I have and everyone within my arms length or even internet wide, I aim to support. Contact me, pray for me and lets build from within and then everyone wins.

Or maybe you're close to or in retirement and having residual income makes sense. I believe NOW is the time NOT tomorrow not MAYBE but NOW is the time to invest more in you and your abilities to help others by being a CEO of your own business.

If it sounds like something that would add to your quality of life, that can aid you financially and be able to share with others and you would like to know more, Be Intentional and allow

The Eleventh Of September

Written by Roger J. Robicheau ©2002

We mourn their loss this day this year; Those now with God, no danger near; So many loved ones left do stand; Confronting loss throughout our land; My heart goes out to those who do; No one can fathom what they view.

I firmly pray for peace of mind Dear God please help each one to find; And to our soldiers now at war; God guide above, at sea, on shore; They are the best, I have no doubt; Our country's pride, complete, devout; The finest force you'll ever see; All freedom grown through liberty;

One final thought comes clear to me; For what must live in infamy.
