Medical Benefits And Public Opinion

It has been said that the American people are in favor of the bill which would give medical services to everyone drawing social security benefits, and would increase social security taxes to meet or help meet the tab--and that the opposition consists only of relatively small, vocal and selfish groups. Well, there is factual evidence concerning that view. Many member so Congress periodically poll their constituents, to find out their attitudes toward controversial issues. Of 27 polls on the medical proposal taken some little time ago, the voters opposed the social security concept in 16 and supported it in only 11.

majority opinion in opposition to the plan. It is also significant that some of the polls asked if the voters favored voluntary and state-administered plans for caring for the indigent aged, and the response was extremely favorable. The Kerr-Mills bill, passed by the last Congress, is based on this idea and, while providing federal financial, places administrative responsibility where it belongs--in the states. Another long step forward is found in the plan sponsored by the Blue Shield organizations and the American Medical Association for providing voluntary health insurance to the aged at moderate rates.

Now Is Time To Send For Child's Birth Certificate

Parents have their hands full remembering all the things needed for a child beginning school for the first time. But one item they should put on their list is a birth certificate.

This word of advice comes from W.D. Carroll, state registrar, whose vital statistics staff at the Texas State Department of Health is responsible for handling the flood of requests for birth certificates for children entering school for the first time this September.

Many parents tend to put off requesting copies of their youngsters' birth record until the last moment, resulting in a heavy work overload.

long, voluntary health and hospitalization plans must go. Not enough people, no matter how much they prefer to take care of themselves and no matter what their salaries are, will have enough left after Federal, state, local and Social Security taxes for such a luxury. Medicare must then be expanded to include all ages, by this cancellation of personal hospitalization insurance.

And as far as taking care of their children and families, Americans have had it... unless... You can wire your representative in Washington for 75¢ if you can tell him to vote against this bill in less than 15 words. And all it takes is the simple statement... Vote the monster down before it takes us all. THE RALLS BANNER.

ONE WOULD THINK, from reading the fireball writings of some of our liberal friends, that such things as religion, patriotism and plain old honesty in every day dealings should be outlawed and in their places we should place that time-worn principal, "From each according to his ability to each according to his need." Although it would probably hurt his feelings to say it in these exact words, that is the impression we get of Mr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr.'s desires and aspirations for this county. Mr. Schlesinger, in case you don't know, is one of President Kennedy's right-hand men and principal advisors. We do not believe that Mr. Schlesinger is a Communist -- heavens no! We just think he has the same ideas of how to save the country that the Communists are trying to use in Russia. In America we call it socialism. THE LOCKNEY BEACON

Editorially Speaking...

PRESIDENT JACK has begun to show his true colors concerning the medicare plan now being proposed to Congress. "The President," reported Senator Hubert Humphrey, "has the bit in his mouth on medical aid for the aged... he was kindly and soft hearted in the steel dispute compared with his feelings on medicare." It was a well known fact before this statement was made that the President had flatly rejected any consideration of a health plan for oldsters outside of the compulsion of the Social Security system. Thus, it might be well to consider, before it is too late and before so-called Washington representatives, approve the requests the President had made, why, if the intentions are so benevolent, the proffered services so complete and the cost so trifling, medicare cannot be offered on a voluntary basis. There are many questions that could and should be brought to light about the program, questions that could be embarrassing and if answered will point to the fact that the cost on such a program will be trifling, compared to the national debt only! Is the cost small because of the nine million Americans already over 65--and millions more who are approaching that age--already have the sort of health insurance they want, and do not want Federalized care? I don't think so. Is it because the would-be beneficiaries are shocked by their discovery of the additional costs of medicine--$10 a day for the first nine days of hospitalization, payment by the patient of the first $20 of the cost of outpatient hospital diagnosis, payment by the patient of his own doctor or surgeon and purchase of drugs used outside of the hospital or nursing-home? I don't think so. Or is it because the whole Social Security adventure has been so fiscally disastrous ($600 million in the hole last year) that something new must be found to save it, a shiny new gimmick that will boost the spiralling tax farther and faster--to an estimated $507 a year per Social Security number by 1968? Could it be this is it? If Medicare is over established, and it will be if someone doesn't protest loud and been forced to postpone his first days at school simply because his parents couldn't produce proof of his age when it came time to register for him. Carroll's advice to parents: "Send in your request today to the local registrar, county clerk, or the State Department of Health."

All you have to do is give the child's name, date and place of birth, the mother's maiden name, and the name of the father. This information, with the necessary fee should be addressed to the local registrar, county clerk, or to the State Department of Health, Section on Records and Statistics, 410 East 5th Street, Austin, Texas.

Something else: Be prepared to show school officials a record of "shots" your youngster has had. Depending on local school board regulations, proof of immunizations against smallpox, whooping cough, diphtheria and other diseases may be required.

A good many parents, some of whom may have waited too long in past years, have already requested and received birth records on this year's new scholars, but tens of thousands of additional records will have to be processed between now and the first time that first school bell rings in September. More than one youngster has

The Case of the Flying Spiders

Ten webbed fingers of ductile iron--they add up to the first major advance in cultivating since the tractor replaced the horse. Folks didn't believe it at first. Especially when they were told that the spiders rolled "backwards."

The fact is that the Rolling Cultivator has caught fire from coast to coast, not to mention other parts of the world. No one who owns one will ever go back to the slow, tedious methods again.

The potential is no less than extraordinary. The Rolling Cultivator is a tractor-sparing, labor-saving, money-making tool that belongs on every farm. Have you seen it yet?

Here, the Rolling Cultivator is set to throw dirt toward the corn. The higher the angle, the higher the bed. Adjustments are simple, take only minutes to make.

LILLISTON

Rolling Cultivator

When we say that the spiders roll "backwards," we mean that they actually turn the opposite way from ordinary tools. Instead of just picking the ground, they slice through and displace the dirt as they roll. Three gangs of spiders work each row, one directly over the crop, the other two on the side of the row--each gang independently floating to insure thorough cultivation coverage no matter how uneven the ground. The Rolling Cultivator does an outstanding job on flat land, too, and still leaves the ground as flat and even as desired. You can angle the gangs to throw dirt toward or away from the plants or vary the agitation. Rear gangs can be tilted to work bedded ground or the sides of furrows. Sweeps work the middles and the cultivation is complete--up to three times faster than ever before.

Census Bureau Stays Busy

Contrary to popular belief, the U.S. Census Bureau does not fold its tents and fade away between the big 10-year population and housing counts, according to Director James W. Stroud of the Bureau's permanent regional field office at Dallas. The Dallas region covers the State of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas. Stroud points out that nine major censuses will be conducted between now and the next decennial census in 1970. The first of these major censuses will be the 1962 Census of Governments which is conducted every five years. Then comes the five-year Censuses of Business, Manufactures and Mineral Industries. These will be taken in 1964 and 1969, covering business operations in 1963 and 1968 respectively. The Census of Agriculture will be conducted in 1964 and 1969. In addition to these major censuses, the Bureau carries out a wide variety of current surveys on a monthly, quarterly, and annual basis. Topics covered in the current surveys include employment and unemployment, population characteristics, health, housing, retail and wholesale trade, manufacturing, and related subjects. The purpose of the current surveys is to supplement and keep up to date the detailed information collected in the major censuses.

The Current Population Survey, conducted 12 times a year, is probably the best known Census Bureau interim activity since it provides monthly information on employment and unemployment. Information obtained by interviews in 333 sample areas of the country is combined to furnish statistics for national estimates. Information on migration, income, school enrollment, and other pertinent subjects is collected from time to time in the Current Population Survey in addition to the facts of employment and unemployment.

Approximately 35,000 households throughout the country are included each month in the Current Population Survey. These households are selected at random under the Census Bureau's scientific sampling program to provide a representative cross-section of all classes of the population, and all types of areas of the country - large cities, small towns, rural areas, and so forth.
