Water Situation 'Eases'

With one of the driest years on record, area residents were awakened last Thursday morning about 3:00 o'clock by a strange sound - rain, slow, gentle rain which had begun falling! The rain continued to fall with brief respites during the day until the scanner on Channel 2 showed 3.75 inches at 10:00 p.m. Thursday. The rain continued to come down, some showers heavier but never hard, until by Friday morning at 9:15, the scanner had recorded 10.3. When the rain ceased Friday afternoon, the total shown was 10.55.

The rain was attributed to the remnants of the tropical storm Amelia. The storm activity moved slowly northward and flash flood warnings were issued for both Haskell and Knox Counties.

Knox City was spared the flooding; however, some cotton and milo crops were lost to the high water south and east of town.

Downpours drenched areas to the south and southeast with Albany, Throckmorton, and Haskell bearing the brunt of the rampaging flood waters.

Albany was turned into an island by rampaging creeks Thursday night and authorities feared as many as 20 persons may have been killed. A 20-foot wall of water coursed through the town late Thursday destroying about 30 homes.

Flood waters forced evacuation of Throckmorton, 40 miles northeast of Albany, as Lake Throckmorton filled to capacity and overflowed its earthen dam, threatening to burst it.

Rice Springs Creek in Haskell, normal about 20 feet wide, became a quarter-mile river early Friday when the flood hit about 2:00 a.m., breaking windows and doors, causing extensive damage to a number of homes.

In Tuesday morning's Abilene Reporter-News, Farm Editor J.T. Smith reported that the floods not only tore up towns and took lives, but also caused a collective $40 million in agricultural damage to rural areas in five counties - Haskell, Shackelford, Jones, Throckmorton, and Knox. Haskell was by far the hardest-hit agriculturally in dollars and cents, he said, with a conservative estimate of $30 million damage - $24 million of that in cotton. Glenn Brzozowski, Haskell County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director, said that 140,000 to 160,000 acres of cotton - a record planting - was originally seeded in Haskell County. Now it appears only 20,000 acres 'at most' might be harvested in a cotton-dependent county which harvested a bumper record crop from a then-record 130,000 acres last year. Ironically, he said, flood and drought took its toll in Haskell County as some cotton might not have been harvested even if the flood hadn't finished it off with rainfall of up to 17 inches in Haskell County during a 26-hour period. He said the drought had already taken its toll as Haskell County failed to make a wheat or grain sorghum crop which had earlier caused $1.8 million in damage. Other flood damage to livestock, fences, topsoil erosion, waterways, and terraces put the flood damage alone easily over $30 million, Brzozowski said.

A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT FOR MEMBER TOWNS of Munday, Goree, Haskell, and Knox City is this aerial view of the filled Millers Creek Reservoir. Ironically, construction was delayed in 1973 because of too much rain, but since its completion in 1974, the reservoir had accumulated only 1,200 acre-feet. After Years Of Drought

Millers Creek Over-Flowing

Pete Beecher, manager of the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority, plus taxpayers in Munday, Goree, Haskell, and Knox City, were jubilant Friday as news came in that Millers Creek Reservoir had filled up.

Beecher and member towns had waited four years for the $6.2 million reservoir to fill up enough to become operational.

Beecher reported that he flew over Saturday morning, and the reservoir was 'more than full' - to about three feet over the surface spillway, but still below the emergency spillway.

In a telephone conversation with Beecher Monday morning, he reported to the News office that he had just talked with one of the engineers in regard to the supply of water now contained in the reservoir. He said the engineer told him that he could not actually pinpoint the number of years' supply, but that it would see the member towns 'through a worse drought than we have ever known.'

Beecher said area residents should begin receiving water from the reservoir within a few weeks.

Since its completion in 1974, the reservoir - with a storage capacity of 25,520 acre-feet - had accumulated only 1,200 acre-feet. The reservoir must be at least one-quarter full, containing 6,000 acre-feet, to justify operation, he explained.

At this point, Beecher is all alone at the task of flushing out the old, stored water, sterilizing the tanks and pipelines, and chlorinating the new water supplies, as the water treatment plant superintendent resigned last June.

Because the reservoir had never been used commercially, its budget has been lean, allowing a minimum of employees and maintenance work at the water treatment plant and pumping stations.

Beecher was to meet Tuesday evening of this week with the water authority's board of directors to discuss hiring two or three superintendents and possibly other employees.

Repairs, such as painting tanks and recalibrating instrumentation, are necessary due to the lack of maintenance the past five years, but will not hinder the beginning of operations, Beecher said.

He also reported to the News office that State Department of Health officials had contacted him and are ready to examine the facilities this week.

Miller Creek Reservoir's controversial history dates back to 1957, and includes five years in and out of courts with town officials challenging the water authority's validity.

Three towns - Rochester, Rule, and Seymour - withdrew from the authority before the reservoir was completed.

However, water authority officials are currently negotiating with officials from Aspermont, Rochester, and O'Brien, Beecher said.

While waiting for the reservoir to fill to capacity, area residents have continued to use well water, which is not state-approved because it contains impurities such as nitrates.

With water from the reservoir, residents of the four towns will have state-approved water available for the first time.

Benjamin Residents Reminded To Vote

Benjamin Superintendent of Schools Kenneth Roberts reminds Benjamin residents of the upcoming election to be held Saturday August 12.

Purpose of this election is to re-classify the Benjamin Rural High School District to the Benjamin Independent School District.

According to Roberts, the change has become necessary as new legislation is doing away with the office of the county superintendent effective January 1. In recent years, it has been the responsibility of the county judge.

Voters in Precinct 1 will cast their ballots at the county courthouse and Precinct 3 voters will vote at the Community Center building in Gilliland. Polls will be open Saturday from 8:00 a.m. until 7:00 p.m.

Norma's Opens Here

Former resident Norma Sutton and her husband, Gene, along with their sons Barry and Rob, moved to Knox City Monday of last week from Abilene.

The Suttons have purchased Edith's and took over last week. The firm will be known as Norma's Leather Express.

Mrs. Sutton, the former Norma Coats, daughter of Mrs. Bonnie Coats and the late G.W. (Jack) Coats, is well-known throughout the area having worked a number of years at the Citizens State Bank. She had been employed in Abilene by Citizens National Bank in the trust department prior to their moving here.

Gene served in the U.S. Marines from 1942 to 1950 when he became a paratrooper with the U.S. Army, serving until his retirement May 31, 1963. Since his retirement, he has worked as an inspector for the Liquor Control Board.

Barry and Rob will be a sophomore and freshman, respectively.

The Suttons are eagerly awaiting a big shipment of shoes and plan to carry a full line of shoes for the entire family, along with handbags and other accessories.

They are closing out their clothing stock and all summer shoes as will be noted by their display ad in this week's News.

The Suttons invite all their friends to come by and see them and are planning a grand opening in the near future.

Hearing Set For Railway

A discontinuance hearing for the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Railroad Agent for Knox City, Knox County, Texas, is set for Wednesday, August 16, at 9:00 a.m. at 611 Congress Avenue in Austin.

Due to numerous interested parties who would like to have the opportunity to testify against the proposal, W.R. Baker, president of the Knox City Chamber of Commerce, has requested that the hearing be moved to Knox City.

Because of general business obligations of these individuals, the distance, time, and expense involved in travel to Austin would make their participation impossible, Baker said.

Persons wishing to send a notice of intent to protest reference docket 003342-ZZAD are urged to write immediately to S.R. Lewis Jr., Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, 700 First Hutchings-Sealy National Bank Building, Galveston, Texas 77550.

Jr. Golf Tourney Reset For Aug. 15

Lions Club News

By Z.I. Smith

After two weeks in aloha land and one week getting all the family to the dentist, your Lion reporter is back. Guests at Wednesday's meeting were Lion Ray Goodrich's grandson, Lion Joe Clonts brought son-in-law Burtor Balch, just recently back from a year's stay in Germany, and Lion David Counts brought Lion Bill Davis from Hamlin. President Bill Baker helped the first V.P. Lorenz get the final "volunteers" to be monthly program chairmen for this year. Tail twister squeezed a few dimes out of some for not helping with the program planning.

Pres. Baker did not have a program planned for him so he reported on some recent developments of the school tax bill and general tax reduction bill efforts in the Austin legislature. He feels the tax bills now under consideration may turn out not to be a true tax relief. But the congress is still in session and still trying to plan an acceptable bill.

Streams in Desert Places

By Ozelle Stephens

"I know how to live on almost nothing or with everything. I have learned the secret of contentment in every situation, whether it be fatness, or hunger, plenty, or want; For I can do everything God ask me to do with the help of Christ who gives me the strength and power." (Phil. 4:12-13), paraphrased.

By reading, studying and believing God's Word we learn contentment; we learn how to know and do God's will. Regardless of the situation you find yourself in, with all of this world's troubles, heartaches, misunderstandings and sickness.

By believing and obeying the Word, you will always be full of the joy of the Lord; and rejoice; be unselfish and gentle in all that you do. Don't worry about anything; tell God your needs and don't forget to thank Him for His answers.

If you will do this you will know God's peace which is far more wonderful than humans can understand. His peace will keep your thoughts and your heart quiet and at rest as you trust in Christ Jesus. This is God's Word; His promise to all who believe and obey.

Jailhouse Chaplain Offers Inmates A Spiritual Hand

(Editor's note: The following article concerning Bob Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.A. Cox of O'Brien, appeared in the Sunday July 9 issue of the Fort Worth Star Telegram. For interest of the readers, the article written by Ron Hutcheson, Star-Telegram Courthouse Writer, appears in its entirety.)

Moments after he was sentenced to nine and a half years in prison in May, former Cub Scout leader Charles Owens Jr. pledged to spend his time in prison fighting the "sin" of homosexuality.

The convicted child molester said he intends to write a book about the Bible's view of "homosexuality and whoredom."

Later that same month, Jimmy Dean Sasser walked out of Tarrant County Jail after seven months confinement and proclaimed himself a new man.

"I've accepted God since I've been here," said the man who falsely confessed to the murder of 17-year-old Carla Walker.

If professed conversions of Owens and Sasser are questionable, it is a question that doesn't really concern Jail Chaplain Bob Cox.

"I used to be threatened by jailhouse religion," Cox said. "Right now I think jailhouse religion is better than nothing. Maybe one of these days it will be the real thing."

Cox and his assistant, Don Springer, were hired by the Tarrant Baptist Association under an arrangement with Sheriff Lon Evans to administer to the spiritual needs of the men and women on both sides of the bars in the Tarrant County Jail.

Cox spends most of his time with law enforcement officers while Springer works with the inmates.

Cox, who worked almost exclusively with inmates until he started the law enforcement chaplaincy about 14 months ago, said he never attempts to force his religion on anyone.

He said he also tries never to forget his church is the other man's jail cell.

"Like any other person who is employed to work in the confinement setting, I have to keep in mind that the jail is not full of persons who sang too loud in the church choir," he said.

"An individual in jail, just like you and I, has as much right to feel one way about a subject as he does to feel the other way. They have the same freedom to decide whether they want to change or do not want to change.

"My goal is to be available to aid in the process of change. The decision is not mine, the decision is theirs."

Cox said jail inmates usually form a clearly defined status system on each cell block.

I know you don't believe this but it the truth, my dog is singing now. Yesterday I were outside and were singing. Now I know I can't sing, but I thought I were doing better than that. My dog came and set down and started to help me. I guess he were trying to give me a tune. So we played Name That Tune.

Last Saturday were Anthony birthday so he had a party. Where else but up here. And before it were over, I said look out Dallas here he come (ha ha). I love the little rotten booger.

Here's the answer to bollworm and budworm problems in cotton.

As soon as infestations of bollworms and tobacco budworms reach the critical stage and local agricultural authorities declare an emergency, use AMBUSH® insecticide under the Emergency Exemption, Section 18.

AMBUSH is a new and different type of insecticide. Follow these guidelines for highly effective worm control and cost-effective results.

- Read the label carefully. Discuss details with your dealer or applicator. In 1978, you can rotate from cotton to any other crop 60 days after the last application of AMBUSH.
- Scout your fields. If worm pressure is heavy, apply AMBUSH immediately at the higher rate. Insist on thorough coverage of plants. Scout again in three or four days. Use another application at the higher rate, if necessary.
- After the second application, you should be able to use AMBUSH on an as-needed basis at the low rate per acre for the remainder of the season. But continue careful scouting.
- AMBUSH is not intended for use as a clean-up material. However, when you use it under Section 18, it may be the only insecticide you will need.
- Insects stop feeding immediately on contact, but may not die for one to three days.
- AMBUSH has long residual action, requires fewer applications than standard insecticides. Start with it as soon as you can and stay with it for up to 10 applications during the season.
- It promotes earlier cotton maturity because it lets plants grow naturally. Growers report a better boll set and higher yields.
- AMBUSH is easy on the environment, but must be used with care around streams and ponds because it is toxic to fish. No problems with game birds and small animals have been reported. See your supplier and ask for AMBUSH.
