Two die when boarding house burns

Denison blaze blamed on wood stove DENISON, Texas (AP) - Two elderly women were killed Wednesday when a wood-burning stove ignited a sofa in an old wood frame house here, authorities said.

The victims, Lou Ella Lee, 80, and Bobby Slaughter, 69, were two of the four permanent residents of the building which had been a nursing home until its state license was revoked in 1969, Fire Marshal Dwight Sharp said.

The owner, Cookie Lee Paul, was not at home wh the fire broke out, Sharp said. The fourth resident, Eddie Dye, 80, was standing in the front yard when after she returned and saw firemen cleaning up firemen arrived.

"When I arrived on the scene ... I went into the building from the northeast side and could see a couch on fire near a wood-burning stove. It was in flames, sharp said. "In my opinion, the couch sat too close to the stove and that caused the fire.

The man standing outside, Eddie Dye, told me he tried to put the couch out with pans of water," Sharp

The fire marshal said he interviewed Mrs. Paul

"She seemed in a state of shock and we could get very little information from her," he said. He said neighbors, who described the building as

"diapidated," said it had been a boayding house finee the pursing home license was lifted, but Mrs. Paul told him the house was strictly a "private residence.

Mrs. Paul was not related to any of the other residents of the home, neighbors said.

Iran threatens again to try U.S. hostages

By The Associated Press

State-run Tehran Radio declared Wednesday that Iran would not compromise on conditions for release of the 52 American hostages and U.S. 'procrastination' could lead to spy trials for the prisoners and their exe-

The latest threat came as a Algerian mediators left Washington for Algiers with a new U.S. message to be relayed to Iran.

Iran's chief negotiator in the hos-tage crisis, Behzad Nabayi, has indicated the Iranian government would accept a U.S. counterproposal to Iran's demand for $24 billion if it 'contains a kind of guarantee acceptable to the Algerian government.'

In a commentary, Tehran Radio said, "The enemy should know that it has no other option but to give a positive response to Iranian demands and that procrastination might force Iran to adopt an uncompromising position and, consequently, the hostages might be tried." The broadcast added, "The trial of the hostages might, of course, not only lead to their execution, being guilty of spying, but, even more importantly, it will lay bare the unwarranted interference of imperialism in other countries.

'In brief, Iran is not ready for any softening and will not deviate from its former positions. Procastination and delay in meeting Irans's demands will mean the trying of the American

A transcript of the broadcast was received by the the State Department in Washington, where spokesman Jack Cannon said, "We continue to hold Iran totally responsible for the safety and security of the hostages.... It is not our policy to comment publicly on statements or comment coming out of Tehran.

After four days of consultations in Washington, three Algerian intermediaries left for Algiers with the U.S. answer. One U.S. official said the new American proposal could end the hostage crisis, in its 424th day Wednesday, "if the Iranians are willing and able to do so." Informed Washington sources said the Carter administration is offering to deposit perhaps as much as $12 billion of Iranian assets in an escrow account in a neutral country, presum-ably Algeria. Under the proposal, Iran could claim the funds once the hostages are released. Nine days ago, Iran demanded $24 billion in financial guarantees before it would release the hostages. The Iranians want $10 billion deposited in Algeria's Central Bank to cover frozen Iranian assets and gold, $4 billion more for the return of other, unidentified assets and $10 billion as a guarantee for recovery of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The Carter administration called the demand excessive and legally impossible to meet and worked out a new proposal. U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the American plan would enable Iran and the United States to resolve the hostage deadlock if Iran "is willing and able to do so."

Although Nabavi suggested that Iran might be willing to compromise, reports from Tehran indicated the hostage crisis was unlikely to be settled before President Carter leaves office on Jan. 20.

CBS news correspondent Tom Fen-ton reported from Tehran that Iran's internal political situation was making it increasingly difficult for Iranian negotiators to find a compromise acceptable to both the United States and Iran's leadership. Diplomatic observers in Tehran were not optimistic that the crisis could be ended before

U.S. population exceeds 226 million

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Census Bureau, its calculations finished and stamped official, declared Wednesday there were 226,504,825 people in America last April 1, an increase of 11.4 per cent in the decade since the last nose count.

The figures submitted to President Carter reflect a population shift that is no surprise, a relative decrease inthe populations of the big industrial states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois and an increase in the "Sun Belt" states. Only two states - Rhode Island and New York - and the District of Columbia actually lost population, however. The Constitution requires the stateby-state count every 10 years for distributing the 435 seats in the House of Representatives among the states. In the 1980 census, Florida is the biggest gainer, picking up four seats for a total of 19. New York is the big loser, down five to a total of 34.

All told, 17 seats will change in the House of Representatives in 1982.

The census is also the basis for the distribution of much federal money and states that believe their populations were miscounted fear losing large sums.

Yet to come, and also sure to be objects of controversy, are the bureau's figures for the cities. Those numbers will be available in about two months, census officials said.

If court challenges pending in New York and 12 other states don't force a change, 11 states will gain seats in the House and 10 will lose. The most common complaint is that there was a serious undercount of blacks and other minorities.

Vincent P. Barabba, director of the census bureau, told reporters that he will recommend the states begin the reapportionment process despite the court challenges. The bureau has done a number of analyses based on possible adjustments that might be ordered by the courts, he said, and none showed any substantial change.

"You don't move many states around when you make the adjustment for the kind of undercount we've been talking about," Barabba said. On strictly numerical terms, Florida would be most likely to lose one of its new seats and Indiana would be most likely to regain the seat it now is

Even as officials were announcing the 1980 figures, another agency of government was criticizing them.

The General Accounting Office said it found instances where all housing units may have been overlooked and that there were cases in which the bureau made up information on some people when data was lacking about their age, sex, race and other characteristics.

Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois will each lose two seats in Congress; Indiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey and South Dakota will lose one each.

Next to Florida, Texas is the biggest gainer with three seats. Others are California with two, and Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah and Washington, one each.

The 226.5 million total in the 20th census in the country's history is about one million more than the bureau's preliminary estimates and compares with the 1970 population count of 203,302,031.

By comparison, the 1880 census showed a U.S. population of 50.1 million. At the turn of the century it was 76 million.

In effect, this is the first census count to be cleared with the Supreme Court. The Census Bureau lodged a last-minute appeal with the high court to lift a lower court ban in New York that would have prevented the bureau from meeting its Dec. 31 deadline for reporting the figures to the presi-

The Supreme Court's 7-1 ruling Tuesday cleared the way.

New York state and New York City are challenging the count, contending that mismanagment resulted in a substantial undercount of blacks and poor people.

"We can say without qualification that this has been by far the most accurate census ever, a census that comes as close as possible to reflecting the actual number of citizens in this country," Barabba said. "For this reason...we do not believe that the nation would be better served by any kind of adjustment of these official census numbers."

Secretary of Commerce Philip M. Klutznick said he joins Barabba in calling the census the most successful

"No one can say that this or any count is absolutely perfect and we recognize that some jurisdictions have differences with the results in their areas," he said. "The courts of our land are the appropriate place for adjudication of these differences. We believe the ultimate decisions that will be reached by the courts will be helpful for future censuses.

The slain general was Enrico Calvaligi, the immediate deputy to Gen. Carlo Alberto Dalla Chiesa, the commander of the anti-terrorism force in northern Italy.

Police said Calvaligi, 61, directed the forces in maximum security prisons where convicted and suspected terrorists are held.

Calvaligi was shot by two or three youthful gunmen near his home in southern Rome, police said. They said he and his wife were returning home on foot after attending a yearend Mass at a nearby church.

The assailants fled the scene in a green Fiat 127, which was later found abandoned about 2 miles north of Rome, police said.

The murder came two days after Carabinieri assault teams, charging through barricaded doors and swooping down by helicopter, stormed a convict-held maximum security prison in Trani to free 18 guards who had been seized as hostages.

About 70 rebel inmates were captured. Four prisoners and 23 hostages and police were injured, but none seriously.

Extreme leftist Red Brigades terrorists are presently holding a highranking Rome judge, Giovanni D'Urso.

Police sources said Calvaligi worked closely with D'Urso.

Without specifying terms for D'Urso's release, the Red Brigades have demanded closure of the maximum security prisons. The leftist terrorist gang, which kidnapped and murdered former Premier Aldo Moro in 1978, had threatened reprisals if any of the prisoners at Trani were

It was not known if there is a connection between the Red Brigades and the group that claimed responsibility for Wednesday's assassination.

Calvaligi was the first general and the highest uniformed official assassinated by alleged terrorists in Italy, police sources said.

Following the successful prison assault, Carabinieri had stepped up security in major cities for possible retaliation by terrorists. Police pa-trols guarded all roads leading to and from major metropolitan areas and busloads of riot police were deployed around key government buildings.

Jupiter, Saturn in conjunction

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The two largest planets in the solar system will appear to be very close to each other on New Year's Day, the first part of a rare triple conjunction of the two planets, according to astronomers.

The planet Jupiter will be the brightest object in the pre-dawn sky, and Saturn, only I degree of arc away, will appear as a close starlike object, Allen Seltzer, acting manager of the Hayden Planetarium in New York, said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

"It (the conjunction) should be visible through the entire night and early New Year's morning also," said Arthur Cacella of East Brunswick, an astronomy lecturer at Middlesex County College in New Brunswick and Union College in

A Colombian fishing boat seized by the Coast Guard sank in the Atlantic off Virginia with its load of up to 20 tons of marijuana Wednesday, while a Panamanian freighter carrying up to 45 tons of marijuana was escorted to a South Carolina port by U.S. au-

Coast Guard vessels were picking up bales of marijuana weighing between 30 and 80 pounds as they floated to the surface from the Don Franc, a creaky 55-foot fishing boat which sank about 60 miles southeast of Cape Henry, Va.

The storm-battered Colombian boat sank after the Coast Guard cutter USS Cherokee rescued seven of its eight crew members, but before it could be towed to Craney Island, Va.

The seven crew members plucked from the sea after their lifeboat overturned were arrested and in custody in Virginia Beach, Va. The eighth was missing and presumed drowned after a five-hour search.

The crew had abandoned ship after the boat's engines quit in 15-foot seas, and the boat went down shortly after the rescue.

Coast Guard officials said they had merely been on a rescue mission, and were surprised to find the Don Franc's hold and deck loaded with marijuana. Meanwhile, the 125-foot Panamanian freighter Rogo, with a cargo estimated at between 35 and 45 tons of marijuana, was secured in the port at

Charleston, S.C. The Rogo's 10 Colombian crewmen were all arrested on federal drug charges after the vessel was seized by a Coast Guard cutter about 110 miles off the South Carolina coast Monday

Coast Guard Lt. Jonathan Blaney said the marijuana seizure may be the largest in South Carolina history. The ship was sighted by the USS Tamaroa, homeported in New York, which was on a routine training mission at the time

Seaman Greg Robinson of the Coast Guard's Miami office said the Rogo was "riding kind of heavy in the water" and was not flying its home country's flag - a violation of international law. Coast Guard officers boarded the vessel after receiving permission from the government of Panama, he said. Authorities say the ship may have been a "mother ship" which distributed marijuana to smaller vessels. "It is suspected the mother ship may have made contact with other ships on the South Carolina coast," a statement by the Coast Guard said. Assistant U.S. Attorney Lionel Lofton said the crew will be charged with conspiracy and possession of marijuana under a new federal statute.

Deadly drug now in use

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A deadly drug "worse than heroin" has caused at least a dozen deaths California and its use may be increasing, federal drug agents say.

"It's one of the scariest new drugs on the market in a long time," said drug agent Richard Dunagen of the synthetic narcotic called fentanyl. Dunagan, of the San Jose office of the Drug Enforcement Administration, compared fentanyl to a "Frankenstein's monster. A user's chances of surviving are minimal." The drug is sometimes sold on the street as "China White," an especially prized kind of heroin that comes from Southeast Asia, le said.

A necessary change

Those who aid their Christmas shopping on credit cards have two reasons for dreading January. Not only do the bills start coming in, but for many Americans the government has arranged to accompany this with a cut in takehome pay. The Social Security payroll tax goes up effective today.

The increase is the stiffest one so far among those voted by Congress in 1977 to keep the Social Security program afloat. The tax will rise from 6.13 percent to 6.65 percent, and the maximum carnings on which it will be applied will rise from $25,900 to $29,700.

For someone earning $10,000 a year, this means a Social Security tax of $665 in 1981, or a $52 increase. On up through the brackets, it raises the tax to a maximum of $1,975.05 for those earning $29,700 or more, for an increase of $387.38. And for employers, the same increases apply to the duplicate tax they pay on the wages or salary of each employee.

Typically, anyone who wants to complain will be swinging at shadows. The tax increase is "automatic" under legislation passed by the 95th Congress three years ago. The costs which make it necessary are among the "uncontrollables" in the federal budget. Somehow, there is never anyone around to accept responsibility when the stark reality of Social Security financing confronts us.

It now falls to a new administration to tackle both the shortterm and long-range dilemmas posed by the Social Security system. For one thing, Presidentelect Reagan's economic program must deal with the fact that the increase in Social Security taxes in the coming year will take $15.4 billion out of the pockets of the same people who are supposed to benefit from the cut in personal and corporate income taxes which Mr. Reagan is advocating. This could make his tax cut a "wash" where economic stimulus is con-

Increased Social Security taxes will continue to hobble tax reform on into the future. With the schedule of increases scheduled for the next five years, the tax will rise to 7.15 percent on a maximum of $44,100 by 1986, for a top of $3,153 each for the employee and em-

The only way to ameliorate this drag on personal incomes and the economy as a whole - one which will grow even worse as we near the end of the century - is to make structural reforms in the Social Security program.

The pain of January's surge in payroll deductions will serve a purpose if it helps break down political resistance to those reforms. Ideas for solving the perennial Social Security "crisis" are amply available from one study group or another, including Mr. Reagan's transition task force on Social Security and a President's Commission on Pension Policy soon to make its report.

What has been missing is the political will to make significant steps backward from what Social Security has been promising to those who support it. While it would not be fair to break faith with those now relying on a Social Security benefit, or planning to retire within the next few years, changes can and must be made in commitments to those who will become beneficiaries further down the line.

During his campaign Mr. Reagan had to defend critical statements about Social Security he had made in the past. "No one dependent on Social Security today is going to have the rug pulled out from under him," he declared. True, but the problem for the new administration and Congress is that the floor is so slippery the rug could fly out whether anyone pulls it or not.

Mr. Reagan's challenge, and that of the Congress, is to find an innovative "new design" for the Social Security system and to implement it. That's essential if the system is to be viable for the future as it should be.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Is White House press corps too lenient?

WASHINGTON - The government does not own the news, but every president has tried to control its flow. In the tradition of White House press secretaries, Jody Powell has engaged in his share of deceptions and distor-

His lies about President Carter's intentions toward Iran just before the hostage rescue attempt were so blatant that he never expected the press corps to believe him again. He was prepared to resign for the good of the president, who needed someone who could lie for him with credibility.

Yet to the astonishment of the president's spokesman, his veracity was not the least impaired among most correspondents who feed at the White House trough. In fact, Time magazine has now gone so far as to call Powell 'one of the most popular and trusted presidential press secretaries ever to match wits and wisecracks with the White House press corps.

There is a lesson in this for the incoming Ronald Reagan. He need merely appoint a press secretary who is convivial, who doesn't bristle at prickly questions but banters with the questioners. It would be wise, too, for the new press secretary to offer special private briefings for the big by liners - and, of course, the correspondents from such influential journals as Time magazine.

If it is the nature of newsmen to be cantankerous, they are also inclined to develop gruffly cordial give-andtake relationships with the official press spokesman. After all, today's reporter may be tomorrow's spokes-

Too many newsmen have a tendency, therefore, to act as explainers and apologists for the officials they cover. This chumminess between the press corps and the power structure pollutes the flow of information to the people. The need for the press to occupy an adversary role was clear to

Applications to be taken for fuel bill assistance

The Human Relations Council of Midland will begin taking applications for the Home Energy Assistance Program on Monday. The program will last through Feb. 28, 1981.

HEAP is designed to assist low-income Texans in paying for the increasing high cost of energy necessary for heating homes during winter. It is a one-time payment in the form of a check.

Persons who already receive food stamps, supplemental security income and Texas Department of Human Resources Aid to Families with Dependent Children will automatically receive a HEAP payment

HRC will take applications of low-income individuals, persons who are receiving social security or veterans benefits or of persons who are not receiving any kind of financial aid.

Due to limited parking and office space, interested persons are asked to call and make an appointment.

Priority will be given to the elderly, the ill, handicapped, young persons, migrant laborers and non-English speaking households. Applicants must be Texas residents. Applicants must being proof of identity and income when applying for HEAP benefits.

For more nformation or an appointment to fill out an application, dial 684-5866. HRC is located in Room 104 of 218 W. Illinois Ave.

Heating oil prices climb; Algeria joins OPEC hike

NEW YORK (AP) - The Exxon Corp. and other refiners raised the wholesale prices of home heating oil and diesel fuel by 1 to 2 cents a gallon Wednesday, and Algeria joined in the latest round of price boosts by crude oil producers.

The wholesale price increases can be passed on to consumers, who already are paying a quarter more a gallon for heating oil than they were a year ago. And the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation Inc. predicted a similar increase, to an average of $1.30 to $1.35 a gallon, by the end of 1981 even if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries does not raise prices again.

OPEC's oil ministers decided in mid-December to let the cartel's 13 members raise oil prices about 10 percent. Their prices already had climbed 150 percent, to $32 per 42-gallon barrel, since the end of 1978.

In addition, the cost of crude oil produced in the United States is rising steadily as federal price controls are lifted each month.

The latest round of increases will hit hard at the gasoline pump, too, with analysts predicting a rise to $1.50 a gallon, about 25 cents higher than

The official Algerian news agency, industry sources said.

The moves by Algeria and Nigeria - suppliers of nearly 12 percent of U.S. oil needs - undercut a $4-a-barrel increase to the OPEC maximum of $41 earlier in the week by Libya, whose exports supply 5 percent of America's petroleum Kuwait, a major Persian Gulf oil producer, is considering a $3.50-abarrel increase but may not make an announcement on prices until later in January, the trade newspaper Platt's Oilgram News said. Saudi Arabia, Venezuela and Indonesia earlier raised prices by $2 to $3.50 a barrel.

Oil drillers lease 1.13 million acres off shore for record $4.2 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government leased 1.13 million acres off the U.S. coast in 1980 for oil and gas exploration, setting several records in the process, the Interior Department said Wednesday.

In a report on leasing activities, the department said the oil industry paid $4.2 billion for the right to explore and develop 218 tracts leased in two sales in the Gulf of Mexico and one in the northeastern Gulf of Alaska.

One of the Gulf of Mexico sales set a record for the amount of bids received in a single sale - $2.68 billion - and in the amount paid per acre - $52,-

"I am encouraged by the generally strong showing of interest by industry in the three sales we held this year, Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus said. "In addition to setting several new records, we have made important progress in setting a strong foundation for the leasing program in 1981-83

The department made final plans for a stepped up leasing program which will involve seven lease sales in 1981 and 1982 and eight in 1983.

However, during the presidential campaign, Ronald Reagan attacked the Carter administration for not doing enough to promote energy development on federal lands both onshore and off the coast. Reagan pledged to speed up the leasing pro-

You can help a hangover, some

By SUSAN OKIE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — If you wake up with a hangover during your New Year's holiday, medical science will have little comfort to offer. But short of staying home and away from the bar, there are ways you may be able to avoid one.

"It's a very complicated process, the hangover," said Dr. Albert A. Pawlowski, chief of the alcohol research centers of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. The major symptoms headache, shakiness, fatigue - are really a form of drug withdrawal. Tension, disturbed sleep, heavy smoking and a drop in blood sugar — all factors that can accompany drinking - also contribute to the suffering.

Other than moderation - the only sure preventative - here is Pawlowski's advice: - Choose your poison. Part of the headache is due not to alcohol, but to impurities called eongeners which impart flavor. Distilled liquors - whiskeys, vodka, gin — generally have fewer impurities than wine, which also contains solid material, pigments and tannic acid. But distilled liquors have a higher alcohol content, a disadvantage because they get you

Of distilled liquors, vodka and gin contain the fewest impurities, and among whiskeys, bourbon contains the most and Scotch the least.

- Dilute your drink. It's best to slow your intake of alcohol, because all the pleasure of drinking occurs on the way up, Pawlowski said. Alcohol content in the blood peaks slowly, then falls off. But drinkers don't enjoy the downhill slide, even though they may still be drunk - so once a partygoer reaches a comfortable high, he or she tends to keep drinking to maintain it.

'With water is better," Pawlowski advised, since, mixing carbonated soda or tonic with alcohol will speed its absorption.

- Eat. Having food in your stomach will slow alcohol's absorption and may modify its effect. Alcohol shuts off the liver's release of glucose, thus lowering blood sugar. Having a snack or a drink containing juice helps counteract this. Sudden drops in blood sugar may be one reason drinkers pass out although the effect of intoxication on the brain is

- Keep other stresses to a minimum. "It's a real stress to the body to drink alcohol," said Pawlowski, because cells are bathed in a toxic substance that must be eliminated. Alcohol does violence to liver cells and disrupts the membranes of nerve cells in the brain. It also causes dehydration by inhibiting a fluid-conserving hormone and alters salt balance.

With all this to handle, the body doesn't need the additional challenges of heavy smoking, sleep deprivation and tension.

Air line pilots lobbying for larger crews on jetliners

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Air Line Pilots Association is kicking off a nationwide campaign for better air safety that appears to have as its primary goal the guaranteed employment of at least three pilots on jet-

ALPA President, J.J. O'Donnell has threatened a nationwide pilots' strike in March over safety issues and has employed a Washington public relations firm to assist it in attacking the credibility of the Federal Aviation

At the same time there is some risk for O'Donnell, according to sources within the union, because his pilots are not united in their support of three-man crews, as well as for the Boeing Corporation, which is seeking certification of two new jetliners with two-member crews and is eager for economic reasons to avoid delay.

THE CREW SIZE issue is only one of several the public will be hearing about, and that tactic is one O'Donnell's critics admire. "I have a lot of problems with the FAA on these other issues," said another pilot, "and J.J. is smart. He's tying crew size into all these other things."

In recent weeks, ALPA has stressed its unhappiness with the FAA on such matters as a slow-moving research and development program for an electronic system that would prevent collisions in the air, inadequacies in air traffic control and a lack of sufficiently expert FAA employees to examine and certify new airplanes. All of these issues have been cited by outside experts as potential problems in aviation safety.

Despite support on those matters, "I think J.J.'s going to fall flat on this one if he really calls a nationwide strike because a lot of pilots will not go out over the (crew) issue," one union leader said when guaranteed anonymity. "Hell, the barn isn't even there any more, much less the door.

Many of ALPA's 33,000 members fly two-man jetliners - the DC-9, the British Aerospace BAC-111 and one version of the Boeing 737 - and like their jobs. O'Donnell himself was a pilot on the two-man DC-9 for years.

THE CREW ISSUE received substantial attention last summer as McDonnell Douglas was winning FAA certification of its new DC-9-Super 80 with a two-man crew. Although several issues surrounded the delay in the Super 80 certification, the noise ALPA made on crew size clearly contributed to the delay in the Super 80's certification and to the continuing economic problems at

Douglas Aircraft. Boeing is worried that the new Reagan administration FAA will be stampeded into another long look at the crew-size issue. "If ALPA can in any way bring pressure on us to slow down that deliery process, we're going to have a heliuva time meeting our contractual commitments," said

Tom Riedinger of Boeing. Boeing has run away with the new-airplane contest by developing and marketing two jetliners — the 757 and the 767 — at the same time. Boeing is seeking to certify both planes with both two-man and three-man cockpits, then let the airlines choose which one to order.

If either new jet is delayed in receiving its certificate of airworthiness from the FAA, the financial peril for Boeing could be enormous. Boeing has spent about $4 billion in developmental costs fo the two planes. "If we can't get out 300 units in five years the recovery rate is zero," Riedinger said. Boeing has a tot$1 of 264 orders for ohe new planes. Delivery of the first 767 is scheduled for August 1982; the first 757 is scheduled for January

THUS O'DONNELL'S campaign strikes at the heart of the old question of whether there exists an irreconcilable conflict of interest in the Federal Aviation Administration's charter both to regulate aviation safety and look out for the welfare of the industry. If the FAA moves on Boeing's schedule for certifying the 757 and 767, is it properly protecting the flying public or properly protecting Boeing's economic health?

The safety issue itself is nothing but a statistician's exercise. Both the FAA and the neutral National Transportation Safety Board have concluded, based on years of accident records, that there is no safety benefit with a third man in the cockpit.

In an interview this week, FAA Administrator Langhorne M. Bond said that "people overlook this: The safety board has never made a finding of probable cause or contributing factor (in an airliner accident) relating to crew size. How big can the problem be when it has never been implicated as the cause of a crash?"

An example of how large an issue it is with O'Donnell, however, can be found in ALPA's new contract with Republic Airlines. That contract, signed last week, deferred for the future the crew-size question for Republic's new Super 80s; which will be delivered this summer.

THE ALPA BYLAWS specifically prohibit ALPA crews from agreeing to two-man crews without approval of two-thirds of the ALPA board. That board is dominated by pilots from major trunk carriers such as United, where pilots have negotiated three-man crews on 737s. The United contingent walked out of the ALPA convention last month when an amendment to the three-man crew requirement was propo ed. United prevailed.

O'Donnell reiterated this week his call for an indepedent comparison of the workload imposed on two- and three-man crews. "If it showed that the workload was such that (a two-man crew) didn't impair safety — we think it does — we would live with the results," O'Donnell said. "We think (the manufacturers') resistance to such an evaluation must be motivated

"I'm sure our pilots would sign with two-man crews, except ALPA would not permit it," said Daniel F. May, president of Republic. "...ALPA is saying the cockpit should be expanded...so the third man would have a few switches to throw. To do that we would have to take five seats out of the airplane. That would cost $1 million to $2 million per plane, and then the plane would be less productive.... Everybody knows it's a featherbedding issue not a safety issue." by knowing what the results will be."

ding issue, not a safety issue." Several Republic pilots agreed with May's assessment, although they were not willing to be identified for fear of union disciplinary action.

24 anti-nuke demonstrators arrested at the Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) - At least 24 anti-nuclear demonstrators were arrested at the Pentagon today after they tried to block main entrances and threw ashes and a blood-like substance on the bullding, officials reported.

The arrests by federal police followed two days of peaceful demonstrations of several hundred persons, young and old, carrying signs and singing anti-war

Officials said the demonstration was organized by a group known as the Atlantic Life Community, which frequently stages demonstrations outside the Pentagon or in its shopping concourse.

TVA to explain safety plans at nuclear plant

The Tennessee Valley Authority goes before the Nuclear Regulatory Commission next week to explain how it will control accumulations of explosive hydrogen gas at its Sequoyah nuclear power plant.

Next Thursday in Washington, TVA officials will begin explaining an igniter system which TVA says can gradually burn off hydrogen within Sequoyah's reactor building during a reactor accident.

Hydrogen gas was generated by hot metal and cooling water during the accident which damaged a reactor at the Three Mile Island power plant in Pennsylvania. The gas exploded and caused some damage within the reactor building, but did not rupture the

Fallout group plays two roles

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - The same group of experts hired to defend the federal government against radioactive fallout damage suits has been asked to help draft a government policy dealing with fallout claims, the Deseret News reported Wednesday.

The U.S. Justice Department and the Carter administration gave the dual role to the Inter-agency Radiation Research Committee, the newspaper reported. The damage suits are now in U.S. District Court in Utah.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) - The NRC fears that similar conditions could rupture Sequoyah's reac tor building dome, releasing dangerously radioactive material into the atmosphere. It is about half the size of the Three Mile Island plant's dome and the force would be more concentrated, the NRC says.

TVA officials and NRC staff were to meet Thursday and Jan. 9 in Washington with members of the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards, an advisory panel to the NRC commissioners.

TVA has already installed the igniter system, using about 30 glow plugs like those used to start diesel engines, inside Sequoyah's reactor building. The federal utility says its tests have shown the plugs can safely burn off hydrogen which might be released within the reactor building before it could reach explosive con-

Two other utilities are working with TVA in researching the igniters. Both utilities, American Electric Power Corp. of New York and Duke Power Co. of North Carolina, operate or are building nuclear plants with relatively small reactor building domes similar to Sequovah's NRC spokesman Ken Clark said Tuesday that agency officials have told American Electric Power it must install a hydrogen control system at its D.C. Cook power plant near Benton Harbor, Mich. The Cook plant has been operating since 1975, while Sequoyah, about 15 miles north of Chattanooga, still is being tested.

75 victims of Iraqi artillery fire are buried after daylong attack

Wednesday buried 75 victims of one of the heaviest artillery barrages unleashed by Iraq in the 101-day-old war on the northern fringes of the Persian Gulf, Tehran Radio reported.

Meanwhile, an Iranian Defense Ministry spokesman told Iran's Parliament, the Majlis, that Britain was "Impudently refusing" to deliver three warships ordered and partially paid for, the radio said in a separate report. It quoted the unidentified defense spokesman as saying the ships, for which Iran had "great need" because of the war, were undelivered because of the U.S.-led boycott against Iran as a result of the hostage

The radio said 44 people were buried in a massive funeral processon in Ahwaz, capital of Iran's southwestern oil province of Khuzistan, and 31 others in the beseiged oil refining city of Abadan on Khuzistan's Shatt al-Arab coast.

The broadcast said the victims were killed in a daylong bombardment Tuesday of the two cities, some 80 miles apart, by long-range Iraqi artillery positioned in war-conquered areas of Iran's oil heartland. It said 117 other people were wounded.

This was the highest single day death toll Iran has reported since the two separate attacks in October by Soviet-made surface-to-surface missiles on the army garrison town of Dezful, 70 miles north of Ahwaz. Iran said 180 civilians were killed in the first bombardment and 74 others in the assault two weeks later.

The radio said residential districts in Dezful were subjected Wednesday to more Iraqi artillery fire which caused some casualties and damage. It did not elaborate.

At the United Nations in New York, officials announced that former Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme would resume his peace mission with trips to Iran and Iraq Jan. 13-19. A spokesman for Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Palme would "pursue with the leaders of the two countries the efforts to end the con-

Palme visited Tehran and Baghdad in November and returned with an agreement "in principle" to allow safe-passage under Red Cross flags to 70 foreign merchant ships stranded by the war in the Shatt al-Arab waterway. But the plan hit a snag when the International Red Cross in Switzerland decided not to allow departing ships to fly the Red Cross flag since the crews were in no immediate danger. Iraq announced several days ago that all the ships' crews had been evacuated.

Both Iran and Iraq reported paratrooper and helicopter gunship attacks on each other's positions in Iran's invaded western highlands and the northwestern province of Kurdistan. No significant change of positions was claimed anywhere in the war's three major theaters.

Iraq claimed 138 Iranians killed and three helicopter gunships shot down in 24 hours of combat at the three sectors, conceding 11 Iraqi deaths. Iran claimed one Soviet-made Iraqi jet fighter was downed and 176 Iraqis killed or wounded.

Tehran radio quoted the Iranian defense spokesman as telling Parliament that Britain had withheld the ships because "they said they could not deliver them until the hostage problem is solved." In addition to the 52 U.S. hostages held since Nov. 4, 1979, four Britons, a businessman and three people connected with the Anglican Church, have been held in Tehran since last August.

Britain has honored the U.S. boycott imposed by President Carter because of the hostage seizure.

In London, a spokesman for the British Defense Ministry confirmed that the 20,300-ton fleet replenishment ship Khard built by the Yarrow shipyard for Iran still "awaits an export license" from Britain's Department

He also confirmed the Iranian's report that the government of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi canceled another order for four support

U.S. military sales near the all-time record level

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, which had proclaimed its intention to reduce arms sales, sold a near-record $15.3 billion in military gear in its last full year in

This was disclosed in Pentagon figures covering arms sales to more than 70 countries in the 1980 fiscal year that ended Sept. 30. The $15.3 billion was only about $500 million short of the record set in 1975 during the administration of President Gerald Ford.

The crisis in the Persian Gulf and President Carter's efforts to arrange a permanent settlement between Egypt and Israel were apparently major factors in the arms sales turn-

Shortly after taking office in 1977, Carter announced a new policy and set of controls designed, he said, to curb the "virtually unrestrained spread of conventional weaponry."

Later, Defense Secretary Harold Brown told Congress that "in the future, the United States should take the initiative in reducing arms

In the first year under the new Carter policy, arms sales dropped to $8.8 billion. But the total began climbing after that to more than $11.7 billion in 1978 and to about $13 billion in

It was barely noticed at the time, but Carter left himself an out when he proclaimed his intention to limit arms sales. He reserved the right to grant exceptions in "extraordinary circumstances...or where I determine that countries friendly to the United States must depend on advanced weaponry to offset quantitative and other disadvantages in order to maintain a re-

Child killed, woman hurt in blast at grenade range

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) - A child was killed and a woman was injured Wednesday on a restricted military grenade range in an explosion that also destroyed their car, authorities reported.

"Four or five" other children were evacuated after the explosion on the 40mm grenade range, said a spokesman at Camp Shelby, a National Guard camp. The dead boy "was behind the car beating on a shell with a hammer to get the dirt out of it, and it just blew them up," said Sheriff Gene Walters.

"There are signs everywhere for people to stay off and to leave the metal alone, not necessarily for the theft, but for the danger involved,"

Walters said. The woman and the children "went beyond the barriers and the fences that were up," said the Camp Shelby spokesman. "It was a very dangerous

He said the area was popular with scavengers and souvenir hunters, but he said he didn't know why the car had been driven into the area.

Forrest Coroner Richard McKenzie identified the dead child as Chris Draughn, 7, of Wiggins.

A nurse at Forrest General Hospital said Ruby Pipkins, 22, also of Wiggins, was admitted to the intensive care section for treatment of head injuries.

He may not get benefits

AUSTIN (AP) - A plumber who claimed he caught a rare lung disease as a result of working in soil contaminated with bird, animal and human wastes may not collect workers' compensation, the Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

Bobby G. Schaefer, employed by a Flour Bluff plumbing company, failed to prove that bacteria of "atypical tuberculosis" actually was present in the soil, the court said.

Schaefer said at least once a month he came in contact with soil contaminated with the feces of birds, sheep, goats, dogs, cats and people. A doctor testified he probably caught the disease from the contaminated soil.

His illness, which the court said was usually fatal, was diagnosed in 1976 after Schaefer was hospitalized for a head

A trial court in Corpus Christi awarded him workers' compensation for the lung disease, but the 11th Court of Civil Appeals in Eastland overruled the verdict. The Supreme Court agreed the jury's verdict was based on insufficient evidence.

State corruption a 'way of life,' panel charges

BOSTON (AP) - An investigation of Massachusetts government construction contracts during the 1960s and early '70s concluded Wednesday that "corruption has been a way of life" and "the state was for sale."

The special Commission on State and County Buildings, releasing the results of a 21/2-year-long study, estimated that because of extensive corruption, the cost of repairing defects in state and county buildings was more than $2 billion.

The massive, 12-volume report, running some 2,500 pages, also said about $7.73 billion has been spent on projects with severe defects, and "the commonwealth has wasted more than $1.08 billion on unnecessary delays in design and construction since 1968.

The commission centered its inquiry on the administrations of former Govs. John A. Volpe and Endicott Peabody in the 1960s and Francis W. Sargent in the early '70s.

Bribes were given; extortion was done; the public trust was betrayed," the seven-member corruption panel said. "Among those who had the money and the influence to strike the bargain, the state was for sale."

Asked in a telephone interview if corruption is still the rule, former Amherst College President John William Ward, commission chairman, said: "We have no empirical evidence that corruption is still going on."

Meanwhile, a commission source said that names of more than 100 people have been referred to state and federal law enforcement agencles for possible prosecution. The commission has refused to release the names of those referred. So far, no state criminal charges have been disclosed by prosecutors.

Last fall, however, as a result of an investigation involving the commission and the U.S. attorney in Boston, a federal grand jury indicted former state Senate Ways and Means Chairman James A. Kelly. He was accused of extorting $34,000 from a now-defunct Worcester architectural firm. Kelly denied the charge and is to be tried late this winter.

Gov. Edward J. King, vacationing in Florida, had no comment on Wednesday's report, an aide said.

"For a decade at least, across Republican and Democratic administrations alike, the way to get architectural contracts was to buy them," the corruption panel said.

"It was not a matter of a few crooks, some bad apples which spoiled the lot. The pattern is too broad and pervasive for that easy excuse ...

"In the sample of buildings which we examined, 76 percent have significant defects, that is, a structural flaw that threatens the safety of the building and results from incompetent design or inferior construction...

The commission said it found that beyond direct bribery and outright extortion, beyond illegal campaign contributions and crooked generation of cash by corporations, there is the close link between money and contracts through legal contributions.

But, the report said, "the legality is purely technical. The way money is raised to run political campaigns is a mixture, depending on which side of the contribution you stand, of genteel extortion or discreet bribery.

"The unholy alliance between private money and public power is the constant theme all through the special commission's investigative work," the panel said.

The report also said that "there are curious lapses and omissions in the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts concerning bribery and extortion and false record keeping.

Probe ordered at nuclear plant

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) - The head of the state Public Service Board ordered an independent investigation of pipes at the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant Wednesday after discovery of more leaking pipes.

Board Chairman Richard Saudek said Gov. Richard Snelling concurs with his view.

The 540-megawatt reactor at Vernon went on line last week after an extended shutdown that egan Sept. 27. The plant closed down for routine maintenance and refueling, but start-up was delayed by the discovery of hairline cracks in pipes in the reactor core.

Plant officials said another leak was discovered Tuesday as the reactor reached 25 percent operating capacity. A plant spokesman the new leak was not related to the earlier one.

"The same system has developed a new problem that appears unique and unrelated to the earlier problems," said Vermont Yankee spokesman Steve Bravar. The leaking pipes carry radioactive water to and from the reactor, Saudek said, describing the leaks as "pinhole cracks."

Saudek said the repairs, which he said could be made with the plant running at 25 percent capacity, will take about three days. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has given its approval to make the repairs with the plant running, he

Hall of Fame for Great Americans fades into oblivion after 80 years

NEW YORK (AP) - At age 80, the Hall of Fame for Great Americans has run out of space, out of money and out of time - testimony in granite and marble that fame is fleeting in-

Busts of 102 artists, statesmen, thinkers, educators, scientists and philanthropists still stare at each other across the Hall of Fame's openair colonnade on a scenic bluff in the west Bronx overlooking the Harlem

But these days the hall's neoclassical elegance and fine vista seem to mock its crumbling neighborhood and indifferent public.

Yearly attendance, which rose to 50,000 in the years between the world wars, has sagged to a 10th of that. New members have not been installed since 1976, because there is no money for busts or elections.

Even if elections were held there would be no room: all openings in the colonnade are filled. The last members elected - Franklin Roosevelt, Clara Barton, Luther Burbank and Andrew Carnegie - still have no

Oblivion was not the fate envisioned for the hall by New York University. which founded it at the turn of the century as a permanent memorial to Americans such as Washington, Longfellow and Audubon.

Stanford White designed the semicircular arcade that was constructed in 1901 on NYU's University Heights campus. Every three years a committee of 100 distinguished Americans chose new hall members, whose busts were cut by sculptors such as Daniel Chester French and Augustus St.

Commuters see photo of twilight

NEW YORK (AP) - When all the other tourists had snapped their photos and departed, Norm Kerr remained, even though twilight was settling on an ageless wonder of the

The final shot taken by the Kodak photographer of the Great Wall of China was eventually chosen as one of the coloramas that are periodically seen at Grand Central Terminal here by 250,000 commuters each day.

At the turn of the century, fame was more than a synonym for celebrity. Arguments raged on editorial pages and street corners over which men and whether any woman - should be admitted to the pantheon.

The hall's decline has paralleled that of the west Bronx, which in the 1960s degenerated into a sorry plot of post-industrial real estate, with rows of fire-hollowed buildings and an impoverished, shrinking population. In 1973 NYU retreated downtown to

Washington Square, leaving University Heights to Bronx Community College while retaining ownership of the busts and records. But after NYU ended its financial support in 1976 and the trustees' fundraising effort failed, the staff was laid off, the information booth was closed and the hall went into hibernation. "We pay for insurance on the busts, but we don't have money to do more,' NYU Vice President Naomi Levine For four years one revitalization effort after another has failed. "I tried to get the government interested," said Jerry Grundfest, the hall's last director. "I got lots of sympathy and no cash. Dolores Magnotta, the community college's director of community relations, says she's trying to line grants and bill the hall as a key part of the neighborhood's renaissance. But funds cannot even be found for the busts, which - exposed to the elements year-round - need cleaning, resurfacing and repairs.

The college security force has reduced vandalism (before their patrols, Stephen Foster's bust was toppled down the hill and Benjamin Franklin's was stolen), admission is free, and the hall remains an imposing monument - on the wrong side of

"The revival of the that section of the Bronx is not imminent," Grundfest said. "Without making it a safe place to go to, there's no hope for the hall there

The basic problem, argues Grundfest, is that the institutions with a stake in the hall - NYU and the community college - don't want it moved. A change of scenery, he says, is the hall's only hope

Ms. Levine denies that NYU is blocking a move. "We would have gone along with whatever the (hall) trustees wanted to do. Unfortunately, they couldn't raise the money," she said, adding: "That surprised me, When I was growing up in the Bronx (the hall) was an institution the whole

Source sought in Kool-Aid poisonings

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) -State health officials conducted further tests Wednesday on a cyanidelaced grape drink in an effort to determine the concentration and source of the poison that sent three children to a hospital.

The state food and drug laboratory in Berkeley was testing the strength of the poison in the Kool-Aid the three children drank. It also was testing the sugar used in the drink and residue of powder in the packages to determine which contained the cyanide.

Results of the tests were not immediately available.

The laboratory confirmed Tuesday that there was cyanide in the soft drink, according to Pete Weisser, California Department of Health Services information officer.

Eisenhower's image gets facelift

Reagan's 'Ike-like' outlook responsible?

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The image of Dwight D. Eisenhower is being rehabilitated. Historians are no longer portraying the 34th president as a grinning, uncomplicated, don't-rock-the-boat father figure who spent his energies on the golf course while the country drifted.

The "new" Ike is presented as a skillful leader who posed as non-political while managing behind the scenes to bend events in the way he wanted them to go. Eisenhower revisionism has been going on for years, but it has taken on new pertinence with suggestions that Ronald Reagan's presidency may be Like Eisenhower, Reagan is often seen as a chairman-of-the-board-style executive inclined to let associates fill in the details after he lays out the big But at an American Historical Association convention session here Tuesday,

Fred I. Greenstein, professor of politics, law and society at Princeton University, said that image misrepresents Eisenhower. The historians also did not quarrel with the assertion of University of Massachusetts historian Robert Griffith that Eisenhower was a president with a vision of an American society encompassing his own principles of cooperation, self-restraint, discipline and disinterested public service. Greenstein, a two-time voter for Eisenhower's Democratic rival, Adlai E. Stevenson, said newly opened papers of the Eisenhower administration sustain the picture of Ike as a practitioner of hard-ball politics. "His skills were underestimated at the time," Greenstein said. hower, a war hero and fellow Republican, took White House command. Publicly, Eisenhower was known and criticized for a hands-off approach to McCarthy, exemplified in Ike's remark that he would not get in the gutter with the Wisconsin senator. Behind the scenes, Greenstein said, Eisenhower conducted "a virtual day-to-day campaign via the media and congressional allies to end McCarthy's political effectiveness. Griffith characterized the episode this way:

"He chose to combat McCarthy through indirection: on the one hand by reapeatedly emphasizing his own commitment to decency and fair play, on the other hand by encouraging others to attack the senator. He repeatedly urged Republican senators to curb the rambunctious McCarthy, complaining at one point that 'We need a few good hatchet men up there.'"

Greenstein said Eisenhower was on top of his job. He held stag dinners with national figures to keep himself informed, worked through a huge volume of official documents and maintained a voluminous confidential correspondence while cultivating the impression he was not involved even in events in which he played key decisions, Greenstein said.

Ike delegated authority to "competent assistants" on the grounds that as Eisenhower put it - "the government is too big, too complex and too pervasive in its influence on all our lives for one individual to pretend to direct the details," Greenstein added.

Even Eisenhower's famous fractured syntax at news conferences was often calculated, Greenstein said, with Eisenhower giving vague, rambling answers to purposely avoid a direct answer that could cause trou-

All automakers urged to add new safety features to cars

By JERRY KNIGHT The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Jimmy Carter's auto safety director, Joan Claybrook, took sharp issue with a Ronald Reagan transportation advisory group Tuesday, disputing its week-old report that the government can no longer make cars much safer without adding unreasonably to their cost.

Claybrook disclosed she has sent the chief executives of all the world's auto makers a list of two dozen additional safety features that she said could save thousands of lives "at minimal or negligible cost." Her list includes such proposed new features as brake wear and low tire pressure indicators, bigger rear brake lights, more interior padding and plastic linings on windshields to protect against broken glass on impact. A Reagan task force concluded last week that Claybrook's National Highway Transportation Safety Administration "has effectively exhausted its ability to increase automobile safety at reasonable social cost."

"I challenge them to show any basis for that," retorted Claybrook when asked about the Reagan report at a NHTSA press conference on tire grading standards. "I don't think there's any basis for that Government safety standards have been responsible for only 2 percent of the increase in the cost of cars in the last seven years, Claybrook said. And only three of the safety features required by the government cost more than $10 each.

'That's a very, very meager cost compared to the improvement in safety," she added.

'Cars can be made measurably safer," at minimal cost, Claybrook said, if manufacturers would design safety improvements into their cars while they are still on the drawing boards instead of waiting for the government to tell them what to do. All the car makers are now designing new, smaller, more efficient cars, Claybrook pointed out. In a letter sent to the chief executives of every company that sells cars in the United States, Claybrook said, "There are a number of priority safety performance features which should and readily can be incorporated in your vehicles as you improve them and redesign them.'

NHTSA officials said they agency has received no response from the auto companies to Claybrook's 11page letter. The U.S. car makers are closed down for their Christmas vacation this week and company officials could not be reached for comment Tues-

Claybrook told the companies there are "readily available remedies within the present state-of-theart" that could reduce the nation's highway death toll. Every day 140 people are killed in accidents on American highways.

Federal safety standards have reduced the deaths by 10,000 a year, Claybrook noted. To cut the body count further, she suggested designers improve occupant restraints to keep passengers from smashing into the dashboard or windshield and build cars that will better absorb the impact of crashes.

She said cars should have better braking, handling and visibility so drivers can avoid accidents, and bumpers and hood ornaments should be redesigned to protect pedestrians from injury.

At the top of Claybrook's list of specific suggestions is the airbag and the controversial "passive restraint" standards that NHTSA and the auto companies have been fighting over for years. "With automatic crash protection, an occupant's risk of death and serious injury can be reduced by about 50 percent," saving 250,000 lives in the next 20 years, Claybrook said.

NHTSA now plans to make airbags or other passive restraints mandatory by 1983. The Reagan transition report said the airbag rule "should be considered carefully in order to avoid unjustifiable WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. arms sales climbed expenses by manufacturers and, in turn, consum-and adventurous as anyone else.

Richard "Mike" Field is an importer, processor, wholesaler and devo-tee of lutefisk. Although he's of En-glish, German and Irish stock, Field has become the lutefisk impressario of rural Minnesota. Minneapolis has a couple proces-sors, but so far as Field knows, "Mike's Fish and Seafood Inc." in Glenwood is the only one outside the city. Field and about six employees soak 150,000 to 180,000 pounds of lute-fisk a year and ship it to food distributors in Manageria North Debots utors in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Field, 39, knows first-hand about acquiring lust for lutefisk. He was reared in Ashby, Minn., an area with a lot of Scandinavians, and his father was enough of a conformist so that he sometimes bought lutefisk. "I'd wonder why in hell he brought that stuff home," Field recalls.

Several years ago, Field started "soaking" lutefisk on a small scale at his Brooten grocery store and went into large-scale processing in an 11,-000-square-foot Glenwood plant last

Once he got involved with lutefisk, he felt compelled to sample his product. Now he craves it a couple times a week and wouldn't think of having a Thanksgiving, Christmas or New Year's dinner without lutefisk.

"It's almost like Santa Claus," he says. "H we don't have lutefisk, it just isn't Christmas.' The dry cod imported from Bergen, Norway, comes stacked like cord-wood and wrapped in burlap in 100-pound bales. The bales are refrigerated until the soaking process begins in a room containing up to forty 300-gal-

The initial soak is in plain water, to "loosen" up the fish. The second soaking, in lye and water, softens and swells the fish. Then come numerous fresh water baths - enough to soak out most of the lye and eliminate much of the odor. The "lute" remaining, Field says, adds flavor. The process takes 21 to 28 days.

Processing time can be cut in half by using caustic soda instead of lye, but Field sticks to the old-fashioned lye method because he feels it results in a firmer fish.

Field ships lutefisk in 50-pound boxes and 125-pound plastic barrels. Spoilage is retarded because the lye kills bacteria, he says, but distribu-tors must refrigerate the lutefisk. To keep lutefisk fresh and tasty, retailers are told to hold the product in water and change the water often. Field makes lutefisk from Sept. 1 until about Feb. 1, the season of peak holiday demand. "Lutefisk is a tradition of winter," Field says. "When it gets cold, peo-ple start getting hungry for lutefisk. When the holidays are over, the craving lets up."

Training of lutefisk eaters normally begins at a tender age. Churches, especially Lutheran flocks with a Scandinavian heritage, aid in converting doubters and novices into lutefisk lovers with church suppers of the delicacy. Ethnic tradition often comes into play in the serving of the fish — Norwegians pour melted butter over their lutefisk; Swedes tend to prefer a white sauce or a strong, grainy

Some stories don't exactly entice people to try lutefisk, Field says. People are told that grocers in pre-refrigeration days kept lutefisk frozen by leaving it on the sidewalks outside their stores, where dogs contributed their own flavor to the product. Lutefisk bought in a store should be firm and flaky. If overcooked, it becomes mushy. Field recommends two ways of preparing:

-Place in cold water, bring the water to a boil, turn off the burner. -Bake 20 minutes in an oven preheated to 350 degrees. Test with a fork, as baked potatoes are tested. Field says a pound of lutefisk nor-mally costs about the same as a pound of ground beef.

Richard "Mike" Field displays 98 percent from Norway. Using tanks of water and lye, dry cod which comes packed in bundles he processes the fish for 21-28 eays into the

His reasoning goes like

In counting, we begin with 1, not zero, and a decade is no exception. Hence, the 20th century began with 1901 - not 1900 - and includes the year 2000.

Similarly, he says 1980 is the last year of a decade that began with 1971 — not the first year of a decade that ends with

Therefore decades, like centuries, should be named after their last year, Cloward contends. If the century that ends with the year 2000 is the 20th century, then the decade that ends with 1980 should be the '80s, not the '70s.

According to Cloward, Thursday will be the first year of the '90s.

But what happened to the "Roaring Twenties," 1920-29? Well, it was actually 1921-30, and it should be called the "Roaring Thirties." The '20s, it seems, fell between Jan. 1, 1911, and

Dec. 31, 1920. And the Great Depression of the '30s? Well, it came in the '40s, says the retired Air Force officer and civil servant who now has his own perpetual calendar

By following Cloward's logic, there will be a decade at the end of the century, beginning Jan.
1, 1991, which will be called the Hundreds.

Cloward isn't joking about his plan to restruc-ture American thinking about the calendar.

Reyes' Syndrome disease still puzzles medical field

in 1963 in The Lancet, one of the world's most pres- C. Partin, chief of the detigious medical journals. Australian pathologist R.D.K. Reyes reported the autopsy findings in a group of children in dition previously unrewhom an unknown disease had caused fatal liver and brain damage.

Seventeen years later, Reyes' name is part of the medical literature, but researchers still don't know what causes Reyes' Syndrome, one of the leading killers of children in this country.

The syndrome is rare, but estimates of just how rare vary widely, from a low of about 1.5 per 100,-000 children under 19, to a high of about 10 per 100,000. However, some experts estimate that the syndrome strikes as many as 60 of every 100,-000 children suffering from type B influenza.

> "We've knocked out measles, which was the biggest brain damaging entity, and polio," says Partin, "so I think (Reyes) has been brought into focus because its competitors have been eliminated." Reyes' Syndrome strikes children already suffering from a viral illness, usually making its appearance about five to seven days after the start of the initial illness, just as the child seems to be making a recovery.

The first symptom is frequent and severe vo-

While many experts miting. Some children, says Partin, an authority on Reyes' Syndrome, vomit as often as 24 times in a single day. The children then become irrational and delirious, experience rapid breathing and sometimes a stiffening of the limbs. If allowed to progress to its natural conclusion, the syndrome leads to coma and death. We believe that when you're studying a whole population of children, when you're seeing most of the syndrome in an area, then for every patient who (arrives at the hospital in a) coma, there are two patients who are vomiting who have not reached the state of coma. Estimates of the death rate due to Reyes' Syndrome range from a lowof 4 percent in a Michigan study to 66 percent in another study. Ohe be stressed, was a prospective study, that is, physicians and parents were carefully watching children with viral diseases and looking for the signs of Reyes' Syndrome. Because the physicians and parents were alerted ahead of time, children in the study were hospitalized early in the course of the syndrome

However the syndrome works, it results in a breakdown of liver function and the destruction of neurons in the brain. There are three basic theories about the cause of Reyes' Syndrome: -It is caused by a combination of a viru and an environmental

-It is caused by a fect." and a medication - aspirin is a suspect, as is Tigan, a drug often given to children to prevent vomiting.

-It is caused by a viral infection and a genetic defect of some sort in the child, thus some children would fall victim to the virus while others would be totally unaffected by it.

"I think it's clearly associated with a viral infection, but beyond th$t we don't have the foggiest notion of what it may be," says Partin. "I think the evidence is weak in" the direction of all three theories, "although I think the evidence on aspirin is it

That Reyes' Syndrome was unknown before the 1960s is one of the facts marshalled by those who feel that some environmental factor plays a role in the development of the syndrome. Perhaps, the argument goes, something introduced with a virus to trigger the syndrome. But Partin, who believes the syndrome was simply unrecognized in the past, points out that the prior existence of the syndrome would eliminate the environmental

Thrifty main skillet dish is flavorsome, satisfying

BLAZERS

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

These days I am constantly on the lookout for casserole-style skillet dishes that contain a minimum of meat but are flavorsome and satisfying. With each of these dishes, a salad and dessert can complete the meal.

Here then is a new recipe for this sort of skillet dish; it's a medley of Polish sausage, brown rice, mush-rooms and cabbage. Because parboiled brown rice is used, each grain stays separate.

In my test kitchen, we tried the recipe during the day; at suppertime I reheated the Polish sausage and brown rice combination in my microwave oven and invited three neighbors to be tasters. Their verdict: it's a great main dish for an informal sup-

POLISH SAUSAGE AND BROWN RICE 2 tablespoons butter

11/4 pounds (about) fully cooked kielbasa, sliced diagonally about 1/4-inch

1 medium onion, quartered and thinly sliced ½ pound fresh mushrooms, fairly thinly sliced through caps and stems 1 cup parbolled brown rice 2 and 2-3rds cups water 1 teaspoon salt

3 teaspoons dried dillweed, see Note 2 cups loosely packed thinly shredded cabbage Topping: 1 cup (or less) commercial sour cream

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, melt the butter. Add the kielbasa and brown lightly. With a slotted spoon, remove kielbasa and reserve. Add the onion and mushrooms to the drippings in the skillet and cook over moderate heat, stirring often, until the onion is wilted and the mushrooms give off some of their liquid about 5 minutes.

Add the rice, water, salt, dillweed and reserved sausage; stir well. Bring to a boil; continue cooking, tightly covered, over low heat until the water is absorbed and the rice is tender - about 50 minutes.

Add the cabbage; it will seem bulky for the size of the skillet, but stir it in. Cover tightly and let stand on the turned-off surface heat unit until the cabbage warms and shrinks - 5 to 10 minutes. Serve at once. Pass the sour cream as a help-yourself topping. Makes 4 main-dish servings.

fuls and use instead of the dried dillweed. As a garnish, spoon a little of the sour cream over the center of the kielbasa and rice mixture and top with a sprig or two of the fresh dill. Note: when fresh dill is available,

No route to top with 'bottoms up'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is the head of a large corporation. He does not drink hard liquor, but very few people know this because at parties he takes one drink and pretends to sip it all evening.

He watches his junior executives' drinking habits very carefully, and they are promoted accordingly. Anyone who takes more than two drinks is passed over for promotion-no matter how good a job he does.

I feel that my husband should have a talk with the man and give him a chance to cut down. He says, "No, once a drunk, always a drunk." he says it takes guts not to drink in today's society, and he needs men with guts to run the business right. What is your opinion?-SCARS-

I agree, it takes guts not to drink in today's society, but one who takes a

Model has career well in

By JOY STILLEY AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Though she works with her hands, Linda Rose is not exactly a manual laborer.

She's a hand model. In the past 25 years, her hands have been seen in more than 2,500 television and print ads, but she has her long, slender fingers in a lot of other pies, too.

She is an actress, a TV spokeswoman, a lyricist, a singer, a hand-reader, and now an author — of a newly published book, "Hands."

"I've always been fascinated by hands," says the 44-year-old Miss Rose, whose book includes not only anecdotes about her career but also beauty tips on caring for hands and an overview of hand-reading, which she had studied and which she considers 'not a parlor trick.

While attending Vassar she worked as a Powers model and got into her specialized field when she was asked to simulate Gene Tierney's writing, signing an autograph in a closeup on a TV commercial

"TV was just becoming a medium where commercials were being done live," she recalled in an interview. 'The demands of the closeup, which can't be retouched as print ads can be, are such that any imperfection is magnified on screen.

"A broken nail or enlarged pores in a tight closeup of a hand holding food, for instance, would be a turnoff. Advertisers are very fussy about the hand that touches the product. The quintessential commercial look is perfect nails and skin."

But it's not just a question of having pretty hands, Miss Rose is quick to point out. When only the model's hands are to be seen by the camera, it makes for uncomfortable poses, with hands held in difficult positions for long périods, And dex-terity is needed for such feats as dropping a pearl in the exact center of a bottle of shampoo, as she was Migrating geese fly in a "V" formation to save energy. In the flying wedge, each bird is in position to get a lift from the air current left behind by the churning of the air by the wings of the leader of the formation. It is easier going for all except the leader. During a migration, geese are apt to take turns in the lead position.

Israeli farmers have been changing the Negev Desert with water from the freshwater Sea of Galilee. They raise roses for the Amsterdam flower market and oranges, apricots, avocados and bushels of winter vegetables for the European market. The Negev is an extension of the Sinai.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer at low speed beat together the pound cake mix and nutmeg; beat in the bourbon. At medium-low speed beat for 11/2 minutes; add the egg yolks and beat for 11/2 minutes. Stir in the pecans. In the small bowl of the electric mixer at high speed beat the egg whites until they hold stiff peaks; gently fold into the batter; pour into a greased 9-cup bundt pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean and top springs back when lightly touched — about 55 to 65 minutes. Place on a wire rack to cool for 10 minutes. With a spatula loosen edges and invert onto the rack; cool completely. If desired, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar.

Note: As a fine alternative to the bought ground nutmeg, freshly grate a whole small nutmeg and use the 1% to 2 teaspoons it yields.

You still can ask the butcher, but in most markets you have to ring the bell to do so; and doing so seems to intimidate some. Don't intimidated. Ring the bell and talk to the butcher if you have a question about meat. He can be a big help.

Or, if that fails, drop me a line. I enjoy hearing from you, and will try to find the answer to any questions you have. Here are a few from the most recent "mail bag":

"Recently I ordered a irloin tip roast from my butcher, but when I picked up the package it was labeled "Beef Round Tip Roast." I was told it was the same thing and no amount of arguing could change the butcher's mind, so I took it! Have not used it yet, but am still puzzled. If you're planning a weekend bash to top off the holidays, food is an essential part of the fun. Guests can enjoy an array of delectable appetizers which will make your party a success.

PINEAPPLE-SAUSAGE APPE-TIZERS is one partypleasing recipe that combines pineapple chunks with tiny sausage balls, simmered together in a sweet and sour, soyflavored sauce. The meatballs use corn flake crumbs for flavor and as a binder.

Everyone will also enjoy sampling the many variations of CHEESE WAFERS. Shreds of wheat bran cereal add a whole-grain flavor and texture to these cookieshaped appetizers. Variations include topping them with olive sesame seeds.

Full, exotic lips are fashionable

By PADDY CALISTRO (c) 1980, The Los Angeles Times

Luscious, full, exotic lips. The fuller, the better. Some women have 'em and some women don't. Young black women are flaunting their big lips today," says Alfred Fornay, creative director for Revion's Polished Ambers, one of the many makeup collections especially designed for black complexions, "Full lips are a fashion statement," he explains, noting that until recently, women with large mouths have been reluctant to wear bold lip colors and strong makeup. 've been brainwashed into thinking that thin lips are the only way to be beautiful - I say look at Diana Ross; look at Sophia Loren," stresses Barbara Walden, whose cosmetics line offers lipsticks in vibrant reds, burgundies, plums, and oranges, colors that were once all taboo for women with dark skins and big lips. "A full mouth is sexy, especially with a strong color on it," Walden asserts. About the only taboo left for woman with a prominent mouth is too much shine. "Nothing looks worse than a glob of greasy gloss," says Walden. "Many women think that not wearing lipstick and loading on clear gloss will make the mouth look less obvious. It doesn't work that way. That technique just looks

Bob Salvatore, beauty director of Max Factor, concurs. "Instead of shiny lipsticks, I usually recommend something that doesn't contrast greatly with the skin tone. Vibrant pinks, light fuchsias and brilliant magentas won't work well on women with very dark skin," Salvtore cautions. But, he adds, black women have the advantage of being able to wear dark, exotic colors that would be too much for lighter skin tones.

To balance this year's luscious lips, women are in for a year of more eye makeup than they've seen since the '60s. Ron Marable, creative director for Fashion Fair cosmetics, says that colors such as Girls opt for careers teal, orchid, and bright green are being used on the inner shelf of the lower lid just above the lashes, with a smudge of dark brown or black eyeshadow under the lashes "and tons of black mascara" on both the upper and lower lashes. He cautions women not 'use the bright colors on the upper lid - it's too much. The idea is to achieve a look of a dark, exotic eye sparked with an electric color."

When color is used on the eyelid, it's smudged and subtle, adds Dorothy Beil of Flori Roberts cosmetics, this country's oldest line for black women, founded in 1965. "It takes a very soft-pencil to line th eye, but the same pencil can be used on the lid if the color is blended with the finger," Beil explains. Foundation doesn't present the problem it did 15 years ago. Then, black women were limited to using makeup in the darkest shades available to lightskinned women. They would use "suntan bronze" or forget it. Many of them did forget it. And even though the four comprehensive lines for dark-skinned women now offer vast selections of foundations shades, and though most major cosmetic companies include a range of shades for black women in their regular line, "sixty percent of today's black customers still don't use color on their faces," cites Fornay. them believe that a foundation make their skin oilier, when in fact, many of today's foundations work to help control oiliness.

Factor's Salvatore shakes his head at the mention of black women and oily skin. "It's a fallacy that all black women have oily skin. Black skin can be dry, normal or oily, the same as any other complexion, and black women are faced with the same problems associated with these skin types.

Makeup artist Antonio DuBois suggests that women coordinate lip and eye color. "One easy way is to go over any eyeshadow with a dab of the same lip gloss worn on the mouth. It helps to integrate the colors and also helps to add a gloss to the lid

DuBois cautions against trying to contour the face with makeup. "Black women have an especially hard time finding exactly the right colors to contour with an end up looking like they have dirty smudges on their faces. Instead, I tell them to be delighted with their broad noses, full lips or high foreheads if they have them. These are all signs of individual beauty and should be highlighted, not camouflaged."

Pecans, being very nutritious, are excellent sources for protein, carbohydrateds, calcium, iron, vitamin A, asorbic acid as well as small quantities of thiamine, riboflavin and niacin And the pecan's oil is one of the most polyunsaturated fats known. Pecans can be used to add flavor and texture to foods in low sodium diets because the amount of sodium in pecans is too low to be measured.

Pecan storage and use

When properly stored, pecans retain high quality, good taste and flavor for very long periods. Whether you buy a five pound bag of unshelled pecans or a small cellophane package of shelled pecans, the best place to store them is in the freezer. Pecans can spoil quickly in warm temperatures, but they'll keep a full year at 32 F.

Unless you have lots of time, buying shelled pecans in cellophane bags may be more practical and cost efficient than buying whole, unshelled pecans. The valuable time required for shelling and picking the meat from the shells could easily make buying shelled pecans worth the higher price.

Shortly before the derelict political spoof "First Family" drags itself to a merciful conclusion, ending with a freeze-frame that appears to symbolize rigor mortis, a press secretary played by Richard Benjamin turns to a presidential aide played by Fred Willard and whispers, "I hope we get away with this." Psssst: Not a chance, fellas.

It's difficult to resist the inference that Benjamin is voicing the authentic insecurity of writer-director Buck Henry, who has given himself ample cause to feel fretful and ashamed. Was Henry's co-directing credit on "Heaven Can Wait" an inside joke? A disgraceful solo flight, "First Family" brims with inert camera setups and shabbily lit settings, telltale signs that the director has little pictorial judgment, even with an Oscar-winning cinematographer (Fred Koenekamp of "Patton") on his team. If verbal humor is supposed to be Henry's strong point, he let himself down with a thud. A typical exchange in "First Family" might find the president's daughter complaining, "I wish Dad were a streetcar conductor," which prompts her mother to the soothing reply, "Of course, you do! Millions and millions of people do!" In quest of really big yucks, Henry reaches back for such corkers as the scene where someone sips a native brew and gets nauseous upon being informed of its ingredients: "donkey blood and cow urine." For this you need a big-shot humorist?

Henry's guiding stale conceit is to portray the occupants of the White House as sitcom jerks. Bob Newhart, becoming a miserable camera subject as his bland features crinkle into middle age, is a paternal dunce called President Manfred Link, a fuming, snappish dad in the worst Danny Thomas tradition. His first lady, Madeline Kahn, is a dowdy tippler, fuzzy-headed and fuzzy-voiced from secret drinking. Their daughter Gloria, Gilda Radner in a textbook one-joke role, is a frustrated, overage adolescent (28 going on 14) who keeps trying to lose her virginity.

The level of humor may be suggested by revealing that Gloria gets her wish in the company of a phallic monolith worshipped by the inhabitants of Upper Gorm, a Newly Emerging African Laughing Stock exploited with contemptible hypocrisy by Henry as the butt of dumb jokes about primitive cultures and the pretext for equally dumb jokes about social and racial squirming on the part of the Links.

The jokes are as heavy as lead from the outset, which shows a TV set tuned to a presidential speech and then a discussion of its inane content while an unidentifiable couple gropes on a water bed in the foreground. The payoff: The president's daughter is one of the gropers, and the Secret Service breaks in to carry her back forcibly to the White House.

The ensuing sequence picks up where this loser left off: The presi-dent openly discusses his daughter's dent openly discusses his daughter's randiness with Secret Service agents while presiding at a bill-signing ceremony. On the periphery, Bob Dishy as the vice president begs for a ceremonial fountain pen. For the record, there is one effective sight gag, the first and last of the movie. The president first and last of the movie: The president makes a diminutive senator from Rhode Island jump high to fetch his pen. The only other ripple of wit belongs to a brief interlude in which Newhart is seen announcing nuclear disaster in a series of prerecorded

OURSE COURSE

Just as the characters degenerate into one-joke wheezes, the script is predicated on a single flimsy situa-tion. The president is obliged to re-turn a state visit to Darkest Gorm after receiving the ambassador (Julius Harris as a serene savage who speaks English in non sequiturs) in Washington. There's never any reason for the first family to trundle off to Gorm, where crocodiles are roasted on spits, a snake dancer is strangled by her boa constrictor and vegetables grow as big as redwoods (Henry must imagine the Giant Vegetable is a fresh gimmick). For the smirky purposes of this material, it would be sufficient to send the first daughter as goodwill ambassador.

$600,000 for floats worth it, firm says

floats for President-elect Ronald Reagan's three-mile, hour-long inaugural parade promises they will be worth the $600,000 expense to the national Republican Party.

Republican leaders "want a good show and they want the best for the new president," Robert Robinson, president of Exhibition Decorators His company's 50 workers are building the mega-floats between work on floats for the Cotton Bowl parade and more than two dozen others for The five include a lead float with the theme "America - A New Beginning," and others for New England, the Midwest, West and "The lack of time has required extreme cooperation from everyone,"

Robinson said Wednesday. "We had to come up with a design to support the weight of 100 people plus a bit of sculpturing." A giant cornucopia, topped by a Styrofoam eagle and symbolizing the Midwest's reputation as the nation's breadbasket, will be one of the

The West will be represented by a giant 10-gallon red, white and blue hat. The South's float will feature a balloon-spewing globe in honor of the 1982 Worlds Fair in Knoxville, Ky. Robinson said he was unsure exactly what the lead float or the New England float will look like. Traditionally, each state was allotted space in the lineup for one float and one band, but Reagan requested a shorter, more modest parade.

Economy shows surprising strength

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy is showing surprising strength in the face of record-high interest rates, the government reported Wednesday, and many economists said chances of another recession are increasingly remote.

The Commerce Department said its Index of Leading Indicators - a key barometer of economic activity rose 1.2 percent in November, the sixth consecutive monthly increase after sharp declines during the spring. recession.

The jump came as a surprise to both government and private economists who a month ago said rising interest rates would depress this closely watched measure that forecasts 10 major activities, from workweeks to stock prices.

"I think we have to admit that the economy is holding up longer and somewhat better than we thought it would," said Lawrence Chimerine. head of Chase Econometrics Associates in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

"We are not having a recession. The economy is not reacting to high interest rates as most people expected," added Michael Evans, president of Evans Economics in Washington.

Ted Torda, a Commerce Department economist, said there are indications of some weakness in the economy - particularly in the housing and auto sectors. "However, there's a lot of underlying strength that has not been recognized.

For the past two years, Torda said, many economists, both inside and outside government, have "consistently underestimated the economy's resilience.

The new figures follow other reports of the economy's stubborness. New home sales rose nearly 6 percent last month; the nation's trade deficit narrowed; consumer spending is holding up, and the unemployment rate remains virtually stable.

In addition, growth of the nation's basic money supply has slowed significantly in the last month, which should relieve upward pressure on interest rates. Most economists now believe most short-term rates have peaked.

The Index of Leading Indicators showed eight of 10 activities increasing, with rising orders for plant and equipment contributing most to the overall gain.

Contracts for capital equipment were up 16.7 percent in November, after adjusting for inflation, Torda

In addition, the average workweek increased; layoffs declined; liquid assets and stock prices rose; vendor activity was up; producer prices for key raw materials climbed, and building permits, after declining in October, edged up. Two indicators declined: orders for manufactured and consumer goods, particularly autos; and the nation's money supply

The money supply picture, however, has another, more positive side. Its decline means less inflationary pressure and should contribute to drops in interest rates, said Jill Thompson, a senior economist at Data Resources Inc.

The Index of Leading Indicators had risen nearly 9 percent from June through September, but only a revised 0.7 percent in October. Several private economists took that to mean a decelerating economy that could fall into another recession.

These same economists, however, were more optimistic after Wednesday's report.

'There's no other way around it. The economy is holding up," said Chimerine. "There's some evidence to suggest the recovery will peter out a little bit, but there won't be a dramatic decline. "We're through the worst," said Evans, who believes that credit controls, more than high interest rates, caused last spring's sharp recession.

Torda said the slowdown in the leading indicators is a "normal devel-

Carter's administration ready to propose banking law changes

Government abandoning limits on contracts with other countries

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration is ready to recommend that Congress let the nation's banks provide full banking services across state lines, a White House spokesman said Wednesday.

Current federal law generally bars banks from conducting full-scale banking operations outside

Large banks are expected to enthusiastically endorse the proposed change. But many smaller banks are expected to contest the change it would be a serious threat to their continued profitability.

The report contends that interstate banking could improve competitive conditions in local markets without raising significantly the risk of undue concentration of economic power in the hands of the nation's largest banks.

Deputy White House press secretary Ray Jenkins said the report was prepared by Orin Kramer, associate director of the White House domestic policy staff. Carter has approved it and it will be sent to Congress early next week, Jenkins said.

The White House declined, however, to make public a copy of the report that was requested by the

'The administration regards existing geographic limitations as anachronistic in the competitive market place of the 1980s," the New York Times quoted the report as saying. The newspaper said it obtained a copy of the report's 40-page introduction and

Under the Carter plan, interstate banking would be phased in over a period of time.

The first step, the Times quotes the study as saying, would be a change in the Douglas Amendment of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956. The law, named for the late Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D.-Ill., prohibits bank holding companies from acquiring out-of-state banks unless laws of the host state specifically let them.

In later stages, unlimited interstate banking might be allowed by federally chartered institutions, the report said. At present, interstate branching is prohibited by the 1934 McFadden Act. The report also recommends that states ease their own intrastate banking rules. Illinois, for example, allows no branching even within the state.

It is "critically important," the report said, that Congress pass pending legislation to permit domestic banks to acquire financially troubled banks in

Social Security only one of many federal taxes that are increasing WASHINGTON (AP) - It may be a new year, but it's an old story: the federal government is raising It's not your income taxes that are increasing. In fact, if Ronald Reagan has his way, they will go down. What is rising steeply is the Social Security tax you and your working friends will pay, further depleting paychecks already ravaged by inflation.

Although the Social Security tax hike will be the biggest shock, there will also be these other changes

-The minimum wage will rise from $3.10 to $3.35. -Food stamp benefits will rise across the board by 11.5 percent. -Elderly people on Medicare will have to pay a higher proportion of their hospital bills.

-International mail rates will rise by an average of more than 50 percent. You also may have to use nine-digit ZIP codes starting in June, although that Postal Service plan may be blocked by Con-

-Passport fees, now a flat $14, will rise, if the State Department has its way. No new figures have been proposed, but the State Department wants to change the flat fee for a series of higher, each month, up from the 1980 limit of $209.

-Camping fees at several national parks are going up.

The Social Security increase was approved three years ago by a Congress worried about the financial health of the Social Security retirement fund.

The increase is two-pronged: The percentage of pay withheld from your checks will increase from 6.13 in 1980 to 6.65 percent; and the total salary on which the tax is paid rises from a maximum of $25,900 to $29,700. The result is an increase in the maximum Social Security tax for an individual of $387 over 1980. up to $1,975. The Social Security withholong will be automatic again for persons who earned enough to reach the maximum before the end of 1980 and had a paycheck or two with nothing taken out. For those who didn't hit the maximum, the increases will also

But there's a benefit to persons receiving Social Security: the amount they can earn without having their benefits reduced will rise from $5,000 to $5,500

The elderly will also be affected by the Medicare change. In 1981, the limit that Medicare can deduct from hospital insurance claims will increase from $180 to $204, meaning hospitalized persons will have to pay a bigger part of their bill. In addition, the amount a Medicare recipient would pay for long-term hospitalization will rise. The minimum wage increase is the last in a series of hikes approved three years ago by Congress and President Carter. For the 5.6 million workers earning the wage, a 40-hour weekly paycheck will rise from $124 to $134.

But Reagan, who becomes president Jan. 20, wants to exempt some teen-agers from the minimum wage, claiming the existing wage rate "destroys thousands of jobs for the poor and the young."

Delaware officials probe reports of underfeeding at youth school

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Dela-ware's juvenile corrections chief is investigating a report that inmates at a school for delinquent boys are not getting enough to eat.

The Delaware Council on Crime and Justice, a private agency, has charged that youths at the Ferris School are being underfed.

W. Daniel Cox, newly-appointed chief of the juvenile division of the state Correction Department, said Tuesday he was investigating the charges and waiting for "some answers" from Robert S. Wolfson, the department's food service director.

Wolfson said he and his food-planning committee have provided for as

Trade deficit lower

WASHINGTON (AP)

The nation's trade deficit for the first 11 months of 1980 narrowed to $29.5 billion and the trade gap for the year is expected to be signifi-cantly below last year's $37.3 billion, the Commerce Department

Most analysts expect the 1980 trade deficit tobe about $32 billion.

November's trade deficit was $1.66 billion as big declines in oil and auto imports were recorded, the Commerce Department said Tues-

U.S. exports last month fell 2.4 percent, from a seasonally adjusted $19.1 billion to $18.6 billion. Imports declined 3.1 percent, from a seasonally adjusted $20.9 billion to $20.3 billion in November.

Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznik said earlier this month that the United States is expected to show a modest surplus in 1980 when all of the nation's current accounts are considered.

In addition to merchandise trade, some transactions included in that broader measure are services, foreign aid, loans to foreigners and pension payments to Americans living abroad.

But merchandise trade deficits have been recorded in each of the first 11 months of 1980. November's trade gap in November was the third smallest this year as oil and auto imports de-

The United States imported 172.1 million barrels of petroleum products in November, 7.6 percent less than in October and the lowest volume since May 1976, the Commerce Department said. The value of imported cars, other than those from Canada, fell $160 million to $1.1 billion in November, the depart-ment said. The total had declined $210 million the month before. Car sales, domestic as well as imported, are in a slump because of high interest rates.

The nation's trade pic ture improved for agricultural commodities and petroleum, but worsened for manufactured goods, including iron and steel products, the department said.

Meanwhile, in other econovic news reported by the Commerce Department, new home sales improved last month despite high interest rates for home mortgages.

Sales of new, one-family houses in November stood at an estimated seasonally adjusted an-nual rate of 577,000, 5.9 percent above October's rate, the department said. About 498,000 new houses were sold in the first 11 months of 1980, a decline of 26 percent from the figure for the same period in 1979.

Days off will be changed

The proposed list of holidays includes New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiv-ing and Christmas, Also, two days around Christ-mas would also be set aside as holidays, de-pending on what day Christmas falls.

The Friday after Thanksgiving would also be a day off.

Too friendly neighbors have feud

By BOB WACKER

HOLBROOK, N.Y. -It all started because their next-door neighbors were just too friend-ly, Mildred Reiter said Tuesday night.

"For two and a half years, Jerry and Becky Fishbein spent their lives in our house. Sam and I had no peace, no quiet, no privacy, from early in the morning to late at night," she said. So, one day about a year ago, she said, she told Becky Fishbein as tactfully as possible to go home and leave her alone. From that episode came, first, a shower of hate mail reporting faisely that Mildred Reiter had terminal cancer; second, criminal prosecution for harassment and a plea of guilty by Jerry Fishbein; and finally on Tuesday, an $8 million lawsuit against the Fishbeins and Brookhaven National Laboratory, where he works as a draftsman for a private labor contractor

Many of the letters were on lab stationery. They began arriving last April, two weeks after Mrs. Reiter underwent surgery for removal of a benign growth. Some of the letters, purporting to be from a doctor, were ungrammatical and contained words that were misspelled.

"Mrs. Reiter," said one hand-printed letter, "As your body is slowly being eaten away by can-cer and you will slowly get thinner, and become mentally incompotent like you shall become...we would hereby request, instead of being buried in the ground, we would like to use your remains for scientific evaluation in the continuing research of terminal cancer."

SUFFOLK County police traced the letters to Fishbein. He was charged with five counts of aggravated harasscarrying a maximum penalty of a year in jail. On Oct. 21, he pleaded guilty to two lesser charges of harassment, and Judge Harvey Sher-man gave him a conditional discharge on his promise to obtain psychiatric help and keep away from the Reiters. The Reiters and their daughter and son-in-law, Robin and Julius Genovesi, are suing for physical, mental and emotional pain and distress, plus about $4 million in punitive damages. Brookhaven Lab is named as a defendant because, their attorney Joseph Morello said, "They just tried to cover the whole thing up. They wouldn't even tell us whether he worked there or not."

The labs' legal counsel, Peter Rathvon, denied that. The lab, he said, put the Reiters in touch with a postal inspector. "And we tried to conduct our own investigation. It's too bad nothing came of it." Fishbein, he said, never had been a lab employee, but worked for a labor contractor; and like most people there, could help himself to lab stationery. "Stationery is not a security item, he said.

RATHVON also said they had pointed out the bad grammar and spelling to Mrs. Reiter as proof the letters were fake. "We tried to reassure her," he said. She replied: "I've worked for doctors. I know that doctors can't spell. I thought every-body was lying to me." The Fishbeins would not comment Tuesday night. They are in their late 30s or early 40s, neighbors said. Mr. Reiter is 70 and his wife is 61. "Our childen are their age ... we didn't have that much in common," Mrs. Reiter said.

Oilers fire Phillips after 27-7 loss

Bum Phillips leaning against the porch railing of his new home that is under construction Southwest of Houston after he was fired as the head coach and general manager of the Houston Oilers by owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Jr. (AP Laserphoto)

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Oilers head football coach and general manager Bum Phillips said Wednesday he was "shocked" but not bitter about his sudden dismissal, adding that Oiler owner Bud Adams had recently talked about extending his contract.

"The last time I talked to Bud Adams about this was concerning extending my contract, then they fire me," Phillips said while perched on the tailgate of his pickup in front of his nearly-completed home in a

"Sure, it shocked me," the earthy, tobacco-chewing coach said, adding that his reaction to the dismissal was "horseshit." "I'm not bitter," he said. "Hell, he (Adams) owns the club and he can do anything he wants to with it." "I GUESS THEY expected a more than I could produce."

The oft-quoted Phillips, famous for his butch haircut, western boots and 'laid back" attitude, has coached the Oilers for the past six years. Flanked by center Carl Mauk, who said he didn't want to discuss the firing. Phillips said he wasn't worred about his plans. "The future will take care of itself," he said. "I don't know what's going to happen right now, but if I get any other coaching offers, I'll probably take them. I have to pay my bills and coaching is the only job I've ever had."

He said Adams called him to the office Wednesday morning and told him he had been fired. "I then went to the phone to let my wife know, and she had already heard it on television. I'm a little bit disappointed about

"At least they could have given me 24 hours to let my family know and to notify my assistants."

He said he would not have done anything differently during his six-year tenure, including the hiring of an offensive coordinator, a move he has been criticized for not doing "The first three years I was coach here, we had an offensive coordinator and couldn't make the playoffs. The last three years, we didn't have one and we made the playoffs. We won, but maybe we didn't

PHILLIPS HAD PROMISED Oiler fans last year that the team would "kick down the door" to the Super Bowl this year, but Houston's championship dreams turned to dust last Sunday when they were shelled by Oakland 27-7 in a wild card playoff game.

Phillips, the first Oilers coach to have a free rein in selecting players in the draft, had one year remaining on his contract. There was discussion of a two-year extension.

Rumors also floated a month ago that Phillips would leave the Oilers to accept the head coaching job with the Saints. Phillips repeatedly denied the rumor, saying the only place planned to move was to his new home

HERCZEG SAID HE would begin an immediate search for a new had coach and didn't intend to take a long time to find a replacement. "The football team is suffering from a negative feeling right now and we need to make quick decision to get things back in order," Herczeg He said he would like to keep as many assistant coaches as possible but said that decision would be made by the new coach. "My personal feeling is that we have a good coaching staff and I would like to keep as many as possible to retain our continuity. My strong belief is that you don't improve you situation with drastic upheaval," Herczeg

He also said he favored hiring an offensive coordinator. "Every other team in the NFL has one person responsible for the offense.

The crew-cut Phillips, whose given name of Oail Andrews was eventually turned into "Bumble" and then "Bum" by a little sister who couldn't say "brother," started his college coaching career under Bear Bryant at Texas A&M in 1957, then went to the University of Texas-El Paso, then Texas Western.

In 1967, he joined the pros as an assistant under Sid Gillman with the San Diego Chargers, then still in the American Football League. When Gillman left the Chargers in 1971, Phillips accepted the job as defensive coordinator at Southern Methodist and then Oklahoma State.

IN 1973 GILLMAN became head coach and general manager of the Oilers and, one year later, Phillips rejoined him as Houston's defensive

Phillips was named head coach in 1975, and that season the team's record improved to 10-4, from 7-7 the previous season, and came within one game of making the playoffs. In 1976, he assumed the additional duties of general manager.

In 1978 and 1979, Houston advanced to the playoffs as the wild-card team, and in both years, bowed to the Pittsburgh Steelers in the AFC title

Houston finished the 1980 NFL season with an 11-5 record, tying a club record set in 1962 and matched in 1979.

But of the 11 victories, only three were won by more than a touchdown even though the Oilers outgained opponents by an average of 64 yards a game and ran 106 more plays. The Oilers passing attack averaged 188 yards a game compared with 142- and 147-yard averages in 1978 and

The volatile owner said he was shocked to read in local newspapers, following the Oakland loss, that Houston was the only team in the NFL without an offensive coordinator, a suggestion Phillips rejected in a Monday news conference.

"Bum's adamant refusal to even consider the possibility that the offense needs some fresh blood and input weighed heavily in my decision," Adams said in a statement. "It also became obvious to me that the confidence of members of our own football team was being shaken by concerns about the performance of the offense.

Altus hands MHS third cage defeat

HOBBS, N.M. - The Midland High Bulldogs lost for the third time this season when Altus, Okla. beat MHS, 70-60, for third place in the Hobbs Holiday Tournament Wednesday night in the Ralph Tasker Arena.

Midland now stands 14-3 heading into Friday night's clash with Abilene Christian High at Chaparral Center on the Midland College campus.

No box score was not available from the tournament for the eighth time this season, ripped 59 yards on North Carolina's first possession for a 6-0 lead and Bryant put the Tarheels ahead for good at 13-7 with 1-yard run in the second

Streater, the only player in Atlantic Coast Conference history to make All-Conference at two positions in the same year, ignited the Tarheels to the Streater punted a Bluebonnet Bowl record 63 yards to get the Tarheels out of trouble and then, on Texas' first play after the punt, Streater intercepted to set up the go-ahead touchdown by Bryant.

The Longhorns, trying to end a disappointing season on a winning note, scored in the second quarter when freshman Mike Luck of Houston scored on a 1-yard run set up by a 42-yard end around play by speedster Herkie Walls.

The Tarheels, who finished 11-1 for the season with their second ACC title in four years, added a field goal in the third quarter, a 31-yard boot by Jeff

The three-pointer was set up when Texas punter John Goodson fumbled a snap on fourth down, giving North Carolina possession at the Longhorn

The Tarheels, who became only the 11th college team in history this year to have two 1,000-yard rushers, relied heavily on the passing of sophomore quarterback Rod Elkins and the receiving of senior tight end Mike Chatham.

Elkins used the airways to drive North Carolina to the Texas 1-yard line in the fourth quarter, but Lawrence was denied a touchdown on a fourth down play.

Neither North Carolina touchdown drive took very long. The first was completed in four plays and the second took only three.

Elkins hit Chatham for 16 yards prior to Lawrence's 59-yard run in the first quarter. Lawrence broke through an opening on the left side of the line, cut to his right and outran the stunned Longhorn secondary.

A try for a two-point conversion

Streater's second quarter interception gave North Carolina a first down at the Texas 33. Freshman tailback Mark Smith lined up in a flanker position and ran 31 yards on the first play. After Lawrence gained one yard, Bryant rammed over with the touchdown.

Saints considering Bum as head coach for 1981 campaign

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The New Orleans Saints consider Bum Phillips a candidate for their vacant head coaching job — along with a lot of other people, General Manager Steve Phillips was fired earlier Wednesday as head coach and general manager of the Houston Oilers. The Saints fired head coach Dick Nolan at the 0-12 level of their 1-15 National Football League season.

"I was sorry to hear about Bum, but that's the nature of this business," said Rosenbloom. "We do have a lot of people to talk. We've been setting up appointments and now that Bum has become available, we may include him in that number.

'Bum has become available all of a sudden. I'm sure that we will talk "But if we're going to do this job to talk to all the people we feel are important possibilities and candidates, legitimate people for the job. And that's the way we're going to Rosenbloom said it would be at least two weeks before the Saints

"Our first priority is to get a good coach," he said. "There are college teams still in bowls and pro teams stin playoffs, so some of the people we want to talk to aren't free to talk until after their seasons are completed.

Jay Jeffrey is own star

By LEIGH SHIRLEY Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Jay Jeffrey arrived at Baylor in 1979 in the shadow of his brother Neal, a quarterback Baylor fans vowed they would never

And while they haven't exactly forgotten Neal, Jay has emerged from the shadow into his own spotlight, leading the sixth-ranked Bears to a perfect Southwest Conference season and a match-up with ninth-ranked Alabama in the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl.

"Now when I go down there, people ask, 'Aren't you Jay's older broth-er?" said 27-year-old Neal Jeffrey, who six years ago led the Bruins to their first SWC championship in 50

But the elder Jeffrey doesn't mind that the spotlight now has turned to brother Jay.

"I'm just so proud of what he's done," says Neal. "Because it's my brother who led them, that's what has made it so unique."

"It is ironic, though ... " he said, referring to the fact that both brothers not only started as quarterback at the same school, but also led pre-season underdog teams to the Cotton Bowl.

The two Jeffreys are the only brothers in the history of the league to accomplish that feat. Neal's 1974 Bears emerged as the "surprise" SWC leaders, bouncing back from a dismal 2-9 record in 1973 and a shaky start the next season. This year, 21-year-old Jay marched the Bears to a sparkling 10-1 record three games above his brother's 7-4

But he now faces his sternest test leading the Bears against the Crimson Tide, a three-point favorite.

However, Alabama, 9-2, has yet to win a Cotton Bowl under the tutelage of coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, losing to Texas A&M in 1964 and Texas in 1972. Bryant's only Cotton Bowl victory was in 1950 when his Kentucky team defeated Texas Christian.

In its lone Cotton Bowl appearance, Baylor fell 41-20 ato Penn State in

And it's no consolation to Jay Jeffrey that Alabama comes to Dallas with five straight bowl victories.

Aside from their mirrored athletic accomplishments, the brothers say their lives parallel in other areas as

Jim Hall put Midland on map with Indy win

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

The beginning of the New Year always brings fresh hope to the future and optimistic reflection of the past - at least in the world of sports. It seems only fitting then that we take a look back at what we believe were the top 10 sports stories to hit Midland in the last

It was a gilded year for the Midland sports fans and one which made us hold our heads a little higher while dreaming of future successes of which there will be many. In that respect, this year was little different from any of the rest, but 1980 will linger in the minds of

Following is a list of what we believe to be the top 10 sports stories of the year. You may agree or disagree, add or subtract from this list according to what touched you in 1980, but the following events did seem to capture the hearts of Midlanders, whether it was in defeat

1. Without a doubt Midland's Jim Hall seems to stand above all the rest. Hall captured his second Indianapolis 500 title in three years with Johnny Rutherford aboard his sleek Penzoil Chaparral, Hall's "Yellow Submarine" is one of the most masterful ground effects design ever produced and Hall's genuis has literally changed the racing world. Hall's accomplishments brought Midland honor across the country. The Chaparral team also won the national points title for the second time. There were no events in 1980 that could have meant as much to the Tall City.

2. There was a changing of the athletic guard for the Midland Independent School District, so to speak, as Gil Bartosh was named the new athletic director by the school board and Edwin Nixon became the first assistant athletic director. This was listed as the No. 2 story because the move will effect the future athletic programs in Midland. Bartosh also named Pat Culpepper as the new head football coach at Midland High and Spike Dykes as the new football boss at Midland Lee as hiw first assignment in his new position.

3. The death of Midland High sophomore Teddy Terrazas while playing in a junfor varsity basketball game in Snyder gave Midland a sports tragedy. It made Midlanders pause and his story will be remembered.

4. The Midland College basketball team came to the front as a national power and the four meetings with national chempion Western Texas College became classics, even though the Chaps lost all four times to the Westerners on the way to a 27-6 season record. Record crowds turned out for those meetings and they may have prepared MC for this year's run at national glory. They have been ranked as the No. 1 team in the nation since the first poll in Novem-

Baylor seeks Cotton Bowl victory today

DALLAS (AP) - The sixth-ranked Baylor Bears, smarting from a severe whipping they received a year ago from Alabama and concerned about their national image, were a field-goal underdog to the Crimson Tide in the Cotton Bowl's annual New Year's Day Classic today.

Despite being a charter member of the Southwest Conference, it is only the second appearance in the Cotton Bowl for Baylor, which lost to Penn

No. 8-ranked Alabama, coming off a disappointing-for-them 9-2 regular season, has never been all that successful itself in the Cotton Bowl, winning once in four tries.

"A lot of people still can't believe we won the Southwest Conference," said Baylor All-America guard Frank Ditta. "It bothers me. We worked hard to get to where we are."

The big blemish on Baylor's 10-1 season was a loss to weak San Jose State in the middle of the season. No Baylor team has ever won 11 games in

Also, Alabama blasted the Bears 45-0 during the 1979 regular season. 'We have a chance to prove some things," said Ditta. "If we beat Alabama, nobody can say we didn't have a good team. Both teams feature bristling defenses anchored by an Associated Press All-American.

For Alabama, the defensive catalyst is end E.J. Junior while Baylor calls upon middle linebacker Mike Singletary to provide leadership.

Baylor, on paper, has the more spectacular offense with a 1,000-yard runner in Walter Abercrombie while Alabama has used three different quarterbacks trying to get its Wishbone into gear.

Alabama running back Major Ogilvie downplayed any sentiment that the game means more to Baylor than it does the Crimson Tide.

"Pride is just as important as playing for the national title," he said. Should Alabama win, it will be the 306th victory for Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and put him within nine of Amos Alonzo Stagg's national record. It would also be Bryant's second Cotton Bowl victory. His 1950 Kentucky team beat Texas Christian in the Cot-

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff, asked if this is the most important game in the school's history, said, "Time will

The Bears have never finished the year ranked sixth or higher in The AP

It's Alabama's 22nd consecutive bowl appearance, and 34th overall, both national records. Bryant said Wednesday he will not name his starting quarterback until game time. There were strong hints that he would start a freshman for the first time in his coaching career. "I'd like for it to be Don Jacobs," said Bryant of his senior signal caller, "but he hasn't looked like the same quarterback as last year. I'd rather start a senior but it may be (freshman) Walter Lewis.'

Florida State seeks win over Oklahoma

MIAMI (AP) - Second-ranked Florida State and No.4 Oklahoma collide in the Orange Bowl game tonight, hoping another New Year's Day contest elevates this 47th annual event into a battle for college football's national championship.

Neither controls its destiny in the chase for the No.1 position in the final Associated Press poll, which will be announced Saturday night.

Top-ranked Georgia, the only unbeaten, untied team in the nation, can settle the issue with a Sugar Bowl victory over No.7 Notre Dame.

Coaches Bobby Bowden of FSU and Barry Switzer of Oklahoma insisted Wednesday that the outcome of the Georgia-Notre Dame clash would have no bearing on the Orange Bowl, but each said he would like to see a Fighting Irish victory.

'It'd be nice to know that big thing's (No.1) out there," said Bowden. "But I've never even fought for No.2. I'd just love to beat Oklaho-

"We want to be No.3 again," said Switzer. "That's been our niche for several years. I just want to see how good Georgia is.

Third-ranked Pittsburgh could not be overlooked in a final poll if both Georgia and FSU lost Thursday. The Panthers made their bid for the national title by destroying 18th-ranked South Carolina 37-9 in the Gator Bowl game Monday night.

FSU and Oklahoma each carry seven-game winning streaks into the 8 p.m., EST, battle before a sellout crowd of 76,114 and a national television (NBC) audience. The forecast calls for unseasonably cool weather with gametime temperature in the Oklahoma, 9-2, is a five-point favorite to down the Seminoles, 10-1, in the rematch of the 1980 Orange Bowl, which the Sooners won 24-7.

The Sooners, who had 36 turnovers while dropping two of their first four games this season, will test a tough Seminoles defense with a strong, balanced Wishbone attack in which four players range in total yardage from 659-678: David Overstreet, J. C. Watts, Stanley Wilson and George Rhymes, a freshman who will be performing before a hometown crowd.

Bowden said the Wishbone presented a particular problem for his team since FSU rarely faces it. "It's just like a disease. You don't want to face it often," he said.

FSU improved its running game in 1980, getting away from the pattern of being a high-powered passing team. Sam Platt, a converted wide receiver, rushed for 983 yards and quarterback Rick Stockstill threw for 1,377 yards and 15 touchdowns.

"We've got good players, but not compared to years past," Switzer said. "We do not have a superstar ... a difference-maker ... like Billy Sims was last year."

'We have won on defense, on kicking and on capitalizing on mistakes,' said Bowden. "We have not driven the ball very far. If Barry and them don't lay the ball down, it may be a replay

Rose Bowl pact to remain same with PAC-10, Big 10

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - If you want to really get Bill Nicholas started, just walk up and suggest that the Tournament of Roses Association break up the current Rose Bowl pact between the Pacific-10 and Big Ten conferences.

Nicholas, who is chairman of the association's football committee, has been hearing that kind of talk for the last few years and it makes him bristle.

"I'm telling you, there is no way we will ever break our pact between these two conferences," Nicholas told reporters prior to a news conference to introduce Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler and Washington Coach Don James. "Other bowls would love to have the arrangement we have."

Nicholas said there has been pressure from some West Coast columnists to break the pact, which was signed in 1947 - especially since the Big Ten has managed only one Rose Bowl victory in the past 10 years.

"Everybody says we could have Alabama out here on New Year's Day, but I say we've got the most attractive bowl game there is right

MHS-Abilene Christian games in time changes

Friday's games between Midland High and Abilene Christian High scheduled for 6: 15 p.m. and 8 p.m. for the boys at Chaparral Center and 6: 15 p.m. and 8 p.m. for the girls at the MHS gym have been changed.

Starting at 4 p.m., the boys junior varsity teams will tip off at the MHS gym while the JV girls get underway at the same time in Chap Center.

The varsity girls will clash at 6:15 p.m. at Chap Center with the boys' varsity game to follow at 8 p.m. on the now," Nicholas said. "We are very happy with things just the way they

Not surprisingly, the two coaches agreed with Nicholas - the Michigan coach, in fact, with a bit of gallows

"I can certainly understand why the Pac-10 wants to keep us coming out here," Schembechler said. "Some of my worst moments have been out

"I know we haven't been too successful out here in recent years, but I don't want you to get the idea we are not worthy opponents.

However, the Michigan coach did concede that the Pac-10 is perhaps a stronger football conference, from top to bottom, than the Big Ten. There may be a few more good teams out here right now," Schembechler said. "If you want to say the Pac-10 is better, I'll accept that.' James noted, however, that Washington and Michigan both won the undisputed championships of their respective conferences with identical 9-2 records and appeared to be evenly matched going into their Jan. 1 meet-

"We're both similar," James said. "We both struggled early in the season, then came on strong.

Reporters noted that both coaches even chose to wear cowboy boots to the meeting along with their otherwise conservative business suits.

"He (Schembechler) calls every morning and discusses what we're going to wear," James said, drawing a laugh

Schembechler said his own Rose Bowl record — five defeats in as many tries - adds to the pressure on

"Yes, I'd say the pressure is on us to win, for ourselves and for the Big Ten," the Michigan coach said. "But, I don't think the incentive is going to favor one team or the other."

Peach Bowl set for play Friday

ATLANTA (AP) - Virginia Tech Coach Bill Dooley knows his groundoriented Hokies will face a stiff challenge trying to run against 20thranked Miami in Friday's Peach Bowl, but he says he won't change his strategy.

"There's an old saying that goes something like, 'You have to dance with the one who brung you,' and I feel the same way," Dooley said Wednesday, referring to the Hokies' ground attack that netted 2,332 yards en route to an 8-3 season and their first bowl appearance since 1968.

Miami, also 8-3 and rated 13th nationally in total defense, is a touchdown favorite in the 3 p.m. nationally televised contest at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

Dooley added, however, that he 'may kinda slip around and dance with someone else," alluding to the possibility that he may sneak in some passing by quarterback Steve Casey, who accounted for 1,119 yards and 13

touchdowns through the air. "Miami is big and strong. They concern us both ways, offensively and defensively. All their people across the front of their defense are outstanding," said Dooley. "They're just a big, physical football team."

Dooley's running attack is led by sophomore tailback Cyrus Lawrence, who rushed for a school-record 1,221 yards and eight touchdowns. Backup tailback Johnnie Edmonds added 402 yards and fullback Scott Dovel had "Bill's team is an outstanding ball control, hard-hitting knockout type offense," said second-year Miami Coach Howard Schnellenberger. Stopping Lawrence will be a great challenge. He's like all great backs. He has great cut back ability and run-to-daylight ability.

Miami allowed only 123.8 yards per averaged 122 per game.

"They put so much pressure on with their running game that when they do throw, they seem to make the big play," he said. Schnellenberger, however, has some big play people of his own, including sophomore quarterback Jim Kelly, who has thrown for 1,519 yards and 11 touchdowns, and running back Lorenzo "Smokey" Roan, who had 669 rushing yards. "Kelly is my favorite topic of conversation. He's an outstanding young quarterback. He's ahead of George Mira, who was probably the best quarterback ever at Miami, and on a par with Joe Namath when he was a sophomore at Alabama," said Schnellenberger, who was an assistant coach with the Crimson Tide in the 1960s.

The Hurricanes also will be up against a defense that ranked fifth nationally in total defense and se-

SASKATOON, Saskatchewan (AP) - A world indoor record of 36.71 seconds was set Tuesday night by Angella Taylor of the Scarborough Optimists in the women's 300-meter run at the Saskatoon Indoor Games. The effort easilt shattered the old standard of 37.13. Despite Taylor's performance, competitors from the United States dominated the meet. Merlene Ottey of the Univerity of Nebraska finished second in the event with a time in 37.23 and Jillian Richardson of Calgary Spartans was third in 39.01.

U.S. Athletes won the men's 800, 300, 400 and 500 meters and the pole vaults. They also took the women's 800 meters and high jump.

Mark Belger of Boston won the 800 meters in a time of 1:51.16, followed by Mark Enyeart of the Pacific Coast Club in 1:52.47 and Ian Dailey of the Washington, D.C., Internationals in 1:52.80. Doug Wournell of Calgary Thunderbolts was close behind in hearts of Midlanders in 1980, and the 83-82 district playoff loss to Odessa Permian will always remain as one of the district's most emotional and exciting encounters of its kind. After the loss, MHS was the only team in the state which had 30 or more wins not to make the state play-

6. Midland again made national headlines as three former Midland athletes were selected in the professional football draft. Former Lee and Nebraska star Junior Miller was a first round selection of the Atlanta Falcons and many think he was the main reason for Atlanta's surge to an NFC division title, its first. Keith Bishop, a former Lee and Baylor player, was drafted in the sixth round by the Denver Broncos. Before the season's end, Bishop was a starter. James Zachery, former MHS and Texas A&M standout, was drafted in the 11th round by the New York Jets. Zachery did not make the team, but he went on to play for Montreal in the Canadian Football League. It was the first time Midland had ever had three players drafted in the same year.

7. The Midland High football team was placed on probation for one year by the District 5-5A Executive Committee for violating a UIL rule of working out in the off-season for more than one school period. An investigation was ordered by the committee after the UIL had received two anyonimous letters had accused MHS of five rules violations. The committee decided that there was no "intent" to break the rules and gave MHS the minimum penalty allowed by the

8. Midland High's David Simmons won the state discus title last spring with a toss of 187-1. Simmons was never beaten as a senior, winning district, regional and state titles as well as setting many meet records. His story was unique because he didn't even get out of district as a junior when he went into the discus as the favorite.

9. Few who saw it will never forget the performance of Midland High quarterback Micheal Feldt against Lubbock Monterey. The senior rushed for 178 yards and two touchdowns, hit seven of 12 passes for an additional 140 yards and two more touchdowns and one of his TD runs was for 65 yards. The performance earned him The Associated Press high school player of the week honors. 10. The Midland Lee girls basketball team, under the direction of Shirley Stephenson, won the District 5-5A basketball crown. Lee has won the district crown twice outright and were co-champions with Midland High one year. The girls have been in the district race only three years, so Lee is the only playoff representative the loop has ever had in the sport. We believe these were the top stories of the year, but many others deserve note. There were tennis, swimming and golf championships for the high school and Midland College teams. There were individual performances that stood tall, such as Lee's Robert Schooler run for a state cross country championship that fell one place short after winning his first nine races of the year.

Lee's Keevin Harper won a state berth in the 800 meters; former Lee track star Arthur Pertile was named track freshman of the year in the TIAA while running for McMurry. Lee won a swimming championship and Midland High a tennis crown. The Lee girls went to state in golf. Green Tree Country Club opened its new 18-hole golf course, giving Midland four courses. Golfers also began to enjoy the new nine-hole addition to the Hogan Park municipal course. The course is now the largest in Midland with 27

Lee's Calvin Riggs made a run at the District 5-5A rushing title only to lose it on the final night of the year. But Riggs and teammates Irl Connally and Keith Brown were named to both the offensive and defensive all-district teams, an almost unheard of moment for one team to land three players both ways.

There were so many other stories during the year, but by now, you surely get the idea that 1980 was a sports bonanza complete with victory, defeat and tragedy

Walker anxious to face Irish

By BOB OATES

The Los Angeles Times In the history of college football, which goes back more than a century, no freshman has ever been the nation's most talked-about player until this year, when running back Herschel Walker led Georgia to an undefeated season and No. 1 in the polls.

And once more, Walker, 6-2, 225. will be front and center as Georgia (11-0) meets Notre Dame (9-1-1) today in the Sugar Bowl, the feature attraction of an exceptional New Year's Day football program.

They know Herschel will get the ball a lot of times," Georgia quarterback Buck Belue said the other day. "While they are trying to stop him, other things."

In other words, the Notre Dame problem is that Georgia has one of the best balanced offenses in college ball, proving it against Florida in the last 1:35 when Belue flicked a pass to sprinter Lindsay Scott for a 93-yard touchdown and a 26-21 win.

"Herschel had had a great day gaining 238 yards, but we were still a point down and running out of time," Belue said, recalling one of the more dramatic moments of the season. "Lindsay found an opening and kept going, and I stood there yelling: 'Run, Lindsay, run.' Just like that we went from six feet under the champion-

THE QUESTION for Georgia's essentially untested team is whether it can handle Notre Dame's greater strength and power.

Good balance isn't much help to an offense that is out-muscled, and some critics expect to find Georgia beyond its depth physically.

'Notre Dame's offensive line is colossal," Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said, putting his finger on one problem. "And their defensive record speaks for itself. Their defense has two super players in (linebacker) Bob Crable - a sort of wild man - and (lineman) Scott Zettek.

In Dan Devine's last game as head coach, the Irish are favored by a ball better than Georgia. Their alter-nating halfbacks, Phil Carter and Jim Stone, have combined for more yards this year than Walker.

But freshman quarterback Blair Kiel isn't much of a passer and for some reason Devine has gone most of the season with Kiel instead of senior Mike Courey, who is.

THE ORANGE Bowl could emerge with the national champion Thursday night if a 6-point underdog, secondranked Florida State (10-1), upsets Oklahoma (9-2) — and if Georgia loses. But Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden is not too hopeful.

Midland's Junior Miller ready to face Cowboys ATLANTA (AP) - A lack of playoff do lat as I'm concerned, the repu

experience is a concern of Atlanta Coach Leeman Bennett as the Falcons prepare for two-time Super Bowl champion Dallas on Sunday. But the lack of playoff experience doesn't bother rookle Atlanta All-Pro tight end Junior Miller of Midland, Tex.

Despite Bennett's worries, the Falcons, who reeled off nine consecutive victories en route to the NFC West title and a 12-4 record, are three-point favorites Sunday in the 3 p.m., CST, nationally televised (CBS) contest at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

The Cowboys are in the playoffs for the 15th time in 16 seasons and knocked off Atlanta 27-20 in 1978 in the Falcons' only other playoff year.

'We're a much better football team this year than we were in 1978," said Bennett. "Of course, the thing that concerns me this year is the youth we have. Everybody had been saying that this is the second time for us in the playoffs, but that's only partly true. There are a lot of people on this team that weren't here in 1978."

One of them, of course, was Miller, the No.1 draft choice from Nebraska who caught 46 passes for 574 yards and a club-record nine touchdowns.

"I don't think we'll have any problem getting up for a big game like this. We've had lots of big games this year and this is just another big one," said the 6-foot-4, 235-pound Miller.

tation of the Dallas Cowboys doesn't mean anything. We were 12-4 and so were they. Whoever wants it most will win," said Miller.

"I don't know what it will take but I feel this team knows how to win. We can do it. We came from behind in six or seven games. It comes down to who will die, who will quit, and this team won't quit," he said.

The Falcons also start three other rookies, linebackers Buddy Curry and Al Richardson and defensive back Kenny Johnson, and list 19 players on their roster with two years or less pro experience.

"The thing that's different for the playoffs is that there's a lot more pressure from the media and a lot more pressure for tickets for Aunt Susie," said Bennett. "Teams that have been there like the Cowboys are used to that. It's done with a shrug of the shoulders. It's the price you have to pay to be in the playoffs," he said.

The Cowboys, basically the same team that knocked off the Falcons in 1978, lost two starters in Sunday's 34-13 wild card victory over Los Angeles.

Linebacker Mike Hegman suffered a dislocated elbow and safety Randy Hughes dislocated his shoulder. Guy Brown will replace Hegman and Dennis Thurman will start for

Michigan favored over Washington

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) - Michigan's Bo Schembechler is 0-7 in bowl games and Washington's Don James is 2-0. But the oddesmakers say the Wolverines - not the Huskies - will win today's 67th edition of the Rose Bowl

Michigan was an 11-point favorite, a surprising jump of four points from the opening odds, to provide Schembechler with his first victory here in six tries. He is 0-5 in the Rose Bowl and also has losses in the Orange Bowl and Gator Bowl. "Some of my worst moments have been here," Schembechler admitted. To which James said, "There is no question in my mind that Coach Schembechler and his staff want to win this game as badly as anyone ever wanted to win a game."

Just three years ago, James' Washington team was a 14-point underdog against Schembechler's team in the Rose Bowl. The Huskies led 24-0 at one stage before holding off the Wolverines 27-20. The Pacific-10 Conference is 10-1 against the Big Ten Conference in the past 11 Rose Bowls, and there have been suggestions for the Rose Bowl to dump the Big Ten. But Rose Bowl officials have steadfastly defended the exclusive contract they have with the Pac-10 and the Big Ten.

The Huskies are in the Rose Bowl as Pac-10 champions, something officials here can be thankful for since the Pac-10 was really the Pac-5 as far as the Rose Bowl was concerned this season. Pac-10 sanctions prohibited five of its members, including perennial favorite Southern Cal, from coming here this year.

Michigan and Washington, both 9-2 during the regular season, are hot

After a 1-2 start, the fifth-ranked Wolverines reeled off eight straight victories. The 16th-rated Huskies were upset by Oregon and Navy this season but have won four in a row, including a big 20-10 decision over Southern Cal in Los Angeles on Nov.

In the Wolverines' final four games, their defense surrendered just three points, an Ohio State field goal on Nov. 22 in a 9-3 Michigan triumph that clinched Schembechler's sixth trip to Pasadena.

Fin & Feather

A few thoughts on fishing as the year 1980 ends and a new year of fishing slowly creeps in. There were those times in the year 1980 you caught fish like never before. Then there were those times when you played your fishing tactics just like the books says and were skunked. You've learned new techniques on how to catch fish, discovered many new lures that helped put more fish in the boat, then you've discovered that in fishing a certain lure the wrong way, you didn't catch any fish. The year 1980 was a tricky year for fishing most Texas lakes.

A friend of mine who was a great fisherman and who wrote one of the most comprehensive volumes on the subject I've ever read had this advice for any who would like to be a consistently successful fisherman. Said he, "By far the most important item of all you can possess to become that angler is your head!" There will be times, he went on in his comments, when you will not be able to catch fish if you go by the rules. Show me a fisherman who fishes by a book and I'll show you one who a lot of times can't produce. You need to use your "noggin" and be resourceful and have imagination and be diligent and patient. Anyone unwilling to will never belong to that fraternity of anglers deserving of a successful angler title.

Another thought: There is more to fishing than just catching fish. What my friend had to say of this was: "The essence of anything labeled a sport is where both contestants have roughly an equal chance to win.' Tackle that is too light for the fish you are after and holding out no hope for the angler who tangles with a big fish in weeds or brush or cover amounts to foolishness and is in no sense considered sportsmanlike to use. Fish must have a chance but so must the fisherman, was his sentiment. What he was referring to specifically was the stress being put on fisherman to buy and turn to items such as "ultra-light tackle" when for most has no place.

Still another thought: There are tackle companies springing up every day whose main purpose seems to be sell one any "fool thing" they can talk a fisherman into buying instead of lending him a hand in finding products that he can enjoy and use with success. Usually such firms will fade from the scene eventually, but the sad truth is, my friend wrote, twice as many more seem to spring up to dog and bilk the gullible at every turn.

And still another thought: Begin ners in particular almost invariable believe that lures which are true imitations of the real thing that bass feed on should catch the most fish, says my friend, "Owing to the sort of poor vision fish have, the exact contrary is true." Size and action and color are the things that matter in a lure and fill your stringer.

No fisherman can judge a lure by simply looking at it. Whatever its merits or demerits, only tests can tell if it is a great fish-catcher or a nonproducer. Fish do not have minds that compare whith yours and mine, however there are times, you might think the fish is much smarter. So there's reason to believe they will react to a lure the same way you and I react to it when we see it. The only way you can tell if a lure will catch fish is to try one out--or take the word of someone you can trust who has tried it out.

And still another thought: Of the many lures appearing on the market today, a huge number are merely modifications of adaptations of old ones that have proved fish-catchers. Many that are new will not even be remembered in a few years-most likely. Some, like the artificial worms that embody new principles, can be excellent but are not the total answer to bass fishing. A bass may eat one up for a while and then refuse it. Bass are temperamental cusses and may want nothing you have to offer unless it is that old tooth-pocked wooden bait hidden away in some corner of your box you'd forgotten about. It takes experimentation to know just what a bass may go after--"use the noggin", in other words.

And the final thoughts: Follow the practice of many great bass fishermen and work the lures on the surtace---plunkers, chuggers, spinners--to start with and then go to the middepth and finally probe the bottom and holes.

As Tom Mann put it, "Bass, like people, have certain spots where they like to gather," and it is up to the fisherman to find where those spots are-if they are to catch anything.

Finally: Fishing and exploring our Texas lakes and streams and catching and releasing fish can be an exciting adventure. It always has been for me and it is hoped that in the years to come it will be for many of our readers. Good luck on your fising ventures in the year 1981. Surely, this new year can't be as tough on Texas lakes as

Kings rap Sabres, 5-2

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - The Los Angeles Kings, sparked by a goal and two assists from right wing Mike Murphy and the goaltending of rookie Doug Keans, blasted the Buffalo Sabres 5-2 Wednesday night in a clash of National Hockey League division leaders. Rebounding from a shutout in Montreal the Tuesday night, the Kings got goals from Murphy, defensemen Larry Murphy and Jay Wells to blow the game open. Not until the third period did the line of Charlie Simmer, Marcel Dionne and Dave Taylor, which had accounted for 89 of 156 Los Angeles goals before the game, figure in the scoring. Dionne got his 28th goal of the season late in the game on a pass from Simmer.

Buffalo made it 3-1 with about 11/2 minutes left in the first period when Derek Smith beat Keans, who was starting his third game of the season and 13th in the NHL. Smith also scored the last goal of the game with about eight minutes

CHICAGO (AP) - Veteran winger Don Marcotte scored two secondperiod goals in a span of two-minutes and 35 seconds to lead the Boston Bruins to a 4-2 National Hockey League victory over the slumping Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night.

Marcotte, now is his 13th season with the Bruins and who missed 48 games last season with a damaged right knee, enabled Boston to forge a 2-2 tie with his first goal of the night and seventh of the season. Moments later, a shot by Michael Connell glanced off Marcotte's skate and into the net, putting the Bruins ahead 3-2.

Boston's Wayne Cashman, another 13-year veteran who missed 36 games last year with an injured left knee, put the game out of reach with his 13th goal of the season midway through the third period on a power

Boston rookie Steve Kasper gave his team a 1-0 lead early in the first period with his season's 12th period. But the Hawks struck early in the second period on goals by Tom Lysiak and former Bruin Al Secord. For Lysiak, it was his 11th goal and came after teammate Miles Zaharko blasted a 50-footer from the left point, the puck bouncing off Lysiak's skate past Boston goalie Jim Craig.

Real estate? Buy, sell, faster, better. WANT ADS. 682-6222 Minnesota faces tough Eagles in Saturday contest

By The Associated Press The Minnesota Vikings, the Super Bowl's only four-time losers, take their first step Saturday on a possible journey to victory No.1 when they open their National Football League

But it won't be easy. The first stop is Philadelphia, where the Eagles mauled them 42-7 on the second Sunday of the regular season. Wilbert Montgomery ran for 169 yards and two touchdowns and Ron Jaworski passed for two TDs in that rout. That lambasting snapped a string of seven consecutive victories by the Vikings

In those early days of the 1980 season, the Vikings were being ignored as a playoff contender. Between the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the National Conference's Central Division champions, and the emerging Detroit Lions, nobody was giving the Vikes much of a chance.

BUT THAT didn't faze them. With Tommy Kramer passing for 3,582 yards - second only to Archie Manning of the New Orleans Saints - and with Ahmad Rashad catching 69 passes (fourth in the NFC) for 1,095 yards (second in the conference), the Vikings turned themselves around, winning six of their last eight games and regaining the division title they had won for six consecutive seasons before relinquishing it to the Bucs a

In that span, they lost Super Bowl VIII to Miami 24-7; lost Super Bowl IX to Pittsburgh 16-6, and lost Super Bowl XI to Oakland 32-14. Oh, yes, they also lost Super Bowl IV to Kansas City 23-7 after the 1969 season, before the American Football League became the American Conference.

SATURDAY'S OTHER second round playoff game, in the American Conference, sends the Buffalo Bills to San Diego to face the high-powered Chargers. On Sunday in the NFC it's the Dallas Cowboys, fresh from their 34-13 wild-card thrashing of Los Angeles, heading into Atlanta to face the Falcons. In the AFC it's the Oakland Raiders, coming off a 27-7 pounding of Houston, taking on the Browns in Cleveland. The Raiders' romp was instrumental in costing Oilers' Coach Bum Phillips his job.

Heavy debt and the housing industry slump have forced GAF Corp. to put eight of its busin-esses — including plants that manufacture the famous View-Master stereoscopic viewer - up for sale, company officials

The businesses to be offered for sale are flooring, pictorial products, vinyl siding, reprographics (copying) and photographic graphic arts businesses, paper and millboard, automotive mastics, and classical music radio station WNCN in New York. The businesses have net assets of $400 million and accounted for approxi-mately $525 million of GAF's total 1979 sales of "The high cost of money has made our short term debt inordinately expensive," Werner said. GAF's debt-capital ratio stands at 45 percent. In addition, GAF reported in October that building materials profits fell 45 percent on a sales decline of 3.2 percent. This was blamed on the slowdown in the building industry. We're trading in these little stamps for some big values.

It makes a lot of sense.

Wouldn't you rather see lower prices and bigger savings every day at Furr's than to continue to pay for trading stamps? # Estimated 1.5 million Americans cured of cancer no apology for his lecture

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the talk about the progress being made in the treatment of cancer, can you tell me how many Americans now alive can be said to have been cured of the disease? — Dave

Dear Dave: It is estimated that there are 1.5 million Americans alive today who have been cured of cancer. In most of these cases, the common denominator was early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Occasionally you have written about specific types of personalities in your discussion of susceptibility to heart attacks. Do people who get migraine headaches also have distinctive personalities? — Mr. B.R.

Dear Mr. R.: In attempting to categorize migraine-prone individuals, it is well to bear in mind that not all patients who suffer from migraine share the same personality traits; conversely, many people who may be said to have a miraine personality never experience these headaches.

Yet, some generalizations about migraine patients can be made.

Dr. Arnold P. Friedman of Neurological Associates of Tucson says that migraine patients have difficulty in handling aggressive energy. He or she is an intense, striving, orderly person, overtly conscientious and meticulous in performance. Additionally, these patients have a tendency to become involved in a mass of details, and are very exacting in what they complaint, and I wonder if there is any truth to it. I know it doesn't affect everyone the same way because my weight has remained the same over a period of several years. — Doug.

Dear Doug: If your girlfriend is putting on weight, it's probably because she's eating more and/or exercising less. Some marijuana smokers tend to eat much more while smoking than they ordinarily do; it is the added intake of calories, not any ingredient in the marijuana, that accounts for the gain in weight. Another possibility is that the use of marijuana is interfering with more active pursuits, and she is therefore not burning off as many calories as she ordinarily would.

Physicians at the National Institute of Mental Health used tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), the most psychoactive ingredient in marijuana, on 11 patients with anorexia nervosa. As you may know, this is a serious condition marked by severe loss of appetite. THC was no more effective with these patients than a placebo in helping them gain weight. Morever, three of the 11 patients had severe emotional reactions to the THC.

I suggest that if your girlfriend is concerned about her weight, she get off the pot and into tennis, walking, swimming, or some similar activity. More careful attention to her diet may also be in order.

I would like to wish my readers a very healthy and happy New Year.

Chief justice says he owes

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)— West Virginia Chief Justice Richard Neely says he has no apologies for a lecture to magistrates on judicial ethics that drew cries of outrage from some listeners. "You can't operate as if you're living in some kind of ivory tower,"

Neely said Tuesday.

During a training session video-taped by the Supreme Court and made public recently, the chief justice told the magistrates in some basic street talk to stay away from women and liquor. He cautioned them in explicit language not to have sex with "13-yearold girls."

He also said magistrates should stay out of the "whorehouse busi-ness" and avoid bars that are "glorified dens for the sale of drugs, the drinking of moonshine and the generation of prostitution."

Peter Dougherty, president of the state magistrates' association, called the chief justice's advice "unbelievable." He said his group had asked the Supreme Court to offer a "nuts and bolts" course on judicial ethics, but didn't expect what it received. Dougherty added that the talk was objectionable to many "good Christian people."

Reached Tuesday while vacationing in Florida, Neely said he had been unaware of the flap over his ethics talk, but said he doubted "that anybody heard anything they haven't heard before."

He said there are many good magis-trates, but that his attempts to reform the system have angered an en-

"The reference to a 13-year-old girl was admittedly exaggerated," he said. "But the danger of running around with younger women is definitely not exaggerated."

HOLLYWOOD - Kenny Rogers. Diana Ross and Pink Floyd topped the U.S. pop charts during 1980.

That part of this look at music tastes during the last 12 months was easy. All you need to do was check the year-end tabulations by the nation's three leading record trade publica-

The next step in discussing 1980 pop tastes should also be easy, right? Anyone who listened much to the radio or noticed what was happening in the clubs could see that disco was out and country music was in.

Yes and no. Disco certainly declined in popularty this year. Six of the 10 records on Billboard magazine's list of best-selling singles in 1979 were disco-oriented. That number dropped to one hardcore disco effort this year.

And country music sales increased dramatically. Still, country didn't begin to approach the chart domination that disco enjoyed during the late 1970s. Only two country-tinged records made Billboard's year-end Top 0: Kenny Rogers' "Don't Fall in Love With a Dreamer" (a duet with Kim Carnes) and "Coward of the County. American's may have traded their disco duds in on cowboy boots and hats, but record-buyers continued to favor the same pop-rock mainstream that has dominated pop music sales since the early 1970s.

The real trend in recent years is the maturing of the rock audience. Just as the age of the average American is getting older, the age of the average record-buyer is also advancing. That was underscored by a Warner Communications Inc. study that showed the 25-to-44-year-old group buying 44 percent of the nation's records in 1979, compared to 41 percent for the 10-to-24 age group. That's a dramatic change from 1977 when the younger group lead, 45 percent to 38 percent.

Because the record industry's target adience is now older, we hear few of the teen novelty hits that flooded the airways in the 1950s and 1960s. We not only have a big increase in the amount of easy-listening music on the radio, but the tone of rock now is more

Instead of pop and rock being made chiefly by people in their early 20s for fans in their mid-teens, it is now made mostly by people in their late 20s and 30s for an audience that extends into the early 40s.

With older pop-rock fans less concerned than their teen counterparts with finding new voices or spokesmen, the change in the record-buying demographics has added substantially to the commercial lifespan of artists. Among them, three front-runners in this year's sales derby -Rogers, Ross and Pink Floyd - have been recording for nearly 40 years.

No one dominated pop music sales in 1980 the way the Bee Gees did in 1978 or Donna Summers did in 1979, but Kenny Rogers and Pink Floyd both finished strongly in the three year-end trade magazines roundeasy-listening and country music, was declared to be the most successful male ablum seller by Billboard, Cash Box and Record World, though Billy Joel shared the top spot with Rogers in Record World's ranking.

Rogers, whose style is equal parts

Pink Floyd, a British band that has rock that it occupied in the late 1960s to a rather conservative end of the field, was also named the most popular group of all three trades.

Diana Ross' victory was less conclusive. Though named the leading female album seller by Cash Box and Record World, she had to share first place in Record World with Barbra Streisand, Billboard cited Donna Summer.

The surveys come up with different findings because each magazine has its own system for measuring sales performance. By presenting results from each publication, we should get a reasonably accurate picture of public tastes during 1980.

Year-end best sellers like John Lennon's and Yoko Ono's "Double Fantasy" and Bruce Springstreen's "The River" were released after the close of the magazines' tabulation period so their popularity will be reflected in next year's reports.

Rogers' strong showing was even more impressive when you consider it was achieved without relying on his new "Greatest Hits" album or his "Lady" single. Both records reached Diana Ross was trailed by Linda Ronstadt, Barbra Streisand, Donna Summer and Pat Benatar. Pink Floyd's competition included the Eagles, Queen, The Rolling Stones and Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers.

In the singles category, Rogers was trailed in Record World by Chris-topher Cross, Billy Joel, Michael Jackson and Robbie Dupree. Behind Ross were Olivia Newton-John, Donna Summer, Barbra Streisand and Bette Midler. Queen finished first in the male group category, followed by Air Supply, Pink Floyd, the Spinners and the Electric Light Orchestra. # Soft-spoken ex-convict, 21, displays impressive skills

By VERN ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - James Hydrick moves pencils by pointing at them, catches deer with his bare hands and blocks punches and finds objects while blindfolded.

But there's more to the gentle 21year-old ex-con than a bag of eye-popping parlor tricks. His mind-overmatter skills are indeed amazing, but his odyssey from discarded infant to master of martial arts is downright

Hydrick arrived in Salt Lake last summer to set up a martial arts school based on his knowledge of Wushu Gung Fu, an ancient Chinese discipline aimed at achieving complete mental and physical self con-

Hydrick has, at various times and always in the presence of reporters, done the following:

-Turned pages of telephone books from 10 feet away and moved pens, pencils, plants and other objects by giving them hard stares.

-Blocked punches and found hidden coins or car keys while blindfold--Walked blindfolded down a line of

-Sneaked up on deer at night and grabbed them around the neck. -Demonstrated a level of martial arts judged by experts to be, well,

But until he spoke with The Associated Press recently, he chose to keep his true origins secret because "they didn't fit what I've become. It's painful as all hell to me."

To avoid dredging up his emotionally scarred past, Hydrick put out a cover story to explain his amazing skills - essentially that he had trained in Tibet at the feet of a high

More than once in the AP interview, Hydrick became agitated and asked to terminate the session rather than answer questions about his youth. Finally he gave in. He supplied a sheaf of documents - mostly reports from state institutions and psychiatrists supporting his tale.

Hydrick was born in Passaic, N.J., to a drug addict mother and bar bouncer father. Deserted by his mother, he spent his boyhood in a succession of orphanages, foster homes and state institutions in Georgia and

South Carolina, where he was termed an incorrigible discipline problem.

In 1969, at age 10, Hydrick began a six-year stint at Whitten Village, an institution run by the South Carolina Department of Mental Retardation. A teacher there wrote that the boy's 'interest span is short unless the subject deals with magic or outer space.

In December 1975, Hydrick was discharged to the care of his father and stepmother. He left home after a final domestic blowup and, at the age of 16, found himself wandering along the Savannah River south of Augusta, That's where he says he met Wong Chung Wu, a white-haired refugee from China who changed his life.

No documents exist to back up the next part of his story.

Hydrick claims he stayed a year with the old man, purportedly a Tibetan high priest before the Communist takeover in 1949.

"He taught me to levitate, fight blindfolded. He taught me about hate, fear and love," Hydrick says in a soft drawl. "He said I reminded him of a little lost animal in a new jungle." Which, Hydrick says, is what he Hydrick eventually left his mentor and while hitchhiking in California in December 1977 caught a ride in a van. Police later stopped the van and arrested its occupants, including Hydrick, on charges of kidnapping and robbing two men before dumping them along the highway.

Flavoring agent linked to cancer

By PAUL JACOBS
The Los Angeles Times

A chemical used to give a black-cherry or grape flavor to a large variety of artificially flavored food products has been found to cause cancer in laboratory mice and rats in tests sponsored by the National Cancer Institute.

The results of the animal study, published in Tuesday's Federal Register, mean that the chemical — cinnamly anthranilate — has been added to a growing list of substances tha may be capable of causing cancer in humans.

Small amounts of the flavoring agent have been used since the 1940s in imitation grape or cherry beverages, ice cream, baked goods, candy, gelatins, puddings and chewing gum, according to the cancer institute. In somewhat larger amounts, the same chemical is used to add to the fragrance of soaps, detergents, creams, lotions and perfumes.

The Food and Drug Administration is now looking at the results of the cancer institute study to determine whether cinnamly anthranilate should be banned from the nation's food supply, according to Adele Dennis with FDA's Bureau of Foods.

If such a ban were to go into effect, it would have little effect on the nation's manufacturers of flavoring agents, according to Daniel Thompson, executive secretary of the Flavor and Extract Manufacturers Association.

Thompson said that the chemical is one of several ingredients that go into the creation of an artificial grape or cherry flavor.

"Some flavor chemists say they don't use it; others say it is very important, (that they) use a small amount of it," he said. "Clearly the average consumer is not going to know it (cinnamyl anthranilate) is removed completely."

Thompson said representatives of his association, which includes a majority of the country's flavor manufacturers, would sit down with the FDA in the next few months to discuss the latest findings.

If the cancer institute study appears valid, the association's members would voluntarily stop using the substance, Thompson said.

The cancer institute report states that a ton of the chemical was consumed in the United States in 1979. Thompson places the annual figure lower, between 500 and 600 pounds.

But with cinnamyl anthranilate, a little goes a long way: the amount of the substance used in different products varies from 2 to 730 parts per million — in all cases a very small fraction of 1 percent of the total contents of the food or beverage.

The laboratory animals were exposed to much higher doses of the chemical by comparison. The chemical made up between 1.5 percent and 3 percent of the animals' food supply over a two-year period.

The cancer institute's toxicology program operates on the widely held assumption that if cancer shows up in a significant number of cases at such high doses.

But the technique does not allow scientists to predict with certainty how many human cancers, if any, might result from present levels of consumption.

At the highest doses used in the animal studies, the cancer institute found that 80 percent of the male mice and close to 70 percent of the female mice contracted liver cancer.

The high doses of cinnamyl anthranilate also caused increases in tumors of th3 kidnesy and pancreas in male rats.

Atlanta will use grant for its Underground

ATLANTA (AP) — A $1.7 million federal grant will be used as seed money in a possible $8 million plan to rejuvenate Underground Atlanta, according to the president of the complex's merchants' association.

The federal money would be used to attract $4.5 million to $6.2 million in private funding to be used to buy the buildings in which the entertainment and shopping complex is located, said Dante Stephenson, owner of one of the restaurants in Underground.

Underground Atlanta opened in 1969 in the first floors of 19th century buildings buried when viaducts were built early this century to carry street traffic over the area's railroad tracks. It is fighting for its survival because of mass transit construction, dwindling crowds and a summer fire which destroyed five of the 25 businesses.

The $1.7 million, which will be paid because of the mass transit construction, will be used for facade renovations, sidewalk repairs and improved security, city and Underground officials said Monday.

Calling 1981 the "make or break" year, Underground officials said they hoped the grant would convince banks to issue loans enabling them to pur-

Construction of the Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid on the north side of Underground, making the area eligible for the federal transportation grant.

After opening, Underground became the place to drink, dine and shop in Atlanta, drawing as many as 3.5 million visitors a year to its 76 shops and restaurants in the ealy 1970s. But its popularity decreased, the MARTA construction started and drunks and panhandlers found Underground a warm place to hang out.

Seminar set for Reagan Cabinet

By DAVID S. BRODER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President-elect Ronald Reagan will hold the first meeting of his almost-complete Cabinet when he comes to Washington next week, transition officials announced Tuesday.

Reagan and Vice President-elect George Bush will lead off a two-day "policy executive seminar" for the members of the Reagan Cabinet. The two-day seminar was scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, but transition officials said last evening that it may be shifted to Thursday and Friday to avoid conflicts with Senate confirmation hearings scheduled for several of the nominees.

Reagan has not named his choices for secretary of education or the Cabinet-level special trade representative, but officials said those individuals will join the session if, as expected, they have been named by that time.

Meanwhile, it was learned that an effort is under way to plot a detailed schedule of actions and decisions for Reagan's first 90 days as president, to take maximum advantage of the new president's leadership opportunities. Suggestions from a variety of sources are being coordinated by Richard B. Wirthlin, his campaign pollster, and by David R. Gergen, deputy director of the White House transition team. Options for Reagan's first weeks may be discussed at the Cabinet session.

According to transition spokesman Jim Brady and Dennis Whitfield, the staff assistant planning the two-day meeting, emphasis will be on the operations of government rather than on the new administration's policy initiatives. Nonetheless, the sessions will provide the first opportunity for the entire group to exchange views informally of the opening moves Reagan should make.

In separate news conferences, Cabinet appointees have been arguing the merits of a declaration of a "national economic emergency" and other policy questions that will confront the new president. Reagan has said he hopes to use the Cabinet as the forum for threshing out such issues.

The main work of the two-day session will be a detailed discussion of the structure of the new administration and some of its basic operating procedures. After Reagan and Bush have outlined their own roles, the two senior White House staff members, Edwin H. Meese III and James A. Baker III, will lead a discussion of the presidential staff functions and the workings of the executive office of the president.

Presentations on congressional liaison, press relations and the coordination of Cabinet work will be made by staff specialists in those fields, Whitfield

The second day of the briefing will focus on a number of technical areas, including conflict-of-interest regulations, privacy and freedom of informa-

Congress.

There will be particular emphasis, Whitfield said, on the role of the Office of Personnel Management and the Senior Executive Service — the top echelon of the bureaucracy — as well as discussion of basic congressional legislative and appropriation procedures and the role of the courts as a monitor of executive decisions.

"It is kind of an introduction to government,"
Whitfield said.

Machine may save gene splicing time

Buyers look for motorcycles in the WANT ADS. Dial 682-6222

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Genetic research could be on the verge of an explosion with the development of a computerized machine that promises to cut out months of preliminary work in gene splicing, scientists say.

The complex work of gene splicing, in which human genes are implanted in bacteria to make such products as human insulin or interferon, a possible cancer weapon, has so far been limited to a small group of experts

If the new machine works the way its developers say it should, thousands more scientists would be able to do genetic research, says Dr. John Baxter, a researcher at the University of California at San Francisco, one of the world's leading genetic research centers. And commercial production should also be speeded up.

The research is moderately easy now, but there aren't that many people trained in it," said Baxter. "If there are machines available, a lot more people will be able to do this research.

Several companies are preparing to introduce gene-splicing machines, according to BioEngineering News, an industry newsletter published in San Francisco.

One of the companies, Vega Biochemicals of Tucson, Ariz., told The Associated Press it had intended to make public the availability of its 'gene machine" next week.

The task of snipping and recombining genes involves the painstaking repetition of complicated laboratory tasks, according to biochemist Howard Goodman, also of the University of California at San Francis-

'Anything you can do by adding one thing to another over and over again is ripe for automation," Goodman said.

FBI looking into lens dealings

Contact makers' relations with FDA probed

By JOHN F. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In 1976, two small manufacturers of soft contact lens products initiated a mutually beneficial business transaction which, in a matter of about four years, helped make the companies and their founders millions of dollars.

But in order to work, the business deal needed a helping hand from a third party - the Food and Drug Administration. Now questions raised in Congress and by others in the soft lens industry about the role of the FDA in this and other financial deals have attracted the interest of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, according to congressional sources. Sources say that among the subjects under investigation by the FBI is possible criminal conduct by the companies and possible complicity by two FDA

At the center of the controversy is Mary Bruch, a 50-year-old microbiologist in the FDA's Bureau of Anti-Infective Drugs who from 1974 through 1978 was the self-appointed arbiter of which companies were licensed to sell their soft contact lenses and clensing solutions to the public. But as a direct result of lenses.

Figure 1 in the revelation of the following industry. But as a direct result of Bruch's decisions at FDA, the Manfusos' company for several years enjoyed a virtual monopoly in the manufacturing and marketing of various cleansing and purifying solutions that must be used by wearers of soft contact lenses. In one of Bruch's most controversial decisions based on highly questionable scientific evidence supplied by Scafidi, she caused salt tablets - used with heat to disinfect contact lenses - to be removed from the market in 1978. For Burton, Parsons, the decision was a boor because soft lens users were left with little alternative except to buy its products.

LAST JULY, during a one-day hearing before the House subcommittee on oversight and investiga tions, then-acting chairman Albert Gore Jr., D Tenn., grilled Bruch about why she caused salt tablets to be removed from the market, forcing consumers to buy the more expensive prepared solutions manufactured by Burton, Parsons. Gore claimed that the growing numbers of soft lens wearers had to pay a total of an extra $200 million to buy the prepard solutions rather than the salt tab

Bruch, a persuasive witness, responded that she was concerned that if salt tablets were used impro perly, they could result in serious eye infections.

During the hearing, Scafidi invoked the Privac Act and a faulty memory in refusing to document hi findings concerning some 200 cases of adverse reac tions allegedly suffered by users of rinsing solution prepared with salt tablets. These findings, which Scafidi presented to the National Registry on Ocula Side Effects, had been cited as justification for the FDA having removed the salt tablets from the market. According to congressional testimony, the FBI is investigating the legitimacy of Scafidi'

The FBI is also interested in the role played by FDA officials in the lucrative 1976 business dea between Burton, Parsons and Soft Lenses Inc. Thi transaction came to the FBI's attention when an other company, Automated Optics Inc., of Clear water, Fla., complained to Rep. Gore's committee of getting unfair treatment before the FDA.

At a Dec. 12 hearing to review Automated Optics omplaint and to pursue further the salt table controversy, Gore disclosed that the FBI and the S. Attorney's office in Baltimore, whose area includes Burton, Parson's headquarters in Sea Pleasant, were teaming up in the investigation.

BRIEFLY STATED, Automated Optics in its testi mony questioned why the FDA's Bureau of Anti-In fective Drugs apparently did not apply the same standards to Soft Lenses Inc. that it did to other The events leading up to Automated Optics com

U.S. criticizes Japan

WASHINGTON - The United States, in unusually strong criticism of its senior ally in Asia, Tuesday called Japan's new military budget disappointing, inadequate and tinged with a complacency that is unjustified in a troubled world.

Beyond the carefully crafted but stiff public pronouncements, knowledgeable officials expressed private dismay at the budgetary news from Tokyo. The officials said the Japanese decision is likely to set the stage for serious conflict with the incoming Reagan administration and with elements of Congress and the public that have charged Japan with taking a "free ride" in the military sphere.

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, who has strongly urged a substantial Japanese military increase for about a year, said in a statement that the proposed 7.6 percent budgetary increase "is so modest that it conveys a sense of complacency that is not justified by the facts."

Brown said the increase "falls seriously short" by a number of measurements, including that of "equitable burden-sharing" among free nations.

The State Department, in a separate statement, said "the Japanese decision must be considered disappointing, whether one measures these defense spending figures against the target set by Japanese defense officials earlier this year, or against the requirements of equity in distributing the burdens of mutual security among the advanced industrial de-

Although Japan's defense decision had been hotly and openly contested in Tokyo for several months, Washington officials said there was little warning that the budgetary increases would be as small as they were, well below sums that had been expected. One closely informed State Department official, for example, said he had been "dumbfounded" at the official news from Tokyo.

The projected budgetary increase of 7.6 percent includes about 2.2 percent in pay raises that had been expected to be considered separately, U.S. officials said. The resulting non-personnel rise of about 5.4 percent is likely to be less than 4 percent when adjusted for inflation, according to preliminary U.S.

The State Department statement said that, when adjusted for inflation, the Japanese military increase will be "significantly less than our own despite the much smaller base of Japanese defense

In a discussion that began on a Brown trip to Asia last January, shortly after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the United States publicly and privately urged a "steady and significant increase" in Japanese military spending, currently among the lowest of any leading industrial nation.

Following further discussions last spring, the Japanese Ministry of Finance established a tentative military budget target of a 9.7 percent increase to the Japan Defense Agency. U.S. officials said they were led to believe that rising personnel costs would be tacked on to this, making the actual defense boost well over 10 percent in nominal terms.

These figures were less than Washington thought was needed under the circumstances, but were accepted in public and private talk as the minimum necessary increase, according to the U.S. sources. The Carter administration was dismayed, as well as surprised, to find the actual Japanese figures well below these estimates.

The core of the U.S. argument is that Japan, with the world's third-largest economy, can well afford more than its very modest post-World War II defense effort. Japanese officials have argued that their country must proceed cautiously because of the anti-military feeling and constitution that followed defeat in World War II, and because of budgetary boredom of grammar State University, put it purpose.

Here is a simple test of technique from the recent Caransa-Philip Morris team tournament held at the Hilton Hotel in Amsterdam.

Assume that you become declarer at four spades after the excellent auction shown. Your two club bid was Stayman, asking partner to bid a major suit if he had one. By CHET CURRIER

AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market managed a small gain Wednesday in the final session of its best year since 1976 and its busiest year ever.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 1.96 to 963.99, closing out 1980 with a gain of 125.25 points, or 14.9 percent.

That marked its largest annual gain since it climbed 152.24 points, or 17.9 percent, four years before. New York Stock Exchange volume totaled 41.21 million shares, up from 39.75 million Tuesday. For the year, Big Board volume reached 11.35 billion shares, far surpassing the previous record of 8.16 billion set in 1979. In a continuation of the pattern of at 77.86 on Wednesday, recorded a 25.7 percent advance for the year. The American Stock Exchange market value index, off .55 at 348.99 Wednesday, closed out 1980 with a net gain of 101.92, or 41.25 percent.

Federal National Mortgage led Wednesday's most-active list, off 1/4 at 11% as of the 4 p.m. close in New York. A 520,000-share block traded early in the session at 11%.

International Business Machines, also active, dropped ¾ to 67%. The company announced plans to begin issuing new shares for its employee stock purchase plan, rather than continuing its present practice of buying existing shares in the open market.

Drug stocks, one of the market's strongest groups in the two previous sessions, were mostly higher again. Merck picked up 11/4 to 841/4; Upjohn 1/4 to 671/2; Pfizer 1/4 to 531/2, and Marion Laboratories 11/4 to 191/4. But Smithkline slipped 1/2 to 80. Standard & Poor's index of 400 in-

MC to resume registration on Monday

When Midland College resumes its spring semester pre-registration Monday, the college will be heading for another record if advance accounts are an indication.

More than 1,150 students had preregistered when the college closed Dec. 19 for the Christmas holidays. This is about 100 more than had preregistered during the same period in Pre-registration is slated to continue weekdays from Jan. 5 through Jan. 13 in the Office of Student Services, Administration Building, with hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. including the noon hour. During this period, students and prospective students also may receive early counseling regarding their class schedules, future college plans, graduation intent and course loads Career counseling also is available from the MC counseling staff without charge.

"We urge all prospective students to pre-register as early as possible," said registrar Dee Windsor. "This cuts down on the time required for students to register, since we will have all the necessary paperwork already completed. 'Students will receive time permits in the order in which they pre-registered, assigning them a specific time to report for registration.

Spring semester registration is slated for Jan. 14-15, with orientation for new students taking place on Jan. 16. Classes for both daytime and evening students begin Jan. 19.

Additional information regarding courses being offered, time of classes, and requirements to enroll may be obtained by visting the Office of Student Services or by calling 684-7851, extension 166 or 228.

White House to suggest full interstate banking

NEW YORK (AP) - The Carter administration will recommend next week that Congress permit banks to provide full banking services across state lines, The New York Times reported today.

The recommendation was contained in a report prepared by Orin Kramer, associate director of the White House domestic policy staff, and approved by the president, the Times reported.

When contacted in Washington, Kramer declined to comment on the Times report.

The issue of interstate banking had been under study by the White House for two years. Current federal law generally prohibits banks from con-ducting full-scale banking operations outside their home states. Many smaller banks are expected to contest vigorously any change in present banking laws as a serious threat to their profitability. But the report contends that interstate banking could improve competitive conditions in local markets and would not raise significantly the risk of undue concentration of economic power." Kramer had said earlier that the administration was reluctant to introduce the report until now because it feared it would create a logjam of banking bills. In March, Congress passed a bill that created major reforms in the financial industry. "The administration regards existing geographic limitations as anachronistic in the competitive marketplace of the 1980s," the Times quoted the report as saying. The newspaper said it had obtained a copy of the report's 40-page introduction and

Under the Carter administration plan, interstate banking would be phased in over a period of time.

The first step, the Times quotes the study as saying, would be a change in the Douglas Amendment of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956. The law, named for the late Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D.-Ill., prohibits bank holding companies from acquiring out-ofstate banks unless laws of the host state specifically allow them to.

In subsequent stages, unlimited interstate banking might be allowed in such areas for federally chartered institutions, the report said. At present, interstate branching is prohibited by the McFadden Act, which became law in 1934. The report also recommends that states should ease their own intrastate banking rules. Some states, such as Illinois, allow no branching even within the state. The report adds that it is "critically important" that Congress pass a law already under consideration that would permit domestic banks to acquire financially troubled banks in Congress ordered the administration report when it passed the International Banking Act in September 1978. That act asked the president to present the report to Congress by September 1979.

Keeping up with inflation depends on marital status

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) - Keeping up with inflation during the 1970s depended more on marital status and family size than on job loss or promotion, accorsing to a Cornell University

A declining birth helped two-thirds of the 5,000 American families surveyed during the decade to overcome inflation, consumer economist Greg Duncan said Tuesday. 'By far, the greatest single factor affecting a family's economic status in the 1970s was a change in its composition," said Duncan, a visiting professor from the University of Michigan at Cornell's New York State College of Human Ecology

The study which Duncan helped conduct showed that more than half the families examined were able to keep their incomes growing faster than inflation between 1971 and 1978. When their incomes were adjusted for family size, he said, more than twothirds were successful "It may seem surprisining that so many families appeared to keep their heads above water, but the 1970s were a time of modest economic growth, coupled with low birth rates and a period when most of the "baby boom" children left home," Duncan said 'The reduced needs left many families in a position to cope with inflation more easily."

Duncan predicted that American families will have about the same rate of success in the 1980s. The study, funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and the National Science Foundation, was conducted at the University of Michigan and released by Cornell University. The study also indicated that, while one in four families experienced poverty during the decade, only one-tenth of the families remained poor throughout the period. 'There is a tremendous turnover in the poverty population," Duncan said. "Only a little more than half of the poor families one year were poor the following year." Hardest hit by inflation were women who divorced during the decade, Duncan said. A third of the women who were married and living above the poverty level at the start of the decade wound up below the poverty level after a divorce, he added. And Duncan said fewer than half of the separated families received alimony or child support payments Among those that did, the average annual payment was less than $2,600 for whites and $1,500 for blacks, he

Coffee prices to drop

By The Associated Press

The nation's largest coffee roasters say their prices are going down. Hills Brothers Inc., the nation's third-largest roaster, said Tuesday it is lowering the wholesale price of coffee by 18 cents pound to $2.55. It also cut the price of 'High Yield" coffee by 15 cents per 13-ounce jar and reduced the price of instant coffee by a penny an ounce. Rosalind Reidy, a spokeswman for the San Francisco-based company, said the reductions matched cuts by General Foods Corp. and Procter & Gamble Co., the industry leaders. She said the cut resulted from continued reductions in the price of green coffee. In commodities market trading, the price of such coffee has fallen to $1.27 a pound. The reduction is the first since late October and continues a trend of declines that began in July after coffee climbed to $3.23 a pound.

It usually takes about a month for changes in the wholesale price of coffee to be reflected at the retail level. But retailers often sell coffee for less than its wholesale price to attract shoppers or because of promotions offered by roasters.

Firm to reduce terminal participation

By LYDIA CHAVEZ The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES - In a move that will delay the Point Conception liquified natural gas terminal for three years and possibly cut in half the scope of the project, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said Tuesday that it intends to reduce substantially its capital particiaption in the project.

PG&E's decision throws into question the project's future unless other investors can be found. While both PG&E and its partner said they are optimistic about finding outside financing, they admitted that discussions with other parties are only in preliminary stages.

PG&E and Pacific Lighting Corp., the parent company of Southern California Gas Co., are equal partners in the $3.2 billion project that was scheduled to provide 25 percent of the state's natural gas supply by late

lities in Alaska and tankers to carry the liquified gas to Point Conception, about 150 miles northwest of Los Angeles, as well as the California terminal facility - had been designed to bring up to 400 million cubic feet a day of natural gas from Southern Alaska and 500 million cubic feet daily from Indonesia.

Earlier complications had already put into doubt the necessary gas supplies from Indonesia, which has been considering counter offers for its fuel from Japanese customers.

PG&E said it would like to cut its particiaption in the $1.3 billion Alaskan part of the project to "little or nothing;;;;x officials said it would also like to reduce its financial obligations to build the Point Conception terminal if other investors can be

The companies which control gas supplies in the Cook Inlet region of Alaska include Standard Oil of California, Atlantic Richfield Corp., Union Oil, Shell Oil, Marathon Oil and Phillips Petroleum. Those firms are anxious to sell their gas and presumably want the project completed so they can deliver fuel too prospective

Sproul said PG&E made its decision to look for other companies to participate in the LNG project because of "competing (energy supply) projects" that require substantial amounts of the company's capital.

The project, which still has to receive approval on its seismic safety from the state and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, has been plagued with delays since it

Get ready America, here comes that Reaganwear

By PETE EARLEY 1980, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Ready or not, America, here it comes! Ronald Rea-

Forget cowboy chic. Patriotic red and blue ties with R-B initials (for Reagan-Bush) will be in style Jan. 20, Inauguration Day — along with silver tie-tack replicas of the presidential seal, match8ng gold cufflinks, designer scarves, Reagan umbrellas and nifty double-R tote bags.

They're all part of the bona-f8de, sanctified and certified commemorative collection of assorted Reagan inauguration paraphernalia unveiled by the 1981 Presidential Inauguration

At past inaugurals, only a handful of memorabilia was for sale and few items cost more than $200. Reagan's committee, however, has launched an ambitious merchandising program listing 44 items for sale - and has drafted big name entertainers, including Frank Sinatra, to hawk the collectibles.

Inaugural merchandise chairman Barry Zorthian, the Merchant Prince of the Reagan Era, believes his items can quench the demands of the most demanding connoisseur of R3agan regalia. There are Tiffany sterling silver trays, blue ice buckets, a Nancy Reagan porcelain rose by Boehm, gift books, and bald-eagle statues.

For $28, the committee even will sell you a splinter of wood from the platform where the 40th president will be sworn in. The wood, along with a $5 copper inaugural medal, will be en-

"W3 wanted to give people a wide range of items to choose from," explains Zorthian. "We al o want to raise money, a lot of money." Officials expect sales of memorabilia to raise $1 million. Reagan's inaugural is expected to cost from $6 million to

Within days, television viewers will be urged by Johnny Carson, Ed McMahon and Ol' Blue Eyes to order a 16-page catalogue from the Inaugural Committee, which autom$tically will mail sales information to about 400,000 Republican Party enthusi-

Sinatra, who has been plugging Chrysler this season, will hawk the committee's red, white, and blue inaugural license tags that sell for $25 and are valid until March 15, 1981. For $10 more, the committee will personalize the tag — as long as it's not too risque. So far, "We Won" is the raciest request.

Carson and McMahon will plug the committee's other big seller, the special inaugural medal, during their 30-second spots.

The entertainers did the commercials free of charge, and rather than buying air time, the committee is asking television stations to broadcast the commercials as public service announcements. In return, committee officials will write a letter to the Federal Communications Commission, telling the FCC that the station provided a needed public service to the committee. While the FCC considers public service announcements when renewing station's licenses, an FCC spokesman said letters from the inaugural committee would not carry

"any significant weight."

The medals bear a portrait of Reagan created by Utah sculptor Edward J. Fraughton, who used a plastercast, or life mask, of Reagan's face to mold an image which Zorthian claims Americans will either hate or love upon sight. The medals are available in cooper for $5; bronze, $25; fine silver, $95; proof silver, $275; and gold, $975. The committee also is selling a del7xe set of the medals for

The cheapest item for sale (besides the $5-copper medal) is an envelope postmarked Inauguration Day. It sells for $5 and will have a sketch of Reagan and Bush on it. The most expensive item is a limited edition bronze replica of Frederick Remington's sculpture, "The Mountain Man." Cost: $1,875.

"It really doesn't have anything to do with the inauguration," said Zorthian, "except the president has been a fan of Remington for a long time and we felt someone might want to buy the replicas." About a dozen of the 44 items, such as the license plates and medals, will be mass-produced. The exotic items, like a $600 crystal tetrahedron or six-inch Tiffany sterling silver tray at $550, will be produced upon demand, officials said. Most of the less expensive items will be available in Washington hotels and gift shops within two weeks, but few souvenir stands will be selling the inauguration merchandise, according to Ivan Scott, the committee's local merchandise coordinator, because the Reagan items are more expensive than buttons and

Non-Communist production plummeted to an average 45.1 million barrels a day for 1980 and ran well below this level late in the year. The 1980 average is 7.1 percent below the 1979

Sharpest declines were in member states of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, where total production fell far below last year's 30.6 million barrels a day. - World refining capacity rose 1.71 million barrels a day, or 2.2 percent, to 81.3 million barrels a day despite an overall world surplus of capacity and slumping demand for refined petroleum products.

Mexico was the standout performer among non-OPEC producers, raising oil production to more than 2 million barrels a day by year end from 1.7 million early in the year.

The non-Communist world's other expected big gainer, the North Sea, fizzled. The attention, they say, shows that Healy cares about them - no matter what else he may care about in the university.

This fall's class covered John Donne, the 17th century English poet who was the subject of Healy's work for a doctorate at Oxford University, and T.S. Eliot. It met Monday mornings in a room near his office called the Hall of Cardinals because of the portraits of 15 red-robed cardinals on its wood-paneled walls.

"IT'S A LITTLE bit intimidating at first," said one student. You get in there, and there are all those cardinals looking down at you. After a little while you get used to it. TO SOME CRITICS Healy spends too much time on fund-raising and attending dinners with politicians and well-known journalists, embassy parties, and shows at the Kennedy Center. He says this comes with the job of being a university president and helps gain attention and money for Georgetown. Its endowment of $60 millio is far less than that of most universities of similar reputation, such as Brown and Duke.

Healy also talks frequently about the divide in Washington between the city's powerful and its poor and has earmarked scholarship funds for low-income students from District of Columbia public schools.

Healy said he has sought to increase the enrollment of blacks at Georgetown, but they still number just 7 percent. "There's no doubt it should be higher," Healy said. "It is as high as we can afford (in financial aid). Ozona, k7,800, elev 2,438

Healy is a Jesuit and heads the nation's oldest Jesuit university, founded in 1789. He celebrates mass in a student dormitory almost every day. Yet last year he stirred substantial criticism among Catholics by ordering that references to the Trinity be dropped from prayers at gradution and other compulsory university

Healy's directive was assailed in the Catholic Standard, the newspaper of the Washington Archdiocese, and several other Catholic publications as a wrong-headed retreat from Georgetown's traditional Catholic identity. But Healy stuck to it, and the controversy subsided. He made it clear that the baccalaureate mass and all other Catholic religious services on campus about 65 a week - would continue unchanged. At other university functions that "are not of their nature Roman Catholic or anything else" Healy said the prayers should be ecumenical as "an act of courtesy" to the many non-Catholics expected to attend.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Archdiocese of Philadelphia must reimburse the city for the cost of erecting a platform on which Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass during his October 1979 visit here, a federal appeals court has ruled.

In upholding a lower court ruling, a panel of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals voted 2-1 on Tuesday to require the archdiocese "to reimburse the city $204,569 that the city unconstitutionally spent in support of Pope John Paul II's Mass at Logan Circle."

The expenditure was challenged in a suit filed in U.S. District Court by the American Civil Liberties Union and several citizens. The suit charged that spending public funds for the platform violated the constitutional requirement of separation of church and

The appeals court agreed, saying "the city's action created an impermissible establishment of religion."

"The religious effect was both plain and primary. The pope, admittedly on a pastoral mission to this country, was, with the aid of a magnificent setting provided by the city, able to celebrate a Mass and deliver a sermon," the ruling said.

'The city thus created a temporary shrine. Such activity is not compatible with the Constitu-

Officials of the archdiocese, which agreed to pay the platform costs if the city lost the suit, were unavailable for comment. City officials also were unavailable for comment Tuesday

City attorneys had argued that the platform, encircled with approximately $50,000 worth of flowers and shrubbery, was set up in the public interest so large crowds could view a visiting dig-

The city also asserted that by paying for the platform, it could create a "public relations bonanza," giving Philadelphia extensive favorable publicity

The court's majority opinion was written by Circuit Judge Max Rosenn and supported by Judge Leonard Garth.

Col. Sanders left less than $1.5 million

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - The will of Col. Harland Sanders, founder of Kentucky Fried Chicken and donor of millions to charity, shows he left an estate of less than $1.5 million.

Documents filed Monday in Shelby County, Ky. District Court show the bulk of the estate will go into a trust, with Citizens Fidelity Bank and Trust Co. of Louisville as executor and trustee.

The beneficiaries of the trust were not named in the papers filed, said John Cox, a Kentucky Fried Chicken spokes-

Sanders, who died Dec. 16 at the age of 90, made four individual bequests in addition to the money put in trust, Cox said.

He left a watch to one grandson and a Masonic ring to another grand-

He left $2,000 to Louis Broadus of Richmond, Ky., a Kentucky Fried Chicken franchise holder and longtime friend, Cox

And he left $5,000 to Harland Williams of Nashville, Tenn., who was the son of a longtime friend and who was named after Sanders, Cox said.

Cox said the estate could actually be far less than $1.5 million, because $1,187,557 of the amount is the estimated value of "personal property of unknown value' such as notes and accounts receivable listed with "value undetermined." Sanders also left his home and 31-acre farm in Shelby County, valued at $159,800; a $100,000 certificate of deposit; a 1974 Cadillac valued at $3,500 and 38 shares of Heublein stock with a market value of $185.

Everything he does is wonderful!

Then He left Galilee and went to the region of Tyre and Sidon, and tried to keep it a secret that He was there, but couldn't. For as usual the news of His arrival spread fast, Right away a woman came to Him whose little girl was possessed by a demon. She had heard about Jesus and now she came and fell at His feet. And pled with ilim to release her child from the demon's control. But she was Syrophoenician, Jesus told her, "First I should help My own family-the Jews. It isn't right to take the children's food and throw it to the dogs."

She replied, "That's true sir, but even the puppies under the table are given some scraps from the children's plates.

"Good!" He said. You have answered well-so well that I have healed your little girl. Go on home, for the demon has left her!"

And when she arrived home, her little girl was lying quietly in bed, and the demon was gone.

From Tyre He went to Sidon, then back to the Sea of Galilee by way of the Ten Towns. A deaf man with a speech impediment was brought to Him, and everyone begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man and heal him.

Jesus led him away from the crowd and put His fingers into the man's ears, then spat and touched the man's tongue with the spittle

Then, looking up to heaven, He sighed and commanded, "Open!" Instantly the man could hear perfectly and speak plainly!

Jesus told the crowd not to spread the news, but the more He forbade them, the more they made it known,

For they were overcome with utter amazement. Again and again they said, "Everything He does is wonderful; He even corrects deafness and stammering!"

Mark 7:24-37

In all, it's been good year for Sonia Johnson

By MARJORIE HYER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Within the past year, she has been cast out of the faith that has been her family's birthright for five generations. Her 20-year marriage ended in divorce. Her parents have all but disowned her, and she has been jailed.

But Sonia Johnson has not merely survived; she appears to be flourishing. "I think it has been perhaps the best year of my life," she said softly during a recent interview.

Then she paused before trying to explain that statement. "It' like Dickens says in 'Tale of Two Cities': 'It was the best of times; it was the worst of times.'

JUST A YEAR AGO, in an action that made national headlines. Johnson was excommunicated from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints because, church leaders said, she had defamed church leaders. But Johnson insists she was ousted because she fought vigorously against the church's opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment. Six weeks after her excommunication, she and her husband separated and subsequently divorced for reasons that had nothing to do with her feminist convictions or her church troubles. Since then, she has been busy reordering her life and the lives of her four children, aged 6 to 17.

"A year ago, I thought, 'Oh, if I can just get through the year," " she said, but you know, this year has been wonderful!"

Seated on a dark-blue couch in her sun-washed living room in rural Loudoun County near Sterling, Va., Johnson looks like a woman at peace with herself. The strained and tense look of a year ago is gone; her eyes sparkle and her smile comes easily and

WITH UNMISTAKABLE triumph, she said, "I found out that on my own I can support these kids and do it in the style to which they had become accustomed." She is providing for her family by working for the cause closest to her heart: lecturing on equal rights for women. The children, she said, "are very proud of me. I think the period of mourning about the divorce, the period of mourning over my misery (over being ousted from the Mormon church)...is largely over."

... I have far fewer fears. Oh, of course, there are things I am afraid of, but I know that no matter what comes, I am equal to it. What was it that Camus said?" - and she struggles to recall the precise words of the French philosopher-writer - " 'In the midst of winter, we know we have in ourselves an invincible sum-

The real secret of her survival, Johnson said, is "the women out there in the women's movement. They are so supportive. Well, not quite every letter she received was supportive, she acknowledges: perhaps 15 percent were critical, with "98 percent of these coming from Mormons.

Her relationship with her parents in Utah, traditionally so important to Mormons, who believe that families are together throughout all eternity, 'very strained." "They are just shocked and dismayed all the time by what I am doing .... They call me and tell me all the time that I am in spiritual danger." The relationship may be close to the breaking point. I can't afford the weight of all their worries about my eternal life. "I'm sad about that (the rift with her parents). I hope if I don't do anything outrageous for a month or two, they'll regain their equilibrium. But I have told them that this is just the beginning.... I really do mean it when I say I am willing to give my life for this cause (of full equality for women) if that is what it takes.

THE MOST RECENT assault on her parents' sensibilities came early in November when Johnson and 20 others were arrested when they chained themselves to the gates of a new Mormon temple in suburban Seattle, as part of her continuing protest of the church's opposition to

But if Johnson's parents were traumatized by newspaper photographs of their daughter marching off to jail still draped in her chains, her children had a different reaction. "I was supposed to come back home that night," she said, "so I had to call them and tell them that I was in jail," she said. "Kari (her 15-year-old daughter) said 'Oh, congratulations!' and Mark (who is 12) came on the phone and said, 'Mom, I'm so proud of

She said she is not bitter about the divorce. "I don't feel animosity. I don't feel hostility," she said. "I just feel comfortable.

JOHNSON SAID she has thought about remarriage "because people ask me that, but I'm just enjoying being single now. I suspect that as time goes on, there will come a time when I will be lonely for male companionship.... I liked being married."

With all her strong feminist views, she is not anti-men, Johnson said. "Personally, on a one-to-one basis, I like (men) a lot. How can I not like them? I've got three sons. What society has done (in male-female relationships) is vile for them.

She points out that a third of the members of Mormons for ERA whose membership has increased from 500 to 1200 in the wake of her battles with the church — are men.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said last summer there have been more than 1,700 injuries and nearly 100 deaths as a result of Ford transmissions suddenly slipping from park to reverse while the car is idling.

The compromise announced Wednesday was quickly criticized by a consumer group that said the government should have taken stronger action and ordered repairs made on the transmissions.

The Ford vehicles involved were sold from 1970 to 1979. Ford made changes in its transmissions this year, but has argued all along that the hazard stems

Ford escapes heavy tab in agreement on transmissions

DETROIT (AP) - Ford Motor Co. will spend up to $10 million to distribute dashboard stickers warning of possible automatic transmission problems in 22.9 million cars and trucks, but a recall would have cost hundreds of millions.

Such a recall was avoided Wednesday when Ford and the National Highway Safety administration announced an agreement under which owners of the vehicles will soon receive letters and dashboard stickers warning that the transmissions could slip into reverse. Such slips have caused almost 100 deaths, the government contends.

A recall would have dealt a severe blow to the finances of a company that lost $1.2 billion in the first nine months of this year.

The cost in reputation and lost sales to Ford on top of the widely publicized Pinto gasoline tank case would be incalculable.

And Ford still believes nothing was wrong with the transmissions in the first place.

Ford did change the design of the park mechanism for most 1980 models, but the No. 2 automaker says it still has no assurance the instances of slipping into reverse when the driver thinks the car is in park have changed. There is about one such slip for every 3 million times a transmission is set regardless of manufacturer, according to Ford.

A recall would have been a tremendous financial blow to the company

Putting a car on a lift, draining the transmission fluid and removing the bottom cover of the transmission is "a $50 to $100 job," Ford spokesman Jerry Sloan said Wednesday.

Sloan said Ford never calculated the cost of a recall because it never knew what to do once the bottom cover was removed - or even if the transmission would not have to be taken out of the car No one could be sure how many owners would answer a transmission recall. More than 62 percent responded to Ford's recall of 1.3 million Pinto and Bobcat sedans in 1978 to modify gasoline tanks to reduce the likelihood of fire in rear-end crashes. That response is considered very good.

If only a quarter of the 22 million owners responded, and if the work cost $50 each, Ford would have had to shell out $250 million. A one-half response would have cost $500 million.

As it is, Ford will spend $5 million to $10 million in preparing and mailing the dashboard warning stick-

Sloan said Ford did not have to use certified mail, as it would for a formal recall. He had no up-to-date figure for that procedure, but some estimates put the cost at $1.33 per letter. Part of the cost is a fee to the R.L. Polk Co. for tracing second and subsequent owners through vehicle identification numbers in state motor vehicle bureaus, a tedious process.

The Pinto involved in an Indiana crash that killed three teen-age girls and prompted state criminal charges against Ford - and on which Ford was acquitted - had had six previous owners. When the crash occured two months after the 1978 recall, Polk had found the sixth owner. For the transmission, Ford will ask original owners to mail a reply card if the car has been sold and will go on from there to trace subsequent owners through "however many (mailings) it takes based on experience," said spokesman Bill Sheehan.

Woman, 75, killed by driverless auto

SHIRLEY, N.Y. (AP) - A 75-year-old woman was killed Wednesday when she was hit once and run over twice by a driverless auto apparently left running in reverse gear by her husband, police

Police said the car began moving backward in a parking lot just after the victim's husband got out of it and had "apparently failed to shut off the car and

Henry Bossert, 82, was knocked to the ground before the car hit his wife, Marjorie, according to a report by Suffolk County homicide Det. William Schwalbach.

The car, a 1977 Mercury, circled about three more times, scraping several cars as it moved, and was finally stopped when the driver of a beer truck backed his vehicle into it.

Mrs. Bossert was pronounced dead at the scene. Police said the case was considered an accident. "I was getting into my truck and I heard a yell and saw a man on the ground," said the driver of the truck, Nunzio Quartuccio, 33, of East Patchogue. He said the car had run over a curb after it hit Bossert, turning its wheels to the right and putting it into a counter-clockwise circle at about 15 to 20

"I tried once to hit it, but I missed," he said. "I tried again and got it in the rear. There was a young kid, about 17 or 18, who tried to get inside and stop it, but it was moving too fast.'

Schwalbach said Bossert was not injured but was 'destroyed'' emotionally by the incident. He said Bossert told him he and his wife had no children. 'What am I going to do now? I have no one," Bossert was quoted as saying.
