Tax reformer crusades in Midland

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The size of Texas' state government and the cost of operating it are increasing faster than the population count. To put a hold on these numbers, Howard Jarvis was in Midland Wednesday advocating the right of initiative and referendum.

Jarvis, 78, author of Proposition 13 in California, held a news conference in The Midland Hilton and spoke at a public meeting in Midland Center during the evening. Traveling with Jarvis and drumming up support for Texas 13 was Waggoner Carr, former state attorney general and speaker of the Texas House.

Texas 13, explained Carr, is a non-profit organization of Texans dedicated to pushing through legislation allowing residents the right of initiative and referendum. Deane Stoltz of Midland is on the Texas 13 board.

Jarvis contended that citizens have two basic rights — the right to vote and the right to petition the government. The latter isn't allowed in Texas, he said.

In California, the right of initiative allows any citizen who wants to add a law to the books to write the legislation and obtain 550,000 signatures. Once this is done, the proposal goes before the voters, said Jarvis.

Although Jarvis wrote Proposition 13 in 1963, it wasn't until 1978 and many property tax increases later that the public took note. Previously, Jarvis had encountered difficulty getting enough qualified voters to sign the petition.

Instead of causing a decline in state services as some California legislators had claimed, the proposal "created 600,000 new jobs."

"I've never seen too much tax relief," he said vehemently. "Half of all you make goes for taxes. If you raise taxes, you create unemployment. We need to do everything to create employment."

He explained that although taxes have been cut, instead of decreasing state revenues, the cut in California created more jobs and thus more revenue.

Jarvis, who has been in demand for speaking engagements throughout the country since the passage of Proposition 13, said taxes in his home state had increased so much that many people couldn't afford to pay taxes on their property. "They were foreclosing 7,000 properties a month for non-payment of taxes. It was just impossible to pay them. What had started at $40 a month had gone up to $160 a month."

To explain his theory that the "tax system here is manufacturing poor people very rapidly," Jarvis said he purchased an $8,000 car last year. He had an organization research what all the taxes on that car cost, from the time the ore was dug for the body until it was delivered to the car lot. On that automobile, he said, $4,500 of the price reflected taxes.

Unless a restraint is placed on the State Legislature through initiative, Jarvis forecasts a future of gloom for the nation. He talked with Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher recently, said Jarvis. She spoke of the problems with her country and said it is going down the drain.

But what bothers her more, according to Jarvis, "is that the U.S. is following England down that drain. Do you have the guts to do something about it?" he asked of the audience.

"Yes," replied a few of the 75 Midlanders in the room while others nodded their heads.

In supporting Jarvis' contention that government is costing too much, Carr claimed that cost of state government has gone up 158 percent in the past 10 years. Meanwhile, state population has risen only about 17 percent, he said.

The state welfare department has upped its cost 370 percent. And a study shows that 64 percent of state employees reported they didn't have enough work to keep them busy, Carr recited.

Today, 45 cents out of every dollar a person earns "is going to the tax collectors. By 1988," said Carr, "you will keep only 37 cents of each dollar. How are you going to live on 37 cents if you can't live on 55 cents?"

The state government has grown so large it no longer hears the taxpayer but turns its ears to the lobbyists, Carr charged.

He called for the taxpayers to unite and push for the right of initiative and "put reasonable restraints on state government."

Howard Jarvis, author of California's tax-cutting Proposition 13, spoke to Midlanders at Midland Center Wednesday night about securing the rights of initiative and referendum. With Jarvis was former state attorney general Waggoner Carr who represents Texas 13, a group designed to secure such rights in Texas. (Staff Photo by Brian Hendershot)

New hostage meeting held

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — America's chief hostage negotiator, on a hastily arranged visit to Algeria that stirred fresh hopes for the release of the 52 Americans held in Iran, met today with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia.

In Tehran, meanwhile, an official at the Algerian Embassy sounded a cautiously optimistic note.

A reporter who telephoned him from Lebanon asked the official whether he believed the American hostages would be freed soon.

"We hope so. Be patient," he replied.

The Algerians are acting as intermediaries in the U.S.-Iranian negotiations for release of the Americans. The U.S. negotiator, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, met for two hours here with Benyahia. Neither side released any information on the meeting. Earlier, Christopher said the U.S. and Iranian positions appeared a bit closer.

In Washington, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said the purpose of the Christopher mission was to provide the Algerians with a "full understanding" of the U.S. position.

Interviewed on the Cable News Network, Muskie said the fact that Iran had posed a series of questions about U.S. proposals indicated a "show of interest" in ending the crisis. But he added that it was not clear whether the questions "revealed the full scope of our differences."

Christopher arrived in Algiers earlier in the day. "I don't want to say anything more than I said in Washington," he told reporters at Houari Boumediene airport.

His arrival, the third such trip he has made to the Algerian capital, was first reported by Rehda Malek, the Algerian ambassador to the United States who is currently in Tehran with two other Algerian intermediaries.

Malek told a reporter in the Iranian capital he and the other intermediaries had no plans to fly to Algiers today. "We are busy working," he said, meaning negotiations were still under way with the Iranians.

"The process is continuing and the distance between us, which is still measured in very large numbers, seems to be narrowing somewhat," Christopher told reporters Wednesday night as he left Washington to discuss the latest U.S. note to Iran with Benyahia.

Christopher added, however, that "serious problems remain, communications are difficult, and time is running out" for the Carter administration, which has only 12 days before President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Another senior U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said prospects for a breakthrough before Reagan's inauguration Jan. 20 were "very small indeed."

Meanwhile, Reagan refused to guarantee he would implement any unfulfilled promises left by the Carter administration.

"I would have to look and see exactly what had been done. I don't want to write a blank check here," the president-elect told reporters in Washington.

U.S. officials said Christopher would elaborate on the U.S. reply sent Wednesday to questions transmitted by Algeria from Iran about the substance and mechanics of the U.S. proposal to set up an escrow account in Algiers with several billion dollars in frozen Iranian assets. The money would be released when the 52 hostages, spending their 432nd day in captivity today, were freed.

Last month the Iranians demanded that the United States put $14 billion in the Algerian Central Bank to ensure that the estimated $8 billion to $14 billion in Iranian assets frozen by the United States is eventually released, and that it deposit an additional $10 billion to guarantee that any assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in the United States would be turned over to Iran.

But $5 billion or more of the frozen Iranian assets are blocked by U.S. courts that are hearing claims against the Iranian government by American firms and individuals. And the U.S. government has no control over the shah's wealth and is not known to have offered any financial guarantees to Iran regarding it.

Bodies of two Iran men found in wreckage of plane

IRAAN (AP) — The bodies of two Iran men were discovered Wednesday in the wreckage of a single engine plane that crashed about three miles east of this Southwest Texas town, authorities said.

The Bellanca plane took off from the Iran airport about 6:15 a.m. Tuesday, but the wreckage was not discovered until shortly after 11 a.m. Wednesday, said Texas Department of Public Safety and Federal Aviation Administration officials.

A DPS official identified the dead as Eugene Clemons and Lloyd Keith Blakeslet, 42, both of Iran.

He said the plane was en route to Wichita Falls. An FAA spokesman in Fort Worth, however, said it was headed for Amarillo, but that no flight plan was filed.

Federal authorities were investigating the crash site Wednesday.

Playing with matches called cause of blaze that killed four children

By KAY CRITES
Staff Writer

The fire at the Tall City Apartments that killed four small Midland children Dec. 29 was caused by children playing with matches in the bedroom of the apartment, District Attorney Vern Martin announced during a press conference this morning.

Further information indicated that 3-year-old twins Noel and Joel Bennett, 2-year-old Rudy Bennett Jr. and 8-month-old Jennifer Ann Bennett were not trapped in the apartment by a locked or jammed door, as previously thought, and may not have even known they were near a door that could have led them to safety before they died.

There were two doors, in opposite walls, leading into the bedroom. Reports indicate that the family used the door on the west side of the apartment for access. After the fire, the children were found huddled next to the door on the east side. In the excitement, they may not have known the door was there.

"The fire prevented them from getting out of the room, and not a locked door," said Martin.

Martin released information gathered by State Arson Investigator Greg Whitlock and Investigator Bobby Williams of the Midland fire marshal's office.

Representatives from the fire marshal's office and Whitlock, who was called into the case and began his investigation Tuesday, were not at the press conference because of another investigation which needed Whitlock's attention before he left Midland today.

Martin declined to say which investigation Whitlock was now working on.

A release issued at the press conference said, "The fire at the Tall City Apartments, on Dec. 29, 1980, has been determined by the State Arson Investigator, Greg Whitlock, and Investigator B.D. Williams of the Midland fire marshal's office to have

When he talks, everybody listens

NEW YORK (AP) — His critics call him a "clown" and a "Wizard of Oz type," but few people can shake up the stock market the way Joseph E. Granville can.

If there was any doubt about that, it was removed on Wednesday, after the Holly Hill, Fla., investment adviser recommended in his telephone "early warning service" that subscribers dump all the stocks they owned.

As the market opened, it was inundated with sell orders that forced trading delays in more than 100 stocks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had soared past the 1,000 level Tuesday to its highest closing level in more than four years, abruptly turned around and plummeted.

By mid-afternoon Wednesday, the Dow was down more than 30 points. Even after a modest rally before the close, the Dow still showed a 23.80-point loss, to 980.99, wiping out a large portion of the nearly 41-point gain it had built up in the first three trading days of 1981.

Trading volume reached record levels of 92.89 million shares at the New York Stock Exchange, eclipsing the previous high of 84.08 million last Nov. 5, and 15.76 million shares at the American Stock Exchange.

Granville was not shy about taking responsibility for the drop. Reached by The Associated Press late Wednesday, he said it could be "totally traced" to him.

Hours before, the legions of investors and stockbrokers who make up his avid following — the "Granville groupies," as one Wall Streeter refers to them — had spread the word through the investment world.

He had recommended to his telephone subscribers that they sell out all their stock holdings, and even go short — sell stock borrowed from brokers, in hopes of profiting from price declines — on those stocks that had gained the most ground in recent months. Many people clearly followed his advice.

By any standard of the established order on Wall Street, Granville is a maverick. His weekly market letter, which at last report had some 11,000 readers at a price of $250 a year, is regularly peppered with jibes at orthodox economists and money managers.

They are, in his description, "bagholders" — losers in the investment game.

For most of the year, Granville takes his message on the road in "shows," usually sponsored by local brokers, across the country and abroad. Between now and the end of February, he has dates in such diverse places as Garden Grove, Calif.; Dayton, Ohio; and Vancouver, British Columbia.

In these appearances, Granville fills his presentations with exotic showmanship — jokes, ringing bells, puppets, plus a musical composition of his own called "The Bagholder Blues."

Because of this, even one Wall Street analyst who professes to admire some of Granville's work in analyzing the market describes him as "a snake-oil salesman. He can mesmerize an audience like an evangelist."

Many Wall Streeters also bridle at his practice of suddenly shifting opinions on the market outlook. When he helped touch off a 30.72-point jump in the Dow Jones Industrials last April 22 with a buy recommendation to his "early warning" subscribers, critics point out, those who received only his regular letter still had his previous negative views.

At present, they add, the most recent issue of the letter, dated Jan. 3, is emphatically bullish. "Straight up," it is titled. It advises new subscribers to "do some aggressive new buying. The market is signaling a sharp upswing ahead."

More is likely to be heard from his detractors in the days ahead, given the stunning impact his sell message had.

Many Midlanders coming down with the flu bug

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Winter to some means the thrill of snow skiing, bobsledding and ice skating. To the medical professionals, however, winter means the onslaught of colds and flu.

This winter's flu season seems to have increased in length and severity. Although Midland doctors say the flu is not at epidemic proportions, the number of people affected is high.

A spokesperson from Midland Memorial Hospital said although the number of flu patients does not seem worse than any other season, there is currently a heavy number of patients arriving in the emergency room with flu symptoms, bronchitis and pneumonia.

Oliver Gooch, a otorhinolaryngologist (ear, nose and throat physician), said the situation this winter has been a recurrent one. Usually, Gooch said, flu comes in spurts at the beginning of the school year and then again around the holiday season. This season, however, Gooch said there has been relatively no let up.

This year's strain has proved to be more virulent with a longer period of infection, although the strain seems to be of no exceptional class.

Beginning with a low-grade fever and body aches, this flu moves into secondary infections, Gooch said, which may include sore throats, inflammation of intestines and diarrhea.

Gooch said the symptoms may last from four to seven days or as long as three to four weeks. The doctor said not only are some people more susceptible to the viral flus, but also may not necessarily take care of themselves. Such things as overindulgent eating, lack of rest and exposure to the outside elements may aid in the

New interior boss under attack

Environmentalists' efforts wasted on senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavy attack by environmental groups against the nomination of James G. Watt as interior secretary apparently is having little effect with the people who count most — the senators who must confirm his appointment.

Watt received a generally warm reception Wednesday from the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. Several senators predicted confirmation would be no problem, even though some of the country's largest environmental groups strongly denounced Ronald Reagan's selection of Watt for his Cabinet.

Watt's confirmation hearing was continuing today, while the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee was holding hearings on the president-elect's nomination of Rep. David

A. Stockman, R-Mich., as director of the White House Office of Management and Budget.

"Mr. Watt has distinguished himself as one of the most dedicated anti-environmentalists of the past decade," Russell Peterson, president of the 416,000-member National Audubon Society, told the committee. "His actions and statements identify him as an aggressive, shortsighted exploiter, rather than a far-sighted protector, of the nation's air, land and water."

The Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and the Wilderness Society released a statement attacking Watt for a record of "consistent and unbending advocacy for the destructive exploitation of the public lands."

But Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., called Watt a "lifelong Westerner who is deeply concerned about protecting the environment of the Western states, even as we develop the energy and other resources we so desperately need."

And a senator who asked some of the toughest questions of Watt, Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., told Watt, "You are going to be confirmed. I can count and you have the votes."

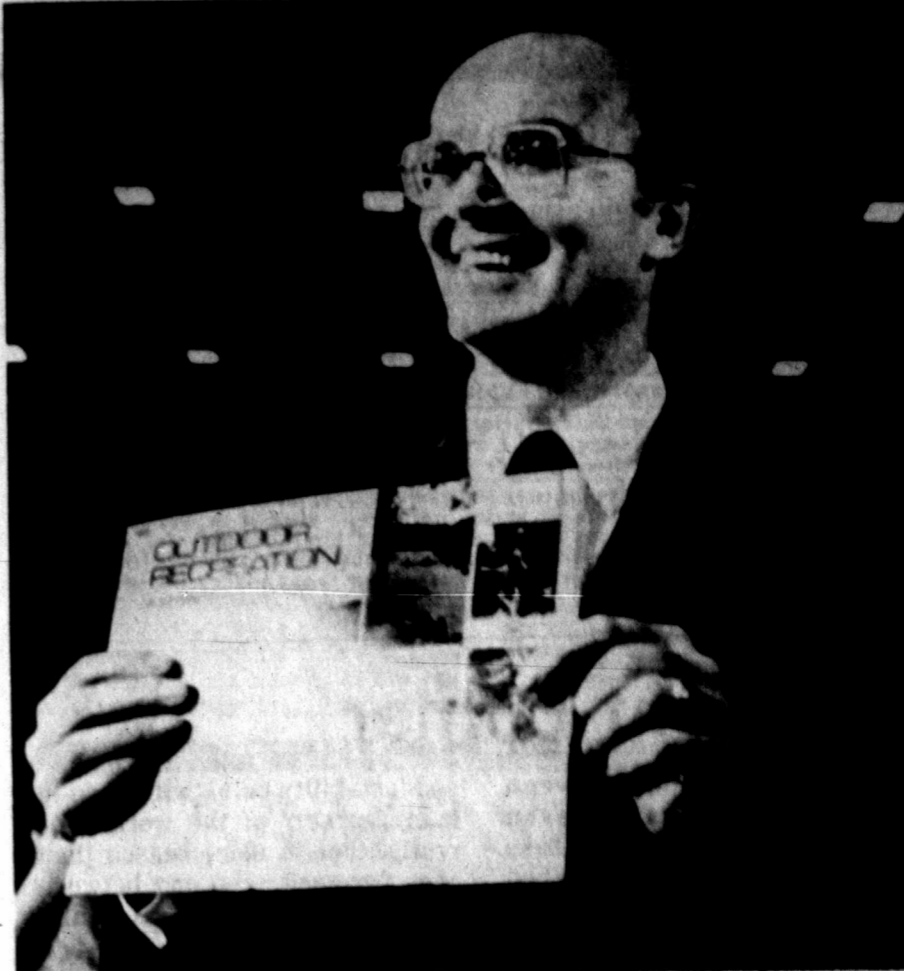

Another tough questioner was Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., who asked Watt about a statement he reportedly made in October 1977, that, "As a white man, in 10 years, I'm going to be very hesitant to let a black doctor operate on me because of concerns that he may have been carried by the quota system."

Watt refused to deny he had made the statement, telling Hart, "I think we should just let it rest where it is and not try to create a fight over it." Watt added that he was against discrimination, but that he was "opposed to quotas in every measure."

The environmentalists said contributors to the foundation, which has an operating budget of more than $1 million, include some of the West's biggest oil, mining, and timber interests. That would make it hard for Watt to avoid conflicts of interest as interior secretary, the conservation groups said.

But Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he found "ridiculous" the argument that Watt had a conflict of interest because he had sued the federal government several times. He said former lawyers for environmental groups had not been denied top jobs in the Carter administration and Watt's nomination should not be denied either.

"Mr. Reagan was elected because he expressed certain philosophies. He is entitled to appoint Cabinet secretaries who support those philosophies," Domenici said.

No witchhunt planned during Haig's hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are now saying they don't want Alexander M. Haig's confirmation hearings to turn into "a rehash of Watergate or a witchhunt."

"Our intention is to look into those expressions of viewpoint in Haig's past that would be relevant to his conduct as secretary of state," Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said Wednesday. "We don't want this to be a warmed-over Watergate. We are looking to the future."

However, Pell said Haig's role in former president Richard M. Nixon's Watergate defense "is a relevant issue" and the Democrats will question him on it.

Pell's comments came after a two-hour closed strategy meeting of Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will start Haig's hearings Friday.

Other Democrats told reporters as they left the meeting that Pell, ranking Democrat on the committee, would speak for all of them.

In addition to material on Watergate, Pell confirmed that committee Democrats have asked for all Nixon tapes and documents covering Haig's role in the Nixon administration wiretapping of aides and reporters, decisions on bombing Cambodia and covert U.S. support of the late Marxist Chilean President Salvador Allende's political opponents.

Haig was Nixon's chief of staff during the final months before Watergate charges forced Nixon to resign. He was a National Security Council aide at the time of the wiretapping, the Cambodia bombing and the Chile activity.

Pell said prospects for obtaining some of the tapes and documents have improved but "certainly those who control access to those documents can obstruct us."

Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, threatened court action Tuesday against President Carter's directive for federal agencies to search out the material for the Senate Democrats.

But Miller took no court action and the search began.

The National Archives' counsel, Steven Garfinkel, said Carter was being notified in a report late Wednesday that the search for documents had been completed and the search for tapes should be completed Thursday.

But Garfinkel said he did not believe the material could be supplied in time for the committee to review if Haig's confirmation hearings are to be completed before Ronald Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20.

Pell said Democrats hope the hearings can be completed by then, but did not rule out the possibility of proposing a delay until some of the material is obtained.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it," Pell said.

The environmental organizations focused on Watt's role as president and chief legal officer of the Mountain States Legal Foundation for the past 3 1/2 years.

Watt said the 10-lawyer foundation specialized in protecting individual rights against "excessive regulation and government control."

But the environmental groups said the foundation's main purpose was to help pro-development interests in the West battle the Interior Department and other federal agencies over access to federal lands.

The foundation's suits have dealt with such subjects as grazing rights on Western lands, the government's authority to block oil and gas drilling in wilderness areas and the power of the National Park Service to limit motorized rafts in the Grand Canyon.

The environmentalists said contributors to the foundation, which has an operating budget of more than $1 million, include some of the West's biggest oil, mining, and timber interests. That would make it hard for Watt to avoid conflicts of interest as interior secretary, the conservation groups said.

But Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he found "ridiculous" the argument that Watt had a conflict of interest because he had sued the federal government several times. He said former lawyers for environmental groups had not been denied top jobs in the Carter administration and Watt's nomination should not be denied either.

"Mr. Reagan was elected because he expressed certain philosophies. He is entitled to appoint Cabinet secretaries who support those philosophies," Domenici said.

Couple refuses settlement

MIAMI (AP) — A husband and wife who refused to accept a $75,000 court settlement because it wouldn't cover their expenses stand to go $19,000 in debt if they accept the award to avoid being jailed for contempt, their lawyer says.

Attorney Ellis Rubin said Mary Adams, who was crippled in a 1975 automobile accident, and her husband, George, had to decide today whether they would go to jail or obey Dade Circuit Judge Harold Featherstone's order to sign a draft of the settlement check.

"By my calculation they would come up about $19,000 in debt," if they signed, said Rubin, citing legal and medical bills in the years since Mrs. Adams' accident.

Featherstone on Tuesday ordered the Adamases jailed for 60 days when they refused to sign the check, but rescinded the order and gave them 48 hours to reconsider.

Rubin said he spent most of Wednesday doing research to determine if there was "any point in not signing." He said there was no precedent in lawbooks for such a case, but said it was not uncommon for people to express dissatisfaction with settlements reached by their attorneys.

"Personally, I've had many people who took the money come in my office and say they were not happy with settlements reached by their attorneys," Rubin said. "They say their attorneys told them to sign and then they were left with nothing. Most of the money goes to the attorney."

The Adamases objected to accepting the check on the grounds that the settlement was negotiated by a lawyer they had fired and because the money wouldn't cover their medical and legal expenses.

PUBLIC INVITED

Archie Dennis Jr.

Whether Archie Dennis Jr. steps to the microphone on stage in front of thousands in Budapest, Hungary as part of the Billy Graham Crusade, or the pulpit of a small country church, it only takes moments to realize that within this man God has birthed a song—a unique song born from his personal experience and daily walk with Jesus Christ.

Recognizing his natural singing talent at an early age, Archie joined his high school choir and upon graduation moved to New York. He later joined the Roberto Martin Singers and traveled extensively with them until 1968. At that time his songs changed to a more varied spectrum of sacred music as he felt the call to a soloist ministry. In 1971 an honorary Doctorate of Sacred Music was conferred upon him from a seminary in England.

In July 1972 Dennis accepted an invitation from world-renowned Billy Graham to perform as guest soloist at the Cleveland Crusade. Since that time he has been a regular guest with many crusades recently returning from his 31st trip abroad. His tours have taken him to Africa, Brazil, Switzerland, Japan, India, and the Philippines. Archie will soon be returning to the Royal Albert Hall in London for another engagement as well.

Henry Davis, a product of Howard University in Washington, D.C. has been Archie's accompanist for 8 years and between tours has written some of Archie's best loved songs like "I Believe in God" and "You'll Never Be the Same Again."

Archie's sensitivity to the Spirit of the Lord has been evidenced in the response to his performances all around the world. At the Billy Graham Crusade in October 1977 in Cincinnati he received a standing ovation for "God Bless America."

It has been Archie's dedication to God's calling upon his life and his willingness to respond which has taken him around the world to musically bless the lives of the many who have heard him sing. And just as important are the lives he touches in Pittsburgh, Pa. where he resides with his wife, Claudette and their family. PITTSBURGH, PA.

The front burner

Monday's meeting between President-elect Ronald Reagan and Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo has been described as a symbolic one that was intended to set the tone for relations between the United States and Mexico.

It was that. And the meeting was needed, if you'll just take the time to think back to the early days of the Jimmy Carter presidency and his stumblings in the field of hemispheric diplomacy.

The dialogue between Mr. Reagan and President Lopez Portillo should pave the way for improved relations between the two nations. Developing the Mexican-U.S. relationship is a most necessary and commendable goal.

To go a step further, Mr. Reagan's goal of improving communications and trade between this nation, Mexico and Canada is an idea whose time definitely has arrived. In fact, it's an idea that has been presented more than once before in previous administrations.

Somehow presidents always seem to get sidetracked, what with all the concerns of the world before them and, ostensibly, resting squarely on their shoulders. Problem areas elsewhere in the world attract their attention — Iran, Africa, the Middle East, Vietnam, the Soviet Union — and the goal of improving relations with the good neighbors here at home is relegated to a back burner. All too often, in fact, it's virtually forgotten.

With the problems of the world seemingly increasing at a break-neck pace and with the hostility and instability being witnessed in many corners of the world currently, there's more reason than ever for good relations between the United States, Mexico and Canada.

There are more than enough mutual problems for the leaders of the three nations to address. Significant changes can be brought about and the three nations can reap the benefits of a closer and more cooperative relationship.

Some have speculated that the meeting between Mr. Reagan and President Lopez Portillo was too long on symbolism and too short on substance. Texas Gov. Bill Clements, a longtime proponent of closer relations between the United States and Mexico, doesn't view it that way and neither do we.

Clements said, "People are always wanting to know if substantive issues are discussed. When you get two people together such as Lopez Portillo and President-elect Reagan, and they start talking about mutuality of issues between the two countries, that in itself is substantive."

Well said. And we honestly hope that there's more dialogue in the future between Mr. Reagan, President Lopez Portillo and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau. It's time to put improved relations between the nations of the Western Hemisphere on the front burner.

Salvadoran violence caught Rodolfo Viera

By KAREN DEYOUNG (c) 1981, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The slaying Saturday of land reform director Rodolfo Viera has removed one of the few remaining figures in El Salvador's teetering government with any claim to popular support or contact with the country's vast majority of poor peasant farmers.

Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte has said he believes extreme rightists killed Viera, along with U.S. advisers Michael P. Hammer and Mark David Pearlman, as they sat finishing dinner in the restaurant of the San Salvador Sheraton Hotel. As usual following the brutal slayings that are now a daily occurrence there, others have blamed leftist guerrillas.

But regardless of who pulled the trigger, it is clear that the target was Viera and the peaceful road to radical reform he represented.

Viera, a rough-and-tumble man who prided himself on the fact that "I started to work the land when I was 9 years old," was a peasant leader who chose to work within the system, while others long ago turned to revolution as the only hope for change in El Salvador. "A leader in the cemetery doesn't do anybody any good," he said in a 1979 conversation I had with him.

"Nobody can work here if there is no tranquility, no peace," he said as others called the Salvadoran masses to insurrection. "If there is no work, there is hunger, and hunger is a bad political adviser."

Viera's presence as head of the Salvadoran Agricultural Transformation Institute gave that much-tackled organization — the focus of U.S. hopes that redistribution of wealth can avert a leftist takeover — one of its few vestiges of political and popular respectability.

Yet, just before his death Viera, too, was ready to join the scores of Salvadoran leaders who have given up on peaceful change. In the face of military repression against land reform employees and peasants, as well as government efforts to thwart the reform program by refusing to turn over land titles to new peasant owners and blocking needed loans to peasant cooperatives, friends reported, he had decided to resign.

Viera had been the target of at least five assassination attempts. His enemies included the extreme right, the left and many in the government for which he worked.

In many ways, Viera was for years a pivotal figure in the bloody tangle of Salvadoran politics.

Before joining the government last March to direct the agrarian reform, Viera headed the Salvadoran Communist Union, which he said had more than 150,000 members and ran dozens of peasant cooperative farms.

The union was started in 1971 with the help and funding of the American Institute for Free Labor Development, an AFL-CIO affiliate, and in 1977 it was recognized by the former rightist military government as a legitimate representative of El Salvador's peasants.

Viera claimed to be under no illusions about the repressive character of El Salvador's past and present governments. But, he said in 1979, his way of doing things had gotten results. The peasant cooperatives existed.

"We believe there is a way to exert pressure without violence," he said. "Why do people have to die for change?"

Other peasant groups, such as the Popular Revolutionary Bloc led by doctrinaire leftists and student idealists, "want a popular government, and so do we," he said. "But if we went out in the streets, got involved in politics, (the military) would cut off our heads."

When a group of ostensibly progressive military officers overthrew the rightist government on Oct. 15, 1979 and formed a junta with

Best smiles in America belong to the winners

WASHINGTON — The lists are starting to come out. Last week, the National Hairdressers Assn. decided that Nancy Reagan was much better coiffed than Rosalynn Carter. How on earth did Mrs. Carter lose first place?

What many people don't realize is that these lists — and almost every industry has one — are made up by public relations people who know that on a dull day every newspaper in America will print them, provided the people are this year's celebrities.

Archie Doubleday, who has the National Toothpaste Assn. account, has been working for a month now on the list of those who have the "Best Smiles in America."

He told me in his office, where he was rearranging names on a large board, that it was a tough job.

"I've had to drop Jimmy Carter." "That's a pity," I said. "I thought he had a very nice smile."

"Reagan has a better smile. Reagan has the best smile in America."

"But for four years, you claimed that Jimmy Carter had the best smile."

"Carter's teeth are too big. Reagan's teeth have just the right bite size."

"The Toothpaste Assn. never lets politics interfere in the selection of its 'Best Smile' list. I also had to drop Fritz Mondale — he has a weak smile."

"Who have you replaced him with?"

Art Buchwald

"George Bush. When he smiles, he lights up a room."

"Ed Muskie has a nice smile. Is he still on the list?"

"No, he didn't make it. We also had to drop Zbigniew Brzezinski."

"How could you drop Brzezinski? He's got one of the great smiles in the country. I wish I could smile like he does."

"I would have kept him on the list but I had to make room for Al Haig. We've had our eye on Haig ever since he worked for Nixon. Finally we decided he deserved to make the list."

"It's funny, I never saw Al Haig smile when he was working for Nixon."

"Oh, he smiled a lot. It wasn't an ear-to-ear smile, but it had a nice quiet dignity to it."

"I don't see Teddy Kennedy's name on the board."

"No, Teddy didn't make it. We gave that slot to Strom Thurmond. We think Strom has the most ingratiating smile of anyone in the Senate."

"I can't argue with you there. Did any women make the list?"

"Nancy Reagan did."

"And Rosalynn Carter didn't?"

"How did you know?"

"It was a lucky guess."

"Maureen Reagan eased out Amy Carter by six votes."

"That was a squeaker. I see you put Sugar Ray Leonard in place of Spectacular Bid."

"That was a tough one. Spectacular Bid has one of the finest sets of teeth in the country. But when it comes to a great grin, Sugar Ray Leonard now has him beat."

"Wait a minute. Have you replaced Walter Cronkite with Dan Rather?"

"Dan Rather has beautiful gums."

"So does Walter Cronkite."

"But when Rather smiles, you also see his dimples. We've been scouting Rather for some time — we decided his time had come."

"I noticed you picked Larry Hagman, who plays J.R. Ewing on 'Dallas'."

"He has the best molars in show business."

"Well, I must say you picked an all-star list. There isn't a has-been on it."

"We've got one slot left. And I can't make up my mind which one would do the toothpaste business the most good."

"What are the choices?"

"Phyllis Schlafly or Rev. Jerry Falwell."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Jan. 8, the eighth day of 1981. There are 357 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 8, 1815, American forces under Gen. Andrew Jackson defeated the British in the last engagement of the War of 1812, the Battle of New Orleans.

On this date: In 1642, Italian astronomer Galileo died.

In 1679, the French explorer La Salle reached Niagara Falls.

In 1918, President Woodrow Wilson outlined 14 points for peace after World War I.

In 1979, as many as 60 people were reported killed in anti-shah rioting in 10 Iranian cities.

Ten years ago: The United States apologized for a bomb explosion outside a Soviet cultural building in Washington.

Five years ago: China's Premier Chou En-Lai died at the age of 78.

One year ago: Diplomatic sources said the new Soviet-backed regime in Afghanistan was continuing to execute political foes.

Today's birthdays: U.S. diplomat and businessman Thomas Watson is 67. Musician David Bowie is 34.

Thought for today: Never forget what a man says to you when he is angry. — U.S. clergyman H.W. Beecher (1813-1887).

HEMISPHERE REPORT

United States' economic woes also are hurting Mexico

Mexico is relying on the Ronald Reagan administration to help the Aztec republic help itself.

Mexico expects no handouts, no gifts, from the new U.S. government.

But what Mexico does hope is that Mr. Reagan will bring U.S. inflation under control, that prosperity will return to the United States and, with it, increased demand for the goods and services Mexico has to offer.

As things stand now, all that Mexico has to export that is readily sold abroad with no great difficulty is oil and natural gas.

While the dollar income from its oil wealth is more than welcome, Mexico is cognizant of the problems that countries depend overly on some one export item, even petroleum, can experience when the unexpected happens to the world market.

But as Mexico does over 60 percent of its foreign business with the United States, what would most help the Mexican economy would be a strengthening of the U.S. dollar.

A sound dollar, perhaps even a dollar as "good as gold," would aid Mexico, as well as most of the other hemisphere republics. Their currencies depend on the dollar.

The Mexican peso, and the other countries' monetary units, are "floating" against the dollar. The peso has been for over four years now, since the devaluation of August 1976.

What that means is that there is no fixed rate of exchange between, say, the peso and the dollar. Whereas, prior to the 1976 devaluation, the peso was pegged at 12.50 to the dollar, since devaluation the peso has been floating at around 23 to the dollar, with the precise rate of exchange theoretically, at least, determined by the law of supply and demand at the moment of a transaction.

In the case of Mexico, and other countries, too, the float has been what the monetary specialists call "dirty." That is to say that the government has entered the money market at times, buying pesos and selling dollars, or whatever was necessary to prevent what it considered extreme fluctuations in the exchange rate.

The fact that the dollar has been floating too has complicated their task, even though the dollar movements have been slight, in comparison.

If the United States were able to stabilize the dollar, so thinking in Mexico and elsewhere goes, the problems of the money managers would be eased.

Of course, that would mean that the United States had brought inflation under control. Inflation, much of it "imported" from the United States, is a problem in Mexico.

Since 1976, estimates are, inflation in Mexico has averaged around 25 percent a year, about double that of the United States.

That has given rise to recent speculation that Mexico may be forced to devalue the peso again.

President Jose Lopez Portillo has tried to calm such fears.

He said that many businessmen have suggested he devalue "to increase the country's competitive capacity" in foreign markets.

"But I have considered that domestic demand at this moment is so extraordinarily strong that Mexico does not have much to sell abroad and that, to stimulate sales abroad, there are other aids for our economy that could encourage it, without harming savings of the public which are made in national money," in pesos.

Clearly, Lopez Portillo shares the opinion of orthodox economists, that devaluation is not a permanent solution to a nation's economic problems.

"What is important," the Mexican president says, "is to strengthen our economy. To combat, moderate, inflation. To increase production. Increase productivity. Do not give up on growth, which is employment. And to go on pushing the country ahead, as much as we can."

It should be noted that Lopez Portillo's current views are not just the result of Mexico's problems with the last devaluation. They date from years back. In fact, early in 1976, after he had resigned as treasury minister to run for the presidency, he spoke out forcefully against the devaluation that his predecessor, President Luis Echeverria, was considering.

His reasons, then? The same as now. Devaluation solves no problems and hurts the people, the Mexican people, who are those who trust in the peso.

UAW bargaining with Chrysler

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — With Chrysler Corp.'s financial "judgment day" close at hand, the United Auto Workers are bargaining with the troubled No. 3 automaker for "equality of sacrifice" among its white-collar workers.

"The company has not laid off supervisors or managers in the same ratio (as blue-collar workers)," said UAW President Douglas A. Fraser. "We're going to be bargaining over what has been a sacred management prerogative, the number of managers and supervisors. We've never bargained over that before."

The UAW, which already has made contract concessions that will save Chrysler an estimated $446 million over three years, has been asked to accept a wage freeze that would save an additional $600 million.

The company hopes the concession will help win the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board's approval of new government-backed loans.

Chrysler says it has shrunk white-collar employment from 40,000 to 24,000 over the past two years. The company promised to bring computer analyses of staffing to the bargaining table, Fraser said.

On Wednesday, after the first day of talks on the wage freeze, UAW Vice President Marc Stepp said the company described itself as "up against the wall on timing" in its efforts to win $400 million in more government loan guarantees.

Stepp said Gerald Greenwald, Chrysler's executive vice president for finance, told the loan guarantee board in Washington on Tuesday that "there's only a few weeks or days before they need cash or a commitment.... He said the judgment day was at hand."

A company spokesman, commenting on Stepp's remarks, said, "That's what we're saying; we need a quick decision."

On Dec. 4, Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said the company probably could last through January without new money. Chrysler car sales have improved since then, but the company's 7 percent rebates have held down revenue.

The company said Wednesday its December sales rose 6.4 percent over December 1979, giving it 13.4 percent of the market for domestic makes and 17.2 percent in the final 10 days of the month — its best showing for the periods since the fall of 1979.

Fraser and Stepp have asked Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, chairman of the loan board, when the board would act.

"Nothing is going to be resolved here unless the loan guarantee board is going to give Chrysler at least the amount of money they've requested," Treasury spokesman Don Stillman said Miller was "working on it" and would announce any "developments."

Fraser said the board almost certainly would insist on a tentative agreement on further sacrifices by the union and commitments from banks and suppliers before it gave conditional approval to Chrysler's request.

With badly burned hands, David Brewster, left, Tuesday stands outside his home in Boston's Mattapan area with firefighter Arthur O'Leary. Brewster was able to rescue his 5-month-old son, Reginald, from the house seen burning in the background, but was driven back by flames when he went in for his 18-month-old daughter, Devita. The child was pronounced dead at a Boston hospital while Brewster remains in guarded condition with burns on his face, hands and arms. (AP Laserphoto)

Only Chrysler pleased with 1980 sales totals

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. automakers have closed the books on 1980 sales, their worst in 15 years, and only financially troubled Chrysler Corp. is crowing.

Chrysler reported Wednesday it grabbed 17.2 percent of the market for domestic models in the last 10 sales days of December, 13.4 percent for the month.

That was Chrysler's best showing for a month since 14.9 percent in September 1979 and its best showing for a 10-day period since 17.8 percent for mid-August of that year. In all cases, sales were boosted by stiff price cuts through rebates to buyers.

"A good finish to a very tough year," said Jerry Pyle, Chrysler's vice president for U.S. automotive sales.

pared with 8,226,783 in 1979. Import sales were 2,377,820, up from 2,301,385 in 1979. As in 1979, Japanese makes accounted for four of every five imports.

FOR DECEMBER, domestic-make sales totaled 471,443, an 18 percent fall from 554,060, while imports gained 0.4 percent from 168,625 to 176,144, giving offshore producers a December record market share of 27 percent as compared to 23 percent in December 1979.

December's seasonally adjusted annual selling rate, the most closely watched statistic in the industry, was 6.1 million for domestic models, down from about 6.4 million in November, and 2.6 million for imports, up from about 2.3 million.

December was encouraging only for Chrysler, where the 7 percent rebates spurred sales from 57,034 to 63,127, a 6.4 percent improvement. GM declined 22 percent from 336,462 to 272,004; Ford fell 17 percent from 133,398 to 115,615; AMC dived 35 percent from 14,281 to 9,594 and VW slumped 17 percent from 12,885 to 11,103.

For the final period, Ford fell 24 percent from 46,738 to 35,547; GM dropped 30 percent from 110,983 to 78,257; Chrysler was up 1.6 percent from 24,679 to 25,063; AMC fell 46 percent from 4,581 to an estimated 2,494 and VW was down 33 percent from 5,941 to 3,968.

HOWEVER, for the entire year, Chrysler's sales were off 28 percent and the five major domestic manufacturers were down 20 percent. Imports topped their 1979 record by 3.0 percent, giving foreign cars a bigger piece of the market than ever — about 26.5 percent compared with about 22 percent in 1979.

Combined import and domestic-make sales were 8,956,129 cars, a 15 percent drop from 1979's 10,528,168. The total made it the worst year for overall auto sales since 8,509,438 in 1975, when imports had about 18 percent of the market.

U.S. automakers accounted for 8,578,309 cars — the lowest total since 5,556,100 in 1961 — compared with 8,226,783 in 1979. Import sales were 2,377,820, up from 2,301,385 in 1979. As in 1979, Japanese makes accounted for four of every five imports.

PERCENTAGE comparisons for the year and the month are based on sales per day because 1980 and December had one more selling day.

The U.S. companies showed these yearly comparisons: Ford Motor Co., down 30 percent to 1,475,232 from 2,101,550; Chrysler, down 27.6 percent to 660,017 from 909,025; General Motors Corp., the nation's largest carmaker, down 16 percent to 4,116,482 from 4,887,281; American Motors Corp., down 8.1 percent to 149,

December was encouraging only for Chrysler, where the 7 percent rebates spurred sales from 57,034 to 63,127, a 6.4 percent improvement. GM declined 22 percent from 336,462 to 272,004; Ford fell 17 percent from 133,398 to 115,615; AMC dived 35 percent from 14,281 to 9,594 and VW slumped 17 percent from 12,885 to 11,103.

CHRYSLER'S improvement was concentrated in its small cars. Its intermediate and full-size models fell 25 percent during the month.

Among the importers, five of the six Japanese companies showed gains.

Autopsy slated on body found in recreation area

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — An autopsy being conducted today could determine whether a body found in a recreation area is that of a young man whose disappearance may have led to the slayings of his wife, a friend and a detective, officials say.

The body, found Wednesday with a gunshot wound in the head, was thought to be that of 22-year-old Larry Price, police said. It was discovered some seven miles from the spot where a farmer discovered the other three corpses stuffed inside a huge tractor tire.

Price was reported missing Monday by his wife Jawana, 21, and detective Ray Tate, 34, was assigned to the case.

Tate was last heard from Monday evening after he, Mrs. Price, and a male friend of the Prices, Holly Gentry, 28, went to the Price's apartment. They were found dead, all shot in the head, the following day on an Arkansas River bottomlands farm near Van Buren.

The fourth body was discovered in the Clear Creek Recreation Area near the Arkansas River, said Capt. Bill Reather.

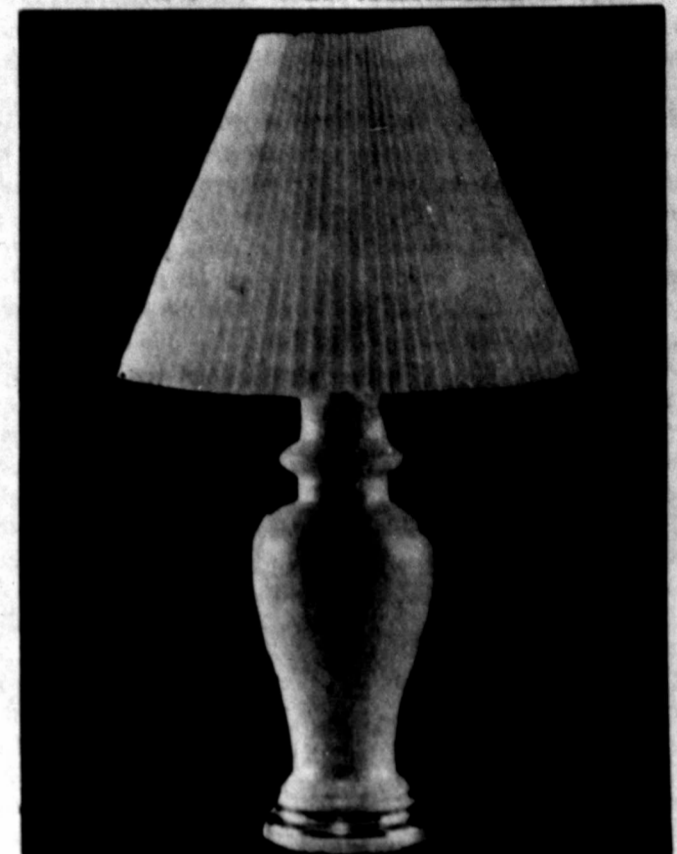

Police speculated that Price's abductor may have slain him and then returned to the apartment to wait for Mrs. Price since she might have been able to identify him.

Police on Tuesday arrested a laborer who previously had served time for kidnapping, assault and robbery.

Thomas W. Simmons, 37, of rural Van Buren, was charged on the police docket with capital murder and four counts of kidnapping. Prosecutor Ron Fields said he expected to file charges against Simmons today.

In filing the missing person report, Mrs. Price told police she left her apartment Monday morning while a stranger was discussing the sale of a car with her husband. Police believe the man inquiring about the car abducted Price.

Nothing is impossible

At the bottom of the mountain they found a great crowd surrounding the other nine disciples, as some Jewish leaders argued with them.

The crowd watched Jesus in awe as He came toward them, and then ran to greet Him.

"What's all the argument about?" He asked.

One of the men in the crowd spoke up and said, "Teacher, I brought my son for You to heal—he can't talk because he is possessed by a demon."

And whenever the demon is in control of him it dashes him to the ground and makes him foam at the mouth and grind his teeth and become rigid. So I begged your disciples to cast out the demon, but they couldn't do it."

Jesus said [to His disciples], "Oh, what tiny faith you have; how much longer must I be with you until you believe? How much longer must I be patient with you? Bring the boy to Me."

So they brought the boy, but when he saw Jesus the demon convulsed the child horribly, and he fell to the ground writhing and foaming at the mouth.

"How long has he been this way?" Jesus asked the father.

And he replied, "Since he was very small."

And the demon often makes him fall into the fire or into water to kill him. Oh, have mercy on us and do something if You can."

"If I can?" Jesus asked. "Anything is possible if you have faith."

The father instantly replied, "I do have faith, oh, help me to have more!"

When Jesus saw that the crowd was growing He rebuked the demon. "O demon of deafness and dumbness," He said, "I command you to come out of this child and enter him no more!"

Then the demon screamed terribly and convulsed the boy again and left him, and the boy lay there limp and motionless, to all appearance dead. A murmur ran through the crowd—"He is dead."

But Jesus took him by the hand and helped him to his feet and he stood up and was all right!

Afterwards, when Jesus was alone in the house with His disciples, they asked Him, "Why couldn't we cast that demon out?"

Jesus replied, "Cases like this require prayer."

Peru 'fishing' for new solution

By KERNAN TURNER Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The fishmeal factories, silent and empty, dot the coastline like monuments to the anchovy, the little silver fish that for decades supported Peru's fishing industry, once the world's largest.

Because of 20 years of overfishing, the anchovy population has dropped to such a level that it is unlikely to fully recuperate.

The Ministry of Fisheries estimates some 2 million tons of anchovies are left in the seas off Peru, less than one-tenth the amount which used to supply most of the world's fishmeal.

Recognizing the problem head-on for the first time, the ministry last year banned anchovy fishing and abandoned the traditional fishmeal industry, which supplied much of the world's poultry and hog producers, in favor of food fish.

Except for a 150-mile stretch north of the Chilean border, anchovy fishing is prohibited along Peru's entire 1,400-mile coastline.

"We won't touch them for several years," Rene Deustua, the fisheries minister, said in a recent interview with The Associated Press. "No one knows if this bio-mass will someday recuperate. But what is known for sure is that the population will never again reach the levels of the past."

Deustua said the number might grow to between 4 million and 5 million metric tons, enough to permit "a very limited catch."

"We ought to have declared an anchovy emergency" when the catch dropped from a high of about 15 million tons in 1971 to 3 million tons in 1973, Deustua said. "Fishing should have been prohibited for two or three years. Now it's a little late."

Deustua said catch limits will be based on recommendations from the Peruvian Sea Institute, an independent, scientific agency.

"They will tell me the volume they believe can be fished without endangering the species and that is the amount I will authorize," he said.

The minister's approach is a new concept in Peru, where the military regime which relinquished power to a civilian government in July virtually ignored the advice of the Sea Institute for 12 years and tried to maintain the fishmeal industry at any cost.

The ministry's position has been accompanied by a cut in the fishing fleet and its return to private ownership.

The military government expropriated some 100 fishmeal plants and 1,500 anchovy purse seiners in 1973, the year the anchovy practically disappeared.

By 1979, only 33 fishmeal plants and 500 seiners were left. Just seven of the fishmeal plants were in use this past year, all of them on the southern coast. Owners are selling their seiners or converting them for use in the food fish industry.

Scientists give two causes for the anchovy's disappearance.

One was the obvious overfishing. A U.N.-sponsored study by an international team of biologists warned in 1970 that the Peruvian anchovy fishery could not sustain a catch of more than 9.5 million tons a year. But the catches in 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970 and 1971 all exceeded that amount.

Water temperature also affects the population. Anchovies thrive on the nutrients in the cold Humboldt Current which sweeps northward from the Antarctic along the Peruvian coast.

But a warm current called "El Nino," The Christ Child, which originates in the Gulf of Guayaquil near the Equator, sometimes dips further south than usual, into Peruvian waters. When that happens, the anchovies die or swim south into Chilean waters.

Some figures: When Peru was the world's leading fishing nation and fishmeal was king in the late 1960s and early 1970s, annual catches of between 10 million and 12 million tons of anchovies were made.

Fishermen landed 2.25 million metric tons of fish in the first 10 months of 1980, including just 572,252 tons of anchovies. That compared with 3.3 million tons of fish — 1.3 million tons of anchovies — in the same period of 1979. A metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds. Fishmeal production during that period amounted to 385,710 tons, compared with 634,487 tons in the first 10 months of 1979.

Earnings from fish exports dropped from $364 million in the first 10 months of 1979 to $280 million for the same period of 1980.

Deustua said the vacuum created by the disappearance of the anchovy will be filled by the sardine, which has a higher economic and food value.

"The logical thing is to utilize the sardine exclusively for canned and frozen products and to restrict fishmeal production from the leftovers of the canning process and from the temporary fishing of other species...which are abundant," the minister said.

"I don't believe Peru will be a big producer of fishmeal in the future," he said. "Our policy is directed at increasing the fishing for human consumption at home and if possible for export. All of this will be done within the framework of conserving the species."

Japan studying biomass

By HIDEYUKI NAGASHIMA Kyodo - Copley News Service

TOKYO — Time was when the Japanese used to burn firewood to cook rice — their staple food — or to heat the bath.

They don't use wood as fuel anymore in this age of modern, efficient energies like electricity, city gas and oil, but are talking about making alcohol from wood and other plant material as an alternative energy source.

That is, of course, all because of ever shorter supplies and ever higher costs.

"The number of potential biomass is legion, including terrestrial and aquatic plants and vegetable waste such as wheat straw," says an energy expert.

The Japanese efforts parallel biomass energy research overseas — in Canada, Sweden, the Philippines and Thailand, to name a few countries — for making ethanol from wood scraps and farm produce.

Biomass energy just may be the wave of the future as a diverse, renewable energy source as nations of the world are trying to exploit every conceivable source of alternative energy from solar to geothermal power.

In oil-short Japan, which depends on imports almost entirely for its oil supplies and faces an acute need for alternative energies, the government and the business community are jointly undertaking biomass energy research.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry and the Agency of Natural Resources and Energy are sponsoring a semi-governmental biomass energy development project. Seventeen Japanese firms are taking part in the project.

Biomass energy is nothing new in itself. Brazilians have been making alcohol from sugar cane since colonial days and mixing alcohol with gasoline since the 1930s. In the United States alcohol made from corn is mixed with gasoline to make gasohol.

Iraq, Iran claims contradict

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An Iraqi army spokesman claimed Iran's counter-offensive was "rapidly running out of steam," but Iran paraded nearly 500 Iraqi war prisoners in Tehran to back its victory claims and reported nearly 300 more Iraqis killed or wounded.

Iraq said its forces blunted the northern prong of Iran's counter-offensive, turning back Iranian troops trying to recapture Gilan e-Gharb, on the slopes of the Zagros mountains 330 miles southwest of Tehran.

Baghdad Radio said the Iranian troops were retreating, leaving dead soldiers and wrecked tanks littering the snow-covered heights overlooking highways to the Iraqi capital, Baghdad.

Iraq said it was the Iraqis who were retreating at Gilan e-Gharb. Tehran reported intense hand-to-hand combat around the city as Iranian forces battled to dislodge Iraqi troops from the mountainsides.

On the southern front of the Iranian offensive, Iran said its troops pushed the Iraqis back several miles from entrenched positions in the Susangerd region, on the edge of the Ahvaz oil fields. But Baghdad vowed to turn Susangerd, which is 20 miles east of the Iraqi border, into a "final graveyard" for Iranian forces if they continued their attack.

No confirmation of the conflicting claims was obtainable since Western reporters were barred from the battlefronts. An Iraqi field commander turned back a group of foreign journalists who had been given permission in Baghdad to visit the Gilan e-Gharb front, saying he had not received the okay from the capital.

Iranian communiques have reported major victories since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Iran's commander-in-chief, announced the start Monday morning of the long-promised counter-offensive. But an Iraqi communique derided the enemy's claims, saying: "The fact that it had been technically possible for the Iranian armed forces to mount an ill-fated assault on a few-kilometers front out of a 1,000 kilometers (625-mile) battlefield which is inside Iranian territory is being presented as a victory."

The first Iranian communique broadcast today said about 200 Iraqi soldiers were killed Wednesday in fighting in the Ahvaz area and in a surprise Iranian attack near Abadan, the besieged oil refinery center at the southern end of the Iraqi invasion front. It was the first report of an Iranian attack in the Abadan area since the counter-offensive began.

The communique said about 90 more Iraqis were killed or wounded in fighting in another unspecified area, and that 19 Iraqi tanks were destroyed there, two were captured undamaged and an Iraqi MiG jet was shot down.

Meanwhile, an Iraqi war communique claimed 293 Iranian troops were killed Wednesday, 202 of them in the Gilan e-Gharb region. It said the Iraqis destroyed an Iranian armored brigade and 15 rocket launchers and captured 51 tanks, 13 armored personnel carriers and 30 vehicles in Susangerd.

Memo may figure into Lederer Abscam trial

NEW YORK (AP) — A key Abscam witness who reportedly was criticized in a secret government memo for "coaching" techniques used on the inquiry's targets was going to court today for questioning by defense lawyers in the trial of a Pennsylvania congressman.

Rep. Raymond Lederer has been accused of taking $50,000 in exchange for a promise to help two fictitious Arab sheiks with immigration matters. His lawyers contend he was entrapped by FBI agents.

Sources at his bribery-conspiracy trial say a Justice Department memo criticized convicted con man Mel Weinberg, hired to set up meetings, for "coaching" techniques used in a meeting with Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., the only senator indicted in the undercover investigation.

The memo reportedly was discussed by U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt and lawyers for both sides before and after Wednesday's court session, but the court record of those conversations has been sealed.

Defense lawyer James J. Binns alluded to the memo when he cross-examined Weinberg on Wednesday. Weinberg acknowledged he was criticized for his conduct during a meeting with "a senator."

At a previous Abscam trial, an audio tape of Weinberg "coaching" Williams was played in an attempt to show how politicians were instructed to "play act" at meetings with undercover agents posing as Arab sheiks or their bagmen.

"Tell him what he wants to hear. It's all bull," Weinberg told the senator before he met with one of the phony sheiks.

Under questioning by Binns about an Aug. 9, 1979, meeting with FBI officials, Weinberg said he had been accused of suggesting that unless words were put in the mouths of the bribe targets, the government would not have any cases.

But Weinberg said he denied having made the statement and called the Justice Department lawyer who made the accusation "a liar."

Also testifying Wednesday were undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso and Ellis Cook, a former law partner of Philadelphia City Councilman Louis Johanson and attorney Howard Criden.

Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti, Johanson and Criden were indicted with Lederer but their cases have been severed while they appeal previous Abscam convictions.

Actress visits starving Africans

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite her UNICEF work in other underprivileged parts of the world, actress Liv Ullmann found she wasn't prepared for what she saw in a two-week tour of East African refugee camps.

"I had my questions ready — you know, 'What are your hopes for the future?' And the answers you would get: 'I need food. Look at my child... We need water. Tell them about our children. Do they have children in your country? Tell them what our children look like.'"

The 41-year-old Norwegian actress came away from a two-week, pre-Christmas tour of refugee camps in Ethiopia, Somalia and Djibouti with a head full of images — pictures of withered, hunger-wracked victims of war and drought.

"I see women sitting, completely gray from dust, sitting and waiting to see if they will get food this day... You know, you don't have the verbal contact, so you take their hand, and you know it's a wrinkly and thin, tired hand," she said in an interview Wednesday.

"You're sitting close to the woman and you can see that she is your own age, but she is 100 years older."

Then, she said, "I met an old man — he was very old and very angry. He shouted, 'I'm hungry, I'm hungry, and I'm not getting food. You must tell them to give me food.'"

Airport manager's pay cut

CHICAGO (AP) — The new manager of O'Hare International Airport, the 27-year-old son of a top city official, will receive $18,000 less than the salary provided in the last city budget, officials say.

Mayor Jane Byrne promoted Mark Donovan on Jan. 1 from his Public Works Department job, which paid $38,200. His father is John Donovan, commissioner of streets and sanitation.

City Aviation Commissioner Thomas Kapsalis said Wednesday that Donovan would be paid $30,036 a year, instead of the $48,792 allotted in the 1981 budget.

The senior Donovan, a veteran of 24 years in local government, received a pay raise of $23,916 effective Jan. 1.

The elder Donovan's family also includes a son, John L. Donovan Jr. and a daughter, Theresa, 22.

... The children must have, but I must have, too. I'm still alive."

She complimented the old man on a knitted hat he wore.

"He was so angry," she recalled. "He just tore the cap off his head and put it in his mouth and said, 'You think I can eat this cap?'"

She said she felt it was "important to give these people a face."

"Because when it becomes too much numbers and too much tragedy, you just can't take it and it becomes so distant. But once you put a face on something, once you see a little behind, or a little hand, or a little stomach — once you see it, it could be your child. You suddenly feel the pain of that child."

Miss Ullmann said she is convinced the governments of the three African countries are doing their best to relieve the hunger and suffering of their citizens. But the problem must be borne by the world community; UNICEF hopes to raise $50 million to help the refugees, she said.

"It would take much less than one would believe," she said. "We are really talking about sums that are minimal next to what we spend on arms."

Miss Ullmann says she plans to file a report of her trip with UNICEF and she hopes her celebrity status will attract attention to the plight of the Africans. She says she will not undertake any film projects until next fall and in the meantime, she hopes to travel on behalf of UNICEF and write a book on the co-existence of poverty and affluence.

In the interview at Miss Ullmann's elegant apartment off Central Park West, the actress admitted that the African trip — and previous visits to Sri Lanka and Bangladesh — made her uneasy about her affluent lifestyle.

"But you don't change," she said. "There are very few people who are good people, like Mother Teresa, who are willing to give up everything. I don't think we should expect that of ourselves. I think a beginning, at least, is not to be indifferent."

Defense lawyer James J. Binns alluded to the memo when he cross-examined Weinberg on Wednesday.

Weinberg acknowledged he was criticized for his conduct during a meeting with "a senator."

At a previous Abscam trial, an audio tape of Weinberg "coaching" Williams was played in an attempt to show how politicians were instructed to "play act" at meetings with undercover agents posing as Arab sheiks or their bagmen.

Visitor 'challenges' local Lions

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

"I think America is a great place to live," said Everett J. "Ebb" Grindstaff in extolling Lionism and Americanism at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Midland Downtown Lions Club in Midland Center.

But Grindstaff, a Ballinger lawyer, said both America and Lionism will be taking on challenges to keep peace and humanity in the forefront.

"1980 is really going to be a challenge as far as America is concerned."

The Lions executive said he was "tired of hearing" such bromides as "It'll be worse tomorrow, and it was better yesterday."

"This generation that you're a part of is the best generation that ever was."

Grindstaff, board chairman of the Upper Colorado River Authority, backed up his best-generation contention by citing the increased numbers of hospitals, churches, doctors and other advances and signs of heightened technology and humanity caring for its fellow man.

"I think we have a lot to be proud of," he said. "People look up to America."

Grindstaff, who's second vice president of Lions

International, lauded the service organization, which is the world's largest and is chartered in more than 150 countries.

Due to its global impact, Lionism contributes to peace.

"We all have something in common because we serve our fellow man, Grindstaff said of fellow Lions worldwide. Lions International is "growing by leaps and bounds" outside the United States, he said. And to keep Lionism on the grow, "You've got to keep talking," he asserted. "You've got to keep impressing."

"We (Lions) care about making our communities a better place (in which) to live."

Grindstaff, who recently traveled to the Middle East on behalf of Lionism, said that the Iranian "situation has shown each and every one of us that we are now living in a global world."

"Whatever happens in Iran, Pakistan, Australian, Indonesia affects the lives of you and I. It affects our government. It affects our economy."

Grindstaff said his travels in the Middle East, where liberty and individual choice and freedom are restricted, made him further appreciate America and its relative peace and security.

And he said he got renewed appreciation for his hometown of Ballinger, a West Central Texas town of about 4,000 folks.

Ballinger, a farming-ranching community, is so relatively small and isolated that it's difficult "to locate with a compass or anything," he jest-ed. But he said it's a comfortable and safe place in which to live.

"You can go to the grocery store, leave your car running, go in and come out, and it'll still be there."

That was his tribute to Ballinger.

Everett J. "Ebb" Grindstaff lauds Americanism and Lionism. "We have a lot to be proud of," he told members of the Midland Downtown Lions Club Wednesday. Grindstaff, a Ballinger lawyer, is second vice president of Lions International, a worldwide men's service organization. (Staff Photo)

Much of volcano area reopened following 'lull'

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A decrease in seismic activity and a lull in the growth of the lava dome in Mount St. Helens' crater has prompted the reopening of much of the restricted red zone around the volcano to logging operations.

Hundreds of loggers who had been out of work for more than a week because of the closure returned to the field Wednesday after the state lifted the ban on entry.

Meanwhile, scientists studied the volcano's slopes and steamy crater. There was no seismic activity around Mount St. Helens on Wednesday, said Steve Bryant, spokesman for the University of Washington geophysics center.

Early in the day, a steam plume flecked with old ash rose 1,000 feet above the 8,400-foot mountain, but later the plume barely climbed to the crater rim, said Tom Corcoran, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman.

The pilot of a Forest Service spotter plane reported seeing the red glow of heated rocks inside the crater, said Corcoran.

The red zone — actually two red zones under the separate jurisdictions of the state and the Forest Service — around the volcano had been closed because scientists said that the mountain could erupt without warning, said U.S. Geological Survey geologist Kathy Cashman.

The Forest Service red zone, which extends 10-12 miles from the mountain and mainly on its east side, remained closed Wednesday.

But Ed Chow, state Department of Emergency Services director, said that the state red zone was reopened Tuesday afternoon from 12 to 20 miles from the mountain.

Nearly all logging operations are in the 12-to-20-mile range.

Some 650 Weyerhaeuser Co. loggers worked Wednesday about 17 miles from the mountain to harvest trees knocked down by the mountain's devastating May eruption, said Bob Williams, a Weyerhaeuser spokesman.

Chow said only people with special permits were allowed inside the reopened state zone.

"We feel people are going to be somewhat safe in that 12-to-20-mile zone and people there know that the mountain is very unstable," Chow said.

The mountain last erupted in mid-October. The volcano's May 18 eruption took the lives of 34 people and left another 28 missing and presumed dead.

Regional DPS commander announces man's promotion

Maj. Ira W. Dees, regional commander of the 49 County West Texas Region of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today the promotion of License and Weight Trooper Charles H. Bolinger to license and weight sergeant.

Bolinger was employed by the DPS Dec. 3, 1958. Upon completion of the Department's academy in Austin, Bolinger was assigned to the highway patrol service in Pecos.

He was transferred into the license and weight service in Pecos in Octo-

His promotion to sergeant was effective Jan. 1, 1981.

Bolinger will supervise about 12 troopers in 23 counties, from Big Spring on the east to El Paso on the west. The license and weight service enforces laws regulating size of vehicles, for hire transportation, leasing of commercial vehicles and transportation of hazardous materials.

Bolinger will replace Sgt. Herman Johnson, who was promoted to lieutenant Nov. 1, 1980, and moved to Midland.

Outstanding nominees requested

Know any outstanding young men?

The Midland Jaycees are accepting nominations for the Outstanding Young Man of Midland for 1980, also known as the Distinguished Service Award, until Jan. 20. In addition, the Jaycees are sponsoring a Boss of the Year contest.

Winners will be honored at the annual Distinguished Service Award and Jaycees' Bosses Night Banquet on Jan. 22 at Midland Center at 7:30 p.m.

Nomination forms for both awards must be in the mail by midnight Jan. 20. Forms may be picked up at the Midland Chamber of Commerce, or obtained by contacting Bill Sanders at 682-5201, or the Jaycee's office at 682-9952.

Outstanding Young Man nominations should be submitted to Bill Sanders, DSA Selection Committee, P.O. Box 870, Midland, Texas 79702.

The Boss of the Year nominations should be sent to the Midland Jaycees, P.O. Box 135, Midland, Texas 79701.

Hotel fire kills one

MONTREAL (AP) — An early-morning fire in the Constellation Hotel today left one person dead and another injured but firemen evacuated the other guests from the building, police said.

Police said the fire broke out on the ground floor of the 12-story building about 5 a.m. and was under control two hours later. They reported that a dead woman was found on an upper floor and another woman was hospitalized.

Flames reached only to the third floor, but smoke spread throughout the building, police said.

by Thomasville.

Distinguished design features of Old World elegance and opulence are featured in this collection of fine furnishings from Thomasville. Detailing in the classic mood and unusual wood treatments offer unique historic references rarely seen in furniture. A medium fruitwood tone with unusual depth and clarity brings crispness to the selected pecan and olive ash burl veneers, pecan solids and wood products. For crisp detailing and lasting strength, certain decorative parts and carved effects are of simulated wood. A special note of this collection is the magnificent traditional wall storage system. It will function as storage for a bedroom, dining room, living room or an attractive family room or study. In addition to the modular storage are handsome free-standing triple dressers, chests and a beautifully scaled armoire. In all the pieces the emphasis is on beauty, simplicity and refinement... elements that create furniture with "that Thomasville look."

Public sees economic reality

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You must by now have had your fill of the so-called experts proclaiming their beliefs about (1) the economy and (2) what they think you think about the economy and why you are wrong.

Why not listen to some people who never claim to be experts, and who are always shocking the experts right out of their forecasts because the experts didn't listen to them? To the views of ordinary Americans?

The New York Stock Exchange, which learned respect for ordinary views after unexpectedly losing (and partially regaining) 5 million investors in the early 1970s, put its ear to the phone and listened.

After 1,012 interviews in November it found, for example, that by a 61 to 35 percent margin Americans believe their economy is in a crisis, and that more than half say a depression is possible.

This point of view, you may note, bespeaks a greater recognition of reality than is sometimes attributed to the American public. A few days ago, for example, the esteemed Arthur Burns, former Federal Reserve chairman, publicly cautioned President-elect Reagan against declaring a state of economic emergency, suggesting it would frighten the public.

The next finding also might be viewed as a criticism of political and governmental attitudes toward the public. The finding: Eighty cent of Americans believe the political leadership — Congress and the President — have failed to understand and control economic problems.

The realism, and perhaps wisdom, of Americans shows through in another conclusion reached by the surveyors: The public does not expect any improvement in inflation and unemployment in the next year.

"Approximately 65 percent of Americans believe it will take three years or longer to reduce inflation and unemployment to 5 percent levels, and to balance the budget," states the study.

Though, according to the researchers, your views are represented in their scientific sampling, you might have some reservations about another important finding, regarding public patience, to wit:

"Sixty-four percent are willing to give (Reagan) three years or longer to implement changes. Fully 93 percent are willing to give his policies a chance, even if they personally disagree with them."

This attitude has not always been demonstrated. In fact, say some economists, one of the great difficulties facing the nation today is that economic change take longer to achieve than political change.

The American public also declares it is willing to sacrifice to solve the economy's problems. Again, it hasn't always been so; the consumptive '70s are testimony to the unwillingness to do so.

Still, this is the people speaking, and one lesson to be drawn from the recent election results is that leaders should listen because, on election day, the people have the strongest views of all.

Listening, the stock exchange students learned this: —Americans are feeling the economic pinch even more than they did in April, when a similar survey was completed.

—In the next few years Americans expect increased interest rates, tax incentives for business to build plants, import restrictions, credit controls and a tax cut.

—Americans favor lowered interest rates, personal tax cuts, tax incentives for business, import restrictions on foreign cars, and wage-price controls.

—Americans want a balanced budget. Fifty-one percent believe balance can be achieved even though taxes are cut. They feel a 10 percent tax cut would not be inflationary and would oppose it if it were. They say they would save or invest the money from a tax cut.

—While Americans support increased tax incentives for business they do not want to cut taxes on corporate profits.

—In overwhelming numbers people believe there has been too little cooperation between government, business and labor. Eighty-three percent say the three sectors should strive for more cooperation.

In all, not a bad program. The country's problems, it seems, may be caused not so much by ordinary people as by leadership.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Amount of sleep individual matter

Dear Dr. Solomon: Will you please settle a family argument? How much sleep should an adult get each night? I say eight hours; my husband insists no more than five hours of sleep are needed. What's the answer?—Mrs. V.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: I'm afraid there is no definite answer to your question. Some studies have suggested that seven to eight hours of sleep during every 24-hour period is the most satisfactory pattern to follow. However, the amount of sleep a person requires is very much an individual matter and cannot be established according to a formula.

Many people can get only five to six hours of sleep a night and feel rested and raring to go the next morning, while others can sleep for nine or 10 hours and still be dragging when they get up. Most adults follow the seven to eight-hour-a-day sleep pattern, with elderly persons generally sleeping less than they did when they were younger adults.

If I may add a word of advice: The argument is not important enough to lose sleep over.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I met someone over the weekend who has scleroderma. He says he is being treated for it although there is no cure. I'm not familiar with the disease, and I'm puzzled by what he meant. Can you shed some light on this?—Mrs. D.K.

Dear Mrs. K.: Scleroderma literally means "hard skin," and is believed to be caused by a narrowing of the blood vessels. It affects about 300,000 people in the United States, although this figure may be low since the condition is difficult to diagnose. Localized scleroderma, which involves the skin and the tissues under the skin, causes cosmetic problems and tends to restrict the patient's mobility. Systemic scleroderma is more serious and may pose a threat to life since it affects the organs, including the esophagus, heart, lungs, intestines, and the kidneys, as well as the skin.

Since the cause of the disease has not been established, there is no cure as yet; however, physicians do treat the symptoms in an effort to make the patient more comfortable.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If Down's Syndrome is caused by genetic factors, why is an older woman more likely to have such a child than a younger woman? It seems to me that if the condition is inherited, either the mother carries the gene for it or she doesn't, regardless of age.—Carol

Dear Carol: It is not completely clear why an older woman has a greater risk than a younger woman of bearing a child with Down's Syndrome. Some researchers point to the fact that women are born with all the eggs necessary for bearing children.

DEATHS

Evie G. Keading

BIG LAKE — Services for Evie G. Latham Keading, 80, of Big Lake, will be at 10 a.m. Friday in Big Lake Methodist Church.

Mrs. Keading died Monday in Ozona.

She was born July 15, 1900, in Robert Lee. She was married to Frank Keading Jan. 28, 1920. She was preceded in death by her husband and a son, J.F. Keading.

Survivors include a sister, Lillie Pittman of Bronte, and eight grandchildren.

Burkett Gilmore

RICHARDSON — Burkett "Pop" Gilmore of Richardson and formerly of Midland died today in a Dallas nursing home.

Services are pending with Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home in Midland.

Anna Hegbom

Services for Anna E. Hegbom, 87, of Wichita Falls, are pending with Hampton-Vaughn Funeral Home of Wichita Falls. Local arrangements are being handled by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hegbom came here to visit her daughter last November when she became ill and was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where she died Wednesday night.

She was born July 4, 1883, in Springfield, Mo., and had lived in Wichita Falls for the past 50 years, moving there from Kansas City, Mo. Her husband, the late H.H. Hegbom, died in 1960.

Survivors include a daughter, Betty Hegbom of Midland, and two grandchildren.

Mason Shurley

Mason Shurley, 76, of 1001 Tarrleton St., died Wednesday in an Odessa hospital.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Glass Chapel of the First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Dr. Charles Lutrick officiating. Burial will follow in the Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Shurley was born April 28, 1904, in Wilberton, Okla., where he grew up. He moved at the age of 19 to Wewoka, Okla., and established an electric shop which he operated for several years. Moving to White Deer, Texas, for 12 years, Shurley later moved to Houston before coming to Midland in 1954.

Employed with the Allied Chemical Co. for 14 years, Shurley was superintendent of Benedum, Weiner, Floyd and Wimberly Gasoline Plants of the Permian Basin.

He was a lay minister in the Methodist Church for 30 years. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Midland. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and a Consistory Member of McAllister, Okla., for over 50 years. He was a 32nd degree Mason of the York Rite. He was also a member of Kiva Shrine Club of Amarillo and a charter member of the Order of Demolay, as well as an active member of the Order of the Eastern Star for more than 40 years.

Survivors include his wife, Ione Shurley; a son, John Shurley of Jal, N.M.; two brothers, M.I. Shurley and O.L. Shurley, both of Holdenville, Okla.; two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be directed to the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center of Midland.

New Polish confrontation shaping up

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A new confrontation between Poland's independent labor movement and the communist government appears to be taking shape over the 40-hour work week.

The presidium of Solidarity, the nation's largest independent union with about 10 million members, was expected to give final approval today to a demand for a five-day, 40-hour work week with no reduction in pay.

The government, seeking a solution to the nation's grave economic problems, says the country cannot afford the 40-hour week yet.

Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who negotiated the agreements that ended last summer's wave of strikes and recognized the workers' right to form unions free of Communist Party control, said in a television appearance that the government was standing by its counterproposals.

They call for either two Saturdays off each month or all Saturdays free but with an extra 30 minutes on the job each day.

"Not everyone was unanimous in this complicated matter," Jagielski said. "However, taking into account all factual arguments, a close study of the possibilities and the economic aspects basic for every citizen, the government expects that its decision will meet with understanding on the part of the crews and trade unions."

Solidarity claims the Gdansk strike settlement on Aug. 31 promised a five-day work week with no extension of the working day.

Meanwhile, the government was grappling with a regional labor dispute in the southeastern corner of the country 10 miles from the Soviet border.

Workers and farmers occupying a government building in the town of Ustrzynki Dolne refused to negotiate with a government delegation led by Stanislaw Ciosek, a minister without portfolio responsible for trade union affairs.

Jan Wolinski, a spokesman for Solidarity's regional office in nearby Rzeszow, claimed the government delegation "cannot undertake any decision and is not authorized to sign any agreements."

He said the militants would not negotiate until the Warsaw government dispatched a "competent commission" to deal with their complaint that local authorities were harassing Solidarity activists.

Soviet border refused to negotiate with a government commission dispatched to hear their grievances. (AP Laserphoto)

Amvets want signatures for hostages

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

Jim Baker of Amvets Post No. 7 on Rankin Highway wants to give the Iranians a piece of his mind.

Baker is collecting Midlanders' signatures on a statement to be telegraphed to the Iranian students demanding the release of the 52 American hostages there.

Baker, who once carried a petition for the hostages' release some 350 miles as he walked from New York to Washington D.C., said the hostage situation has "gotten out of hand." He advocates sending a petition from the American people to the Iranian people in lieu of government confrontations which have been virtually ignored by those holding the hostages captive.

Baker said the students who send broadcasts "to inform the American people" should get a message from Americans saying, "the American people are informed (and) we demand the unconditional release of the American hostages."

After collecting signatures — at a charge of about 50 cents per person — Baker plans to send a telegram to the students Jan. 19, "the day prior to the inauguration." The charge is to cover the expense of adding the name to the telegram, he said. "Nobody's making a profit here."

Baker wants to involve other communities and states in his campaign for the hostage surrender. He plans to speak on radio shows to obtain publicity for his cause.

"The governments have gone back and forth (on the issue of release)," Baker said. "We need to let the Iranian Revolution know that the American people — strictly separate from the government — want the American people (hostages) back. If we the people let the Iranian people know," he added the hostages might have a better chance.

Persons wishing to add their signatures to the telegram campaign may do so at the Amvets center on Rankin Highway. Baker said schools and businesses may participate by collecting signatures and money which will be added to the list at the Amvets center.

Houston won't wave flag

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council has turned down a request for $900 to hire an instructor to teach a course in flag-waving.

The proposal suggested that an instructor from Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches come to Houston and give 30 workers in the wastewater division lessons on how to be flagmen.

Councilman Dale Gorczynski said, "It's no big deal, $900. But it's a principle."

The course would have included lessons in "The flagman, who he is and what he does; 'The flagman versus Environment'."

"We would like to get a unified 100 percent American program," Baker said. "We don't want it associated with the government or any particular person. We just want one telegram just stating: 'We demand the unconditional release of the hostages.'"

Derailment forces evacuation

ADDIS, La. (AP) — Officials of this Louisiana town, where the derailment of four chemical tanker cars forced a brief evacuation of all residents, say they had complained to federal officials months ago about the area's frequent rail troubles.

Four railroad tank cars carrying 30,000 gallons of toxic anhydrous ammonia derailed in a switching yard Wednesday, and two overturned. There was no leak.

It was Addis' 22nd derailment of cars carrying hazardous material in just over a year, said Mayor Carroll Bourgeois.

"We wrote to the federal authorities. They came and found some discrepancies, and we were under the impression that it was all taken care of," Bourgeois said. "And here we are 77 days later with another one."

The latest accident forced the temporary evacuation of all 1,300 residents of this community near Baton Rouge. A crane righted the two cars without incident within a few hours, and everyone was allowed to return home.

Anhydrous ammonia has toxic fumes which officials said are more lethal than chlorine if anyone is caught in a heavy cloud.

Tijuana also known for Caesar Salad

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — To most of the 12 million tourists who annually pour through this border city, Tijuana is best known for its notorious night-life, gory bullfights and bargain shops.

Only a few know it as the birthplace of the original Caesar Salad, one of the salad family's most celebrated members.

It happened almost half a century ago, at the downtown Caesar Hotel and restaurant, built and operated by Caesar Cardini, an Italian restaurateur.

According to published accounts, Caesar had concocted a salad dressing that became a favorite of his customers. As business boomed, he was joined by his brother Alex, a World War I ace pilot in the Italian air force.

In a tribute to the pilots at a nearby San Diego air base, Alex took his brother's salad dressing, modified it with other ingredients and called it "Aviator's Salad."

Soon, however, the popular, often-copied dish became internationally known simply as "Caesar Salad."

Today, the famous salad remains a major drawing card at the restaurant. The beige-colored, three-story hotel is a landmark along Revolution Avenue, Tijuana's busy main street.

Patrons have included such Hollywood greats as Gary Cooper, Elizabeth Taylor and Victor Mature, says restaurant manager Carlos Spinga.

"We used to have a menu with the autographs of all the famous people, but that was stolen," Spinga said.

"A lot of people, maybe 60 percent, just come to eat the salad," said Maitre d'hotel Tony Espericueta. Up to 150 a la carte orders of the $2.75 salad are served per day, mostly to American tourists, Spinga said. "The secret is the oil," said Raul Miramontes Najera, owner of the restaurant. "Cloves of garlic are placed in a gallon jug of olive oil for a month to add flavor."

Traditionally, Caesar Salad is prepared from scratch at the patron's table. That formality, however, has been phased out except on demand.

"Everybody's in a hurry today, so we make the dressing in large quantities," explained Spinga.

Although the original recipe called for anchovies, Miramontes said they are left out because "they are too salty."

"Some recipes called for bacon, too, but we don't use that," he said.

Here is the Original Alex-Caesar Cardini Salad Recipe:

Wash and dry 10 romaine lettuce leaves and refrigerate in a bowl before crisping. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Put six half-inch slices of french bread onto an ungreased baking sheet and bake until crisp — 45 minutes to one hour. Brush with 1 1/2 tablespoons from one-quarter cup of olive oil and return to the oven to brown, about 15 minutes.

Crush together three cloves of garlic and six anchovy filets and gradually add one tablespoon of the oil. Spread this mixture onto the bread slices, cut into cubes and set aside. Cover one egg in boiling water and cook for one minute. After placing the lettuce leaves into the salad bowl, add one tablespoon of fresh lime juice, one teaspoon of Worcester Sauce, quarter cup of freshly grated parmesan cheese, and the cubed bread, toss the ingredients and add salt and pepper to taste.

Cellmate forged petition

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The cellmate of convicted arsenic killer Katie Stricklin forged 166 signatures on a petition and letters sent to the governor seeking Mrs. Stricklin's release, corrections officials say.

Jack Bursack, head of internal affairs for the Corrections Department, said Tuesday the cellmate, Irene Jan Calhoun, voluntarily demonstrated her efforts for officials.

"Resident Calhoun readily admitted that she had signed all the names on the petition in the behalf of her cellmate, Katie Stricklin," said a report to Commissioner Harold Bradley from the internal affairs division.

"Resident Calhoun stated she only wanted to help her roommate Katie, mainly because she felt Katie was innocent of her charge and had spent too much time in prison for a crime that she had not committed," the report said.

Mrs. Stricklin, 41, was convicted in 1972 in the arsenic poisonings of her father-in-law and mother.

In 1979, then-Gov. Ray Blanton commuted a life sentence in her mother's death. It could not immediately be determined what term she currently is serving.

Mrs. Calhoun is serving a three- to five-year sentence for passing bad checks and a two-year sentence for a drug conviction.

The petition urged Mrs. Stricklin's parole and the forged letters sought clemency from Gov. Lamar Alexander, officials said.

"Forty of those names were relatives of Mrs. Calhoun, one was a recently deceased person and two were names of minors under 7 years of age," Bursack said.

The forged documents arrived prior to a state Paroles Board meeting Dec. 22 when Mrs. Stricklin's case was scheduled to be considered.

Authorities said at that time they believed some of the signatures were not authentic, but the internal affairs division report had not been completed. Her hearing was continued until Jan. 29.

around town

James (Jim) Anderson, formerly of Midland, and his wife Joyce, both of Houston, are taking an unusual vacation.

Joyce, a Houston attorney, and Jim, a used car dealer, will shoulder sea bags next month and join the crew of an old-time sailing ship in the Caribbean to spend three weeks pursuing whales.

They will shell out passage fees of $1,950 each for the dubious experience of standing watch, taking turns as galley slaves (the nautical version of KP), manning the helm and scrubbing decks.

And for entertainment, they will listen to the music and eerie song of the humpback whale.

The organization is sponsored by Earthwatch, a non-profit organization in Belmont, Mass., that mounts research expeditions for lay people to odd corners of the world.

The Andersons will sail on the barkentine Regina Maris, built in Denmark at the turn of the century and now outfitted as a research vessel. The three-master is one of the world's few remaining "tall ships."

An article in the Houston Post newspaper reported that the couple initially signed on mainly for the tall-ship sailing—not the whaling. Neither has ever seen a whale. But they have since been reading up on humpback whales.

Jim is a 1960 graduate of Midland High School. His mother, May Anderson, is a librarian at Lee High School.

MIDLAND GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY will meet at 7 p.m. today for members who want to come early, and at 7:30 p.m. in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ormond, 2606 N. "L," and Dessie Knott, 2604 N. "L."

This will be a sharing book workshop. Members are invited to bring their personal books for members to use, according to a club representative.

Books concerning states north of the Mason-Dixon line and all family histories will be at the Ormond home. Books about the Southern states will be at the Knott home.

PHI MU COUPLES party was held during the Christmas season in the home of Mary and Joe Davis, 1803 Holloway. Next meeting will be in the home of Dorothy Campbell, 3204 Stanolind at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Phi Mu's new to the city are invited to call 694-8212.

ALPHA DELTA PI alumnae association will be honoring the actives and pledges at a brunch Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the home of the alumnae president, Mrs. Danny Watts, 2802 Frontier.

Any alumnae new to the area may contact Mrs. Watts at 694-9865 for further information.

Clean your closets and simplify life

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If New Year's resolutions could change your life, could New Year's resolutions for the home change your home life?

In an effort to find out whether a few resolutions could make a decorative difference, we went straight to the people who ought to know — home-furnishings professionals who make their living by pulling homes together for other people.

What is your New Year's resolution for your own home in 1981, we asked a cross section of individuals who are designers, manufacturers and editors in the home-furnishings field. And their responses made it clear that it is easier to put somebody else's home in apple-pie order than it is to do the same thing for oneself. Resolutions to do better in 1981 were thick as flies around honey. Bebe Winkler, an interior designer in New York with a national clientele, has already started on her resolution.

"I'm finally getting my closets organized. It's getting embarrassing, since I'm about to sign my second lease and the closets are still a mess. With clients, reorganizing closets and storage areas and adding new ones, if needed, is one of my first priorities. It's typical to take better care of others than of oneself. But 1981 is going to be the year I get my things organized. Who knows? If I can get all my tennis things put away, it may even improve my game."

Carleton Varney, president of Dorothy Draper & Co., the New York design firm, and a decorating-book author, said, "I want a less cluttered life with fewer things to hem me in. So, I have resolved to remove all the curtains at the windows of my house and to do away with wall-to-wall carpet. There are so many simpler things you can use at the windows like screens or blinds or window shades. And area rugs that show the wood floors will look less cluttered."

Two designers have resolved to live closer to nature in 1981. Said Everett Brown, winner of the 1980 American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) designer of the year award, "I'm going to make it a point to keep fresh flowers in at least one room of my house at all times in 1981. And, I'll also get out some big vases and put green leaves in them in great masses for other rooms as well."

Allesandro, the home-furnishings product designer who was also cited by ASID for his design work in 1980, has the same idea. "I will live closer to nature. I'll have more plants and fresh flowers in my apartment in New York. And in the Catskills, where I have a country place, I am going to put a skylight in the ceiling so I can look up and see the trees. I will install outdoor lights, too, so I can look out and enjoy the view at night," he added.

George O'Brien, a design consultant in New York, is planning to "figure out a way I can seat 10 for dinner in my three-room apartment."

Douglas Sackfield, an interior designer, is "going to try to confine my work to the work area and not let it drift through every room in the house. I'm also going to decide finally on an oriental rug for the living room and rehang every painting that was taken down when we repainted recently."

Grant Simmons, retired chairman of the Simmons Co., says, "We're going to recover everything that has faded in the last five years from rugs to curtains to chairs."

Anne Anderson, executive editor of House Beautiful magazine, is "going to clean out, pare down and get my home organized." And Tom Losee, publisher of the magazine, is going to "add an exercise room to the house."

Barbara Ross, a designer in New York, will "start the 1980s with a home computer to organize my life at home."

Other designers offered more suggestions of projects they are planning to improve the quality of their home lives. They will be attending auctions to add to personal treasures, sitting down and sorting out all their photos, re-covering threadbare upholstered furniture and organizing their kitchen cabinets, wallpapering rooms and displaying their treasures so that they can be viewed and admired.

In other words, the home front in 1981 will be just one more battleground on which the eternal fight for self-improvement will be waged.

Club hears reading

Altrusa Club of Midland Inc. celebrated their December meeting with a party at Midland Woman's Club.

Hospitality Committee was in charge of the program and decorations for the evening.

Program was presented by Philip Coffield and Linda Trolinger, Midland High School students, who gave a dramatic reading before the group. Carol Hastings, president, led the group in singing. Laverne Saunders accompanied on the piano.

Lolita Guffey was in charge of the club's linen basket project for the year, and a drawing was held at the party for the linen and food baskets.

AT WIT'S END

How two little pillows cured the January blues

By ERMA BOMBECK

I don't know if I can put into words the condition of my house in January, but I'll try.

If Lawrence of Arabia and his camel fell down in the living room shag, no one would find them unless one of them gave birth.

"What's a nice girl like me doing in a dump like this?" I asked my husband.

"You weren't getting any younger and you panicked," he said dryly.

"If I could just buy something new it might motivate me to clean," I offered.

"Forget it."

"I know. I could move things around. A lot of people rearrange furniture to relieve the boredom."

"Not the plumbing in the bathroom again," he cautioned.

Yesterday, I ushered him into the living room and said proudly, "Does this look like a different room?"

He gasped, "Incredible. What did you do?"

"Well, I saw this article in a magazine that said if you made just two little throw cushions, it would brighten up your entire room."

"I don't believe it," he said.

"Actually, I used a couple of cushions I had around the house, bought some remnants of bright ribbon and made a basket-weave design out of them. The whole thing cost... are you ready? (He nodded numbly.) $3.46."

"It doesn't even look like the same sofa," he said.

"It isn't," I said. "The ribbon only came in pink which didn't do a thing for our royal blue sofa. I had it covered."

"And the chairs? You had them covered too?"

"You're teasing. Have those chairs covered? They weren't the style of chairs you'd put with satin ribboned cushions. That's like wearing a WIN button on your original Dior gown. These are new."

He paled.

"Watch the walls," I said. "They may still be a little wet. Actually they'll dry a little darker and will match the new carpet perfectly."

"Who would have thought two little pillows could have made such a difference?" he said weakly.

"Now that you mention it," I said, cocking my head critically, "the pillows do look a little tacky in this elegant room. They look like something I made out of remnants. Would it be all right with you if I bought two little ole pillows to brighten up this room?"

4-H members in clothing program

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the national 4-H clothing program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by Coats & Clark Inc., members are learning to create clothing and accessories at home.

They make articles of wearing apparel and accessories by crocheting, knitting or other needlework. Those in the program learn to analyze their clothing budgets to determine whether to buy new clothes, sew new fashions or update older ones.

Medals for excellence will be presented to four members in each county; one 4-H member from each state will receive an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, and six national winners will each receive $1,000 scholarships.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

HELLO FANS:
Inflation is hitting all of us...no matter who we are or how much we earn.

We are all trying to tighten the old budget, even though we thought the last time we did that, there was just no way to cut it any further.

Heloise is going to give you a few simple tips that I hope you will listen to and put to good use.

There really are ways to save money. It may be only a few pennies and nickels here and there but, believe me, they all add up!

First and foremost, recycle...and I mean everything!

Before throwing anything out, take a look at it and ask yourself if there isn't something you can use it for. For example, plastic gallon milk jugs...

Cut to shape, they can be turned into scoops and funnels of various sizes to use around the house and garage, thus eliminating purchasing these items.

The bottoms of milk jugs can be cut off and used for disposable plates. The remainder of the jug can be used to protect early garden plants. These are just a few uses, but you get the idea....

We all know the old hand-me-down syndrome.... change it around a little by trading things you are tired of with friends. Something old to you may be new to them. Works great with kids' clothes too.

The major thing I do to save money is to shop sales and buy in bulk when I can. I really mean this. If you see bathroom tissue, paper towels or toothpaste on sale — and the price is good — buy as many as your budget and storage space will allow.

When paper products and diet drinks are on sale, I may buy a case or two or 10 packs. I know that I am going to use it, so I might as well save three to four cents per can or 10 cents a pack.

This is a good way to buy canned goods too — in quantity when on sale.

If your family eats a lot of tuna fish, canned meat or a certain type of vegetable, when it is on sale for a good price, buy a case if you can.

Most canned goods will keep well over a year and you will save a bundle in the long run.

The last time tuna fish was on sale, I bought a case of it for only 89 cents a can and that was the water packed!

As you can guess, when it ran out and I wanted to buy some more, boy oh boy, how the price had gone up.

Somehow, knowing that we're not alone because everyone has to watch his budget these days, makes it a little easier to cope.

So, why don't you send me your favorite way to stretch your budget or your trick for saving a few dollars or making that pot roast last a third time around.

This column is here for you to benefit from, and also so you can share good ideas with the rest of us who are in the same boat. Hang in there and we will all make it, one way or another.

And I mean this! Hugs (hope you can feel 'em!) — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I'm about to become a "new" grandma for the fifth time, and I thought other new Grandmas would like to know what I do for our newest angel.

When I hear of the impending arrival, I usually have several months to shop for the baby, so each week when I do my grocery shopping, I pick up a bottle of baby oil or a bottle brush, baby cream, cotton balls, etc.

I don't miss the little extra spent each week and by the time baby is due, I have my own little "baby store."

When our angel arrives, Mommy is prepared and she thinks these things are a great gift. — Marie Fulton

Studying by radio review

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (AP) — Final exams are just around the corner. But, students can relax in their dormitory rooms, listen to their professor review material for the exam, then call him up with a question about an area that is not quite clear.

This has become a standard procedure for four classes at Pacific University this year. KPUR, the campus student radio station, is the link. It is heard only on campus and is being used by professors for some of their pre-examination reviews in larger classes.

At a designated time — usually late afternoon or early evening — the professor will go to the campus radio studio in Washburne University Center and give his review over the air. Any of his students may listen wherever they are on campus. They only need access to a radio.

When the professor has completed his formal review, he will be available for questions over the air. The station's phone number is used, and students can phone in their questions. The professor answers over the air. All interested students can hear both the questions and the answers.

THE BUTCHER

Future meat markets will offer meat for less money

By MERLE ELLIS

The meat market of tomorrow may be in California today. This past week I have visited two markets that could be the way of the future in meat merchandising. One, in San Jose, "Moore Meat — for less," the other in San Rafael, "The Meat Deal." Both are based on the same premise, "Do it yourself and save" or "Don't pay the butcher — be one."

Harlan Moore has been in the meat business for years. He has owned and operated old-fashioned conventional meat markets as well as modern self service stores. What he has now in "Moore Meat — for less" is, in a sense, a combination of the two — a new-fangled old-fashioned do-it-yourself meat market.

He provides the same kind of information to the consumer that the old-fashioned butcher used to provide, such as answering such questions as, "How do you roast this roast?" or "What cut should I use for this recipe?" But he doesn't cut it for you. You buy the whole sub-primal piece of meat and cut your own. By doing so, you save from 30 to 60 percent on your meat bill.

We've talked about sub-primals before in this column. They are the new method of marketing meat. The primal cuts of beef are divided up at the packing house. All of the bones and most of the fat are trimmed away and only the meatiest, most tender muscles of the primal cuts are vacuum sealed in plastic and shipped to the market as sub-primals.

BECAUSE THEY ARE boneless, the task of cutting them up is as easy as slicing a loaf of bread. You don't need a butcher to do it for you. And when you can save that much money, it's well worth doing it yourself.

Rib eye steaks and strip steaks were selling in the markets in my neighborhood this week for $4.79 to $5.49 per pound. At "Moore Meat — for less," the same cuts, the same grade — USDA Choice — were selling for $3.39 and $3.79, respectively. Of course you had to buy the whole sub-primal rib eye or loin strip, both of which will weigh 8 to 12 pounds; but at that price it's worth stocking up. And Harlan Moore is there to talk to you about how to cut it up, how to wrap it for freezing, how to cook it, to provide all of the information that the old-fashioned butcher used to provide.

Beef is not the only meat that is available at these newfangled meat markets. Both handle a line of boneless, vacuum packaged pork cuts at a bargain price. Boneless center cut pork loin was priced at $2.39 per pound. Have you priced boneless pork chops lately? Boneless veal roasts at $2.99 per pound — the cheapest veal I've seen in years.

The reason that such places can sell meat at those prices is, of course, because they have very little overhead. There are no butchers. There is no waste — vacuum wrapped sub-primals will keep for weeks as long as the vacuum seal isn't broken. There is no refrigerated cutting room full of expensive saws, grinders and meat wrapping equipment. One or two people can run the place, spending their time talking to the customers rather than cutting meat that the customers can easily cut themselves for a whole lot less money.

IF YOU DON'T have a market like "The Meat Deal" or "Moore Meat — for less" in your neighborhood yet, don't despair. You may still be able to save some money if you look for, or ask for, sub-primals in your local supermarket. Most markets get their beef in boxes just the way they do at "The Meat Deal." The only difference is that they cut it up for you.

Ring the bell and ask the butcher about sub-

Good steamed fig pudding with suet

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: Whatever happened to good old steamed fig pudding made with suet? When I was young we used to have it with hard sauce as a cold-weather dessert after a light supper. It certainly did stick to the ribs. Although I've searched for such a recipe in modern cookbooks, so far it's eluded me. Can you help? — OLD-TIMER.

DEAR OLD-TIMER: The recipe has eluded me, too. When I told a friend about your query, she offered to develop such a recipe based on my formula for old-fashioned plum pudding. Her recipe turns out a rich pudding; I can understand why it was served as the dessert for a light meal. — C. B.

1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 1/2 cups sifted fine dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. ground ginger
4 large eggs
1/4 cup brandy

In a large mixing bowl toss together the figs, orange rind, lemon rind and suet until well mixed. In a medium saucepan scald milk; off heat, stir in the sugar, bread crumbs, salt and ginger; set aside to cool.

Turn into 3 lightly greased 1-pound coffee cans; cover cans with foil held taut with string. Place cans on a rack in the bottom of a large, deep saucepot that has a cover; add enough boiling water to come 1/2 of the way up the cans. Cover saucepot and steam puddings in gently boiling water — adding water as necessary to keep it at the 1/2 level — 4 1/2 hours. A cake tester inserted through the foil should come out clean.

Remove foil and pour off fat on top of puddings — there will be about 1/4 cup fat in each can. Loosen edges and invert cans on several thicknesses of paper toweling to drain off lingering fat.

Garnish, if you like, with lemon or orange slices. Serve hot with hard sauce, cutting pudding into wedges; do not try to slice into rounds.

Makes 3 puddings — each yields 6 wedge-shape servings.

Storing and serving extra puddings: Tightly wrap extra puddings in saran or seal in plastic bags and refrigerate. When ready to use, unwrap a pudding or remove from bag. Return pudding to the can in which it was steamed; cover with foil held taut with string; steam until hot through — about 1 hour.

These easy and economical Pineapple Stuffed Franks add variety to your family's meals.

Pineapple Stuffed Franks add variety

Have you run out of new recipe ideas to serve your family that are popular, yet within your budget?

Pineapple Stuffed Franks are a great meal-time suggestion to help put economy and variety back into your menus. The franks, stuffed with crushed pineapple and wrapped with bacon, are brushed with a surprisingly tasty basting sauce of pineapple juice accented with worcestershire sauce and Parmesan cheese.

The bacon adds an appealing contrast in texture and helps hold the pineapple in place, while all the flavors mingle to tempt the appetites of kids and adults alike. If you wish to economize a bit more, use a half slice of bacon to wrap the franks.

For a nutritious vegetable accompaniment, serve Golden Winter Squash. It's so easy to add a real flavor boost to this bland vegetable by stirring in a combination of prepared yellow mustard and brown sugar.

Serve with hot cornbread, a crisp tossed salad and chocolate pudding for a satisfying cold weather supper.

PINEAPPLE STUFFED FRANKS

1 can (20 ounces) crushed pineapple
1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese

Fast food at home

For an easy peach cobbler, top cling peach slices in a baking dish with a mixture of oatmeal, butter, brown sugar and cinnamon. Bake in the oven until hot and bubbly.

Thread chunks of fully cooked ham or chicken and cling peach halves onto skewers. Grill brushing with reserved peach syrup, until meat is browned.

Delicious canned fruit cocktail, heated and garnished with a sprig of mint, makes a colorful and nutritious addition to breakfast.

For an unusual surprise, top golden cling peach halves with chocolate syrup. Place in the freezer just long enough for the syrup to chill.

Dress up a ham with golden peach slices or halves. Spice the peaches with whole cinnamon and cloves.

1/2 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
1 tbsps. prepared yellow mustard
1/4 teasp. salt

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally until squash is piping hot and flavors are blended, 10 to 20 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

GOLDEN WINTER SQUASH

2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen cooked squash or 3 cups mashed cooked fresh winter squash

1/2 cup firmly-packed light brown sugar
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
1 tbsps. prepared yellow mustard
1/4 teasp. salt

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Simmer, uncovered, stirring occasionally until squash is piping hot and flavors are blended, 10 to 20 minutes. 6 to 8 servings.

Mushroom Soup

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are all kinds of winter soups in this world, but when I was growing up in Canada there was one my family and our guests probably enjoyed most. It was a creamy mushroom and onion soup that was my oldest sister's specialty.

MUSHROOM AND ONION SOUP

8 ozs fresh mushrooms, rinsed and patted dry
2 tbsps. butter
1 medium diced onion
2 tbsps. flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper
10 1/2-oz. can condensed chicken broth, undiluted
1 1/4 cups milk

In a food processor with the coarse shredding disk, coarsely grate mushrooms; or knife-chop coarsely. There should be about 3 cups.

In a medium saucepan melt the butter; add the onion and cook gently, stirring often, until golden brown and tender. Add mushrooms and cook rapidly, stirring often, until wilted — have heat high enough so mushrooms do not give off their liquid. Stir in the flour, salt and pepper. Off heat, gradually stir in the broth and milk, keeping smooth. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, cook until thickened. Makes 3 1/2 cups.

Note: Because this soup is a gray color, you may want to sprinkle servings of it with minced fresh parsley or chives.

THE CRYSTAL OF CHERBOURG. AND INTEREST ON CHECKING N.O.W. ACCOUNTS.

TWO REMARKABLE NEW OFFERS FROM MIDLAND NATIONAL BANK.

First, let us offer you, as an elegant addition to your home, fine French leaded crystal.

THE CHERBOURG CRYSTAL COLLECTION.

Formed of 24% lead crystal, each piece of this glassware shimmers with exceptional clarity and brilliance.

From now until February 27, 1981, if you put $250 or more into any Midland National savings account, you'll receive, at no cost, a matching pair of this elegant crystal. Even better, you can receive two matched pairs with a deposit of $5,000 or more. And until May 29, 1981, each deposit of $50 or more in any savings account will enable you to buy another pair of crystal for only $6.95 plus sales tax.

You will also receive this fine Cherbourg crystal when you open your new Interest On Checking account.

THE INTEREST ON CHECKING N.O.W. ACCOUNT.

The money you might normally use for checking can earn 5 1/2% interest compounded daily and paid monthly, in an Interest On Checking account at Midland National Bank.

Effective December 31, 1980, Interest On Checking accounts will allow you to earn interest on all the money you keep on deposit, with all the conveniences of regular checking. And, if you keep an average of $500 in your checking or savings account, you will not be assessed a service charge.

OUR COMBINED OFFER.

Remember then, that from now until February 27, your $250 deposit in a Midland National Interest On Checking account or savings account will entitle you to a free pair of French leaded crystal. And that with subsequent deposits to your savings account, you will be able to purchase more of this fine crystal at a greatly reduced price.

We invite you to come to Midland National Bank. Because once you've seen the Cherbourg crystal collection and discussed the benefits of our new Interest On Checking account, the reasons for banking at Midland National will be crystal clear.

THE MIDLAND NATIONAL BANK

Assignments fall into place for Texas solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — House committee assignments appear to be falling into place for Texas Democratic congressmen at the start of the 97th Congress.

The two freshmen Democrats from the state — Reps. Bill Patman of Ganado and Ralph Hall of Rockwall — snared the major committee assignments that were at the top of their lists.

Patman won the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee's endorsement for a spot on the House Banking Committee, a position he was interested in because of his work on interest rates during his years in the Texas Senate.

Hall, whose district includes oil production areas in East Texas, was tabbed for a position on the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The steering and policy committee's actions normally are endorsed by the full House Democratic Caucus, which meets later this month to formalize the committee assignments.

Some second-term Democrats from Texas also received the steering and policy committee's approval for changes in their committee assignments.

Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock would take the third seat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee traditionally held by a Texan until former Rep. Omar Burleson, an Abilene Democrat, retired in 1978.

Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station would receive a seat on the House Budget Committee, which limits its members to serving three two-year terms on the panel.

Rep. Marvin Leath of Marlin would move from the House Public Works Committee to the House Armed Services Committee, an important step for a congressman whose district includes the giant Fort Hood complex.

Texans fared remarkably well two years ago when seven freshmen Democrats arrived in Washington and received committee assignments of their choice.

Gramm would take a leave of absence from the House Veterans Affairs Committee to fill the budget committee slot. His seat on the energy and commerce committee would not be affected.

"I have wanted this position since I've been in Congress," Gramm said. "I think that the key issue in the 97th Congress is going to be the budget."

Hance would have to give up both his committee assignments — on the House Agriculture Committee and the House Science and Technology Committee — to take the spot on the ways and means panel, considered among the most powerful committees in the House.

He said his top priorities as a ways and means member would be work on agricultural export policy and for the repeal or reduction of the "windfall" tax on domestic oil production.

University ordered to show 'Princess'

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald has refused to set aside her order that the University of Houston public television station show the controversial film "Death of a Princess."

The order, which gave the university 30 days to broadcast the film, will be appealed by the state to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In a Dec. 18 ruling, Ms. McDonald said cancellation of the program by KUHT-TV constituted prior restraint and violation of the public's First Amendment rights.

She had issued a similar order last May which was overturned by the appeals court. But the case was returned to Ms. McDonald and she once again demanded the university show the film.

The station canceled the program, dramatizing the 1977 execution for adultery of a Saudi Arabian princess and her lover, a few days before it was broadcast by public television stations in May.

The decision to drop the film from the schedule was made by Patrick

J. Nicholson, then a university vice president and recently retired.

Nicholson said the program lacked balance and cited national interests and "strong and understandable objections" by the Saudi government at a time of mounting crisis in the Middle East.

The original lawsuit was filed by Gertrude Barnstone, a former member of the Houston school board, who said the public had a right to view the film.

PUBLIC NOTICE MIDLAND COUNTY HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

On January 5, 1981, Midland County submitted a pre-application to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for 1981 Community Development Block Grant funds. These funds, if awarded by HUD, will be used to benefit low and moderate income citizens in our county.

A copy of this pre-application is available for review in the office of the County Judge, 200 W. Wall, between the hours of 8:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

Citizens may submit comments and objections to the County's CDBG pre-application directly to the Dallas Area Office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, 2001 Bryan Tower, Dallas, Texas 75201. HUD will consider objections based only on the following grounds:

(A) The County has described its housing and community development needs in a manner clearly inconsistent with available facts and data;

(B) The activities proposed by the County are clearly inappropriate to meeting the County's needs and objectives;

(C) The County has not complied with CDBG program requirements; or

(D) The proposed activities are not eligible for CDBG program assistance.

In submitting any comments and objections to HUD, citizens must plainly identify the source of their complaints and cite alternative data, if applicable, in correspondence addressed to the HUD Dallas Area Office.

Handicapped individuals who need special assistance in reviewing the County's pre-application should contact the Midland County Courthouse at 682-9481 to arrange for such assistance. For further information, contact William B. Anders, County Judge, at the Midland County Courthouse.

Allen Ludden recovering

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television game show host Allen Ludden says doctors and relatives "expected me to die" when he lapsed into a five-day coma, but "the good Lord and Betty White," his wife, pulled him through.

"I'm going to live because of her," Ludden, sounding weary but in good spirits, said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

The long-time host of "Password" collapsed while vacationing Oct. 7, two days after his 62nd birthday. Originally diagnosed as a stroke, his collapse was later determined by a Los Angeles doctor to have been the result of high levels of calcium apparently associated with a previously diagnosed cancer.

"The one that pulled me out of the coma up there was my wife, because the doctors up there had said, 'Forget it,'" Ludden said.

"My brother came out, my son came out, and everybody came out and expected me to die when I was in the coma, and Betty just sat there and held my hand and said, 'No he isn't, he's not going to go.'"

After three weeks in Monterey Community Hospital, Ludden flew to Los Angeles in producer Grant

Tinker's private jet and entered Good Samaritan Hospital, where he stayed until Nov. 15.

Except for brief walks and some Christmas shopping, he's been resting at home with his actress wife ever since, taking medication, drinking a lot of water "to wash this calcium out" and watching his diet.

Ludden said he has been advised against chemotherapy or radiation treatments for a malignancy that was mostly removed from his side during an operation last year.

He said the coma may have been triggered by the malignancy, but doctors think the calcium condition can be controlled by drinking water.

"I'm doing remarkably well. Every day I seem a little stronger and the doctor's very pleased," he said. "Whether I go back on the air is another thing, as far as 'Password' is concerned. They tell me I'm going to be operative and going again within the foreseeable future but I'm not ready yet."

"I'm planning very much to go back on the air," he added, "but whether or not I stay on the air, I don't know. Tom Kennedy (who is filling in on 'Password') is doing such a marvelous job that I think maybe Tom better take over."

Fire doesn't stop newspaper

BATESVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The newspapers delivered to Batesville residents this week began in Searcy and ended in Newport with a detour through Heber Springs.

A fire Saturday obliterated the offices of the Batesville Guard-Record Co., but the 9,100 subscribers of the Batesville Guard never missed an edition.

"Sometimes people in the newspaper business think we don't have any friends," said managing editor Roy Ockert. "We've found that we do."

The fire destroyed video display terminals, computerized typesetting equipment, printing presses, advertising materials and typewriters.

Other newspapers and businesses kept the Guard from missing an edition for the first time since its founding in 1876, said Ockert.

"The cooperation we've had from other newspapers and the general public has kept us going and made us realize how important it was to keep the newspaper going," Ockert said.

The Searcy Daily Citizen supplied the Batesville newspaper with Associated Press wire copy. Typesetting, paste-up and plate-making were done at the Arkansas Sun offices in Heber Springs. The Newport Independent printed the Guard.

On Sunday, the newspaper moved into temporary offices in an old company-owned building. Phones were installed, an old closet was turned into a makeshift darkroom and typewriters were hauled in.

Arkansas State University and the Forrest City Times-Herald loaned the Guard some typesetting equipment.

"We've had offers for equipment from all over the state, more equipment than we can use," Ockert said.

Batesville citizens and businesses offered money and supplies.

"We've got offers for typewriters, tables, desks, chairs and camera equipment," he said. "We had someone come in and give us $10 to help get us back on our feet. Someone we recently gave a donation to gave it back."

Ockert said the Guard hopes to have enough typesetting equipment by the end of the week to perform most functions at the temporary office. A news wire service machine was installed Tuesday.

The Guard will be printed at Newport for some time, Ockert said.

The Guard's business records survived the fire and circulation files were pulled from the burning building. Reporters' files were lost.

Despite the fire, Ockert said the newspaper's employees are determined to keep publishing because of community support.

"That's what one of our officers said," Ockert said. "She said the thing that makes you want to cry is not the bad. It's how good people have been."

Teacher likes old algebra texts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The telephone calls are rolling in at Stan Hartzler's home, and the University of Texas math instructor hopes each will yield another antique algebra book.

Less than 10 days after a column in the Chicago Tribune outlined his fascination with old algebra texts and growing anger with newly published schoolbooks, Hartzler already is reaping the benefits, and is getting leads on new additions for his current collection of 215 old algebra books.

Hartzler hopes the publicity dragnet will help him obtain enough books to "investigate why the (high school algebra) books coming off the press now are so bad."

His experience as a coach for high school math teams in suburban Chicago several years ago convinced him that algebra texts written between 1890 and 1910 are good enough for today's students.

After he started using a turn-of-the-century text to drill his math teams, they won five straight division championships. And classroom use of old books resulted in nine students scoring perfectly on national college entrance exams when 30 neighboring schools didn't produce even one perfect scorer, he said.

Less-than-brilliant students benefited from using the old texts, too, Hartzler recalled. "I can remember the names and faces that I had in remedial math classes. They had fine minds, but nobody had shown them how to do long division."

So, Hartzler said, he has acquired a "large disgust" for current algebra texts. He's irked by modern books "written by teams of people who too often never see each other to coordinate their philosophy and objectives."

"Previously, books were written by one teacher who wrote out of his experience — what had worked best for him. These books needed no revisions because they were good in the first place," Hartzler said.

Books of the educational era — "the heyday of organization," Hartzler calls it — often were written by a one-room schoolteacher. He said those books had to be self-contained because the busy one-room schoolteacher couldn't take time away from other students to present long lectures.

Hartzler's enthusiasm becomes overwhelming. "It is artful the way those students moved from one exercise to another. I get emotional about it, like when I hear Handel's 'Messiah.' Today, those exercises are not even written by the authors. Too often, they are written by high school teachers who live close to the publishing houses," he said. "They pay the authors less that way."

Hartzler is irritated by today's frequently revised math texts, updated with trendy layout and educational fadism. "It was 'new math' in the '60s, 'back to basics' in the '70s and now it's 'problem solving' in the '80s," Hartzler said. "I want to start a new fad — call it balance — and let's stop the pendulum."

Hartzler said he wants to "develop an informed demand for better books among those (state and school officials) who buy them. A lot of politics is involved here in Texas, and there's not much hope. But plenty of high school teachers are aware of how bad the books are."

Hartzler, who warns "I'm a rather outspoken little beast," suspects that modern math books are "being written for the teachers, not the students."

He sees the use of large, colorful graphics as "the most criminal of fads." Research, he said, indicates that "the more pictures there are in books, the less the kids learn."

Hartzler's algebra textbook research is designed "to show that there have been sudden changes in topics that have no foundation in the classroom."

And he wants to set up guidelines teachers can use to evaluate textbooks, policies to replace politics or high-pressure tactics of publishing firms.

Finally, Hartzler said, he wants to "listen to my customers," the elementary education students he's now teaching at UT, and "to teach in ways I hope they can understand, not in higher educational theories."

The old-fashioned math teaching he advocates may be on a comeback. Until then, Hartzler and his family — wife Shirley and her children Beth, Amy and Michael — will scour antique stores, Salvation Army shops, garage sales and junkyards for old math texts.

CRMWD shows gain

BIG SPRING — The Colorado River Municipal Water District delivered a half-billion gallons more water to its customers in 1980 over the previous year for a 3.10 percent gain.

This was not a record year by any means, for the 16,754,098,382 gallons was well under the peak of 20,357,040,622 in 1974. However, had oil company deliveries been the same for both years, 1980 would easily have set a new high mark for production. In 1974, when there were no restrictions upon oil repressuring deliveries, CRMWD pumped 7,016,668,122 gallons to these customers. Last year, with an almost complete cutoff except for brine wells and unprofitable low-flow of the river, the oilfield deliveries stood at only 1,833,178,082 gallons.

Last year's 14,920,920,300 gallons was a record for municipal deliveries topping the previous peak of 13,603,331,200 in 1979. If the 1974 oil deliveries were added to last year's municipal total, the new record would be 21,837,588,000 gallons. The 1980 cities' gain over 1979 was 503,636,000 gallons.

An unprecedented continuity of days of 100 or more degrees and no rain contributed to the record demand of the cities. Heavy rains in September replenished surface supplies, and by the end of the year deliveries to oil companies were being stepped up slightly and should gain substantially in 1981. Total of these deliveries for 1980 was 1,833,178,082 gallons which was 813,902,166 gallons less than the previous year.

During 1980, Midland took 3,949,728,900 gallons, up 3.38 percent; Odessa took a record 6,763,463,000 gallons, up 12.63 percent over 1979. Big Spring received 2,984,426,000 gallons, up 9.41 percent; Snyder 1,088,366,000 gallons (the first time it used more than a billion gallons in a year), up 16.35 percent; Stanton, 133,400,000, up 4.74 percent; and Robert Lee, 32,437,000 gallons, up 108.73 percent.

El Salvador, Guatemala Latin America's bloodiest

NEW YORK (AP) — El Salvador and Guatemala have replaced Argentina as the bloodiest violators of human rights in Latin America, says the Council on Hemispheric Affairs.

In its annual report on human rights released Sunday, the council said that last year "politically motivated violence" accounted for nearly 10,000 deaths in El Salvador and more than 5,000 deaths in Guatemala.

El Salvador's death toll, the report charged, was higher than all other Latin American nations combined, largely as a "result of government-condoned right-wing 'death squad' killings."

The council said that despite "shortcomings" in the Carter administration's human rights policy, "lives have been saved, repression has been reduced, and in a number of instances, a movement toward a more democratic society in Latin America has taken place because of it."

Twenty from MC named to Who's Who

Twenty Midland College students have been named in the 1981 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

They were picked by a campus nominating committee and editors of the annual directory on the basis of their academic achievements, community service, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

Those named to the select list, along with their activities, honors and the high schools they attended, are as follows:

Judi Anthony is a college work-study student in the college business office, a member of the Student Senate, a varsity cheerleader and a graduate of Lee High.

Brent Barrs is a Permian Basin Merit Scholarship recipient, captain of the varsity golf team and a graduate of Kermit High.

Sandy Burger edits the Chaparral Magazine and is campus newspaper photo editor, photography lab instructor, winner of numerous collegiate press awards and a graduate of Lee High.

Scott Detloff graduated from San Angelo Central, achieved high academic marks, and is involved with several campus outreach programs.

Pam Dieringer is a top-ranking academic student, an employee of the college's work-study program and graduated from Lee High.

Pam Greer is Student Senate Secretary, a charter member of Delta Beta Babes Service Auxiliary and a graduate of Midland High.

Brenda Heath is a member of the Student Senate and the Phi Theta Kappa academic honor society. She's also a member of American Chemical Society, student chapter, and a graduate of Lee High.

Jodie Hinds is a Student Senate member, charter member of the Delta Beta Babes Service Auxiliary, a leader in campus affairs and a graduate of Midland High.

Tami Jones is a Student Senate committee chairman, charter president of the Phi Theta Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and a graduate of Lee High.

Lydia Lee is president of Phi Theta Kappa, a member of the American Chemical Society, student chapter, and a graduate of Midland High.

Karen McCague is a member of the Student Senate, a "little sister" for the Delta Beta Chi service organization and a graduate of Lee High.

Laura McCoy is a student-study student, active in the Baptist Student Union, served as a 1980 BSU summer missionary and graduated from Lee High.

Bill Moore is a Student Senate committee chairman, vice-president of Delta Beta Chi service organization, works with the Permian Basin Shelter for Battered Women and is a graduate of Lee High.

Lety Rivas was 1980 basketball homecoming queen. She is a member of the Baptist Student Union, the inter-club council, a former foreign exchange student and graduated from Lee High.

Tim Rogers is a law enforcement officer and works on community social problems. He's a graduate of Lee High.

John Sconiers is a two-year varsity golf letterman and team captain. He is a good student and works hard to improve student-faculty relations. He's a graduate of Iraan High.

Virgil Slay is a varsity basketball letterman, a member of Black Awareness Club and is active in church activities and student recruiting. He graduated from Dallas South Oak Cliff.

Chris Smith is vice-president of the Student Senate, a member of the Phi Theta Kappa academic society, the varsity cheerleading squad, chairman of the inter-club council and graduated from Lee High.

Bobby Thompson is a sophomore varsity basketball letterman, helps with student recruitment, is a pre-med major and a graduate of Dallas Lake Highlands High School.

Kevin Willingham is a sophomore varsity basketball letterman and co-captain of the team. He's a member of the Black Awareness Club, a campus leader in many activities and a graduate of Chicago's Bloom High School.

Central YMCA sets gym, swim signup

Midland Central YMCA will take registration for the first session of the Winter Gym and Swim Program Jan. 15-16. Classes begin Jan. 20 and last through Feb. 12.

Member's fee is $6, while limited member fee is $12, for eight lessons of gym or swim.

Children 6 months to 2 years old can participate in a Water Babies Class on Monday and Wednesday from 9 to 9:30 a.m., which allows mother and baby to experience the fun of water acclimation.

Pre-schoolers, aged 3 through 5, are offered a "Time Out for Mom" program which allows Mom to drop off the pre-schooler for fun while learning to swim and tumble. Pre-school gym is offered from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. and 10:15 to 11 a.m. Monday and Wednesday.

Tadpole class is offered for accomplished swimmers, aged 3 to 6 years old, from 2:45 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

Pollwog class for beginners, aged 6 and over, will be offered from 3:45 to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday; minnow class for advanced beginners, aged 6 and over, is scheduled from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday; and fish and flying fish for intermediate and advanced swimmers, aged 8 and over, is set from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

Each class will be taught by a qualified instructor and each participant is supervised at all times while in the Y facility.

The progressive gymnastic classes will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday from 3:45 to 4:30 p.m. and 4:30 to 5:15 p.m.

A new gymnastics program for this session will be a Tiny Tumblers offered on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 to 10 a.m. and 10 to 11 a.m. for pre-schoolers, aged 3 to 5.

For further information, call 682-2551, or stop by the Central Y at 800 N. Big Spring St.

Busbee appeal dismissed

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals this week dismissed the appeal of William Durwood Busbee, who pleaded guilty May 25, 1978, in Midland County to possession of more than four ounces of marijuana.

Busbee was placed on probation for five years, after "adjudication of guilt was deferred."

On June 9, 1978, the state filed a motion to revoke that probation, on grounds Busbee had been guilty of possessing more than four ounces of marijuana on June 7.

Busbee was found by the court to have violated the terms of his probation, and was sentenced to six years in prison.

The appeals court commented in its opinion that there were several reasons why the appeal should be dismissed, including that Busbee's guilty plea "was entered as a result of a plea bargain," and the trial court had "made it clear...it was not granting the right of appeal."

Artist, moved by animals, seeks to move viewer

By JACK WILLIAMS
Copley News Service

To view an exhibit of Jacquie Marie Vaux paintings is to enter a wildlife preserve. Endangered species, breathing eternal life from water-colored canvases, invite your compassion.

And Jacquie Marie Vaux, living amid an animal menagerie in California's Marin County, solicits your commitment.

"I want people to be moved," she says. "I want people to appreciate the relevance and beauty of animals and to realize the world would be a much less beautiful place without them."

So Vaux, 36, paints and paints in her San Rafael studio, guiding her brush with her heart and her prayers.

More than 10,000 collectors enjoy samples of her work, sold throughout the world. "I have donated paintings to every animal organization I can think of," she says.

Many of the paintings were adapted from photographs taken by Vaux's husband Dr. Jim Damon, on the couple's trip two years ago to Kenya.

They brought back 3,000 photographs from their trip, which they took in a Volkswagen van throughout the jungles, plains and deserts of the African nation.

They encountered, among other things, an elephant that had designs on derailing their van, two jousting elephants blocking the road, and a tribe of Kenyans whose disdain is such that they raised their spears at the sign of a camera.

For three weeks, Vaux and her husband camped out in the bush, rising before dawn to photograph animals in their natural habitat, unencumbered by the constraints of man.

"The animals are so conditioned to seeing people in tour buses," said Vaux, "that I saw a lion hide behind a bus before attacking a wildebeest."

"If you get out of the bus or car, you can get attacked. Most of our photos were taken from our van. But if you go by in a car, they will put their noses on the window. They don't associate people with the vehicles."

Vaux's fascination with animals far preceded her interest in art. As a young girl growing up near Seattle, Wash., she was exposed to wildlife and the outdoors.

Today she has her own gallery and studio in San Rafael, not far from the home she shares with her orthopedist husband, two daughters and numerous animals.

Her current menagerie includes goats, ducks, geese, a pony, a rabbit, five dogs, four cats and a chinchilla on one acre of property in rural San Sema.

There are enough animals, it seems, to open a zoo. But zoos, with the restrictions they place on animals, are often not among Vaux's favorite places.

She prefers environments like San Diego Zoo's Wild Animal Park or Marine World Africa, south of San Francisco, where animals are displayed in their natural habitat. Many of the animals she paints are housed at Marine World Africa.

"I won't work from a dead animal," she said. "If I can't see the light in their eyes, I can't be moved. I can't feel with them enough to paint them."

Among Vaux's favorite subjects are cheetahs and a black-maned African lion. She loves zebras and cats, both domestic and wild.

Vaux works four days a week, usually six to eight hours a day, following the sunlight as it moves across her studio from the skylight. She alternates between sketching and painting — sketching a figure here, painting over a sketch there.

"I will never run out of animals to paint," she said. "I could paint for three years from the material I have from original photographs."

"My goal," said Vaux, "is to help the World Wildlife Organization raise funds for the preservation of wildlife and endangered species.

"Animals need all the help they can get. I represent them as truly as possible and each as an individual."

New vision measurement may aid many

NEW YORK (AP) — A new way of measuring the ability to see may offer hope for the millions of persons suffering from low-vision impairments resulting from congenital birth defects and eye diseases that can occur throughout life.

"Unfortunately, there are approximately 11 million patients in the United States who have decreasing vision due to irreversible eye disorder. Some of these visual problems can be corrected through surgery, medication, and/or optical aids," says Dr. Eleanor E. Faye, medical director of the Low Vision Service for The Lighthouse, the New York Association for the Blind, headquartered in New York City.

Dr. Faye, who is also chairman of the Committee on Low Vision of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, adds, "Although the majority of patients respond to optical aids, we have not been able to explain the lack of response in a significant number of people."

These are the patients for whom Dr. Faye and other eye specialists at universities, medical schools and non-profit centers such as The Lighthouse believe there is promise in this decade because of pioneering laboratory and clinical research endeavors in the United States and elsewhere.

At The Lighthouse, patients suffering from such diseases as macular degeneration (the most prevalent eye disease), primary open angle glaucoma, retinitis pigmentosa, myopic degeneration and inoperable cataract are participating in a major research study. These diseases result in loss of central and/or peripheral vision, or both.

"This three-year program, involving hundreds of patients, is unique because it is the first large-scale clinical study of a low-vision population," explains Dr. Arthur E. Gillman, Director of Research Development, The Lighthouse.

Primary funding has come from a $283,640 bio-medical grant from the National Institutes of Health, and additional funding has been received from philanthropic organizations such as the DeWitt Wallace Fund and companies such as the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

In explaining why it is imperative for everyone to support research endeavors such as this, William A. Thornton, Ph.D., an engineering consultant, says "One in every 19 persons in the United States suffers some degree of vision impairment, often with imposing psychological and social hardships. In measurable terms, the economic costs alone are in excess of $5 billion."

Contrast-sensitivity testing and computer analysis — already established in neuro-ophthalmology as a valid technique — is the centerpiece for the initial phase of The Lighthouse study. In this testing, the patient sits in a chair and indicates what is seen on a viewing screen. Instead of pictures or letters, the patient is shown a series of lined patterns, varying from sharp black and white to pale shades of gray. Patient responses are registered into a nearby computer for statistical analysis and then translated into graphs for interpretation.

The individual patient's ability to perceive varying degrees of contrast in patterns of different sizes is being measured. According to Marty Schmidt, Ph.D., and John Camisa, Ph.D., sensory psychologists responsible for the contrast-sensitivity testing, "This testing is able to furnish an objective evaluation of visual acuity and also provide statistically significant measurements. With it, we can obtain far more revealing data than is possible through the conventional eye chart."

In their view, "The computer is invaluable because it also measures very small changes in the ability to see, especially important in monitoring patients after treatment for various eye diseases."

These investigators suggest that because contrast sensitivity testing is both accurate and objective, it may well replace the current methods of vision testing for all patients.

"Neither miracles nor cures are expected for our low-vision patients," all members of The Lighthouse clinical research team are careful to explain.

Plains trip set to prepare for return to private life

WASHINGTON (AP) — With 12 days left in his presidency, Jimmy Carter is heading home to Plains, Ga., to prepare for his return to private life.

Carter, who was scheduled to leave Washington this morning, plans to look for office space and take care of personal business during the four-day trip.

White House press secretary Jody Powell joked Wednesday that the president had to perform such mundane tasks as turning on the water in his brick home, sweeping off the porch and turning on the heat before he returns to the White House.

The president and his wife Rosalynn spent three days in Plains over the Christmas holidays and looked over his mother's second home with an eye toward using it as office space. Mrs. Carter — Miss Lillian — spends most of her time at her other home, known as the Pond House.

The president entertained the Georgia congressional delegation at a White House breakfast Wednesday and was quoted as saying he intends to die and be buried in Plains.

"He's the most relaxed I have seen him in some time," said Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., "He plans to be very low key, at least for six months. He wants to spend some time with Rosalynn."

The congressman said Carter was so willing to chat that they had to break up the meeting.

"He indicated that when he could, he intends to be very supportive of the new president," Ginn said.

Carter has said he intends to write books and perhaps lecture at a college. He also intends to maintain an office in Atlanta, where he once lived as governor.

Mrs. Carter has said she intends to write a book as well. Her press secretary, Mary Finch Hoyt, said the first lady probably will have an office in the same location as her husband. It will not be in their home.

When the Carters went home for Christmas, they began returning some of the things they had brought to the White House. They are likely to do the same this trip.

Mrs. Hoyt said Mrs. Carter "is doing most of the packing" of their belongings, mostly clothes and a few personal possessions such as books. She said the first lady's personal papers are being boxed for the journey to Plains.

Careful probe of Haig urged

HOUSTON (AP) — Former State Department spokesman Hodding Carter believes there are "enough matters on record" to warrant a careful examination by the Senate of Alexander Haig, the choice of President-elect Ronald Reagan as secretary of state.

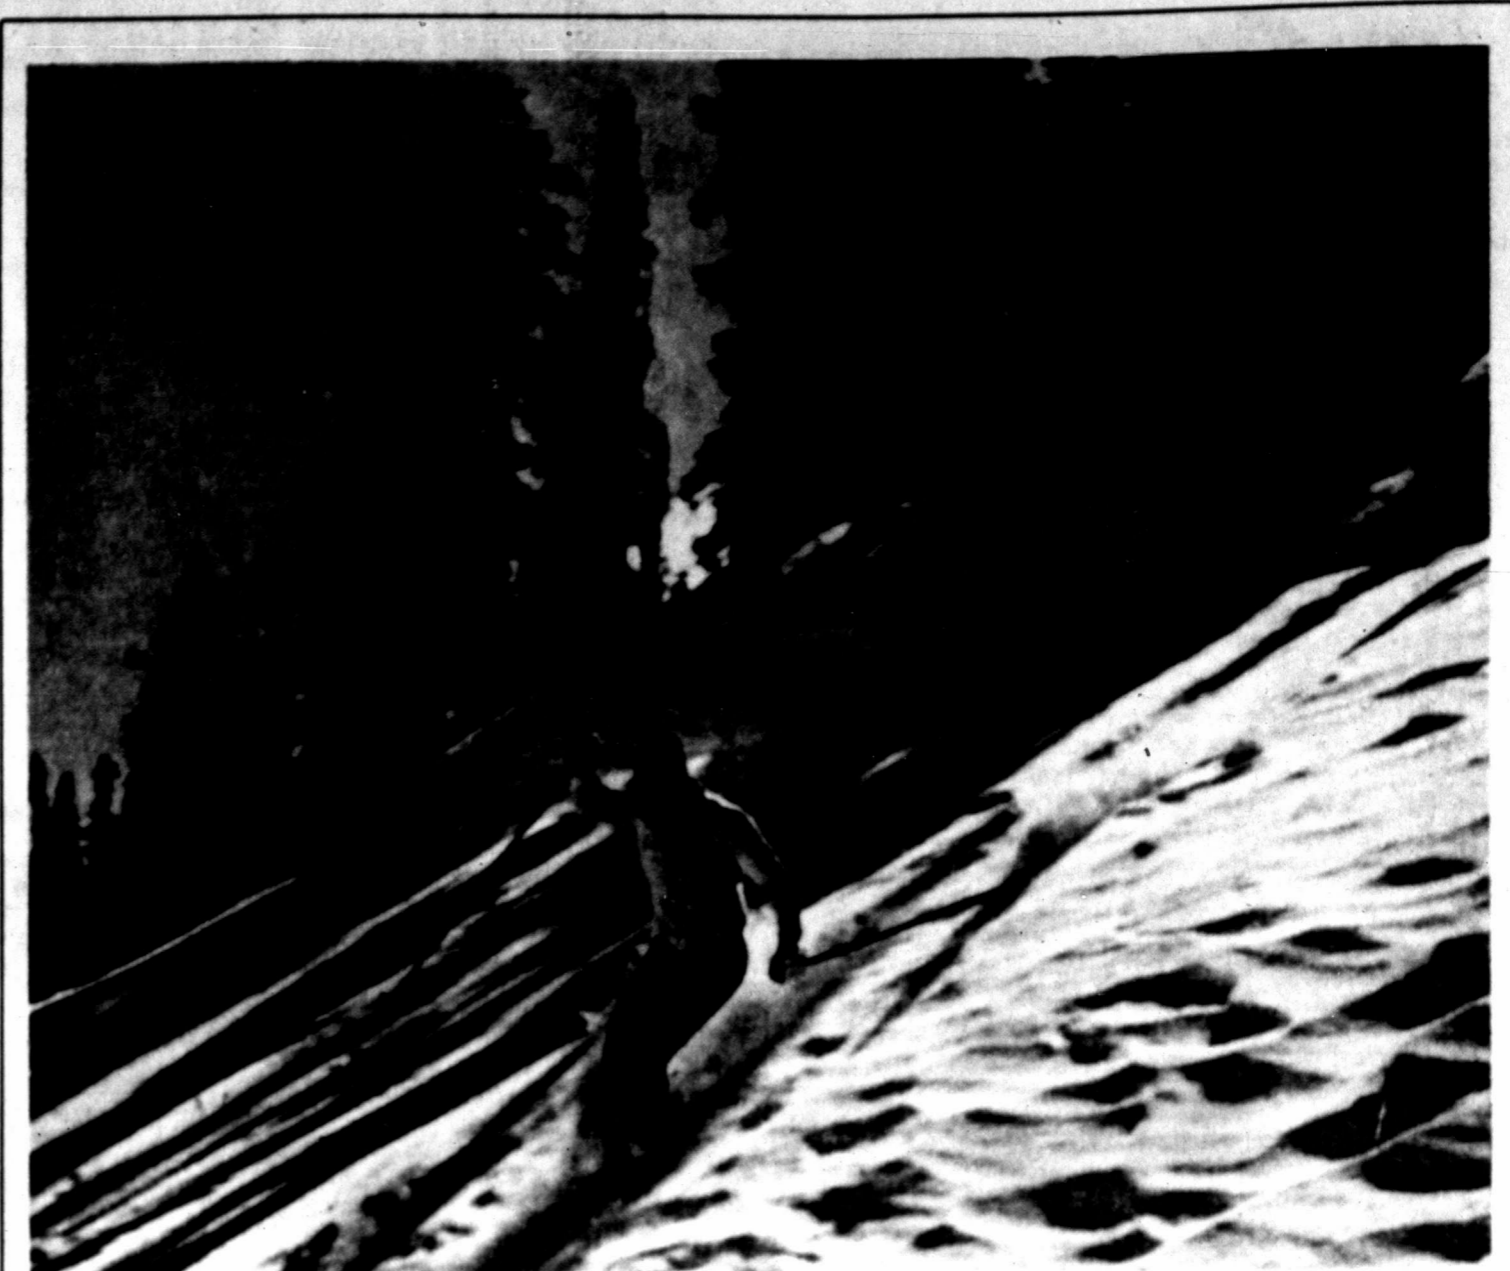

Carter, in Houston to speak at a public television awards ceremony Wednesday, said "all you have to do is look at (former Watergate prosecutor Leon) Jaworski's book — not just at what he has been saying about Haig lately — but what he said in the book. You will realize that he (Haig) needs to be looked at very closely."

The former state department aide said the Senate should dig deeply into Haig's activities during the last days of the Nixon administration.

Carter also was critical of national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, saying "he thinks of himself as one of the master global strategists of our time, but his notion of what our strategy should be changed every nine months."

Carter said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance tolerated Brzezinski's undermining efforts because "Mr. Vance was a person of intense loyalty to the president. He felt that on the ultimate issues the president agreed with him and was listening to Brzezinski only for political reasons — to watch out for his right flank."

Air freight discussion denied

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Anna Chennault today labeled "completely absurd" a report that she told Peking officials that Flying Tiger, the cargo airline she works for, wants to do business with the People's Republic.

Mrs. Chennault said she never conferred with any Chinese aviation officials during her stay in Peking over the weekend, or bring up any subjects about Flying Tiger Line.

"I am only a consultant for the airlines. I have nothing to do with its operation," Mrs. Chennault said.

Sources in Peking said Mrs. Chennault told Chinese aviation officials Sunday that Flying Tiger wanted to do business in China again.

They indicated the Peking government was receptive to the idea and felt such a foreign cargo line would be useful as Chinese-American trade increases.

Mrs. Chennault also indicated at a news conference before leaving Peking that her militant opposition to the Chinese communist regime was easing.

"I feel we must reassess our position and broaden our base," she said.

Mrs. Chennault and Sen. and Mrs. Ted Stevens arrived in Taipei Monday after a three-day visit to China. The Alaska Republican and his wife left for the United States via Tokyo Wednesday.

Mrs. Chennault will remain in Taiwan until Friday.

Her husband, Gen. Claire Chennault, headed the volunteer Flying Tigers, which flew for Chiang Kai-shek's government against the Japanese invaders in China before the United States entered World War II.

Four killed

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Four workmen plunged 36 stories to their deaths in a tangle of concrete, steel and wood when a platform broke away and dropped from the top floor of an office tower under construction, authorities said.

The accident Wednesday occurred as the workers were pouring concrete on the tower's roof from the platform, which was being used for the last time.

The bodies were flung onto stacks of cement blocks, iron rails, and buttresses in a stairwell on the east side of the building, called the Bentall Four Tower, according to one witness.

Hey Coach! What's the weather like up there at No. 1?

BY TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

What does the No. 1 junior college basketball team in the land discuss before practice?

Well, if you are Midland College, you debate the relative merits of who deserves to be No. 1, until the issue is settled on the "fields of friendly strife," naturally.

And to have a legitimate debate there must be a voice of dissent, who, to protect the guilty, shall in this case remain nameless.

But if you must know, sophomore Kevin Willingham drew immediate hoots and catcalls when he predicted Dallas would not make it to the Super Bowl. "Yeh, well, where are your Steelers and their bald-headed quarterback, huh?" a voice chided derisively.

Willingham proved he wasn't all bad by admitting he'd like to see an "All Texas Super Bowl... so Houston could beat Dallas."

The NFL playoffs, however, are about to take a back seat for the 14-0, No. 1 nationally ranked Chaparrals, who return to action at 9 p.m. today against defending national champion Western Texas College in the opening round of the ABC Classic in Big Spring. The winner will face the Howard County-Sul Ross JV victor in Friday night's finals at 9 p.m.

AFTER A two week layoff WTC represents an emotional return to action. The Westerners handed MC four of its six defeats last year. And then, if the Chaps survive the Westerners, Howard is waiting on its home court. Things don't get any easier next week when MC returns to WJCC skirmishing by traveling to Amarillo College Monday and then catching Howard and unbeaten, 13-0, No. 11 in the nation Frank Phillips in its next two home dates.

As for the layoff, Coach Jerry Stone observed, "Everybody had to lay off so we came out even."

Assistant coach Archie Myers believes going home, relaxing and watching NCAA basketball on TV might have been good therapy. "They could see those NCAA teams doing the things we've been showing them."

BUT BACK to No. 1, what's it like? "I've had high school teams that have been favored to win district, but nothing like this," says Stone. "I feel everyone is nipping at our Chaparral tail and some feathers are missing."

More seriously, "There's a fine line between confidence and overconfidence and I feel we're doing fine in that respect. The key is that we know we have a lot of improving to do and there is no reason to sit around patting ourselves on the back."

The Chaps reported back for a Sunday night workout and went two-days Monday and Tuesday before tapering off for the ABC with an afternoon workout Wednesday in making up for the lost time.

"It may have been a good thing to get away from it. They went home and heard some good things and heard how lucky they were to be on a team like Midland College, so they came back with a lot of enthusiasm," Stone said.

While No. 1 is nice, "Our goal is to be playing real well by the time we reach regional."

The Chaps' reaction to the return depended on where they went. Back home in the Bronx, big Ernie Tate left minus seven degrees and a chill factor of minus 30. For him, Midland, even in a cold snap, was balmy. Darnell Johnson spent the holidays in Sequin where it was balmy. Now his teeth are chattering.

BUT WHAT about No. 1? After all, unless you live in Tuscaloosa, Austin, South Bend, Columbus or Los Angeles, it's not the neighbor next door.

Coach, in your wildest dreams...

"We had eight players back from a good team last year and I thought if we did well in the tournament at Hutchinson, Kan., we might get voted into the top 10, but No. 1 is a surprise..." Stone said.

"But with Western winning the nationals and going undefeated, it did a lot for the reputation of this league. And word got around we had to be strong because of the way we played WTC."

But No. 1 now, isn't as important to Stone as it would be later, say late March.

And right now, all No. 1 does is make MC a bigger target for the bounty-hunters. For example, Stone rates Amarillo College's personnel on a par with anyone in the league. "And after a couple of down years, Howard's good again."

As for Frank Phillips, the scourge of the Panhandle, Stone says they have been playing New Mexico and Colorado teams, "so I don't know much about them, but their record speaks for itself."

As for the personal burden of being No. 1, Stone is still humble. "I've had some teams that won seven or eight, so I'm not strutting. That's a feeling I'll never forget."

sive Player of the Year in the National Football League for the 1980 season. (AP Laserphoto)

AP honors Raiders' Hayes

NEW YORK (AP) — Cornerback Lester Hayes, whose 13 regular-season interceptions were a principal reason for the Oakland Raiders' return to the playoffs, was named today The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year for the 1980 National Football League season.

Hayes came within one interception of tying the NFL's single-season record set in 1952 by Dick "Night Train" Lane when he played for the Los Angeles Rams.

He also has intercepted two passes in each of the Raiders' two playoff games, paying the way to victories over the Houston Oilers and Cleveland Browns and putting Oakland into the American Conference championship game, one step away from the Super Bowl.

Hayes, a four-year pro, received 26 of 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city. His teammate, linebacker Ted Hendricks, was second in the balloting with 18 votes.

The other players receiving more than two votes were Dallas defensive tackle Randy White with eight, safety Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles, seven, and New England linebacker Steve Nelson, Atlanta linebacker Al Richardson and Buffalo nose tackle Fred Smerlas, three apiece.

Along with his 13 interceptions (he also had four nullified by penalties), Hayes had 43 regular season tackles, nine assists, three quarterback sacks, 25 pass deflections and two fumble recoveries. Hendricks had 66 tackles, 19 assists, 9½ sacks, three interceptions, 16 deflections, four fumble recoveries and two blocked kicks. Hendricks also blocked the only extra point try by Don Cockroft in the Raiders' 14-12 playoff victory over the Browns.

"I've seen Lester beat by as much as three yards with the ball in the air and he still gets there in time to make the play," said strong safety Mike Davis, whose last-minute end-zone interception against the Browns saved the victory for Oakland.

Both of Hayes' interceptions against the Oilers in the wild-card playoff game were pivotal. The first came in the Oakland end zone, killing a Houston threat and preserving what was then a 10-7 lead for the Raiders. The other was run back 20 yards for the touchdown that sealed the victory. Against the Browns, he had one in the first period at the Raiders' 33. The other came at the Oakland 5-yard line on the final play of the first half, a desperation pass by Brian Sipe of Cleveland.

During the season, Hayes ran an interception back 48 yards for a touchdown against Buffalo and had a 96-yard touchdown return against Miami wiped out by an Oakland off-side penalty. And he had two against Seattle, one paying the way to a touchdown that triggered a 33-14 victory that snapped the Seahawks' four-game winning streak against the Raiders.

Not bad for a fifth-round draft choice out of Texas A&M.

"I was very disappointed to go that low," Hayes said. "I made up my mind right then and there that I was going to make the rest of the league pay for it."

Philadelphia licks wounds

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles are in sunny Florida licking their wounds in preparation for Sunday's showdown with the Dallas Cowboys for the National Football Conference title and a berth in the Super Bowl.

The Eagles' biggest hurts are at flanker, where rookie Rodney Parker is the lone survivor. Charlie Smith, having his best year ever with 47 receptions, is out with a broken jaw suffered in the regular-season finale against the Cowboys.

Backup Scott Fitzkee, who was out most of the season with a broken foot, broke it in the Eagles' 31-16 playoff victory over Minnesota last week-end.

At tight end, Keith Krepfle is slowed a bit after minor knee surgery late in the season.

And running back Wilbert Montgomery, the heart and soul of the Eagles' ground game, is repairing after head, thigh and knee injuries inflicted by the Vikings after a season in which he seemed to have more breakdowns than touchdowns.

The Cowboys, on the other hand, appear to have their offense in high gear. They scored 35 points to beat the Eagles Dec. 21, 38 points in downing the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC wildcard playoff two weeks ago and 30 points in their come-from-behind win over the Falcons in Atlanta last Sunday to gain the NFC finals.

The nationally televised game begins at noon (CST) Sunday at Veterans Stadium.

The Cowboys trailed Atlanta 24-10 going into the fourth quarter, but drove down the field three times for three touchdowns and a 30-27 victory. Their last three drives covered 217 yards on 19 plays — an average of 10.9 yards per snap.

"Hey, they're at their offensive peak right now, no question about that," said Eagles linebacker Frank LeMaster. "(Danny) White has come a long way and they have those great receivers and offensive line. I'm concerned about that, but I'm not going to go into the game concerned. We can play defense, too, you know."

"We're going to have to do a good job of ball control to keep the pressure off our defense," said Eagles tackle Stan Walters.

Mets sign Tom Hausman

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets signed pitcher Tom Hausman to a two-year contract and extended the contract of first baseman-outfielder Mike Jorgensen through the 1983 season, the National League club announced Wednesday.

Hausman, who in 1977 became the first player to be acquired by the Mets in the free-agent re-entry draft, compiled a 6-5 record in the 1980 season with a 3.58 earned run average. He worked in 55 games and hurled 122 innings, both career highs. — Jorgensen hit .255 in 1980, with seven home runs, including the Mets' only grand slam of the season, and 43 runs batted in. The 32-year old Jorgensen, who started his major league career with the Mets in 1968, also has played for Montreal, Oakland and Texas.

The Mets also signed left-handed pitcher Dave Von Ohlen to a one-year contract. Von Ohlen had a 5-4 record with eight saves for Tidewater of the International League in 1980.

"They were in a desperate situation each time and it's easier to open up and play loose when you're doing that," Walters said.

"That won't be the case (Sunday). We'll go in even — none of this 24-point cushion junk. And I think it will make a difference in the way both teams approach the game," Walters added.

The Eagles also spent last week practicing in Florida to avoid Philadelphia's icy temperatures. "I thought the week in Florida did us a lot of good," LeMaster said.

Bum is considered favorite for top job at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Team owner John Mecom Jr. said former Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips is the leading candidate for the coaches' job with the New Orleans Saints, but the job won't include the general manager's duties.

"Obviously, right now, Bum is my heads-on favorite, so to speak," Mecom said Wednesday after the second meeting with Phillips in two days.

"But he has not been hired. I have not talked terms with him, I have not offered him a salary. That's the truth."

HE SAID the Saints have four more interviews to conduct, but he said he has decided against interviewing George Allen for the job.

"We don't want to adopt his philosophy," Mecom said.

Allen, who took Los Angeles to the NFL playoffs twice and Washington to the Super Bowl, had been one of the names most frequently mentioned as a possible successor to Dick Nolan as coach of the Saints.

Allen's philosophy, frequently expressed, is that "the future is now." He is noted for trading draft choices — including choices he had already swapped away — for established veterans.

Phillips' emergence as the favorite also increased the odds against Lou Holtz, coach of the University of Arkansas, who said Wednesday that he considered the Saints job a plum and would have to consider any offers from Mecom.

Mecom also said he foresaw no conflict between his future coach and General Manager Steve Rosenbloom. Rosenbloom is in charge of personnel with the Saints, working through Dick Steinberg, whom he hired from Los Angeles shortly after joining the Saints before last season.

"I am not out to replace anything but a head coach," Mecom said Wednesday. "Bum and I have talked about that."

THE TWO are scheduled to talk again before the week is over.

Mecom said he is going to take his time picking his eighth head coach in the 14-year history of the franchise.

Phillips, fired by owner Bud Adams a Dec. 31 because he refused to hire an offensive coordinator, said the two men talked only in generalities.

"We talked more along the lines of what my theories of football are and what I think I need staff-wise," Phillips said. "We didn't go into anything about the people they've already got."

"I'm sure John's gonna want some things I might not want and I might want something they won't agree to. That's what negotiating is all about. We could talk for a week and then decide to drop the whole thing."

Rosenbloom said Phillips was only one of several candidates being considered for the job. A team spokesman said Rosenbloom hoped to get the list of candidates down to a group of finalists within two weeks.

HOLTZ SAID in a telephone interview Wednesday that he would have to consider any overtures from the Saints.

"I think I will not die at the University of Arkansas. It's just a question of when you're going to leave," he said.

"I think whenever an opportunity comes along, you have to weigh and evaluate it and look at the situation." He would not say whether he had been contacted by the Saints, but he did say he has always regarded the job as a good one.

"I think the Saints would be a great job," he said. "I think they have outstanding ownership, and I think they have a great future."

"But any rumors you have along that line, I don't think there's anything to them."

"I'm at the University of Arkansas, and I think the Saints have a tremendous amount of people they can call on who are extremely qualified."

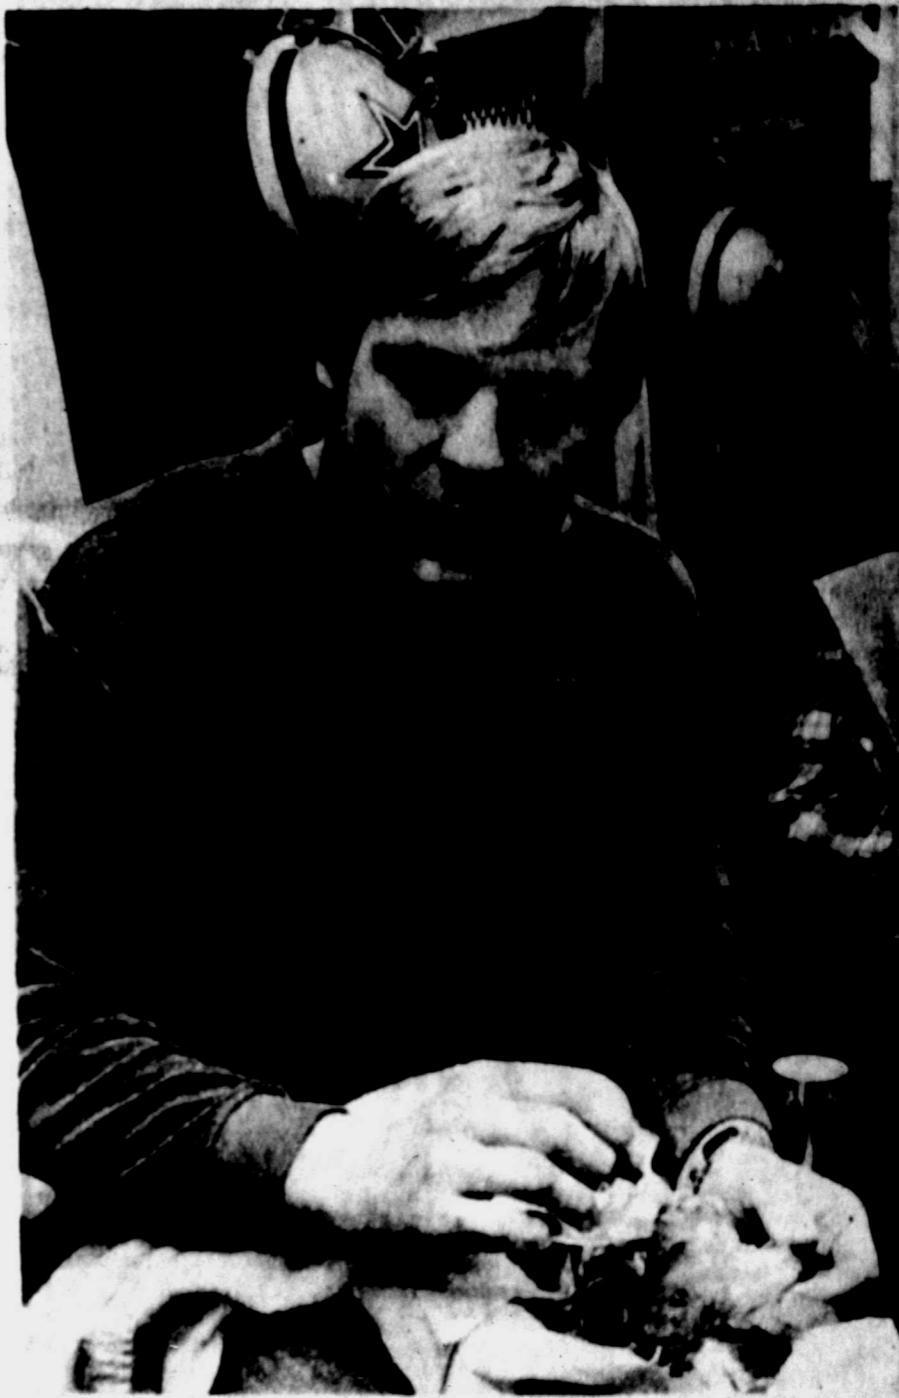

"But I've always thought the Saints are probably the best professional job you have in the country."

In New Orleans, Dick Stanfel said he still doesn't know where he stands. Stanfel was promoted from offensive line coach to head coach for the final four games of the season, replacing his old friend and boss Dick Nolan.

The Saints, 1-15, recorded their only victory of the season under Stanfel, beating the New York Jets.

His contract with the team extends through next season, and he said the team hasn't yet given him permission to talk to other clubs about a job.

Dallas defensive tackle Larry Cole eats lunch as he talks with reporters after a practice. Cole has been in a record 26 playoff games with the Cowboys. (AP Laserphoto)

Dallas tackle Larry Cole is NFL playoff survivor

DALLAS (AP) — Setting a record of 26 National Football League playoff games has told Larry Cole something about himself.

"I'm a survivor," said the Dallas Cowboys' defensive tackle. "Other than that I don't guess it's that big a deal."

Teammate strong safety Charlie Waters thinks it is. "Cole's record is a great one," said Waters. "To me, that's the ultimate — to be a part of a championship team so many years."

"Look at O.J. Simpson. You hear a lot of talk about individual goals in this business but Cole's record, to me, is a bigger accomplishment than all the records Simpson set. And Simpson never made it to the Super Bowl."

Cole, a 13-year veteran, said the 1980 season has been special. "I'm glad I played at least one more year," said Cole. "There have been some great memories and the last two games have been the highlight of my career."

"We gave the (Los Angeles) Rams a revenge whipping then the Atlanta game was something you're proud to say you were a part of."

Cole said that only in 1975 and 1977 has he played on a Dallas team with the attitude of the group which will play in Philadelphia Sunday for the National Conference title and the right to go to the Super Bowl.

"We came into training camp with a good attitude and if you don't have that then you're not going to win," said Cole. "There's no reason why this team can't win it all."

He said "last year we depended too much on Roger Staubach. This year we are better in every aspect of the game."

Cole said he respects the Eagles because they are team oriented like the Cowboys.

"They don't panic when they fall behind," said Cole. "In our two games with them, they really came back in the second. They are like a boxer who gets stung but bounces up off the floor. That's a thing I respect."

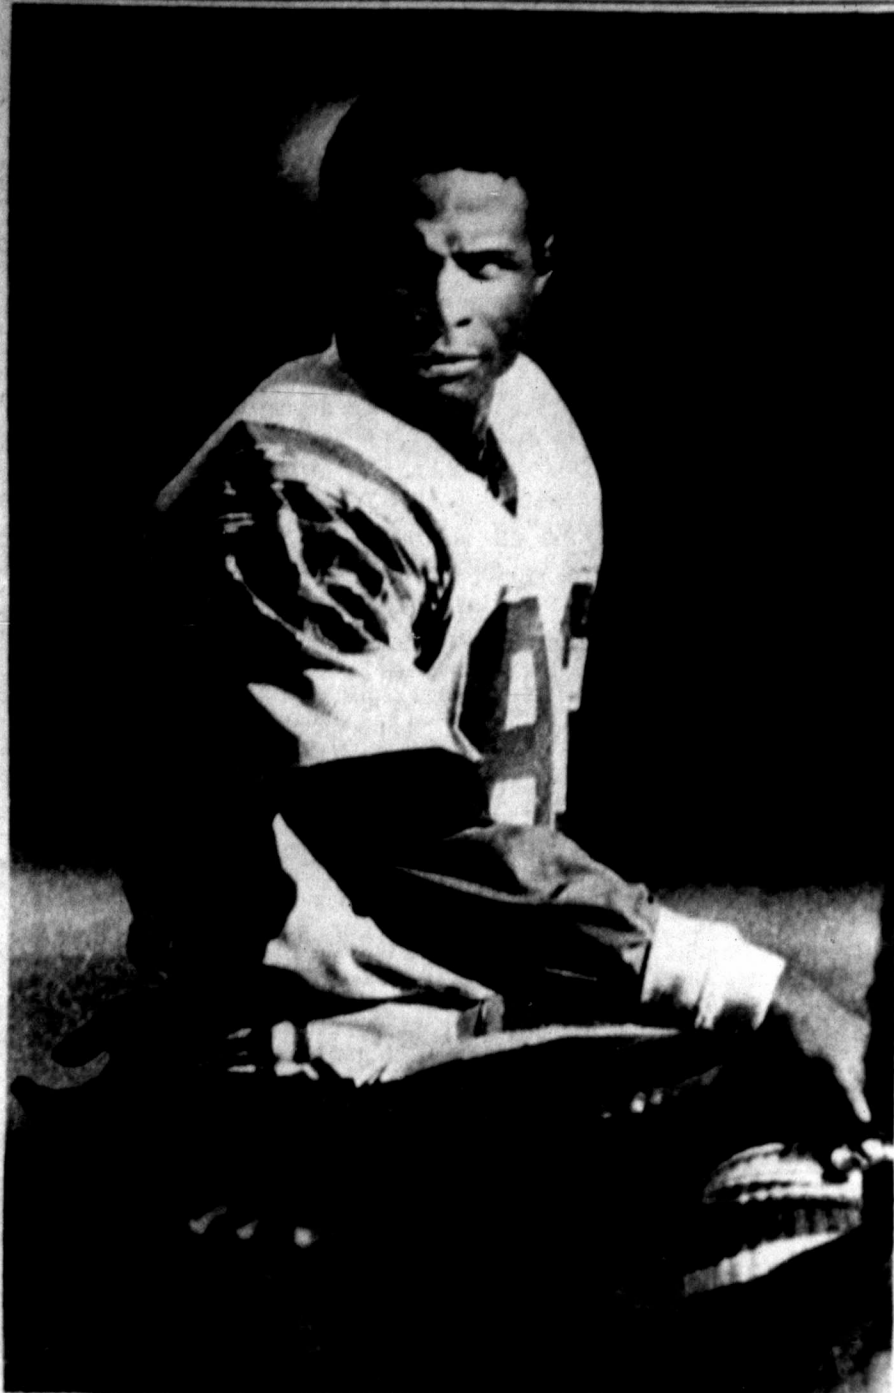

"Also, the Eagles are a team from coaching staff on down."

Cole said he finds it interesting that the pressure is on the Eagles to win Sunday's game.

"Our roles are reversed," said Cole. "Usually, it's the Cowboys who have been picked to go all the way. This year it's on the Eagles."

Cole said he will decide in April whether to retire.

"I just want to keep enjoying this season," he said.

Clairvoyants say Chargers will win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A trip to the Super Bowl is in the stars for the San Diego Chargers.

That's the reading from three San Diego clairvoyants, after consulting the position of the planets and their mystical powers.

Luba the psychic says San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts will be the difference in Sunday's American Football Conference showdown between the Chargers and arch-antagonist Oakland.

"It will be San Diego, but it will be very close," she said.

"I like the psychic vibrations I get from that fellow Dan Fouts. Also the number 11, the date of the game, is important and a good luck omen for the Chargers," said Luba, whose last name is Sunquist.

Sunday bodes ill for Raiders' quarterback Jim Plunkett, predicts Sister Nancy the Spiritualist.

"The other guy (Plunkett) is a Sagittarius, and Sunday will not be the right time for him to be playing against a team led by a Gemini (Fouts)," said Sister Nancy, a North Park spiritualist who specializes in bumps and palms. Her real name is Nancy Marks.

Throwing psychic caution to the wind, she said, "The Chargers will win by a big score."

Astrologer Joyce Wehrman, after studying the heavenly charts, concludes that "the planets will lean to Oakland" early in the game, but will eventually tilt toward San Diego.

Normally specializing in astrological forecasts of horse races, she sees a down-to-the-wire finish. The last team to score will probably capture the Super Bowl berth, she said.

Las Vegas oddsmakers, who depend on less esoteric sources, have installed San Diego as a 4-point favorite in the National Football League battle.

Oakland astrologer Madame Fatima shrugged off grim predictions of the Raiders' fate.

"I know nothing about football, but Oakland is going to win," she said.

Mustangs split with Grand Falls

GRAND FALLS — The Midland Christian Mustangs split a pair of basketball decisions to the Grand Falls-Royalty Cowboys in boys and girls games Tuesday.

In the boys contest, the Cowboys took a 55-45 decision while in the girls game, Midland Christian won, 43-27.

Travis McGraw and Larry Belcher led Midland Christian with 14 and 12 points while Garcia and Moore led the way for the winners with 16 and 12 points, respectively.

The loss gives Midland Christian a 3-6 season record going into its next game today at 5:30 p.m. against the Midland High Bullpup junior varsity. The Mustangs then play the Midland Lee JV's in the Lee Gymnasium at 5 p.m. Friday to round out action this week.

In the girls game, Moore netted 13 points for Grand Falls while Lisa Strickland and Lisa Crocker had 14 and 12 points for Midland Christian. The Midland Christian girls stand 2-7 going into the Grand Falls Tournament which started today.

Can Earl sit out five years?

HOUSTON (AP) — Witt Stewart, trying to negotiate a $1 million per year contract for Earl Campbell with the Houston Oilers, says Campbell would be valuable to the Oilers even if he became injured and couldn't play for two years.

"He would still mean something financially to the team," Stewart said Wednesday, explaining Campbell's demands for a new contract, although his present contract was rewritten by the Oilers last February.

"Just like when O.J. (Simpson) went to San Francisco, he took some class with him," Stewart said. "People would come out to the games just in hopes of seeing him run the ball twice."

Campbell ran the ball a National Football League record 373 times for 1,934 yards last season for his third straight league rushing title.

Stewart said if the Oilers continue to refuse to renegotiate Campbell's contract that currently pays him $500,000 annually including bonuses, the all-pro running back will ask to be traded or sit out next season. "There are no loopholes," Stewart said. "The Oilers can renegotiate Earl's contract, trade him or Earl Campbell can't play pro football for the next five years."

Campbell, who has five years remaining on his current contract, did not attend the news conference called by Stewart to discuss Campbell's demands and has declined all interviews that include questions about the contract dispute.

Oiler General Manager Ladd Herzog said last week the Oilers would not renegotiate Campbell's contract "under any circumstances." After giving Campbell a new contract last year, the Oilers said they would not renegotiate any more player contracts.

The policy led to problems when linebacker Robert Brazile walked out of training camp when the Oilers refused to renegotiate. Fight end Mike Barber was a camp holdout before signing his contract.

Stewart said many Oiler players are unhappy with their salaries and Campbell sees himself as a standard-bearer in breaking the club's policy of not renegotiating contracts.

"A lot of players went to Earl during the season and told him the only way he would get anything done was to go on Thursday and threaten not to play on Sunday," Stewart said.

"Now he feels kind of like the captain of the ship and if he can help himself he will be helping some of the rest of the players too. Walter Payton opened things up in Chicago and at Dallas, players were glad to see what Tony Dorsett did."

Bulldog, Rebel cagers meet at Chap tonight

The season is far from over, but you would probably have a hard time convincing Midland High coach Jane Young that the District 5-5A game at 8 p.m. today in the Chaparral Center against the Midland Lee girls isn't crucial.

After all, Shirley Stephenson's Rebs have won the 5-5A District championship playoff berth three straight years. And Lee is 2-0 at this stage of the first half cage race. For MHS, it's either catch up now or wait for some radical change of events down the road.

Midland High is 1-1 in 5-5A play after dropping a narrow 46-42 decision to powerful Abilene Cooper Monday. Cooper, Lee and San Angelo all stand at 2-0, so the Bulldogs will have to start making some breaks for themselves.

Lee, on the other hand, may not be as strong as in the past, but they did defeat 12-time winner Abilene High, 59-51, Monday and appear again to be making another title push. So the Rebs don't won't to slow the express at this point in time with San Angelo and Cooper both making some loud noises.

Cooper will face a stern test against Abilene High tonight while San Angelo is a big favorite against 4-14 Big Spring.

In the other district outing tonight, Odessa High, still in the race with a 1-1 mark (that loss coming to Midland High), will be the favorite against 0-2 Odessa Permian.

With three teams at the 2-0 mark and two at 1-1, a loss tonight by Midland High would almost doom any hopes the Bulldogs have for the first half title. They would have to regroup.

Lee needs to keep pace, but still face both San Angelo and Cooper in the first half. MHS also has a battle left with San Angelo, so they could be back in the thick of the race with a win over Lee tonight.

5-5A Girls Standings

San Angelo	2	0	16	1
Abilene Cooper	2	0	10	6

Midland High	1	1	8	11
Odessa High	1	1	6	11
Abilene	0	2	12	6
Odessa Permian	0	2	7	12
Big Spring	0	2	1	14

Monday's results: Midland Lee 51, Permian 41, Midland 50, Permian 38, Abilene Cooper 75, Big Spring 39, San Angelo 56, Abilene 32.

Thursday's games: Midland vs. Midland Lee at Chaparral Center, Odessa-Odessa Permian, Abilene-Abilene Cooper, San Angelo-Big Spring.

Fuel Fighter

Our metric sized 721 is called the Fuel Fighter because its easy-rolling radial construction is very fuel efficient. Designed to run at 35 pounds of air pressure, the 721 can save you 8 to 10% in gasoline costs compared to our non-radial tires at steady highway speeds. It also provides long treadwear and superb road handling.

Denver denies Gilman power behind throne trade rumors

DENVER (AP) — A Denver Nuggets spokesman has denied reports that the club is attempting to trade David Thompson to the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported this week that the Nuggets offered Thompson to the Lakers for guard Norm Nixon and the 1982 first-round draft choice Los Angeles acquired from Cleveland a year ago. The Lakers reportedly offered Jim Chones and $1 million.

"I don't see how we can make any trade when we're going through an ownership change," said Denver spokesman Tom Hohensee. "I don't know anything about this reported trade. I would be surprised."

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles' coach Dick Vermeil offered an apt description of Sid Gilman when he described the 69-year-old offensive innovator as "a coach's coach."

"I originally brought Sid in to do research and development," Vermeil recalled before a practice here at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers training complex.

The Eagles came south Tuesday to practice in a temperate climate for Sunday's National Conference championship playoff against the Dallas Cowboys in Philadelphia.

"As I worked with Sid I wanted to utilize him more on the field," Vermeil related. "I thought I was wasting him. I had him help me with the quarterback and the offense."

He's been in the game so long and seen so much I felt he could help me get a better depth quicker because of my brief time in the National Football League.

When Sid makes an observation you know it's based on years of experience. And he's pass conscious. He provides me with more of a total concept of the game."

Actually, Gilman is a quiet power behind the throne in the five year rebuilding program that has taken the Eagles from a league patsy to the door of Super Bowl XV in New Orleans Jan. 25.

You couldn't get Gilman to admit that. He prefers to be the silent man. He wants no credit. He doesn't even want to be interviewed, lest it be construed as infringing on Vermeil's domain.

Gilman describes Vermeil as "a great coach, fantastic." He says the entire Eagles' staff is bright and knowledgeable.

"This is an organization destined for great success," says Gilman who came out of retirement to help Vermeil after undergoing heart surgery involving six bypasses.

Gilman, a native of Minneapolis and a graduate of Ohio State, has had a varied career in both college and professional football. He was an assistant at Dennison, Ohio State, Miami (Ohio) and West Point.

He later was head coach at Miami, and Cincinnati where he never won fewer than eight games in a season. He came into the NFL in 1955 as head coach of the Los Angeles Rams. Later, he moved to the old American Football League with the Los Angeles entry, then to San Diego.

In 11 years with the Chargers his team won five AFL Western Division titles and one league championship. He retired in 1974 after being named NFL coach of the year with Houston.

Gilman is considered the innovator of the comeback pass reception, where you run off the defender then get in front of him to catch the ball.

"It's just common sense coming back for the football, just common sense," says the soft speaking Gilman.

"If you wait the defender will recover regardless of how badly you beat him," Gilman explains.

Gilman claims he has no ambitions to again be a head coach or general manager. He says that just showing up everyday and not having his name in the obituary column is his reward these days.

As for Sunday's game against Dallas, Gilman lamented the Eagles' physical condition, particularly the injury to a pair of wide receivers.

"We've got a great passer (Ron Jaworski) and he has to have somebody to pass to. But Vermeil will find a way."

And Sid Gilman may help him.

Hohensee said if negotiations between the Nuggets' owners and New York businessman Peter Gilbert fall through, "then the lines for trade will be open again."

Hohensee quoted Nuggets' President and General Manager Carl Scheer as saying Tuesday that the team has talked about trading several players in the past two months.

Vermeil said he would be surprised if the trade rumors were true.

"I don't see how we can make any trade when we're going through an ownership change," said Denver spokesman Tom Hohensee. "I don't know anything about this reported trade. I would be surprised."

Rutherford joins NASCAR racing circuit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Three-time Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford announced plans Wednesday to join the NASCAR Grand National circuit.

"I enjoy this type of racing, it's southern style with good ol' boys and the whole scene," said the winner of the 1980 Driver of the Year Award.

Until now, Rutherford has made his mark in Indy-type racing. But the 1980 Indy-type racing champion said at a news conference that he will be competing in 12-to-14 Grand National races with the Levi Garrett Racing Team.

Levi Garrett, a brand of chewing tobacco, is sponsoring Johnny's NASCAR venture. Although racing a heavy NASCAR schedule, Rutherford will continue to compete with Midland car owner Jim Hall on the Indy circuit.

The 42-year-old Fort Worth, Texas, native said he and car owner Ron Benfield had been planning the team for two years and it was "a dream come true."

Rutherford's first effort with the Charlotte-based team will be the Daytona 500 on Feb. 15. Rutherford has previously driven 22 Grand National races. His best finish was a first-place victory in a 100-mile qualifying race preceding the 1983 Daytona 500.

Fully recovered from a fiery crash last year in Phoenix, Rutherford admitted he felt safer in stock cars than in the open cockpit Indy cars he has driven the last 21 years.

"This NASCAR commitment is like a breath of fresh air. You can really mix it up on those cars," Rutherford said.

Rutherford said he had every confidence in crew chief Buddy Parrott and engine builder Raymond Fox. Rutherford characterized Parrott as a "fire-breathing mechanic."

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

Now that deer and turkey seasons have closed in Texas, the only thing remaining is waterfowl, varmint and quail hunting.

Too many people hang up their guns after deer and turkey are illegal and start preparing for upcoming spring-time fishing bouts. There are a lot of hunters turned fishermen who do not take advantage of some of the finest fishing Texas has to offer. Of course, the winter months are cold and dreary, but those freshwater and salt-water fish don't seem to mind.

There's no way we can describe all good winter fishing locales, but we can relate to you previous winter fishing experiences on the lakes and methods that should produce for you.

TOLEDO BEND: This reservoir on the Texas-Louisiana border is one of the finest freshwater reservoirs in the state for winter fishing. The temperatures don't drop so drastically in this neck of the woods.

Bass anglers can have a heyday on big Toledo. Whether you obtain a Toledo Bend fishing guide or not, you're going to be fishing in 20 to 30 feet of water for the most part. Toledo guides will fish creek channels, dropoffs and the edges of moss beds in colder months. Using weighted spoons, jig-n-ee baits and deep running crank baits, clients can load the boat with oversized largemouths.

Striped bass fishing is also excellent on various winter days. Once again, fishing is performed in deep water by the use of silver spoons and slab type baits. Sometimes strippers move to the surface to forage on shad schools on cold days. Crappie fishermen can catch all the slabsides they want when they locate a school of crappie.

For more information on winter fishing at Toledo, one can contact Carmichael's Marina, Star Route, Box 84, Hemphill, Texas 75948 or by calling 713-579-3075.

AMISTAD RESERVOIR: Former fishing guide Larry Seruggs once said of Amistad, "I live in this part of Texas because we'll average the warmest temperatures in the winter than anywhere in Texas."

Amistad is experiencing a tremendous fishing comeback the last two years. Winter fishing is now as good as it was back in the early '70s. Fishing for black bass requires some deep water angling tactics by the use of slabs, heavy spinnerbaits bumped over the bottom along dropoffs and deep running crank baits. Chances of catching a trophy bass are much better in the winter months as the big females will be carrying spring spawning eggs and seem to be more active.

The newest craze at Amistad is the striped fishing. The best chances of finding strippers in the winter is to find flying-feeding birds. Sea gulls and terns constantly search for foraging schools of stripers, making it quite easy for the angler to find striped bass.

For more information, contact H.C. Jones, Highway 90 West, Box 10, Del Rio, Texas 78840 or call 512-775-5571.

POSSUM KINGDOM: If it's white bass you're after, Possum Kingdom can't be beat. White or sand bass fishing is excellent from January through March. Anglers can get into schools of sandies and can catch 100 or more with relative ease. White bass can be easily found in the region of The Peanut Patch, Broadway and Caddo Creek. Look for working birds and always keep an eye on the depth sounder. Using white and chrome slab baits in schools of deep water sandies is a sure bet. Some days the sandies hit the surface and feed on threadfin shad.

For more information contact Fox Hollow Camp, Bunker Route, Graham, Texas 76046 or call 817-549-1801.

PORT ARANSAS: The big red snappers and warsaw are caught this time of year at Port Aransas. Anglers fishing from the party boats can fish for eight hours and come in with several hundred pounds of snapper and warsaw. For some unknown reason, winter fishing here will produce larger fish than in the warmer months. January and February are peak months to catch those oversized deep sea giants. Bay fishing for redfish and speckled trout are also good in the cold months.

For more information contact Fisherman's Warf, P.O. Box 387, Port Aransas, Texas 78373 or call 512-749-5448.

LAKE GUERRERO: This Mexico lake is one fine spot to catch black bass in winter months. The lake's water temperature stays warmer and the bass are more active. Winter anglers can catch bass on just about any type of bait and the boat can be loaded easy.

For more information contact Hacienda Alta Vista, P.O. Box 2186, Harlingen, Texas 78550 or call 512-423-2234.

LAKE DOMINQUEZ: This bass filled reservoir, situated on the west coast of Mexico, is where the angler turns if he wants to catch a lot of big bass. Mid-day temperatures seldom hit under 60 degrees and January through March are prime fishing months.

The lake is located near the town of El Fuerte and promises to be one of the finest big bass lakes in the world. It's not uncommon to spend 1/2-day fishing and come in with 20 to 30 bass that average four pounds apiece. All you need is plastic worms, spinnerbaits and jigs.

For more information contact Joe Don Scott, P.O. Box 1180, Plainview, Texas 79072 or call 806-293-1311.

Snarf's honor! It's very strange

"Three...two...one...zero, we've landed at 6 p.m. December 31. Earth time, Martian Control.

"Roger, Saucer One, proceed with the program for determining if life exists on the Planet Earth. (A moment later). "That was one hell of a giant step for a little green man, Martian Control, and now we're moving toward our research area."

"What's your position, Saucer One?" "Precisely on target, in a flat spot just above a lake called Forest Park five bleeks bloopward of San Angelo."

"See any life yet?" "LOTS OF flora, but no high animal-like forms...wait! Over there a quarter of a blurk. I see some Earthlings."

"Describe them." "Rog, Martian Control. Well, there are dozens of them standing at the bank of the lake and some are actually in the water. Their feet are of rubber, which in some specimens extends up the legs to mid-torso. On one side of all the humans is a relatively small metallic organ, end Control, you won't believe this, but these creatures have no antennas on their heads."

"You're kidding." "Snarf's honor. But extending from one hand or another is one lone fiberglass antenna, which may have a medical function. You see, the little metal organs are infested with worms, and the earth people incorporate a filament and a hook attached to the antenna to cleanse themselves of worms."

"Saucer One, are you sure your mask isn't leaking?" "I'm telling the truth, Control, and Hey! A tank truck has just arrived and a man in a uniform has dumped a mess of scaled serpents into the water. And now! One of those serpents just streaked through the water and exchanged itself for a worm on a hook. Maybe it's some kind of public health program."

"Report just what you see, Saucer One." "This must be painful, because the people are shrieking, especially the one with the serpent biting his filament. And, Martian Control, you ought to know that the Earthling is now stuffing the serpent into a flat external bladder that's attached to the other side of his body."

"(Incredulously) "Right, Saucer one. Is that an isolated occurrence?" "No, now they're all doing it. Shrieking and stuffing serpents into their bladders. Three, four, five. And he leaves the lake. Three, four, five. Another one leaves the lake. I'm picking up a pattern. That's the magic number. As soon as they assimilate five serpents they go up to the marina."

"Any explanation for that." "All I can see from here is a sign that reads 'Cold Beer', whatever that means. Hold on! Here's a change in the pattern. Three, four, five, six, seven, eight. One earthing has eight serpents, and is drowning another worm. Nine. Another worm. And now a people-person with no antenna and in uniform is running out of the flora-reaching into his bladder-counting, seven, eight, nine. He seizes the serpents! Now he's writing ciphers on a piece of paper. Detaches the antenna from the earthlings hand, attaches antenna to own hand, attaches piece of paper to man's hand, and..."

(Interrupting) "Saucer One, are you SURE your mask isn't malfunctioning?"

"ALL GAUGES reading normal, Martian Control. And now the man without the antenna is heading for the marina, only he's walking very slowly. The loss of his serpents must have sapped his strength, and he keeps starting at the piece of paper."

"Roger, Saucer One, time for you to return to Mars."

"Affirmative, Control, first I'd like to hit a grink ball I smuggled in my space suit. Unghh! This extra gravity's rough on a guy's drive. It only went 405 spergs with plenty of roll on a hook."

"Begin countdown for liftoff, Saucer One."

"Wait one. My space partner has sneaked into the marina and brought us some samples of 'Cold Beer.' We'd like to test it."

"Permission granted, Saucer One. What's the stuff like?" "Hits the spot, Martian Control. Now we'd like to change our estimates on the lengths of the serpents. On first observation none looked longer than twelve swerps. But now that we tried the 'Cold Beer' we think some were sixteen swerps long and maybe eighteen or twenty."

Sooners down Lumberjacks

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Chuck Barnett poured in 16 points in the second half and 24 total to lead the Oklahoma Sooners to an 88-55 victory over Stephen F. Austin here Wednesday night.

The Sooners outscored the Lumberjacks by 30 points in the second half, but the first half was a different story. The teams tied 13 times and came away with a 31-31 halftime score. The Texas school held its biggest lead of the night, 7 points, when Winston Harrison scored at 5:54 to give the lumberjacks a 29-22 lead. Oklahoma came back when Steve Bajema sank two free throws to tie the game at halftime.

Committee wants UIL power diluted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A State Board of Education committee is recommending that the power of the University Interscholastic League — governing body for public school athletics in Texas — be diluted and competition among junior high schools be de-emphasized.

The Committee for Special Schools and Athletics recommends the UIL governing body be enlarged from nine to 13 members, not including the league's executive director, and that any junior high sport that makes a student miss even part of a class be halted.

The committee said interscholastic programs require students to spend significant amounts of time during the regular school day in athletic endeavors.

ATHLETICS in grades seven and eight are "nonessential activities" that can be reduced to lift students' grades and save taxpayers money, the committee said.

Many junior high schools in Texas offer extensive athletic programs. The committee offered this recommendation to the Board of Education, which meets Saturday.

"The junior high level program should emphasize regular physical education and intramural activities. Emphasis on interschool competitive activities should be reduced. No athletic endeavor, including preparation and travel time, should be scheduled in a manner that would result in a student's loss of instructional time during the regular school day."

Athletic Director Bill Farney of the University Interscholastic League said, "Local school districts already can do that themselves. It's up to each district."

"The idea is that the students' grades will pick up, that they will go straight home and do homework and study," said Farney, "but I think — as one who has a doctorate in education — they probably will throw Frisbees, work on cars or do everything else."

THE COMMITTEE recommended that the current nine-member UIL state executive committee, which includes seven University of Texas professors, UIL Director Bailey Marshall and Farney, be enlarged to 13 members — seven professors and six citizens — who are knowledgeable in public school extracurricular programs.

Farney said he and Marshall, who are voting members of the executive committee, presumably would remain on the committee, without a vote. "Since we bring cases before the committee, we tend to be looked upon as prosecuting attorneys," said Farney.

"Nothing substantive is changed," he said. The special committee said the executive committee should govern all UIL operations. Currently, the special committee said, the executive committee is primarily concerned with interpreting rules and "does not function in the true sense as governing-policy-making board."

Farney said he thought the larger committee would still go to the UIL's 1,151 member schools to get administrators' opinions before changing a UIL rule.

"We've been called inflexible," said Farney, "but we are a democratic organization with built-in safeguards."

Farney said the special committee's recommendation to make it easier to get a proposal on the UIL's statewide ballot could result in conflicting propositions, such as different dates for the state track meet.

The committee said an official request by three separate UIL district committees from each of the four regions should be sufficient to get a proposal on the ballot. The UIL's Legislative Committee of administrators now determines which proposals are placed on the spring ballot.

Farney said, however, South Texas — where the weather is warmer — might want a March date for the track meet so schools from that region would have an advantage over Panhandle teams. Schools from the Panhandle might favor a late June date to give their athletes more time to get in shape.

The Board of Education committee also recommended that — The UIL's constitution and contest rules be rewritten to avoid inconsistent rulings by the 169 UIL district committees.

— A group of educators be set up in each region to review and rule on written appeals of UIL rulings and interpretations.

— UIL policies should be revised "to ensure that students are not needlessly penalized for the inappropriate behavior or activities of responsible school district employees."

THE COMMITTEE said its research had shown that the majority of sanctions imposed on school districts for rules violations "actually penalize the students" where "in most instances, the students neither perpetrated nor are they responsible for the rule infraction."

"It is very, very difficult for the UIL to penalize a coach or often even to find out whose fault it is," said Farney. "For one thing, there is the question of civil rights. There is no way you can penalize a school without penalizing the youngsters. No state (organization) has found a way to do it."

"It's a very idealistic recommendation," said Farney, "and if we could find a way to do it, we should copyright it and make a lot of money."

Brad Beck joins ENMU

PORTALES (AP) — Brad Beck, a two-year letterman on the University of Texas football team, has transferred to Eastern New Mexico University, officials at the NAIA school announced Wednesday.

ENMU head Coach Dunny Goode said the 5-foot-10, 210-pound Beck will be eligible to play for the Greyhounds next season.

Beck, who was highly recruited following his high school career at Perryton, Texas, told Eastern officials he decided to transfer to the New Mexico school because he was unhappy with the amount of playing time he was getting at Texas.

"I left Texas because of playing time," Beck told ENMU officials. "I wanted to play more my senior year, so I left Texas to gain that opportunity."

Beck reportedly had more than 200 scholarship offers after his high school career, including offers from such schools as Oklahoma, Mississippi, Alabama, and Notre Dame.

In the 1979 Sun Bowl game against Washington, Beck rushed for a game high 98 yards in the Longhorns' 14-7 loss. This season Beck was used primarily on punt returns and carried the ball only 15 times for 48 yards.

Goode said Beck will provide much needed help to the Eastern offense next year.

"While he will only be playing his senior year at Eastern, we are very excited to have an athlete of his caliber on the team," said Goode. "He is definitely an excellent runner."

North Carolina upsets Terps

By The Associated Press
The Maryland Terrapins are rated No. 8 in the country, but it's tough to pull rank in the Atlantic Coast Conference — especially on the other team's court.

In few other leagues does the home-court advantage mean as much. And North Carolina, rated No. 16 in America, had it Wednesday night, upsetting Maryland, 75-66.

"This game was extremely important for our young team," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "They've got everybody back from the team that beat us last year and we're missing five of our top seven. This has to help us."

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, as expected, was not too happy with his team's performance.

"We had been down in the first half then we went from eight up to two down in 30 seconds, it seems like," he said. "Then we got in a lot of foul trouble and that really hurt us."

Driesell was not surprised that North Carolina went to its patented four-corners offense, its Great Equalizer, early in the second half.

"He's (Smith's) done that a lot in the past," Driesell said.

In other action involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 3 Virginia beat North Carolina State 63-55; No. 4 Kentucky stopped Auburn 79-66; No. 6 Wake Forest tripped Appalachian State 63-42; No. 9 Louisiana State whipped Vanderbilt 77-61; No. 13 Tennessee turned back Mississippi 73-68 and No. 20 Clemson outscored Georgia Tech 65-54.

Al Wood's second-half shooting and some clutch free throws down the stretch freed the Tar Heel triumph. Wood wound up with a team-leading 22 points, while Albert King scored 21 for Maryland.

Ralph Sampson scored 24 points and Jeff Lamp had 17 to lead Virginia over North Carolina State. The victory was Virginia's second in the ACC this season without a loss and improved its overall record to 10-0. The Cavaliers have won 15 straight games going back to last season, the nation's longest winning streak for a college basketball team.

"Quite obviously, Ralph Sampson was the difference," said North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano. "He's just a great basketball player. If you wanted to start a pro or college franchise today, Sampson is the starting point. He is the most valuable player in the world in that aspect."

The balanced scoring of Sam Bowie, Fred Cowan and Dirk Minniefield helped Kentucky beat Auburn, Kentucky led by five points at 58-53 with 7:18 remaining, then pulled away from the Tigers with solid defense and deadly free throw shooting.

Cowan scored 17 points, Bowie 15 and Minniefield 13 for the Wildcats.

"We almost lost it at one point, but building the lead back is a good sign this team is growing up," said Bowie, referring to the stage where Auburn had trimmed the Wildcats' lead to five points.

Clutch second-half shooting by Jim Johnstone and Danny Young led Wake Forest past Appalachian State.

The Mountaineers remained close to Wake Forest throughout the first half by using a deliberate offense.

But then Johnstone took charge, pouring in nine of Wake Forest's first 18 points in the second half. As Appalachian started collapsing on Johnstone, Young began hitting. Young and Johnstone both wound up with 12 points.

Super sub Willie Simms tossed in 18 points and LSU's stingy defense forced repeated turnovers as the Tigers scored their 10th straight victory with their conquest of Vanderbilt.

Howard Wood scored 29 points, including 17 free throws, to lead Tennessee over Mississippi. Chris Dodd hit four straight 18-footers at the start of the second half as Clemson posted an 18-point lead and coasted past Georgia Tech.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Chuck Barnett's 24 points led Oklahoma over Stephen F. Austin 80-55; Ronald Jackson scored 26 to pace Southern Mississippi over Marquette 84-72; Randy Wright led a balanced Oklahoma State attack with 19 points as the Cowboys beat New Orleans 94-70; Darrell Walker and U.S. Reed teamed for 44 points to lead Arkansas over Alaska-Anchorage 92-58 and John Goode scored a game-high 15 points, including a free throw with no time on the clock, as VMI defeated East Tennessee State 43-42.

Also, Dan Callandriello's 22 points powered Seton Hall over Providence 86-52; Furman defeated The Citadel 75-65 as Mel Daniel scored a career-high 34 points.

Forsythe says he's usable; 'Dynasty' producers agree

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With characteristic modesty, John Forsythe terms himself "a vastly usable, not widely talented actor."

Many of his colleagues would say he underestimates himself, but Forsythe persists: "I figure there are a few actors like Marion Brando, George C. Scott and Laurence Olivier who have been touched by the hand of God. I'm in the next bunch."

Wherever he figures in the rankings, John Forsythe remains one of the most serviceable of actors. Even more so since he played a judge with a kinky sex life in "And Justice for All."

On Jan. 12 he takes on another meaty role, as tycoon Blake Harrington in "Dynasty," ABC's broad-scale new series about power, politics and personal turmoil in Denver. Does that sound like another series about another city on another network? But of course.

"I think there is a place on the air for different variations of an 'art form,'" Forsythe smiles, without apology.

"Dynasty" has a big cast (Bo Hopkins, Dale Robertson, Pamela Bellwood, Lloyd Bochner, Peter Mark Richman, etc.), the classy producer-writer team of Esther and Richard Shapiro, and is out of Aaron Spelling Productions.

Said Forsythe: "I hate to go out on a limb, but I think the series will put some real distinction in the nighttime soap operas. A lot of care and devotion are going into the writing and acting. I have no illusions about it being another 'Upstairs, Downstairs' or 'Forsythe Saga,' but I think 'Dynasty' can be a high-ranking series of distinction — with, of course, an eye to the commercial market."

He described Blake Carrington, with some delight, as a "ruthless, powerful, cruel, selfish, kind, loving, tender, passionate man — the kind of part I don't think I would have gotten if I hadn't played the infamous Judge Fleming in 'And Justice for All.'"

He credits producer-director Norman Jewison with the inspired casting: "He wanted to create suspense on whether the judge was guilty of such dark deeds. So he went for off-beat casting with a fellow from 'Bachelor Father' and 'To Rome with Love,' an actor who has been playing Smiling Jack all his life. With all immodesty, I think the casting helped the picture enormously."

Forsythe took the Blake Carrington role in the belief he could do something more than the J.R. Ewing of Denver. He doesn't need the work, you see.

"Fortunately, I have a wonderful thing called 'screw you' money," he said, meaning he could give a rude reply to unattractive offers, though of course he's too much of a gentleman to do that.

"My daughters have left the family home, my house is paid for, I have 'Charlie's Angels,' the Michelob commercials and my outdoor series, 'The World of Survival.' I don't have to play the same... part all the time."

Forsythe is the envy of his fellow actors because of his positions as the voice of beer blubs and the unseen boss of "Charlie's Angels." The latter chore requires so little of his time that he terms himself "the most grossly overpaid actor in history."

Whenever he starts to worry about such things, he always remembers the counsel of Alfred Hitchcock. When he found Forsythe fretting over his work in "The Trouble with Harry," Hitchcock commented: "It's only a movie, John. We're all vastly overpaid. You can't really take it seriously."

parently read books, educated people, most of them, conversant in realms beyond fan-magdom. In the days of "Jeopardy," America- seen-through-TV was a place of respectable intellect. Alas, "Jeopardy" ran its course and a reprise was short-lived.

Last week, I checked in on two new NBC entries, "Las Vegas Gambit" and "Blockbusters," two programs now filling the hour vacated by the canceled "David Letterman Show." The shows are representative products of the If You Had Brains, You Wouldn't Be Watching TV philosophy of programming.

"Blockbusters" is the better, or at least, more challenging show, hosted by Bill Cullen. A team of two relatives plays against a solo challenger, the object being to move from one end of a group of blocks to the other by answering questions, most of them quite answerable.

There's not much to it, really, but Cullen at least shows signs of life behind the eyes, no longer a job requisite in the emcee game.

"Las Vegas Gambit" is a new version of CBS' old "Gambit" game, in which two couples play blackjack with giant cards, gaining control of the cards by answering questions. The poster here, as on CBS, is deejay Wink Martindale, a pleasant, if wholly vacant-looking fellow who amiably ribs and needles the contestants in the way of emcees.

Situating the show in Las Vegas serves the purpose of supplying valuation in watching strangers win money. I suppose, but for the challenge of playing along, "Gambit" seems best suited for lower priorities.

I wondered what the fun of "Gambit" is. There is some vicarious conditioning heartlanders in the gambling mood, and is an excuse to show scantily clad showgirls.

Whistles, wolf calls greet orchestra's performance

A multitude of talent graced the stage of Midland High School Tuesday night as the Glenn Miller Orchestra performed for an almost full house.

The original orchestra was organized in 1937 by Miller who was considered to be a giant of the "big band era." By 1940 his band was one of the top musical organizations in the United States.

When World War II broke out, Miller entered the United States Air Force and organized the famous Glenn Miller Army Air Force Band. On Dec. 15, 1944, Maj. Miller's military plane disappeared over the English Channel. Many people mourned the passing of such a great talent who had brought enjoyment to so many.

But, Miller's distinctive sound had caught the public's attention. Twelve years later, the Miller Estate authorized the formation of the present Glenn Miller Orchestra. Thus his sound lives on.

The concert was an evening of yesterdays with a few sparklings of modern hits — Glenn Miller style.

After playing a couple of introductory ice breakers, Jimmy Henderson, the orchestra's conductor since 1975, explained that they tour "50 weeks a year, seven days a week." It is a highly organized unit "with no fill-in musicians and no rental orange coats that must be returned in the morning."

When the laughter subsided, he said, "If at any time you hear anything you like, feel perfectly free to break right in with hysterical laughter." Then he added, "We love it when you whistle."

This statement led to some frustration on the part of one man sitting in the balcony. He was enjoying the concert and, at times, quite moved by the music just as most there seemed to be. But, he couldn't whistle. The applause and whistling finally got to him and he reached a solution. He did the next best thing. He gave out with a series of wolf calls.

After the Moonlight Serenaders performed "Moonlight Serenade," two soloists sang "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," and the female soloist, Anita — the only female member of the group — sang "Elmira" and "Baby," Henderson said, "Good songs are forever, aren't they?" The audience agreed.

Those who had come to hear Miller's hits weren't disappointed. The selections covered, among others, "Perfidia," "Kalamazoo," "In the Mood," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Tangerine," "American Patrol," and the always popular "Tuxedo Junction." Among the current hits they performed were "The Way You Are," "New York, New York" and "She Believes in Me."

The evening was peppered with reed and horn solos. One particular trumpet solo extended for so long that the audience breathed audibly, even though the trumpeter didn't.

The orchestra plays two particular numbers every show. The opening number for the second half, Henderson explained, they have performed all over Europe and will do so in Japan. It is always dedicated to "our hostages." Thus, when they performed "The Stars and Stripes Forever," the audience immediately rose and clapped in time with the music. The other selection was at the close of the performance. It is done because of a special request from someone who was quite close to Miller.

As Henderson said, "This song was a favorite of a man who was a friend and a business associate" of Miller's — David McCain. The selection is "Amazing Grace," and their performance left some not too dry eyes in the house.

The concert closed with an immediate standing ovation to which Henderson said, "You're not tired? You have no homes?"

His next comment that "we hope we can come back here every year and perform for you" was greeted with applause. Then they performed an encore, which he explained is the number they will perform for the Jan. 20 presidential inauguration.

Those who were there know what it was. Those who weren't will want to watch the ceremony to find out because this reviewer is certainly not going to say. One hint...it was an upbeat version of a Miller classic.

One Miller fan was overheard saying, "What I like about his music is that it leaves you uplifted and feeling good."

Perhaps that was why several fans were seen doing a little dance on their way out while others were humming a tune. Whatever the reason, those there seemed to have had a most enjoyable evening.

Meredith finally allowed to 'sing for his supper'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Off the network path.

Fifty-nine years after leaving New York's St. John the Divine Choir School, where he worked his way to soloist, Burgess Meredith gets to lead in front of a camera. Two hundred movies after his first one.

His chance came when his pal Patrick O'Neal asked him to play the lead in a Liberty Mutual special, "Mr. Griffin and Me," playing on 100 or so stations around the country this week. The money's no good on these little one-hour dramas, but the material is fine and the part is rich.

Meredith plays Mr. Griffin, a famous movie director who disappeared with his movie-star wife's paintings and took up residence incognito in Macon, Ga. He grew a beard, sold the paintings and eased into the good life of an aging eccentric, crooning in a local beer bar, which he lived uninterrupted until happenstance brought his wife (Gloria Grahame) back into his life.

"I sang at St. John the Divine for four years, when I was 8 until I was 11, and I developed into a pretty good singer," Meredith says. "But I never followed it up. I never came across a good musical.

"The music wasn't really in the script, it kind of worked its way in as we went along. Patrick tells me that in the finished thing, it works pretty nicely."

The music was written and directed by Meredith's son, Jonathan, a swan farmer in Nevada. Meredith got so excited about his rediscovered musical heritage that he formed a record company with his son. They wrote a theme song for Meredith's ABC show, "Those Amazing Animals."

Anyway, "Mr. Griffin and Me" is a nice little TV entertainment, lightly comic, that serves as further testimony to O'Neal's developing skill as a director. This is the fifth 60-minute special Liberty Mutual has put together for off-network distribution, and the fourth directed by O'Neal (he acted in the first one). The working element in all of the Liberty Mutual shows is an extremely low budget, a factor that O'Neal has managed to work to advantage. "Mr. Griffin," like the others, most economically fashioned, has a sort of lean and gritty quality that emphasizes character and story over flash and action. A good watch.

When TV puts you in 'Jeopardy'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are occasions, rare enough as to not pose any serious health hazard, when I spend a morning watching TV game shows. I keep hoping that NBC has resurrected "Jeopardy" again.

Remember "Jeopardy," that long-running trivia fest, with its progressively challenging segments — Jeopardy, Double Jeopardy and the do-or-die Final Jeopardy? And Art Fleming, distinguished-looking savant, guiding anxious contestants through the maze of disconnected facts, alternately be-moaning and celebrating his minions' progress?

"The Old Testament for 20, Art," a contestant would say, and Fleming would whip out a card and pose, "He was the Babylonian king who overran Jerusalem and is mentioned in the Second Book of Kings."

"Ding! 'Yes, Judy!'" "Nebuchadnezzar!" "In the form of a question, please..." "Who is Nebuchadnezzar?"

"Right you are!" "Jeopardy" had the seductive properties of a crossword puzzle, offering viewers the chance to congratulate themselves for prying out nuggets of knowledge thought lost and forgotten, while never quite allowing arrogance. You could always get a few right even on a bad day, but you could never get them all right on the best of days. Thus, it was addictive, too.

On "Jeopardy," you saw people who ap-

Marine Pvt. Carl D. LaForge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. LaForge of 1305 Sparks, Midland, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

He joined the Marine Corps in January, 1980.

Airman Rex T. Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Thane Atkins of 2912 N. I Street, Midland, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training. During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the communications-electronics systems field.

Airman Lynn A. Dickinson, daughter of Inez C. Dickinson of Midland, has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations. In addition, airmen who complete

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the communications-electronics systems field.

Airman 1st Class Ray L. Parson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Parson of Route 3, Midland, has arrived for duty at Offutt Air Force Base, N.C.

Parson, a commercial operations specialist, was previously assigned at Kadena Air Base, Okinawa, Japan.

Pvt. John R. Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Keller Jr. of Big Spring, recently completed a tracked-vehicle mechanic course at the U.S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Ky.

During the course, students were trained to repair engines, transmissions, and the fuel, electrical and hydraulic systems of the Army's tracked-vehicles. They also learned to perform recovery operations for abandoned, damaged, disabled or mired vehicles.

Pvt. Stanley W. Gilbert, son of Carrie J. Gilbert of 1118 E. Estes, Midland, has arrived for duty at Giesse, West Germany.

Private Gilbert, a missile crewman, was previously assigned at Fort Sill, Okla.

Pvt. Daniel W. Milburn, son of Doris T. Milburn of Route 1, Midland, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

Airman 1st Class Sharon D. Lockner, daughter of Irlie L. Bardwell of Midland, has arrived for duty at RAF Bentwaters, England.

Lockner, a food service specialist, was previously assigned at Bergstrom Air Force Base, Texas.

Pfc. Alberto Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto Martinez of Stanton, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.

2nd Lt. Charles R. Keese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Keese of Lamesa, is now wearing U.S. Air Force silver wings following graduation from pilot training at Reese Air Force Base.

The fully-qualified pilot will now fly the C-130 at Rhein-Main Air Base, West Germany.

Jesse Alvarez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alijandro Alvarez of 423 E. Pecan, Midland, has enlisted in the U.S. Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program, according to Joe I. Leos Sgt., Odessa Air Force Recruiter.

Alvarez, a high school graduate of Lee High School, is scheduled for enlistment in the Regular Air Force on May 13, 1981. Upon graduation from the Air Force's six-week basic training course, Alvarez will receive technical training in the Airlift Bombardment Aircraft Maintenance Specialist.

Marine Lance Cpl. Randy J. Reeves, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Reeves of Andrews, recently participated in "Desert Fire Exercise 1-81" in the California desert.

He is a member of 2nd Battalion, 11th Marines, based at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Conducted at the Marine Corps Air/Ground Combat Center, Twenty-nine Palma, the exercise tested the combat effectiveness and readiness of participating units. War games were conducted under simulated battlefield conditions, and were evaluated on their ability to deliver accurate fire on targets, both at night and during the day.

A 1976 graduate of Andrews High School, Reeves joined the Marine Corps in April 1978. His wife, Elaine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Jimenez also of Andrews.

Airman Gregory G. Davis, son of Charles V. Davis of Big Spring, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Cartier throws hottest holiday Hollywood party

By DOROTHY TRELOAR
Hearst Special News Service

There's nothing like a good party, and Cartier, newest tenant on famous Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills, knows how to throw it. All you have to do to enhance the evening, for starters, is have a 107-plus carat $22 million diamond (on display, but not for sale) flanked by seven guards, and the right telephone numbers of every celebrity in the country.

The event was a strictly royal holiday-opening gala. Black tie was de rigueur, and guests were the fluent, affluent, star-club types. The man off the street was not seen.

Patrick Terrail, proprietor of one of Hollywood's famed bistros, Ma Maison, catered the affair, which included California champagne and caviar, plus all the accoutrements during the cocktail hour, to a dinner ranging from its famous salad, with hot lobster, milk veal, exotic vegetables, opera cake and petit fours, more California wines and champagne.

J.R. (Larry Hagman) Ewing was sitting dead center at a table with his wife, reaping his rewards from you-know-what segment in Dallas, topping the highest Nielsen rating ever recorded.

When Alana Ladd, wife of popular ABC radio talk-show host, Michael Jackson, lighted a cigarette, Hagman pulled his famous trick, placing a small portable fan on the table returning the smoke to the sender. He doesn't believe in anything hazardous to your health just in case he gets shot again.

Sitting with prominent Beverly Hills Physician Dr. Rexford Kennamer (happy to see so many of his patients looking in good health) were Gale and Fred Haymen, owners of THE store, Giorgio's, on Rodeo Drive, who revealed that Patti Davis, daughter of Nancy and President-elect Ronald Reagan, had that day purchased her goodies for the inaugural balls, personally "coached" by Gale. Her selections for the big affair in Washington, D.C., include a Stephen Burrows red chiffon ruffled long dress (shoes dyed to match) and Christian Dior's long slinky black matte silk dress with multi-colored beaded jacket.

Patti, who is enjoying her new success as an actress, is 5'8" and a "perfect size 8," offered Gale. "She is a lovely, sweet, very undemanding girl, and it was a pleasure to help her."

What is equally exciting is that Patti Davis (she took her mother's name for professional purposes) is dating Tim Hutton who, young as he is, will be one of the biggest stars in Hollywood because of his magnificent performance in "Ordinary People", which also stars Mary Tyler Moore and Donald Sutherland. It will be interesting to see if Tim is Patti's escort at her parents' big night.

Among those present were, from our President-elect's so-called California Cabinet, the Mervyn Leroy's, the Alfred Bloomingdales, Harriet and Armand Deutsch — Harriet, always among the best-dressed ladies, in Adolfo's beautiful red antique satin (long) with bugle-beaded top. Also attending were producer Ray and Fran Stark (with daughter Wendy), Erlene Perkins, widow of the late actor-judge Voltaire Perkins, who was leaving shortly for Washington, D.C., to work on the galas at her own expense. One might have expected New York's social moth-mouth Jerry Zipkin, the Reagans' close friend, to zip in any minute, but he was in New York helping our future first lady with some super shopping.

The Robert Stacks, Rosemarie in Bill Blass' black bouffant short dress had photographers clicking at her every turn. Jill St. John, in clingy red satin, announced, I have out-skilled myself in Aspen and want to go back to acting for awhile. I've done so many segments of "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island" I was beginning to feel like part of the crew. Next I will do a couple of movie features.

Frances (Mrs. Edgar) Bergen, also in red sequined dress was asked if daughter Candice is enroute, via her recent marriage to French director Louis Malle. "Not that I know of," she laughed, "but it would delight me to be a grand mother. Candy and Louis have a very happy marriage," she added.

Zsa Zsa Gabor was with her husband, Michael O'Hara, whom she left momentarily to greet one of her many ex-husbands, Herbert Hutner, and his present wife. Directly behind mama was daughter Francesca Hilton with an East Indian girlfriend, both of whom were wearing cumbersome Indian saris. Georgette Muir (Mrs. George Barrie of Faberge fame) was with Richard Gully (George in NYC). Showman-entrepreneur Allan Carr was milling around kissing everyone, and wearing a "Shogun," weird, multi-colored top over his baggy black trousers.

Statuesque beauty, Joann Pflug, looking elegant in strapless black chiffon and feathered skirt, was with husband, musician-actor Charles Woolery, this re-born Christian couple seemingly reconciled after a long separation.

Suzanne Pleshette with husband Tommy Gallagher told us she is not working at the moment, but is working at being a housewife. "until I go back to acting," she sighed. (It's a well-known fact Suzy is no cook and admits it.)

Altovise and Sammy Davis were a symphony in black, Altovise wearing a tuxedo outfit complete with huge brimmed hat, under which Sammy stood most lovingly and beaming. Kathleen (Mrs. Clark) Gable with daughter Joan Spreckels, was greeting friends happy to see her looking so well after two major surgeries.

More celebrities were Dani Janssen, David's widow, in slinky white backless knit, showing every curve of her curvy figure. Camilla Spary Hoover (once married to Robert Evans and currently divorced from vacuum heir, Hoover, by whom she has two children), who looked anything but a mother — these Scandinavians do have a flair for glamor and glitter.

Also the Joseph Cottens, Contessa and Dan Cohn, and greeting each other somewhat cordially were Carol Connors and Robert Culp, a most steady duo (off and on) during the past year, who this night came with other dates.

It was past midnight. Five hours away from arrival time, and couples were still dancing. Outside, black Rolls Royces purred, waiting to carry guests away.

More subs to be converted

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has decided to let the Navy proceed with the conversion of two more aging Polaris fleet ballistic missile (FBM) submarines to attack types before the first of the big new Trident boats is combat ready.

This was reported yesterday by Pentagon sources who said the conversions would begin sometime early this fall at about the time the Navy is to take delivery of the USS Ohio, first of the 18,700-ton Trident submarines. But although General Dynamics' Electric Boat Division, the builder, is expected to turn over the Ohio in late August or September, it will be the spring of 1982 before the ship is ready to go on "boomer duty" or patrol, because of crew training, at-sea exercise and shakedown cruise requirements.

Some administration officials had argued that taking the Polaris submarines out of the deterrent force before the first Trident was ready could send a wrong signal (unilateral disarmament, for example) to foes and friends alike at a time of Soviet aggression in Afghanistan and Kremlin threats against Poland.

The Navy, however, contended and contends that, even though it now has 80 fewer ballistic missile launchers at sea because of the withdrawal of five of what had been its remaining 10 16-tube Polaris boats, it has actually increased its nuclear striking capability by retrofitting the longer-range, more accurate Trident I missile into five Poseidon FBMs.

The Polaris boats are armed with the 2,500-mile Polaris A-3 missile, which carries three warheads. But these warheads are not independently targetable and, therefore, would strike a single target. On the other hand, each 4,000-mile-range Trident I now aboard five 16-tube Poseidon submarines carries eight MIRVs or multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles (warheads).

Seven additional Poseidon submarines are due to be retrofitted with the Trident I. Nineteen other Poseidon boats will continue to carry the Poseidon missile, which has 10 MIRVs and a range of 2,500 miles.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, January 9, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: 1981 should be a year of many new successes for you. Highly capable and supremely self-confident, you can deal with almost any crisis that might arise. Your one weakness is a tendency to fly off the handle when faced with even the mildest of criticisms. Learn to control that temper! Certain desired employment benefits will not come your way until the end of the year, but they should be generous when you finally receive them. Domestic bliss can be yours if you are willing to work for it. Mate, partner stands ready to meet you halfway. Build your life around those you love!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Home life is more settled, rewarding now. If tired or "blue," plan a quiet weekend. A hectic holiday may have taken a greater toll than you realized. Mate is understanding, supportive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Extra demands may be made on your time. Your determination to attain success will not go unnoticed. Those connected with entertainment or the arts can make great gains. Romantic weekend needs time to heal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid making important moves until you have consulted mate, partner. Letter or phone call could fill you with joy. You should be able to move ahead at a steady pace.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Concentrate on developing your creative talents and you can earn extra income. Family life will be more harmonious if you exercise greater tact. Development in romantic relationship will thrill you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Some new financial gains are due to past efforts. Perseverance is the key to success. Promise you have been counting on may not be honored. Diplomacy is required to avert destructive quarrels.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Devote more time to private matters and draw closer to loved one who lives at a distance. Imaginative ideas can be psychologically, financially rewarding. Self-improvement project boosts ego.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Business problem can be put to rest thanks to help from an unexpected quarter. A sense of humor plays a key role in your rapport with member of the opposite sex.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Stay close to home base today. Unexpected developments will require careful handling. Do not sign something meant for another person's signature. Effort to help could lead to legal entanglements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Prestige may be easier to come by than money right now. Change for the sake of change is dangerous. Do not contemplate an alteration or modification unless certain it will provide long-term gains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You can make a real difference in someone's life now. Your influence is much greater than you think. Romance is on a smooth course. Be willing to make intelligent compromises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your willingness to try new methods, procedures stands you in good stead with higher-up. Show your appreciation to loved one for his or her steadfast support. Loyalty deserves tangible thanks.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be more selective when choosing your associates. Some so-called friends could be trying to bring you down. Keep your guard up, but resist the urge to retaliate. Their efforts are likely to backfire!

Mathematically, all fineses stand an equal chance of success. However, when faced with a choice of finesesses, that does not mean it doesn't matter which one you take!

Often, your choice should be predicated not so much on which would win, but on which you can afford to lose. There was nothing unusual about the auction. After South opened one no trump, North might have probed for a 4-4 heart fit by employing Stayman. But he had no ruffing value and decided that his hand would play equally well in no trump, so he made the value bid.

West led the fourth best of his longest suit, and declarer captured East's ten with the jack. The play to this trick made it virtually certain that West held both the ace and queen of clubs.

Declarer could count eight running tricks, and the ninth trick could be established in either red suit via a finesse. However, it was not a top-up as to which finesse declarer should take—he could not afford to let the danger hand, East, gain the lead. A club return from East would put the king of clubs under the axe and almost surely lead to the contract's defeat. Therefore, declarer ruled out the diamond finesse, for that could be taken only into the danger hand, in favor of the heart finesse, which could be taken with complete safety.

Declarer crossed to the king of spades in dummy and led a low heart to his jack. He did not much care whether this won or lost. If it lost, dummy's ten of hearts would be set up as the game going trick and, with West on lead, declarer's soft spot was safe from attack. If the heart finesse won, declarer would have his ninth trick there and then.

Note that if the heart finesse loses and West shifts to a diamond declarer cannot afford to finesse. To guarantee the contract, he must rise with the ace of diamonds, cash the ace of hearts and then take his tricks in the correct order, lest he block himself out of a winner.

MHS CHATTER Final exams week

By Julie Gayton, Vicki Madden and Kathy Wood

Now that the holidays are over and Midland High school students are slowly but surely accepting a normal pace, schedules will again be disrupted.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are designated as final exam days. Tuesday, the school will hold regular hours through fourth period, with a two-hour exam scheduled for fifth period. On Wednesday, periods one, three and six will conduct two-hour tests and, on Thursday, second and fourth periods will be testing. School will be recessed after the last exam Thursday.

The Youth Center will not serve lunch Thursday. As a reward for students, and to allow time for teachers to get grades in, Friday, Jan. 16, will be a holiday.

The varsity basketball team is "racking 'em up." Herbert Johnson, Don Sharnowski and Horace Brown lead the team, while managers Gray Schlichting and John Grace keep the team prepared. The team won again Tuesday in Lubbock.

Catoico Court nominations are now open. The theme is "Memory Lane." We need snapshots or posters of highschool students at any age, so pull out your funny pictures of those crazy moments and help make "Memory Lane" memorable. Catoico will be held Feb. 14.

Rasco says all Youth Center workers are doing a good job. Thanks!

Flying Tiger may return to China mainland

PEKING (AP) — Anna Chennault told Chinese aviation officials during her visit to Peking that despite her ardent championship of the Nationalist Chinese regime in Taiwan, the cargo airline her late husband founded wants to do business with the People's Republic, Chinese sources reported today.

The sources indicated the Chinese government was receptive to the idea of letting the Flying Tiger line operate in mainland China again. They said such a foreign cargo line would be useful as Chinese-American trade increases.

Mrs. Chennault, the Chinese-American widow of the late Gen. Claire Chennault and a member of the Republican Party's finance committee, and Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the deputy Republican leader of the U.S. Senate, spent three days in Peking last weekend and are now meeting with Nationalist officials in Taiwan.

Mrs. Chennault was asked at a news conference there if her airline would serve China and replied "no." But the sources in Peking said she made overtures to officials of the Chinese Civil Aviation Administration at a meeting Sunday.

She indicated at a news conference before leaving Peking that her militant opposition to the Chinese communist regime was easing. "I feel we must reassess our position and broaden our base," she said.

The Chinese sources said other Flying Tiger representatives have made inquiries previously about operating in China, but no formal application has been submitted. They said the line already has permission to fly over southern China on its South-east Asian routes but is not allowed to land.

The airline, which claims to be the world's largest cargo carrier, takes its name from Gen. Claire Chennault's volunteer air force, the Flying Tigers, which in World War II flew for Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese government against the Japanese before the United States entered the war.

A native of Peking, Mrs. Chennault married the general in China in 1947 and went to the United States with him in 1948, the year before the communists took over. He died in 1958. She was the airline's vice president for international affairs from 1968 to 1976 and is now listed as a consultant to its office in Washington, D.C., where she makes her home.

Marines practice rescue attempt

TOKYO (AP) — The "country" was El Capistrano, but the backdrop was snow-covered Mount Fuji.

And on the ground were Marines staging a mock rescue of American civilians from the unfriendly but fictitious country.

The 800 Marines were from the 2nd Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, based in Okinawa. The simulated helicopter evacuation at Camp Fuji west of Tokyo pitted the rescue force against demonstrators, played by other Marines, and staged enemy sniper fire at the American embassy in the fictitious country of El Capistrano.

A Marine spokesman said the evacuation exercise, held Dec. 11, was modeled after similar Marine operations in Saigon and Cambodia during the Vietnam war and "had nothing to do with Iran," where 52 Americans have been held hostage for more than one year.

Reduce committee staffs, says Collins

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative Texas congressman says the time has come for the House to put the brake on the increasing size of its committee staffs.

Rep. Jim Collins, a Dallas Republican, said in the past, budget authorizations for congressional committees speed toward approval "just like a greased pig at a county fair."

Collins told reporters Tuesday that the new 97th Congress should be aware from the start of the need to reduce committee staff sizes.

"If we want to have less government, we've got to start with those staffs," he said. "We certainly can't talk economy to the nation when we are the most flagrant spenders here in the House."

Collins said he would appear before the House Administration Committee as each panel's budget comes up for approval and would continue to press for recorded votes when the budgets reach the House floor.

He added that the House traditionally has been reluctant to criticize its own actions.

Collins said the size of House committee staffs more than doubled from 1972 to 1979 and their budgets rose from $14 million to almost $96 million during the same period.

The Dallas congressman said the greatest proportional increases in committee staffs during the period were in the House Administration Committee — from 31 to 284 employees — and in the House Rules Committee — from 6 to 46.

"It's just one of those gentlemen deals — you just let it through," he said. "It's just been creeping, only it's begun to skyrocket."

Collins said he was targeting the investigative staff hired by each committee as the most likely place for cuts, rather than congressmen's personal staffs or the smaller staff provided each committee by law.

He said a reduction in staff size would have a greater effect than the relatively small cut in the federal budget, because fewer bills would be produced and fewer hearings would be held.

TAX TIPS

Careful reading, right tools help at tax time

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of tax tip articles provided by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Most chores aren't hard if you've got the right tools. With proper study of the instructions, and perhaps people to turn to for advice, you can usually handle any task.

Taxes are no exception. The instructions that come with your tax package should answer most of your questions.

Your questions concerning 1980 tax returns will be answered at the "Taxes and You" program. This public service course is sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service. This informal two-night course will be offered on Jan. 13 and 15 from 7 to 10 p.m.

More than 25 CPAs will volunteer their time to provide taxpayers with instructions and question-and-answer sessions. The program is open to the public at a charge of $1 per person to cover administrative costs.

Advice is also available free by calling the IRS forms/tax information number listed in the telephone directory. Here are some tax "tools" to get you through the job of taxes with maximum ease:

1. Be organized. Starting in January, keep tax records, even if you think of yourself as "just an average taxpayer." Keep all your wage statements (check stubs) together. They're useful to check the accuracy of Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," you get from your employer in January. They're invaluable if you don't get your W-2 for some reason.

Even if you don't think you'll itemize deductions, keep receipts or records on expenses that are tax deductible. A list of the most common deductions is in your tax instruction book. Sometimes we get financial surprises that suddenly make it advantageous to itemize deductions.

If you already know that you will do something that will make it beneficial to itemize, good records are doubly important.

2. Start early. Even if you plan to file later in the season, look over the tax instructions, forms and your tax records in January.

You may find that you need forms not included in your tax package or you might discover that you're missing an important receipt. Whatever the case, if you require additional documents before you can prepare your return, it's a lot easier to allow a couple of months than to wait until you're up against the deadline.

This is particularly true if you find you need to contact an employer, a financial institution or a place of business for a copy of a document, because you have no control over the speed with which they'll respond.

3. Take full advantage of available free help. Free information and assistance are available from IRS by calling the forms/tax information number listed in the telephone directory. The IRS also has more than 90 free publications available. Use the order form in your tax package to obtain any of these. Your public library may have step-by-step tax instructions available on cassette tape, prepared by the IRS.

Many communities have free tax assistance available at VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) sites. VITA volunteers serve any taxpayer who has a basic return and needs assistance, but feels he or she cannot afford a professional tax preparer.

Tax Counseling for the Elderly is a similar service for taxpayers who are 60 or older. The volunteers are specifically trained to handle tax matters important to older Americans.

Information on VITA and Tax Counseling for the Elderly locations is available by calling the IRS forms/tax information number.

4. Read the instructions. Most of your questions are answered in the tax instructions, which follow the sequence of the tax return. Tax instructions are now easier to read and understand and are in less technical language than ever before.

Most forms are designed so that if you take them line by line, reading and following each line carefully, the form will lead you through itself.

Careful reading is the key. A missed line or a figure carelessly placed on the wrong line — say, your wages on the line that asks for interest — can result in inconvenience to you or a possible delay of your refund.

5. Check back over the basics. No matter how careful you think you've been, recheck your whole return before you file it.

One of the most common errors is caused simply by copying the wrong dollar amount from the tax table. Be sure you are reading from the correct line and column. Double check for math errors and transposed numbers. It's easy to write 417 when the correct number is 147.

A few minutes spent checking accuracy is worth you while. Errors cause you inconvenience and may even result in a bill for more tax or a delayed refund.

6. Check attachments. You may use additional forms or schedules, such as Schedule A for itemized deductions. Make sure your name and Social Security number appear on each and that all of them are attached to the return.

It's easy to omit an additional form or schedule and such an omission can delay the processing of your return. Attach your schedules in alphabetical order and your forms in numerical order. Use a stapler, if possible. Paper clips or folded corners are not secure ways of attaching things.

Be sure your W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," is securely stapled in the place marked for it. If you had more than one employer, be sure you have a W-2 from each one. If you do leave out any of the required attachments, wait until the IRS notifies you. Then send the requested document back with a copy of the notice.

7. Late W-2s. If you worked for more than one employer, be sure you have received W-2s from each before you prepare your taxes.

If you find you omitted income because you filed before all your W-2s arrived, you will need to file an amended return, Form 1040X. If you have a refund coming from your original return, wait until you receive it before you file the amended return.

8. Identify your payment. If you have a balance due, always pay by check or money order. Never send cash with a tax return.

On the face of the payment, write the tax form number and the year for which you are paying and, especially important, your Social Security number. If your payment is separated from your return, there will be no problem getting them together again.

9. Sign the return. A return with no signature is not a properly filed return and cannot be accepted as a legal document.

The Internal Revenue Service Center will have to contact you for your signature, a sure way to slow down refunds. Remember, on a joint return, both husband and wife must sign.

Each signature must be original. If you file a photo copy of a return, be sure to sign after you make the copy.

10. Use peel-off label and coded envelope. The peel-off label is one of the cover of the tax package you get in the mail. The coded envelope is inside the package.

Both are designed to speed up processing. Using the label eliminates two of the most common causes of refund delays — illegible names or addresses and incorrect Social Security numbers.

If your address has changed, the correction should be written on the label. If the Social Security number is incorrect, contact the IRS for directions before you file your return.

Wait until you have the final copy of your return prepared before you put on the label. While it's a "peel-off" label, it only peels off once. If you choose to hire a tax preparer, insist that he or she uses the IRS label too.

11. Choose a preparer carefully. Most preparers maintain high professional standards of integrity, but you need to be wary of the few who don't. Remember, no matter who prepares the return, you are legally responsible for its contents.

Some things to look for when choosing a preparer:

(1) He or she will complete the Paid Preparer's Use Only section at the bottom of the return. You get a copy of the return which contains that information (this applies only if you pay this person to prepare your return).

(2) Be very cautious of anyone who claims a special relationship with the IRS or who "guarantees" refunds before seeing your tax information.

(3) Many reputable preparers work only during the filing season. However, you should be able to find them at any time of the year in case there is a question about your tax return.

Finally, mail the return (or have the preparer mail the return) as early as possible, particularly if you want a quick refund.

Remember, good records are the key to everything in taxes. If you aren't keeping 1981 tax records yet, now's the time to start.

To register for the "Taxes and You" program, fill out the registration form that will run in The Reporter-Telegram beginning Friday.

Classes will be held at the Allison Fine Arts Building on the campus of Midland College.

Principal 'would drop' three girls

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — Without "some show of judge power" at Buckeye High School, the school principal said he would drop from the rolls three white girls who had been attending class there in defiance of a federal busing order.

Michelle Laborde, Linda McNeal and Ramona Carbo have been escorted to the all-white Buckeye school this week by police and then by state District Judge Richard Lee.

But Lee said Wednesday his appearance had disrupted education at the rural school, and he would not return until after a hearing before a rival federal judge next week.

"If the girls are here (Thursday) without some show of judge power or some law enforcement officers, I'll drop them," said Principal Charles Waites.

Lee, Waites and the girls' parents and guardians have been summoned to appear before U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott on Jan. 15 to explain why they should not be fined for defying his desegregation busing order for Rapides Parish schools.

The parents gave custody of their daughters to friends in the new Buckeye attendance zone after Scott ordered 108 children in the seventh and eighth grades bused to racially integrated Jones Street Junior High in Alexandria, about 15 miles away.

Only 22 of the 108 Buckeye youngsters now ride the bus to Alexandria.

The others attend two new private academies.

The Justice Department has asked Scott to fine Lee $1,000 a day and to impose $500-a-day fines on the parents, guardians, Waites, Superintendent Allen Nicholls and a local constable who accompanied the girls to classes Tuesday.

Lee's lawyer Dan Alexander said he expected the U.S. Supreme Court ultimately to rule on the question of whether parents may transfer custody of their children to avoid forced busing.

Lee approved the custody swap last fall, and Scott called it "a sham" to circumvent desegregation.

Lee, contending the case was strictly a Louisiana domestic matter in which his court had sole jurisdiction, ordered deputy sheriffs to enroll the girls at Buckeye on Dec. 4.

Scott ordered the deputies away and threatened to fine anyone who tried to enroll the girls at Buckeye after Christmas holidays ended Jan. 5.

On Monday, Lee sent state police to Buckeye with the girls. Scott ordered the troopers — and every Louisiana official — to stop interfering in the desegregation plan.

On Tuesday, Lee came to the school with constable Newton Paul Jr., who escorted the girls to classes. Scott sent a U.S. marshal to order the constable out.

When Lee and his lawyer showed up on Wednesday, Scott ordered the contempt-of-court hearing.

The Buckeye affair is the second confrontation between Scott and Rapides Parish parents, who are annoyed over the busing order.

When classes began in September, parents in the Forest Hill community began a "squatters' school" in an elementary school that Scott had ordered closed. Its students were to be bused elsewhere.

Scott ordered the Forest Hill school off-limits to everyone, at the risk of fines ranging from $100 to $300.

Police fear 'bounty hunters' at work in troubled Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo police say they're concerned about reports that some black "bounty hunters" are frequenting city bus stops in hopes of catching the killer or killers of eight black men.

"I'm concerned that these so-called bounty hunters might harm innocent persons mistaken for the killer," said Homicide Bureau Chief Leo J. Donovan.

"Individuals acting without police power are prone to make mistakes through inexperience or panic. Everyone has a right to protect himself, but to act as a bounty hunter might very well be in violation of the law," he said Wednesday.

His comments came as the Buffalo Courier Express said some blacks are trying to lure the killer or killers out of hiding.

"I guess you could call them bounty hunters. They're after the reward money," Councilman James W. Pitts told the newspaper.

The Common Council has approved a $25,000 reward, the Erie County Legislature is considering offering another $25,000 and private groups have raised another $50,000.

Donovan said anyone found using an illegal weapon to make an arrest might forfeit the reward money because he was acting outside the law.

Seven black men have been killed here and one in nearby Rochester since September. On Wednesday, checks totaling almost $14,000 were distributed to families of the men slain in the Buffalo area.

Daniel Acker, president of the Buffalo branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, oversaw the distribution of checks to the victims' families.

Standardized test recalled following theft of booklets

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Scholastic Aptitude Test is being recalled throughout the nation after 120 test booklets were stolen from a car.

The Educational Testing Service ordered the recall because of the possibility the standard college entrance exam may have been photocopied.

A box containing 120 copies of the test was stolen Christmas week from the car of a test supervisor in a suburb of Los Angeles while the supervisor was mailing a packet of the test booklets, said Mary Churchill, an ETS spokeswoman.

"We think someone was just trying to help themselves to a Christmas present," Ms. Churchill said. "They were probably greatly disappointed to find a bunch of SATs."

The box and 119 of the test booklets were found New Year's Eve in a trash bag behind the home of a suburban newspaper editor.

Ms. Churchill said the theft would have no effect on other tests or scores by high school students.

The stolen test, which took 18 months to prepare, will cost about $100,000 to replace, she added.

Exporters signal oil price hike

by WILLIAM GLASGALL
Associated Press Writer

The cost of the oil Americans obtain from the Persian Gulf and the North Sea is continuing to climb as more petroleum exporters signal their intentions to raise prices.

In the latest moves since a new round of increases began last month, the United Arab Emirates was reported to be raising the price of its oil $2 a barrel, while the British National Oil Corp. said a new price for North Sea oil probably would be set by the end of the week.

Industry sources said the British increase was likely to be between $2.50 and $4 over its current price of $36.25 for a 42-gallon barrel.

"We are following world market prices," the Gulf News Agency quoted British Energy Minister David Howell as saying after meeting in Abu Dhabi with Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates.

Britain is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but usually follows prices set by OPEC nations. OPEC decided recently to allow prices to rise by about 10 percent.

The increases by the cartel and other exporters are expected to add up to 8 cents a gallon to the cost of gasoline and heating oil in the United States. Most American refiners, who also are facing rising oil costs at home, have raised wholesale prices of these products by between a penny and 5.5 cents a gallon since late December.

Britain and the United Arab Emirates, which is an OPEC member, each provide the United States with about 200,000 barrels of oil a day, or a total of 2 percent of American oil needs. America imports nearly half the 16.8 million barrels of oil it consumes daily.

Platt's Oilgram Price Report, a daily trade newspaper published in New York, said the increase by the United Arab Emirates would raise the price of a barrel of the country's high-quality Murban grade of crude to $35.56.

The reported move was not immediately confirmed by companies dealing with the Persian Gulf producer, which cut its oil output 5 percent on Jan. 1 to 1.62 million barrels a day.

An increase in British oil prices has been expected following recent price increases of $3 to $4 a barrel by Libya, Algeria and Nigeria, OPEC members whose oil is of similar quality to that produced in the North Sea.

Other OPEC members raising prices include Venezuela and Indonesia.

Libya's increase raised its price from $37 a barrel to OPEC's new maximum of $41 a barrel for official prices. The other two countries raised prices by $3 to $4 a barrel, but charge premiums of $1.25 to $3 a barrel on some sales.

Oil prices set by the United Arab Emirates often move in tandem with those charged by Saudi Arabia, the world's largest petroleum exporter. The Saudis, who supply 8 percent of U.S. oil needs, began the current series of OPEC increases in mid-December, raising their crude oil price from $30 to $32 a barrel.

OPEC oil ministers subsequently decided to let the cartel's prices rise by 10 percent to a new average of about $35 a barrel — 171 percent above the average price at the end of 1978.

Howard draws four wildcats; Amoco final Wolfcamp strike

Midland area operators have announced four wildcats in Howard County, and a project in Loving County has been amended to a Fusselman wildcat.

HOWARD WILDCATS

Estoril Producing Corp. of Midland will drill a 10,600-foot Fusselman wildcat in Howard County, 19 miles north of Big Spring.

No. 1 Armstrong is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 30, block 33, T-3-N, T&P survey.

It is 1 1/2 miles northwest of Cisco production in the Modesta, South field, which produces from 8,940 feet, and located in the area of depleted Modesta fields, which produced from 8,600 feet.

David Fasken of Midland will re-enter a project in Howard County and deepen it for wildcat tests, 15 miles northwest of Big Spring.

No. 1 Fisherman is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 10, block 33, T-2-N, T&P survey. It originally was the No. 1 Sam Fisherman, plugged and abandoned at a depth of 8,970 feet in 1952.

Located 2 1/4 miles east of the opener and lone producer of the Buzzard Draw (Fusselman) field, which produces from 10,382 feet, Fasken will deepen to 10,650 feet for the tests.

Florida Exploration Co., Midland, has amended No. 1-31 Stella Petty to wildcat status in Howard County. It is also scheduled to test the Florac (Strawn oil) pay.

Location is 2,080 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 31, block 33, T-1-S, T&P survey, and five miles southwest of Big Spring.

Contract depth is 9,500 feet. It is one-half mile south of a 9,456-foot failure, and two miles southeast of the depleted Moss Creek (lower Wolfcamp) field, which produced from 8,053 feet.

Turner Petroleum Co., operating from Big Spring, will drill an 8,000-foot wildcat in Howard County, three miles southwest of Coahoma.

No. 1 Powell is 750 feet from north and 933 feet from west lines of section 15, block 31, T-1-S, T&P survey. It is one mile southeast of the Hutto, South (Wolfcamp) field, which produces from 7,421 feet.

LOVING COUNTY

Conoco Inc., Midland, No. 2 Continental TXL has been amended to wildcat status in Loving County.

The location is 1,320 feet from south and west lines of section 1, block 53, T-2, T&P survey, and 16 miles northeast of Mentone.

Contract depth is 20,500 feet.

Bass Enterprises Production Co. of Midland has staked location for a project in the Dimmit (Delaware) field of Loving County, 1 1/2 miles southwest of the current lone producer.

No. 1-45 Bass TXL is 467 feet from north and 2,173 feet from west lines of section 45, block 53, T-2, T&P survey, and 6 miles northeast of Mentone.

The project is scheduled to 6,600 feet.

FUEL SOLD DIRECT FROM REFINERS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A group of gas stations has begun selling fuel to its members direct from refiners — a move designed to cut wholesale prices about 4 cents a gallon and "force large oil companies" to do the same, the group says.

The action is "the first attempt by a trade association to furnish (fuel) to the consumer at a competitive price," Jim Campbell, executive director of the California Service Station Association, said.

The association represents about 2,600 service station owners.

Campbell said he and several other association retailers in the San Francisco Bay area had purchased a "jobbership" — an outlet that gets fuel directly from refiners and normally sells it to large rural customers. The cost of the jobbership was not disclosed.

The group, based in Pleasant Hill, is buying the fuel from refiners and selling it to its own members, undercutting the major companies, Campbell said.

Retail stations usually buy from brand-name companies.

The action would cut about 4 cents a gallon off the wholesale cost of regular gasoline, Campbell said. The group is selling regular gasoline to its retailers for $1.03 a gallon, unleaded for $1.07, diesel for 84 cents, and premium for $1.06.

"Most of the retailers are working on an 8-cent profit margin, so that 4 cents is a lot," he said.

"Only a handful" of stations, all in northern California, so far are selling the CSSA fuel from pumps marked with CSSA stickers, Campbell said.

The group also hopes to establish a CSSA jobber in southern California.

Quaker State recalls defective oil

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP) — Quaker State Oil Refining Corp. has asked distributors of its DeLuxe 10W-40 and Super Blend 10W-30 motor oils to return the products if they don't perform in cold weather.

Use of the oil could lead to hard starting or possible engine damage, said a spokesman for Quaker State, producer of the nation's largest selling brand name motor oil.

"It is our understanding that we've only had several cases where there was any sort of engine damage. In all others it was hard starting or the (dashboard) oil light staying on," the spokesman said Tuesday.

In letters to distributors of the oil across the country, Quaker State also asked that sales of certain shipments of the oil be halted, the spokesman said.

"We don't have a figure for how much of it is bad. What we're doing is putting on hold all of this particular oil that was produced between Nov. 13 through Dec. 23 at our refineries in Congo, W. Va., and Farmer's Valley, Pa.," the spokesman said.

An additive bought from a Quaker State supplier caused the defect, the company said.

"We corrected it by eliminating this additive so that all our current shipments have outstanding low temperature performance," the spokesman said in a telephone interview.

The affected oil does not flow as easily in cold weather as it supposed to because of the additive.

"For instance, under low temperature performance the 10W-40 product performs like a 20W-40 motor oil," the spokesman said. The figures refer to oil flow characteristics. A 10-weight oil flows more easily in cold temperatures than an oil with a higher weight.

The Quaker State spokesman said the company has received "more than five and less than 50 major complaints from consumers," because of the oil in question.

Quaker State has made arrangements to have those vehicles with damaged engines repaired. The spokesman said those cases were centered in the Sioux Falls, S.D., area.

Distributors of the two affected

Quaker State brands are being asked to return affected batches for new oil on an even-exchange basis.

The spokesman said the company hadn't estimated how much the replacement will cost.

In December, Speedee Lube oil and lubrication shops in the Omaha, Neb., area called back about 4,000 vehicles because of Quaker State oil which turns jellylike in cold weather.

The company spokesman said Quaker State authorized that move, but he said that particular batch was isolated in Omaha and Sioux Falls and was unrelated to the replacement program now in progress. The number of vehicles that experienced problems in those two cities was small, he said.

OCAW agrees to negotiate

DENVER (AP) — The Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union has agreed to continue negotiating with 11 independent oil refineries although contracts have expired.

The union, which represents workers at more than 100 refineries around the country, is trying to persuade the 11 refineries to conform with details of an industrywide contract hammered out last year.

The 11 contracts affect approximately 1,375 refinery workers in eight states.

Last year, more than 90 other refineries, employing nearly 60,000 union employees, extended their union contracts to Jan. 7, 1982 after a 14-week strike. It was the longest strike in the history of the nation's oil refinery industry.

Those refineries agreed to raise union workers' wages by 52 cents an hour over the then-current industry average of $9.55 an hour. The industry also agreed to a 10.5 percent increase effective this Jan. 8 and an extension of the life of the contract through 1982.

Dawson claims Spraberry strike

A Spraberry discovery and a wildcat operation have been reported in Dawson County, and operators announced locations for wildcats in Garza, Gaines, Terry and King counties.

DAWSON STRIKE

Challenger Minerals, Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., announced completion of a Spraberry discovery, No. 1 R. A. Noret, in Dawson County, nine miles northeast of Lamesa.

The well finished for a 24-hour pumping potential of 135 barrels of 31.2-gravity oil and 45 barrels of water, through perforations from 7,825 to 8,372 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 496-1.

The pay was acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Total depth is 8,450 feet, 5 1/2-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 8,372 feet.

Well site is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 31, block 35, T-6-N, T&P survey.

The new Dawson County wildcat is RK Petroleum Corp. of Midland No. Merrill "A."

Scheduled to 8,300 feet, it is two miles northwest of Lamesa and 5/8 mile southeast of the one-well Lamesa, North (7850 lower Spraberry) field.

Drill site is 1,980 feet from south and west lines of section 66, block 35, T-6-N, GTRR survey. Ground elevation is 2,993 feet.

The site also is 3/4 mile north of a 9,602-foot dry hole.

The field was discovered in 1960 by RK Petroleum No. 1 Davis.

GAINES PROJECT

Forest Oil Corp. has announced new location for its No. 1 Barron, scheduled 12,300-foot wildcat in Gaines County, seven miles southwest of Seminole.

The new location will be operated as No. 1-R Barron. It is 560 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 13, block A-21, ps1 survey. The old site was 660 feet from south and west lines of the section.

The test is 1 1/2 miles southeast of a 9,805-foot dry hole and 1 1/2 miles northeast of the Robertson (San Andres) field.

GARZA TESTER

Samedan Oil Corp. of Midland spotted an 8,800-foot wildcat seven miles south of Post in Garza County.

It is No. 1 Ruby S. Kirkpatrick, 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 13, block 2, T&NO survey. Ground elevation is 2,573 feet.

The site is 3/4 mile east of an 8,790-foot dry hole and two miles east of the Teas, North multipay field.

TERRY EXPLORER

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1 M. P. Marchbanks is to be drilled as a rank 8,000-foot wildcat eight miles northwest of Brownfield in Terry County.

Operator staked location 660 feet from north and west lines of section 6, block D-8, EL&RR survey.

The site is 3/4 mile north of a 6,500-foot dry hole.

KING WILDCAT

Consolidated Oil & Gas, Inc., of Denver, Colo., spotted No. 1-36 Parramore as a 6,100-foot wildcat in King County, 20 miles northeast of Aspermont.

Location is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 36, block F, H&TC survey. Ground elevation is 1,770 feet.

GARZA EXPLORER

Sayers Operating Co., operating from Midland, has staked location for an Ellenburger wildcat in Garza County, seven miles southwest of Post.

No. 1 Macy-Lott is 1,780 feet from north and 488 feet from east lines of section 4, block 30, T-7-N, W. A. Calloway survey.

It is a south offset to the Spraberry opener and lone producer in the O'Donnell, Northeast field, which produces from 5,475 feet.

Contract depth is 8,900 feet, on ground elevation of 2,789 feet.

AAPG lecturer on program

Dr. Amos Salvador, professor of Geology at The University of Texas at Austin and a Distinguished Lecturer sponsored by The American Association of Petroleum Geologists, will address the Tuesday meeting of the West Texas Geological Society.

The meeting will begin at 11:30 a.m. in the Midland Hilton. Reservations should be made by 3 p.m. Friday with the Midland headquarters office of the WTGS.

The title of Dr. Salvador's talk is "Late Triassic-Jurassic Paleogeography and the Origin of the Gulf of Mexico."

The speaker formerly was a chief geologist with Exxon Co., U.S.A. in Houston from 1971-1980. He will speak to approximately 30 geological societies and universities while on tour for the AAPG.

Dr. Salvador is a native of Madrid, Spain. He earned a degree in Geology at the Universidad Central de Venezuela, and received his Ph.D. in Geology at Stanford University.

His professional associations have been with Mene Grande Oil Co. (Gulf Oil Corp.), Venezuela; regional geologist with Gulf for various parts of North Africa, Europe and South America; supervisor of exploration, Venezuela, for Creole Petroleum Corp.

Dr. Amos Salvador

And, vice president — Exploration Research for Jersey Production Research Co., Tulsa; manager of geological department for Creole in Venezuela, and executive vice president for Esso Production Research Co. in Houston.

He joined the University of Texas staff last year.

PECOS CONFIRMER

Texas Oil & Gas Corp., operating from Midland, has completed the second well in the Chenot, North (Wichita-Albany gas) field of Pecos County. It is a location west extension to the field.

No. 6 Girvin "A" finished for a calculated absolute open flow of 5,000,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 4,075 to 4,514 feet, which had been acidized with 2,500 gallons.

Drilled to a depth of 4,730 feet, where 4.5-inch casing was set, it was plugged back to 4,530 feet. The pay was topped at 4,075 feet, on ground elevation of 2,611 feet.

Well site is 467 feet from south and 2,110 feet from east lines of section 74, block 11, H&GN survey, 10 miles southwest of Girvin.

MARTIN OILER

The Breedlove, East (Spraberry) field of Martin County gained another producer with completion of Saxon Oil Co., Midland, No. 1 Knox.

Operator reported the well finished to pump 96 barrels of 39-gravity oil and 200 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 1,042-1.

Production was through perforations from 7,756 to 9,277 feet, which had been treated with 4,000 gallons of acid, and 206,000 gallons of fracture fluid.

Hole bottomed at 9,500 feet, where 4.5-inch casing was set, and was plugged back to 9,427 feet. The pay was topped at 7,753 feet, on ground elevation of 2,846 feet.

Well site is 1,675 feet from north and 6,154 feet from west lines of league 253, Ward county School Land survey, six miles south of Patricia.

CULBERSON LOCATION

Telaco Inc. will drill No. 5 Culberson "V" Fee in the Ford, West (4100 oil) field of Culberson County.

Location is 467 feet from south and 1,950 feet from west lines of section 21, block 58, T-1, T&P survey, seven miles northwest of Orla.

The project is contracted to 4,100 feet.

EDDY STRIKE

Amoco Production Co., operating from Midland, has completed a Wolfcamp oil discovery in Eddy County, New Mexico, seven miles southeast of Carlsbad.

On 24-hour potential test, No. 1 Federal "AE" finished to flow 60 barrels of oil and 65 barrels of water, through a 20/64-inch choke. The gravity of the oil was not reported.

Production was through perforations from 9,514 to 9,712 feet, with gas-oil ratio of 24,615-1, and flowing tubing pressure of 750 pounds per square inch.

Contract depth is 2,700 feet.

WILDCATS

38 wildcat projects scheduled for Permian Basin counties

Thirty-eight proposed wildcat projects were among the 181 new oil and gas operations announced last week for the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico.

Sixteen of the wildcats were filed in District 7-C of the Railroad Commission. Headquarters for the district are in San Angelo. Runnels County accounted for eight of the district's exploratory tests.

District 8-A, headquartered in Midland, reported 88 oil and gas projects, including 10 wildcats.

District 8A, with headquarters in Abilene, processed applications requesting permission to drill six wildcats and 24 field projects.

McGovern gets tacky with priest

HOVEN, S.D. (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest who criticized campaign workers for leaving leaflets on cars parked outside church says he's sad that a letter from former Sen. George McGovern called him a "horse's ass" and "a disgrace" to the church and to politics. "The letter doesn't hurt me, but it saddens me," said the Rev. Leonard A. Nemmers of St. Anthony's Rectory at Hoven. Nemmers had asked McGovern for an apology for some campaign tactics during the November election, which the veteran senator lost to Rep. Jim Abdnor. A McGovern campaign committee distributed literature on windshields of cars parked at church services, and the priest, a registered Democrat, objected, contending the workers were using the church for politics. Nemmers said he received an apology from campaign manager Harvey Wollman and thought the issue was dead. Then came McGovern's letter, dated Dec. 18. "Far from giving you an apology, I want to say that if I had to pick the Number One candidate for the biggest horse's ass in South Dakota in 1960, you would win hands down. I think you are a disgrace, both to the church and to decent politics," said the letter. Nemmers paid to have the letter printed in the Hoven paper. "I had the letter printed ... because a man of his stature shouldn't be writing letters like that," Nemmers said. "It's uncalled for. Throughout our differences in the campaign, I never once attacked his person." Nemmers said the letter indicated McGovern was bitter over the election loss. McGovern was unavailable for comment on the letter, but longtime aide George Cunningham said the letter had to speak for itself. McGovern's secretary, Pat Donovan, said she typed the letter for McGovern. "Senator McGovern wrote the letter and believed what he wrote," she said. "I think the letter would have to speak for itself."

Begin may resign

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin will resign next week, setting the stage for early elections, possibly by this summer, Israeli newspapers predicted today. Begin will quit unless a compromise is reached on salary demands by the nation's 58,000 teachers, and both Finance Minister Yigael Hurrvitz and Education Minister Zevulun Hammer decide to stay in office, the papers said. Hurrvitz, seeking to cap an inflationary spiral that left Israel with the world's highest inflation rate — 131 percent — last year, has threatened to quit if the Begin government meets in to the teachers' demands for higher pay, while Hammer says he resigns if the teachers don't get salary hikes. The resignation of either minister would almost certainly topple the government, and the newspapers said there was little hope a compromise could be found. Israel is scheduled to hold parliamentary elections in November, but the balloting could be pushed up to the beginning of summer if Begin quits. The newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said Begin would submit his resignation to President Yitzhak Navon on Sunday, if a Cabinet meeting scheduled for earlier in the day is unable to work out a compromise on the teachers' demands. A second newspaper, Maariv, said Begin would see Navon on Tuesday. Both papers said there was little chance a formula could be found to keep the Begin coalition together. A spokesman for Begin denied the prime minister had made a final decision and said the Israeli leader was determined to continue searching for a compromise between Hurrvitz and Hammer. Meanwhile, Shlomo Nakkidimon, a former Begin aide, said in an interview on Armed Forces Radio that the prime minister's determination to stay in office as long as possible stemmed from fears that if the opposition Labor Party won the next election it would go ahead with its plan to trade parts of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River for a peace settlement with Jordan. Begin wants to headoff such a deal with Jordan by reaching agreement with Egypt on a plan for Palestinian home rule on the West Bank before he leaves office, Nakkidimon said. Israeli political sources said there was growing support for early elections among Begin's key coalition partners. If Begin resigns now he could stay on as a caretaker until elections in the summer. The Labor Party, however, hopes to push a bill through Parliament that would set an election for within 100 days from the moment the bill passes.

Questions, Answers on new draft registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are questions and answers about the latest round of draft registration under way this week. Q. Who is supposed to register for a military draft this week? A. Any male born in 1962, and thus celebrating his 19th birthday this year. The Selective Service estimates 1.9 million young men fall into this category. Q. Who will have to register next? A. There will be no further mass registrations by birth years. Instead, any male who turns 18 years old must register within 30 days of his birthday on an individual basis. Q. What will happen to draft registrants? A. Their names and other personal information goes into a computerized pool of potential draftees for call-up in the event of a national emergency and reinstatement of an actual military draft. The name of a registrant is dropped from the pool when he reaches his 26th birthday. Q. Can a registrant claim a draft deferment as a conscientious objector or a hardship case? A. Only at the time a draft is reinstated and he is summoned for pre-induction classification and examination. Requests for deferments are decided by local draft boards. In addition, he may be one of the 50 percent of all potential draftees who are disqualified for physical or mental reasons. Q. What happens if an eligible male doesn't register? A. He is subject to prosecution in federal court as a felon, and risks a maximum penalty set by Congress of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Insurance rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A national consumer group says Texans might be paying $222.3 million a year too much for their automobile insurance. The estimate came Wednesday from the Washington-based National Insurance Consumer Organization, whose president, Robert Hunter, was to testify today before the State Insurance Board.

Automakers receive more time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency, citing the "financially troubled" U.S. automobile industry, said Wednesday it will let major car makers an extra two years for certain engines to meet automobile emission standards. The government agency has given General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors until 1983 for seven of their engine models to meet the 1981 standard for carbon monoxide of 3.4 grams per mile. Cars using these engines will be allowed to meet the standard of seven grams per mile. "The EPA granted the waivers to give the financially troubled companies flexibility to improve the competitiveness of these cars. Agency officials said the cars are particularly important both to the economic health of the companies and to the nation's need for more fuel-efficient vehicles," the EPA said in its official announcement.

When you buy a used car, what else do you get besides the car?
In a good restaurant, when you buy a dinner, you get more than just food. You get service, a pleasant atmosphere, and a feeling that the owners would like you to come back.
It's the very same way that we like to sell used cars. Since our reputation is more "on the line" when we sell a used car, you can be sure we'll do everything we can to make our used car customer a satisfied customer.
