Progress noted in hostage talks

By The Associated Press

The Speaker of Iran's Parliament said today "all roads" are open to settling the hostage problem and that he expects approval of two emergency bills aimed at solving the crisis by Friday — four days before the inauguration of Ronald Reagan, who has warned he will conduct talks with a "clean slate."

In another action that could indicate progress, the prime minister's office today advised Iranian ministries, firms and individuals with claims against the United States to submit documents to substantiate their claims to a government "claims committee" within 30 days, according to the official Pars news agency.

Parliament Speaker Hojatoleslam Hashemi Rafsani told a news conference in Tehran that "There is nothing important in these bills that would necessitate a no vote. However, it depends on the discussion and the elaborations in the Majlis tomorrow."

Asked whether approval of the bills would lead to the release of the hostages by Friday, he said, "I can't predict when the hostages will be released but we have opened all roads for settling the hostage problem. They will be released if our rights are met."

Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai also hinted of a hostage release, saying in a state radio broadcast, "According to available information, the issue is making progress. We are trying to approach it logically and doing our best to maintain the main line in our relations with American imperialism."

"At any rate, as long as we consider America as an aggressor in the world, we shall not retreat from our position. Even presuming that the hostages are released in the near future, we shall not abandon our main position, which is fighting imperialism and our ideology."

The two emergency bills were introduced today by Iran's top hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, who said in presenting the legislation, "If we do not reach a result by Jan. 16 it is not clear how the negotiations will continue with the new incoming administration."

President Carter has set Jan. 16 as the deadline by which a hostage agreement must be reached if the terms are to be put into effect before Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20.

Reagan said Sunday he will start on the hostage talks with a clean slate if Carter fails to get an agreement. "I still hope and pray the president will succeed in what he has been trying to do. If not, then we have to start," Reagan said.

The Washington Post, quoting informed sources, reported that American negotiators are trying to draft an international agreement, to be signed by President Carter before Jan. 20 and legally binding on Reagan, setting down terms of a settlement for release of the hostages.

Nabavi said the first emergency bill asks the Parliament, or Majlis, to approve a third-party arbitrator to settle financial and legal claims between Iran and the United States.

The second bill asks the Majlis to nationalize the wealth of the late shah and his relatives, Nabavi said, a move that would make it easier for the United States to return the shah's assets to Iran.

After Nabavi announced the legislation, the Majlis went into closed session. A vote is scheduled on the two bills Tuesday.

Another Iranian hostage negotiator, Ahmad Azizi, said earlier that the Iranian government has accepted the "commitment" offered by the United States for the release of the 52 American captives.

"We have accepted the commitment the United States is making before the government of Algeria," Azizi told a Western reporter in Tehran.

Algerian sources in the Iranian capital said on Sunday they believed a breakthrough in the negotiations was near after the Tehran newspaper Enghelab Islami said Azizi told it in an interview his government would accept U.S. "guarantees" instead of the $24 billion deposit demanded for the hostages.

Flames swept through a two-story East St. Louis, Ill., home early Sunday, killing 11 children left unattended by their mother. One body was found in the bedroom above, nine others were in a nearby bedroom sleeping on a foam rubber mat, and another was found in the stairwell. At left, firemen remove several of the bodies. Fire kills 11 children

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — The mother of 11 children who died in a house fire as they slept unattended had often left her children alone and said they were "too bad for anyone else to watch," a neighbor says.

Virginia Williams, 28, was held in the city jail while police investigated the blaze, which broke out early Sunday morning and roared through the brick house. No charges were filed.

Lt. Norman Stevens of the fire department said a space heater in a downstairs living room was to blame for the fire.

One officer with responsibility for juvenile affairs, Gregory Cox, said authorities had spoken with Ms. Williams several times in the past about leaving her 12 children unattended.

"She told me that her 11-year-old girl kept an eye on the other kids all the time," neighbor Ethel Bobo said of Ms. Williams, who was pregnant at the time of the fire. "I told her I'd keep an eye on the kids, but she told me they were too bad for anyone else to watch. But they were nice kids, real nice kids," she said.

Ms. Bobo said she had taken groceries to the house several times and frequently fed the children.

"Those kids were always hungry," she said. "They were over here all the time getting something to eat. And they didn't have any clothes."

Eleven of Ms. Williams' children, aged 10 months to 11 years, were home when the fire broke out shortly after 2 a.m., authorities said. A 12th child was believed to have been staying with friends or relatives.

"I kicked that back door open and called to them," said Lonzo Blain, who lives across the street. "I could hear their little feet hitting the stairs. But the smoke got them — they never made it."

"They stood there a long time," he said, "and they never made it."

An East St. Louis police officer said Ms. Williams told authorities she had been riding around at the time of the fire. When she arrived at the scene, "She just turned away screaming, 'Lordy, Lordy, Lordy. Why my children, Lord?'" said neighbor Joyce Brown.

The fire brought charges from firefighters that city officials "played Russian roulette with citizens" by laying off 15 firemen recently.

Mayor Carl Officer, whose 1981 budget forced the layoff of 90 city employees, said more firemen would have made no difference.

"It was the professional judgment of my fire department that nothing could be done to save those children," Officer said. "That house was a matchbox."

Dallas police plan crackdown on gambling

DALLAS (AP) — If you want to wager a little money on the Jan. 25 Super Bowl, a special police task force is betting you won't do it in Dallas.

"Dallas is a great sports city and because of that, there's a great deal of interest in major league sports clubs and consequently, there's a lot of gambling activity going on," says task force Sgt. John T. Williams.

The task force is designed to put a dent in pre-Super Bowl gambling activity, which officials say topped $50 million dollars in Dallas when the Cowboys played Denver in Super Bowl XII.

In raids last weekend, police confiscated more than $17,000, gambling paraphernalia and almost 400 capsules of amphetamines, as well as arresting five men.

The arrests brought to 15 the number of major gambling arrests made during the task force's four-month investigation.

"These are not your guys sitting in a bar taking a few bets," says Williams. "Most have professional setups, have been in business a long time, and several have been busted before."

The men were taking bets on Sunday's playoff games, the East-West Shrine game and several basketball matches, Williams said.

"We've got several arrest warrants on more people and anticipate more arrests," he says.

Calls from citizens were instrumental in making some of the arrests, he adds.

"I'm all the time getting calls from housewives who give me the name and telephone number of a bookie because her husband keeps betting with this person and they can't make the car payment or pay the rent," Williams says. "They usually won't identify themselves."

And sometimes, he says, the bettors "will get behind in payments and will get threatened by collectors hired by bookmakers" and call the police themselves.

When police make an arrest, Williams says, officers start answering telephones and recording the bets, which bettors make through a code number previously assigned by the bookmaker.

"In several of the arrests, we got their master code list, which tells names, addresses, telephone numbers and code numbers of the clients," he says.

"We've identified these people as being professional people, attorneys, business owners, people from all walks of life."

Four persons injured in fire in Dallas Street home

A house fire at 603 N. Dallas St. about noon today resulted in a woman and three children being taken to Midland Memorial Hospital. Few details were available at press time.

According to a spokesman with the Fire Department, the call came in at 11:37 a.m. Six fire trucks and two ambulances responded. By 11:55 a.m., two of the fire units had left, said the spokesman.

Twenty-year-old Pater Madrid was taken to the hospital's emergency room with burns to her face and hands. Hospital spokesmen said the woman had suffered third degree burns and probably would be admitted. The children received minor injuries. Two were Mrs. Madrid's children and the third is related.

The house apparently was rented by the Pater family. No cause for the fire had been determined this morning.

Early elections expected for new Israeli Knesset

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today he favors early elections, making it virtually certain that Israelis will go to the polls in June instead of November.

"The tendency by most of the ministers was for early elections. This is also my position," Begin told reporters after a special Cabinet meeting, called after the resignation of his finance minister Sunday stripped the Begin coalition of its majority in the Knesset, or Parliament.

Begin's ministers were to consult with their parties before convening another Cabinet meeting Tuesday or Wednesday to reach a final decision on elections, officials said.

If new elections are ordered, Begin would remain the chief of a caretaker administration until the new Knesset met and approved a new government.

The newspaper Maariv said Begin's advisers urged the adoption of legislation dissolving the Parliament and advancing the November election of a new legislature to June.

The opposition Labor Party, which is favored to win the election, said it would introduce the legislation if the government didn't.

"The last curtain will almost certainly come down today," said Maariv.

The crisis for Begin's 3½-year-old coalition government came to a head Sunday when Finance Minister Yigael Hurvitz quit after the Cabinet rejected his demand that it postpone indefinitely pay raises for the nation's 58,000 teachers.

Instead, the Cabinet voted 11-2 for a compromise accepting the teachers' demands in principle but postponing the payment of higher salaries. The increases, recommended by a government commission, would raise the monthly salary of a teacher with nine years' experience from $480 to $546. The average Israeli's wage is about $630.

Hurvitz argued the raises would spur other groups to demand pay increases that would fuel a new inflationary spiral at a time when he was trying to curb the inflation rate, which hit a world record of 131 percent last year.

Hurvitz, whose resignation takes effect Tuesday, said the other two Knesset members from the Rafi Party would bolt Begin's coalition, leaving the prime minister with 58 seats at most in the 120-member Knesset and dependent for survival on a handful of independent parties.

Hurvitz' resignation was the sixth defection from Begin's Cabinet since it took power in June 1977. It was the first Israeli government not headed by the Labor Party since Israel became a state in 1948.

Shlomo Lorincz, the chairman of the parliamentary finance committee who tried to work out a compromise between Hurvitz and Education Minister Ze'evulum Hammer, said Begin, who heads the Likud Party, told him he would call for early elections before the Labor Party could carry out its threat to bring down the government.

"It is impossible to continue with a limping government," Lorincz told Israel television. "My understanding is that there will be a motion to dissolve the Knesset."

Hammer, who had threatened to resign himself if the teacher's raises were blocked, said his personal preference was "that the cabinet endure. But it depends on whether the government can get honorable support in the Knesset."

Haim Corfu, the government whip in the Knesset, predicted the government could survive Hurvitz's walkout and said there was no need for Begin to resign or call for an early election. But he said he thought early elections were likely, adding, "There were governments that resigned over much less honorable issues than this."

Paratroopers hurt when chutes tangle

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two National Guard paratroopers whose parachutes became tangled during a jump suffered broken bones and were hospitalized after they came down together, supported only by one partially working chute, their commanders said.

Capt. Dan Vaughn and Warrant Officer Rodney Fakatou, both of Salt Lake and members of the 19th Special Forces, were in stable and satisfactory condition at the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

the weight of both men, was pulled askew by the equipment line, Bria and Haslam said.

"That spilled air out of it and it partially collapsed," and they fell, Bria said. "Then Vaughn's chute caught some more air," slowing them, he said.

Vaughn hit the ground "and bounced up four feet," Bria said. His chute collapsed and Fakatou fell 20 feet, Haslam said.

Vaughn suffered a separated pelvis and fractured right heel bone, and Fakatou suffered a dislocated knee which will require surgery an injury to the lower back, Bria said.

Bria said he was told the two were in the same room at the hospital, "in good shape, talking and joking, but in some pain."

Bria, a social worker at the state prison, was on crutches Sunday night after suffering heel and knee injuries in the same jumps that day. The landing site, an icy field near Park City, east of here, was like "a block of cement," he said.

Spec. 5 Jerry Graham and Sgt. Mike Parr, both of Salt Lake, also suffered minor ankle and knee injuries, he said.

The jumps were made over Richardson Flats, privately owned property.

The Service Company was in a C-130, which dropped 12 troopers on each pass. The jumps were from 1,250 feet above ground, the normal altitude for the jumps, Haslam said.

Suspected 'Freeway Killer' found hanged in jail cell

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Private letters and legal papers, but "nothing like a suicide note," were strewn in the jail cell where a man accused in six "Freeway Killer" slayings was found hanged, officials said.

The body of 23-year-old Vernon Butts, who also was a potential witness against another defendant in the series of Southern California slayings, was found Sunday in his high-security cell in the Men's Central Jail near downtown Los Angeles.

He was hanging from a towel wrapped around his neck and attached to a towel rack.

"We're certain" it was a suicide, said Lt. Jerry Minnis.

"There were no inmates in the area at that time of night," he said. "All of the inmates are locked down. Only three people have keys to that room."

The prisoner was not known to be suicidal, sheriff's Deputy Ralph Martin said.

Minnis said one letter found in Butts' cell indicated he was upset about the release last week of preliminary hearing transcripts detailing his confession to police of his part in the slayings.

Butts was checked by a deputy 40 minutes before he was discovered. Minnis said it appeared Butts had placed the towel over the towel bar, tied the ends together, "then lowered himself into the noose by getting into a kneeling position."

Jailers and a doctor were unable to revive Butts.

According to the hearing transcripts, Butts had referred to the slayings as a "good little nightmare" and implicated the chief defendant in the case, 33-year-old William Bonin, who is accused of 14 of the 44 killings which have occurred since 1972.

Butts, an aspiring magician, had not agreed to be a prosecution witness, and prosecutors have said his testimony was not crucial.

Warrant Officer Rodney Fakatou of the 19th Special Forces Service Company, Utah National Guard, tears through the chute of Capt. Dan Vaughn, right, as they plummet toward the earth during Sunday's practice jumps over Park City West. The accident occurred as the troopers jumped from a C-130 at a height of 1,250 feet and became entangled. The two, who came down with the one partially opened chute, were both reported in satisfactory condition at Veteran's Hospital in Salt Lake City. (AP Laserphoto)

Clouds may bring more rain to Basin

The cloudy skies should continue tonight and tomorrow and may bring more light rain to the Permian Basin. The chance of rain is a slight 20 percent through Tuesday.

Over the dreary weekend, Midland received a whopping .01 of an inch of rain Sunday, bringing the month and year total to .34 of an inch of precipitation. According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the normal amount of rainfall by this date is .57 of an inch.

The Permian Basin temperatures should be warm enough for rain tonight and Tuesday if the 20 percent chance becomes a reality, with a low tonight expected in the mid-30s. However, McCamey's temperatures dipped to produce light snow flurries early this morning.

Tuesday's high is expected to reach the mid-50s.

Winds will be light and southeasterly, 5-10 mph tonight, and becoming southerly, 5-10 mph on Tuesday.

This morning's low was 31 degrees, much warmer than the record low of 5 degrees recorded for the date in 1963. Sunday's high reached 45 — not much compared with the record 78 degrees set in 1933.

Two children home from burn center

Two of the four children burned in a Dec. 12 fire here were scheduled to return to Midland this afternoon from the Oklahoma burn center they've been in for nearly a month.

Arriving home via Texas International Airlines were Hobert Williams, 4, and his brother, Tyrone Williams, 1, with their grandmother, Lula Williams. The boys' sister, Karen returned Dec. 31. The children's cousin, Lakephine, 3, will remain in the Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital burn center where she is listed in good condition.

According to Nancy Bunch of the Child Welfare Department, the boys were to be immediately transported to Midland Memorial Hospital after their arrival here for follow-up medical care.

Pat Huddleston to conduct art workshop for teachers

Fifty elementary school teachers will attend an art workshop Thursday and Friday at the Fannin Elementary cafeteria from 1 to 5 p.m. on Thursday and 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday.

A free educational service provided by Binney & Smith, Inc., makers of Crayola crayons and other school art supplies, the workshop will be conducted by Pat Huddleston, who has taught extensively and who holds a master's degree from Texas Woman's University.

The teachers will spend 12 hours learning about creative art education and materials. Part of the workshop will focus on art activities to use with students who have special learning needs. Teachers will learn by rolling up their sleeves and trying out the techniques presented.

Instruction will include uses of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalks and modeling clay. Simple craft techniques will also be shown, offering teachers an opportunity to work with paper, paste and other materials to gain three-dimensional effects.

All other workshop activities will be experiences which teachers can relate to their own classroom teaching.

Haig compromise may keep Watergate issue alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican majority on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hopes to complete action Wednesday on the nomination of Alexander M. Haig Jr. as secretary of state, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said today.

Percy, the committee chairman, announced the schedule today at the opening of the third day of hearings on the Haig nomination.

The path to quick action on President-elect Ronald Reagan's choice of Haig was cleared under a Senate compromise that also threatens to keep Watergate smoldering after he is sworn in.

Under the compromise, Percy issued a subpoena Sunday night for logs and the index to 100 hours of taped conversations between Haig and then-President Richard M. Nixon in mid-1973.

With Haig back at the witness table today, the committee also called national archivist Robert M. Warner to testify on prospects for obtaining the tapes.

Senate confirmation hearings began today on two other Cabinet nominations, New Jersey construction executive Raymond Donovan as labor secretary and former South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards as energy secretary.

Edwards testified that "we need to sustain and increase our use of nuclear power." He said the workings of the marketplace were more important in meeting the country's energy needs than regulations, which he said should be reviewed to determine which are "necessary, valuable, appropriate and cost-effective."

Republicans on the Foreign Relations Committee agreed to subpoena the index so the committee can determine whether any of the tapes themselves are relevant to Haig's suitability for the top State Department job. In return, Democrats agreed not to delay his confirmation hearings.

The deal cleared the way for Haig to be confirmed by the Senate as soon as President-elect Ronald Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20.

While Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker noted there "is no way you can undo a confirmation," the Democrats presumably would try to force Haig's resignation if the tapes turned up proof of illegal conduct.

The tapes, covering May 4 to July 18, 1973, include a June 4 conversation in which Haig, as White House chief of staff in the climactic days of Watergate, advised Nixon he could answer questions by saying "you just can't recall" details.

In his opening statement Friday, Haig denied he was telling Nixon to "pretend not to recall something." Rather, Haig said, he was advising Nixon to review the facts instead of relying on his memory.

Baker, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he was confident the committee would find nothing damaging to Haig because the retired four-star general "says there's nothing on those tapes."

"If there is something on them, Al Haig's in trouble anyway," Baker said.

Man jailed on marijuana charge

A 44-year-old man was in City Jail this morning on charges of misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Officers stopped the man about 12:30 a.m. today for a traffic violation. The driver was arrested for being intoxicated and taken to the Police Department. During the routine search at the booking desk, officers found a plastic baggie containing about two ounces of a substance believed to be marijuana.

Accidents, including a multi-car collision in which a policeman was injured, kept police busy over the weekend.

At 1:24 a.m. Sunday, Rue Adron Roberts of Route 5 Box 1000 No. 173 was westbound on Park Lane. Officer Terry Lowe was southbound on Holly Drive. The two vehicles collided at the intersection of those two streets, causing Roberts' vehicle to strike two parked and unattended cars.

The parked vehicles belonged to Timothy Huff of 2501 Park Lane and HBF Construction Inc. of 905 W. Wall Ave.

Lowe was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room where he was treated and released.

A three-car collision Saturday night injured five people.

Bernard Hastings of Big Spring and

George W. Bentley of Big Spring collided at Front and Marshall streets at 7:52 p.m. The collision caused Bentley's vehicle to rotate counterclockwise, knocking over a stop sign and a street sign belonging to the city of Midland.

Hastings' vehicle was forced, by the striking a curb and rotating counterclockwise while continuing north.

Injured were Cervantes and two passengers, Sammy Marquez and Daniel Marquez, both of 1405 E. Walnut Ave. All were taken to Midland Memorial emergency room. Cervantes and Sammy Marquez were treated and released.

Daniel Marquez was admitted and was listed in serious condition this morning in the critical care unit of Midland Memorial.

Two Midlanders were taken to Midland Memorial emergency room following a two-car collision at Haynes Avenue and Garfield Street at 6:55 p.m. Sunday.

Thomas Morgan Brady Jr. of 2200 S. Lamesa No. 65 was eastbound on Haynes. Jimmy Dale Buffaloe of 5101 N. A St. No. 162 was southbound on Garfield. Injured in the accident were Buffaloe and his passenger, Becky Unger of 2405 Gulf Ave.

Buffaloe left the emergency room before receiving treatment, a hospital spokesman said, and there is no hospital record of treating Ms. Unger.

Midland firemen responded to a number of calls over the weekend, including a tank battery fire Sunday.

The tank battery, which caught fire about 12:58 a.m. Sunday, was located

Hastings' vehicle was forced, by the

striking a curb and rotating counterclockwise while continuing north.

Injured were Cervantes and two passengers, Sammy Marquez and Daniel Marquez, both of 1405 E. Walnut Ave. All were taken to Midland Memorial emergency room. Cervantes and Sammy Marquez were treated and released.

Daniel Marquez was admitted and was listed in serious condition this morning in the critical care unit of Midland Memorial.

Two Midlanders were taken to Midland Memorial emergency room following a two-car collision at Haynes Avenue and Garfield Street at 6:55 p.m. Sunday.

Thomas Morgan Brady Jr. of 2200 S. Lamesa No. 65 was eastbound on Haynes. Jimmy Dale Buffaloe of 5101 N. A St. No. 162 was southbound on Garfield. Injured in the accident were Buffaloe and his passenger, Becky Unger of 2405 Gulf Ave.

Buffaloe left the emergency room before receiving treatment, a hospital spokesman said, and there is no hospital record of treating Ms. Unger.

Midland firemen responded to a number of calls over the weekend, including a tank battery fire Sunday.

The tank battery, which caught fire about 12:58 a.m. Sunday, was located

New season unveiled at NBC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC, which has unveiled its new offerings for the TV season, plans to retain president and programming wizard Fred Silverman despite low ratings, officials say.

NBC has "no intention of getting rid of Fred Silverman," said Robert Mulholland, president of NBC's NBC-TV division.

He said the network had finally pushed its way into second place in the three-way ratings race, although the other commercial networks disputed the claim.

NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, Silverman's 31-year-old protégé, who took control of NBC programming last season, said NBC will premiere seven of its 1980-81 series in January, including restructured versions of "Buck Rogers," "B.J. and the Bear" and "Lobo."

He said the network places great stock in the new "Hill Blues" police series, to debut Jan. 15, and a "Walking Tall" series starring Bo Svenson. Another big NBC hope is the multi-part "The Gangster Chronicles."

As for remakes of old TV shows such as a new "Maverick," with James Garner reprising the starring role, and "The Brady Girls Get Married," Tartikoff quipped: "I'm only 31 years old so I never saw them the first time."

Other upcoming shows include: "The Angie Dickinson Show," with Miss Dickinson as a divorced woman; "The Stockers," a pilot starring Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw and country singer Mel Tillis as stock car drivers; "Nero Wolfe," with William Conrad as the noted fictional detective; and the "Project Peacock" prime time children's series that kicks off Feb. 8 with "The Big Stuffed Dog," featuring Snoopy.

Mulholland's claim that the network is in second place in the ratings is based on NBC's assertion that the 1980-81 season began the week of Sept. 15, when NBC rocketed out of the starting gate with "Shogun" and the World Series baseball telecasts.

CBS began counting the new season, which was delayed by the 10-week actors strike, the week ending Nov. 2, when many of its hit comedy series returned with new episodes. According to CBS, that network maintains a commanding lead over its rivals, with ABC ranking second and NBC a poor third.

Dog travels 800 miles to reunite with friend

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — A 16-month-old dog who couldn't wait for his teen-age owner to send for him spent six months covering 800 miles for an unexpected reunion.

Curtis Murphy, 18, obtained Rocky from the Allen County Humane Society in March. A month later, Murphy took the mixed-breed dog with him when he moved to Ozark, Ark., to work on a ranch.

Rocky "took to me and went everywhere I went," he said.

In July, Murphy returned to his Lima area home by bus, leaving Rocky with friends.

"I was intending to send money down to get him and have him sent back," Murphy said, adding that he has since learned that Rocky "left right after I left."

Their reunion took place Friday at the home of 13-year old Kevin Gallimore of Wapakoneta.

Gallimore had befriended Rocky after finding him in mid-December roaming the trailer park where Gallimore lived. The boy said he took an instant liking to Rocky and decided to call the dog "Soon-er."

After Gallimore and his mother, Diane Behm, noticed the dog wore an Allen County tag around his neck, they began trying to trace the owner.

Brothers named to lead competing airlines

DALLAS (AP) — Nearly 80 years after the Wright brothers sent a primitive biplane soaring into the sky, another set of siblings — John and Albert Casey — have made their mark in the history of flight.

John, 62, and Albert, 60, say it was only a coincidence that their careers merged in Dallas last week when John was named chief executive officer of the financially-troubled Braniff Airlines.

It was seven years ago that Albert, a Harvard business graduate, was picked to lift a then-ailing American Airlines out of a sea of red ink. He did so, moving the airline's headquarters from New York to Dallas in the process.

"We've gone down different roads in life, but we've sort of come together here in Dallas. It is an unusual circumstance," said John, who left the Casey family home in the Boston suburb of Arlington after high school to go to Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Cornell University.

John concedes his brother's success in leading American out of debt only increases the pressure for him to succeed with Braniff.

"He certainly did a fantastic job there. I hope to be able to do the same," he said. "I would just say we're both very fortunate people to have left in 1974 to be American's president.

John worked as an engineer with the Curtiss-Wright Corp. before joining the Army Air Corps as an officer during World War II.

He worked for 10 years as an engineering executive for American Airlines, then joined R. Dixon Speas Associates.

In 1962, he went to work for Seaboard World Airlines and served as vice president for six years before joining Braniff.

Although the brothers now can see each other often, they don't discuss business, John said.

"We shouldn't, and we don't. Socially we're very close, but we do not talk shop. We're both conscious of our competitive positions and that it just wouldn't be good business," he said.

"You know we've been good friends, I'd say more so than normal brothers over the years, even when he was on one side of the country and I the other," John said. And while there aren't any more Casey brothers around to make a mark from.

'Miporn' trials get under way

MIAMI (AP) — Lawyers were going to court today to pick a jury for the first of 16 trials stemming from a 30-month federal undercover investigation of pornography.

The 12-member jury being chosen today will view a screening of "Deep Throat" with Spanish subtitles and a Spanish-dubbed version of "Debbie Does Dallas" and decide if two of the 41 defendants violated federal obscenity laws.

The series of trials is expected to last into 1982.

FBI officials say the "Miporn" investigation — short for Miami pornography — established the existence of a nationwide network of pornographic filmmakers and marketers.

Investigators say members of the network met regularly to fix prices, limit competition, discuss new products and swap information about law enforcement efforts.

The inquiry was financed with a $440,000 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Fred Schwartz, attorney for the Miporn Strike Force, said the trials will be scheduled consecutively. More than 1,000 motions have been filed in the court of U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman, who will preside over all 16 trials.

Transcripts of conversations that led to the indictments fill nearly 18,000 pages in 34 volumes.

Schwartz and prosecution co-counsel Marcella Cohen will be opposed by a total of 25 attorneys, including some of the country's top First

Getting involved

Inaction is a crime against society. But it can be more. In the case of the 52 Americans being held hostage in Iran, inaction is creating an unbearable situation. It is unfair and brutal to the hostages.

Jim Baker of Midland's Amvets Post No. 7 will never be charged with the crime of inaction. He's collecting signatures on a petition to send to Iran in hopes of getting the hostages released. It may work and it may not, but at the very least Baker will be able to say he tried.

By getting involved in the effort to get the Americans home, Baker joined the ranks of other courageous and selfless Americans who are devoting some of their time in hopes of accomplishing what the U.S. government has been unable to do.

Other Midlanders, too, have done their part to bring the hostage situation to a conclusion. Back in October, for example, the Jaycee-ettes sponsored Yellow Ribbon Day to show support and concern for the hostages. That was a commendable observance, too.

By their involvement, Americans like Jim Baker and the Jaycee-ettes are voicing their unhappiness with the duration of the hostage situation, no doubt. They are saying more than a few Americans want to bring to an end this saga that has "gotten out of hand," as Baker noted last week.

When Baker sends his telegram Jan. 19 bearing the names of all those Americans who also demand the unconditional release of the hostages, he will likely be transmitting the message of more Americans than he realizes. That's because many Americans have become disillusioned and disenchanted with the government's handling of the hostage situation.

And when the telegram arrives in Iran more than a few Iranians will know that the American public is extremely upset because of the outright illegal holding of the hostages.

Baker thinks that if the American public expresses its dissatisfaction directly to the Iranian students, there might be a better chance of the hostages being released. Maybe he's right. Hopefully he's right.

At the very least those who participate will have the satisfaction of knowing they became physically involved in trying to resolve the situation instead of merely sitting by watching it happen without them.

CHARLEY REESE

Senate gymnasium episode reveals 'common problem'

Sen. Paula Hawkins (R-Fla.) and the senate gymnasium provide a good example of a common problem in the news business.

If you recall, Mrs. Hawkins upset the keeper of the senate gym by announcing that as a senator she intended to use the gym at her convenience, not his. The 98 male senators, you see, swim in the nude and so these male defenders of equal rights have been in the habit of requiring that a female senator use the taxpayers' facility only by special appointment.

There are a couple of points worth noting. One, of course, is that the Senate of the United States does not need a gymnasium, just as it does not need a lot of the perks it has voted itself at our expense. Let them buy a membership in a health club or use the YMCA like the rest of us. We don't elect those nabobs to play handball or skinny dip.

Second point is that some of the news types have been unfair to Mrs. Hawkins and followed an all too common problem of erecting their own strawman whom they then hang in effigy.

Mrs. Hawkins, by simply announcing she would swim when she darn well pleased, made a point about the hypocrisy of the male senators. It probably, knowing her, consumed about 90 seconds of her time. It is important to note that the only thing she did was make a simple statement. She has not spent any time on it or made it a project or done anything else. It was a "throw away" line that made a point.

Charley Reese

The press, however, has spent a lot of time on it. Somebody conducted a lengthy interview with the keeper of the gym. There were several stories spun off the original statement.

There's nothing wrong with that. A good 80 percent of news is pure entertainment and elaboration, but now comes the clincher. Some members of the press, after having itself made the one-liner into a federal project, then begins to criticize Mrs. Hawkins for making too much of a small matter. She didn't; the press did. She didn't devote any great amount of energy or attention to the matter, the press did. She isn't consumed with interest in the senate gym, the press is. She isn't taking time away from more important matters to dwell on the senate gym, the press is.

Unfortunately this is an example of a relatively common phenomenon that results from some people of the press deriving most of their information from the press. Too often we stare at our own navels, create our own fantasies and then comment on them. In the meantime, the real world has gone on about its business.

There is a parallel between us and some literature professors. A guy like William Faulkner writes a novel. Professors begin to study it and then write lengthy, ponderous analyses about what Faulkner really meant when he said the tree cast a shadow on the outhouse. Pretty soon, other professors are writing articles about the articles. In the meantime, Faulkner has gone on and written several other novels (no doubt having meant nothing more than that the tree cast a shadow on the outhouse).

You can see the same phenomenon at work in academic work in foreign policy areas. You see someone create a mental concept to describe a situation. From that point on, often the concept itself is accepted as an axiom. All further analyses are of the concept which may or may not have had any bearing on reality when it was first created and most surely no longer does months and years later. Anybody who deals with words should remember what the Polish semanticist said, "The map is not the territory."

With the new year comes the startling fact that all those World War II "boom babies" are now in their mid-30s. They are called "boom babies" because when they reach 65, the Social Security time bomb will explode.

It is estimated that when the time comes to draw on their Social Security, the cookie jar will be empty. Had the fathers of the "boom babies" known this would happen they might have let the Japanese keep Iwo Jima.

The Reagan ax cutters are a bit shy about increasing the Social Security withholding. Federal employees don't pay Social Security and aren't about to. You'll see the government vote itself a pay cut on the day the New Orleans Saints win the Super Bowl.

The solution? Either deport all 35-year-olds, or wait until they are all 65, draft them into the Army and pay them out of the Defense budget.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

CIA looking for a few 'obedient robots'

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency's recruiting methods have soured many applicants who can't understand why they have been denied employment in the spook shop.

Some of them, in their frustration, have called my office for help in landing jobs with the CIA — an action which, in itself, raises serious doubts about their grasp of reality and suitability for the spy business.

Nevertheless, their complaints bore looking into, because the disappointed applicants suspected they were turned down on grounds of race, gender or religion, or perhaps a skeleton in their family closet, or failure to pass the agency's highly intimate lie detector test.

My associate Dale Van Atta has investigated the CIA's recruitment practices, tapping more than a dozen sources in the intelligence community. He has found evidence of a systematic, and disturbing, policy aimed at hiring a particular type of person — and only that type. What the agency wants are people who are bright, but not too bright, imaginative, but not creative, sociable and action-oriented — but above all, obedient.

In short, the CIA wants team players, not boat rockers. "Everybody's cut from the same cookie mold now," observed one high-level CIA official. "They're looking for conformists, people who are imaginative, but not too pushy. Under this system, Dulles couldn't qualify" — a reference to the agency's ratiocinative founder, Allen Dulles.

Some oldtimers clearly mourn the passing of the derring-do days of the 1950s and 1960s, when enterprising agents could bring off dramatic intelligence coups. Admittedly, of course, this free-wheeling attitude also brought its share of disasters, like the Bay of Pigs and some preposterous assassination attempts.

One veteran CIA man illustrated the difference between yesterday's romantic spirit and today's button-down mentality by noting that many accepted applicants' first question is what their pension will be. "In my 20 years of service, I never heard that question asked until recently," the source said. "Sometimes it came up later, but never as a condition for employment. We had a restlessness, we wanted to serve the country."

The CIA's quest for team players has been codified for bureaucratic reference under a psychiatric method called the Personality Assessment System, or PAS. The method is no secret, but its use by the agency in recent years has been kept secret.

CIA sources say the recruiters look for what PAS describes as the Externalizer-Regulated-Adaptive personality. According to a 28-page CIA manual, the Externalizer "tends to be an active individual more interested in doing than thinking... (who) must exert considerable effort when compelled to work with ideas... is practi-

Today is Monday, Jan. 12, the 12th day of 1981. There are 353 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 12, 1945, German forces retreated in disorder in the Battle of the Bulge in Belgium during World War II.

On this date: In 1737, the first signer of the American Declaration of Independence, John Hancock, was born in Braintree, Mass.

INSIDE REPORT

'Cap' Weinberger's moves panicking the defense community

WASHINGTON — Unease within the defense community over Caspar (Cap) Weinberger has blossomed into panic now that the secretary of defense-designate has booted out "Reaganaut" military advisers, trashed their recommendations and at least opened the door for soft-liners.

The certain appointment of Frank Carlucci, the Carter administration's deputy CIA director, as deputy secretary of defense is the visible tip of concealed events. In a Dec. 20 shouting match, Cap the Knife fired defense expert William Van Cleave as transition chief, blackballed him and his team from Pentagon posts and consigned their reports to ash cans. Since then, a collection of personalities never connected with strong defense have been edging into the Reagan transition.

The most charitable explanation is that this is no conspiracy but the product of Weinberger's nearly total ignorance on defense questions, which was fully revealed in his Senate confirmation hearing. But assuming Weinberger finally learns the names and issues involved, he has lost valuable time in revising defense spending and lost invaluable experts he badly needs.

In this as in other transition wars these past two months, Ronald Reagan's presence is barely felt. There has been no gesture from either the president-elect or his chief aide, Ed Meese, that they regard a radical reconstruction of the nation's depleted defenses as top priority.

Consider the Reagan-Meese view toward Weinberger's insistence on Carlucci, a civil servant with no Defense Department background, as deputy secretary. Reagan's "kitchen cabinet" unanimously recommended against it, as did his defense transition team. The president-elect might then have suggested saving the deputy secretary's spot for an expert. Instead, Reagan acquiesced.

That was the situation when Van Cleave, Reagan's defense adviser throughout the campaign, went to California Dec. 20 to brief Weinberger. The secretary-designate was in an ugly mood. He unjustly believed Van Cleave was responsible for a press campaign against Carlucci.

An icy Weinberger informed Van Cleave that he and his team's services were terminated forthwith. The hot-tempered Van Cleave shouted that his responsibility was to advise Reagan himself and Weinberger could not fire him. Weinberger shouted back that Van Cleave was deceiving himself; he was gone.

Weinberger was correct. Early in the transition period when Van Cleave crossed swords with transition overseer William Timmons, a Timmons aide asked Meese whether Van Cleave was under the president-elect's protection. No, replied Meese, fire him if you want. The trouble blew over temporarily, but Reagan has not come to his defense adviser's aid.

Van Cleave was not the only victim. His team's members, including some of the nation's leading military experts, are blackballed. That includes the highly-esteemed Ben Plymale of Boeing, who made the disastrous Dec. 20 trip west with Van Cleave. Plymale had been expected to be an adornment of the Reagan Pentagon as under secretary for research.

The defense plans fastidiously prepared by Van Cleave, Plymale and associates will never be read by Weinberger. That may well prevent any Reagan hurry-up plans for accelerated spending in the current fiscal year.

Pentagon offices formerly occupied by the Van Cleave team are now mostly empty. In charge of the skeleton crew there is an old Weinberger-Carlucci comrade from HEW days in the Nixon administration: William Howard Taft III, a Washington lawyer who knows even less about defense than Weinberger and Carlucci. Yet, incredibly, Taft has wound up on the list for the department's No. 3 post: under secretary for policy.

Taft has been conferring on defense matters with Richard Stubbing, a Carter administration anti-defense expert at the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) whose views generally coincide with Sen. George McGovern's. With Reaganauts exiled to oblivion, among those briefing Weinberger for his confirmation hearing were two Carter officials: Jack Stempler, assistant defense secretary for legislative affairs, and Brig. Gen. Carl Smith, military assistant to Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

Carlucci has been consulting with his close friend (another HEW old hand), John Rhinelander — who was a passionate arms-controller as a State Department lawyer. Carlucci told us Rhinelander will not go into the Reagan administration and denied he even knows Barry Blechman, a former Carter administration arms-controller now at the Carnegie Endowment. But a memo circulating in Capitol Hill lists Blechman as a possible assistant secretary of defense.

There are antidotes. Secretary-designate Alexander Haig has moved quickly to install a Reaganaut staff at the State Department. The National Security Council (NSC) staff will be filled with Reaganauts, possibly including Van Cleave. Despite his less-than-reassuring confirmation testimony, Weinberger may soon learn enough to reflect Reagan's philosophy in personnel and policy. But for now, one Senate conservative is calling Weinberger "another Harold Brown with one difference — Brown knows something about defense."

Government will reduce grazing fees on public lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — At a time when other expenses are going up, some of the fees charged farmers and ranchers to let their livestock graze on public lands are coming down, the government said Friday.

The fees generally apply to land administered by the Forest Service, an agency of the Agriculture Department, and the Bureau of Land Management in Interior. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said grazing on national forest and national grasslands in the West will cost a total of about $18 million this year, about $4 million less than in 1980.

The Public Rangelands Improvement Act of 1978 prescribes a formula used to set the fees annually, taking into consideration the costs of livestock production. So, because of "costs exceeding selling prices in 1980" the fees will be reduced for 1981, Bergland said.

For example, on national forest land producers in 16 western states will pay $2.31 per "animal unit month" or AUM, a decrease of 10 cents from last year's average of $2.41 per AUM.

One AUM is the grazing for one month by one bull, cow or horse, or five sheep or goats. The Forest Service said about 16,000 permits are issued to graze livestock on its lands, including about 1.3 million cattle, 1.2 million sheep and goats, and 14,000 horses and burros.

Texas Legislature will convene Tuesday

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' lawmakers meet in their 67th regular session Tuesday to consider a long list of problems brought on by a rapidly growing and shifting population. Threats of a tax revolt linger in the background as the senators and representatives try to ease the bite of inflation and mounting government costs. The 140-day lawmaking session must end at midnight June 1, although Gov. Bill Clements, the state's first Republican governor this century, could call one, or more, special 30-day sessions. The Legislature remains predominantly Democratic although Republicans show small gains in both the House and Senate. The political feeling remain mostly conservative, particularly in the Senate. Furthermore, the session will be the testing ground for Clements' expected plans for a re-election campaign in 1982, and any Democratic wanting to run against him. Gavels rap in both the Senate and House chambers at noon Tuesday for the formal opening. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will preside in the Senate where there are now seven Republicans, two more than the 1979 session. Secretary of State George Strake will call the House to order and swear in the 150 representatives, which include 36 Republicans, 10 more than last time. First order of House business will be the election of a speaker, with Rep. Bill Clayton, Springlake Democrat, expected to gain his fourth term easily. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, will be nominated as an opponent but admittedly does not have enough votes to best Clayton. Clayton told a news conference last week he would not be adverse to still a fifth term as speaker in 1982. Prior to his Houston federal court trial on federal corruption charges, where he was acquitted, Clayton had been considered a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1982. Housekeeping duties, such as hiring employees and setting expense account limits, will occupy both houses the rest of Tuesday and Wednesday. Both Houses are expected to adjourn on Thursday until the following Monday. Before the formal opening Tuesday, senators will hold a closed-door caucus to elect their president pro tempore or assistant presiding officer for the session. A number of senators whose seniority date back to the 1973 session are eligible for the mostly-honorary job, but Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, is expected to be picked. House action on an election contest involving Rep.-elect Alan Schoolcraft, R-San Antonio, and the current Rep. Al

Brown, D-San Antonio, has been delayed for maybe a week. The House committee investigating Brown's claims that many illegal ballots were cast has not completed its report and recommendations. The election canvass showed Schoolcraft winning by 1,038 votes. Normally, the governor speaks to a new legislature about the second day of a session giving them his recommendations for a budget and other legislation. However, Clements has put off his state-of-the-state message until Jan. 22. He will lead a delegation of about 1,500 happy Texas Republicans to Washington for the festivities surrounding the Jan. 20 inauguration of President-elect Ronald Reagan and Vice President-elect George Bush. In a news conference last week, Clements said he still felt the Legislature should provide as much as $1.4 billion in tax relief, in some form. He said his budget would recommend trimming at least $600 million from the $26.3 billion budget drawn up by the Legislative Budget Board, which is used as a base by both houses in writing their separate state spending bills. Clements gave his proposal of initiative and referendum, which would let citizens propose legislation for a statewide vote, a 50-50 chance. He was optimistic about his plan for legalization of wiretapping in drug control cases.

Bangkok flu epidemic strikes Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP) — A new strain of influenza is sweeping Massachusetts, causing a serious health hazard for the elderly, and health officials say it's likely to get worse before it gets any better.

Type A Bangkok Flu and its major complication, pneumonia, were responsible for 18 percent, or 36, of the deaths in Boston last week, according to Nicholas Flumara, director of the state Division of Communicable Diseases.

He stressed the figure may climb higher when the flu season peaks in February.

The average percentage of deaths attributed to flu and pneumonia at this time of year runs between 4 percent and 5 percent.

Flumara said this year's flu and flu-related mortality rate is higher than normal because Bangkok Flu is a new strain.

"People have no immunity and they succumb quickly," he said.

Health officials say the Bangkok Flu reached epidemic proportions in the Bay State by Thanksgiving. An epidemic is determined by 10 percent absenteeism in schools and industry. Flumara said absenteeism has been around 15 percent since the end of November.

The elderly are particularly susceptible to the flu and are most likely to develop complications such as pneumonia or other respiratory infections.

Surgeon general urges smokers to switch to low-tar cigarettes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smokers who can't or won't quit should switch to lower tar and nicotine cigarettes because they may pose less danger of causing heart and lung disease, the surgeon general said today.

"There is no 'safe' cigarette," Surgeon General Julius B. Richmond said in his 237-page annual report on smoking and health, "but some cigarettes may be less hazardous than others, reducing the risk of smoking in a limited and selective fashion."

Richmond added, however, that researchers still don't know how much less dangerous low-tar and nicotine brands are, and he cautioned that smoking more or inhaling more deeply may easily negate any benefits from a lower tar or nicotine cigarette.

"The single most effective way to reduce hazards of smoking continues to be that of quitting entirely," Richmond declared.

But the 54 million Americans "who are unwilling or as yet unable to quit are well advised to switch to cigarettes yielding less tar and nicotine, provided they do not increase their smoking or change their smoking in other ways," he added.

Although the report offered little new information about the effects of smoking, the Washington-based Tobacco Institute, which represents the cigarette industry, described it as "more moderate in tone than its predecessors."

Noting the gaps in scientific research on various diseases and their relationship to smoking, the institute said the industry has spent "tens of millions of dollars" for independent research in some of those areas.

The surgeon general's report said there is insufficient scientific and medical data to measure exactly the impact of low-tar and nicotine cigarettes on heart disease and chronic obstructive lung disease.

But it noted that smoking by pregnant women has been shown to increase the risk of vaginal bleeding, spontaneous abortion, premature delivery, fetal death and infant death shortly after birth.

Gruff and unpredictable, Boone still 'Honeybear'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -- Gruff, craggy-faced Richard Boone, who inspired a spate of Western dandy TV heroes when he starred as the sophisticated, card-carrying hired gunslinger of "Have Gun, Will Travel," will be cremated and memorialized at private services, officials say.

Boone, who died Saturday of throat cancer at the age of 63, once said he couldn't understand why he was frequently cast in movies as a menacing outlaw, such as John Wayne's adversary in "Big Jake" and "The Shootist."

"I don't know how they could do that to me," he said. "Everyone knows I'm a honeybear."

Boone, a veteran of four television series, 500 TV shows, 65 movies and 11 plays, died in St. Augustine, Fla., where he had taken up residence after returning from Hawaii in the early 1970s. He was cultural ambassador for the state of Florida and had returned to painting, an activity he had once given up.

Boone is best remembered as Paladin in the series "Have Gun, Will Travel," broadcast by CBS from 1957-1963. Pal-

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,800

NILES, Ill. -- The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light. In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of the Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison, Wis., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate... which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,800. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

Roommate service offers economic and social lift

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Eleanor Jennings found retirement lonelier and less fulfilling than she'd anticipated, so she decided to look for someone to live with.

Margaret Dietz, recently separated from her husband, was working full time and needed help with her three children and a big house in nearby Pembroke Pines.

They found each other through a roommate-finding service, as have thousands of others who were lonely or needed help with the rent.

"I'm so happy with her," said Mrs. Dietz, 34. "Children need a lot of attention to grow up and be normal, happy people. It was either me spend every spare moment with them or get someone like Eleanor to help. It's worked out perfectly."

Mrs. Jennings, who has a grown daughter, said she feels "very much related, very much part of the family. It's been very, very successful. We never would have known each other, never been drawn together."

Such matches are the specialty of Marian Zweg and Annette Lynn, the owners of competing roommate services in South Florida. As the cost of housing, utilities, food and transportation go up, so does the number of working people of all ages who decide to share expenses with someone else.

"As the economy gets worse, our business does better," said Ms. Zweg, co-owner of Roommate Finders and manager of its Fort Lauderdale office. People have no choice. People who thought they could (afford) live alone can no longer do that — it's impossible."

Ms. Lynn, 29, started her Roommate Referrals four years ago, the same year Ms. Zweg, 25, opened up her business. Each woman says there are only a few other such firms in the country, but they aren't sure where because many don't stay in business long.

The secret, each said, is to be selective and work on a very personal level.

"I decided the screening is most important — otherwise it's just like putting an ad in the paper," said Ms. Lynn, explaining that she requires and checks on employment, credit and personal references.

"We automatically deal with a nice, select group. Anybody who has anything to hide — they're not going to use us, they'll go through the paper."

At either firm, a customer pays $40-$50, fills out an application and is interviewed about things a potential roommate would need to know: How does he or she feel about pets, overnight guests, smoking, drugs and sharing food? Is he or she sloppy or neat? Heterosexual or homosexual?

Ms. Lynn said she turns down people who want a roommate for dating or sex, aren't working, can't afford to pay at least $175 a month or have more than three children. Ms. Zweg and her partner have similar requirements.

Then the application is checked against the 300-400 others on file and a list is made of people who might work out. Often, they say, things work out with the first person a customer meets.

Elderly taking to music

WILMETTE, Ill. (AP) — "Those who think Grandma and Grandpa are too old for any activities other than baking cookies or babysitting grandkids had better take another look," says Gene Wenner, president of the American Music Conference.

There's a good chance they're busy organizing an orchestra, strumming guitars in a community band, or learning to play a Brahms' piano sonata, he points out.

"Increasing numbers of American senior citizens are participating in music as a way to stay emotionally, physically and socially active," says Wenner.

The AMC, a non-profit education and research association, reports that throughout America this trend is involving older adults in musical activities that range from founding and conducting community bands to learning to play instruments in classes devoted especially to their age group.

Keeping pace with seniors' desire to make music, programs and classes for beginners, and those with previous musical training, are popping up around the United States.

In Lexington, Ky., through the Area-Wide Music Programs of the Council on Aging of the University of Kentucky, approximately 100 older adults take advantage of free, weekly lessons on the guitar, autoharp, dulcimer or recorder. These students, most of them in their 70s, can also attend classes on jazz ensemble, orchestra and chorus.

On the other side of the country, the over-55 crowd has been lining up for piano classes at El Camino, Calif., College since 1979. Those meeting the age requirement and lucky enough to get into the popular program, are "very loyal" about attending classes, says instructor Leslie Black.

Reaching the golden years also means eligibility for membership in groups such as the "Minnesota Over-60 Band."

The band, headquartered in Gaylord, Minn., currently has 38 members, including an 89-year-old trombonist. During the past 25 years it has toured the country giving concerts, has played at three world fairs and has become a regular attraction at the Minnesota State Fair.

While no minimum age is required for playing with the Hot Springs, Ark., National Park Adult and Senior Citizens Concert Band, most members are over 55, including a female bass drummer who is 82 years old.

Director John Melton, 76, says the formula for starting a senior citizens' band requires three ingredients: someone to organize, a place to play and people who want to make music.

That formula also worked for Georgia Cobb. When the 73-year-old former dancer and violinist retired to Fox Lake, Ill., she had no idea she'd end up founding the area's first string orchestra.

It all began with the energetic septuagenarian giving children stringed instrument and piano lessons. First, a little boy... then his two sisters... then four more young musicians from a family of 17 children. Today, the Chain O' Lakes Orchestra consists of 25 youngsters, one child's mother and three seniors including, says Mrs. Cobb, a "mere babe of 69."

Mrs. Cobb is still vigorously encouraging older musicians to start playing again, recruiting more orchestra members and trying to get a band shell built for community concerts. "After all," she says, "if you're going for something, you might as well go big."

As first-chair clarinetist and secretary of the "over-60 Band," Clarence Korbel, 67, of Montgomery, Minn., says, "People try to tell you there are a lot of things you can't do when you get old, but music is something you can still enjoy."

Most Valentines are not mailed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The 800 million Valentines that Americans will exchange this year won't slow the postman on his appointed rounds. The reason, Hallmark Card researchers say, is that most Valentines aren't mailed.

More than three-quarters — 76.13 percent, to be exact — are personally delivered, the highest percentage for any holiday. At Christmas, the only celebration that creates a greater avalanche of greeting cards, a mere 8.52 percent of the season's greetings are personally presented, the researchers say.

DEAR ABBY

Teen-agers need slowing down

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: With all the homosexuals coming out of the closet today, I guess I should have been grateful when our son announced that he has a girlfriend. However, I was totally unprepared when he told me that his girlfriend's mother had put her on the pill so there wouldn't be any "mistakes"! She is 16, and our son just turned 17.

Now he tells me that his girlfriend's dad is going away for a few weeks (her parents are divorced), and she will have the key to his apartment! Abby, when I was a teen, I was no angel, but isn't this moving a little fast?

They are both juniors in high school. Our son has had some experience with girls, but nothing like this. He has asked for my advice, so I am requesting a copy of your Teen Booklet. I understand it has all the facts in plain language. They seem so young. I hope it helps. — SMALL TOWN, ILLINOIS

DEAR SMALL TOWN: I hope so, too. Today, children are sexually active at a much earlier age than their parents were, so juniors in high school are not too young to know the facts. Better to have the facts and not need them, than to need the facts and not have them. Write to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $2 plus a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I have subscribed to a theater guild since 1935. For the last four seasons I have had a laughing hyena seated beside me, and she spoils my theater!

Is there any way I can ask her to please tone down her annoying laugh? Those seated in front of her have given up, and no longer turn around to show their annoyance.

I've had this seat on the aisle and near the stage for 10 years, so I don't want to ask for a change of seat. What do you suggest? — IRKED IN CHICAGO

DEAR IRKED: You COULD ask her to please try to tone down her laughter. But because laughter is spontaneous and not easily controlled, it probably wouldn't help.

As a subscriber for 45 years, you should be entitled to change your seat to one equally desirable. Request it, and state your reason. And if the management won't move YOU, it may move the "hyena."

DEAR ABBY: With regard to the 15 1/2-year-old boy who was accused of being the father of a child expected by a 30-year-old divorcee, I submit the following excerpt from the Idaho

Code:

"Any person who shall willfully and lewdly commit any lewd or lascivious act or acts upon or with the body or any part or member thereof of a minor or child under the age of 16 years, with the intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the lust or passions or sexual desires of such person or of such minor or child, shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned in the state prison for a term of not more than one year."

Our caseload involving children who are being molested by adults is increasing continually. Idaho law regards any person under the age of 16 years a "child." You said the boy needed a lawyer. I submit that the expectant mother is in need of a lawyer also. — SECRETARY TO A PROSECUTOR

DEAR SECRETARY: Right on. In legal matters, everyone involved needs a lawyer.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Now that's using your noodle

DEAR HELOISE:

Sometime ago you had a wonderful suggestion for cooking spaghetti by letting the water come to a boil, then adding the spaghetti, letting it come to a boil again, and turning off the heat, covering the pot, and letting it stand for 20 minutes.

I do it now for lots of things like macaroni, noodles, rice, baby limas, and thin sliced vegetables like carrots, celery, potatoes, peppers, and I'm sure there's more.

By timing it to exactly 20 minutes, nothing comes out mushy. It's cooked just right! — Mary Nepodal

Sure helps save on the energy bill that way — Heloise

JUST FOR MOM

Dear Heloise: I recently came up with an idea I use when I have to ground any of my three younger children for misbehavior.

In the past, being grounded meant staying in the house for an hour, a day, or longer, depending on the wrongdoing.

This usually resulted in the child watching TV all day, talking on the phone for hours, and generally just killing time till he or she wasn't grounded any more.

Now...the child must read a book of my choosing and write a book report. I say "my choice" because my son wanted to read a very short book, and I picked "Robinson Crusoe."

This has worked out very well. They have even enjoyed some of the books they have had to read. Maybe there's hope yet, and they'll eventually become readers instead of tube watchers. — Charlotte Falcone

Sounds encouraging to me! And who knows, maybe someday they'll ASK to read a book without even being grounded. — Heloise

LETTER OF WARNING

Dear Heloise: With all the hoopla in recent years about child-proof medicine bottles to prevent tragic poisoning, we tend to forget that all youngsters, regardless of age, make mistakes (we older ones aren't immune, either).

Our 16-year-old son arose sleepily one morning and staggered into the bathroom looking for aspirin for a headache.

An unmarked plastic bag on the shelf, he saw some small orange pills the exact size, shape and color of children's aspirin.

He even asked his dad if they were aspirin. After giving a quick glance, his father said, yes. Our son popped four of my high blood pressure pills into his mouth and began chewing them. The bitter taste alerted him and he immediately spit them out and rinsed his mouth.

What if he had swallowed them without chewing? I really thought I was smart to divide my medication, putting some in the upstairs bathroom, never thinking to mark the bottle. What a lesson we all learned!

Thank God it had no lasting effect. — Alice Martin

Thanks for reminding us again of the danger of medication when improperly used. Always make it a rule to leave medication in its original, clearly marked container! — Heloise

FABULOUS FIFTIES

Dear Heloise: Having a number of hanging plants that I move quite often, I got tired of getting the steps stool out all the time.

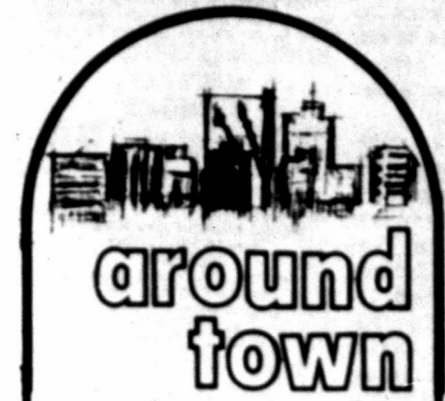

I took a 36" X 1" square stick (or dowel), put a nail in the end and bent it to form a hook.

Now I can stand on the floor and move my plants with no trouble. — Mary F. Nelson

Changing habits in car buying

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Lynn Atwater, professor of sociology at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J., and contributor to Forum magazine, says sexual liberation is changing the car-buying habits of men and women.

"Hitherto," she says, "men would choose powerful cars as a symbol of masculinity. Now the liberated man no longer has to flaunt his sexuality through horsepower. Similarly, women used to be uninterested in anything but the color of cars they bought."

Remains tentatively identified

ATLANTA (AP)—The skeletal remains of two children found in south Atlanta have been tentatively identified as those of two of the five black children who have been reported missing here during the past 1 1/2 years, authorities say.

Dr. Robert Stivers, Fulton County's chief medical examiner, confirmed Sunday that tentative identifications had been made. He declined to release the names.

"What we call tentative, you would call positive," Stivers said, "but we like to prove it. We are very close to a positive identification."

If the tentative identifications are verified, the two deaths will bring to 13 the number of black children between the ages of 7 and 15 who have been slain in Atlanta in the past 18 months.

The medical examiner said the tentative identifications were made after agents of his office returned to where the remains were found Friday and discovered 11 teeth and several bones that had been missed during a police search of the area.

The teeth were used to reconstruct the mouth of one of the victims, Stivers said. A photograph of the mouth along with a picture of clothing found at the scene was taken to the family of one of the children to see if they could provide positive identification.

Stivers said outdated dental records of one of the suspected victims had made it difficult for officials to establish the identity, but he said he expected positive identifications of both skeletal remains to be made before Tuesday.

Prior to the discovery of the additional remains Sunday, Stivers had threatened to file charges against some police officers for disturbing the crime scene without permission from his office.

But the medical examiner said Sunday night that he would make no decision on bringing charges against the officers until he met with the district attorney for Fulton County.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown, asked about Stivers' threat to charge police with disturbing the crime scene, said: "Our primary and only concern is to bring about a resolution of these cases. I'm sure that the office of the medical examiner shares our concern.

"To the extent that there are differences between us, it should be our responsibility as professionals to get together and work them out."

Three of the five missing children disappeared more than seven months ago. They include 11-year-old Earl Lee Terrell, 10-year-old Jeffery Lamar Mathis, and 11-year-old Christopher Richardson. Carron Glass, 10, has been missing since Sept. 14, and Lubie "Chuck" Geter, 14, disappeared just over a week ago.

A special 35-member police task force that has been conducting an around-the-clock investigation of the 16 cases has been unable to solve any of them. Police have said they believe some, but not all, of the cases are related.

100 killed in weekend fighting

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP)— Government troops claimed firm control of this Central American nation today after fierce weekend fighting in which at least 100 people were killed.

Leftist guerrillas said it was their "final offensive" against El Salvador's moderate junta, but most of the dead apparently were guerrillas. The army acknowledged eight soldiers killed and eight wounded.

"You can see that the extreme leftist guerrillas did all they could to make this their final offensive and they have failed," junta President Jose Napoleón Duarte told a news conference Sunday night.

The guerrillas announced their "final offensive" in weekend broadcasts from several commandeered radio stations and urged the public to support them by joining in a general strike today.

One "Radio Liberation" broadcast said the guerrillas controlled at least 10 places around the country. The Revolutionary Democratic Front, an umbrella organization representing most of the nation's largest leftist groups, said a provisional government and a "new army" would be established but did not say when or where.

Guerrilla spokesmen recently vowed to topple the junta before the inauguration Jan. 20 of President-elect Ronald Reagan, who the leftists believe may provide the government with additional arms and aid to fight them. The leftists have promised "final offensives" in the past but there has been little or no difference from the day-to-day political violence that took an estimated 9,500 lives last year.

While claiming to control virtually all of the country, the government admitted its troops were still battling "a few small pockets" of guerrilla resistance.

It proclaimed martial law and ordered a curfew from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. throughout the country.

The dead reported Sunday included at least 40 in Santa Ana, about 40 miles west of San Salvador; more than 25 in the capital, at least 20 in Toncatepeque, 20 miles north of San Salvador; at least eight others in the northern town of Chalatenango and several along the highway between San Salvador and Santa Ana.

One of the sharpest exchanges in the capital occurred in the slum district of Mejicanos, where some of the guerrillas arrived in commandeered public buses. Government troops drove them out after several hours of shooting.

The normally bustling city of Santa Ana was like a ghost town Sunday, with the wide, sun-baked streets nearly empty. Some residents peered nervously through their windows at soldiers with weapons at the ready, prowling the streets.

Two Associated Press reporters who entered the city, unaware of a general curfew imposed three minutes earlier, were relieved of their film at gunpoint by army troops and told they were not out of town in 10 minutes. They left.

Eagles' Wilbert Montgomery takes off for the Promised Land on 42-yard first period touchdown burst. (AP Laserphoto)

By HAL BOCK PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There is no logical explanation for it, but the Philadelphia Eagles are on their way to the Super Bowl. Thank you, Wilbert Montgomery. In a season pockmarked with disabling injuries that sat him down for all or part of seven games, Montgomery erased the memories of all the aches and pains Sunday. He slashed his way to 194 yards and led the Eagles to a 20-7 National Football Conference championship victory over the Dallas Cowboys. Here were the Eagles, bruised and battered, playing for the championship for the first time against the playoff-toughened Dallas Cowboys. Philadelphia had looked ragged a week ago against weak-sister Minnesota. Dallas looked brilliant against tough Atlanta.

THE COWBOYS were favored and it seemed no one believed in the Eagles — except themselves. All week long, Coach Dick Vermeil expressed concern about the mental condition of his team. He said he could not read it. But on Saturday, he thought he saw a breakthrough. "I thought last night you could sense an air of confidence that we could win," said Vermeil. "Today, I felt that the squad just knew it could win. And when you have that kind of confidence and belief..." The confidence got a big boost early. On Philadelphia's second play from scrimmage, Montgomery slashed his way 42 yards to a touchdown. "The play was designed to go through left guard and tackle," he said. "I cut it back to the right and I had a great hole. It's the kind of play you read on the run. The quarterback gives you the ball deep enough to make your move. My first thought was to cut it back." Tackle Stan Walters knew right then and there that Montgomery was headed for a special day. "He made a 90-degree cut back," said Walters, "not 45 the way he had been. With his knee injury and his leg not stable, he couldn't make his full cut. Today, he did it."

WALTERS recalled a play last week against the Vikings. "I was blocking for Wilbert. He cut behind me, but he only cut 45. He ran right into me and the man I was blocking and we all went down. That didn't happen today." Montgomery, who later ripped off 55 yards with an almost identical play, said his runs Sunday were a throwback to his college days at Abilene Christian. "That's the kind of cutting, slashing runner I was in college," he said. "That was my style of running in college. I was more of a cutting, slashing runner there. But my first year in the NFL, I was so scared of Dick Vermeil because he was so demanding and he didn't believe in my kind of fancy running. Dallas came back to tie the score with a 68-yard 10-play drive in the second quarter. It was the only time all day the Cowboy offense was able to move the Eagle defenders. Before halftime, Philadelphia had an apparent touchdown nullified by a penalty and two field goal attempts misfire. The score was still 7-7 but the Eagles had lost so many opportunities that it only seemed a matter of time before Dallas would catch up with them.

THE COWBOYS, however, never did. Halfway through the period, Dallas quarterback Danny White was sacked by Carl Hairston and coughed up the football. Dennis Harrison recovered at the Dallas 11 and Tony Franklin kicked a 26-yard field goal for a 10-7 lead. On Dallas' next series, Tony Dorsett fumbled and Jerry Robinson recovered for Philadelphia, giving the Eagles the ball at the Cowboy 38. Montgomery ripped off 11 yards on three carries. Leroy Harris went for 12 and a pass from Ron Jaworski to Rodney Parker went for six more. Then Harris carried for the final nine and a touchdown.

Eagles' Wilbert gives Cowboys that blue feeling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys were feeling blue, and not because they wore their blue jerseys or played the Philadelphia Eagles in 16-degree temperatures. "We've worked since last April and we got one game away from it," Cowboy quarterback Danny White said after the Philadelphia Eagles captured the National Football Conference championship Sunday with a 20-7 victory for a berth in Super Bowl XV Jan. 25.

The Cowboys prefer white jerseys, but were forced to wear blue, in which they are 10-11, when the host Eagles chose white themselves in a psychological ploy. "The best thing I can say is we didn't beat ourselves," said White, discounting the weather or the apparel. "I honestly feel the Eagles deserved to win." "When you get that close (to the Super Bowl), so close you can almost taste it, it's very, very disheartening," said White.

"I like to think we have the capabilities of going all the way, but we didn't do it on the right day," said linebacker Bob Breunig in a somber Cowboy dressing room. "We had a good surge at the end of the year ... coming all the way from training camp when we supposedly didn't have anything going for us." Eagle running back Wilbert Montgomery rushed for 194 yards, the first time in 29 playoff games that any back has gained over 100 yards against the Cowboys. "It's just a question of him (Montgomery) being a great running back and us being able to make the play, swarm as a defense," said Breunig. "The big plays against us have plagued us all year," said Coach Tom Landry. "The defense fought well inside our own 20, but we killed ourselves with turnovers and field position. "They were no better than we were till they got those three turnovers in the third period," Landry added.

Plunkett outduels Fouts in long-range warfare

By BRUCE LOWITT SAN DIEGO (AP) — It was, for the most part, the defense which got Jim Plunkett and the rest of the Oakland Raiders as far as the American Conference championship game. So perhaps it was fitting that Plunkett took the opportunity early Sunday to say to the defense: "Thanks, guys. Take a break." For a moment, it seemed as though they were taking Plunkett at his word, relaxing a bit too much. For a moment, it seemed that for every bolt of lightning thrown at San Diego, the Chargers would throw one back. But if the Oakland defense bends a lot, it rarely breaks. And after an instant of agonizing miscalculation, it settled down, bent here and there, gave up points here and there — and held together. "Our offense did the job in the first half and gave us a nice cushion," linebacker Ted Hendricks said after the Raiders blew out to a 28-7 lead, held on for a 34-27 victory and rolled into the Super Bowl against Philadelphia.

FOR THE most part, it was Plunkett who gave them that cushion. The Raiders' 21-point burst tied the record for the most points by one team in an AFC title game (actually it matched what San Diego did to Boston in the 1963 American Football League championship). Plunkett threw three touchdown passes covering 65 yards to Raymond Chester on a deflection and 21 yards to Kenny King and, in between, ran 5 yards for another score when the Chargers covered his receivers. The first pass of the game traveled 5 yards to the Oakland 40, ricocheted off his hands for 10 yards to Chester at midfield and was carried the rest of the way to the end zone by the surprised Oakland tight end. "I couldn't see the ball when it got to Kenny, but it caromed up and into my hands," said Chester. "Let's face it, a catch like that is just luck."

IT WENT to 28-7 when, seven plays after Hendricks recovered Mike Thomas' fumble, Mark vanEeghen picked up three of his game-high 85 yards on a touchdown run through a cavernous hole on the right side. "You can't spot a team like Oakland that many points," said Glen Edwards, San Diego's free safety. "You can't fall that far behind and expect to catch up all that easily." But they nearly did. Fouts found Joiner again on an 8-yard TD pass just before halftime, then Rolf Benirschke kicked a 26-yard field goal and Chuck Muncie swept 6 yards for a touchdown in the third period and suddenly Oakland's lead was down to 28-24. "I had a good feeling then," said Don Coryell, the Chargers' coach. "When we came back like that, it meant just one more good play, one more turnover, and a touchdown would put us in the lead."

IT NEVER happened. Chris Bahr kicked a 27-yard field goal as the third quarter drew to a close and a 33-yarder early in the fourth period. When Benirschke kicked a 27-yarder of his own with 6:32 to play, the spread was seven points again. One more shot and Fouts' howitzer arm could tie it. He never got it. With 6:43 to play, the Raiders started on their own 25. "We knew what we had to do, just get a few first downs at least, so Ray Guy could pin them in a hole," said vanEeghen. Guy, whose 71-yard punt earlier in the game had broken Tom Yewic's record of 68 yards in an AFC title game (that 1963 AFL game, again), wasn't needed. With vanEeghen chewing up 31 yards on that final drive, the Raiders crunched their way to the San Diego 22 when the clock read 0:00. From that 65-yard deflection bomb to the little 6-yard flip to Arthur Whittington which kept that final, clinching drive alive, Plunkett almost was perfect. Fouts had 336 yards, but it took him 45 attempts (22 completions) to get them. And Plunkett was a precise 14 for 18 passing for 261 yards. More important, the quarterback with the silver No. 16 on his chest exploited the Chargers all game long. He called a near-flawless game and the Raiders played as flawlessly. They didn't give the ball up once.

"They said Jim was washed up," said Branch. "But he was stuck with teams that didn't have talent. He brought us leadership. And also he wears the same number George Blanda did." "The ghost of Blanda is still with us."

Surprise! Aggies, UT share cellar

By CHARLES RICHARDS AP Sports Writer Nobody expected Texas A&M and Texas to be tied for the cellar with 0-3 records at this stage of the Southwest Conference basketball race. But that's where they are. Texas Tech shot 71 percent in the second half Saturday, after going into a full-court press, and overcame a 10-point deficit to beat the Aggies 72-70. And surprising Houston staked a spot all alone atop the SWC standings by riding the 40 points of Rob Williams, the league's leading scorer, to a runaway 91-71 victory over Texas. The win was Houston's 600th and broke a six-game losing streak to Texas. The Cougars, after losing their first two games of the season, now have won 11 straight and are 3-0 in league play for the first time ever. Arkansas also won Saturday, drubbing Texas Christian 85-51 to raise its record to 11-2 and 2-0. Baylor's defense held Southern Methodist to its lowest point total in 22 years in a 51-46 victory that made the Bears 2-0 in league play, a half game behind Houston. Texas A&M, defending SWC champs and heavily favored in pre-season polls to repeat, barged into the national rankings by winning its first seven games. But the Aggies now have lost five straight, including consecutive SWC defeats at the hands of TCU, Baylor and Tech. "Tech played well enough to win, but I'm happy with the way we played," said A&M coach Shelby Metcalf. "If we can put this game on the floor and add a little bit to it, I'll be pleased." Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers called the win "a great comeback against a great team. A&M has been having a little trouble, but as far as I am concerned, they're back in business." With A&M fading, the spotlight has shifted to Arkansas and Houston. Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton admitted that at times his squad "played awesome" in its smashing victory over the Horned Frogs.

Beathard to Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke. However, the Post said Cooke still wants to meet with Gibbs before accepting Beathard's recommendation. Joe Blair, Redskins publicity director, said Sunday night he had not spoken with either Beathard or Cooke and was unaware of any such recommendation.

Lee among 5-5A trio with glossy 3-0 records

At least, that's the way it looks in the District 5-5A girls basketball race after three first half district games. Defending champion Midland Lee, San Angelo and Abilene Cooper all own perfect 3-0 records heading into tonight's contest while the rest of the field is at least two games off the pace. However, there could be only two left at the top after tonight since San Angelo and Abilene Cooper tangle in one of the matchups. Lee travels to Odessa High and should the Rebs stumble only one team would be left at the top. Meanwhile, Midland High, who all but fell out of the first half race last Thursday with a heartbreaking 52-51 loss to Lee, will try to stay in the race when they face Odessa Permian at 8 p.m. today at Chaparral Center. Both teams are 1-2 in the second half.

HPC overtime victim

By The Associated Press Howard Payne, the nation's seventh-ranked NAIA team, was the victim of one of two heart-stopping overtime games that got the 1980-81 Lone Star Conference basketball race officially under way Saturday. Texas A&I, 6-5, tied the game 69-69 at the end of regulation play, then captured a 75-73 victory when Javelina guard Michael Daniel scored a three-point play with three seconds left in the game. Felix Dean scored 23 points to lead the upset effort over Howard Payne, which fell to 10-3. Sam Houston, now 9-3, also lost in overtime, falling at home, 50-58, to Angelo State, 6-5.

Beathard likes Gibbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Gibbs, offensive coordinator for the San Diego Chargers, is the choice of Washington Redskins General Manager Bobby Beathard to become the Redskin's next head coach, according to a report in Monday's Washington Post. The Post reported that Gibbs has been strongly recommended by Beathard to Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke. However, the Post said Cooke still wants to meet with Gibbs before accepting Beathard's recommendation. Joe Blair, Redskins publicity director, said Sunday night he had not spoken with either Beathard or Cooke and was unaware of any such recommendation.

GOREN BRIDGE

By CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A2 ♠Q987542 ♣7 ♦953
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♣ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Possession of a seven card major is not, in itself, a license to bid at any level. Had North shown a minor suit in response to your one no trump, you would have introduced your suit at the two level. Now that North has shown, at minimum, a six card suit, we suggest you pass while you are still at a safe level. You have respect able support for partner's suit, but he might be void in your suit.

card spade support, and can judge whether to move or not.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦10762 ♠AK964 ♦K7 ♣JJ
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—Without the bid to your right, you would have opened the bidding with one heart. However, that does not give you the right now to overcall with two hearts. At that level you have no margin of safety because your suit isn't strong enough. Pass and await developments; you may be able to back into the auction later.

has succeeded in turning this hand into a guessing game. Obviously, you have chances for a grand slam, but it's just as possible that you might have an unavoidable loser somewhere. Rather than choose yourself, pass and leave the decision to partner. The pass is forcing and tells your partner you are prepared to play a grand slam if he so desires. Therefore, it carries the implication that you do not have a club loser.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦93 ♠954 ♣K762 ♦A852
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What action do you take?
A.—With only two face cards and no five-card suit, we doubt that your combined holding will stretch to nine tricks even if partner has a maximum 18 points. Therefore, there is no point in endangering the contract. Pass, and be content with a valuable partscore.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A ♠J4 ♦AJ10672 ♣KQ98
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass
What action do you take?
A.—Partner's rebid of four hearts is not a "drop dead" bid. With that sort of hand, he would have simply responded four hearts over your one diamond opening. Partner's actual sequence hints at slam, and you have a most suitable holding. You have first or second-round control in all side suits, a ruffing value and decent trump support. Rather than tip off your holding by cue-bidding, we suggest a bold leap to six hearts. There are no guarantees, but it's difficult to imagine a hand partner might have that will not offer a play for slam. Checking for aces en route is also acceptable.

Wholesale gas jumps over $1

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline dealers were forced to tighten their belts and wholesale gasoline jumped over the $1-a-gallon mark for the first time as oil refiners reacted to a recent OPEC price increase, an oil industry expert said.

Dan Lundberg, who surveys 14,000 gasoline stations twice a month to gather price data, said Sunday the wholesale price jump was 2.22 cents, from 99.1 cents to $1.013.

Lundberg said it was the largest single wholesale increase ever "outside of a government-inspired upward price adjustment such as announcement of wage and price controls."

He blamed the increases on last month's decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise the price of oil an average of $3 a barrel.

Lundberg said other price increase factors include gradual government decontrol of domestic crude prices and the ripple effect of higher world oil prices on the newly decontrolled oil.

The increase at the pump was slightly less than wholesale because gasoline remains plentiful and dealers competitive, thus further depressing profits on the retail level, Lundberg said.

Retail prices increased 2.16 cents, from $1.228 to $1.249, the survey indicated. The prices are an average of all grades offered at both full-serve and self-serve stations.

"Competition is fierce. The dealers are really struggling to make a living now," Lundberg said. Dealers are taking only 9 cents profit on the 17.7 cent ceiling imposed by the federal Department of Energy, his survey said.

Gasoline remains in plentiful supply, said Lundberg, who also publishes an oil industry newsletter called the Lundberg Letter, because of continued consumer conservation and the increased refining of fuel oil for winter months. Two gallons of gasoline are distilled for each gallon of fuel oil produced, he said.

His most recent figures indicated that in 1979, Americans used 6 percent less gasoline than the previous year.
