MidTran marks first anniversary

Laneita Bingham prefers not having to do the driving downtown, and especially during bad weather. "Riding MidTran gives you time to relax and unwind before you get home. I'd rather sit back and let them do the driving."

Mario Salazar has moved several times to various spots in Midland. And each time, MidTran has found a spot for him. "I think I've ridden every bus they have," he said with a laugh.

Subscription rates for the service which picks up the people at their door, delivers them downtown and back home in the evening costs $21 a month.

Ruth Meyers, a passenger, said she hadn't figured out if it was cheaper to take MidTran than her own car. But Stalling added that by the time cost of gasoline, wear and tear on the car and cost of parking was figured, "I think MidTran is at least as cheap."

Khomeini's word is law

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer

Two years after his triumphant homecoming to the acclaim of millions, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the embodiment of the Iranian revolution, spends his days quietly in a house on Tehran's northern fringes, praying, receiving visitors, submitting to medical examinations.

Despite his relative seclusion, the somber old clergyman remains the ultimate authority in Iran. And his heart disease — along with other reported but unconfirmed ailments — is an ever-present source of concern for his followers.

Reports from Tehran say a white Mercedes ambulance sits in his driveway, a constant reminder of his mortality.

Most observers of the Tehran scene believe the death of the 80-year-old Khomeini will usher in a period of new tension and conflict among the other revolutionary leaders as they struggle for power.

Ayatollah Hossein Ali Montazeri, 57, who currently resides in the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran, is regarded as Khomeini's most likely successor as the "fagih," the paramount leader of Iran's Shiite Islamic faith. The influential faculty of the Qom theological school has endorsed Montazeri.

But the constitution of the Islamic Republic of Iran leaves vague the procedure by which the fagih is to be selected, saying only that he should be "known and accepted as the leader by the majority of the people."

The highly charged political atmosphere in Iran could turn the succession process into a free-for-all.

Even after a successor is chosen, he probably will not command the degree of respect and obedience accorded the white-bearded, dark-eyed Khomeini.

When he flew from Paris to Tehran on Feb. 1, 1979, Khomeini ended a 14-year exile during which he had become the voice and symbol of opposition to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

He landed in Tehran to a tumultuous welcome from more than a million ecstatic Iranians shouting, "Allah Akhbar!" ("God is great"). The Shah had fled the country two weeks before, and the Shah's last government fell two weeks after.

Khomeini, establishing his headquarters in Qom, set about assembling the power structure of the new Islamic republic, overseeing the writing of a new constitution.

He had a heart attack in February 1980, was taken to a Tehran hospital and later settled down in the Tehran area to recuperate.

Since then his son Ahmad has often acted as his spokesman, but the ayatollah emerges once or twice a week to address crowds outside his house in the village of Jameran. The speeches are broadcast on national television.

No major political decisions are taken without Khomeini's blessing, including last month's release of the American hostages.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and the rest of Iran's feuding leaders make regular pilgrimages to Khomeini's home to seek approval or advice from the "Imam."

"In cases where my opinion is not the same as the opinion of Imam, I express my opinion," Bani-Sadr said recently. "But I follow Imam's decision and I believe this is the meaning of being in line with Imam."

In large part, Khomeini has retained his hold on the revolution by not taking sides in the endless political squabbling.

Many middle-class, less religious Iranians were never enamored of the Imam and his puritanical reforms. But according to reporters in the Iranian capital, where Khomeini's face glares from countless posters and billboards, the devotion of millions of others remains unshaken.

They say they admire Khomeini for his honesty, piety and simple way of life.

"I am a poor man because the Shah made me poor," Nassroullah Hamzahpour, a one-eyed porter in the Tehran bazaar, told a Western journalist. "I am loyal to the Imam because, first of all, he believes in God, and second, because he believes in people and their prosperity."

A sea of hands greets religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini as he appears on the balcony at his Tehran headquarters on the second day of his return from exile on Feb. 2, 1979. Living quietly and in uncertain health, Khomeini is still the ultimate authority in Iran. (AP Laserphoto)

Peru calls for border demarcation

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru has called for demarcation of its border with Ecuador along the disputed 50-mile mountainous stretch where the armed forces of the two South American neighbors battled for five days last week.

Acting Foreign Minister Felipe Osterling told a news conference Tuesday military observers from the United States and three other nations confirmed that a cease-fire was in force in the area "and that the only thing we had done was to oust the invaders from our territory and re-establish peace in our zone."

"The next step," he continued, "and we are sure that they will agree, is to place the border markers along our frontier to keep these incidents from ever happening again."

The placement of border markers along the crest of the Condor mountain range about 800 miles north of Lima began after a border war between the two countries in 1941 and a 1942 treaty establishing the boundary.

The demarcation stopped in 1951, leaving the 50-mile gap, when President Galo Plaza Lasso of Ecuador declared the treaty void. He said the discovery of the Cenepa River in the area gave Ecuador the right to additional territory on the eastern slopes that would give it access to the Marañon and Amazon Rivers.

Peru's ground and air forces went into action last Wednesday against three military posts which Ecuador established last month on the Peruvian side of the border as defined by the 1942 treaty.

Both sides reported the fighting ended Sunday, and Peru claimed to have driven the Ecuadorians from all three posts. This was confirmed by a Peruvian news photographer who toured the area Sunday in a Peruvian army helicopter.

The United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile sent military attaches from their embassies in Lima and Quito to the Condor as cease-fire observers because they were guarantors and co-signers of the 1942 treaty. But there was no independent report of their findings available yet.

Generic drug law debated by lobbyists and lawmakers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Pharmacists and consumer activists want the Legislature to approve a law allowing druggists to substitute lower-cost drugs for brand-name products, but they can't agree on what the law should say.

One pharmacist's group says the best law would be no law. "We'll be concentrating our efforts on getting the anti-substitution provision simply revoked," said Wayne Beisel, spokesman for the Texas Pharmaceutical Association.

Current law forbids druggists to substitute a cheaper medicine for a name brand unless the prescribing doctor gives written permission.

The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now supports the Drug Product Selection Act sponsored by Rep. Ted Lyons, D-Mesquite, and Sens. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, and Kent Caperton, D-Bryan.

"We will probably be introducing legislation ourselves, getting the anti-substitution provision revoked," Beisel said. He said the association was opposed to the "formulary," a list of approved drugs, included in Lyons' bill.

ACORN spokesman Margot Beutler said the list is a health safeguard, but Beisel said it wasn't needed because a competent pharmacist would not "jeopardize his career by dispensing an inferior drug."

"We are in favor of generic drugs, and we won't oppose Lyons' bill. We just don't like some aspects of it," he said.

Ms. Beutler said only Texas and Indiana ban druggists' substituting generic drugs, and that an ACORN survey of drug prices showed consumers could save 200 percent to 400 percent on medicine costs if generics were routinely prescribed.

According to the survey, chlorpheniramine, an anti-histamine, sells in Austin for 50 cents per 100 tablets. Sold as Chlor-Trimeton, the drug costs $6.66 — a 1,259 percent increase.

Group to hold hearings on nursing shortages

CHICAGO, Ill. — Regional public hearings on the now critical nationwide shortage of nurses will be convened in six cities by the National Commission on Nursing beginning Feb. 20 in Chicago.

On March 4, a public hearing will be conducted in Houston, Texas, at Stouffer's Greenway Hotel at 6 Greenway Plaza E.

The NCN is a 29-member group that reflects the first national coalition effort of representatives from the fields of nursing, medicine, hospital management, government and academia. The coalition is seeking solutions to the problems related to the nursing profession in the 1980s and beyond.

Midlander's parole revoked

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Board of Pardons and Pardon has revoked the parole of J. C. Reyes, convicted in Midland County, because of a new conviction.

Reyes was paroled in January 1980 after serving one year of a five-year sentence for two counts of possession of heroin.

The public hearings, designed to obtain regional opinions on nursing concerns including retention, recruitment, education and collective actions, will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning Feb. 20 in Chicago at the Chicago Marriott Hotel; Feb. 25 in Boston in the Boston Park Plaza Hotel; Feb. 27 in Atlanta in the Peachtree Plaza Hotel; March 2 in Denver at the Hilton Hotel; March 4 in Houston at Stouffer's Greenway Hotel; and March 6 in San Francisco in the San Francisco Hotel.

"The Commission is seeking information from as large a cross-section of people as possible," said NCN coordinator Marjorie Beyers, RN, Ph.D.

"We urge testimony from all who can help identify various regional nursing problems and solutions," Dr. Beyers said.

The hearings will follow a congressional model, with all testimony submitted in writing. Those wishing to testify in person must submit their written testimony to Dr. Beyers 10 days prior to the hearing at which they will appear. Oral testimony will be limited to 10 minutes, followed by a five-minute question period. Provisions will be made for "walk-in" witnesses.

The hearings will be moderated by NCN chairman, H. Robert Cathcart, president of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, and by the co-chairman of the public hearings committee, Vernice Ferguson, RN, director of nursing service of the Veterans Administration Central Office in Washington, D.C. Questions will be asked by a panel composed of several commissioners.

Information gathered through the public hearings will be used to develop recommendations that will be made public next September. These recommendations, in published form, will be made available to groups that request them. At that time the commission will also identify successful hospital recruitment and retention programs which can be used as models in other hospitals.

The commission, formed earlier this year, is currently sponsored by the American Hospital Association, the Hospital Research and Educational Trust and the American Hospital Supply Corporation. The commission has a three year charter.

Further information regarding the hearings and/or testimony submission can be obtained from Dr. Beyers, 840 N. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60611 or (312) 280-6722.

Jury still unable to convict prisoners

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — For the second time, a jury has been unable to convict two of three San Quentin prisoners who allegedly sailed to freedom in an improvised canoe decorated with the words, "Rub-a-Dub-Dub Marin Yacht Club."

A Marin County Superior Court jury Monday told Judge Peter Allen Smith that its members had deadlocked 8-4 for conviction after two days of deliberation.

Two months ago, another hung jury forced the retrial.

Frank Nelson, a deputy district attorney for Marin County, said he "couldn't explain" the jury deadlocks.

The prosecution contends that William

McGirk and John Waller, both 38 and convicted of robbery, escaped in August 1979 on a canoe fashioned of wood and plastic. The boat was made in a prison workshop.

Abducted girl freed because she's 'too pretty'

METAIRIE, La. (AP) — A 17-month-old girl snatched from her home by a gunman who stuffed her into a gift-wrapped box was found unhurt after a man telephoned her anxious parents and said she was too pretty to kill, authorities say.

"He called and told us... she was such a beautiful baby, otherwise he would have wasted her," the toddler's father, Ron Hocum, said late Tuesday.

He and his wife found their daughter, Lori, sobbing and wandering alone at the Lake Forest Shopping Center several hours after Hocum made a televised appeal for her safe return.

No suspect had been apprehended by early today, but Jefferson Parish sheriff's deputies had a composite sketch of the abductor.

The abduction occurred about 1 p.m. Tuesday when a man armed with a pistol broke into the Hocum home in this well-to-do suburb of New Orleans, authorities said.

The Hocum house is a few doors away from the residence of Gov. David Treen. Hocum is a salesman specializing in luxury foreign cars, authorities said.

The girl was at home with a maid at the time, according to Kathleen Landry of the sheriff's department.

"The man forced himself into the house. He tied up the maid and he stole a camera. He had a big box that was wrapped up like a Christmas present. He put the little girl in the box and he took her and left," she said.

Hocum said his daughter probably didn't realize what was happening to her.

"She probably thought that going out in a big box was fun," he said.

But her family was gripped by terror.

"I'm not sure my heart is still beating," Hocum said. "It was such an emotional experience. Everybody says they know how you feel. But they don't."

Hocum went on television shortly after the abduction to beg the gunman not to harm his daughter.

Atlanta won't share info on child disappearances

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Atlanta police are reluctant to share information on their investigation of 17 missing and slain children, and the cases might be solved more quickly with more cooperation, a suburban official has charged.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Constitution reported today that at least two of children were acquainted.

DeKalb County Public Safety Director Dick Hand said Tuesday the special task force created to investigate the cases should pool their information with neighboring police departments and with Atlanta's uniformed officers.

"All in all, we have got to have closer coordination and information," Hand said. "I think if that approach had been originally taken, we'd probably be further along than we are now."

One of the 14 child slayings being investigated by the task force involves a DeKalb County child, Christopher Richardson, 11, disappeared from his Decatur home last June and his skeletal remains were found Jan. 9 in East Point, another suburb.

Hand said DeKalb police have assigned their own investigators to the Richardson case and have urged the department's uniformed officers to take an active role in preventive patrolling and information gathering.

"If you lose sight of the importance of the uniformed division, you're making a big mistake," Hand said. "The criminal investigations division is support, basically. That uniformed man is probably the one who will crack this thing."

Atlanta police, meanwhile, issued another lookout Tuesday for a 15-year-old black youth missing since Jan. 5 whose case has not been assigned to the task force.

Police spokeswoman Phyllis George said the youth, Lee Manuel Gooch, was last seen at a downtown bus station and is believed to be a runaway. His case is being handled by the department's missing persons bureau rather than the task force.

The 35-member task force has been assigned to investigate 14 child slayings and three disappearances, all of which have occurred in the past 19 months. All of the victims have been black and all have been between the ages of 7 and 15.

In another development Tuesday, Rockdale County authorities said a Decatur man has been charged with making terroristic threats in a telephone call to the sheriff's office in which a man claimed responsibility for the death of an Atlanta child.

Diet, exercise recommended to reduce cholesterol

Dear Dr. Solomon: I thoroughly enjoyed reading your new book, "Dr. Solomon's High Health Diet & Exercise Plan," particularly the chapters dealing with exercise and its effect on cholesterol. I have just one question: Will diet alone, or exercise alone, have a beneficial effect on cholesterol, or do the two have to go hand-in-hand? — Glen

Dear Glen: Either exercise or diet can lead to a significant reduction in cholesterol; to feel your best, however, the combination of diet and exercise is recommended.

Still another study reinforces the statements concerning cholesterol that I made in the book. Dr. Arthur Weltman and his colleagues at the University of Louisville studied 58 men who averaged 47 years of age. They were assigned to one of four groups: a diet group, a mild exercise group, a diet plus mild exercise group, or a control group. The study lasted for 10 weeks.

Dear Dr. Solomon: When I played college football about 20 years ago, my weight was an asset. In fact I used to follow a high-calorie diet in order to keep it at a certain level. Now that I sit behind a desk most of the day, my weight has ballooned even more, even though I don't eat any more than I used to. In some desperation, I asked my doctor about the advisability of having one of those bypass operations, but he was very negative about it. If being seriously overweight is as unhealthy as you say it is, why wouldn't it be a good idea for me to get a bypass operation? — Cliff

Dear Cliff: With the passage of time it has become apparent that jejunoileal bypass surgery for morbid obesity has the potential for serious side effects, and many doctors will no longer agree to perform the operation. The complications reported include severe joint, kidney, and lung disease which, according to Dr. Peter D. Utsinger, director of the immunology laboratory at the Germantown Dispensary and Hospital in Philadelphia, affect at least 15 percent of bypass patients. Since many of the complications associated with the surgery may not appear for months or even years, it has taken time for doctors to recognize their relationship.

You do not indicate whether your doctor recommended an alternative to the operation. Surgery is not the only road to achieving significant weight loss. Although I do not suggest that weight control through a program of diet and exercise is all fun and games, I can tell you that many of my patients have followed this route and have been successful in achieving their ideal weight. It may take a little longer than an operation, but the results will be better and, with medical supervision, the risks are practically nonexistent.

Ceiling removed in civil penalties

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate voted Monday to remove the $10,000 ceiling in civil penalties the state may recover under the Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act.

A proposal by Sen. Lloyd Doggett also would extend from two years to three years the time the state has to file suits under the act.

Doggett, D-Austin, said Attorney General Mark White had asked for the extra time because complaints often can be settled out of court.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Difference in behavior of children goes far back into history

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

Question: My 16-year-old son has always been a "handful" for us. Since he was very small he always seemed to be more hard to handle than the others. This dilemma and the apparent contradictions involved in it have existed throughout recorded history.

Answer: You are certainly not alone in your experience that one of your children has always seemed to be more hard to handle than the others. This dilemma and the apparent contradictions involved in it have existed throughout recorded history.

There are several possible explanations for your question, none of which are as yet definitive. One possible theory states that there are genetic differences or biochemical differences in children, even between siblings, which account for behavioral differences. It is a known fact that genetic abnormalities often result in behavioral abnormalities. What is not known is whether or not behavioral problems in general are related to genetic influences.

Another possible explanation is that no two children, even those in the same family, are reared in identical environments. Each child in a given family is exposed to different influences which may result in behavioral problems in one or more of the children but not the others. For example, there are many studies which compare behavioral and intellectual differences between first children, middle children and youngest children.

It can also be said that no two children in one family are reared by exactly the same parents. Parents change throughout the years for many reasons, increased maturity and experience being two possibi-ties. The child born first to young, naive, struggling parents will have different parenting from the child born six to eight years later to those parents.

In your own situation, many or all of these factors may have an influence on your 16-year-old's behavior. It would not be possible to judge from your letter which factors are most influential. If you are interested in the prospect of exerting an influence on your son's behavior it would be best not to assume a biological or genetic cause to his problems because such an assumption would almost certainly defeat your efforts to bring about a behavior change by making your efforts tentative and uncertain.

Question: How long does it take to recover from the death of a loved one?

Answer: The grief process in previously well-adjusted individuals may take from six to 18 months. The grief process involves several stages, none of which can be rushed to an early conclusion. If the "grief work" is cut short or denied, future problems may be encountered.

In individuals with previous problems in adjustment, the grief process may be considerably lengthened to a period of years instead of months. This is usually due to the unusual psychological dependencies which the survivor often displayed to the deceased.

Question: It seems that more and more people are taking tranquilizers these days and some even bragging about it. Are mental problems more prevalent now than in the past?

Answer: The overall incidence of mental problems, especially of the more severe disorders, has remained relatively constant. The pace of modern life, however, has increased the possibility that more people will complain of stress-related symptoms, such as nervousness, anxiety or depression.

Modern pharmaceutical developments have made it possible to alleviate the stress-related symptoms without altering the conditions which led to the symptoms in the first place. As a result, many people are demanding this form of symptomatic relief and receiving it.

Traffic detoured on Interstate 95 as smoke continues to obscure road

EDGEWATER, Fla. (AP) — Traffic was detoured on Interstate 95 between Cocoa Beach and Daytona Beach for a fourth morning today as heavy smoke from stubborn brush fires obscured the road, troopers said.

Sgt. Ron Getman of the Florida Highway Patrol said there was no way of knowing when the smoke and fires would subside. The fires were believed caused by dry conditions resulting from a January freeze.

"It all depends on the wind. At times visibility is reduced to nothing.

You cannot see the white line from your car. Other times it's quite good," he said. "We've had brush fires before, but never for such a duration as we're in right now."

Poor visibility on the interstate already has been blamed for a series of accidents last week that claimed one life and caused 15 injuries.

Meanwhile, state Division of Forestry officials said they had brought the last of three major brush fires under control.

Toxic substance found on atoll

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Man has now polluted the entire surface of the earth, according to the findings of Texas A&M University researchers who reported traces of a man-made, cancer-causing chemical on a remote Pacific island chain.

Hexachlorobenzene, known as HCB, was found on Enewetak Atoll during tests by the A&M scientists, the first time the chemical has appeared in the isolated region. And those results, published in a recent issue of the journal "Science," mean that man has now polluted the surface of the entire planet, the scientists conclude.

"The chances are there's now no place on earth you can go without finding HCB," said Dr. C.S. Giam, head of chemistry at A&M and leader of the Enewetak expedition, during an interview about his report. "The thing wasn't meant to be dramatic or frightening to people, but it is a scientific fact."

In the report, Giam and Dr. Elliot Atlas, a senior research chemist, wrote, "Presence of HCB at such locations (as Enewetak) indicates widespread contamination of the atmosphere."

"These are the first measurements of HCB in the remote marine atmosphere," Atlas wrote. "The relative constancy of the compound between sites suggests that HCB is very stable and may remain in the atmosphere a long time."

HCB is a byproduct of more than a dozen manufacturing processes, including rubber manufacturing, and is a key ingredient in fungicides. Sea dumping of the compound was banned in the 1970s. Enewetak, a group of islands about 2,200 miles southwest of Hawaii, was chosen as the site of the first hydrogen-bomb test in 1952 because it was so remote from any populated areas.

Giam said that means any man-made pollution found there had to have originated somewhere else, "such as the United States or Japan — I mention those because they are heavily industrialized nations."

The research by Giam and Atlas was part of Sea-Air Exchange, a National Science Foundation-financed study involving a dozen American and foreign universities.

HCB has given rise to health worries in the past. "Concern over HCB in the environment was heightened by high levels found in beef cattle in 1972. Since then, it has been identified in many environmental areas including river water, the air, estuaries, soils and sediments, as well as in fish, birds, bird eggs and human fatty tissue," said Atlas.

An Environmental Protection Agency report published a year ago noted that HCB produced cancer in hamsters. It also was believed to be a factor in the deaths of breast-fed babies in Turkey during the 1950s as well as an epidemic there of skin sores and discoloration, the EPA reported.

The chemical also was linked by the EPA to disruptions of enzymes among people living in a small Louisiana town seven years ago.

Giam and Atlas also reported finding minute traces of other powerful pollutants, including polychlorobiphenyls — or PCBs — as well as residues from the insecticides DDT, chlordane and dieldrin, during their tests of the air, water and rain at the atoll.

Small amounts of two compounds used in the plastics industry, DBP and DEHP, also were discovered in the Texas A&M samples, collected between April and August 1979.

Restarting TMI reactor asked

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff has suggested that an undamaged Three Mile Island reactor be restarted at low levels to avoid brownouts in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland.

Possible brownouts were forecast in a report compiled by the U.S. Department of Energy, according to James Tourtellotte, NRC assistant chief hearing counsel.

"The DOE staff found that the regional power supply adequacy and system operations will be negatively impacted by a continuing outage of the facility," Tourtellotte said in documents submitted Tuesday to the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

The board is holding hearings on whether to restart the Unit 1 reactor. The NRC suspended its operating license nearly two years ago, when the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident crippled the twin Unit 2 reactor at Three Mile Island.

Tourtellotte suggested the NRC authorize operation of Unit 1 at "power levels up to 5 percent."

He said the possibility of an accident at such levels is small enough to waive some of the standards required for full-scale generation.

Tourtellotte said the NRC has the power to lift the license suspension before completing the restart hearing, "provided the NRC sets forth an adequate basis for the decision."

The NRC staff proposal was among a number of suggestions offered in response to a memo from NRC Chairman John Ahearne. Ahearne asked for ways to expedite the hearings, which began last October and are expected to last at least until spring.

Dear Heloise: I solved the problem of lint on my husband's wash and wear uniforms... He was lying on the bed when his eye caught sight of them hanging in the closet, full of lint. Log cabin making comeback

Welcome back, cave-man.

Say hello to Abe Lincoln and his loghouse.

In today's rush to beat housing and energy costs, some builders are accentuating the alternatives.

The tract house that has overwhelmed the housing scene since World War II is still alive and well in the 1980s, but some builders are looking toward alternatives.

They are building insulated domes and earth-shelter dwellings that use the ground's natural warming and cooling.

Strategic locations for windows and overhangs keep out unwanted sun rays during the summer and admit them better during the winter. All of these once minor factors are becoming important in the '80s.

Many builders stress insulation and interior design, but no two agree on the best method to cut heating costs. However, the consensus among them seems to be — with another increase in fuel costs agreed on by the OPEC nations recently — that saving energy is the only way to go.

Heating oil and electricity won't get any cheaper, so bring on the insulation, the solar devices, wind machines and earth-covered houses.

One builder in Des Moines, Iowa, is emphatic about the situation. The most energy-efficient structure, he says, is one that combines several construction concepts — double walls, earthfill and passive solar.

People who choose to build a conventional home today, says Wayland Hopley of Iowa Energy Homes, knowing "full well the way this country is going, are damn fools."

Rick Hagen, who bought one of Hopley's homes, said he especially likes the triple-thick windows, which keep his house cool in summer and warm in winter, despite wide ranging temperatures in Iowa. Hopley said well-designed houses can realize energy savings "up to 62 percent." The figure, he said, was computed by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Log houses built today are better than those of Abe Lincoln's era, says Curt Destache of Southwest Log Homes in Lakeside, Calif.

Sympathizers for members of the FALN, a Puerto Rican liberation organization, protest the start of the trial proceedings for the 10 defendants in Chicago Tuesday. The protesters braved a wind chill factor of 23 below zero to show support for the Puerto Ricans. (AP LASERPHOTO)

Arrests stopped first serious political kidnapping in history

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities prevented "the first serious political kidnapping attempt in the country's history" by arresting 10 members of the Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN, a federal prosecutor says. Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremy D. Margolis made the remark Tuesday during his opening statement to a U.S. District Court jury in the trial of 10 alleged FALN members charged with seditious conspiracy, armed robbery, interstate transportation of stolen vehicles and gun charges. An eleventh suspect, Oscar Lopez, is still at large. Evidence to be presented will show the group was bent on taking a "political hostage," Margolis said. Margolis did not identify the target of the alleged plot. He charged the FALN began its covert operations on a small scale, planting bombs at various locations, then escalated its efforts to coordinated bombing attacks in several cities at once. Margolis and Assistant U.S. Attorney Walter Jones Jr. said they would produce evidence linking the Puerto Rican independence group to 28 bombings and attempted bombings in the Chicago area and to other insurrectionist activities. The only witness called Tuesday, the first day of the trial, was FBI agent Thomas Deans. He took the stand to identify evidence discovered at the sites of bombings linked to the FALN, including fragments of propane gas tanks, timing devices and batteries used to make bombs. All 12 jurors in the case were chosen earlier Tuesday after the defendants — chained, screaming insults and nationalist slogans — refused to take part in the trial and were hustled out of the heavily guarded courtroom by federal marshals. The defendants were arrested last April in the suburb of Evanston by police who seized stolen vehicles and weapons.

Nine of them were convicted on local charges in earlier trials. FALN is a Spanish acronym for Armed Forces of National Liberation. The defendants contend the United States invaded Puerto Rico in 1898 and that a state of war exists. They insist on being treated as prisoners of war and refuse to be represented by attorneys.

Poland's Solidarity movement accused of spreading anarchy

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Union leader Lech Walesa and government officials criss-crossed southern Poland trying to end continuing labor unrest in four towns. Walesa, head of the independent nationwide labor federation Solidarity, traveled from Rzeszow to Bielsko-Biala, 130 miles to the west, where a general strike supporting allegations of official corruption was in its ninth today. Meanwhile, Deputy Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala was returning to Rzeszow today to continued negotiations on the demand of private farmers to form an independent union, or Rural Solidarity. Walesa and Kacala met Monday in Rzeszow. On Tuesday, Kacala went to Ustrzyki Dolne, 50 miles to the southeast on the Soviet border, to meet with disgruntled farmers there. Another government negotiator, Jan Jablonski, was meeting in Jelenia Gora, 280 miles west of Rzeszow, with workers demanding the removal of Trade Union Affairs Minister Stanislaw Ciosek for alleged misconduct in office. Bielsko-Biala's provincial governor and three deputy governors resigned Tuesday under pressure from the local chapter of Solidarity, which also wants the mayor and deputy mayor of the provincial capital to quit, Warsaw Television reported. The union accused the officials of misconduct in office, and the TV report said Premier Josef Piskowski would consider the resignations today. Bielsko-Biala is a textile center, and the leader of the Polish Communist Party, Stanislaw Kania, said the first six days of the strike there cost $70 million in lost production. Kania, speaking to a committee preparing for a party congress next month, accused Solidarity of seeking to become a "political opposition party" and of spreading anarchy. He opposed an independent farmers' union, saying, "Is the countryside to be a scene of cooperation between the people's regime and peasant-farmers, or is it to be the scene of political struggle?"

Farmers delegations taking part in an information meeting held by the strike committee gather in the hall of the former trade unions buildings Tuesday. Labor unrest is reaching a critical stage throughout Poland. (AP LASERPHOTO)

Soviets claim Reagan readying own dissident crackdown

MOSCOW (AP) — A senior Soviet official claimed today that President Reagan's campaign against international terrorism may be the prelude to a new crackdown on American "dissidents." "The march against international terrorism opens the way to introduction of a new, and maybe even more sinister, edition of McCarthyism," Vitaly Kobyshev, a commentator for the Communist Party Central Committee, wrote in the latest edition of the weekly Literary Gazette. "Under the sign of it, everything is possible — to strangle dissidents and to liquidate them mercilessly as was done to the head of the negro organization Black Panthers," he declared. Kobyshev's article, believed to reflect the highest levels of Kremlin thinking, added a new twist to mounting Soviet rebuttals of Reagan administration charges that Moscow promotes international terrorism, in part by supporting guerrillas in developing countries. The state-controlled press has reacted by branding the CIA as the "main headquarters" of international terrorism and listing a number of political assassination plots in the 1960s and 1970s allegedly backed by the American espionage organization. "They tried to throw a stone at us but they threw a boomerang," another Soviet commentator declared Tuesday night on the main evening TV program, summing up the Soviet response. In his commentary, Kobyshev contended that Secretary of State Alexander Haig erred by "putting the equal sign between terrorism and national liberation movements of people."

"Under the flag of struggle against terrorism," he wrote, "while avalanching charges on the Soviet Union, American imperialism is trying to restore the leading role of the United States by developing a global attack against national liberation movements and all progressive forces in the world." Kobyshev said Moscow shared the U.S. definition of international terrorism "only when it is applied to the Red Brigades in Italy or to neo-Nazis who blast synagogues." "That which is occurring in Chile, Uruguay, El Salvador, South Africa, South Korea and Israel... we also regard as international terrorism, while not forgetting that Washington feeds it financially and militarily, organizes it and inspires it," Kobyshev wrote. The commentary claimed that Washington's involvement in terrorism ranged from support of "open intervention against the peoples' system of Afghanistan to the 'veil of mystery' around the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and backing of Ku Klux Klan racial violence. He said the CIA even recruited the Mafia to assassinate Cuban leader Fidel Castro in the early 1960s, believing this would "guarantee success of the Bay of Pigs invasion" by Cuban exiles.

Farmers may get more time on corn price-support loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he may give farmers more time to pay off government price-support loans on corn stored in the reserve program.

The loans, at the current rate of $2.40 a bushel, involve 994.2 million bushels of corn in the reserve's inventory as of Jan. 30.

Block says if the loans are extended, farmers will have to pay interest for the additional time. There is no interest now on loans for grain in the reserve.

The program provides that the loans be repaid after market prices reach a specified "call" level or else the grain must be turned over to the government.

A group of American Agriculture Movement leaders meeting here Monday told Block that farmers are worried about the depressing market effects the loan call is having. He was asked about measures that could be taken, including an extension of the 90-day period farmers have to repay the loans.

something like that," Block said. If so, the loans would carry an interest rate of 14 percent or 15 percent, he said, "but at least it (the grain) wouldn't be dumped" all at once.

There are actually three separate but related programs called Reserve

AGRICULTURE

I, II and III. A price formula applies in each of the reserves.

Loans for about 15 million bushels of corn in Reserve I were called last fall and those will be due Feb. 9.

The much larger amount — involving around 980 million bushels, based on the Jan. 30 inventory — will be due April 15 for corn stored in Reserve II and III.

Department officials announced Dec. 30 that loans would be called on the remaining 665 million bushels corn in the reserve.

Official notices were sent Jan. 16, meaning the 90-day period will be up April 15.

Apple's back, and so are eight other horses

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — Apple is back home, much to the delight of five-year-old Chase Deadman.

Apple is his Shetland pony, one of nine horses recently stolen in the Garland area and recovered by the Texas Southwest Cattle Raisers Association.

"I just wanted him back and he's back," the boy said as he sat on the pony and hugged him.

Chase was all smiles Monday as his mother, Mrs. Vicki Deadman, led Apple down a lane at the Circle L Corral where Chase had been waiting all afternoon for the return of his beloved pony.

"Apple's lost a little weight, but he could stand to lose a little weight. They took care of him," Mrs. Deadman said.

Lemuel Langley, owner of the Circle L, said officers recovered nine horses stolen from stables in the Garland area in a two-week period. The Circle L lost Apple, another horse and Chase's saddle. Another Garland stable lost four horses valued at $18,000 last week.

Although the horses were returned Monday, no arrests have been made.

"We picked them up in four or five locations in Clarksville," Langley said, "They had been sold at auctions in Paris and Clarksville."

Langley said he did not know all the details of the investigation leading to recovery of the horses, but said they were recovered Sunday from persons who had purchased the stolen horses.

"We got back all nine horses and all the tack. It is one of the few happy endings we've had, but this one's a happy ending. It is absolutely great," said Langley.

Apple has some company now, both in the barn and young Chase's heart. An Irving man read of the boy's plight when the pony was stolen and gave him another Shetland pony.

More cattle slaughtered, butchered in Arkansas fields

MARIANNA, Ark. (AP) — Ranchers here are finding cattle slaughtered and butchered in their pastures, and Lee County Sheriff Robert May Jr. says the increase in rustling probably has just begun.

"I know we're going to have more of it," he said. "Times are hard and it's gotten worse lately."

May said rustlers drive along deserted dirt roads or along the Mississippi River levee late at night to find unprotected animals. Then, in the glare of headlights, the cattle are shot and butchered on the spot.

The beef is sold to area residents at cut-rate prices, he said.

"Most of the people who buy it are poor people looking for a bargain and trying to feed their families," Mays said. "It's a difficult thing to prove. ... You've got to have the evidence before you can prosecute."

Cattle rustling is classified as theft of property and is a Class C felony. Some cattle farmers say they would like to see rustlers severely punished.

"Poverty doesn't give you a right to do wrong and if we hanged a few rustlers, it might help," said H.L.

Guest of Marianna. One of Guest's heifers, weighing 350 pounds and worth about $350, was shot and butchered last December.

Mays said four such butcherings were reported in the county in January. More have likely gone unreported, Mays said, because farmers with larger herds don't always notice when one animal is missing.

Some farmers are fighting the black market prices by insuring their herds. John Kilcrease, a Farm Bureau insurance agent, said a small percentage of farmers have theft insurance on their herds or on individually registered cattle.

But he said insurance sales are not increasing because farmers generally "don't lose enough cattle to offset the amount of the premium, or at least they haven't in the past."

Guest said only farmers with a real love for cattle continue to stay in the business these days, since much of their grazing land has been turned over to cultivation of soybeans and rice.

"You hadn't got any business with cattle unless you got a love for it, and I dearly love them," Guest said.

Embargo: Mission accomplished?

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food proved to be an effective weapon in the confrontation with the Soviet Union, according to U.S. officials who supervise the embargo of grain shipments. The embargo, they say, achieved its limited objective: gumming up — slightly — the Soviet economy.

One official, in typical Washingtonese, described part of the impact as "a discombobulation of the livestock sector" in Russia.

This week, President Reagan is heading a Cabinet-level review of the embargo. At his news conference last Thursday, Reagan suggested for the first time that the embargo could be expanded. "You have two choices. You either lift it, or you broaden it, and we have not made a decision."

The Cabinet debate may go along these lines:

—End the embargo: Reagan pledged during his election campaign to lift the embargo to woo the farm vote and there is pressure on him to deliver on his promise. Moreover, the same U.S. officials who believe the embargo had a useful impact in 1980 say it may not make much of a dent in 1981 because the Soviets have found other sources of supply, especially from Argentina.

—Expand or retain the embargo: Despite the embarrassing political reversal, some advisers are telling Reagan that with Soviet troops massed on the Polish border, this is hardly the time to lift the sanctions imposed after the Red Army moved into Afghanistan. At the least, these advisers insist, Reagan should insist on getting something in return from the Soviets.

Not only that, but lifting the embargo would deplete U.S. grain reserves and prompt an increase in consumer food prices, they add.

The embargo was imposed by former President Carter on Jan. 4, 1980, following the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan. Carter extended it into a second year shortly before he left office.

While the embargo has been criticized as ineffective, a State Department official said the criticism seems to come from people who thought it purpose was to force the Soviets to withdraw from Afghanistan.

"The reason for imposing it was to have a demonstrable impact on the Soviet economy, to show the seriousness of our feelings," he said. He claimed it has done this.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said Soviet grain imports were 8 million to 9 million tons less than they would have been. Total imports are put by the State Department at 28 million tons for the year ending Sept. 30, although others think it was higher than that.

Combined with two consecutive bad grain harvests in the Soviet Union, the drop in exports led to "a discombobulation of the livestock sector" and a 3 percent decline in meat production at a time when the Soviets were aiming to increase meat output, the official said.

"Meat consumption was at 1975 levels. It was the lowest of all European countries and considerably behind Eastern Europe. And this was at a time when the Soviets were giving highest priority to consumer welfare," the official added in a background interview.

In addition, he said the Soviets had to pay one-third more for grain they did import.

The U.S. embargo barred the Soviets from purchasing 17 million tons of corn and other grain they had planned to purchase, largely for livestock feed. The embargo didn't bar shipment of 8 million tons provided in a bilateral trade agreement with the Soviets.

While the embargo might have little impact on the Soviets in the coming year, Reagan may want to continue it anyway for other reasons, the official said. Domestic stocks of U.S. feed grains are low, he said, and a resumption of normal trade with the Soviets would draw them even lower. This could drive up prices to American consumers and add to domestic inflation, the official added.

State Department experts are less sympathetic than Reagan to complaints of American farmers that they suffered because of the embargo. Total U.S. grain exports were at record levels and prices held up well, officials say.

The lack of precipitation across the nation is causing problems not only for farmers but for cities with limited water supplies. According to figures provided by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, few areas have experienced above-average precipitation and most report some degree of drought. Doctors worried about new law

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California doctors say they're worried about a new state law requiring them to tell police about the sexual activities of female patients under 18 years of age.

The law makes doctors who fail to report such activity liable for criminal charges and jail sentences.

The language is contained in a law designed to revamp and clarify the state's child abuse law. But the new law removed language that left it to doctors' discretion whether to report sexual activities of girls between ages 14 and 18.

The law took effect Jan. 1.

It was sponsored by state Sen. Omer Rains.

but an aide said Monday the senator was "definitely against" the revised reporting requirement.

"It is inappropriate and inefficient," said Bob Moore.

"This (result) clearly was not the intent of the law. The purpose was to clarify child-abuse reporting in California," he said, adding that the language's inclusion came at the instigation of Senate conservatives.

"Compliance with the literal language could result in teenagers becoming reluctant to seek the medical care they need," the California Medical Association said in a statement. The group represents 28,000 doctors.

The law is also presenting problems for Planned Parenthood, which is trying to seek a clarification.

David Alois, legislative director of Planned Parenthood, said he heard of one woman running a birth control clinic who collected the names of the minors she saw.

"Periodically, she'd call up the cops and say, 'Do you want them?' The cops said no," he said.

He said police officers he's talked to are ignoring the law.

Moore and others said they had not heard of any cases in which doctors reported their patients' sexual activities and then had to deal with the criminal justice system.

Defender says suggestion could encourage abuse

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A suggestion by city Police Director E. Winslow Chapman that rapists be castrated is shocking and may encourage police to mistreat suspects, says Shelby County's public defender.

"I'm not suggesting that members of the department are going to go out and castrate rapists," said public defender A. C. Wharton.

"But such remarks may give them greater license to go beyond the normal bounds of their duties when dealing with suspects," said Wharton, adding he was "shocked" by the remarks.

Wharton said Monday he too is frustrated about the rise in violent crime, "but I don't think exciting, catchy solutions to problems come close to getting to the heart of the problem."

Chapman called for the castration of rapists and the death penalty for murderers in a talk Sunday at an "anti-crime" public meeting sponsored by the Vollintine-

Evergreen Community Association.

"If maybe we can castrate rapists one or two times ... that crime would go down the drain. I'm convinced of that," Chapman said, drawing applause from a crowd of 150.

Chapman said he had received a number of telephone calls after his remarks were published Monday.

"The calls were almost totally positive," he said.

Union protesters at the newly proposed Datsun plant site near Smyrna, Tenn., gather around M. Goto, general manager of the international division of Nissan Motors, Ltd. Goto's right hand is held around the pole on a protest sign by one of the demonstrators. (AP Laserphoto)

Despite protests, Nissan plans to build pickups in Tennessee

SMYRNA, Tenn. (AP) — The executive vice president of Nissan Motor Co. Ltd. says he has no second thoughts about building a $300 million pickup truck plant in Tennessee, despite being jeered and booed at groundbreaking ceremonies.

"I share the opinion that it was a small minority," Masataka Okuma said Tuesday after jeers from hundreds of union members protesting the hiring of a construction company which employs some non-union workers as well as union workers.

Before the ceremony was over, one law officer had been knocked unconscious and tires were punctured on the truck that was to break the ground.

"The majority of Tennesseans, I hope, welcome Nissan's investment here," he said. "I have no second thoughts. This is the ideal location for our truck operations."

The plant will be Nissan's largest facility outside Japan and will produce 120,000 Datsun pickups annually by 1983. Its 800-acre site is 20 miles southeast of Nashville.

The plant will employ 2,200 people. Most of the 1,500 people who braved 20-degree temperatures for the groundbreaking were members of trade unions. Some carried placards urging a boycott of Datsun vehicles, and an airplane circled overhead with a banner that read, "Boycott Datsun... Put America Back to Work."

State and local labor officials called the protest after Nissan chose Daniel Construction Co. of Greenville, S.C., to build the facility, which will also be the corporate headquarters of Nissan's U.S. operations.

However, Marvin Runyon, president of Nissan Motor Manufacturing Co. U.S.A., defended the choice, saying Daniel is known for quality work and completing jobs on time.

The protesters shouted and booed during speeches by Gov. Lamar Alexander, Nissan officials and other state and local officials.

Tennessee Highway Patrol officers had to escort the governor, Runyon and others through the protesters to a Datsun truck equipped with a snow plow to break ground.

But three of the truck's tires had been punctured, and with protesters crowding around, only a small area of dirt was ceremoniously moved.

A boycott placard was thrust into the hands of one Nissan official, identified only as international division general manager M. Goto. He smiled as protesters held his hand on the sign while news photographers snapped away.

At one point, authorities said rocks were thrown into the crowd, and a Rutherford County sheriff's detective was knocked unconscious. But no arrests were made, and the officer was released after treatment.

Alexander later apologized to Nissan officials, saying "99.9 percent" of all Tennesseans welcomed their decision to build in the state.

"I really don't understand why this minority is trying to run off a company that's bringing into Tennessee 2,200 jobs paying $20,000 apiece," Alexander said.

Army purchases 40 Japanese-made trucks to meet federal fuel standards

FORT DEVENS, Mass. (AP) — The U.S. Army has bought 40 fuel-efficient trucks from a Japanese maker, but base officials say they're not completely taking their business away from Detroit.

After scouring the market for vehicles meeting federal fuel standards, the Army bought 40 Datsun pickups for $300,000 from a Midwestern dealer.

"It's not that the Army set out to buy imported," base spokesman John Rasmuson told The Lowell Sun. "It's just that the American car makers don't make what we need."

Under rules of the General Services Administration, federal agencies must meet strict fuel standards in the vehicles they operate.

Canada isn't ready to make Chrysler deal

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian Industry Minister Herb Gray, who wants more meetings with ailing Chrysler Corp., says he is not ready to recommend changes in an agreement guaranteeing $200 million to the automaker in exchange for $1 billion in new investment.

Gray said Tuesday he is not yet satisfied with Chrysler's investment proposals. He made the comment after a 90-minute meeting with representatives of the United Auto Workers union, which gave mixed reviews to the company's expanded investment package for Canada.

The U.S. Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board in Washington has given the automaker until next week to reach agreement on an operating plan in Canada before the board approves $400 million in loan guarantees the company needs to avoid bankruptcy.

Gray, contending he is not bound by the U.S. deadline, said he wants more talks to "firm up details about the nature of production, the quantity and the time period."

The industry minister said he was not ready to recommend changes to Ottawa's 1980 agreement guaranteeing $200 million in private loans starting in 1982 in exchange for $1 billion in new investment by 1985.

On Monday, Chrysler employees approved 13 percent pay cuts, which the automaker needed in order to win the loan board guarantees.

Under a revised plan submitted to the federal government last week, Chrysler re-offered to build a front-wheel drive compact car in Canada for the 1985 model year, contributing to a total investment package which sources now estimate as about $700 million over the next four years.

A month ago, Chrysler dropped the car from its investment plans, signaling an end to auto production in Canada after 1983 and a cut in total spending to $600 million over the next four years.

Robert White, Canadian director of the UAW, said the return of a small car to the investment package was "an important first step." But he said he was unhappy with Chrysler's plan to postpone production until the 1985 model year and produce only a limited number of vehicles at a truck plant and not in the car assembly plant, both in Windsor, Ontario.

After meeting again with Chrysler officials, Gray, who represents a Windsor constituency in Parliament, said he will consult again with the union and then decide what recommendations to make to his Cabinet.

Chrysler has 8,500 active Canadian employees.
