

Reagan reconsiders economic forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, retreating from an early, rosier prediction, is forecasting inflation of slightly more than 8 percent in 1982 and little change in unemployment over the next two years as its economic recovery program takes hold, sources say.

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, also said Wednesday the president's economic forecast would concede the possibility of a "technical recession" this year — a slight dip in economic growth for at least two consecutive quarters.

Meanwhile, one of Reagan's top economic advisers said that "profound — even drastic — changes in federal economic policy" are required to prevent the economy from deteriorating further.

"Continuation of the policies of the past will not only make our economic future worse; it will make it dramatically worse," said Murray L. Weidenbaum, Reagan's choice to be chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers.

Weidenbaum, who briefed reporters to promote Reagan's upcoming tax and spending cut package, reiterated the president's contention last week that the economy "is in many ways in its worst state since the Great Depression."

Weidenbaum said, "The time for symbolism in economic policy is over. Slight change in current policies will at best produce slight results. The prescription must be a swift and dramatic change in direction."

Weidenbaum said "past misguided policies of government itself" are at the root of the nation's economic problems.

The administration is arguing that its drastic plan to reduce the government's role in the economy is the only way to solve the ills.

Reagan's speech to Congress next week is designed to persuade lawmakers to approve sweeping budget cuts they have been reluctant to enact previously.

In sharp contrast to an earlier prediction, the administration will forecast economic growth in 1982 of about 4 percent, sources said.

Sources said the administration would predict growth of a robust 5 percent and more moderate inflation of about 6.25 percent in 1983.

The earlier prediction of more rapid economic growth — as high as 7 percent next year — and inflation falling dramatically to 6.5 percent next year was hit by critics as implausible.

One source said the administration expects a slight increase in unemployment this year and a small drop in 1982, leaving the jobless rate at the end of 1982 about the same as last month's 7.4 percent rate.

Meanwhile, in a report greeted by analysts as encouraging news, the government reported sales by U.S. retailers improved in January for the seventh straight month.

The 2 percent increase in seasonally adjusted retail sales over December's performance "is stronger than most economists had been expecting," said David Ernst, a vice president of Evans Economics Inc. in Washington.

Las Vegas busboy held

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A 23-year-old busboy who told police he turned in the alarm on the Las Vegas Hilton fire has been booked on eight counts of murder in the blaze, which sent a column of flame roaring up the side of the country's largest hotel.

Homicide detectives said Wednesday night they had arrested Phillip Bruce Cline after the room service busboy made "inconsistent statements" about his role in the biggest of the four fires deliberately set in the hotel Tuesday night.

The blaze — the second large and deadly hotel fire in Las Vegas in three months — killed eight people and injured 198. Hospitals had said that 242 people were hurt, but officials later said that figure was incorrect.

Cline told The San Diego Evening Tribune before his arrest that he tried to put out the fire on the eighth floor with water carried in a trash can. When that failed, Cline said he ran down the hall, knocking on doors to warn guests.

The busboy also was booked on one count of arson. Officials had no explanation immediately for the three other fires.

Formal charges would be filed at an arraignment, which officials said would take place before the end of the week.

Las Vegas police Wednesday night arrested Phillip Bruce Cline, a 23-year-old busboy, in connection with Tuesday's fatal fire at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel. See related stories and photos, Page 8C. (AP Laserphoto)

In the aftermath of the blaze, which Fire Chief Roy Parrish termed "definitely arson," scorch marks scarred the side of the Hilton's east tower, where flames burst from eighth-floor windows and shot to the top of the 30-story building.

Knotted bedsheets still hung from broken windows and an army of security guards was on patrol. Police said they had questioned some people about looting but there were no arrests and no immediate reports of large thefts.

Guests who fled rooms in the east wing, most severely damaged in the blaze, were being escorted in today to reclaim abandoned suitcases and other belongings.

Hundreds of people who lined up for hours Wednesday to wait for escorts to their rooms found their doors had been wrenched open during firefighters' room-to-room search for victims.

Inside, walls and furniture were thick with soot. The sooty, water-logged carpets looked like mud.

Hilton officials estimated the damage at $10 million but said the hotel could be reopened in a week because some 1,900 of the 2,783 rooms were undamaged by the fire. The first-floor casino was unscathed. The other rooms were damaged, mostly by smoke.

More than 4,000 people fled the building during the fire, including 110 who were plucked from the roof by helicopters. Among the guests over come by smoke was singer Natalie Cole, who performed at the hotel Monday.

Deputy Chief Eric Cooper said Cline "had given an initial statement last night (Tuesday) and another statement today (Wednesday) and there were inconsistencies."

Former Midland man injured in Las Vegas fire

Former Midlander Robert Wesley "Bobby" Barrett, 41, was in stable condition early this morning in the critical care unit of Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital in Las Vegas, Nev., after suffering from smoke inhalation while fighting the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel fire Tuesday night.

The first paramedic in the state of Nevada, Barrett fought the fire some three hours before he fell victim to its smoke.

"I had been there a good three hours before I went down," he said in a telephone interview from his Nevada hospital room this morning. "We had gone up a number of floors. I was exposed to a lot of smoke and intense elements," he said mildly. "I think a great part of my going down was that I hadn't fully recovered from the MGM fire."

The MGM Grand Hotel, which burned Nov. 21, left 84 dead and more than 700 injured. Barrett was one of the injured.

"I was exposed to a great element of smoke," he recalled. "I had taken in 40 percent of the carbon monoxide level. That's a lethal level, if not taken care of immediately."

While still semi-recovering from the MGM, Barrett was called to the Hilton Tuesday night, where eight people were later found dead and 198 were injured.

"Both fires were a contributing factor in my health," Barrett said. Suffering from smoke inhalation, Barrett is also undergoing tests for other related injuries. "I may have injured my heart a little," he said. "We don't know fully yet." He said he expected to know the results of tests this afternoon.

While Barrett said, "The MGM was the largest fire" he was ever involved with, "the Hilton was probably the dirtiest." Barrett said the "products used to build it — the plastics and wood" caused the Hilton to have one

Freezing weather bursts pipes

'Several hundred' homes, businesses damaged

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Frozen water pipes in several hundred Midland homes and businesses burst after Wednesday morning's record low temperature of 10 degrees, keeping local plumbers and the City Water Department busy with distressed callers.

Bill Tatsch, a City Water Department official, said Wednesday afternoon it would be "hard to tell" how many homes were involved "until it starts freezing again." However, at 4 p.m. Wednesday, he said there had been 100-150 calls from residents who were unable to get a plumber and wanted their water temporarily shut off.

Tatsch explained when pipes freeze, they crack, splitting seams or tearing holes in the pipes. When the pipes thaw again, the water leaks through the breaks.

Although exposed lines outside the house usually freeze first, Tatsch said about 25 percent of the calls were about inside breaks.

Tatsch said when the city gets "real, real cold weather," pipes usually break. This cold front was "the first time this year that it really got cold enough," he said. "Usually we have a few (calls) otherwise, but not like this."

Tatsch said the breaks were "not limited to old or new houses," and that in some of the newer homes, the breaks appeared "in the attic rather than the walls."

Geneva Pierre of Billie "Red" Parson Plumbing said they had been receiving calls from "all over town. Oh my God," she said. "Would you like to come answer the phone?"

Ms. Pierre said, "The biggest majority of them (the breaks) have been indoors — in the garage." Thin, copper "icemaker" lines leading into garages for washing machines and freezers had been bursting.

However, she said, "beand new houses, old houses, medium-sized houses — all of them" were experiencing the broken lines. "On Raymond, Parklane, Louisiana, Cotton flat Road, Midkiff, Camarie, Scharbauer Drive — just all over town people have been calling," Ms. Pierre said.

"It's been a full day," she said, adding some residents had to be turned down.

Red Parson said, "Altogether there's been about 14 — just for me. Most of them have been in the walls and up in the attic and in the garage."

However, Sandy Rodriguez of Bill's Plumbing said that his business had received "not that many — maybe three or four." Mostly, she said, "people have been calling to find out what to do about frozen pipes. Most of the time, they can't do anything but wait until they burst."

Kay Williams of C&A Plumbing said, "We've had a lot of calls today. We've had them both indoors and out." Some, she said, were "in the attic leaking from the ceiling."

"Some are newer homes," Ms. Williams said. "Some are out in the country. Just all kinds of homes." She said the business usually got calls after a freeze about broken pipes — and they expected many more Wednesday evening after workers ar-

44 deaths attributed to winter's worst storm

By The Associated Press

Winter's worst storm was blamed for the crash of a corporate jet in Westchester County, N.Y., that killed seven people, as deadly winds howled across the nation and freezing rains turned snow-covered areas into giant ice slicks today. The storm's death toll climbed to 44.

Tornadoes churned through the South with winds strong enough to lift a 59-year-old North Carolina man from his mobile home, toss him 35 feet through the air head-over-heels and hang him in a Chinaberry tree by his feet. He was not seriously hurt.

Five people froze to death in Iowa, Oklahoma, Colorado and Idaho. Tornadoes ravaged the Carolinas and Texas, leaving at least five dead. Traffic fatalities and weather-related heart attacks claimed lives in several other states.

Thunderstorms charged out of the Great Lakes on Wednesday after slinging more snow on the frozen Midwest.

Heavy rains pounded New England, Florida and North Carolina.

The mercury see-sawed as a burst of tropical air broke heat records for the day in some areas only to be followed by biting cold.

Ken Olivenbaum, a meteorologist at the National Weather Corp. in Terborbo, N.J., said the weather smorgasbord was caused by two storm systems over the upper Great Lakes and the mid-Atlantic states and a cold front sandwiched between them.

In White Plains, N.Y., a Lockheed jetstar crashed and burned during foggy weather Wednesday night near the Westchester County Airport. Authorities blamed the crash on the poor weather and low visibility.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Mild weather is expected for most of the southern tier in the forecast period, today until Friday morning. Rain is forecast for the Pacific Northwest coastal areas. Most of the nation is expected to be cool. (AP Laserphoto Map)

The weather elsewhere

Table showing weather forecasts for various cities across Texas and the Southwest, including High, Low, and Precipitation (Hi Lo Pre) for Thursday and Friday.

Friday will bring warmer weather

The bitterly cold temperatures of Wednesday will all but be forgotten by the time Friday gets here, at least if the weatherman's forecast is accurate.

The forecast from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for warmer temperatures Friday with a high in the lower 60s. That will almost seem like summer after Wednesday morning's record low of 10 degrees. Tonight's low is expected to fall to the upper 20s.

Wednesday's high temperature was only 41 degrees, less than half the record high for the date of 85 set in 1962. This morning's low of 25 also missed the record of 14 set in 1963.

Winds should be variable tonight, 5-10 mph.

There has been no precipitation recorded in the last 24 hours, but the long-range forecast is calling for a chance of showers or thunderstorms by Sunday with highs in the 50s.

DPS looking for a few new troopers

The Department of Public Safety is looking for a few good people to become state troopers.

Lt. Jimmy Rhoads of the Midland DPS announced Wednesday that written and physical tests are being given each Thursday at 8 a.m. for the position of State Trooper in either the patrol, drivers license, license and weight, or motor vehicle inspection divisions.

Applicants must be 20-35 years old, having weight within 2.3 pounds per inch of height for males, or 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 pounds per inch for females. Vision must be a maximum of 20/200 uncorrected, corrected to 20/30, and education requirements are a minimum of 60 semester hours of college credit.

Driver hospitalized after truck fire

A 23-year-old truck driver was hospitalized at Midland Memorial Hospital early today after the trailer of his Mayflower Moving Co. van caught fire about 2 a.m. at the Warfield Truck Stop on Interstate 80.

Thomas Jennings of Houston was in satisfactory condition this morning with second-degree burns to his hands. City firemen responded to the call and spent a half-hour extinguishing the blaze, which did heavy damage to moving pads and the front

Man sought in baby's murder seen, arrested in Big Spring

BIG SPRING — An alert waitress is credited with the capture of a Haltom City man wanted in connection with the murder of a baby in that city Wednesday.

Big Spring police identified the suspect as 23-year-old Douglas L. Ashby, who allegedly beat, burned, scalded, and ripped the hair out of an unidentified 21-month-old Haltom City child about noon Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Big Spring police department said they received teletype information on the suspect, who was believed hitchhiking toward portion of the trailer. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

In police activity during the past 24 hours, Bill Parton of 2401A W. Wall St. told officers a 400 pound hydraulic hammer valued at $5,000 was taken from his truck Tuesday while the vehicle was parked at Driggers Supply Co., 1300 W. Front St.

A gold ring with diamonds was reported taken at the downtown Hilton Hotel early this morning. Tom Inman, 610 W. Cuthbert, made the El Paso, and notified employees of the Rip Griffin Truck Stop to be on the lookout for the man.

Shortly after 7 a.m. today, a waitress spotted Ashby in the lobby of the truck stop, which is located on the western outskirts of Big Spring along Interstate 20, and called police. Sgt. Jimmy Wallace made the arrest without incident.

Ashby was being held in the Big Spring city jail this morning under $500,000 bond set earlier in Haltom City. Police said he was carrying a guitar at the time of his arrest.

Winter sets cold records across Texas

By The Associated Press Forecasters predicted a warming trend today that would bring relief from a two-day cold snap that was blamed for four deaths, set cold-weather records as far south as Victoria and forced utility companies to curtail natural gas deliveries statewide.

In Fort Worth, two men huddled around a kitchen gas range to seek relief from the cold died Wednesday when their small apartment caught fire from the open flame, city fire officials said.

In addition, two people were killed and about 15 injured as tornados raked the southern half of the state as the cold front began moving in Texas on Tuesday.

The cold also froze wellheads of Lone Star Gas Co., necessitating curtailment of gas delivery to several industrial customers, and froze the steam inside feeder pipes at electric power plants, shutting some of them down automatically, utility company officials said Wednesday.

The strong Arctic front, which barged into the state late Tuesday, dropped temperatures as much as 30 degrees in six hours, winds gusted up to 45 mph, and the wind chill factor fell to 25-degrees below zero in several parts of North Texas.

The strong winds also knocked down power lines in San Antonio, Arlington and Fort Worth.

Overnight lows ranged from 7 below zero at Amarillo to the upper 30s in far South Texas and low-temperature records fell all across the state, the oldest at San Antonio where Wednesday morning's low of 17 broke the mark of 20 degrees set in 1899.

Other records were noted in Dallas-Fort Worth, San Angelo and Midland, with 10 degrees; Wichita Falls and Waco, 12 degrees; Austin, 17 degrees, and Victoria, Beaumont-Port Arthur and Del Rio, 20 degrees.

However, the bitter cold did not reach the Rio Grande Valley citrus crop, said Lee Whitlock of Texas Citrus Mutual in Harlingen.

In terms of severity, however, Barrett said he felt neither of the recent large hotel fires was the worst. Harder ones to fight, he said, include blazes in recent years at the Stardust, the Flamingo and the Sahara, which caused some nine buildings to ignite.

Born and raised in Midland, Barrett graduated from Midland High School in 1958. He worked as a firefighter here for five years before moving to Las Vegas in 1965.

In Las Vegas, he helped organize a paramedics training facility while he was an accredited EMT in 1969. Later he became the first paramedic in the state in 1974.

And Mrs. David Griffin of 2403 Meta Place told officers an $81 battery was removed from a 1980 Ford Escort parked at her residence Sunday.

In other fire activity, firemen reported heavy damage to a 1975 Chevrolet Suburban owned by J.C. Bevis after a butane line on the vehicle broke and the vehicle caught fire at 504 Beckley shortly before 11 a.m. Wednesday.

Firemen also extinguished grass fires in the 1600 block of Butternut and the 1400 block of South Main. Both occurred about noon Wednesday and are believed to have been set.

Texas Wednesday caught many residents off guard, causing broken pipes and some power shortages. (AP Laserphoto)

Injury-to-a-child trial declared mistrial, with deadlocked jury

By ED TODD Staff Writer

The 20-year-old Midland father of a two-month-old boy who died after his father allegedly "shook" the infant in an effort to silence his crying last Aug. 15 got no relief late Wednesday afternoon after a six-man, six-woman jury deadlocked after more than six hours of deliberation.

And Judge Pat M. Baskin, who was presiding over the case in 142nd State District Court, declared a mistrial in the injury-to-a-child case. The case was Baskin's first criminal jury trial since he succeeded retired Judge Perry D. Pickett in early January.

The jury reportedly was deadlocked 9-to-3 for conviction.

The defendant, Willie Van Johnson of 602 S. Webster St., could be tried again for injury to his child, Willie Lee Johnson, who was born June 20, 1980.

But Edward T. Garza, who, along with Gayle Newman, was co-defense counsel in the case, indicated that they would not seek a new trial for their client. Instead, he said he would plea bargain with District Attorney Vern Martin and try to get a probated sentence for Johnson, who is a porter for a Midland new-car dealership.

"THAT'S LIFE," Garza said in shrugging off the hung jury's deadlock.

David Joers, the DA's first assistant prosecutor, declined to comment on the outcome of the two-day trial in which the state put on five witnesses. The defense presented none.

However, reports suggested that Johnson today will plead guilty to the offense and will be given a 10-year probated sentence and fined $500. The district attorney reportedly would not reduce the proposed 10-year probated sentence to the maximum penalty for the third-degree felony offense.

Garza, in arguing for his client's innocence, read two statements purportedly made to police by Johnson. One was taken by Midland Patrolman Gary Grown on Aug. 16, the day the child died in Odessa's Medical Center Hospital, and the second one was taken three days later by Detective Sgt. Jerry Compton. The father was indicted on the following day, Aug. 20.

"I TRIED for about 15 minutes to get the baby to stop crying," Garza said in quoting Johnson in one of the statements. "I might by accident have hurt the baby...I would not hurt the baby on purpose."

Garza said that Johnson was looking after the child, while his 16-year-old wife and the child's mother, Pam, was in church on that Friday night last August.

Chiles proposes Social Security system overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., announced today he will introduce legislation to overhaul the nation's Social Security system in hopes of keeping it afloat during the 21st century.

"If we sit on our hands now, the whole system will go broke next century when the post-World War II baby boom retires," Chiles said at a news conference.

Chiles said his proposals would allow the current payroll tax rate to drop from 6.65 percent to 6 percent next year. By 1983, the rate would fall to 5.79 percent, he said.

"If we can reduce unemployment and inflation, we can increase the funds coming into Social Security and reduce the amount going out," Chiles said.

Shortage eased on fuel supply

The fuel consumption curtailment issued by TESCO during the cold snap eased up about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, according to TESCO representative Shug Bowlin.

Because suppliers cut back on the area's gas for energy production, TESCO had asked customers to cut back on their consumption and to stop using non-essential items requiring energy.

Once temperatures warmed somewhat and consumption for heating dropped across the state, the supply was restored at normal levels.

"The problems with fuel supplies and generation have been alleviated, and we now feel we can provide an adequate supply of electricity to meet customers' normal needs," TESCO President Bill Marquardt said today.

"We are extremely grateful for the cooperation of our customers during the emergency situation," he said. "Their response was of considerable help in enabling us to meet load requirements."

Marquardt also expressed appreciation to the news media which were very effective getting the message to the public.

"Without the media's help we could not have reached our customers as quickly as we did," he said.

rived home to thawing, broken pipes.

Mary Greer of Greer's Plumbing said, "We sure have" had a lot of calls, estimating them at "maybe 100 or more."

"We've turned down jobs," Mrs. Greer said. "We told them to call the Water Department to have the water turned off until someone could get to them. One guy hasn't even come in to have lunch (after 4 p.m.)," she said.

She said she felt there was an equal number of calls from persons with breaks indoors as with outdoor breaks. "It kind of depends on where the wind blows," she said, adding that places "with the wind break faster."

"It's been a while since we've had this many calls after a freeze."

"Willie does not have anything to hide," Garza told the jury. "Willie's not a criminal; criminals don't give statements, ladies and gentlemen."

Garza again turned to the statements, which essentially agreed. "The only time when I could have hurt him is when I shook him," Garza again said in quoting from Johnson's statements.

Testimony by Odessa pathologist Dr. Richard Cohen indicated that the child, who suffered a broken collar bone, died of a sub-dural hematoma — a blood clot on the brain.

Medical reports reflected that the child, first taken by ambulance to Midland Memorial Hospital and later transferred to the Odessa hospital, initially suffered from "respiratory distress."

In the Odessa hospital, Dr. Ronald Manicom, a neurosurgeon, performed a craniotomy on the child in a vain effort to save his life.

And the state had planned to put the neurosurgeon on the witness stand, but Manicom, who was not subpoenaed to testify, did not report to the court after Joers had requested him to do so.

And Garza said the lack of Manicom's testimony was a weak link in the "chain" to connect the father's shaking of the son to the fatal injury.

THE DEFENSE attorney said the state did not prove its case. "He (Manicom) did not testify," Garza observed, and the lack of that testimony was the missing link to connect the "cause" to the "effect."

"This is a circumstantial evidence case," the defense counsel said. He posed other possibilities that may have resulted in injury to the child. One was: "Could the baby have accidentally fallen off the bed?" Garza asked.

"They (the prosecution) are asking you to convict one of your fellow citizens on speculation," said Garza. He asked the jurors not to do that.

In replying to Garza's line of reasoning, Joers said that "It's sort of ridiculous to think that the (shaking) had nothing to do with the child's death."

Stabbing haunts papal visit

Artist's assassination attempt recalled

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — He wrote bitter poetry and his paintings were grotesque. Putting on the robe of a priest, he slipped into the Manila airport, strode toward Pope Paul VI, and stabbed and wounded him with a dagger.

Ten years later, the figure of Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza looms like a shadow over Filipino officials preparing to welcome another pope.

"We're considering everybody as a potential Benjamin Mendoza," says a high security official assigned to protect Pope John Paul II when the pontiff flies into Manila this coming Tuesday for a five-day visit.

When the pope rides in public it will be on a carriage raised to enable the people to see but not touch him. Even clergymen without official invitations will be barred from John Paul's presence.

For it was in the guise of a clergyman, a crucifix in hand, that Mendoza staged on Nov. 27, 1970, the first attempt on the life of a pope in modern times. As Mendoza swung the 13-inch blade twice, somebody punched his hand, throwing him off balance. Then police overpowered him.

Pope Paul VI, on the first visit of a pope to Asia, looked unscathed. It was only in 1979, after he had died, that the Vatican disclosed the pope was wounded in the chest.

Convicted of attempted murder, Mendoza served 38 months in a Philippine prison before he was deported to Bolivia in 1974. He has since resumed his wanderings around the world, still trying to sell his dark, moody paintings, friends say.

The dagger he bought in a Moslem souvenir store is now in Rome. Bolivia's consul general in Manila, Ruben Ramirez, says he sent it to the late pope as a gift "because he wanted to keep it."

"A loner nobody knew until he tried to kill Paul VI, Mendoza has apparently slipped back into anonymity since his much-publicized trial.

"Trying to kill a pope was a disaster for him and his career," Mendoza's Filipino friend, journalist Alejandro Roces, said. "When people hear of him, they get curious and see his paintings but they don't buy them. He is known more as the man who tried to kill a pope. That's the tragedy of his life."

To Roces, Mendoza is an "original," a powerful surrealist painter whose canvases are haunted by violent themes and earthy, sexual symbols.

One watercolor, titled "Vietnam," shows a disemboweled man hanging upside down on a cross, his neck speared by a bayonet.

Tried in a tower-like courtroom, Mendoza pleaded innocent, saying he only wanted to kill the pope "symbolically, to save the world from superstition."

To Mendoza, religion was witchcraft, and God a child of fear.

Disavowing his lawyer's plea of insanity, Mendoza in court was a colorful figure. He grinned, laughed, frowned, or dozed.

On the witness stand, he appeared in an army trench coat covered with slogans assailing then-President Richard M. Nixon, poverty and war. Once he brought in a small coffin to symbolize the pope's "death."

He distributed nylon panties to women stenographers. When the judge refused to dismiss his case, he went out of the courthouse and set fire to a Bible.

Many religions represented

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the broadest religious gatherings in American history, including Hare Krishnas and "Moonies" as well as Christians and Jews, is hearing speaker after speaker detail growing government intrusion into church affairs.

Some recent instances of it threaten "the silencing of social and political criticism by religious bodies," said Kansas City attorney John E. Stumbo, a United Methodist representative.

He told how an agency of his denomination, under IRS warnings that the church might lose tax-exempt status, dropped out of a coalition working for gun-control legislation.

The Rev. James E. Wood, a Baptist church-state expert at Baylor University, said growing government intervention in religious operations "constitutes a mounting crisis in American church-state relations."

It is a "serious threat to the prophetic role of religion and to the constitutional guarantee of the free exercise of religion," he said.

The three-day conference, which opened in suburban Chevy Chase, Md., Wednesday night, is sponsored by Christian and Jewish organizations embracing about 110 million members from 90 percent of American religious affiliations.

They included mainline as well as smaller conservative denominations, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox.

Such controversial groups as Hare Krishnas, Scientologists and Sung Myung Moon's Unification Church also were present because "the least acceptable groups are the most vulnerable victims of government intervention," said conference chairman William P. Thompson.

Thompson, chief executive of the United Presbyterian Church and a lawyer himself, said the meeting probably was the most inclusive religiously in the nation's history.

In any case, the breadth of sponsorship rivaled the religious partnerships formed in the civil rights struggles of the early 1960s.

Backers included the National Association of Evangelicals, made up of conservative groups, the mainline Protestant-Eastern Orthodox denominations of the National Council of Churches, the U.S. Catholic Conference, Southern Baptists and the Synagogue Council of America embracing all three wings of Judaism.

Thompson said the Reagan administration was invited to send a closing speaker but declined because it was still new at the job.

Listing 17 recent examples of intervention by government agencies and courts in religious matters, Thompson said the "pattern they form together is an alarming one."

Garwood testimony continues

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys were calling their third and final witness, a psychiatrist, today in an effort to win a lenient sentence for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, convicted of collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam.

Chief defense attorney John C. Lowe said Wednesday he would call David Hubbard, an Austin, Texas, psychiatrist, during the second day of testimony in the sentencing phase of Garwood's court-martial.

Lowe described Hubbard as "a State Department trouble-shooter who has a lot of experience with hostages."

During Wednesday's proceedings, there was no ruling from Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge in the case, on a defense motion for a mistrial. Lowe asked for the mistrial Monday on grounds of judicial misconduct, charging Switzer with making improper comments to reporters during the 12-week court-martial.

In an interview Wednesday, Switzer declined to say when he would rule on that motion.

Garwood was convicted last week of five counts of collaboration with the enemy during two of his 14 years as a prisoner in Vietnam. That conviction carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment at hard labor.

He was also convicted of assault on a fellow prisoner of war, which carries a maximum term of six months.

Garwood's attorneys did not dispute testimony from former POWs who said Garwood served as an interpreter, indoctrinator and informant on American prisoners. But the defense argued that Garwood, a 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared near Da Nang in 1965, was driven insane by his captors and did not understand the criminality of his acts.

During the sentencing phase of the trial, the defense is presenting testimony aimed at winning a light sentence, or no sentence at all, from the jury of five Marine officers, all Vietnam veterans.

The jury has the power to reverse its verdict up to the time of sentencing.

The prosecution has said it would call no witnesses during the sentencing phase.

The defense called just two witnesses on Wednesday: a widow who said she loves Garwood, and her 10-year-old son, who called the 34-year-old Marine "a very good friend."

Garwood, who returned to the United States in 1979, lives in the home of Donna Long, 37, the widow of an ex-Marine. She told the jury Wednesday that Garwood is a "quiet, gentle man."

Rebuilding the system

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger made some good points not long ago when he leveled a verbal blast at this nation's justice system, its schools and its prisons for helping to make us all "hostages" to crime.

He's right; there's plenty of room for blame in the increase of crime in American society. Even the Supreme Court which Justice Burger presides over cannot escape some of the blame for contradictory rulings that have undermined and confused the actions of lower courts.

To correct the misconceptions of our past years of liberalism will not be easy. We have to get our priorities back in order; we have to reaffirm our conviction that our love for freedom does not diminish our resolve to protect society from those who cannot safely coexist with us.

In our zeal to provide criminals the greatest possible degree of humanity, we seem to have gone overboard — we seem to have forgotten the other half of the crime picture, the victims. We seem to have forgotten the purpose of punishment. True, the courts should punish criminals for crimes against society. But they also should remember that oftentimes the victims of crime and their families suffer long after the verdict is returned. Remembering the victims of crime isn't enough by itself. Our society must fight the spread of crime by teaching integrity, morality and personal accountability in our schools.

And, as Justice Burger noted, we must bring the rehabilitative system back to life in our prisons. We must tear down the system under which a prisoner spends his prison time challenging his imprisonment and replace it with mandatory vocational and educational programs.

"Like it or not," Justice Burger said in his address before the American Bar Association, "today we are approaching the status of an impotent society — whose capability of maintaining elementary security on the streets, in the schools and in the homes of our people is in doubt."

Reversing the trend will not be easy, but nothing of value ever is. Putting things back into perspective, giving justice back to the victims of crime, handing out tough sentences to criminals, rehabilitating the criminals who can be rehabilitated and teaching the virtues of honesty and integrity in our schools will help to put us back on the correct path.

Rebuilding the system correctly is important to us all because crime affects each of us.

Land of form-fillers

If President Reagan has said it once he has said it a hundred times. He wants to get the government off our backs.

American backs have been bent so long under the burdens of government rules and regulations it is hard to know where to begin. One of the targets surely ought to be the mountains of paperwork that cost billions of dollars and thousands of man-years of work.

The United States has become a land of form-fillers. Filling out federal forms has become a great, and expensive, American pastime.

Here are a few statistics that will tell you just how mountainous and costly that pastime is:

- In 1981 alone, Americans will fill out 5,000 federal forms.
- The exercise will take more than a billion hours.
- In terms of dollars, officials say the cost will be at least 10 billion.

In terms of time, it is estimated that the year's form-filling activity will consume 114,286 man-years of work.

Some forms are necessary but we doubt very much that we need to spend all those billions of dollars and hours on them. Lightening the paper load is an idea worth considering by anyone who wants to get the government off our backs.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter ignored solicited advice on hostages

WASHINGTON — To help get the hostages back from Iran, the Carter administration called upon Herb Cohen, an internationally respected lawyer, whose specialty is negotiating. He not only told Jimmy Carter's people what they were doing wrong — while they were doing it — but he predicted the release of the hostages almost to the exact hour.

There was only one problem: The Carter strategists paid no attention to him. They sought his expert views, then excluded him from their deliberations. Not until Ronald Reagan's advisers consulted Cohen, ironically, did anyone listen to him.

He submitted his conclusions in writing to Reagan's campaign manager, William Casey, on Oct. 25 — 10 days before the election. "Khomeini and his mullahs know that they are selling to an anxious buyer," advised Cohen. "Therefore, the maximum price that they can extract from this administration will be just prior to the election ..."

"To put it bluntly, any experienced negotiator or bazaar vendor knows that on Nov. 5 the Iranians will have to put their 'illegally obtained merchandise' on sale at a cut-rate price."

Although the anxious Carter might be willing to pay the maximum price, Cohen predicted, there wouldn't be time to cut a deal before Election Day. The release of the hostages would come too late, therefore, to bail out Carter. "And so, it is probable that Gov. Reagan will be the President-elect on Nov. 5," wrote Cohen.

With Reagan the winner, this would put Carter "in an excellent position to negotiate a palatable agreement" before the transfer of power. "If by word or deed the President-elect and his spokesmen make clear that there will be a radical departure from the existing policies with respect to government-sponsored terrorism," Cohen advised, "the Iranians will view Inauguration Day as their final deadline."

"As a result, they will select the option of dealing with Carter, the Satan known, rather than Reagan, the Satan unknown." Cohen added prophetically: "There is a negotiating truism that most concession behavior and all settlements will occur at the deadline."

Reagan issued statements calculated to exploit the Iranian apprehension about him. Cohen correctly calculated that the statements would impress the Iranians because, he wrote, they saw Reagan as "a person who means what he says." Thus Reagan responded as Cohen recommended, and the Iranians reacted as Cohen predicted — on the exact deadline he had foreseen.

From the beginning, Cohen studied the Koran for clues to Ayatollah Khomeini's behavior. He also brought to the hostage crisis his experience in dealing with other hostages, as a consultant to the Justice Department and the FBI.

He advised Carter's people to abandon their "passive policy" and take

ART BUCHWALD

J.R. Ewing gives views on oil industry deregulation

WASHINGTON — The only people I know in the oil business are the Ewing family whom I watch on the hit TV show "Dallas" every Friday night. As soon as I heard the news that President Reagan had deregulated oil and was going to deregulate natural gas, I called J.R., the president of Ewing Oil, to congratulate him.

Art Buchwald

"I know I'm going to have to tighten my belt," I told J.R. "But I'm happy for you. This could mean millions of dollars for Ewing Oil."

"Let's say we won't have to apply for food stamps."

"Are you going to use the profits to drill for new oil?" I asked him.

"No, we're just going to start selling oil that we had capped until the deregulations went into effect. There was no sense selling it while the controls were on."

"I thought the idea of deregulating oil was to encourage new drilling so we would become independent of overseas imports."

"That might have been the idea, but we don't want to glut the market or the price of oil will come down. We can't have that."

"I should hope not," I said. "How much do you think it's going to cost us at the pump?"

"Maybe 10 or 20 cents a gallon more. I have to talk it over with the boys at the Petroleum Club. We don't want to get into a price war or we'll cut each other's throats."

"Americans would hate to see you people do that," I said. "Do you think the deregulations will encourage more people to look for oil?" "It's hard to say. Daddy is going into real estate, and my brother Bobby wants to invest in solar energy. I need money to keep all the women I've been chasing happy. So I don't know how much we'll have left for drilling."

"You'll have plenty. We've been paying through the nose for oil ever since they deregulated it. You should see our fuel bills here in the East."

"The Ewing family is aware of the burden the average person is facing. We talked about it last night at dinner."

"What conclusion did you come to?"

"It was none of our business." "I guess with natural gas deregulation you people will really make a potful of money."

"It will help get us through the winter," J.R. said. "But don't forget President Reagan said our 1960 dollar is only worth 36 cents now, so Ewing Oil can't just sit back and rake in the money. We have to think of what we're going to do about inflation."

"Have you come up with any good ideas?"

"We're going to live within our means."

"You're not going to give up your helicopter, are you?"

"No, we don't have to do that. But I told my brother Bobby he can only have one Mercedes Benz at a time."

"I'll bet he didn't like it."

"Well, as President Reagan said on television, you don't tell a kid you don't have any money — you just cut his allowance."

"What I don't understand, J.R., is that if you people can charge anything you want for oil and gas, how is that going to cure inflation?"

"It will cause people to conserve and that should bring the cost of fuel down because it will make the marketplace more competitive."

"But that would be terrible for you. What will you do then?" I asked him.

"We'll just put caps on our wells until the price goes up again."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1981. There are 322 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 12, 1912, China became a republic when the Manchu dynasty was overthrown by forces led by Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

On this date: In 1733, English colonists led by James Oglethorpe landed at Savannah, Ga.

In 1809, Abraham Lincoln was born in what was then Hardin County, Ky.

In 1914, ground was broken for the Lincoln memorial in Washington.

And in 1974, Soviet Nobel Prize-winner Alexander Solzhenitsyn was arrested at his Moscow apartment.

Ten years ago: Eight U.S. helicopters were shot down on missions over Laos.

Five years ago: The head of the National Institute on Drug Abuse said marijuana posed less of a health threat than alcohol and tobacco.

HEMISPHERE REPORT

White can't be blamed for the trouble in El Salvador

All the mess in El Salvador should not be blamed on former Ambassador Robert White.

Trouble started in the turbulent little Central American republic long before he was accredited there as U.S. ambassador in March 1980.

The agrarian reform program, nationalization of the banks and foreign trade were decreed by the governing junta by the time White took over the fortresslike embassy.

However, White and the embassy staff were enthusiastic in their support of what is generally considered the most radical land reform program imposed on a Latin American country since the Marxists took over Cuba in 1959.

The plan, which has permitted the confiscation of some of the best privately owned farms and ranches, was drawn up by U.S. experts, under U.S. government auspices.

Agrarian reform in El Salvador has been widely, though erroneously, described as giving lands formerly held by absentee landlords to the landless peasants.

In actual fact, the 263 valuable farms of more than 500 hectares (about 1,250 acres) that were taken over starting in March 1980 were assigned to cooperatives, rather than parceled out to individual peasants.

Of course, in the cases of many producing properties it makes economic sense to go on operating them as units, as they were before. But as the cooperatives are, for all practical purposes, government agencies, it does mean that the estimated 386,000 persons who "benefited" from the first stage of the Salvadoran agrarian reform program just changed bosses, and did not get their own plot of land from the program.

Interestingly, The New York Times also has reported that the tenant farmers who were allowed to take over the properties they were working, have not received titles to their lands, and that the former owners of the affected farms that were taken over at the start have not been paid in whole or part, either.

Needless to say, Ambassador White quickly earned the enmity of right-wing Salvadoran landowners who, having read the U.S.-authored agrarian law, knew from the start that it was confiscatory and was being misrepresented to newspaper readers abroad.

White drew down the criticism of the leftists early on for stealing their thunder by his support of agrarian reform and nationalization, and turned them livid by reporting that Marxists who are running Nicaragua were supplying men and equipment to Salvadoran guerrillas. From that followed the U.S. announcement, in the last days of the Carter administration, that it was going to supply the Salvadoran junta with some military equipment.

The ambassador definitely sealed his political fate with his public protest of press reports that his leftist sympathies had earned him high priority on the Reagan administration "hit list."

In any case, White was ambassador in El Salvador at a time when that country and its people were coming under increasingly harsh attack by the Marxists. Because White made it seem that he was playing a very important role in the conduct of Salvadoran government affairs, he earned the United States undue criticism.

Militarily, it seems, the Marxists and other opponents of the junta headed by President Jose Napoleon Duarte, were set back severely in the course of their January offensive.

But in the battle for people's minds, the propaganda campaign that the Marxists laid down over the last year and more has apparently convinced a number of prominent Americans, including Bella Abzug, William Sloan Coffin, Jane Fonda and others.

El Salvador has been made to appear one of the more savage countries in Latin America. There the archbishop is shot and killed as he celebrated mass. There U.S. Catholic missionaries are waylaid on the road from the airport and murdered. There U.S. agrarian reform experts are shot to death. There, too, from 9,000 to 10,000 or 12,000 Salvadorans lose their lives in political violence since former President Carlos Humberto Romeo was, bloodlessly, it should be noted, ousted in October 1979.

Somehow or other, the propagandists have managed to twist each and every one of those killings in such a way as to blame the United States, though neither the U.S. nor the Salvadoran governments stood to gain from the slaughter.

It is only in very recent weeks that dispatches from San Salvador have started reporting that the Marxist-led opposition obviously does not have the mass support that it claims or that has been claimed for it.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Intelligence reports warn that the Kremlin has lost patience with Poland and will send in troops. They are expected to cross the border, however, not as invaders but as "allies" on "maneuvers."

— Advisers have warned President Reagan to treat Egypt's mercurial President Anwar Sadat delicately. They believe Sadat is edgy and may make another dramatic move to distract Egyptians from their frustrations. On an impulse, he might even tear up the Israeli-Egyptian accords, the experts fear.

— Japanese-American relations may take a turn for the worse. The new trade troubleshooter, Bill Brock, has already threatened to play "hardball" with the Japanese unless they curb automobile exports to the United States. But Nippon Steel has offered an olive branch. Reports a confidential memo, prepared for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.: "Nippon Steel of Japan will be helping Armco in Houston to improve its blast furnaces and steel plate production."

CHICAGO (AP) — Former independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson announced Thursday that he will become a regular commentator for WLS-TV news, the ABC-owned television station in Chicago.

Anderson, a former Republican congressman from Rockford, told a news conference that he signed a two-year contract Wednesday night to do three commentaries a week and to act as a "special correspondent" in producing documentaries on matters of national and international significance.

Anderson would not say how much he will be paid under the contract.

"Up until Jan. 3, I was bound under federal ethics laws to make full financial disclosure and everyone knew my salary," he said. "I am now a private citizen and therefore enjoy the luxury of saying that (his salary) is a matter between me and the station."

Anderson said station officials contacted him about two months ago about the possibility of becoming a commentator for WLS. He said he received no other such offers and did not contact any other news organizations about possible employment.

Poisonings linked to marijuana

STEUENVILLE, Ohio (AP) — An outbreak of salmonella poisoning, normally associated with food or water, has been traced to use of marijuana, a health official says.

Dr. David Taylor who came here from the national Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta to investigate the outbreak, said it's the first time he has ever linked salmonella to marijuana.

At least 37 cases of the ailment have been reported in Jefferson County since Dec. 12. There have been no deaths, but about half those infected were hospitalized for treatment, according to health officials.

Symptoms of salmonella are diarrhea, nausea and abdominal pains.

Only three marijuana samples tested in the investigation were contaminated with salmonella, identified as type 2-C Muenchen, Taylor said. But because all three carried the same type, that suggested marijuana is the probable source of infection, he said.

Taylor asked the public to submit samples of the illegal drug for testing, in confidence, to the county health department or a county center for alcoholism and drug abuse. Those turning in samples can check later for results.

Police tentatively have agreed to take no legal action against sample owners so the source of infection can be traced, Taylor said.

Evidence that marijuana was the carrier did not necessarily mean all victims used the drug, Taylor said.

Balloonists preparing for liftoff

By MAGDA EL-SANGA Associated Press Writer

LUXOR, Egypt (AP) — Two American adventurers made last-minute preparations for a 10 a.m. — 3 a.m. EST — liftoff Thursday in their attempt to make the first non-stop balloon flight around the world.

"It's satisfactory," Maxie L. Anderson told The Associated Press, referring to shifting wind conditions that had threatened to carry him and partner Donald H. Ida dangerously close to Iranian air space.

The winds began shifting earlier this week so that forecasters said by Thursday morning the balloon would safely pass south of Iran as it begins its circle of the globe.

"We thought this window would be open longer, but now it looks like it will be there only 28 hours, until tomorrow morning," Anderson said. "We decided to go ahead."

Anderson said he and Ida expected to reach their altitude of 30,000 feet in three hours. The beginning of the trip would be slow because winds are light, he said.

They should be over Saudi Arabia 25 hours after launch, Anderson said.

Bob Rice, in charge of the balloon's weather and tracking crew, had said earlier there was "better than a 50 percent" chance the expedition could begin after dawn Thursday. He also said, however, that the winds were shifting slowly.

"We need protection to verify we will miss Iran and miss the Himalayas," said Rice, reached by telephone at a private weather-forecasting center near Boston.

The balloon is named the Jules Verne, in honor of the 19th century French novelist who wrote the tale of Phileas Fogg's 80-day trip around the world.

The launch of the 20-story-high balloon has been delayed three times. When the weather high above this ancient Egyptian city was not a problem, then politics fouled things.

Anderson became the first to cross the Atlantic Ocean by balloon when he piloted the Double Eagle II from Canada to France in 1978.

The new flight, if successful, would take from eight to 10 days of drifting through the world's bitter-cold skies at maximum altitudes of about 30,000 feet.

The path of the Jules Verne would carry the craft across Saudi Arabia and south of Iran, south of the Himalayan Mountains, which are the world's highest, across China and Japan and out into the wintry north Pacific.

The air currents would ferry the enclosed, but not pressurized, gondola just south of the Arctic Circle off the west coast of Alaska, then south across the United States, over the north Atlantic and on to Europe.

Rice said "the odds are reasonably good" that the Jules Verne will be able to target its landing back in Egypt, perhaps not far from its lift-off spot.

"The only way you can steer a balloon is to use the different wind sheers at different elevations. This crew can do that. They're experienced," Rice said.

Unmanned weather balloons often circumnavigate the globe, sometimes landing within a few miles of their launch sites, Rice said. Anderson is a mining-investment executive from Albuquerque, N.M. Ida operates tree nurseries near his home in Boulder, Colo.

Tower says torture won't stop funds

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, said today reports of torture in Turkish jails would not affect plans to offer $700 million in military and economic aid to Turkey.

"There are always people in this world who want to find something to create alarm and criticism when there has been the kind of significant political change there has been in this country," Tower said at a news conference. "These reports do not dampen our enthusiasm to be of help and assistance to Turkey."

Earlier today, Tower met with Turkish leader Gen. Kenan Evren and top members of the figurehead civilian government.

Tower, R-Texas, who is on a 10-country tour of the Middle East and Europe, described his discussions with the Turkish leadership as "frank, productive and very friendly."

He hinted that the Reagan administration might seek to increase aid to Turkey a level above the $400 million in military assistance and $300 million in economic aid proposed by former President Jimmy Carter for the coming fiscal year.

Tower's visit coincided with NATO military maneuvers in northeast Turkey.

The senator also said the Reagan administration understood the need for a military takeover last September and was satisfied that the generals who led the coup were committed to an early return to democracy.

Tower, who already has visited London, Naples and Greece, flies next to Tel Aviv. He also will visit Cairo, Saudia Arabia, Oman and Tunisia before concluding his tour in Bonn Feb. 19.

Pursuant to Article III, Section 1, 22, 23, and 28 of the City Charter; and Articles 1015, 1067, 1175 and 4348 of the Civil Statutes of Texas, the City Council by Ordinance No. 5179, adopted on the 8th day of February, 1977, established Title 4, Chapter 5 of the City Code of Midland, Texas which provides at 4-5.1, that:

(b) Any building in danger of falling and injuring the person or property of another; or

(c) Any building which is a fire menace to itself, by being in a dilapidated condition, as fully described in subsections (a) and (b) hereof, and which has an accumulation of rubbish and trash which is likely to become a fire, or be set on fire, and around said building and endanger the person or property of others; or

(d) Any building which is in the condition or conditions described in subsections (a) or (b) or (c) hereof, which is damp and in unsanitary condition, which is likely to create disease and sickness.

When used in this Chapter the term "Building" shall include any erection or structure of any part thereof.

The City Building Official has found that the above referred lots contain a building, structure or portions thereof which are dangerous or dilapidated as defined above and are in violation of 4-5.1 of the City Code, also noted above, are the defects attributable to each structure on each of said lots. The owners or occupants of said structure are hereby notified to commence repairs, improvements or demolition and removal of the building or structure or portions thereof within fifteen (15) days from the date of publication of the notice, and all such works shall be completed within ninety (90) days from date of notice unless otherwise stipulated by the building official. The said above referred structures, building or portions thereof are to be vacated forthwith and not occupied until the required repairs and improvements are completed, inspected, and approved by the building official. If the owner or occupant shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with the notice to repair, rehabilitate or demolish the Building Official may prosecute the said owner or occupant as a violator of this Chapter. In addition, the Building Official shall notify the City Council of the City of Midland of such fact and the City Council may or may not order such building or structure to be demolished or removed and may cause the cost of such work to be paid and levied as a special assessment against the property at a public hearing before the City Council.

Jews angered by new wave of violence

Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — For Fred Weinberger, who avoided Hitler's persecution by emigrating to the United States from Hungary, and his wife, Elaine, who bears the physical and mental scars of the Auschwitz death camp, the recent rash of swastikas and anti-Semitic slogans appearing in this city's Jewish community are more than graffiti.

"It shows hate is still being taught to young people, and that scares me and makes me angry at the same time," Weinberger, 64, said. "But we're not going to be prisoners in our own homes. Never again, and certainly not here."

Weinberger's anger is typical of many of the more than half million Jews who live in Los Angeles and have seen their homes, businesses, synagogues, cemeteries and Jewish centers hit by an epidemic of anti-Semitic attacks.

Since Dec. 7 there have been more than two dozen incidents in California according to David Lehrer, Western states counsel for the Anti-Defamation League (ADL) of B'nai B'rith.

During the first 11 months of 1980, California recorded 27 incidents — a 19 percent increase over 1979 — of anti-Semitic acts including arson, firebombings and vandalism.

Nationwide, reported anti-Semitic incidents in 1980 totaled 377 — a 192 percent increase over 1979, according to the ADL.

Jan. 20, handbills promising a neo-Nazi group would march through the Jewish community and threatening "death and destruction" if any of its members were assaulted were nailed to prominent places along the predominantly Jewish sections of Fairfax Avenue. Two nights later, anti-Semitic slogans were painted on a Fairfax-area synagogue and mortuary.

On Jan. 8, vandals painted swastikas and Nazi slogans on the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies. That happened three days after two young men — professing to be part of a new neo-Nazi group, wearing Nazi insignias and speaking German — visited the center.

The incidents have prompted Jewish community leaders to call for stronger laws and harsher penalties for persons caught vandal-ing or defacing any religious institution and for a greater public concern for the growing anti-Jewish incidents.

Others have threatened to take the law into their own hands in an effort to catch the vandals who, except in a few cases, generally have eluded police.

Some retaliation already has occurred against those suspected of being connected to or sympathetic with persons involved in the anti-Semitic incidents.

Officially, Jewish leaders said, there is no evidence of an organized conspiracy. They also said that with the exception of two professed members of the American Nazi Party (also known as the National Socialist American Workers Party) arrested in connection with the $100,000 arson fire at a Temple City synagogue Dec. 6, there is no evidence of any involvement by established anti-Jewish organiza-

Only one percent of Iranians sent home from school

By EVAN MAXWELL
The Los Angeles Times

Fifteen months of all-out effort by the Immigration and Naturalization Service resulted in the expulsion of only slightly more than 1 percent of the almost 61,000 Iranian students in the United States, federal officials say.

An immigration service spokeswoman said that 754 Iranian students have departed the country as a result of the special registration and verification crackdown ordered by the Carter administration after the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in November 1979.

Deportation hearings are still proceeding against another 3,008 Iranians, while 2,887 who were facing expulsion have applied for political asylum, postponing, at least for the moment, their departure, the official said.

The results indicate the unwieldiness of the immigration service as a political and diplomatic weapon, according to some critics of the crackdown.

"On a cost-effectiveness basis, it would have been a lot cheaper to send these kids to the university than it was to try and send them back to Iran," said David Carliner, a prominent Washington immigration attorney and chairman of the American Bar Association's immigration section.

"From what we have been able to gather, there were fewer Iranian students departing the U.S. in the last year than would have normally been the case," said Georgia Stewart, director of information of the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs.

But, added Carliner and others, the crackdown may have had the effect, perhaps unintended by the Carter administration, of defusing public outrage against Iranians during the height of the hostage crisis.

Immigration service figures show that as of Feb. 2, 60,941 Iranian students had been interviewed and had undergone verification of their academic status since the crackdown began on Nov. 11, 1979.

Of that number, 54,292 were found to be in compliance with the legal terms of their student visas. The remainder — 6,649 — were placed in deportation proceedings, which can take years to complete.

Nationwide, immigration service investigators are still seeking another 3,300 Iranian students, some of whom may have gone underground and others of whom may have departed the country without notifying the immigration service.

In Los Angeles, Phillip Smith, assistant district director in charge of investigations, said that "Los Angeles is the Iranian capital of the U.S."

with between 40 percent and 50 percent of all Iranian students in the country.

Iranian students became the target of considerable immigration service scrutiny after several hundred of them rioted outside the Beverly Hills, Calif., mansion of the late Shah's sister on Jan. 2, 1979.

And when some of the students took to U.S.

streets in support of the Teharn militants, the White House ordered the unprecedented and controversial special check, which pertained only to Iranians.

It was one of the largest attempts at internal control ever undertaken by the immigration service and was criticized by some as being reminiscent of the internment of the Japanese at the beginning of World War II.

Iranian student groups challenged the matter in court and won a preliminary injunction from a federal district judge in Washington which halted the registration. That injunction was voided by an appeals court, a ruling that was ratified by the Supreme Court last spring.

Officials of the national foreign student advisers' group said that despite early fears among students, the special registration proved little more than an inconvenience for students who were enrolled full-time.

"I personally know of no student who was forced to leave the country," said Eric Heiberg, director of the Georgetown University foreign student office.

"Lots of Iranians got nasty letters and there was a lot of paper being shuffled, but it was all an illustration of the fact that the system protects people pretty well."

term protects people pretty well."

An official at the University of Southern California said that Iranians, at the urging of school officials, have adopted a "low public profile." (Distributed by The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service)

WHO IS THIS WHO CASTS OUT DEMONS?

Once as Jesus was teaching in the synagogue, a man possessed by a demon began shouting at Him. "Go away! We want nothing to do with You, Jesus from Nazareth. You have come to destroy us. I know who You are—the Holy Son of God."

Jesus cut him short. "Be silent!" He told the demon. "Come out!" The demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched, and then left him without hurting him further.

Amazed, the people asked, "What is in this man's words that even demons obey Him?"

The story of what He had done spread like wildfire throughout the whole region.

After leaving the synagogue that day, He went to Simon's home where He found Simon's mother-in-law very sick with a high fever. "Please heal her," everyone begged.

Standing at her bedside He spoke to the fever, rebuking it, and immediately her temperature returned to normal and she got up and prepared a meal for them!

As the sun went down that evening, all the villagers who had any sick people in their home, no matter what their diseases were, brought them to Jesus; and the touch of His hand, healed every one!

Some were possessed by demons; and the demons came out at His command, shouting, "You are the Son of God." But because they knew he was the Christ, He stopped them and told them to be silent.

Early the next morning He went out into the desert. The crowds searched everywhere for Him and when they finally found Him they begged Him not to leave them, but to stay at Capernaum.

But He replied, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God in other places too, for that is why I was sent."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Education affects heart disease rate

Dear Dr. Solomon: In one of your columns, you mentioned that Americans have shown a decline in the rate of death from heart disease. Is there any apparent explanation for this? Also, do other countries show the same trend? — Seth

Dear Seth: The decline in the death rates from heart disease since the mid-1960s has coincided with reductions in such risk factors as cigarette smoking in men, and lower consumption of food products with a high fat content. In Europe, where these risk factors have not declined, neither have the heart disease death rates.

This trend highlights the fact that not every medical condition requires the use of drugs or some other specific procedure; sometimes all that is needed is public education and a determination by individuals to alter some of their personal habits.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been rather successful as a career woman, but now would like to start a family. A friend of mine who stopped working for the same reason when she was 35 underwent amniocentesis while she was pregnant, and learned that the fetus had Down syndrome. At age 33, what are my chances of having such a child? — Mrs. W.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: As you imply, the chances of having a child with Down syndrome increase with the age of the mother. This is particularly true after age 40. About one-fourth of all babies with Down syndrome are born to women over 35 years of age, even though these women account for only four percent of all pregnancies in the United States. Women under 30 years of age have less than one chance in 1,000 of having a child with Down syndrome. At age 35, the possibility increases to one chance in 400; at age 40, one in 100; at age 44, one in 35; and at age 48, one in 12.

Dear Dr. Solomon: The papers and radio and television have carried a number of stories about the use of cocaine by people in the public eye. In view of all this publicity, how can you convince an impressionable teen-ager that the drug can be harmful? Doesn't the medical profession have some responsibility in this regard? — Mr. J.J.K.

Dear Mr. K.: The medical profession has commented on the apparent recent increase in the use of cocaine, but their remarks do not seem to have received the publicity given to the use of the drug. Back in September, 1978, for example, the American College of Emergency Physicians issued a statement which read, in part: "The American College of Emergency Physicians, concerned over the sensational and irresponsible treatment given cocaine usage by the lay press, has issued a warning to potential users that cocaine is a highly dangerous drug...."

"The college warns that cocaine is medically dangerous and the public is urged to refrain from usage." That's a pretty clear statement, but one which some people obviously have chosen not to heed.

Study attempting to link cancer, radiation jobs

By JOE QUINLAN
 Associated Press Writer

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Trying to link cancer to jobs in the nuclear field by identifying victims of the disease among atomic workers is like looking for a needle in a haystack, a researcher says.

But with the use of computers, Dr. C.C. Lushbaugh, member of an Oak Ridge Associated Universities research group, and Dr. M.A. Ibrahim of the University of North Carolina are searching for that needle.

They are trying to detect effects of long-term, low-level exposure of radiation among 50,000 workers in 25 federal government atomic research facilities since the nuclear age began in World War II.

"If we didn't have computers, if we had to do this with a lead pencil and paper, we'd never get it done," Lushbaugh says. "Boxes to store the paper would fill three or four huge warehouses."

So far the study, which after several years of collecting data has produced records for about 40,000 workers, indicates very few were exposed to dangerous levels of radiation and most received less than 20 percent of annual exposure limits, Lushbaugh says.

"A majority of the people were exposed to little or none," he says. "Either our study isn't finding everybody who may have been affected or the danger isn't as bad as the prophets of doom say it is."

"Of course, one problem is that people hear somebody like me say this and they say, 'Well, you're paid to say that.' That means we just have to prove our findings."

Another Oak Ridge study dealing with people involved in nuclear accidents, he said, showed 300 workers received five times the annual limit and seven died.

The researchers' study starts in 1942 and many of the workers have left for the atomic field or retired, Lushbaugh said.

"Some of them are getting along fine," he said referring to people who were among the first workers. "You'd expect some of them would be dying from natural causes by now."

If the research reveals any deaths, scientists look for the causes. If people died from cancer or received treatment for cancer, researchers look for the cause of the disease.

"There's a lot of other toxic properties besides radiation," Lushbaugh said. "It's hard to tell the difference between leukemia caused by another toxin or radiation. We have to find out if the person was exposed more to one thing than another. We have to know if they smoke or drink. There's things outside the work place that could be just as hazardous."

The research is guided by statistics and metric measurements representing probabilities of exposure, chances of cancer caused by exposure and ratios relating other work conditions to health.

The study, which received $2.37 million in the fiscal year that began last October and ends in September, will last until scientists establish findings on all 500,000 workers on federal projects, Lushbaugh said.

Oak Ridge Associated Universities has 51 member universities and colleges and serves as a non-profit clearinghouse on nuclear research.

State to be reimbursed

HOUSTON (AP) — State auditors say the University of Houston may be reimbursed $537,000 to the state.

An audit report on the 1979 fiscal year said the university used that amount in state funds to pay utility bills for such auxiliary enterprises as a hotel, book store and printing plant.

New chemical process could disarm toxic waste 'bomb'

By ROBERT LOCKE
 AP Science Writer

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Many of the long-lived poisons that now fill toxic waste dumps could be changed into harmless and easily disposable substances through a new chemical process, a University of California chemist says.

The process detoxifies many petroleum-based compounds, from notorious pesticides such as DDT to common cleaning fluids, Donald Sawyer of the Riverside campus said Tuesday.

"When you flip a switch, it would convert these (hazardous) substances into what we believe to be virtually innocuous substances," he said in an interview.

"It could be a reasonably compact system: larger than a breadbox but smaller than a refrigerator," he said.

Molecules of carbon tetrachloride, a cleaning solvent that can cause liver damage and possibly cancer, are broken up and rearranged into "something that is the equivalent of baking soda," Sawyer said.

The university has applied for a patent on the process, which was reported in this month's issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society. The system was developed by Sawyer and co-worker Julian Roberts, now of the University of Redlands.

"It's not a panacea; it won't solve all the problems," Sawyer said.

"The range of toxic substances is huge and this is just one, very narrow class. But in terms of volume, it's a very important class and these are among the more challenging substances that are very difficult to degrade."

Sawyer said the process is relatively simple and "the raw materials are essentially atmospheric oxygen — plain old air — and electricity."

He said electricity sent through air contained in a water-free solution produces a type of oxygen, called superoxide, that carries a negative electrical charge. The superoxides are able to shatter the chemical bonds that hold certain toxic compounds together.

The big problem with many toxic wastes is that they remain dangerous for many years — centuries in some cases — and are difficult to destroy.

The most common and least expensive legal solution to the modern flood of toxic wastes is to bury them. But dumps for such chemicals are becoming increasingly controversial in the wake of reports that poisonous wastes have escaped the confines of some dumps and percolated into underground water.

Sawyer said his process won't work in the presence of water, so it couldn't be used to clean up contaminated ground water.

MAD proposal for stamp ads not made in jest

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 15 years ago, MAD magazine suggested satirically that advertisements be sold to postage stamps.

Now, a congressman is proposing the same thing — seriously this time — to raise money for the U.S. Postal Service and thereby delay or reduce future increases in the price of stamps.

Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr.'s proposal, called the Free Enterprise Postage Stamp Act, would allow domestic corporations to promote their logos on stamps.

Through a competitive bidding process, corporations would be allowed to buy space on the face of a postage stamp. The government would then sell the stamps to the public for the same prices as its other stamps.

Under the bill, there would be a one-year test program with 100 million stamps going on sale to 2,000 corporations at a minimum bid of $10,000. The Postal Service produces 6 billion stamps each year.

"If, upon the success of his idea, we expanded the program to all 6 billion stamps produced annually, a minimum of $1.2 billion could be raised," Goldwater, a California Republican, said.

A somewhat less serious concept was put forth in July 1966 by Alfred E. Neuman, the freckle-faced, "What Me Worry?" kid who is the star of MAD magazine. A three-page spread in the humor magazine showed stamps advertising rental cars and Burma Shave cream, as well as soap opera stamps with stories unfolding monthly.

Goldwater's aide, Stan Reid, said the congressmen didn't know of the MAD article when he first introduced the stamp ads legislation last November.

Al Felstein, MAD's editor, said this week the article created by Al Jaffee "was an idea we proposed tongue-in-cheek. Man of the satirical idea we propose become a reality."

"It was an amusing article," he said. "It was the kind of article our readers have come to expect. They are used to the absurd."

Asked if he thought the Goldwater proposal is absurd, Felstein chuckled and said, "Yes, I think it is absurd."

Goldwater's father, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., is sponsoring a similar bill in the Senate.

Under the elder Goldwater's bill, no more than 15 separate issues of special stamps could be printed in the test year and the combined total of stamps issued could not exceed 300 million.

The bill also provides that the minimum acceptable bid for a series would be 5 cents per stamp, or $130,000 for a minimum series of 2.6 million stamps. Goldwater said the minimum of 2.6 million is needed because the Postal Service considers that the break-even point at which the full printing costs can be recovered.

His son is pushing to have hearings on the legislation by the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee before April, when the new postal rate increases of up to five cents on first-class mail are expected to go into effect. It now costs a minimum of 15 cents to mail a letter first-class.

When Goldwater first proposed the bill in November, some serious stamp collectors reacted angrily. "I'd hate to see it," said Richard Sine, editor of "American Philatelist Monthly," a major periodical in the field. "It could make American philately a laughing stock."

U.S. judge imposes sentence, deadline

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas lobbyist James C. Day has been given until March 10 to surrender to U.S. marshals and begin serving a four-year prison term for a fraud scheme that falsely implicated fellow Texan John C. White, a former state agriculture commissioner.

The sentence was imposed by U.S. District Judge Richard Owen on Tuesday, following Day's guilty plea in November. Prosecutors said the scheme falsely involved White, then-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in an effort to get a $1-million payoff from Libya.

Day, 49, of Brookshire, Texas, admitted he falsely claimed that White would help him secure the release of eight embargoed military airplanes Libya was trying to get from the U.S. government.

In a separate matter, Day also made White the unwitting subject of an Abscam investigator who tried to bribe the former Texas agriculture commissioner, court records showed.

"I can't undo what I've done," Day told the judge. "The one thing I can do is apologize for it. I got in over my head — trying to make a dream come true — to become a super lobbyist."

But Owen was unsympathetic to defense claims that Day's scheme was "puffery."

"This is not puffery, this is just fraud on the highest level," the judge said.

Day, in his guilty plea, admitted to the scheme which involved getting $30,000 from "investors" to finance a deal that was supposed to collect a $1 million payoff from Libya. Object of the scheme, Day said he told investors, was to get a U.S. embargo lifted on Libya's order for the military planes.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Raymond Levites said Day did, as part of the conspiracy over 1978-79, induce White to meet with a Libyan diplomat.

White acknowledged the meeting, but denied discussing the planes or bribes.

Levites also said that Day had a confederate pose as White during a meeting with investors.

Kelso police department mounts 'pedal patrol'

KELSO, Wash. (AP) — The newest police patrols cruising this town of 12,000 have no sirens or flashing lights. But they do have something that can surprise even the coolest of criminals — two wheels.

When Police Chief Tony Stout was told to trim his budget, he figured he could save on squad-car costs by mounting his police on bicycles.

And although Stout had to lay off two Kelso patrolmen, he was able to pocket a third pink slip by starting the bicycle corps. Officers helped him save even more by using their own bikes.

In some ways, a cop on a bicycle is more effective than one in a squad car, officials say.

"Bikes really throw burglars," said Lt. Dan Price, who organized the patrols. "They can see a police car a block away by its silhouette. But even if they have sirens under their arms, the sight of a person on a bicycle doesn't intimidate them."

"You see things on a bike you can't from a car," said another two-wheeled officer, Chuck Dunnivant. "When you're driving, you have to pay more attention on the road."

Surprise, approval and a few catcalls were common responses to the bikes by local citizens, Stout said in an interview Tuesday. The bikes have been in use about two months on the force, which has 16 full-time officers and 13 reservists.

"Cycling cops may be new here, but it's really a throwback to the tradition of walking the beat," said Price. "It brings back what police departments had a long time ago with meeting people."

Generally, two officers are on bicycles each shift, riding for three or four hours in the evening — or long enough to numb the toes when temperatures drop into the 30s. One officer wears long underwear for his stint.

Cyclists say they have the advantage of being able to go where cars can't — like a cluster of retirement apartments or a frequently vandalized elementary school.

Stout said he expected to save $5,000 to $7,000 this year by using bicycles during the afternoon and evening hours. However, a police car is also on patrol while bicycling officers are on duty.

Officers have made no major arrests while astride bikes, he said, but they have crept up on some people who didn't expect an officer to be there.

"We don't have what you'd call major crime here," he said. "We have your occasional murder, but it's not your L.A. (Los Angeles). I would be hesitant to put anybody out in anything less than a tank down there."

Cornrow controversy ends

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Reporter Dorothy Reed returned to work Tuesday at KGO-TV wearing a modified cornrow hairstyle — a style that caused her to be suspended for two weeks.

After public protests and intervention by Ms. Reed's union, the ABC-owned station agreed to reinstate Ms. Reed, who is black and who charged racism was involved in the action.

Jim Osborn, general manager of the station, had said the braided style was "inappropriate" for an on-air reporter and that racism was not in-olved. "The station is happy Dorothy has returned to the job and is happy the situation has been resolved to the satisfaction of both parties," Osborn said Tuesday through a spokeswoman. The spokeswoman, Judith Rich, said a "compromise" had been reached. Ms. Reed's new style doesn't have colored beads interwoven into the ends of the braids.

Under the agreement reached by the station and the American Federation of Radio and Television Artists, Ms. Reed will receive back pay.

Stealth report politically charged

By FREDRIC U. DICKER
Hearst News Service

Washington — If Jimmy Carter was still president, the report this week by the investigations arm of the House Armed Services Committee on last summer's disclosure of the super-secret "Stealth" technology would be political dynamite.

infalible, and that the potential exists for politicians to use the country's most sensitive security secrets for their own personal gain.

It also raises anew the question of whether a nation which values freedom of the press like no other, must consider restricting that freedom when military secrets are involved.

The report, by the investigations subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee, was prompted by the disclosure last August of the existence of "Stealth" technology, a highly complicated electronics system designed to fool Russian radar and therefore "hide" the presence of approaching bombers and other aircraft.

The disclosures came in two ways. First, the Washington Post and Aviation Week magazine printed leaked accounts of the existence of the technology. And ABC television news broadcast its own story.

Two days after the broadcast, then Secretary of Defense Harold Brown held a press conference to discuss some details of Stealth, telling questioners that the news leaks made further secrecy unnecessary. The leaks themselves, he said, had not damaged the nation's security.

Brown's action prompted charges from Republican politicians that the Carter administration was trying to overcome a reputation for being insensitive to the nation's security by disclosing Stealth.

That's when U.S. Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, a conservative Democrat from Schenectady, N.Y., entered the picture.

Then the chairman of the investigations subcommittee (he now chairs the procurement subcommittee), Stratton was outraged that the Stealth program had been disclosed.

As the investigation proceeded, his outrage increased.

Investigators for the subcommittee found a message from General Richard H. Ellis, commander of the Strategic Air Command, to General Lew Allen, chief of staff of the Air Force, in which he concluded, in contradiction to Brown's later assurances, the following about the disclosure of Stealth.

"Today's Washington Post story on the possible development of an advanced technology (Stealth) bomber brought the hair up on the back of my neck. I don't have to tell addressees that giving the Soviets (censored number) years advanced warning of a new technology system they must counter is to sound the death knell of that system.

"As the current commander of the combatant command that would eventually operate such a system, I ask that you take immediate action at the necessary levels to discredit the story and otherwise defuse the situation."

Partly on the basis of that message, the report concluded that Brown released details on Stealth "to make the defense department and the administration look good in an election year...."

And the report says that the release was harmful to the nation's security.

"The release of this information was a serious mistake and did serious damage...to the security of the United States and our ability to deter or to contain a potential Soviet threat."

While Stratton and other members of the committee suspected the Carter administration was responsible for the original press leaks, they were unable to prove it.

What they found, however, was a security situation at the Department of Defense which would have made leaking information on Stealth or other top security programs relatively easy.

"The status of the machinery for protecting secrets in the Pentagon," says the report, "is in deplorable shape and desperately needs a total overhaul."

Indeed, at one point the

Reagan drops demand for probe into nun's deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a reversal of former President Carter's policy, the Reagan administration is dropping U.S. insistence on an investigation into the deaths of four churchwomen as a condition for giving economic and military aid to El Salvador.

The decision, disclosed Wednesday, reflects the new administration's policy of giving priority to security considerations over human rights questions in dealing with other nations.

State Department spokesman William Dyess said Wednesday the administration still wants the deaths to be investigated but "through private diplomatic channels."

But a colleague of some of the slain women, Sister Annette Mulrey of the Maryknoll Order of the Roman Catholic Church, said there had never been an adequate investigation into the murders last Dec. 2. Three of the women were nuns and two belonged to the order.

"I certainly think it is a strange thing when citizens of the United States ... are involved in difficulties in another country, even involving their death, and they (the U.S. government) have not done anything about it," she said.

"It does seem the government owes us something," she added in a telephone interview from Maryknoll, N.Y. She heads the social justice office of the religious order.

The four slain women were Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clarke, 46, both Maryknoll nuns; Dorothy Kazel, 40, a nun of the Ursulan order, and a lay worker, Jean Donovan, 27. All were involved in refugee assistance work in El Salvador. Three were shot in the head and one in the chest, and at least two apparently had been raped.

There have been no arrests, and State Department officials privately concede the investigation has not been done well or properly. Still, they say they must depend on the Salvadoran government.

Sister Mulrey's criticism was directed at the Carter administration, as much as the Reagan administration. Carter suspended economic and military aid to El Salvador after the slayings but resumed it before leaving office.

However, the Carter administration insisted on progress in the investigation as a condition for aid.

Dyess revealed Reagan's policy Wednesday when asked if the administration had stopped linking aid to the investigation. "That's right," he said. "We are aiding the government of El Salvador in order to help the government of El Salvador survive attacks by guerrillas, supported from the outside."

He also said the administration is much

Sutcliffe facing 20 charges of murder

DEWSBURY, England (AP) — Truck driver Peter Sutcliffe, the man indicted last month for one of the killings blamed on the "Yorkshire Ripper," is to be charged with 12 other murders and seven attempted murders, the state prosecutor said today.

The prosecutor, Maurice Shaffner, told the magistrates court here that the director of public prosecutions ordered him to say that further charges will be preferred against Sutcliffe before he is committed to trial.

"These further charges consist of 12 charges of murder and seven charges of attempted murder. In all there will be 20 charges of murder and attempted murder," he said.

Sutcliffe, 35, from the northern city of Bradford, was arrested Jan. 2 in a red-light district of nearby Sheffield.

He was charged three days later with the murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill, who police said was one of 13 victims of a vicious killer dubbed the "Yorkshire Ripper."

Police spoke jubilantly of winding down their hunt for the mass murderer, whose reign of terror in the north of England began with the slaying of a prostitute in Leeds on Oct. 30, 1975.

Jury finds FALN guilty of bombings

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court jury deliberated a little more than two hours before finding 10 suspected members of the Puerto Rican terrorist group FALN guilty of federal charges stemming from bombings and attempted bombings in the Chicago area.

The defendants, who refused to participate in their defense during the six-day U.S. District Court trial, were convicted Wednesday on all counts of seditious conspiracy, armed robbery, interstate transportation of stolen vehicles and violations of weapons laws.

Each of the 10 could be sentenced to up to 80 years in prison.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jeremy D. Margolis said he was pleased with the jury's decision, saying it was "the message they sent to people who would use guns and bombs against innocent people — men, women and children."

Fourteen hit with radioactive water

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Fourteen workers accidentally doused with radioactive water at Sequoyah nuclear plant have been given clean bills of health, Tennessee Valley Authority spokesmen say.

TVA spokesmen said 100,000 gallons of slightly radioactive water were sprayed into part of a reactor containment building Wednesday night when a control room operator accidentally released a valve.

"The water is really, really clean, but it had gone through the reactor core," spokesman Steve Goldman said.

He said the water was dumped from about 50 shower-like nozzles on the containment building ceiling. Goldman said he did not know the extent — if any — of damage.

Louis Gwin, TVA assistant information director, said the amount of radioactivity in the water was not precisely known, but that showers taken afterward by the workers washed off most radioactive particles.

Spokesmen said the contamination experienced by the 14 workers did not exceed federal standards.

"Basically, some water was diverted from the primary shutdown cooling system into a system called the containment spraydown inside the containment building," Gwin said.

Sequoyah's only operating reactor has been down a week for maintenance, and operations were not affected, spokesmen said.

Crater not a 'cozy' spot

By HILL WILLIAMS
The Seattle Times

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mike Korosec was sniffing the air and suspiciously eyeing the nearby rocks. He didn't look comfortable, standing on the floor of the Mount St. Helens crater with the steaming lava dome in the background.

"I'm usually apprehensive when I arrive and then gradually I get more comfortable," said Korosec, a geologist with the state Department of Natural Resources, a veteran of many helicopter trips into the crater.

"But sometimes the longer I stay the more apprehensive I get. It's just a gut feeling — how the cracks look, whether the steam is clean."

ON TUESDAY, Korosec became comfortable enough to stay and collect samples of the lava dome that doubled its size a few days ago and now rises 450 feet above the crater floor.

Steam poured out of cracks running across the floor of the crater. Steam clouds sometimes blotted out the sun, barely peeking over the south rim of the gaping pit. Where steam pushed its way out from under a boulder, it hissed.

The smell of sulfur was everywhere. Here and there were boulders of a garish yellow, coated by the fumes with sulfur.

Korosec, edging closer to the massive dome, suddenly seemed to be floating. Steam obscured his legs. He told me the floor of the crater is anywhere from 500 to 1,000 feet higher than it was when it was formed May 18, the day the mountain exploded, leaving a gaping pit a mile wide and two miles long.

"Material that has been blown out and then fallen back has built up the floor," he explained. "We estimate the October eruptions alone built it up 200 feet."

A piece of the dome, perhaps dislodged by more lava pushing inside, broke off and made a small avalanche to the base. The slide was followed by furious steaming, the steam tinged yellow-brown this time.

"That's why you don't want to get too close to the dome," Korosec observed.

BLACK VEINS run in the grey rock on the walls of the crater, looking a little like bare tree branches against a gray sky. It's a rare cutaway look at how a volcano operates, better than any textbook diagram.

The black veins, Korosec explained, are dikes, pushes of lava through solid rock that probably accompanied some ancient eruption. It's a graphic example of the splitting and cracking caused by movement of magma, signals that scientists now can detect.

At the back of the crater, the closed end, there is a bigger dike, much wider, protruding beyond the gray walls and still steaming.

may be a dike formed as part of the 1980 eruption. Most of the magma was under the north side of the mountain, causing the bulge that preceded the eruption. But geologists believe some was under the south part of the mountain and that black, steaming dike may be a remnant of it.

magma hardened into a rock dike rather than exploding into ash or pumice.

Except for the sulfur smell, it was almost pleasant in the crater, even with the ugly cracked dome looming overhead. The crater walls shielded us from the wind. The sun was warm.

"After a while, you get so you don't want to leave," Korosec said. "It was like this in August with the old dome, which was below the rim of a small, inner crater. We would sit on the rim and look down at the dome. It's a false sense of security."

I joked, "Are you getting comfortable?"

"Yes. Too comfortable. It worries me."

Five major childhood diseases at an all-time low last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five major childhood diseases — measles, mumps, rubella, tetanus and diphtheria — were at an all-time low in the United States last year, federal health officials report.

They credit a nationwide drive to immunize children against these preventable diseases for the success and say they are on target toward a goal of eliminating measles among American children by October of 1982.

According to reports compiled by the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, there was only one case of diphtheria among children under 15 years of age last year and five cases among adults. In 1979 there were 59 cases overall.

There were 3,837 cases of rubella, down from 11,795 in 1979; 8,531 cases of mumps, down from 14,225, and 74 cases of tetanus, down from 81.

While the 13,430 cases of measles was down only slightly from the 13,597 in 1979, both years totals were down sharply from nearly 27,000 in 1978 and 57,000 in 1977.

Moreover, measles outbreaks grew less frequent as 1980 wore on, culminating in a record low of only 13 cases anywhere in the country during Christmas week.

Although most children recover without incident from a bout with measles, one in 10,000 dies. Prior to development of a vaccine, in 1963, the disease afflicted up to 500,000 American children each year.

The government started an immunization drive in April 1979 at a time when outbreaks of measles and rubella were on the rise, and immunization levels among children ranged from 66 percent to 75 percent for the major diseases and polio.

By the 1979-80 school year, a CDC study found that among 2.5 million children entering school, 94 percent were vaccinated for measles, 93 percent for polio, rubella and DPT (diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis), and 86 percent for mumps.

Among 28 million students from kindergarten through 12th grade, the national immunization levels were: 91 percent for measles, 83 percent for rubella, 8 percent for mumps, 89 percent for polio and 90 percent for DPT.

Don Eddins of the CDC's Immunization Division in Atlanta said in a telephone interview Tuesday, "Immunization levels in this county are probably higher now than they've ever been. All 50 states now require children to be immunized before they can get into the school systems."

Many schools are requiring a note from a physician or health department attesting a child had shots instead of just relying on the parents' assurance, he said.

Eddins is coordinating the drive to eliminate indigenous measles by October 1980. Even if it succeeds, it is likely 100 cases will be imported into this country each year, he said.

That means children will still need immunization against measles, said Eddins. Only a worldwide eradication of the disease, such as has happened with smallpox, would eliminate the need for the shots "and that's not going to happen in my lifetime," said Eddins, 42.

He said credit for the childhood immunization drive should go to county and state health investigators who have been giving the shots and tracking down outbreaks. "They're the people out in the trenches," he said. "We sit here in our office and look at the numbers."

What's Cooking?

Karen Martin

Salt is thought as a basic necessity to everyone's diet, but for people with high blood pressure, people retaining fluid and others on special low-sodium diets, salt is not a necessity, in fact it is a culprit.

For those on low-sodium diets at Midland Memorial Hospital, chief clinical dietitian Karen Martin develops recipes so the patients will enjoy the food as much as possible. Ms. Martin also helps them to develop menus to take home with them.

For people just wanting to cut down on their salt, also known as sodium chloride, Ms. Martin said to stay away from canned vegetables, canned soups, instant products, buttermilk, instant cocoa mixes, processed cheeses and fast foods. She added that lite salt has half the sodium chloride of regular table salt.

The following recipe for Spaghetti With Meat Sauce, which was prepared by the hospital's head cook Chuck Shipley, is big on spices, which, according to Ms. Martin, have a very little sodium, if any at all.

SPAGHETTI WITH MEAT SAUCE

- 1 1/2 cups chopped onion
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tbsps. Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine
- 1 lb. ground round
- 3 cans (1 lb. each) dietetic tomatoes
- 2 tbsps. chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. light brown sugar
- 2 tps. oregano leaves, crushed
- 1/2 tsp. thyme, crushed
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tbsps. cornstarch
- 2 tbsps. water
- 12 ounces uncooked spaghetti.

Saute onions and garlic in 1 tablespoon margarine until softened. Add ground round and cook until browned, crumbling with a fork as it cooks. Remove from heat and drain off fat.

Drain liquid from tomatoes reserving 1 cup. Add tomatoes and reserved liquid to meat. Stir in parsley, sugar and spices. Simmer, uncovered, 2 hours. Blend together cornstarch and water add to sauce and stir until slightly thickened.

Meanwhile, cook spaghetti according to package directions, omitting salt and adding remaining 1 tablespoon margarine to water. Drain and serve with meat sauce.

DEAR ABBY Real-life drama exceeds anything on stage

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What could be more Shakespearean or more like Ibsen than this real-life drama?

My father, a very handsome and physical man, has had the same misery all his married life. His wife (my mother) was aware of it, and in her later years she has become morbid and melancholy, until now she is completely senile. She knows nothing. Father is very attentive to her. He has his mistress come to his home every day to take care of mother. This mistress, who was the object of mother's most passionate hatred in years gone by, is now the object of poor mother's deepest gratitude and affection. Meanwhile my father and this Salome are having a geriatric ball without the slightest guilt.

Mother looks but does not see; she listens but does not hear. Tell me, Abby, is something rotten in Denmark? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: If your parents live in Denmark, the answer is yes.

DEAR ABBY: I hope this letter makes your column because a lot of people need to get this message. My daughter was married recently, and while I was standing in the receiving line at the reception, a cousin embraced and kissed me, then between sneezes, with an obviously stopped-up nose, said in a croaking voice, "I've been in bed all week with the flu, but NOTHING could keep me away from this wedding, so I got out of a sick bed to be here."

Abby, the poor dear really thought she had done us a favor by coming. She would have done us a bigger favor by staying home! And would you believe this well-meaning but inconsiderate woman actually kissed the bride? — TYPHOID MARY'S COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: Yours is a timely letter. Thanks for the opportunity to remind readers that the flu and colds should not be treated lightly — a thorough recovery is essential. A relapse due to returning to work (or school) prematurely can lead to pneumonia, or even prove fatal. And, mothers, please don't send your children to school with coughs and runny noses!

AT WIT'S END

Oh, the young at heart

By ERMA BOMBECK

Some people get very depressed about their age.

I cannot understand this. You are only as old as you feel. Everyone knows that.

Someone pointed out to me the other day that Shirley Temple became a grandmother. They are obviously talking about another Shirley Temple and not the same one I know. The one I remember who sang and danced to "On the Good Ship Lollipop" would only be about nine or ten years old now.

Then someone said they read in the paper where the government made a mistake and sent a draft notice to Mickey Mouse at Disneyland. A spokesman said they were going to notify the government of the error and that Mickey was 52 years old now and served in World War II. It should be obvious to everyone as it is to me that they are talking about two different Mickey Mouses (Meeeces? Mices?). The one I remember is a rodent and the government would have remembered if they had made a uniform for him during World War II.

People just don't stop to figure things out. My mother called the other day and said, "Quick! Look at Lucille Ball's daughter on television. She's in a new movie." I turned it on and there was this tall, beautiful woman mother thought belonged to "I Love." I told her not only was it a biological impossibility, but Lucy has red hair and this girl was a brunette.

There's a group of people out there who just can't stand it when you remain young at heart. There's always someone who will butt into a conversation and say, "Did you know Eddie Haskell, that rotten kid on 'Leave It to Beaver'? He's a policeman now." Or someone in a beauty shop will try to frost your hair naturally with a smart remark like, "Sandra Dee is 39 years old now. I heard it from an unimpeachable source."

Don't get the wrong idea. I don't expect the world to stand perfectly still year after year. I know that your old theatres give way to parking lots and old boyfriends have faces that extend all the way back to their coat collars, but you have to keep it in perspective.

Last night my husband turned a page of the paper and said, "The Atlanta airport is finished."

"Which Atlanta?" I asked defensively.

"The one in Georgia."

"You're lying!" I said. "The Atlanta airport has been under construction for 35 years. It was all something we took for granted."

"Well, it's finished!"
People just can't stand to see me happy and well-adjusted. Next thing you know, someone will tell me Little Orphan Annie has grown eyes and sings on the New York stage!

Junior League of Midland honors provisional members

Junior League of Midland, Inc. honored its 1981 provisional members with a coffee in the home of Mrs. Glen Rogers. Assisting Mrs. Rogers were the sustaining members of the league.

New provisional members recently began an instructional course on all phases of league activities and a broad based community education. Directing this course are Mrs. Ferrell Davis, provisional chairman; Mrs. Robert Mann, assistant provisional chairman and Becky Baskin, professional provisional chairman.

League training will include a study of the league's history, administrative organization, placement opportunities and money raising projects. Following the league training, community leaders will speak to the provisionals on all aspects of Midland's government, education, health, welfare and the arts.

The course will also include field trips to many locations in the city.

These trips include Midland Independent School District board meeting and a meeting of the Midland City Council.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Anti skid tape for slippery shoes

DEAR HELOISE:

If you ever have bought a pair of slippery-soled shoes, you know the "walking-on-glass-eggs" feeling of trying to carefully watch every step.

I had a pair of shoes with "slicker than glass" soles. Adhesive tape wouldn't stay on and a shoe repair shop had no answers, but I liked the shoes very much as they were so comfortable.

So, in trying to find something to make those shoes a pleasure to wear again, I went to a farm supply store and found an anti-skid tape which comes in different widths (one and one-half inches, two inches and three inches) and is sticky on one side. The tape usually is used on ladders, steps, etc.

I traced the shoe sole pattern on three-inch wide tape, cut it out and peeled it off the backing, then pressed it to the sole of the shoe, which I had first carefully cleaned.

I let the shoes and soles get acquainted with each other for a while before wearing and it worked so well I covered other shoe soles with it as well.

A word of caution, however. Be careful when wearing the shoes on carpet as they won't slide as readily as most shoes do.

The tape is usually sold by the foot and mine cost under a dollar. One foot of tape will do a pair of shoes. — Eva Megnin

Folks, if you must wear a pair of slippery-soled shoes, for goodness sake do as Eva has done and find something to make them less hazardous.

If you possibly can, I would recommend that you either take the shoes back to the store where you purchased them or throw them away.

Hard to do, I know, considering replacement costs and especially if they are a favorite pair, but it's not worth the risk of possible serious injury to save a few dollars.

I don't want anything to happen to a single one of you and I know your loved ones feel the same way. Hugs to each of you... — Heloise

GRANDMA'S TIP

Dear Heloise: I'm a grandmother who adores having little helpers in the kitchen when I am making pancakes, puddings, etc.

Since I don't care for spills, I pull down the lid or door of the dishwasher, put the plastic bowl on it and let them stir to their heart's content. (Just be sure the bowl is not heavy and that the little ones don't put any weight on the lid.)

Then, no problem if they spill a little as they stir the pancakes. And do they love eating them when they are cooked! — Mrs. Dale Yeager

WRAP SKIRTS

Dear Heloise: Many women have trouble with wrap-around skirts or dresses. Rather than wear a skirt pin, which often tears the material, cut about six inches of self-gripping tape and stitch this about half way down on the inner side of the wrap.

It makes no difference whether the looped side is on the top wrap or the bottom wrap as either way it will stick.

Make sure before you stitch that the bottom edges of the skirt are even, also if it is check material be sure to match the checks or plaids. — Mrs. N.M. Fowles

CAKE STORAGE

Dear Heloise: Before putting the cover back on a partially eaten cake, place a wet, wadded-up paper towel on the empty part of the plate or pan. Re-moisten as necessary.

It will keep the cake from drying out. — J.P.

What to do with a bargain in lamb

By MERLE ELLIS

It is difficult, bordering on impossible, these days to find anything in the meat case selling for under $1 a pound, but it does happen on rare occasions. Whenever I see anything under that price, I buy as much of it as I can afford — it's almost certain to be a good buy.

Last week, one of the markets in my neighborhood had breast of lamb for 98 cents a pound. I bought all they had — just over six pounds. It was like discovering gold!

There are so many different things to be done with breast of lamb. It can be barbecued, braised, boned and rolled, cut into riblets and baked, stuffed and simmered, made into stews and soups — the list is endless.

The breast of lamb that you find on display in most markets has already been trimmed of its outside fat so there isn't much waste. It's a simple matter to cut it into riblets or bone it out to make all manner of good, inexpensive dishes.

To make riblets for baking or braising, simply cut between the rib bones to make individual serving-size portions. To bone out a breast for stuffing or rolling into noisettes, first cut along the bones on the underside of the breast to loosen the tender "skirt," then turn the breast over and cut along the bone on the top side to lift the meat off in one thin sheet. Several of these may be rolled together and tied to make a lamb cube. Lightly brown them in the same casserole, tossing to color all sides.

When cool enough to handle, remove the chops. The pan drippings may be used to make a sauce if you like, or added to your lamb stock pot.

Spread a coating of mustard on both sides of each chop. Dip in egg and then in bread-crumbs. Arrange the chops on a broiler pan lined with foil. Drizzle a little melted butter over each and brown under the broiler, turning once.

FOOD

roast, or each may be rolled, tied and cut into boneless lamb noisettes (the cheapest lamb chops you'll find). Whatever you do, save the bones for lamb stock.

Here are recipes to a few of the things I did with my lamb breasts (and I still have a few in the freezer).

CHEAP LAMB CHOPS

- 1 breast of lamb
- 1 lge. onion, chop.
- 2 carrots, chop.
- Salt, pepper
- 1 tsp. dill
- 1 cup lamb stock or water
- 2 tsp. Dijon mustard
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 cup fine, dry bread crumbs
- 2 to 3 tsp. melted butter

Bone and roll the lamb breast, secure with toothpicks at one-inch intervals, then cut into one-inch noisettes. Put the chopped vegetables

LAMB AND POTATO CASSEROLE

- 1 breast of lamb, cut in riblets
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 4 lge. potatoes
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. rosemary
- Salt, pepper
- 1/2 cup lamb stock or water

Brown the riblets in hot vegetable oil in metal casserole or Dutch oven. When nicely brown, remove the riblets and set aside. Peel the potatoes and cut them into 1-inch

LAMB STOCK

- bones from lamb breasts
- water to cover
- salt, pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 onion

Brown bones in a roasting pan in a 400-degree oven for 20 minutes. Pour off fat. Put bones in large stock pot, cover with water, add salt, pepper, bay leaf and onion. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer for 2 or 3 hours.

Strain, cool and chill base for any kind of lamb stock. Use in recipe requiring stock or as a tely fat-free stock, refrigerate the stock long enough for the fat to rise to the top and solidify so that it can be lifted off and disposed of.

Host families needed by foundation

Host families are needed to host English-speaking European teachers as guests in their homes for a seven to 10 day period this summer it was announced by the American Host Foundation.

American Host is the only nonprofit, nongovernmental program designed to show the American way of life to European teachers by pairing them with American families. It is a nation-wide home hospitality program which is endorsed by the Department of State.

Being a host family is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Europeans and Americans. Host families are required to provide a private room and meals for their guest and to give their guest the opportunity to meet friends, neighbors and to see local sights.

The American Host Foundation arranges all transportation but host families are asked to meet their guests on arrival in their area. Visitors and host families have the opportunity to correspond for at least a month prior to the visit.

Now in its 20th year, American Host has opened the doors to better understanding for more than 12,000 English-speaking European teachers who have passed on their new understanding to their students, friends and colleagues when they have returned to their homelands.

Anyone interested in being a host family or just wanting more information should write American Host Program, 12747 Brookhurst St., Garden Grove, Calif. 92640 or call 714-537-5711.

The rich, creamy flavor of chocolate cheesecake is complemented by a topping of lightly browned meringue, in Cocoa-Nut Meringue Cheesecake. The cheesecake features an easy-to-make coconut and nut crust. Since this dessert is quite rich, cut into small wedges, using a sharp knife dipped into hot water to ease slicing.

Favorite cream cheese celebrates centennial

Out of the thousands of products that line the shelves of today's supermarket, only a handful existed 100 years ago. One of these national institutions is cream cheese.

Cream cheese is a native American product, invented in 1872 in upstate New York in response to a desire for a better, richer cheese made with cream. Milk and cream purchased to make cream cheese must meet rigid high standards, and laboratory tests are used throughout the manufacturing process to insure consistently superior quality.

Most consumers take for granted the refrigerated distribution system that brings perishable products to supermarkets in all corners of the U.S. In the early days of cream cheese manufacturing, though, this highly perishable fresh product could only be marketed in areas near the site of its production.

In the 1920s, the shelf life of cream cheese was one week on ice, which meant that grocers had to sell the product quickly. Improvements in manufacturing methods have meant that cream cheese can now be safely kept in the dairy case and in the home refrigerator for many weeks without loss of freshness.

Cream cheese was originally thought of as a cheese to spread on crackers, breads or bagels and a 1922 source says "it is not used much for cooking."

Today, cream cheese is used almost as frequently for cooking as it is for spreading, and appears in a myriad of classic recipes, ranging from dips to casseroles to desserts. But one of its best-known applications is cheesecake, where it adds richness, creamy texture and a delicate tangy flavor.

Most consumers have strong preferences about cheesecake, whether they favor the creamy no-bake variety, or the more traditional baked cheesecake with a drier texture. Midwesterners tend to choose the creamy, chilled version, while in the northeast, the "New York style" baked cheesecake is the favorite.

is a most irresistible combination of cheesecakes. This cake features a coconut and nut crust, topped with an airy cloud of lightly browned meringue.

COCOA-NUT MERINGUE CHEESECAKE

1 1/2 cups flaked coconut
1/4 cup chopped pecans
2 tbsps. melted margarine

2, 8 ozs. pkgs. cream

3 eggs, separated
1/2 cup sugar
3 tbsps. cocoa
2 tbsps. water
1 tsp. water

dash of salt
1, 7 oz. jar marshmallow creme
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Combine coconut, nuts and margarine; press onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 325, 15 minutes or until light golden brown.

Combine softened cream cheese, egg yolks, sugar, cocoa, water and vanilla, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Pour over crust; bake at 350, 30 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan; cool before removing rim of pan.

Beat egg whites and salt until soft peaks form. Gradually add marshmallow creme, beating until stiff peaks form. Sprinkle nuts on cheesecake to within 1/2-inch of edge. Spread marshmallow creme mixture over nuts, sealing to cheesecake surface. Bake at 350, 15 minutes. Cool.

NO SUGAR ADDED

It's as plain as the sign on our can. Libby's doesn't add sugar to its Lite line of Peaches, Pears, Fruit Cocktail and Chunky Mixed Fruits. They're packed in a blend of real fruit juices — for a fresher fruit taste!

Other fruit products do contain added sugar. And you can taste it! It's a heavier, more syrupy taste. So, for a fresher fruit taste, try Libby's Lite Fruits. There's no sugar added!

Save 10¢ on any can of Libby's Lite

(Peaches, Pears, Fruit Cocktail and Chunky Mixed Fruits)

Offer expires June 30, 1981.

Even Billy would get a giggle out of this

By JERRY BELCHER
The Los Angeles Times

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. — Billy the Kid was not known for his sense of humor — his principal amusement seemed to be shooting people dead — but even the notorious Old West outlaw might have got a giggle out of all the hoopla over the theft and recovery of his tombstone.

The Kid's 200-pound granite tombstone was filched from his steel-fenced grave site in a dusty little cemetery just outside of Fort Sumner, N.M., on the first Sunday of February.

This stirred grave concern in Fort Sumner, a farm town of 1,800 whose main claim to fame is that on July 14, 1881, Sheriff Pat Garrett plugged the Kid twice, fatally.

The folks of Fort Sumner were worried because some 10,000 visitors came to gawk at the Kid's grave each year — and they expected thousands more on the 100th anniversary of the big event next July. Would they come if the Kid's tombstone wasn't there? Well, not to worry.

Huntington Beach Detectives Bob Russell and Ray Hattabaugh picked up the stone Tuesday from the home of a long-haul truck driver, Walter Nicolson, 25.

They found the house, the name of the suspect and the tombstone after a tip was telephoned to New Mexico State Policeman Marshall Warren and De Baca County, N.M., Sheriff John T. McBride and relayed to Huntington Beach, which is about 40 miles south of Los Angeles.

The tip, according to McBride, was only that the tipster had attended a party at a house in Huntington Beach, near the ocean, that he'd seen the tombstone of Billy the Kid there, and that the host of the party was a long-haul truck driver who sometimes passed through Fort Sumner.

Hattabaugh and Russell, veteran detectives, said that after the New Mexico authorities relayed the tip to them it was all just routine detective work. They traced the suspect's home address, got a warrant, and found the tombstone just where the tipster had said it would be. Next to it was a newspaper story about the theft.

The suspected tombstone thief, however, was on the road in his truck. He was still being sought on New Mexico warrants for larceny and burglary late Tuesday.

When news of the tombstone's recovery got out, Hattabaugh and Russell were deluged by newsmen. "We've caught murderers before and nothing like this ever happened," said Russell wryly standing beside the tombstone with his partner.

"Well," said Hattabaugh, "it's a nice change — normally we're recovering TV sets from residential burglaries."

And they had a little fun with their boss, the chief of detectives. They set up the Kid's tombstone in his office and decorated it with flowers as a surprise when he came to work Tuesday morning.

The detectives were delighted to be able to help out a fellow lawman in what he obviously considered a big case. "The sheriff told us," said

Russell, "that they considered this tombstone theft just slightly less serious than murder."

In a telephone interview, Sheriff McBride said yessir, he did think it was a pretty serious piece of villainy, but not all that close to being on a level with murder.

"But it really was a big deal," he said. "They, the people in town, was really upset. Now myself, I'm a law officer, and I always figured Billy the Kid as just a gangster. But I guess it was the history of the thing they was concerned about."

order and that he certainly would be prosecuted.

"It was a very serious matter," said the sheriff. "It was a crime and it was history. But, yessir, he'll get a fair trial — lynchings days are gone."

City crews end sickout

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP) — Road crews began clearing ice-covered streets and police started patrolling again as city workers accepted a contract and ended a two-day sickout.

Some 100 of 112 city workers, who began returning to work late Wednesday, had begun calling in sick Tuesday to protest what they termed unfair bargaining practices by the city.

The City Council had been embroiled in a wage dispute with the workers, who said they originally had agreed to a 5 percent raise for all employees. But when the city passed the ordinance authorizing the increases Monday, workers said they discovered that some employees would get up to 22 percent increases.

Japanese imports may be restricted

By PATRICK BOYLE
The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Secretary of Transportation Andrew L. Lewis Jr. said Tuesday that the Reagan administration is considering placing significant restrictions on imports of cars from Japan as a means of helping the ailing U.S. auto industry.

At a news conference here, Lewis said that the administration might consider asking that imports of Japanese vehicles be cut up to 20 percent from their present levels. This is less than has been suggested by U.S. auto makers and union leaders, but would be enough to create a furor not only among importers and their dealers, but also in the Japanese government.

Lewis is the first top government official in recent times to suggest that holding down the level of car imports might be needed to assure the future health of the U.S. auto industry. The Carter administration sidestepped the issue in the months before the election last November, instead vowing to abide by a ruling on the issue from the International Trade Commission.

The ITC ruled in November that the U.S. auto industry was not being harmed by imports of vehicles from overseas and declined to recommend any trade restraint that would reduce the imports.

However, in an appearance here before the National Automobile Dealers Association, Lewis said that the "condition of the industry has somewhat deteriorated since the (ITC) report" and said that the Reagan administration could ask the ITC to reconsider its stand.

"The basic policy of the Reagan administration is one of free trade," Lewis said. "However, there may be some requirement that we look into some form of mild restraints on Japanese imports."

Asked later at a news conference what he meant by "mild restraints," Lewis suggested a reduction in Japanese imports of 500,000 units from 1980 levels. He stressed, however, that the administration has not yet decided whether to officially propose that or any other specific reduction. American dealers sold 2.4 million Japanese cars and trucks in 1980.

"I'm not certain at all that there will be restraints on trade," Lewis told reporters. "But when you look at the problems of the automotive industry, you have to consider all options and obviously this is one that has to be considered."

Lewis said that the issue of trade restrictions and other government policies that might help the auto industry would be addressed in a report now being prepared by Reagan's auto industry task force, of which Lewis is chairman.

The issue of whether to hold down Japanese imports is one of the toughest inherited by Reagan from his predecessor. The Japanese accounted for nearly 86 percent of all vehicles imported into the United States last year as import dealers chalked up their best year in history.

But at the same time, nearly half of the U.S. industry's 700,000 workers were laid off in 1980, and about 200,000 are still out of work as domestic manufacturers struggle through their worst downturn since the depression. Politicians and labor leaders from states where auto plants are idle have been pressing for government action to cut back imports as one means of helping the industry during the period when it is retooling to build smaller cars.

However, import officials argue that the American industry's problems are related not to unfair competition, but to the 1980 recession, high interest rates and a shortage of small, fuel-efficient U.S.-built cars. Sales of U.S.-built cars were down 1.8 million units in 1980 from the previous year, while import sales increased by 66,000 from 1979.

The Japanese auto makers have acted quietly to cut the level of exports to the United States in an effort to defuse support for trade restrictions that might sour relations between the two nations. The Japanese Automobile Manufacturers Association recently reported that in the fourth quarter of 1980, car exports to the U.S. market were down 1.9 percent from the year-earlier level, and shipments in December were off 7.5 percent from the year-ago period.

Population center shifts farther west

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following in the wagon tracks of the pioneers, the nation's center of population has crossed the Mississippi River for the first time on its steady trek westward.

Census Bureau officials estimate the new center is located in Jefferson County, Mo. That's about 40 miles south-southwest of the Gateway Arch in St. Louis, the memorial to the pioneers who passed the same way a century ago.

The precise location cannot yet be calculated, officials said, but it is expected to be near De Soto, Mo. By April or May, when final census figures have been compiled for every county in the nation, the center will be pinpointed exactly.

The center of population is the point at which an imaginary flat map of the United States would balance if weights were placed on it so each identical weight represented the location of one person.

In 1970, the center of population was on the other side of the Mississippi, in St. Clair County, Ill.

In 1990, the first census located the center of population 23 miles west of Baltimore, Md.

By 1850, it had migrated to Parkersburg, W. Va., and at the turn of the century it was in Columbus, Ind.

Joel Miller of the Census Bureau's population division said the center's movement reflects population growth in the South and West, while the North and East lag behind.

New York, for example, lost population during the 1970s and states like Pennsylvania and Ohio, which had grown at a good clip previously, grew more slowly.

"In every single census it (the center of population) has marched westward and this is no exception," said Miller.

Cynthia gets warm welcome

AMHERST, N.Y. (AP) — Cynthia Dwyer, returning from nine months' imprisonment in Iran to the bitter wind and new-fallen snow of her upstate New York hometown, said, "It was nice and warm in Tehran, but it's a lot warmer here, if you know what I mean."

Feeling "great" after her release from Tehran's Evin Prison, she arrived here late Wednesday to the hugs of friends and relatives she hadn't seen since leaving for Iran last spring.

A "Welcome Home Cynthia" banner was strung outside her home, and inside about 20 friends and relatives waited with gifts and two cakes, one decorated with daffodils and "Welcome Home Cynthia, We Love You."

The 49-year-old mother of three went to Iran to write about the American hostages, but was arrested last May, 10 days after the failed hostage rescue mission.

Tried and convicted last weekend on espionage charges, she was ordered deported and left Tehran on Tuesday, flying home via Dubai in the United Arab Emirates, Switzerland and New York.

She was reunited in New York on Wednesday with her husband, John, and their children, Ben, 14, Dan, 12, and Susannah, 9, whom she gave a scarf that she knitted in prison as a "souvenir of Evin."

Aboard the plane to Buffalo, N.Y., she toasted her newly regained freedom and explained how she'd passed her time.

"You learn to play mind games with yourself. You talk to yourself. There were times I made up movie scenarios to keep going (including) Monte Python-type things and MGM spectacles," she said.

She was unable to talk with most of the other women prisoners at the prison because most spoke only Farsi, she said.

And one lesson she learned from her ordeal was: "Don't ever go to another country without knowing the language."

At an airport news conference before the flight to Buffalo, Mrs. Dwyer said she felt her arrest was due to Iran's need for a scapegoat after the failed mission to rescue the American hostages April 25.

She was taken prisoner not because she was a spy but because she "was a very convenient, naive person to grab," Mrs. Dwyer said.

As a writer, she asked questions but learned that "the Iranians just don't know what a journalist in the free world is... They have talked so long to their people about spying — they just wanted to say to their people that we finally caught one."

She said the State Department had not warned her against making the trip. "I had no contact with the State Department."

Mrs. Dwyer said she was kept alone from the time of her arrest until July 20 when she was transferred to Evin Prison, which she called an "obvious political prison."

Her roommates were Iranian women held on political charges, although she once shared a room with Jean Waddell, one of the British missionaries still being held in Tehran along with three other Britons and a naturalized American.

Mrs. Dwyer said she was allowed to read the English-language Tehran Times and to keep parts of a daily log she made.

Minority leadership voice is needed

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Midland and other communities need a voice of leadership in the minority communities within them, according to Michael Williams and Margie Titus who spoke to the Health and Welfare Association at the Department of Human Resources Wednesday.

The "Discussion on Community Leadership," presented at a noon bring-your-own-luncheon, was designed to promote awareness of the needs of minorities to create their own community leaders who could gain training to move into the general community leadership.

"The general community should and indeed must contribute to that role of leadership development," Williams told the group of some 25 local health and welfare professionals.

Williams, who prefaced the presentation with "we do not tend to represent ourselves as the leadership of the black community," called the idea of leadership in the sub-communities an "attitudinal concept."

Williams said leaders in the minority communities need not be molded in the typical cast of the leaders in the Anglo-American community. "The leaders in the (Anglo) community tend to be the leaders in the general community," Williams pointed out.

Where Anglo "leaders" may be respected in local politics as well as in the business community as attorneys, petroleum engineers or bankers, he said, leaders in the black or Mexican-American communities may be respected in their neighborhood community as an informed and fair resident.

Williams said too often minority communities allow the general community to select its leaders. "One reason I have been looked to as a leader is because I look right," he said, using himself as an example. Williams said because he dressed the part, was a member of the Bar Association and so on, he was more "socially acceptable" as a leader. He said "looking like" a leader was using poor reasoning to find representative leaders.

Williams outlined his concept of leadership abilities as the ability to do things on one's own initiative, to form groups and to mobilize and motivate them to solve problems in the community. In addition, he said, a leader had to be "cognizant of things going on in the community," and had to have "vision."

He called for the general community to refrain from selecting its leaders by their "looks," and asked they "rationalize whatever kind of leadership pops up."

"We can't shun them," he said. "We have to give them opportunities in the general community."

Ms. Titus echoed Williams, saying, "The general community should nourish the leadership that comes out of the minority community." She said the general community must "listen to the needs of the minority communities regardless of their status."

Both Williams and Ms. Titus hastened to add they believed there is already leadership in both the Mexican-American communities and the black communities. In January the group reviewed aspects of the Mexican-American community leadership in the monthly meeting. As for the leadership in the black communities, both said it was "evident in the number of social clubs and churches" in those communities.

"A lot of things have been accomplished in the black community," Williams said, "but still there are a lot of things to be done."

Williams said out of the general community leadership positions available, "many appointments are not made to the minority community." That is due, Williams said, to one of two reasons: the general community does not know people in the minority communities as they are not readily visible in general community social and business circles, or because the individuals do not "set up to standards" as the general community looks for a token, soft-spoken minority representative.

"It's very important to have that institutional mechanism to allow minorities to be involved in the decision-making process," Williams pointed out.

Haig weighs response to Soviet violation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig is weighing a response to the Soviet Union's violation of diplomatic protocol in releasing a confidential communication accusing the United States of interference in Poland and antagonism toward the Kremlin.

U.S. officials were described as "flabbergasted" by the Soviet action, a further sign of hardening relations between the two superpowers since President Reagan took office.

The central topic of the message from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko involved the two superpowers' roles in the evolving situation in Poland, where communist leaders are striving to cope with labor unrest that threatens the governmental structure of the nation.

Release of the letter, in which Gromyko accuses the United States of "open interference" in Poland's internal affairs, violated an age-old diplomatic practice that formal communications between governments are not made public without mutual consent.

The Jan. 28 Gromyko letter accuses the Voice of America and other U.S. foreign radio operations of airing "provocative and instigatory" broadcasts aimed at generating "unfriendly sentiments" among Poles toward the Soviet Union.

Its release left U.S. officials literally shaking their heads in disbelief. One official, who asked not to be identified, said the action "certainly runs counter to the long-standing principle of confidentiality with regard to such exchanges."

Another said it left State Department veterans "flabbergasted."

Haig was known to be considering whether to respond to the Soviet action or let the matter pass.

One option would be to release the text of his

Jan. 24 letter to Gromyko, which was the Reagan administration's first official communication to the Soviets. The letter released by the Soviets was Gromyko's response to Haig.

The Soviet Embassy said the Gromyko text was released because the contents of Haig's letter had been made public by the State Department.

U.S. officials denied this ever happened.

The existence of the Haig-Gromyko exchange was known, however, and sources said Haig had used his letter to warn that U.S.-Soviet relations would suffer serious consequences if the Soviets sent troops into Poland to quell labor unrest.

Reagan accused of betraying West Bank settlers

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Jewish settlers on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River today accused President Reagan of betraying them, claiming that the U.S. presidential race, a Reagan aide had asked their endorsement in order to win Jewish votes.

The accusation was included in an angry reaction by the settlers to a State Department denunciation Wednesday of Israeli plans to expand Jewish settlements on the West Bank.

Israel Harel, leader of a council of 41 West Bank settlements, said that a few days before the presidential election, a Reagan aide telephoned the settlers' headquarters and urged American Jewish residents of the West Bank to sign a pro-Reagan petition to be distributed among U.S. Jewish voters.

He told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that only two or three of the 260 American Jews living in the West Bank refused to sign.

Harel said the Reagan aide was a man named Weinstein, but he did not remember details, saying the whole affair was conducted verbally in hurried transatlantic phone calls.

"We now feel betrayed by President Reagan's sharp and unbalanced statement on settlements," he said.

"At the time we did not see any point in making this too public," said Harel. "But now I guess it should be told. We were very surprised at the statement."

There was no immediate Reagan administration comment on Harel's charges.

The State Department had expressed "deep concern" on behalf of Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig about reports that Israel was seizing more West Bank Arab land in a rush to expand Jewish settlements before Israel's June 3 elections.

Israeli officials drew comfort from the fact that the State Department did not echo the contention of the Carter administration that the settlements were illegal. But they expressed regret at the sharp wording of the statement.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman denied that there was any "rush or acceleration on settlement." He said the government was trying to pinpoint state-owned, uncultivated West Bank land for agriculture and industry. "It is not a question of appropriation," he said. "The land is not for new settlements."

Harel said he knew of 2,000 acres of land in the process of being taken over for the settlers, and claimed virtually all of it was state-owned, or belonged to absentees — Arab landlords who had fled in time of war. He said the land was mostly rocky, terraced hills.

In a prepared statement, Harel said that "from the profound concern of Mr. Reagan and Gen. Haig there arises a strong smell of Saudi oil rather than concern for peace. They have not even had time to warm their seats in the White House and the State Department and already they are operating according to narrow oil interests."

arises a strong smell of Saudi oil rather than concern for peace. They have not even had time to warm their seats in the White House and the State Department and already they are operating according to narrow oil interests."

Police giving Jewish residents 24-hour guard

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Police are offering 24-hour protection to this city's Jewish community following the dumping of Nazi stickers at a synagogue and death threats telephoned to several Jews.

"I will use 20 men a day if I have to," Police Chief Roy E. Hollady told 50 members of Temple Beth Shalom at the synagogue Wednesday night. "I will not tolerate this."

Hollady called those responsible for the harassment "insects, trash, pure and simple."

Leaflets imprinted with racial slurs against Jews and blacks have plagued Salem, Eugene and Portland in recent weeks following Gov. Vic Atiyeh's announcement that he would propose making racial harassment a felony.

Hollady said he doubted such legislation would pass because it would be impractical to enforce.

Last weekend, anti-Semitic flyers were dumped outside the synagogue and several Jews reported they received death threats over the telephone.

A swastika also was smeared on Salem apartments where state Sen. Bill McCoy resides. McCoy, D-Portland, is black.

Monroe's dad dead at 85

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eighteen years after Marilyn Monroe's death, the widely held belief that the blonde sex symbol was born illegitimate has been disproved by authorities who found copies of her birth certificate at the home of a dead man they believe was her father.

Martin Edward Mortensen, 85, collapsed at the wheel of his automobile Tuesday in downtown Riverside and died of an apparent heart attack, Riverside County coroner's investigator Lisle Ford said in a telephone interview.

Miss Monroe's mother has been in mental institutions since 1953, and early studio biographies reported that her father was dead. Some biographers reported she was born illegitimate.

But Mortensen, who worked as a gas company serviceman for 50 years before retiring in 1965, had told co-workers and his physician he was the late film star's father, giving details of his marriage to her mother that contradict the biographical accounts.

At the modest apartment where Mortensen lived alone in Mira Loma, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles, Ford said he found copies of Miss Monroe's birth certificate as well as marriage and divorce papers for Mortensen and Gladys Baker, Miss Monroe's mother.

The birth certificate states Marilyn Monroe was born Norma Jean Mortensen on June 1, 1926, in Los Angeles. Her father is listed as Edward Mortensen, address unknown, age 29.

The marriage certificate is dated Oct. 11, 1924; the final Los Angeles Superior Court divorce decree is dated Aug. 15, 1928.

Also found at the apartment were several books about Miss Monroe as well as Mortensen's own birth certificate and his parents' marriage certificate. Ford said he is convinced all the documents are authentic.

Miss Monroe, whose cooing voice, voluptuous figure and platinum hair set male pulses racing with such 1950s films as "Some Like It Hot," "The Seven-Year Itch" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," died in Los Angeles at age 36 on Aug. 5, 1962, of an overdose of sleeping pills. Authorities ruled her death an apparent suicide.

Details of her childhood were always cloudy, and a publicist said Miss Monroe wanted the studio biographies to say her father had died.

"It was made up because Marilyn wanted it that way," said Jet Fore, the film publicist who wrote Miss Monroe's first studio biography for 20th Century-Fox. "She told me her father was dead."

Fore said he later heard that her father had abandoned her mother, and was under the impression that Miss Monroe was illegitimate.

"That's what we all thought," he said. "It's in several books."

"If she was legitimate, I certainly have something on my conscience," said Maurice Zolotow, who wrote "Marilyn Monroe," one of the first biographies.

Zolotow said Mortensen had never turned up and no one who knew Gladys Baker during the time Miss Monroe was born knew of Mortensen.

Miss Monroe had said her father's name was Mortensen, but "the feeling was it was a name plucked out of the air," Zolotow said.

But Mortensen told gas company counselor Thomas Burns a different story about his marriage and his daughter's birth.

Eighteen years after Marilyn Monroe's death, copies of her birth certificate were found disproving the widely held belief that she was born illegitimate. (AP Laserphoto)

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The widow and child of a Los Angeles-area lawyer who died in the 1978 crash of a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner have agreed to accept more than $2 million in an award by a federal court.

Chief U.S. District Judge Edward Schwartz on Wednesday approved the largest award in federal court to date in connection with the Sept. 25, 1978, air disaster.

Three U.S. Marines drowned

TOKYO (AP) — Three 24-year-old Marines drowned after landing in a reservoir during a parachute exercise on Okinawa, U.S. military officials said today.

They said the Marines landed late Tuesday in the Ginoza Reservoir three miles north of Camp Hansen and about 100 yards from the drop zone.

The Marines were on a routine training mission and wore inflatable life preservers, the officials said. An investigation was under way.

The Marines were identified as Cpl. John W. Powers of Wellsboro, Pa., Lance Cpl. Mark G. Oliver of Los Angeles and Lance Cpl. Steven J. Savoca of Reseda, Calif.

They belonged to the 3rd Marine Division, 3rd Reconnaissance Battalion, Deep Reconnaissance Platoon.

Nuclear power likely to see increased funds

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While most government programs are facing the budget scalpel under President Reagan's austerity program, nuclear power is in line for some sharp increases.

Backed by a president who campaigned in support of atomic power, Energy Secretary James B. Edwards said he is recommending spending increases in several of the government's nuclear programs.

"We have got to get nuclear on the move again," Edwards said Tuesday. "America has lost technological leadership (in nuclear energy) because of the Carter administration. We need to restore our leadership."

Edwards said programs in line for spending increases include the breeder reactor and reprocessing plants — two technologies put in the deep freeze by former President Carter because of concerns over nuclear proliferation.

He also indicated the country needed to move more quickly to pick a permanent site to bury high-level nuclear wastes.

Edwards refused to give an exact figure for the amount in spending increases Reagan would seek in nuclear power, but said they would be "substantial." They come at a time when Reagan is seeking sharp cutbacks in all other energy areas and in many other government programs.

Those cuts include a 62 percent reduction in spending to promote solar power, a 60 percent cut in conservation efforts and a cut of more than a 33 percent in the ambitious Carter program to develop synthetic fuels from coal and shale oil.

Congress tried repeatedly to force the Carter administration to build the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee, including $92 million in the 1981 budget for it. However, Carter did not want to spend the money because of fears the plutonium produced in such reactors could be diverted for use in nuclear weapons.

But Edwards said other countries are moving ahead with breeders as well as reprocessing plants — which take spent fuel from nuclear power plants and separate out plutonium and uranium to be used again.

Carter closed a spent-fuel reprocessing plant in Barnwell, S.C., Edwards' home state, soon after taking office.

Edwards said all of the Carter actions failed to take into account the critical role nuclear energy will play in the next 30 to 40 years.

"There is no real place to turn other than nuclear to keep from being held hostage by foreign (oil exporting) countries," Edwards said. "To say no to nuclear energy would be turning our backs on 33 million Americans" who will enter the work force in the next 20 years and will need jobs provided by an expanding economy.

In other comments Tuesday, Edwards: "Conceded the American people 'may have been misled' by his prediction that fuel prices would only go up 3 to 5 cents a gallon because of Reagan's Jan. 28 order lifting all remaining petroleum price controls.

Science programs suffer

Education, projects cut from budget

By PHILIP J. HILTS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's budget-cutters have proposed sweeping reductions in government support for science, and have made special targets of science education, economic and social science research, and a program to replace deteriorating instruments at leading laboratories around the U.S.

Leaders of American science reacted with shock and disappointment to what they called the "ideological," "foolish" and "strategically mistaken" nature of the cuts, which are laid out in documents prepared by the White House's Office of Management and Budget. Rather than spreading the trims across many areas, the cuts would kill outright several large and well-regarded programs.

The budget documents show details for cuts in three science agencies — the National Science Foundation, NASA and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The targeting of specific programs in NSF is especially dramatic. The cuts called for in 1982 include: $47 million from the science education budget, bringing it down 42 percent; $30 million from the social and economic research budget, bringing it down 75 percent; the entire $98 million budget of the "cross-directorate" programs including new instruments for universities, and programs for women and minorities in science. Also chopped out completely is the giant new 25-meter telescope. In the NASA budget a handful of planetary exploration programs were completely eliminated in the budget documents.

Dr. Lewis Branscomb, head of the National Science Board and chief scientist at IBM, said that the science agencies themselves, under the leadership of the not-yet-appointed presidential science adviser, could make far more sensible budget cuts than those recommended in what is known as the "black book," or working papers, of OMB director David Stockman.

"These cuts are inconsistent with what I believe the Reagan program called for, and which I fully support," said Branscomb. He said large cuts were in order but that they must be made in a way that protects American defense and industry.

He said several of the cuts were "foolish" and would work against the president's own priorities. "Some of the (spending plans) were put there because of their urgency."

The programs he and several other leaders in science named as crucial included a $75 million NSF program to upgrade instruments and equipment at leading U.S. laboratories. This would be completely wiped out under the OMB recommendations. Other programs the science leaders named as particularly important were the NSF program in science education and the social and economic research supported by the NSF.

"If this is the budget for a national emergency, then science will have to sit still for what other agencies are getting as well," said Dr. Philip Handler, president of the National Academy of Sciences. "We cannot engage in special pleading." But he and others added their dismay at several specific cuts suggested in OMB documents.

On upgrading the instruments of leading laboratories, a $75 million item, Dr. Handler said, "This is serious. If that is cut out, it is a serious strategic error. Science is the edge we have on the rest of the world; America is made possible by its tools. . . . But over recent years we have allowed the instruments at our best laboratories to fall behind the times, to deteriorate. So the government instituted this program at the strong urging of many people — of almost everyone who has given any thought to the problem."

On the slash of the economic and social research, Handler said, "That's destructive. That's destroying a program, not budget-cutting. . . . This cut is almost an ideological act, as if they said, 'This is a good opportunity to put an end to that stuff.'"

William Carey, executive officer of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, commented on the proposed reduction in the science education budget: "I am shaken by that. That is a poor target. If that goes through we must expect the quality of science to go downhill."

Branscomb of IBM, reflecting the continued nervousness among scientists over the failure of the Reagan administration to appoint a science adviser, said, "I would strongly urge the president to quickly appoint a science adviser who can give him some guidance on his budget strategy."

"The science adviser would be able to tell him what is the best way to cut the budget and still maintain the defense of the country. I don't see how you can make those decisions at all in the absence of science leadership in the White House," Branscomb said.

Radon no cause for worry

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Levels of a radioactive gas sometimes associated with earthquakes have increased in the San Gabriel mountains, but a scientist says there is no reason for worry unless other earthquake-related activity increases.

Physicist Mark Shapiro of California State University at Fullerton said radon emissions at three sites are no greater than have been seen at times when no earthquake followed.

He said high radon readings at several of the group's eight monitoring stations seem to have preceded earthquakes but the connection is not clearcut.

"We don't consider (the changes in radon gas levels) suspicious unless we also see some changes in other" quake-related phenomena, such as stresses on nearby rocks, he said.

"As far as we can tell, there are no other changes in the immediate area of the (radon-measuring) units that would look suspicious," he said in a telephone interview.

Shapiro, a visiting associate at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, has been studying radon levels in Southern California for several years.

He said while the gas may be driven by tectonics, the forces that feed stress into earthquake faults, it also could be driven by environmental factors, such as changes in underground water movement.

"We don't get at all concerned until we begin to see evidence of tectonic influences," he said.

Scientists around the world are studying radon as a possible signal of a coming earthquake. Soviet researchers claim to have predicted at least one earthquake on the basis of radon levels.

The gas is found in harmless concentrations throughout the earth's crust.

Some theories suggest the gas may escape from tiny cracks that begin forming in rocks before they final collapse into an earthquake. Last month, he said, "we have seen small changes at Stone Canyon (Reservoir in West Los Angeles) that seemed to relate to two small earthquakes very close to the units."

He said the quakes, which measured 3.0 and 3.2 on the Richter scale of ground movement, came about a week after the high readings, and one was within about six miles of the monitoring site. Since last summer, Shapiro said, units at Kresge in northwest Pasadena and Dalton Canyon Dam north of Glendora have shown a gradual increase in emissions, although with "quite a bit of fluctuation."

In the last few weeks, he said, both have shown "moderately large spikes" in the readings. A third unit, a new monitor near the Pacoima Dam, also has been showing high levels but its history is too short to determine whether they are unusual.

Interpretation is difficult, Shapiro said, and the long-range radon changes may only reflect a general increase in seismic activity in Southern California, rather than any specific future earthquake.

Tarnower's diet book selling well

By BARBARA PENDLETON
Hearst Special News Service

ALBANY — The American public has reportedly shelled out $11 million for 4,750,000 copies of "The Complete Scarsdale Medical Diet" book by Dr. Herman Tarnower, who was shot to death in his bedroom last March.

The notoriety surrounding the trial of Jean Harris, accused of killing Dr. Tarnower, has drawn the curiosity of many to the diet book.

"There is no question that the enormous amount of curiosity about the life, personal affairs and events surrounding Dr. Tarnower's death has spilled over into the sales of the book," says Stuart Applebaum, director of publicity for Bantam Books.

The paperback edition of the diet book was published by Bantam in December 1979, a year after the hardcover edition came out.

"The Scarsdale Diet" paperback is now in its 27th printing and there are 4,295,000 copies in print, according to Applebaum. The book sells for $2.95.

Sales of the book were very good while Dr. Tarnower was alive, said Applebaum, and sales have continued to be good after his death. "The real reason the book sells," he said, "is because the diet works and we are in the months now when diet book sales soar."

"Diet was the number one best selling paperback of 1980," Applebaum said.

Thurmond taking hard line

By RONALD J. OSTROW
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., new chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said Tuesday that he will push for legislation to restore capital punishment, curtail bail for dangerous suspects and let prosecutors appeal when a criminal defendant is acquitted.

Thurmond, outlining priorities for the Senate committee with the major jurisdiction over crime, took a harder line than even Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, who had called Sunday for a crackdown on rising crime.

Thurmond said in an interview that safeguards adopted by courts to protect accused persons are "massive," and that they "cause an imbalance in our criminal justice system."

"I go on the theory that if you have a clash between the individual's rights and the rights of the public, then the rights of the public have to prevail," Thurmond said.

Thurmond's leadership of the 17-member Senate committee to date indicates that he will keep a tighter rein on its affairs than his Democratic predecessor, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

The Judiciary Committee chairman said that if Congress fails to enact a criminal code revision, which contains many of the tougher provisions, he would introduce them as individual bills and work for their adoption.

Thurmond said he agreed thoroughly with both Burger's call for steps to deter crime and with Attorney General William French Smith's priority on as-yet-unspecified federal steps to attack violent crime.

"People don't feel safe in their homes, on the streets, with their property or their families," the senator said.

While advocating the tougher stance, Thurmond emphasized his readiness to work with others in his effort to enact a sweeping revision of the nation's outdated, piecemeal federal criminal code.

Noting that he had joined Kennedy in introducing and pushing a revision bill that passed the Senate last year but not the House, Thurmond said there were "some conservative members (of the Senate) who didn't like some provisions" in that bill.

Thurmond said there were some objections he had to the bill, citing as an example the lack of a provision for capital punishment for murder on a federal reservation.

As a whole, he said, the bill "contained so many good things" — although there were some "he (Kennedy) didn't like, some I didn't like" — and he expressed hope that it would be passed.

Thurmond said he expected President Reagan to scrap the merit commission system set up by the Carter administration to recommend candidates for federal appellate judgeships and, in some states, district court judges.

"A senator has been elected by the people of his state, and it might be that his opinion will be as valuable as someone not elected," Thurmond said. "Senators can be held responsible (for a bad choice), but merit selection boards cannot."

Thurmond said his panel would emphasize legislation to reduce and simplify government regulations affecting business and individuals. He said it also would be concerned with adoption of a constitutional amendment to require a balanced federal budget.

Thurmond said he had not discussed the proposed budget amendment with Reagan or his aides since the election, but noted that the president favors a balanced budget.

"I've been here for 27 years, and my experience is that Congress has not shown — and probably will not in the future — sufficient restraint to balance the budget," Thurmond said. "It's going to take a constitutional amendment to mandate it."

Priest, five others face charges after protest

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A Catholic priest and five others face trespassing charges following their arrest during a demonstration against nuclear weaponry at the Pantex Corp. plant.

The six were taken into custody by private security guards at the plant after they scaled an outer fence Tuesday morning.

None of the protesters attempted to scale a high-voltage fence separating the Pantex weapons assembly facility from the perimeter fence, authorities said. The plant is located about 30 miles east of Amarillo.

In all, a total of 17 persons took part in the demonstration, which began shortly after 9 a.m. CST.

Waving banners that said "Love Thy Enemy" and "Security — in the bomb or in God?" the demonstrators said they were affiliated with the Atlantic Life Community, a Washington D.C.-based umbrella organization for several regional anti-nuclear activist groups. A spokesman for the organization described the protest as being "peaceful and non-violent."

Once inside the outer fence, the six protesters formed a circle and recited prayers, observers said.

Arrested were: The Rev. Larry Rosebaugh, Washington, D.C.; Ladon Sheats of Lubbock; Cathy Jennings of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Vince Eiren, also of Pittsburgh; Mary Sprunger Froese of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Steve Clemens of Koinia, Ga.

U-H, Aggies stage warfare over Franklin

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor and Texas signed the most schoolboy football blue chippers Wednesday on Southwest Conference letter-of-intent day but a battle between the Houston Cougars and Texas Aggies for Bay City running back Pat Franklin produced the most fireworks.

Franklin, the top running back in the state, vanished from Bay City High School Friday not long after he had committed to Texas A&M.

WHEN HE finally showed up Wednesday, he had signed with Houston.

Bay City Coach Ron Mills said "I'm kind of teed off right now. That's not what we teach our kids. I think that somebody might be messing his head up."

"He left here Friday with a couple of University of Houston players."

There was no comment from Houston, which refused to release a list of its signees.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff signed linebackers Kevin Hancock of Texas City and Alan Jamison of Houston Westchester, and lineman Brian Camp of Lewisville, bluechippers each and every one.

"Every year I have the tendency to say this is the best recruiting class I've ever signed but I don't think we've ever signed a better group of athletes especially when you consider what we needed to sign," said Teaff. "I'm elated we did well in the areas of need such as the offensive line, and particularly at linebacker. We did well at running back, too."

TEAFF SLIPPED into Arkansas to steal away Ralph Stockemer of Alma, a top running back prospect.

Akers signed four Port Arthur Jefferson players, including quarterback Todd Dodge, the first passer in Texas schoolboy history to throw for 3,000 yards in one season and his prime receiver, Brent Duhon, who broke state records for most receptions in a season (89) and a career (180).

"I don't think the University of Texas has ever signed four football players off the same high school team, and they are top-notch players," said Akers.

Dodge was being heavily courted by the Texas Aggies.

"I'm glad to get it all over," said Dodge. "I always wanted to go to Texas. I'm glad Brent decided to go. We talked about staying together but you still have to do what is best for you. It turned out both of us liked it at Texas."

"I enjoyed my visit to A&M but I guess I would have always wondered what it would have been like if I had gone to A&M and not gone to Texas."

DODGE ALSO visited Missouri where his grandfather went to school.

Texas also got bluechip linemen Bill Heathcox of North Garland and John Stuart of Clear Lake and scored late in the day when the Longhorns wrestled running back Jerome Johnson of Pilot Point away from Baylor.

The Aggies landed the most sought-after bluechip lineman in the state, 6-6, 240-pound Ray Childress of Richardson Pearce. Coach Tom Wilson made Childress his first signee when it became legal at 8 a.m.

Wilson then cashed yet another bluechip when he signed 6-4, 240-pound Greg Porter of Humble, one of the fastest linemen in the statler has run a 4.6 over 40-yards.

THE NATIONAL signing day is next Wednesday and only the Aggies and Baylor released their full roster of SWC signings to the media.

However, Southern Methodist couldn't hide the fact it had signed linebacker Gary Spann of Dallas South Oak Cliff after a battle with Texas Christian and Texas Tech. Spann was a member of the Dallas Times Herald bluechip list.

Also, Andrews' Van Peary, an excellent running back, became a Mustang.

The lone holdout from the blue chip list as chosen by the SWC's coaches was defensive back Lawrence Hardin of West Orange-Stark who will decide on national signing day between Texas, Southern Cal and Oklahoma.

Houston did well. Besides signing Franklin, Coach Bill Yeoman nailed bluechip linebacker Greg Turner of Pittsburg.

OKLAHOMA, AS usual, made its presence felt, signing bluechip defensive back Keith Stanberry of Mount Pleasant to a Big Eight Conference letter.

Arkansas signed quarterback Mark Calcagni of Youngstown, Ohio, the younger brother of former All-SWC quarterback Ron Calcagni.

White's first year a letdown

KEY BISCAVINE, Fla. (AP) — It's been a year since the Cleveland Browns selected Charles White as their No. 1 draft pick.

Big things were expected of White, who joined O.J. Simpson, Mike Garrett and Ricky Bell as famous tailbacks in Southern California's noted I-formation. He won the Heisman Trophy in 1979 and all indications were that White would enjoy a prosperous professional career.

But White gained only 279 yards and scored five touchdowns for the Browns in a disappointing rookie year.

"Yes, I'm sure some people consider me a disappointment," White, here for ABC's Superstar competition, said Wednesday. "But people who know the business realize that if you go to a good team like the Cleveland Browns, you don't just automatically move into the starting lineup."

White's lackluster 1980 performance was in stark contrast to the job turned in by 1978 Heisman Trophy winner and 1980 NFL rookie Billy Sims, who gained over 1,300 yards in his first season with the Detroit Lions.

The two collegiate stars met Wednesday at the television network's headquarters. The competition features big-name athletes from all sports.

Chris Rickey, boxer from Odessa Nimitz Junior High School, is sent to his corner after scoring knockout over Odessa Hood's Trevor Anderson Wednesday night as the 35th annual Regional Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament got underway in the Ector County Coliseum. Boxers from all over West Texas including Midland, are competing in the giant meet with more than 300 fighters taking their turns in the ring through next Monday night. Open Class winners will go on to state bouts in Fort Worth. (Staff Photo by Paul Gilbert).

Lee, MHS girls in action

Face tough Cooper, Abilene fives tonight

Shirley Stephenson's Midland Lee Rebels took a giant step toward winning the second half District 5-5A girls basketball race with a 42-38 win over San Angelo Monday.

But the Rebels have little time to sit back and enjoy the win. There is still a tough obstacle facing the Rebels in their charge to the top of the hill.

Tonight Lee has to take its 5-0 district mark and 18-10 overall ledger into Abilene to face the dangerous Cooper Cougars. Cooper stands 3-2 in the district race and 16-10 overall.

In the first meeting between the two squads, Lee overcame a Cooper lead in the fourth quarter by holding the Cougars to only three points in the final five minutes of the game to escape with a 50-43 win.

Maudie Akins had one of her finest nights with 13 points and nine rebounds in the victory. Yshun King was the only other Rebels to hit double figures in the game as she tossed in 12 points.

Here in the Tall City tonight, Midland High will be out to avenge a 45-42 defeat to Abilene High when the Purple Pack entertains the Eagles in the MHS gym starting at 8 p.m.

The loss was one that particularly irked Bulldog coach Jane Young. In that contest, MHS outscored the Eagles 20 to 16 from the field but collected only two points from the charity stripe compared to 13 for the home-standing Eagles.

Sonya Roberts was the big gun for the Eagles as she tossed in 23 points. Connie Caton turned in one of her better performances for the Bulldogs with 18 points. Janice Littlefield added 12 tallies to the Bulldog cause.

MHS takes a 3-2 district mark and 14-16 season mark into the encounter. Abilene comes to town with a 19-9 season ledger and 3-2 in district.

The Bulldogs have a slim chance of sharing the second-half district title. But they need a lot of help. Lee has to lose tonight and again Monday in Big Spring while MHS has to whip Abilene tonight and defeat San Angelo Monday evening. San Angelo also has to lose to Odessa High tonight.

In the other District 5-5A games tonight, San Angelo locks horns with the Odessa High Bronchos and Big Spring squares off against Odessa Permian.

Barrientez nabs GG win

ODESSA — One Midland fighter won and one lost here Wednesday in the opening day of the 35th annual Regional Golden Gloves Boxing Tournament in the Ector County Coliseum.

Danny Barrientez, 89-pounder from Midland, decisioned Joe Brito, 93-pounder from Pecos-Barstow in a Junior High School Football Division fight.

Barrientez showed a lot of poise and class in chalking up his victory during the 46-bout card.

Midland's Felix Tagle, a 115-pounder, was beaten by Israel Avila, 109-pounder from Pecos-Barstow by a technical knockout with 41 seconds left in the third round.

Tonight's card features 52 bouts with the finals set for Monday night.

Winners here will advance into the State Golden Gloves Tourney in the Open Division. From Fort Worth, the state champions will move on to the national finals in March.

More than 10,000 boxing fans are expected to watch the regional bouts with fighters taking Sunday off before the finals on Monday night.

Southern Methodist probed by NCAA

DALLAS (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is conducting an investigation of the Southern Methodist University football program, according to college President Dr. Donald Shields.

The Dallas Times Herald said today the NCAA notified SMU officials last fall of certain alleged violations and the school is conducting its own investigation.

Shields would not reveal the type of violations alleged, but issued a brief statement to The Times Herald.

"The NCAA has been in contact with the university and has raised some questions which are concerned with possible rules violations in the conduct of SMU's football program," Shields said.

"As is appropriate under these circumstances, the university administration has been conducting a comprehensive fact-finding analysis regarding these questions and will respond to the NCAA when this analysis has been completed," the statement concluded.

Shields would not discuss particulars of the investigation and declined to say whether it involved possible recruiting violations.

Head football Coach Ron Meyer was out of town on a recruiting trip Wednesday and was not available for comment.

The Mustangs finished regular season play 8-3, good enough for a second-place tie with Houston in the Southwest Conference and a trip to the Holiday Bowl. The Mustangs lost to Brigham Young 46-45 in the closing seconds.

SMU Athletic Director Russ Potts was to hold a news conference today to announce his departure to become vice president for marketing for the Chicago White Sox baseball team.

Potts said his departure has nothing to do with the NCAA investigation. "Under no circumstances was this (Potts' departure) connected to the investigation," an unidentified source told The Times Herald.

The NCAA will not discuss pending investigation.

SMU's football team was on probation between 1974 and 1976 because of allegations that players were paid for such accomplishments as recovering fumbles. The probation kept SMU from appearing in bowl games or on television for two years of the probation.

Arizona rejects money

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Part of the $13,000 that seven former University of Arizona football coaches received in an alleged fake airline ticket scheme was raised to repay the school, but university officials rejected the money as "inappropriate," the Arizona Daily Star said today.

Funds to defray what the former coaches say were their athletic-recruiting deficits were solicited from private citizens in the Tucson area by Lee Goodman, officer of a local savings institution, and George Wallace, special fund-raising assistant to Athletic Director David Strack, Wallace said.

Goodman, who also is president of the Wildcat Club, a local boosters club, declined comment on the fund-raising effort.

Wallace, who serves on the Wildcat Club executive board, said, "We had gathered some money together and presented it to the university, but they felt it was at that time inappropriate."

University President John Schaefer said the offer was rejected because of legal uncertainties.

Chaps battle Amarillo here

Midland College hosts Amarillo College at 8 p.m. today in Chaparral Center in a WJCC game that has a big bearing on how the Chaps will finish the basketball race. But the game also will offer a lot of side attractions.

It will be "Midland Elementary School Night", with all elementary school students in the city admitted free. Passes were distributed this week for the youngsters. Six green and gold Chaparral basketballs autographed by the team will be given away.

ALSO JUNIOR MILLER will be on hand at 7:30 p.m. to sign autographs for the youngsters. Miller, who was a football and basketball standout at Midland Lee and a football All-American at Nebraska, had a spectacular rookie season in the NFL with the Atlanta Falcons. Earning a starting position at tight end mid-way through the year after being the Falcons' No. 1 draft pick, Miller helped the Falcons into the playoffs, was named to the NFL Rookie Team and played in the Pro Bowl last month in Hawaii. The Chaps will also give away a red and white Atlanta Falcon football with Miller's autograph.

MC also will have its usual halftime give away of Chap Super Fan T-shirts and windbreakers, plus the popular McDonald's shooting contest and two dozen miniature basketballs will be thrown into the crowd.

BUT THE SPOTLIGHT will be on the Chaps, who are continuing to go for their first conference title. They currently are tied for the lead with Howard College as both teams have 11-2 records in conference play. Frank Phillips is lurking just behind with a 10-3 record.

Amarillo College, meanwhile, is frightening in many regards for the Chaps. The teams have met three times already, with MC winning all three. Their first meeting was in the first round of the Quarterback Classic in Hutchinson, Kan., and the Chaps had an easy 101-68 victory. But the following week, the Chaps had to struggle for a 102-100 win in the finals of the Amarillo Classic. A month ago, MC barely edged Amarillo, 90-87, in Amarillo in their first conference game.

The Badgers have been awesome at times in the second half of conference play after starting with a 2-7 record. They knocked off league leader Howard, 98-71; beat Odessa, 83-68; defeated Clarendon, 78-72; and edged NMMI, 69-62; before losing Monday to New Mexico Junior College, 98-95.

"We caught Amarillo on an off-night the first time we played them," MC coach Jerry Stone remarked. "But the last two games have been very close and we respect them as much as any team in the conference."

Stone feels the Badgers could have the best raw talent in the league. The Chaps pulled away in the second half of their game with NMMI Monday to post a 96-72 win after leading just 48-42 at the half.

In other conference action Monday, Howard beat South Plains, 85-62;

Frank Phillips beat Clarendon, 62-47; NMJC beat Amarillo and Odessa edged Western Texas.

WNMU coach finds a way

SILVER CITY (AP) — In an era where college basketball recruiting has become almost as sophisticated as the game itself, Dick Drangmeister has found success through a low-budget, home-grown game plan. A transplanted Midwesterner from the Chicago suburb of Calumet City, Ill., Drangmeister has without much fanfare and a recruiting budget that is barely able to keep up with rising telephone rates, built a solid powerhouse at Western New Mexico University. Drangmeister arrived at Western in 1957, lured by a scholarship to play baseball and basketball for the Mustangs. After graduating and spending some time in the high school coaching ranks, he took over the head coaching job at his alma mater prior to the 1969-70 season. Since then, Drangmeister's teams have won 199 games, four Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference championships and have become as popular an attraction locally as the vast copper deposits which form the economic base of this small southwest New Mexico city. And he has built his series of winners through a simple but effective formula — word-of-mouth and a lot of help from some of the players he has coached during his 12 years at the school.

Permian, Midland 5-5A favorites in swimming

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer
The reigning champions in both the boys and girls division of District 5-5A swimming have won the crown the first two years the district has had a swimming championship. But they are facing stern challenges for their crowns when the district swimmers gather in Midland's Mabee Memorial Swim Center Friday and Saturday to determine district champions for the 1980-81 season. In the boys division, defending champion Midland Lee's tankers will be hard pressed by a hard-charging Odessa Permian squad for the title. ACCORDING TO Lee coach David Whytlaw, the Rebels have faced the Mojo three times this season and have ended up on the short end of the stick every time. In the first meet of the year in December, Lee was edged by Mojo by five points when the Rebels went without one of their top swimmers. Permian then added wins over the Rebels in the Odessa and Midland Invitationals. Whytlaw predicts, "The meet will go down to the last event if we swim well. If we don't swim well we won't be there." Lee will have 20 boys entered in the competition with Whytlaw counting heavily on Ronnie Black in diving, Cleve Carrens, Jon Franke, Lee Hill, Andy Williams, Bruce and Mark Quenzer to score for the Rebels. WHYTLAW ADDED, "Permian has a bunch of boys and they will be very strong in the freestyle." Boys to watch for Mojo include Bobby Breaux, Mike DeMarco, Tanner Sellinger, Donnie Carver, Matt

Franklin and Shawn Sedate. Over in the Purple Pack camp, MHS member Jesse Marsh feels, "We will be in the middle stage; about third. The title is a toss up between Permian and Lee with Mojo having a slight edge." Marsh is looking to Billy Worley, James Schupp, Kendall Skinner, Mark Seery, Brain Birdwell and Devin Williams to score for the Purple Pack. The coaches felt that San Angelo can challenge for third with the other schools: Odessa High, Abilene, Abilene Cooper and Big Spring having individuals that can score points but not able to mount a serious challenge. In the girls competition, Midland High is the hands down favorite to unseat defending champion Permian. LEE'S WHYTLAW says, "MHS without any problem.

They will go on and win the regional in Lubbock two weeks from now." Marsh tempered his feelings a little, saying, "We only have eight girls in the preliminaries but six of those girls should be swimming on Saturday in the finals. If they swim like they are capable we should do alright." Marsh is counting on Lori Thompson, Gretch Koch, Andrea Freeman, Suzi Simpson, Julie Spaug and Janie Dowdle to rack up enough points to bring the championship trophy to MHS. According to Marsh, the Bulldogs were hurt when Carrie Mayes fell victim to poor grades and was declared ineligible at the semester break in January. With Mayes, Marsh felt that the MHS Head Relay could have challenged for a top finish in the state.

MHS' BIGGEST challenge should come from Permian and Lee. Lee will have 11 girls in the meet with Whytlaw looking to Sandi Colson, Diane Slaton, Doreen McGookey, Emily Murrach and Sara Stone to provide most of the punch. Both coaches agreed the meet would be "good and exciting" and that they are "ready to go." The top eight finishers in the preliminaries will advance to the finals. In the finals, the top six will score plus qualify for the regionals in Lubbock. Each team is allowed four individuals per event and one medley and one freestyle relay team. The scoring is 7, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, for individual events with the point total doubled for the relays.

Borg favored to capture big Grand Slam tennis

BOCA WEST, Fla. (AP) — Bjorn Borg, coming off his first loss to Jimmy Connors since 1978, says he's not concerned about his slow start this year. Borg is favored to capture the $300,000 Pepsi Grand Slam tennis tournament here this weekend. He's won it four straight years. Borg is 6-3 in matches so far in 1981, and added to that is the default last Sunday to Connors in the consolation match of the $500,000 Tennis Challenge in Toronto. Earlier, he lost to Connors and John McEnroe in Toronto. Borg also lost a meaningless match to Gene Mayer in the Volvo Grand Prix Masters in New York, but went on to win the tournament. "There's no way you can win all the time," Borg said. "You've got to lose once in a while. And they were playing well, especially Jimmy. I didn't play as well as I wanted to." Borg said he was "pretty sick with the flu the week after the Masters. I was a little down during the Toronto tournament but I had no fever. Otherwise, I'm fine and I have no injuries. I'm looking forward to the tournament this week." His competition in the first round Friday will be Guillermo Vilas, and then, if he wins, the winner of the John McEnroe-Brian Teacher match Saturday. The tournament, which invites winners of the tennis's top events, awards a $150,000 first prize. Borg said last year's marriage to Mariana Simionescu hasn't affected his game. "Not yet, anyway," he said. "I don't think it should. Before we were married, I was living with her four or five years and the only thing different is that we got married." Borg's coach, Lennart Bergelin, isn't worried. "There has been no change in his attitude or desire," Bergelin said. "He's still very disciplined. He still practices a lot and is trying his best all the time."

Magic set for return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Injured Los Angeles star Earvin "Magic" Johnson will probably return to action on Feb. 27 when the Lakers host the New Jersey Nets, Laker owner Jerry Buss said Wednesday night. Team physician Dr. Robert Kerlan has given Johnson, who underwent knee surgery Nov. 24, permission to play as early as Feb. 20, Buss said, adding that he did not want to bring him back so soon as to endanger the knee. It had been speculated that Johnson would make his return to the Laker lineup on Feb. 22 against the Knicks in New York. "Doctor Kerlan, his staff and Magic have done all that should and can possibly be done and I am assured that he is as ready as he can be to return to competitive action," Buss said.

UCLA's Brown criticizes school

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA basketball Coach Larry Brown says his criticism of what he considers some of the university's shortcomings doesn't mean he's headed back to the pro coaching ranks. "I don't mean it that way. I don't want to threaten anybody. I just wanted something better for the kids," he said Wednesday when asked if he was disillusioned about remaining in Westwood. Brown, whose name has been linked with the New Jersey Nets coaching job, earlier this week spoke of his dismay at delays involved in improving the schools' athletic program, including construction of new facilities. He also said that more seats in Pauley Pavilion should be allotted for students. "I said what I had to say," said Brown, whose eighth-ranked Bruins host Arizona Thursday night. "I want what's best for the athletic program and I want what's best for the kids. "I just more or less said they (administration officials) were dragging their feet in a lot of ways and that bothers me." Earlier, Brown admitted that his criticism sounded like that of a coach "headed for Jersey," but he explained Wednesday that the comment was made in jest. "The conversation got kind of crazy," he said. "Every week they tell me I'm going somewhere else. I'm not threatening to leave. It's not a threat. "I'm not angry. I'm frustrated. I'm tired of hearing 'we did it this way and we won without you.' That doesn't answer my question. It's not that I don't respect the way they did it, but things change. "I'm the guy that Mr. Morgan (the late UCLA athletic director J.D. Morgan) hired for the job and they put a lot of responsibility on me. I think if

I'm going to run the program I have to do it my way." Brown's name has come up at almost every NBA coaching vacancy in the 1 1/2 years he has been at UCLA, but to date he has stated a preference to remain at UCLA and generate more interest in the school's entire athletic program. He took a team that finished fourth in the Pacific-10 Conference — a league it once dominated — to the final of the NCAA championships last year and the Bruins are 14-4 this season. Brown primarily was upset at what he views as UCLA's lack of encouragement for student attendance at basketball games. He said the school has reduced the student seating section to about 4,000. Pauley Pavilion has a capacity of 12,800 for basketball games. But Brown added, "I'm not asking for specific things for basketball. That's what I want to make everybody aware of. And I'm not afraid to be a spokesman. I'm not trying to step on anybody's toes. "I just want what's best for those kids who matriculate at UCLA and take part in the athletic program."

YMCA honors Jim Hart

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veteran St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback Jim Hart was honored today by the YMCA as the recipient of its annual Brian Piccolo award for humanitarian service. The award is given annually to the athlete who best contributes to the betterment of mankind and his community. The award was presented today by the national board of the YMCAs of the United States.

Yes Virginia, there really is a Santa Claus

By The Associated Press

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus... and according to North Carolina State Coach Jim Valvano, he could easily pass for Charles Watkins, an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball official.

What got Valvano all steamed up was a crucial call by Watkins with 2:14 to play Wednesday night that helped the top-ranked, unbeaten Virginia Cavaliers take the lead and go on to defeat N.C. State 51-46 on the losers' court.

WITH THE Wolfpack clinging to a 42-41 lead, Virginia's Jeff Jones tied up State's Derek Whittenburg in the backcourt. Valvano screamed for a foul but Watkins called a jump ball.

Virginia won the tap and Lee Raker's layup put the Cavaliers on top to stay. Jeff Lamp's driving layup gave them some breathing room as they extended the nation's longest winning streak to 26 games, 21 this season.

"You can't tell me that was a jump ball," Valvano snorted. "It looked to me like they were trying to foul. We were up and time was running down. Was it a questionable call? You tell me."

"We could have had a three-point lead, but we turned up with a jump ball. It happened right in front of me. I can't imagine that not being a foul. I don't mind losing a game if the opposition makes a super play, a steal or a tough shot. You can live with that. But a couple of unbelievable calls turned the game around."

VIRGINIA COACH Terry Holland almost agreed with Valvano's assessment of the game-turning call.

"We told our kids to just go after the basketball and if we got a foul, fine," he said. "We were going to have to foul eventually, anyway."

In another key ACC contest just down the road in Chapel Hill, seventh-ranked Wake Forest swamped No. 10 North Carolina 84-68. Three other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty, all from the Southeastern Conference, were in action and all were winners — fourth-ranked Louisiana State trimmed Alabama 70-57, No. 9 Tennessee edged Florida 53-52 and No. 11 Kentucky downed Mississippi 62-55.

Virginia wrapped up its victory over N.C. State when Raker hit two free throws with 13 seconds left and 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, who led the Cavaliers with 17 points, made two more with one second remaining. Virginia committed 16 turnovers but the Wolfpack sealed its own fate by shooting only 39 percent.

"Talented players determine the outcome of a game," Valvano raved. "That's what college basketball is all about. I've been nice all year, but this is too much. I really don't know what to say. If you lose and criticize the officiating, it's sour grapes. But you can't tell me that was a jump ball. I'd like the commissioner to take a look."

Mike Helms scored 20 points, one of five Wake Forest players in double figures as the Deacons handed North Carolina a second straight home-court loss for the first time since 1973. Wake Forest raced to an early 20-4 lead and was never seriously threatened.

THE LEAD was 43-22 at halftime and it grew to 62-32 midway through the second half. Besides Helms, Jay Johnstone scored 17 points, Alvis Rodgers and Guy Morgan 13 and Frank Johnson 12 for Wake Forest (19-2). Al Wood led Carolina (18-6) with 20.

"I can't remember us being dominated like that, especially here," said Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "We're embarrassed as a team."

Jaeger set for Bohm

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Andrea Jaeger says she's never played Sweden's Nina Bohm, but she couldn't care less.

"My dad scouts my opponents for me," said the 15-year-old from Lincolnshire, Ill., on the eve of her second-round match against Bohm today in the $125,000 Avon Championships of California.

"I go home and watch TV and let him do all the hard stuff," she said. Jaeger must do some work, though. She was seeded second coming into the tournament and is now the top-ranked player remaining after the first-round defeat of Martina Navratilova earlier.

Jaeger overwhelmed Marianne Van Der Torre of Holland 6-1, 6-2 in less than an hour Wednesday.

"When I had crucial points, I said to myself, 'I can't miss this one,'" said Van Der Torre. "Then I did."

In another match Wednesday, 17-year-old Claudia Kohde of West Germany defeated South African Rosalyn Fairbank 6-3, 6-0. That set up a quarterfinal match between the unseeded Kohde, 18, and Virginia Wade, seeded fifth in the tournament.

In another second-round match today, Leslie Allen faced No. 6 seed Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia.

Wade, of Great Britain, won 6-4, 6-3 Wednesday over Paula Smith. Another seeded player, No. 3 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, advanced to the quarters with a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Julie Harrington.

Meanwhile, freshman Leonard Mitchell scored 14 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead LSU (22-1) over Alabama, while Ethan Martin sparked the Tigers' 21st consecutive triumph. It was a 26-25 game when Martin paced a 17-4 spurt early in the second half with two baskets, two steals and several assists.

"I looked like the team that got us where we are today," said Coach Dale Brown. "The defense was really brilliant."

TENNESSEE, HOWEVER, needed

Michael Brooks' jump shot from the top of the key with 29 seconds left to turn back Florida. The Vols (17-4) erased a three-point deficit in the final two minutes and Brooks scored four of his eight points in the final 60 seconds. Dale Ellis led the Vols with 16 points.

"This is a monumental win for us," said Coach Don DeVoe. "It's been weeks since we won other than in our own back yard."

Sam Bowie was the only Kentucky player in double figures but the 7-1 center scored 13 of his 25 points in a four-minute span midway through the second that helped the Wildcats (17-4) break open a tight game and defeat Ole Miss.

Elsewhere: —SEC scoring leader Dominique Wilkins tallied 29 points and Eric Marbury canned six free throws in overtime as Georgia shaded Mississippi State 68-65, while Auburn snapped an 11-game losing streak by shooting 79 percent and whipping Vanderbilt 69-59. Frank Pointexter scored 19 of his 21 points in the second half.

—St. John's and Boston College remained tied for the lead in the Big East Conference. The former defeated Connecticut 72-65 while BC topped Providence 70-55.

—Randy Reed scored 21 points and Tyrone Adams added 18 to help Kansas State defeat Oklahoma State 73-70 and tie the Cowboys for second place in the Big Eight behind Missouri.

—And Jasper McElroy scored 17 points to lead all five starters in double figures as Western Michigan knocked off Eastern Michigan 69-58 and retained sole possession of first place in the Mid-American Conference.

Yankee catcher recording star

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

The button clicks on the recorder, and the strains of a lilting, soulful song wafts through the room:

"The snow now hides the bleachers.

"From the dugout's empty scene.

"But here I stand remembering when "The infield's grass was green."

Frank Sinatra? Kenny Rogers? Johnny Cash? Nope. None of these. The crooner is Rick Cerone, the dashing young bachelor who has replaced the late Thurman Munson behind the plate for the New York Yankees.

Already involved in a wide variety of outside interests, including a national TV commercial for "10" jeans, a reign as king of the New York Auto Show and a series of benefits for Italian earthquake victims, the 26-year-old catcher now has emerged a potential recording star.

Within the next few days, disc jockeys will be spinning a record written especially for Cerone and sung by the man himself. It's called "A Long Run Home."

"I never sang in my life except in the shower," Cerone explained almost apologetically when he gathered with the song's writers and producers this week in an East Side restaurant in New York.

"This record just happened. The idea came last November when I was in Hartford, Conn., for a Babe Ruth League dinner. Alan Beck (an announcer for station WTNF) mentioned it. We discussed it. Carl Henry and Bill Hudak wrote the lyrics. Denning Bono was the producer.

"So we went down to the Hartford studio and recorded it. It took about two hours."

He has asked that all proceeds go to victims of last November's earthquake near Naples, home of his paternal grandparents.

Cerone explained that it is a ballad of his return to Yankee Stadium on a stormy, snowy day in mid-winter. He goes there hoping to see the face of a girl in the stands whom he had noticed during the season.

"I'm not sure why I'm drawn here now," he croons.

"When I should be miles away.

"But I thought I saw her watching me

"In the stands against the Jays."

The record, on a "Reel Dreams" label, already has been exposed to some disc jockeys, who give it high marks and predict it could be a hit. Cerone's voice comes across smooth as dripping honey.

"I took so long to get here,

"I guess I can't complain.

"A man must make a sacrifice,

"And it's a long run home this winter's day."

When Cerone, a .228 average hitter, was obtained from the Toronto Blue Jays in November, 1979, in the Chris Chambliss trade, he joined the Yankees under the weight of the heaviest possible pressure.

Three months before, Munson, the Yankee captain and inspirational leader, had died in the crash of his private plane in Akron, Ohio.

The Yankees were crushed. Munson was almost deified. A commemorative plaque was placed in a special area behind the centerfield fence alongside the monuments of such immortals as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Miller Huggins. His locker, with uniform and gear intact, was draped in black as a memorial.

Awards have been set up and dinners staged in the name of the late Yankee catcher, Cerone always a special guest.

"Munson was a great catcher but I couldn't be caught up in his shadow," Cerone says. "I couldn't feel I was replacing anyone. I just had to be me."

Cerone said actually he drew inspiration and incentive from the Munson legend.

"I knew people would be watching," he explained. "If I did well, they would know it. If I did poorly, they would just say I couldn't handle it. It was expected."

Informer claims he paid BC players to fix games

(Compiled from R-T wire services)

Henry Hill, a government informer allegedly involved in a number of organized crime schemes, says he paid three Boston College players to shave points during the 1978-79 college basketball season. In a copyrighted story in the Feb. 16 edition of Sports Illustrated, Hill said the scheme began with BC teammates Rick Kuhn and Jim Sweeney. Eventually, it expanded to include Ernie Cobb, the star of the team, whose cooperation was needed for the shaving to work. Hill says nine games were to be fixed but the gamblers involved won on only six of them. "We really had our ups and downs. But when the last pass had been thrown out of bounds, I had won six of the games, lost on three and made between $75,000 and $100,000. Not bad for 11 weeks work." According to Hill, the players made about $10,000 each...

Midland Soccer Association holding final spring sing-up on Saturday

The Midland Soccer Association will hold its final sign-up for the spring soccer season from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Parks and Recreation Department, 300 Baldwin St.

The registration is for boys and girls from kindergarten through high school and the fee is $15.

There will also be a referee clinic Saturday and Feb. 22 at 2 p.m. each day in the Hogan Park activities building. The two-day clinic is designed for the inexperienced individuals who wish to become qualified referees. Those already trained may also desire to attend the clinic to brush up on rules and skills.

All girls and boys from the sixth grade up and men and women interested in being referees should attend the clinic. The clinic will be conducted by Norm Frable and Mike Messingale.

A coaching clinic is set for March 7 at the P&R office. The clinic will begin at 10 a.m. and end at 2:30 p.m. with a 30 minute break at noon. The first two hours will be devoted to instruction and the last two hours will be on ball handling skills and techniques. Jeff Starr, licensed and certified by the USSF, will be the instructor.

Season play begins March 4 and runs through mid-May. There will be a soccer school for children in June, which will be sponsored by MSA and taught by a professional soccer player. Details will be released later.

Oklahoma State lands two QBs

By The Associated Press

The Oklahoma State Cowboys landed two star quarterbacks in the 24 players to Big Eight Conference letters-of-intent, while the Sooners had 19 on their new player roster after the first signing day Wednesday.

A 13th state player, tackle Bill Littrell, of Marlow, was to sign with OU today.

One of the most prized of the Cowboy signees is a player they hope will spark the sluggish Cowboy offense.

Alan Cockrell, a 6-2, 200-pound, quarterback from Parkwood High School in Joplin, Mo., passed for 3,499 yards during his high school career. He told the Cowboys he will sign a national letter next with OSU, but they can't count on him being in uniform until after the June baseball draft. A .525 hitter, Cockrell may sign a pro baseball contract this summer if the offer is right.

Anthony Gulley, who signed a conference letter with OSU but also signed a Southwest Conference letter with TCU, was rated by one publication as the best in Texas.

Gulley is to make known his final decision on Wednesday when a national letter is due.

"Gulley is one of the best athletes in Texas," said Johnson. "We'll just have to wait and see."

Other signees for the Cowboys Wednesday were nine backs. They were Anthony Curtis 6-1, 195, of Stillwater, Mark Barre, 5-11, 196, of Tulsa Washington; Tim Hooks, 5-9, 194 of Tulsa Washington; Eddie Goodlow, 5-10, 210, of Altus; Kelly Cook, 5-11, 200, Midwest City; Jeff Lee, 6-0, 225, of Muskogee; Rod Brown, 6-2, 175, Gainesville, Texas; Dirk Davis, 5-11, 180, Dallas, and Ronnie Manuel, 6-2, 194, Gainesville, Texas.

"We feel Jeff Lee is one of the finest football players in the state," Johnson said. "I think Kelly Cook is one player who may have slipped away from because some people may have felt he's reached his potential. But anybody who's done the things he's done (3,207 yards rushing for two seasons) can be a contributor in our program."

Goodlow, the state's only Parade magazine All-America pick, "is the type of player who can come in and play immediately," Johnson said.

The Cowboys signed wide receiver Ron Krushie, 6-1, 180, of Hominy.

They also inked linebackers David Thornton, 6-4, 205, of Oklahoma City Douglas; Greg Thomas, 6-4, 204, Idaho; Doug Maritan, 6-2, 210, of Tulsa Memorial, who also plays tight end, and Ralph Partido, 6-3, 225, Dallas.

Other Texans recruited by OSU were: noseguard Keith Brown, 6-2, 230, Midland; tackle Paul Carroll, 6-3, 235, Dallas; guard Irl Conally, 6-3, 232, Midland, and defensive tackle Don Williams, 6-3, 220, Hurst.

KENNY REDIN'S Fin & Feather

FLORIEN, LA. — Storied Toledo Bend, which soaks 118 miles of the Texas-Louisiana border, is a legendary fish producer and the BASS Anglers Sportsman Society's upcoming Louisiana Invitational has attracted an entry field befitting the lake's size and stature.

A full 250-man field, including most of the biggest names in fishing, will be competing for the $11,700 first prize. The winners earns a Ranger bass boat, valued at $6,700 plus $5,000 cash. Total purse is $75,000.

The tournament is the second of seven B.A.S.S. events on the 1981 tournament trail leading up to the prestigious BASS Masters Classic.

Picking a pre-tournament favorite is difficult, particularly because most of the entries know Toledo Bend well and limit catches of seven bass should not be uncommon. The first flight of fishermen leaves Pleasure Points State Park at 7 a.m. each day, returning to the weigh-in in three flights beginning at 2:30 p.m.

One man to watch is Harold Allen. Allen, 35, recently moved to Batesville, Miss., where he promotes Skeeter Boats and other manufacturers, but for the previous nine years, he worked on Toledo Bend as a pro guide. Not only is he knowledgeable, he's hot. Only last weekend, Allen won a tournament on another circuit catching a two-day limit of 20 fish that weighed 70 pounds—a heft three and one-half pound average per bass.

"I'd love for the tournament to be tomorrow," Allen said, "I'm ready."

Allen said the lake water level is down five to seven feet from normal, meaning the anglers will likely find their fish along flooded creek channels and tree lines, rather than on shallow flats, traditional hot spots that are now standing out of the water.

"I like my chances," Allen said, "especially if the wind doesn't blow. I'm more familiar with the area north of headquarters, so I'm going to be making that long run. A big blow could really hurt me."

Allen points to lake resident/guides Tommy Martin and Larry Nixon, both of Hemphill, Texas, as potential winners, along with Oklahoma Roland Martin, who won the first tournament this season at Lake Okecho-bee in Florida.

"It's a good tournament lake," said B.A.S.S. Tournament Director Harold Sharp. "Every time we bring a tournament here in February, the guys catch a lot of fish. The people are going to see some good catches."

In 1976, Toledo Bend yielded 6,257 pounds of bass during one three-day B.A.S.S. tournament, meaning the anglers caught and released alive better than one ton of fish per day—big water, big fish, and during the Louisiana Invitational, big money.

Payton is highest paid NFL player

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Star running back Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears was the highest-paid player in the National Football League last year with $475,000, according to a study published today by the San Francisco Chronicle.

The newspaper, matching names to figures in a supposedly secret NFL annual salary survey, also reported that veteran Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins earned more than any other quarterback — $400,025.

The survey did not take into account incentive bonuses, which would have raised running back Earl Campbell's pay to about $500,000 from the reported $300,000, the paper added.

None of the players on the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders were at the top of the NFL pay scale for their positions.

Only two of the Raiders were among the five best-paid players at their spots: quarterback Dan Pastorini and linebacker Ted Hendricks.

The Raiders generally have been noted for paying substantial — though not extremely high or low — salaries to their players.

Pastorini, who earned $358,333, was injured five games into the season and was replaced by castoff Jim Plunkett, a $180,003 a year player who led the team to the Super Bowl championship.

The paper said Plunkett's salary turned out to be a great bargain — but that it was a lot to pay for a player who had been cut after the 1977 season by the San Francisco 49ers and who didn't play at all in 1978.

The salaries were listed by position and year of experience "and the process of putting names next to many of the numbers is a relatively simple one, based on public announcements of contracts and discussions with knowledgeable people in the NFL," the Chronicle said.

According to the survey, the league average for all players was $78,657 a year, a 14.2 percent increase above 1979.

Quarterbacks, who averaged $131,206, were the best paid. Running backs averaged $83,469, receivers $75,968, offensive linemen $74,596, defensive linemen $85,683, linebackers $70,753, defensive backs $68,753 and kickers $60,861.

The best paid running backs, besides Payton, were Billy Sims, Detroit Lions, $377,500; Tony Dorsett, Dallas Cowboys, $320,000; Chuck Foreman, New England Patriots, $300,000, and Campbell.

Trailing Griese among quarterbacks were Archie Manning, New Orleans Saints, $367,500; Pastorini; Terry Bradshaw, Pittsburgh Steelers, $329,500 and Bert Jones, Baltimore Colts, $300,000.

Houston's Ken Stabler earned $282,000; Ken Anderson, Cincinnati Bengals, $275,000; Richard Todd, New York Jets, $266,667; Jim Hart, St. Louis Cardinals, $250,000; Steve Bartkowski, Atlanta Falcons, $230,753; Craig Morton, Denver Broncos, $231,667; Dan Fouts, San Diego, $230,000; Joe Ferguson, Buffalo, $230,000; Greg Landry, Baltimore, $185,033; Plunkett; Doug Williams, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, $133,750, and Phil Simms of the New York Giants, $133,333.

Denver offensive linemen Claudio Minor, Bill Bryan and Tom Glassie earned $230,000, $156,667 and $155,000, respectively, on a line that allowed 44 sacks last year. Kansas City paid Brad Budde $165,833, Oakland gave Gene Upshaw and Art Shell $137,504 apiece and New England paid John Hannah $150,400.

The best-paid defensive linemen was Chicago's Alan Page at $233,333. Pittsburgh's Joe Greene earned $231,750. Oakland's Cedrick Hardman earned $115,000 and $145,000.

Alvin Lou captures PBA lead

FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — Alvin Lou, seeking to become the first bowler to successfully defend his championship on the Professional Bowlers Association tour in more than a year, rolled to the second-round lead Wednesday night in the $110,000 Rolids Open.

A right-hander from El Cajon, Calif., Lou fired 1,505 for his first six games and backed that up with a 1,339 total in round two. For 12 games, he totals 2,844 with a 237 average.

Lou leads Gil Sliker of Washington, N.J., by 20 pins. The 31-year-old Sliker made the biggest jump of the second session as he uncorked a 1,520 series for six games on scores of 277, 235, 237, 248, 245 and 278, to leap from 24th place into contention.

Mal Acosta of Hayward, Calif., is third, 82 pins behind, followed by Tom Baker of Buffalo, N.Y., in fourth, 143 pins off the pace. Mark Roth of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., is fifth, 145 pins behind Lou.

Lou, 26, won his first career PBA crown in this event last year, followed by another victory two months later in Milwaukee.

Leftovers from sports banquet

Leftovers from a Midland Sports Banquet... Guest speaker Bobby Winkles is more than just a fast-draw quipster. As a Chicago White Sox coach, he is responsible for the infield and he believes that is where the South Side's Pale Hose may show the most improvement. "Todd Cruz can give us the kind of shortstopping we've been lacking. He has a history of making a lot of errors, but he cut it down to just two the final month of last season and we are hoping that carries over."

Another area of improvement will be the acquisition of Ron LeFlore. "With 97 stolen bases last year, he solves our leadoff problem."

IN REGARD to the sale of the White Sox this winter, Winkles feels it has to help. "With all due respect to Bill Veck's innovated showmanship, he just didn't have the resources to compete in today's free agent market."

Although he quit Charley Finley with Oakland in first place by two games in his second managerial job, Winkles credits the former A's owner with the best advice he ever received in regard to managing when Finley cautioned, "Don't buy. Rent."

UNFORTUNATELY, Bobby's first major league managerial job was with California when he became the first college coach (Arizona State) to jump from the college campus to a major league dugout as head man. Bobby bought, liked it, and never sold. He still lives in Anaheim during the off season. In the summer, he lives in a Masonic Home and works with youngsters in LaGrange, 14 miles from Comiskey Park...

Ex-Midlander Eddie LeBaron says, "They came to me. I didn't go them," when he gave up a Las Vegas law practice to become general manager of the Atlanta Falcons four years ago, a relationship that has proved most rewarding for both parties.

The Falcons beat out 1980 Super Bowl finalist LA for the divisional title and had a spot clinched in the NFC finals this season only to be struck down in the fourth quarter by Dallas' Drew White lightning.

LEBARON attributes the versatility Midland's Junior Miller gave the Falcons at tight end as one of the ingredients that contributed to that success. "With the changes that have opened up the passing game, Junior gave us not only the short passing threat, but the deep threat we didn't have before."

With the Falcons on the verge of becoming an established contender for many years to come, LeBaron says the Falcons will attempt to shore up the defense in this year's draft. "We'd like a premiere running back, but with a 26th round draft choice, there isn't much hope of that." It would be a nice luxury, a Sims or Campbell, but with one of the best offensive lines in the NFL, the Falcons aren't hurting a running back...

WHEN NOLAN Ryan came from the Angels to the Astros last season, "I didn't think pitching in the Astrodome would make that much difference, but I soon discovered how wrong I was. It's the best park in baseball to pitch in. The ball just doesn't carry."

Ryan's debut year with the Astros wasn't quite what he had hoped for, but "in the American League I had the confidence in knowing the hitters. Coming to the National League after an eight-year absence, I no longer knew the hitters. I didn't think it would effect me that much, but it did. Now that I know the hitters, I feel I'll do better."

Ryan doesn't set number goals for himself. "I just want to stay healthy so I can take my regular turn. But I'll be disappointed if I don't win 15."

After several years with the Mets, then the AL hit with the Angels and now the Astros, Ryan sees very little difference in the playing talent. "The National League is more aggressive, the parks and climate (more warm weather cities) are better and with two fewer teams, it helps with travel.

Cancer Society to have coping course

The Midland Unit of the American Cancer Society wants to increase a patient's knowledge of cancer, increase the control he has over his own life, as well as decrease the anxiety he feels about his life through the use of a self-help course on cancer, to begin as a six-week program held on Monday nights on Feb. 23 in Room 441 of Midland Memorial Hospital.

The course, "I Can Cope," was developed by ACS with one goal in mind: to help cancer patients become an essential part of their own treatment team. Today it's recognized that medical treatment can be significantly enhanced by a patient's attitude. Attitude can play a part in calming one's fears, diminishing one's anger and overcoming one's numbness. The program is designed to help people learn to achieve more control of their own health.

"I Can Cope" is an educational program that helps people with their concerns, which the ACS hopes will bring a new beginning for the patient.

Classes are offered by several local health care professionals, including physicians, nurses, social workers, dietitians, ministers, psychotherapist, psychologists and educators.

For more information on the program please call the American Cancer Society at 683-6374 or 563-0204.

There is no cost for participants of the course. The resource staff donates its time. Contributions to defray the cost of presenting I Can Cope and any I Can Cope projects would be greatly appreciated. Checks can be made out to the American Cancer Society, in care of I Can Cope, 601 S. Main St., Midland, Texas 79701.

Varied courses to be starting at MC

Evening short courses at Midland College scheduled to begin Monday are as follows: Defensive Driving, Stained Glass I, Jewelry Making, Speedwriting I, Test-Taking Strategies, Silk Screening, Tole Painting I and II and Pottery. The Pottery class has already reached its limit of 12 students and cannot accept more applicants at this time.

Several of the courses which have a student limit are approaching those limits now. James Bramlett, director of the MC Community Services Department which sponsors short courses, suggests that prospective students call the college to check on availability prior to pre-registration. The number is 684-7851, extension 147 or 216.

Defensive Driving is a three-evening course taught by Alan Brown. Classes meet 7 to 10 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Fee is $15. Midland College is authorized to teach this course in preventive techniques and driving skills.

Stained Glass I, taught by Beverly Wagner, is limited to 16 students. Mrs. Wagner teaches the design and construction of leaded glass. Students will work on individual projects.

Supplies cost about $100 and the course fee is $28. Classes meet 7 to 9 p.m. on Mondays for six weeks. Jewelry-making, or metal-casting, teaches students to build their own wax models and transform the design into finished metal projects. Instructor is Larry Gilbert.

Students may select the metals they wish to work with, and the cost of supplies varies according to selection. Classes meet 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays for eight weeks, and the course fee is $22.

Speedwriting I, taught by Maxine Jarnagin, is the ABC system of shorthand based on longhand. Book for this course may be purchased at the MC Bookstore. Classes meet 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays for four weeks. Course fee is $20.

Test-Taking Strategies is a six-week course designed to help students upgrade their test-taking abilities. Instructor Roy Amick discusses a number of tests normally encountered at universities. Students learn relaxation procedures to enhance memory, increase concentration and lengthen attention-span.

The course is geared toward the bright student who has difficulty taking tests. Class hours are 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays. Fee is $15.

Silk-screening, taught by Charles Luccous, covers the procedures involved in the silk-screen process of reproduction. Layout, design, screen preparation and ink mixtures are included in this six-week course which meets 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays. Fee is $15. The class is limited to 15 students.

Tole Painting II, taught by Connie Anderson, is an intermediate course for students who have prior experience in the art. Following a review of basic procedures, classes advance to painting more difficult designs and projects. Classes are limited to 15 students and meet 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays for six weeks. Fee is $20.

Connie Anderson's course on Tole Painting I will be Thursday. This is an introduction to the art of decorative painting for those inexperienced or non-painters who have a desire to learn the technique. Students will paint with oils on a variety of surfaces, including tin and wood.

Classes are limited to 15 students and will meet 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursdays for six weeks. Fee is $20.

Pre-registration is under way in Room 156 of the MC Administration Building. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Texas the exception to winter grain crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winter grain crops remained generally dormant last week because of sharp drops in temperatures, says the government's weather watcher. The exception was in Texas.

"Substantial precipitation was limited to the Gulf coastal areas and the Northeast," the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility said Tuesday in a report covering the week of Feb. 2-8. "At week's end, a front brought moderate rain into southern California and a winter storm was developing in the southern plains."

Crop conditions continued favorable for corn and soybeans in the Southern Hemisphere, but in the Northern Hemisphere it was dry in Spain and northern Italy as well as in the United States, the report said.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Wednesday he will not try to blame middlemen for rising food prices.

"We know that, in the past, the food industry has taken much of the blame for accelerating rates of inflation," Block said. "But this administration will not engage in any finger-pointing."

Farmers get only about 40 cents of each dollar consumers spend for groceries, meaning that those who transport, process and sell food after it leaves the farm get the larger share.

But Block reiterated his position that "American food buyers are getting a bargain" by comparison to "other sectors of the economy and in relation to other countries."

Block made his comments in remarks prepared for delivery at a meeting here of The Food Group, an association of processors and others affiliate with food and fiber industries.

East Texas sheriff arresting policemen

EAST MOUNTAIN, Texas (AP) — Sheriff's deputies armed with arrest warrants combed through this small East Texas town, looking to arrest every city law enforcement agent on charges of impersonating a police officer.

City Marshal James Morgan and two of his reserve officers, Phillip Luchau and David Patterson, were arrested Monday on five separate charges by Upshur County Sheriff Dale Dewkes, who said he was enforcing the orders of a county grand jury.

Morgan, elected City Marshal in May 1980, was booked into the county jail, then released on $500 bond after his arraignment before Justice of the Peace W.V. Ray. The same thing happened to Patterson and Luchau and Jewkes said warrants have been issued for five more reserve officers.

The sheriff said the arrests came after a grand jury recommended charges against the marshal and his reserve officers because they had not completed a state certification course within six months of the time they assumed their duties, as required by state law.

Jewkes said the investigation began last August, triggered by complaints about a "speed trap" in the town, which was incorporated three years ago. Any officers who issued tickets or made arrests but had not been certified was violating state law.

Jack Ryle of the State Commission on Law Enforcement standards, which also took part in the investigation, said, "In effect, what they were doing is to impersonate a police officer."

The charges said Morgan recklessly appointed a police officer and that his reserve officers recklessly accepted appointment as a peace officer.

City Commissioners met Monday night and voted to seek no changes in Morgan's department, despite having been advised of the certification requirement last year.

"We voted to continue our present police department ... not suspend anyone and to back the department 100 percent," said Commissioner Fabe Pace.

East Mountain Mayor Ralph Collins said the charges are the result of a group of dissatisfied people trying to dissolve the city government because of the taxes needed to pay for municipal services.

District Attorney Dwight Bannon said Tuesday the situation has resulted in dismissal of several speeding tickets written in East Mountain, and refusal to house East Mountain prisoners in the county jail.

"The county is in a sticky situation," he said. "If we house a prisoner in jail and the officers making the arrest are not certified, it becomes a difficult legal question."

Londoners seeing red over new plan

By ED BLANCHE Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — A plan to paint British telephone boxes yellow is making traditionalists see red. Like bulls enraged by a matador's red cape, the noblemen of the House of Lords ranted at the plan to erase another of Britain's fleeting traditions.

The Conservative Earl of Gowrie told the Lords Wednesday that the plan to give Britain's traditionally Royal Red phone boxes a paint job was "utter folly."

"I do earnestly implore the Post Office people to abandon this ridiculous scheme," said the peer, a poet and art dealer by trade.

Lord Gridley, another veteran Conservative, suggested that British Telecom, the Post Office department that runs the phone service, would be do better to spend the estimated $2.33 million it will cost to paint the 77,000 phone boxes on improving the phone service.

The true blue Daily Mail launched a campaign to torpedo what it called "the Yellow Peril."

Britain's red phone booths are now an endangered species, one of the last symbols of the old country's heritage and culture, the Mail lamented in a front-page editorial.

"Keep Our Phone Boxes Red," the paper declared, rolling off a long list of losses such as the disappearance of pounds, shillings and pence through decimalization; and yards, rods and furlongs through metrication.

Daily Mail columnist Christopher Booker said the Telecom scheme was "greeted by such a howl of derision and mockery that one can only think there was some deeper reason for the near-universal explosion of exasperation."

"One gets the feeling that after years of mindless tinkering about with one aspect of British life or another ... This plan to remove yet another little piece of our familiar national furniture is somehow the straw that has broken the camel's back."

Despite the protests, Telecom's "experiment" has already started. Some London phone booths, those that have survived the vandals' graffiti, have already been painted in colors ranging from pale buttercup to gold.

"Actually all we're doing is testing out a new vandal-proof paint," a spokesman explained. "We haven't decided yet what color we'll use."

Nor has the new paint scheme impressed the British art world.

The Royal Fine Arts Commission, approached by Telecom for its opinion of Plan Yellow, said the phone boxes should stay red.

Paint expert Theophilus Gimbal, who runs a color research center west of London, warned Telecom that yellow boxes are bad news.

"Yellow puts most people in a state of nervous tension and insecurity," he said in a letter to the phone company.

He didn't say how the red call boxes affect customers.

Hotel guests trample through fire-ruined halls to retrieve belongings

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hours after the fire, smoke still hung in the air of the Las Vegas Hilton hotel, some hallways were ankle-deep in black water and soot clung to walls, furniture and carpets.

As returning guests trooped through the fire- and smoke-ravaged hotel to retrieve their hastily abandoned belongings, they found doors smashed open with crow bars — the work of firefighters who searched frantically for survivors of the deadly blaze.

Eight people died and 198 were injured Tuesday when four fires, all the result of arson, erupted in the 30-story hotel.

Hundreds of guests who waited for hours Wednesday to be escorted to their rooms were confronted with an eerie sight.

Hallway lights glowed dimly in a smoky haze. Everything, from floor to ceiling, was coated with a thick layer of soot.

Actual flame damage, however, was confined to one elevator shaft and a few isolated rooms.

A reporter who reached the 20th floor of the tightly secured resort found corridors still inundated with black, ankle-deep water.

Inside one room, a half-eaten sandwich sat in a tray atop a desk covered with grime.

"We're in the farthest wing away from the fire and everything in our room was black," said Bob Hoene, an advertising executive from Helena, Mont. "It's frightening to imagine the rest of the hotel."

"My blige suit is now brown," said Nancy Jones, 30, of Fargo, N.D. Escorted by hotel employees, guests took elevators to their rooms and came back pushing carts heaped with luggage, some ruined by water and heat.

Stelios Paul, a businessman from Athens, Greece, stood at a counter in the main lobby waiting for a refund. He said he and his wife were watching dancer Juliet Prowse perform when the audience was asked to leave. "We didn't even get to eat the meal we paid for," he said.

Rows rows of slot machines stood silent in the vacant casino, which was untouched by the blaze.

Nearby, a security official instructed bellboys to watch for signs that rooms had been entered. "If dust has been smeared, we'll know somebody's been in there looting," he said.

Guests who suspected there had been looting were told to file a complaint with the police. Several people had been questioned about looting Tuesday but all were released, and there were no reports of major thefts.

Larry Robinson, a 27-year-old bartender from Niles, Ohio, was waiting to draw a $100 advance underwritten by the hotel.

His brother escaped from the hardest-hit area — the middle floors of the east wing — after Robinson called to warn him that the hotel was on fire.

"Coming out here was his first time in an airplane," he said. "Now we'll never get him higher than the first floor of a highrise."

Woman, husband talk on phone during fire

BALTIMORE (AP) — Richard Parker was safely at home in Baltimore, but he could hear the panicked screams and howling sirens at the blazing Las Vegas Hilton hotel.

Parker spent 90 minutes on the telephone with his wife, Helen, before she was rescued from the hotel Tuesday night.

"I could hear everything — the screams outside, the television announcer in the background telling the hotel guests to stay in their rooms and be calm. It was incredible," Parker said.

"Every once in a while she'd have to go to the window for air," he said. "Once I heard her trying to calm this elderly man on the floor above her. He was leaning out his window and apparently was hysterical."

Eight people were killed and 198 others injured Tuesday night as four separate fires, all believed to have been started by arson, erupted in the 30-story hotel.

Mrs. Parker was rescued at about 1:30 a.m. EST when firefighters pounded on her door, he said.

"She yelled out, 'The door's open and I'm OK.' Then she said, 'I'll see you. I love you.' She just dropped the phone."

Parker, 32, an art director at an advertising firm, said he spoke with his wife later once she had reached the hotel lobby.

"You could still hear people screaming everywhere. It was pandemonium," he said.

Mrs. Parker, a 34-year-old marketing director for Baltimore Federal Savings and Loan, was at the Las Vegas Hilton for a convention. She noticed the smoke as she stepped out of the shower in her 11th floor room, her husband said.

"She just started stuffing wet towels around the door," checked with the hotel switchboard and called home, Parker said.

"She said, 'I'm OK but the hotel's on fire.' We talked for almost 90 minutes while the whole thing was going on."

"She really stayed extremely calm, but I was scared to death," Parker said.

Here is profile of seven hotel fire victims

By The Associated Press

Here are capsule profiles of seven of the eight people to die in Tuesday night's fire at the Las Vegas Hilton. The victims were identified by Clark County Coroner Otto Ravenholt.

No information was available immediately on Zeny Santos Carvalho, 64, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Harry and Lorraine Gaines, retirees, almost always stayed at the Flamingo Hilton on their frequent visits to Las Vegas. This time, the Los Angeles couple was shuffled to the Las Vegas Hilton, where they died in smoke and flames.

The Gaineses, reportedly in their 60s, "traveled as much as their means allowed," said a cousin, Paul Starr.

Gaines was a retired optometrist. Mrs. Gaines had taught adult dance classes for the Los Angeles school district.

Bill Monk, a resident of the five-story West Hollywood apartment house where the Gaineses had lived for 15 years, said they were unable to get rooms in their usual hotel because of the crush of conventions in town.

Mrs. Gaines, who had been recovering from cancer surgery, was not a gambler, Monk said. "Harry played a little blackjack," he said. "Nothing big, he wasn't a high roller."

Bruce Glenn, the owner of a Minneapolis advertising agency, was in Las Vegas to attend a savings and loan convention, according to a friend of the family.

Glenn, 47, of the Minneapolis suburb of Plymouth was to have returned to Minneapolis on Wednesday. During the Tuesday night fire, he fell from the 16th floor to a third-floor outside deck, officials said.

Glenn, married to Addie Glenn, and the father of an 11-year-old boy, had started Glenn Advertising, in September after being associated with the Agency of Glenn, Kolesar and Hartwell for several years.

Dennis Emery McFarland, 32, was a vice president of Hawkeye Savings in Boone, Iowa, and active in community affairs.

John Peterson, president of the concern, described McFarland as "just the type of person everyone would want to work with."

McFarland was in Las Vegas attending a convention of the U.S. League of Savings Associations and had planned to return home Thursday.

"He was just a heck of a guy; the kind of guy who would always call you by your first name. This is a terrible thing," said Kevin Rahfeldt, of radio station KWBG, who worked with McFarland on several community projects.

"You'll have to pardon me; he was an awfully good friend."

McFarland was married and has three children.

"The community was his life, except for his family," Rahfeldt said.

Jack Turinsky of Anchorage was one of the first two State Farm insurance agents in Alaska.

The 41-year-old man, whose wife, Lois, was hospitalized with smoke inhalation after the fire, was attending the convention of the Savings Institute Marketing Society of America.

He had two sons and had moved in 1947 to Anchorage, where his father owned a shoe repair shop.

Frank Alan Greenfield, 22, was in the Las Vegas Hilton for a trade show for shoe salesmen, according to a cousin.

The cousin, who lives in Greenfield's hometown of West Bloomfield Township, Mich., said Greenfield accompanied his father, mother and an older brother to the meeting.

The others escaped unharmed, said the relative, who refused to give her name.

The Greenfields own the Buster Brown booteries at two shopping malls in the Detroit area, the cousin said.

Robert Nichols Leach, 54, of Honolulu, was senior vice president in charge of marketing and development for Hawaiian Federal Savings and Loan Association.

He and nine other officers were in Las Vegas for a meeting of the Savings Institute Marketing Society of America.

The native of Ross, Calif., moved to Hawaii in 1957 and belonged to the Kiwanis Club and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

He and his wife, Doris, had one son and one daughter.

Busboy gave eyewitness account of hotel blaze

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Philip Bruce Cline, busboy at the Hilton for two months, said he "ran to (room) 874, knocked on the door. There was a man and two women. They got out."

Philip Bruce Cline, booked in connection with the deadly Las Vegas Hilton Hotel fire, gave an eyewitness account of the blaze to The Evening Tribune before he was arrested and said he tried to douse the fire with a trash can full of water.

In the interview, published Wednesday, Cline, 23, said he tried to warn hotel guests of the spreading flames, poured water on a burning couch on the hotel's eighth floor and then reported the fire.

"I don't know if I did a good job or what, but I tried," he said.

Eight people were killed and 198 were injured in the Tuesday fire at the hotel. Cline was booked Wednesday on eight counts of murder and one count of arson.

Cline said in the interview that he noticed "reflections of flame or fire on the walls" when he walked out of a service elevator on the eighth floor.

According to authorities, fire broke out at four separate locations, with the main blaze starting in the eighth-floor elevator lobby.

Cline said he looked down the hallway and saw a couch and part of a lobby near the four guest elevators. He said he filled a trash can with water and doused the hallway couch.

Dinkins has decade of experience in environmental regulations, law

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carol E. Dinkins, nominated by President Reagan to be the nation's chief enforcer of environmental laws, is a law partner of former Republican presidential candidate John Connally and has worked in environmental law for the last decade.

In a telephone interview Wednesday from her Houston law office, Mrs. Dinkins said the majority of her practice has been helping corporate clients comply with federal environmental regulations and laws and still get their projects built.

"I help them prove that what they want to do will comply with the environmental laws," Mrs. Dinkins said. "They don't want to be in the position of breaking the law."

The 35-year-old lawyer is the only female partner at the Houston firm of Vincent and Elkins. The firm, one of Houston's largest, has about 280 lawyers. The most prominent is Connally, who has served as governor of Texas as a Democrat and Treasury secretary in the Republican administration of former President Richard Nixon.

Mrs. Dinkins said much of her work has been with such federal agencies as the Army Corps of Engineers, the Department of Interior and the Environmental Protection Agency to obtain permits for such projects as a deep-water port in Galveston, Texas, a petrochemical plant in Corpus Christi, Texas, and oil and gas pipeline projects.

She has dealt with the EPA on ocean disposal of dredging wastes under the Clean Water Act, which is one of the laws she will be responsible for enforcing when she takes over as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's division of land and natural resources.

She said she had served on occasion as counsel to a client defending permits it had been issued by the federal government. In some of those cases, she said, she and Justice Department lawyers from the division she will head once she is confirmed by the Senate argued that permits had been granted after proper environmental evaluations. The opponents in these cases were usually environmental groups, she said.

A native of Mathis, Texas, she said she was delighted to be asked to take the job. "It's a job I feel very comfortable with because of my background," she said. A graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, she received a law degree in 1971 from the University of Houston.

She then spent two years as the principal associate at the Coastal and Marine Law Institute at the University of Houston, while also holding an adjunct law faculty post there.

She joined Vincent and Elkins in 1973. She said she thought she had been chosen because she understood that Attorney General William French Smith was familiar with her background in environmental law.

She declined to discuss her views of current environmental laws and regulations until after confirmation by the Senate.

Her husband, Ted, is a partner in the Houston law firm of Butler, Binion, Rice, Kirk and Knapp.

Conservatives are trying to revive security panel

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Invoking the name of Ronald Reagan and the specter of "bomb-throwers, spies and revolutionaries," a group of conservatives is trying to revive a congressional committee disbanded after controversy over its investigations into communist influence in the United States.

"You can help President Reagan close the door to wild revolutionaries," writes Rep. Daniel Crane, R-Ill., in a recent fund-raising letter. "I need $14,800 to kick off my anti-terrorism campaign."

The letter does not say how the funds will be used, but it is sprinkled with references to Reagan's need to reconstitute the House Internal Security Committee, successor to the old House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said there would be no comment on the letter. Reagan has reached no opinion on whether a new congressional investigation of terrorist organizations is needed, Speakes said.

Crane insists it is. His letter says "trained Communist revolutionaries" were among the 125,000 refugees who came to the United States from Cuba last year and adds, "For all we know, terrorists are plotting subversive attacks right under our noses. And our hands are tied by the liberals."

IN RECENT YEARS, the House has consistently blunted efforts to bring back the internal security panel. Crane hopes the conservative resurgence in Congress will change that. In an interview, he said 60 members of the House are already supporting legislation to reinstate a committee to investigate terrorist threats of all kinds.

The Senate Judiciary Committee this year created a new subcommittee on security and terrorism.

In making his pitch for funds, the Crane letter describes a situation in which Cuban agents of Fidel Castro and perhaps Iranian saboteurs sent from Tehran are operating freely in the United States. He writes: "Castro's agents have already stirred up riots in relocation centers. Burning buildings. Destroying American property."

The Crane letter implores, "Ronald Reagan ... needs your help in closing America's 'open door' to bomb throwers, spies and revolutionaries." Ironically, the FBI says the number of terrorist bombings in the United States has been on the decline in recent years. The bureau declined comment on the allegations concerning alleged Cuban terrorists.

The House committee was dismantled eight years ago after several decades of controversy over its probes into alleged communist influence in the United States. It was often called the "most un-American thing in America," by Harry Truman in the 1950s and by liberal lawmakers in the 1960s who criticized its inquiries into anti-war protests.

It was the springboard to fame for a California congressman named Richard M. Nixon who grilled Alger Hiss on whether he had been a Communist spy operating in the State Department. When Hiss was convicted of perjury, then-Rep. Nixon had made the mark that would help win him the Republican vice presidential nomination in 1952.

CRANE'S LETTER URGES that the public send funds and fill out a questionnaire on whether there is a need to "crack down" on radicals and revolutionaries.

"President Reagan has no way of telling how many terrorists Castro sent," Crane's letter says. "For that matter, there's no telling how many terrorists from Iran and other unfriendly countries slip through America's open door."

The proceeds from Crane's fundraising appeal will go to the Council for Inter-American Security, a Washington-based conservative group whose president, Ronald F. Docksai, said he thought the money would pay for various "monographs and mailings."

A spokesman for the council said the letter was sent to 280,000 persons and characterized the response as "quite positive."

Crane's letter resembled official congressional correspondence but was marked in one corner "unofficial business."

L. Francis Bouchee, executive vice president of the council, said he was unsure exactly who wrote the letter but that it was based by research done by council staffer Phillip Abbott Luce, a one-time campus radical who now edits a newsletter called "Pink Sheet on the Left" which attacks radicals.

Crane was not available for comment. When Crane aides were asked about his letter, they quoted a 1979 "fact sheet" provided by Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., saying there are "2,000 bombings a year" in the country. McDonald has long crusaded for re-establishment of the Internal Security Committee.

THE FBI DISPUTES McDonald's statistics. Figures from the FBI's Terrorist Research Center show that bombings for which political extremists claimed responsibility numbered 100 in 1977, 52 in 1978, 42 in 1979 and 19 in the first six months of 1980.

Mexican-American says hope remains for good relationship

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Mexican-American social activist says hope remains for a good relationship with the Reagan administration despite some early disappointments.

"Hopefully, the last 22 days will not be the pattern, will not be the norm," Antonia Hernandez, the new director of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund's Washington office, told reporters Wednesday. "I think that we can get a lot done by trying to approach them in a positive manner."

She said one indication could be President Reagan's scheduled meeting today with leaders of Hispanic activist groups. It would be the president's first session with Hispanic representatives other than his Republican supporters since his election.

Among the names on the guest list are Ruben Bonilla of Corpus Christi, Texas, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens; Vilma Martinez of San Francisco, MALDEF president; and Raul Yzaguirre of Washington, president of the National Council of La Raza.

Ms. Hernandez said one disappointment so far has been the absence — "zilch" — of top-level Hispanic appointments.

Two Hispanic names have circulated recently as leading contenders for key positions. They are John Hernandez of Las Cruces, N.M., for administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency and Jose Manuel Casanova of Miami for Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner.

Ms. Hernandez, a California native who was a Senate Judiciary Committee staffer for the past two years before moving to MALDEF, said Hispanics were confused and disappointed by the recent withdrawal of bilingual education regulations.

"The withdrawal of the regulations was a shocker," she said. "The Hispanic community was not consulted."

Ms. Hernandez said other potential Hispanic battlegrounds shaping up in Congress or at the White House include the Voting Rights Act and its bilingual provisions, immigration laws and the overall program of budget cuts.

Anti-crime bill gets compromise

'Oil field language' greases the way

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — "Oil field language" between Gov. Bill Clements and an East Texas senator who drills wells apparently has greased the way for part of the governor's anti-crime package.

Clements met privately with three senators Wednesday and worked out a compromise knocking Attorney General Mark White off a three-member committee that would control state funds to fight crime.

A vote was scheduled for today on Sen. Bill Meier's bill to re-establish the Criminal Justice Division in the governor's office.

Sen. Chet Brooks said colleague Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, negotiated in "oil field language" with Clements, the founder of an oil well drilling service. "They communicated extremely well," said Brooks, D-Pasadena. "Sen. Meier and I sat there in awe."

McKnight said Clements had threatened to veto a substitute offered by him and Brooks that would place the Republican governor on an executive funding committee with State Comptroller Bob Bullock and White, a Democrat who been at odds with Clements numerous times.

No anti-crime funds could be released without approval of two of the three members.

The compromise would replace White with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat who already has announced for re-election next year.

Another change requested by Clements would remove from the bill additional court charges to finance a state fund for crime victims. Brooks said Clements had agreed to submit that proposal as an emergency if it were placed in a separate bill.

The compromise bill also creates a 21-member advisory board to review and recommend grants to the governor.

The showdown was the second in the month-old Legislature between Clements and lawmakers, with the governor apparently getting his way again. The first time, legislators backed down on a 6.8 percent employee pay raise after the governor said he would veto anything higher than 5.1 percent.

The Criminal Justice Division would channel funds for local and statewide projects. It was first created in 1971 and has been using federal funds, which are being phased out. The state grant money would come from special court costs on criminal convictions.

"It's not that I don't trust Gov. Clements," said Brooks. "It's simply good business sense to put safeguards on the flow of money."

Brooks said some see the issue "as a power grab by the governor" to control millions of dollars for anti-crime programs, but Brooks added "that's a radical viewpoint."

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, objected that giving the governor sole authority to approve grants would "be arming a person not only with discretion but arming him with a large political club he could wield in geographical areas of the state."

Postmaster warns union chiefs to be realistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service would have to seek a second, even larger rate increase, perhaps by the end of the year, if it is not allowed now to charge a nickel more for mailing first-class letters, Postmaster General William F. Bolger says.

The independent Postal Rate Commission is scheduled to announce its decision Feb. 19 on the Postal Service's request to raise first-class rates to 20 cents per letter.

An in-house consumer advocate at the commission has recommended the increase be 3 cents, to 18 cents per letter.

Bolger, speaking Wednesday at the National Press Club, said the 20-cent charge, coupled with higher rates for other classes of mail, "represent the minimum revenue we need to carry on our work."

If the rate commission approves only part of the request, "the Postal Service would have no choice but to seek new, even higher, rates, perhaps before 1981 is out," he said.

If the commission fails to grant the full increase, Bolger said consideration should be given to abolishing the rate-making body.

He said litigation over the rate request has cost about $12.5 million and that the commission's 80 employees have no duty other than to consider Postal Service requests.

Bolger also appealed to postal union leaders to pursue a policy of moderation in negotiations on a new labor agreement this spring.

Public statements of some of postal union leaders "disturb me greatly and lead me to believe they have not fully grasped the state of our national economy," he said.

He did not name the union leaders, but presidents Moe Biller of the American Postal Workers Union and Vincent Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers, the two largest postal unions, were sitting at the front of the audience as Bolger spoke.

Both were elected since the current labor agreement was negotiated three years ago and both are considered more militant than their predecessors.

"As federal employees, all of us who work for the Postal Service have a special responsibility. ... We cannot ignore the unemployment and other economic ailments that afflict our fellow citizens. Nor can we ignore what unreasonable demands would do to the future of the Postal Service," Bolger said.

He said statements by union leaders imply "that the public owes something to them, rather than the reverse."

Pointing out that the 580,000 unionized postal employees earn an average of more than $19,000 a year plus numerous fringe benefits, Bolger said: "Some people consider postal employees overcompensated. I think total postal compensation is, in the mean, fair, but I also believe there are limits to further gains."

Jenrette, wife made love on U.S. Capitol steps

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Former Rep. John W. Jenrette, now estranged from his wife, Rita, says the couple once made love on the steps of the U.S. Capitol, The State reported today.

Jenrette told The State's Washington bureau that he suggested it and that Mrs. Jenrette agreed.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," he said, adding the incident took place as the House debated late into the night.

Referring to his wife's article for the April issue of Playboy magazine, he said Wednesday, "She told me she was going to put it in the story."

Jenrette said he begged his wife not to mention the incident because he feared it would give people a "false impression" of Washington. "People would think we were interested in only one thing," he said.

Mrs. Jenrette, contacted in New York, wouldn't comment, the newspaper said.

The State also contacted officials of Playboy magazine, but they declined comment in advance of Mrs. Jenrette's article, which is to hit the newstands the first week in March.

Mrs. Jenrette is reported to have posed semi-nude for the magazine. Jenrette said he last saw his wife on Jan. 10. He was served preliminary divorce papers Tuesday outside U.S. District Court in Washington, where the final round of hearings on the appeal of his Oct. 7 Abscam conviction were under way.

The proceedings were recessed until May 11.

Jenrette and co-defendant John Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, were accused of splitting a $50,000 bribe paid by an FBI undercover agent posing as an aide to two Arab sheiks. The government said Jenrette took the money in return for a promise to introduce an immigration bill to allow the sheiks to enter the United States.

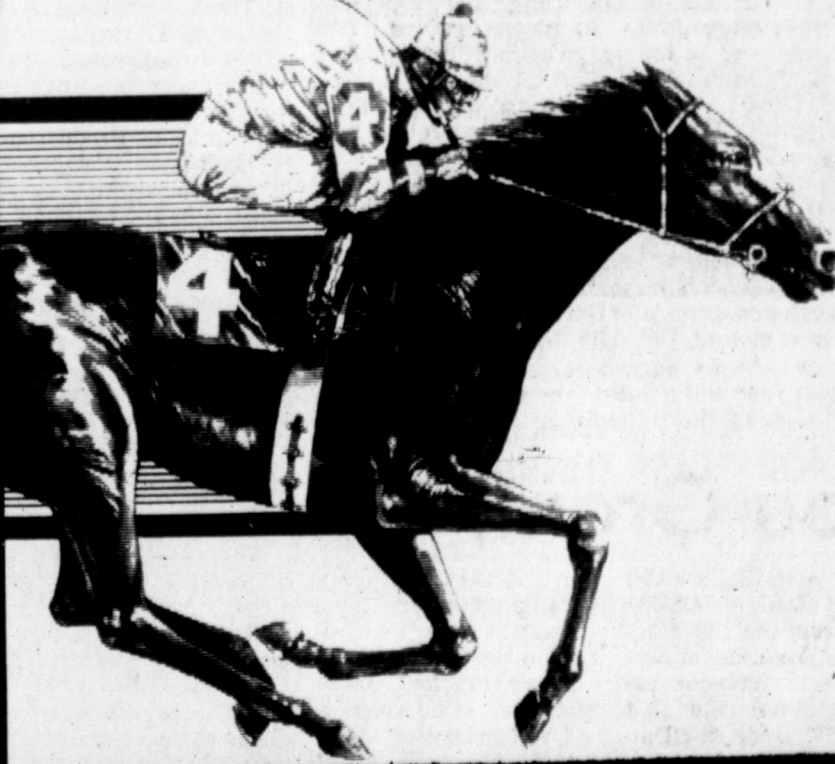

Jenrette, who learned of the divorce from a second party, said Wednesday that Mrs. Jenrette had planned to divorce him in December.

The only reason she held back "was because my son, Hal, was with us in Texas during the holidays," he said.

The former 6th District congressman, who resigned his seat in December, said he and his wife got into a bitter disagreement in December over her negotiations for movie rights to their story.

"She wanted me to sign a release on the movie giving them the right to portray me factually or fictionally," he said. "I didn't want to do it, but I finally signed off on it."

'Man of La Mancha' an enjoyable night as Theatre Midland's new production

"To dream the impossible dream,
To fight the unbeatable foe...
To try, when your arms are too weary
To reach the unreachable star...
This is my quest, to follow that star,
No matter how hopeless, no matter how far.
To fight for the right without question or pause
To be willing to march into Hell for a Heavenly cause..."
— Don Quixote (words — Joe Darion)

Miguel de Cervantes' quest-loving hero Don Quixote lives again in Theatre Midland's "Man of La Mancha."
The musical, written by Dale Wasserman with music by Mitch Leigh and lyrics by Joe Darion, won all the major theater awards for the year of its opening — 1965. It was named as best musical by the New York Drama Critics' Circle, The Outer Circle, The Variety Poll and Saturday Review, plus it won 10 Tony awards.
No doubt, Theatre Midland's production will not win awards or receive such raves. However, it is a meritorious production with few flaws.
Miguel R. Bustillo, as

Sancho Panza, Quixote's loyal servant and friend, is excellent. He thoroughly convinces the audience that he is Sancho. All the way from his mannerisms to his singing and speaking lines, he does not overdo or underplay the role.
Not all of the stellar performances were turned in by leading performers. And it could be said that not all of the leading thespians turned in stellar performances: Walter Wright, as the padre, was excellent. He also thoroughly persuaded the audience he was in fact the padre and not Walter Wright on stage. He has a beautiful voice and sings so effortlessly that it's easy for the audience to imagine he was born singing.
Shaun Gilstrap was humorous and laudable in his role as the barber.
Charles Dixon as Quixote did a marvelous job even though he had a 102-degree fever the night this reviewer attended. He managed his role with the Dixon ease, successfully handling the loss of part of his armor (greave) as merely the way it was planned, when in fact it was not.
Elaine Berman as Dulcinea, the one whom Quixote loved "pure and chaste, from afar," was quite good in her role, she just was not completely in it and, at times, burlesqued the part. Or perhaps she just worked it too hard and could not relax. Instead of playing the medieval sluttish scullion maid the script calls for, she came off as more of a 20th century hooker. It was apparent that she was not really feeling the role, but was rather playing it the way she thought it should be played. However, the audience responded well to her interpretation. Her voice was quite lovely.

Bill Shaner deserves notable mention in his role as the innkeeper and governor. Cheryl Colson was also quite convincing in her role as Maria. Both carried their lines well.
Matt Rudolph competently handled his multiple roles. Rudolph, Janet Considine as Antonia, and Loree Fitzgerald as the housekeeper, did a very nice job in the scene where they sang "I'm Only Thinking of Him."

The Muleteers were praiseworthy in their roles as roistering drovers. They were played by Billy Cook, Randy Huckaby, Bob Lever (the head Muleteer) and Oza Whitten.
Bit parts, which were important to the play's effectiveness, were played by Jeff Newman, Andy Kimbrough, Pat Meachum, Ted Krueger, Bill Bell, Jim Hill, Pat Chaney and Terry Evans. A special thanks to those who played the guards and stood patiently, without saying a word, throughout the play to lend authenticity to the staged production.

Don Bachmann, the theater's executive director, directed the play with Max Howard as stage manager and choreography by Cherry Jones. The technical director was John Michael Warburton.

Upcoming opera singers to be announced soon

Selection of singers for roles in the upcoming Midland College production of "The Merry Widow" will be announced in the next few days.
This year's auditions have been open auditions conducted in front of a jury. At this point the jury is busy matching "vocal requirements of the parts with available voices," said Dr. Charles Lawson, the opera's general director.
The opera has been restructured as the Midland Opera Theatre, a production of Midland College. It will be entirely locally produced with a local cast, Lawson said.
The administrative structure is composed of an advisory council and a professional committee. Members of the professional committee are Lawson, Don Bachmann, Dr. Tom Hohstadt and another member, to be announced soon. The professional committee will be in charge of the technical end and the actual production and will report to the advisory council. Each member of the advisory council will have his own area of responsibility.

This particular administrative organization was recommended to MC by a representative of Hartford Opera, Lawson said.
Performance dates are set for April 24-26. The four Saturdays in March will be set aside to block the entire production and actual rehearsals will begin April 1, Lawson said.
Costumes and sets are being rented this year from the San Diego Opera.

National Lampoon planning to massacre films with new satire

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — That National Lampoon gang is back again.
Having demolished college fraternities in "Animal House," they are now out to massacre time-honored movie cliches. The new project: "National Lampoon Goes to the Movies."
The honcho of this organized nonsense is Matty Simmons, the man who has turned a humor magazine into an empire. After licensing the title from the Harvard Lampoon, he launched the national magazine and followed with stage revues (which introduced Chevy Chase, John Belushi, Gilda Radner), radio series, books, record albums and then "National Lampoon's Animal House."
The 1978 comedy astounded everyone, especially Universal pictures brass. Simmons says that it cost $2.7 million and so far has grossed $210 million. It ranks 13th in Variety's list of all-time money makers. NBC, which paid $8.5 million for three showings, will show a somewhat laundered version Feb. 15.
Such a smash would call for a followup, but National Lampoon is only now launching a new project. Why the delay?
"Jaws 3, People 0," Simmons explained. That's the satire he's been preparing at Universal. "I had an exclusive contract with Universal, and that was to be my next picture. I thought the script was terrific, they didn't. So we agreed not to do the picture. I leveled a year and a half to the project, and at my age (54) I can't afford the time."

"Despite our differences, we're still friendly. In fact, I'm preparing 'Animal House II,' which I'll produce for Universal. It's even funnier than the first one."
Simmons and National Lampoon branched out as soon as Universal took the reins. A series pilot for NBC, "Joy of Sex" (only the title of the best seller will be used) for Paramount, "Two Weeks at War" for ABC's theatrical film division. The first project to go is "National Lampoon Goes to the Movies."
"An executive from United Artists called me to ask if I had anything I could make for them," said Simmons. "I told him I had been thinking about a parody of four movie genres. 'Let's do it,' he said."
The producer followed the same system as with "Animal House": he handed the project to five of his National Lampoon editors. Originally he planned to have four directors but settled on two: Henry Jaglom ("Tracks," "Sitting Ducks") and Bob Giraldi, a top maker of TV commercials.
The two directors are shooting simultaneously in and around Los Angeles. Simmons decided on the tandem production so the film would be ready for a June release. Production cost is $5 million, a bargain by today's standards.
The four segments:
"The Municipalians," police drama with Richard Widmark as an oldtime cop and Robby Benson as a rookie.
"Growing Yourself," a Woody Allen-Kramer vs. Kramer saga of a single guy trying to get his act together.
"The Success Waters," "trash-glamor of the Harold Robbins-Jacqueline Susann ilk."

'Lou Grant,' 'M.A.S.H.' score

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Half of the 18 nominations from the Directors Guild of America for best TV director have gone to CBS, with the "Who Shot J.R.?" episode of "Dallas" winning one for director Irving Moore and the "Lou Grant" and "M.A.S.H." series winning two nominations each.
The 6,000-member guild Tuesday handed ABC six nominations for outstanding directorial achievement, while PBS took two and NBC one, for its "Shogun" mini-series.
The guild will honor one winner in each of six categories at a dinner March 14.
CBS director Don Mischer, a winner in 1978, was the only director to win two nominations — one in the actuality category for "The Kennedy Center Honors" and one in the musical-variety category for "Goldie and Liza Together."
CBS director George Schaefer, who is president of the director's guild and a four-time winner, won a nomination in the musical-variety category for "Barry Manilow — One Voice."

Two episodes of "M.A.S.H.," a CBS series about the adventures at a mobile army surgical hospital, won nominations in the comedy category. One episode was directed by Mike Farrell, who co-stars in the series as Capt. B.J. Hunnicutt.
The other "M.A.S.H." episode won a directors' nomination for Burt Metcalfe, executive producer of the series.
"Lou Grant," a show about the staff of a daily newspaper, won nominations for two episodes in the dramatic series category, one directed by Gene Reynolds and one by Roger Young.
Directors for "M.A.S.H." and "Lou Grant" have collected honors before.
"Lou Grant," a show about the staff of a daily newspaper, won nominations for two episodes in the dramatic series category, one directed by

Stan Kenton's book loaded with facts about musician

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Arts Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Kenton spent 48 of his 67 years on earth taking big bands on the road, producing such modern jazz stars as Maynard Ferguson, Art Pepper, June Christy, the Four Freshmen.
In 1945, his band played a date in Fort Worth, Texas. Bill Lee, a young trumpet student from North Texas State, was there. A classical cat, he nonetheless became an instant fan of the Kenton sound:
"I'd never heard anything like it. Fantastic volume. The force of the band just blew the hair off your head and splatted you against the wall."
A burly, bearded, easy-going native of Galveston, Lee is 51 now, an educator, the dean of music at the University of Miami. And still a Kenton fan. He's just finished a 727-page book about him.
"Stan Kenton: Artistry in Rhythm" is the tome. It's packed with facts, figures, interviews and even the great-to-terrible reviews involved in the bandleader's long, innovative, often controversial career in modern jazz.

He first met Kenton in 1950 while playing with Gene Krupa's band and kept in touch with him over the years until Kenton's death from a stroke in August 1979. His assessment of the man:
"He wasn't a great piano player, wasn't a great writer. But he was a great coordinator. He had the moxie to bring in great talent, make them stars, yet keep that distinguished sound of his."
"He also was a leader in extending instrument ranges, the highs and lows, and in playing at high school and college jazz workshops. That was a major contribution. Now, everyone does it."
"The funny thing is, he didn't want his band to keep going after he died, fronted by someone else.

He left his whole music library — some 400 compositions and arrangements — to North Texas State.
Lee's book now is available only by mail order from Creative Press in Los Angeles, run by Kenton's estate. He began it in 1978, initially at the request of another publisher:
"Stan was very hesitant about it initially because of a 1973 book about him that reads like the National Enquirer — who got stoned when, who romanced who, how much money his ex-wives got."
"It had nothing to do with the band, really. He was very bitter about it. But finally he said, 'OK, you're a friend, a musician, you'll do it right.' And I flew out to Hollywood where he lived."

CBS chalks up ninth straight victory in weekly ratings fight

NEW YORK (AP) — With a little help from J.R. Ewing and Burt Reynolds, CBS chalked up its ninth straight week as the No. 1 network in the prime-time ratings battle, figures from A.C. Nielsen Co. say.

"Dallas" finished first in the ratings race for the 11th time in 14 weeks, while "Hooper," a 1978 Reynolds picture making its TV debut, clobbered the competition — ABC's "East of Eden" and "Kent State" on NBC — in a head-to-head race for viewers Sunday night.

CBS' rating for the week ending Feb. 8 was 20.8, with ABC second at 19.5 and NBC third at 16.9. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the period, 20.8 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

"Dallas," the dominant prime-time series since early in November, registered a rating of 31.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 31.6 percent saw at least part of the dealings of the Ewing clan.

The big collision came Sunday night, as the networks roared into the February "sweeps" — the time when national spot advertising rates are determined for the next four months.

"Hooper" finished No. 3 for the week, behind "Dallas" and another CBS show, "Dukes of Hazard," while the first chapter of "East of Eden," ABC's new adaptation of John Steinbeck's novel, was No. 15.

"Kent State," NBC's dramatization of events at the Ohio University in May 1970, when four students were shot to death by National Guardsmen, finished 61st.

To compound NBC's troubles, the network had four of the week's five lowest-rated shows: "Hill Street Blues" was 60, followed by "Kent State" and another NBC program, "Nero Wolfe." "Ladies' Man" on CBS was 63rd, with "NBC Reports: Who Will Fight for America?" 64th.

The picture was not entirely bleak for NBC. The network — runnerup in the ratings competition four times in the last six weeks — listed four of its half-hour series among the week's 30 highest-rated shows: "Different Strokes" in sixth place, "Facts of Life" 11th, "The Brady Girls Get Married" 25th and "Harper Valley P.T.A." 29th. The latter two are new series.

Artist's workshop to be at UTPB

ODESSA — Artists from Midland College, as well as other community colleges throughout the Permian Basin, have been invited to participate in an area-wide workshop at The University of Texas at UTPB, said other colleges invited to participate include Odessa College, Howard College, South Plains College, New Mexico Junior College and Western Texas College. The workshop is designed to give students an opportunity to do some studio art work with UTPB students and faculty and see the facilities and programs offered at the university.

The workshop begins Feb. 27 with a continental breakfast and registration at 9 a.m. Open workshops in sculpture,

Special demonstrations will also take place during both days by area artists and visiting art instructors from throughout the Permian Basin. A special showing of the film, "New York School" will be shown each day.

The workshop is free to students who will be eligible to enroll at UTPB for the fall semester. Persons not currently enrolled in a junior college may call 1-367-2285 to make reservations.

Materials will be provided to participants.

These pieces, done by Diedre Burnett who has her own studio in Dulwich in southeast London, are part of the "British Ceramics Today" exhibit on display through Feb. 25 at Midland College. The exhibit will be displayed in a half-dozen places in the United States. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

What do the rich folks watch?

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There were two very interesting articles, indirectly related, in the television press last weekend, one concerning the viewing habits of the rich and the other giving perspective to the place of television in our society.

This last, written by Boston TV critic Jack Thomas, pooh-poohed what he called the "TeleBabbits" of this world, that joyless bred of people who carefully nurture anti-television airs. Thomas says that those people are not only missing out on a lot of fun, they're isolating themselves from a vital social force. Television, Thomas suggests, is our national hearth.

It's hard to argue with that.

The story on the viewing habits of the rich appeared in the TV magazine, Panorma. The rich, according to this piece, aren't exactly TeleBabbits; that is they apparently watch television, but are limited in their viewing by the imperatives of their station.

Indeed, the article ultimately narrows into a compendium of program-types that the wealthy won't (or can't) watch: Late-night talk shows and movies, because on weekdays the wealthy party and on weekends, they relax in the country; physical-fitness shows, because the rich have their own instructors; shows with household or kitchen tips, for obvious reasons; middle-class domestic sitcoms, which don't tickle blue-blooded ribs; minority-related programs or police shows, subjects the rich would rather not confront in leisure hours.

However, the rich simply adore "The Lawrence Welk Show," which is unthreatening and reinforces their value system.

The implication of these two articles, considered together, is that pointy-headed TeleBabbits and the rich aren't warming themselves at the national hearth, then it must be the rest of us, regular folks, so to speak, who compose the viewing audience and who stoke the prime time programming fires through the Nielsen ratings. Obviously.

Still, a theory, however apparent its tenets, must be tested. A survey of regular folks was in order. As my circle of acquaintances comprises a good many regular folks, I assumed the task myself.

Don, a local parking lot attendant and football betting partner, said:

"I watch sports, a lot of sports. All sports — except some of that garbage like golf and tennis. And I watch animal shows. I love animal shows, especially that 'Wild Kingdom' that comes on Sundays. And sometimes I watch 'The Jeffersons,' but, you know, only if it's on. And I've been looking at that Dallas. I hate all that other comedy stuff, that's garbage."

Maria, cashier at the theater across the street from Don's parking lot: "I watch 'Mission Impossible' reruns." Is that all? "Yeah. It's a good show."

Forrest, former war correspondent: "'M-A-S-H.' On Monday, I get to see it at 6, 7, 9 and 11 o'clock. And '60 Minutes' and David Brinkley's show ('NBC Magazine'). And 'Sunday Morning' wit Charles Kuralt. I think 'Hill Street Blues' is going to be good."

Delores, downtown bank teller:

"Dance shows. Like to watch dancing. All of 'em." Eula, a waitress: "I watch 'Dallas.' And I watch animal shows, but I think they're going to cancel 'Those Amazing Animals.' And I like old movies."

Backstage drama develops in Harris murder trial

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A pathologist remains unshaken in his opinion that Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower was shot while warding off an attack, despite charges from Jean Harris' defense attorney that prosecutors induced him to lie.

Assistant District Attorney George Bolen strode out of the judge's chambers in a rage when defense attorney Joel Aurnou suggested that the pathologist, Dr. Louis Roh, had been "suborned" to perjury, or induced to lie under oath, during Mrs. Harris' murder trial.

"I am a human being and can take so much after five months of legal proceedings," Bolen said, after he apologized for slamming a door in the face of Judge Russell R. Leggett.

The prosecution alleges that Mrs. Harris, 57-year-old former headmistress of The Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., shot Tarnower, her longtime lover, to death March 10 in a jealous rage over his affair with his 38-year-old divorcee office assistant.

Roh, the pathologist who performed Tarnower's autopsy, testified during the prosecution's rebuttal he found tissue from Tarnower's hand was embedded in his chest, a finding the prosecution used to suggest Tarnower was shot with his hand outstretched in a gesture of defense.

In an attempt to impeach Roh, Aurnou suggested in the judge's chambers that the Westchester District Attorney's office had induced him to lie. Bolen walked out, prompting Leggett to reconvene court, which had been in a recess.

"Mr. Bolen walked out and slammed the door on me. Apparently I can't keep him in court unless I'm in the court where I have certain authority," Leggett said, but added, "I tended to feel the same way as Mr. Bolen did" about Aurnou's allegations.

Aurnou had begun his cross-examination by angrily shouting at Roh and demanding whether the fragments "might be" or "are" palm tissue. Leggett ordered him to "keep it down."

Roh, who showed slides of the tissue samples, was asked repeatedly about nuclei, cell borders, tissue color and other characteristics he said indicated the fragments had come from Tarnower's palm, but his position remained the same.

Navy delays search for lost explosive

FALLON, Nev. (AP) — A 2,000-pound bomb accidentally dropped from a plane operating out of Fallon Naval Air Station poses no danger to the public, according to Navy officials.

They said the bomb landed in the Stillwater Wildlife Range about seven miles east of Fallon following a malfunction Jan. 22 on an A-6E "Intruder" aircraft.

The bomb burrowed more than 25 feet deep without exploding, officials said. Ten days of excavation in the area failed to turn up the weapon and efforts were halted when the ordnance workers encountered groundwater at the 25-foot level.

Burger's right, but wrong, says solon

By TOM EASTHAM
Hearst Special News Service

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren Burger is right about fighting violent crime in this country, but very wrong about why there is so much of it, says one of Capitol Hill's leading experts on crime and criminals.

While the chief justice's concerns are commendable, he has chosen the wrong weapons, contends Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., and by trying to take rights away from criminal defendants, he could endanger the rights of all of us.

"The chief justice totally ignores the basic causes of violent crime in the United States," declared Edwards, a former FBI agent with 18 years on the crime subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee.

"All you have to do is look at the criminal population to understand where violent crime is coming from. The criminals come out of the ghettos."

Addressing the American Bar Association last Sunday, Burger declared "we must not be misled by cliches and slogans that if we but abolish poverty, crime will also disappear."

The chief justice attacked the nation's justice system, schools and prisons for helping make Americans "hostages" to crime. He said we as a nation give too much protection to the accused, too little to their victims.

"I agree that violent crime is totally out of control — that there is an epidemic, and that something must be done about it," said Edwards.

"I certainly agree we need a total reform of the penal system — there is no rehabilitation taking place at all. And I agree with the chief justice that there should be speedy trials and certain justice. I have no quarrel with him there."

But those things will have little effect on actually reducing crime, Edwards said, and they do not deal with its root causes.

"Anybody who knows anything about crime would disagree with the chief justice. When you're talking about violent crime — not white collar crime — the causes are in the ghettos: broken families, disease, racial discrimination and poverty."

"The slum kid who starts out stealing a pen and winds up committing armed robberies isn't thinking about deterrents — about getting caught or going to prison. He's thinking about getting money."

Edwards noted that at this moment, three percent of the country's entire population of non-white young males — those under 21 — are in prison. That is about 11 times the percentage of young white males in prison, he said, adding:

"The last time I looked at the figures, there were 468 prisoners awaiting execution — and 290 of them were non-white. And something over half of all violent crime in this country is committed by young non-white kids who never had a chance."

Edwards said Burger could not prove his claim that the deterrent effect of swift and certain justice is a greater factor in crime than poverty, although that might be true of white collar crime.

Burger also challenged the process by which convicted criminals spend years filing habeas corpus petitions, suing prison wardens and parole boards and trying to get new trials by citing errors in their first trials or arrests.

"I strongly disagree," said Edwards, chairman of the civil and constitutional rights subcommittee and a leading civil rights advocate. "Most appeals that alleged criminals seek are simply applications for due process — the fellow whose confession was beaten out of him or whose house was ransacked without a warrant."

"We are all entitled to those procedures — they are our rights. If you do away with due process in this country you are going to have a police state."

Edwards did not object to Burger's criticism of bail laws which forbid judges from considering a defendant's potential danger to society when setting bail. But he sees it as being of little consequence in dealing with the overall problem of violent crime.

"Certainly, people out on bail commit too many crimes, and we've got to put a limit on that. But you're talking about a very tiny group of people compared to all of those who are committing crimes in this country."

Prisons and the problems they breed among the criminal population are a bigger problem, Edwards said, with some prisons so overcrowded judges have said they constitute cruel and unusual punishment. Some communities have no prison space and no personnel to manage them, he noted.

Officers want mayor out of picture

HOUSTON (AP) — A dozen top-ranked Houston police officers say they're fighting to keep the Police Department from "becoming a political football with the mayor as quarterback."

Deputy Chief Fred Bankston and 11 other assistant and deputy chiefs say they are spending their own time and money to lobby in Austin against a bill that would permit the mayor to appoint holders of the high-ranking jobs.

The positions currently are filled through competitive examinations.

The bill proposed by State Rep. Al Edwards, D-Houston, would apply only to cities with more than 1.2 million residents, a population level held only by Houston.

"It's too bad," Edwards said sadly. "We have more than 20,000 prisoners in California, at a cost of $15,000 to $20,000 a year each. And every new cell we build costs about $50,000 per bed. It would be cheaper to send all those prisoners to Stanford or Harvard."

"There's something very wrong with such a system."

Abandoned bases may be prisons

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says unused military bases in Texas might be a good place to put inmates to relieve overcrowding at state prisons.

"We're investigating the possibility of turning these into quasi-penal institutions, but I don't know yet what we will do," Clements told reporters Tuesday.

State prison officials are looking for ways to solve the crowding problem. U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler has said overcrowding causes many problems at the Texas Department of Corrections.

"We have a very serious overpopulation problem, and it's going to be very tough to solve," Clements said. "Dozens of different options are being looked at."

Clements again said he had concerns about TDC Director W.J. Estelle's proposed work-release program.

ORIENTAL RUG

SHOW & SALE

FEBRUARY 12, 13, 14 & 15

Good handmade Persian Rugs are recognized as one of the finest investments on today's market. You will appreciate these values!

for 4 days only! Jewel rich imported Oriental rugs in a variety of sizes! A feast for the eyes!

Let a professional designer from our Interior Design Staff help you select fashions for your home. There is no extra charge for this service with your purchase from one of our designers. Call Aladdin House 694-6649.

Oriental rugs and carpets have been produced for centuries and the rugs and carpets produced today are the same in almost every respect as those produced 500 years ago. The best known and most beautiful rugs come from Persia but there are also excellent pieces that come from China, Afghanistan, Turkey, Pakistan, India and Romania. There are other countries in Asia and Africa who produce hand made rugs, but we do not have enough space here to enumerate all of them. All these rugs are made of wool. There are exceptions such as some of the Persian Qum that are made of pure silk.

One may ask why is a hand made oriental rug or carpet the most prized and sought after of all floor coverings? The main reasons are:

- 1) An oriental rug, being entirely hand made, has a guaranteed durability. Even accidental damage can be repaired without decreasing the rug's value. This cannot be said of a machine made rug which, once damaged, loses its value.
- 2) The decorative value of an oriental rug is undeniable. It greatly enhances a room and creates an immediate impression of friendly warmth on entering it.
- 3) Provided it is used with care, the value of an oriental rug increases year by year. It is a safe investment and can be turned into ready cash at any time.

It is sometimes believed that oriental rugs and carpets are very expensive items. This is not so. We have many fine pieces that sell at under $500.00

A brief summary of our rugs and carpets, and their characteristics, is as follows:

Persian: The finest pieces come from the towns such as Istahan, Qum, Kashan, Tabriz and Kerman. In addition, there are the nomadic rugs of coarser weave such as Hamadan, Shiraz, Abadeh, Afshar and Belouch. We also have Kelims which have no pile, which come in colorful, geometric designs.

Chinese: The thickest pile of all carpets and rugs. They are very luxurious and come in embossed Aubusson, Floral and Peking designs.

Pakistan: Specialises in Bokhara and Afghan designs and in excellent copies of Persian design. Considerably less expensive than Persian rugs.

Afghan: In well known elephant foot designs in red and gold. Useful for offices and hallways. Other designs are also produced.

India: Mainly heavy pile. Produced with beautiful pastel backgrounds in Floral, Aubusson or Chinese Peking designs.

Turkish: Made of wool, silk and artificial silk. Some rugs rival those of Persia in quality and design. Reasonably priced.

Romanian: Mainly copies of Persian designs, but we also have large carpets with the Aubusson design made in wool supplied from England. Extremely good value at very low prices.

Trouble brews over offshore talk

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt, on the job less than three weeks, has stirred up his first firestorm of controversy with talk of allowing oil and gas exploration off some of California's most scenic beaches.

Watt said he was considering reversing a decision made by the Carter administration because of President Reagan's strong commitment to boost oil and gas exploration in this country.

The four areas in controversy lie off Northern California's famed coastline. Former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, responding to objections from Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and other environmentalists, removed the tracts from the proposed lease sale last October.

But Watt asked Brown for comment Wednesday on a proposal to offer the areas for leasing to oil companies in late May.

"I have made no final decision as to whether all, or any, of these basins will actually be offered at the bid opening in late May, but the president has instructed me to take the necessary steps to increase the domestic production of oil and gas, and I firmly intend to take those steps," Watt said in his letter to Brown.

Environmental groups and members of the California congressional delegation were quick to attack the proposed change.

In a telegram, 11 congressmen said leasing the tracts would be "a tragic mistake ... which the people of the central and northern California coast will not tolerate."

The congressmen said Watt's proposed action would overturn a decision reached by Andrus after years of study that the economic and environmental dangers of drilling far outweighed the potential benefits.

In separate statements, Sens. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., and Alan Cranston, D-Calif., expressed their own reservations. Cranston said the tracts should not be offered "not only to protect the sensitive and fragile environment of California's beautiful and largely unspoiled coastline, but also to protect the right of state and local governments to manage their coastal resources."

The proposed California sale approved by Andrus in October included 115 tracts in the Santa Maria basin off San Luis Obispo. Watt's proposal would add 127 tracts in the deleted basins — Eel River, Point Arena, Bodega and Santa Cruz — for a total of 1.3 million acres.

The disputed tracts are near Eureka, Mendocino, Point Reyes and Big Sur, Calif.

Watt said he had under review not only the California case but also the entire five-year leasing program Andrus issued in June 1980 to see "whether revisions in that schedule are necessary and desirable."

During the campaign, Reagan criticized the Carter administration for unnecessary delays in offering federal land for oil and gas exploration.

Operators report openers in Permian Basin counties

A pay has been reopened in a Winkler County field and discoveries have been reported in Tom Green, Nolan and Runnels counties.

WINKLER COUNTY

The Winkler County pay reopener is William B. Hendon Jr. of Midland No. 1-15 Mitchell which was completed from the Pennsylvanian, south zone in the G.P.M. multipay field eight miles southeast of Kermit.

The operator reported a daily flowing potential of 144 barrels of oil, gravity not reported, with a gas-oil ratio of 4,500-1. No water was made during the potential test.

Completion was through a choke of unreported size and perforations from 8,590 to 8,690 feet after 3,000 gallons of acid.

A re-entry of a 10,364-foot failure, it originally was drilled by Joe N. Champlin as No. 1 G. P. Mitchell and abandoned in February 1966.

It was re-entered by R. E. Patton and Albritton & Meyer as No. 1-P Kelly to test the Pennsylvanian.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 15, block B-10, psl survey.

TOM GREEN STRIKE

Sumik Drilling, Inc., of Denton completed No. 1 C. E. Byrd as a Cisco oil discovery in Tom Green County, six miles south of Miles.

On 24-hour potential test it flowed 16 barrels of 46-gravity oil and 20 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 625-1. Completion was through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations at 3,373-3,389 feet after 750 gallons of acid.

Total depth is 4,458 feet and 4 1/2-inch casing is set on bottom.

The Cisco sand was topped at 3,373 feet on ground elevation of 1,755 feet. Location is 1,908.5 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of A. Holtz survey No. 2202.

NOLAN OPENER

John R. Jacobs of Abilene No. 1 Martin has been completed as an Ellenburger discovery in Nolan County, four miles east of Sweetwater.

The strike finalized for a daily flow of 455 barrels of 46-gravity oil, no water, with a gas-oil ratio of 220-1.

Completion was through a 24/64-inch choke and open hole from 5,138 feet, where 4 1/2-inch casing is cemented, and 6,164 feet, the total depth.

The Ellenburger was topped at 6,136 feet on ground elevation of 2,096 feet.

Location is 1,400 feet from north and 1,500 feet from east lines of section 47, block 21, T&P survey.

RUNNELS DISCOVERY

Harken Oil & Gas, Inc., of Abilene No. 1 Harris has been completed to open Fry sand gas production 3/4 mile southwest of the Vanderlaan-Freedman (Gardner oil) field of Runnels County, one mile south of Crews.

It finalized for a calculated absolute open flow of 11 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 3,624 to 3,634 feet after a 500-gallon acid treatment and a 76-barrel fracture job.

The lower Fry sand was topped at 3,622 feet on ground elevation of 1,873.5 feet. Other tops include the upper Capps, 3,412 feet, and the lower Capps, 3,590 feet.

Total depth is 4,000 feet, 4 1/2-inch casing is set at 3,982 feet and the plugged back depth is 3,824 feet.

PECOS RECLASSIFICATION

Flag-Redfern Oil Co. No. 2-L McDonald, the lone well in the Putnam (Ellenburger gas) field of Pecos County has been reclassified to Ellenburger oil, making it a new pay opener in the multipay area.

As an oiler, it finalized for a daily flowing potential of 68 barrels of 42.1-gravity oil and no water, with a gas-oil ratio of 4,882-1.

The pay was acidized with 3,000 gallons. Total depth is 5,320 feet, 4 1/2-inch casing is set on bottom, and hole is plugged back to 5,284 feet.

Completion was through perforations from 4,603 to 4,761 feet. Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 6, block F, TCRR survey and eight miles south of Girvin.

STERLING WELLS

Champlin Petroleum Co. of Midland No. 1 D. L. Glass has been completed in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian) field of Sterling County, 25 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Operator reported a daily flowing potential of 302 barrels of 40.3-gravity oil and 16 barrels of water, through a 24/64-inch choke and perforations from 7,954 to 8,363 feet. The gas-oil ratio is 2,123-1.

Total depth is 8,500 feet, 4 1/2-inch pipe is set on bottom and hole is plugged back to 8,498 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 46, block 32, T-5-S, T&P survey.

Texaco Inc. No. 1 E. B. Cope has been completed in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian) field of Sterling County for a 24-hour flowing potential of 324 barrels of 48-gravity oil and 62 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 2,345-1.

Completion was through a 19/64-inch choke and perforations from 7,860 to 8,206 feet after 6,000 gallons of acid and 66,000 gallons of fracture fluid.

Total depth is 8,441 feet, 5 1/2-inch pipe is set at 8,410 feet and plugged back depth is 8,333 feet.

Wellsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 1, block 2, EL&RR survey.

The site is 17 miles southwest of Sterling City.

ANDREWS GAS WELL

The Superior Oil Co. No. 2-12 University "F," a re-entry project in Andrews County, has been completed as a Yates gas well in the Block 12 multipay field.

The operator reported a calculated absolute open flow potential of 688,600 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 2,823 to 2,921 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and a 60,000-gallon fracture job.

Total depth is 10,297 feet, a 5/8-inch pipe is set at 4,378 feet and plugged back depth is 4,036 feet.

CULBERSON WELL

Conoco Inc. No. 8-22 Ramsey is a new well in the Ford, West (4100) field of Culberson County, 12 miles northwest of Orla.

It finalized for a daily flowing potential of 143 barrels of 37-gravity oil and eight barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 328-1.

Completion was through a 10/64-inch choke and perforations from 3,527 to 3,555 feet.

Total depth is 4,100 feet, 4 1/2-inch pipe is set at 4,085 feet and hole is plugged back to 4,032 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 22, block 58, T-1, T&P survey.

ECTOR WELL

The Cowden, South (8790 Canyon) field of Ector County gained a new well with completion of Amoco Production Co. No. 139 Elliott F. Cowden "A."

The operator reported a daily pumping potential of 95 barrels of 34.4-gravity oil and 71 barrels of water, with a gas-oil ratio of 105-1.

The pay, behind perforations from 8,778 to 9,184 feet, was acidized with 6,500 gallons.

Total depth is 10,724 feet, 5 1/2-inch casing is set at 9,431 feet and hole is plugged back to 9,187 feet.

Line break disrupts service

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) — About 10,000 natural gas customers in this area were without heat for about six hours because of a burst pipeline, company officials said.

A 40-foot section of the 10-inch pipeline was replaced and pressure was restored by 6 p.m., said Bolero Energy Corp. Mike Long.

"We're in good shape," Long said after the repair.

Utility officials in both cities asked businesses, schools and residents to lower their thermostats and Long said that action averted a complete gas shutdown during repairs.

Long said a fire started when the pipe burst but was quickly extinguished.

FTC tempers crude market remedy

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — While holding to its claim that eight giant oil companies illegally control crude oil markets, the Federal Trade Commission staff is tempering its proposed remedy.

FTC attorneys now say they plan to ask only for a partial order requiring the firms to divest refining assets or, as an alternative, to seek only orders limiting the businesses' conduct.

The case, filed in 1973, has been viewed as an effort to break up the eight companies, each of which is involved in petroleum production, transporting, refining and marketing.

In a new filing in the case, FTC attorneys still maintain the eight companies "tacitly agreed not to compete on (crude oil) prices," thus hurting smaller, independent refiners who do not have their own supplies of crude oil.

But the FTC is no longer seeking a major break-up of the companies.

The case probably will go to trial next year before administrative law judge James P. Timony. Appeals to the five-member commission and to federal courts are likely afterward. So far, it has largely been a legal battle over FTC access to corporate information.

The case is against Exxon Corp., Texaco Inc., Gulf Oil Corp., Mobil Corp., Standard Oil Co. of California, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Atlantic Richfield Co. and Shell Oil Co.

WT wildcats, field work announced

The Superior Oil Co. announced location for a 12,000-foot gas wildcat in Ward County, 10 miles northwest of Pyote.

Scheduled as No. 1-32-18 University, it is 1,000 feet from south and east lines of section 32, block 18, University Lands survey.

The project also will test for production in the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp oil) pool.

Leede & Pine of Midland will re-enter a former Ellenburger well in the Taurus field of Ward County and plug back to 12,000 feet for tests as a gas wildcat.

The project, No. 1 Victor H. Zoller, is 1,320 feet from southeast and southwest lines of section 75, block 34, H&TC survey and six miles south of Pyote.

Hole is bottomed at 12,600 feet.

Leede Oil & Gas, Inc., of Midland announced plans to re-enter a well in the Quito, East (Fusselman field) of Ward County and plug back to 12,280 feet for tests as a gas wildcat.

The re-entry is No. 1-30 University, 1,320 feet from north and east lines of section 30, block 18, University Lands survey and eight miles northwest of Pyote. The total depth is 12,500 feet.

HOWARD PROJECTS

Flag-Redfern Oil Co. of Midland staked a new wildcat in Howard County and announced plans to re-enter a project in the same county and test it as a wildcat.

The re-entry is No. 1 D. Allred, originally drilled by Midwest Oil Corp. as No. 1 D. Allred.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 2,310 feet from west lines of section 5, block 33, T-2-N, T&P survey and 14 miles northwest of Big Spring. Hole will be cleaned out to 10,800 feet.

Flag-Redfern staked No. 1 E. M. Allred as the new wildcat. It also is 14 miles northwest of Big Spring and is scheduled to 10,800 feet.

Location is 1,960 feet from north and 2,000 feet from east lines of section 5, block 33, T-2-N, T&P survey.

GLASSCOCK AMENDMENT

Lomax Exploration Co. of Houston has amended location on its No. 1 J. Cox, scheduled 9,500-foot wildcat in Glasscock County, four miles southeast of Garden City.

The prospector now is 2,640 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 21, block 33, T-4-S, T&P survey. It originally was staked 660 feet from north and west lines of the section.

IRION WILDCAT

Sanche-O'Brien Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland No. 1-136 TSRH is to be drilled as an 8,900-foot wildcat in Irion County, 11 miles northwest of Barnhart.

The prospector is surrounded by production in the Spraberry Trend Area field and 1,500 feet from north and 2,100 feet from east lines of section 136, block 1, T&P survey. Ground elevation is 2,448 feet.

COKE RE-ENTRY

Vista Petroleum Co. of Cross Plains will re-enter a 4,465-foot failure in Coke County and deepen to 6,000 feet as a wildcat.

The hole is the former Sid Katz No. 1 Norton Properties 4 1/2 miles southwest of Bronte.

It will be operated by Vista as No. 1

Allard. Location is 467 feet from north and 3,362 feet from west lines of L. N. Taylor survey No. 5. The project was abandoned in June 1956.

TOM GREEN TESTS

A pair of wildcats have been announced in Tom Green County by Mineral Development, Inc., of Midland.

The operator's No. 1-6 Mertz will be drilled as a 4,800-foot wildcat 15 miles southeast of San Angelo.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 6, block A, AB&M survey.

Mineral Development will drill No. 1-2 Mertz in an attempt to reopen the Lisa (Strawn) field 15 miles southeast of San Angelo.

Scheduled to 4,800 feet, it is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 2, block A, AB&M survey.

MARTIN FIELD AREA

McCormick Operating Co. of Houston No. 1 Davidson is to be drilled as an 11,300-foot project in the J.L.M. (Mississippian oil) pool of Martin County, 20 miles north of Stanton.

Drillsite has been staked 1,800 feet from north and 1,050 feet from west lines of section 65, block A, Bauer & Cockrell survey.

WARD FIELD AREA

The Quito, West (Delaware and Cherry Canyon) field of Ward County gained a new project with the staking of Amoco Production Co. No. 1 E. Green.

The 7,000-foot project is 1,809 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 225, block 34, H&TC survey and 15 miles northwest of Monahans.

PECOS COUNTY AREA

PDC Gas Co. of Midland will re-enter the discovery well of the Cardinal (San Andres) field of Pecos County and plug back to 1,700 feet for recompletion attempt as the fifth well in the Cardinal (Queen, west) field.

The project, three miles southeast of Bakersfield, is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 3, block 17, University Lands survey. It was completed from the San Andres in April 1980.

The operation is the No. 6 University.

HOCKLEY LOCATON

Texland, Rector & Schumacher of Fort Worth No. 1 Verette is to be drilled as a 5/8-mile northeast stepout to the eight-well Levelland (Abo) field of Hockley County, three miles southwest of Levelland.

Location is 467 feet from south and east lines of section 18, block 30, Baylor county School Land survey. The contract depth is 7,700 feet.

CROCKETT DRILLSITE

Warren American oil Co. of Midland spotted No. 1 University of Texas No. 234 as a 1 1/2-mile southeast out-post to production in the Crockett County portion of the Farmer (San Andres oil and gas) field, 16 miles southeast of Big Lake.

The 2,800-foot test is 330 feet from south and 2,423 feet from east lines of section 2, block 46, University Lands survey.

TOM GREEN AREA

McBay Oil & Gas, Inc., of Crockett No. 3 Wilbert Gully is to be drilled as a

1/2-mile north stepout to production in the Yan-Kee (Canyon sand oil) pool of Tom Green County, four miles south of Mereta.

Operator spotted the test 3,016 feet from south and 1,995 feet from east lines of F. Roden survey No. 1670. Contract depth is 4,500 feet.

STERLING PROJECTS

Texaco Inc. staked five projects in the Conger, Southwest (Pennsylvanian oil) area of Sterling County, 16 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Each is contracted to 8,400 feet. No. 2 E. B. Cope is 1 1/2 miles north of production and 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 1, block 2, EL&RR survey.

Texaco No. 2 E. B. Cope will be dug 1/2 mile northwest of production and 660 feet from south and 1,286 feet from west lines of section 1, block 2, EL&RR survey.

The operator spotted No. 4 E. B. Cope 1 1/2 miles northeast of production and 1,900 feet from north and 1,600 feet from west lines of section 1, block 2, EL&RR survey.

Texaco No. 2 E. B. Cope "B" will be drilled as a 3/4-mile north stepout 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 2, block 2, EL&RR survey.

The fifth project, Texaco No. 1 Cope-Seale Unit is 5/8 mile north of production and 1,830 feet from west lines of section 2, block 2, EL&RR survey.

CONCHO COUNTY

McBay Oil & Gas, Inc., of Crockett announced two Strawn projects in the Speck, North (Strawn and Canyon) field of Concho County, 12 miles south of Paint Rock.

Contract depth for each test is 4,100 feet.

No. 1 Patricia Speck is 5/8 mile southwest of production and 467 feet from north and west lines of Michael Theis survey No. 2002.

McBay No. 2 Patricia Speck is 3/4 mile southwest of production and 660 feet from south and west lines of Michael Theis survey No. 2002.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices dipped lower again today amid continued concern over high interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 1.36 to 341.13 by noon, as declines outnumbered advances by a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. But while the prospect for continued high interest rates worried stock traders, it helped boost the dollar higher against other currencies. The dollar climbed above 5 francs today for the first time in four years. Today is a bank holiday in many states, and with a three-day weekend coming up and President Reagan's presentation of an economic plan to Congress next week, analysts said they expected trading to remain sluggish. Among early volume leaders were Computer Sciences, down 1 1/2 to 16 1/4 after saying second half profits for 1980 will be below the levels of the first half, and Ramada Inn, up 3/4 to 8 1/4. With gold again selling at under $500 an ounce, precious metals stocks again were hurt, with ASA down 1/2 to 50 1/2, Dome Mines off 2 1/2 to 79 1/2, and Hecla Mining to 79 1/2 to 30 1/4. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost 0.7 to 73.40 in the first two hours of trading. Volume on the Big Board came to 15.59 million shares, compared to 15.47 million at the same point Wednesday. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .83 at 343.26.

Business Mirror

People support Reagan proposals

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst. NEW YORK (AP)—If President Reagan manages to cut the size of government, as promised, it won't happen without cries from critics that he is insensitive to the needs of people. It is inevitable. Amid the howling, therefore, how long are "the people" likely to stand behind the President? Two years, at least, says Richard Leshner, president of the Chamber of Commerce and an outspoken exponent of the "let's rebuild America" theme, a theme he chose, in fact, as the title of his recent book. Two years is Leshner's minimum estimate, based on the unlikely chance the president will make almost no progress toward his goals of cutting taxes, spending and regulations. But if Reagan succeeds as Leshner expects him to, then the support, Leshner says, "will be indefinite." Unlike those analysts who claim the recent election shouldn't be interpreted as a mandate for Reagan's fiscal conservatism, Leshner insists it is just that. And, he says, when the tax and other cuts are in place the president probably may generate even greater support. It is inconceivable that Reagan won't show early progress, he says, and he claims that some of that progress even now is beginning to show in the decline of interest rates, a direction he expects to continue. "And there absolutely will be a tax cut," he said. "A deep personal cut and a cut in business taxes," as well as reductions in the marriage penalty, capital gains and taxes on interest, dividends and royalties. Soon, Leshner believes, there will be evidence of huge spending cuts. He predicts that "both the energy and education departments will be dismantled," and that many regulations will be tamed or eliminated. "Our candidate is OSHA," he said, referring to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, considered by some businessmen to be an agency of harassment rather than one dedicated to remedying abuses. Leshner is convinced voters will support such a program as it evolves, and he believes they will remain with the president as he reviews and strips government from energy issues, develops foreign trade and builds the country's military strength. Some critics of Reagan's military program contend it is at odds with the thrust of other goals, which largely involve cuts in spending and the reduction of government's role in the economy. Military spending is, after all, government spending. "Big government" spending. It doesn't disturb Leshner. It is, he says, what the people want. And, yes, he added, it is consistent with the Chamber's vision of returning to basic American principles. Defense, he said, is such a principle. But what of the cost? How will overall spending and taxes be cut while military spending increases? How will it be financed? First, through cuts in projected spending in other areas, said Leshner. And then through "normal deficit spending." In Leshner's view, the otherwise despised deficit spending technique is inevitable through fiscal 1984, with budget balance not being achieved until fiscal 1985, which begins October 1, 1984. By then, however, all those spending and tax cuts and the freedom from regulatory harassment will have unleashed the power latent in the American economy. The economy will, so to speak, be paying its way. That's the theory, anyway, and it's why the Chamber is behind it, deficit spending and all. And it's the reason why, says Leshner, that the Chamber feels the American people are behind President Reagan.

Weinberger wants neutron warhead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says he still supports use of the neutron warhead in Europe, but he emphasizes that it is not speaking for the Reagan administration. The neutron warhead "could do quite a lot" to offset the Soviet advantage in tanks along the NATO front, Weinberger said in an interview published Wednesday in The Washington Post. He repeated that he felt President Carter made a mistake when, in 1977, he decided against production and deployment of the weapon. After Weinberger announced his support for the neutron warhead at a news conference last week, the State Department felt compelled to reassure the country's European allies that American policy on the weapon had not changed. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig told the allies that they would be fully consulted before any change was made in U.S. policy on the warhead. The neutron warhead has become controversial because of its ability to kill human beings while leaving surrounding buildings intact. It is designed as an anti-tank weapon that can be fired on artillery or Lance battlefield missiles. Weinberger told the Post that "the enhanced radiation warhead could do quite a lot to restore some kind of balance" between the NATO and Warsaw Pact forces.

Open House at Meadowpark

A project of Citizens Savings & Loan
 Saturday 10a.m.-5p.m. Sunday 1p.m.-5p.m.
 North "A" at FM 868

This lovely patio home at 4805-1 Spring Meadow Lane in Meadowpark is one of 12 now nearing completion. Three others now complete will also be open Saturday and Sunday. The builders, and representatives of Citizens Savings, will be available to answer your questions.

Two homes by Whittle Construction Co., including show home above, are open for your inspection. Also, visit two adjacent homes built by Mike Jackson and by Brad Bradley Homes. The show home is completely furnished by Aladdin House and has many exquisite features - parquet floors, fine carpeting, custom lighting, deluxe appliances, and other unique details.

Landscaping of the show home and common areas is by Blue Heron Designs, Inc.

Meadowpark is a Planned Unit Development of attractive patio home and townhome clusters located on nearly 60 acres north-east of the intersection of North "A" Street and FM 686. Recreation facilities will include park area, playgrounds, tennis courts, and swimming pool with deck area.

Bids for construction of recreation facilities have been received and completion is scheduled about mid-year.

For information about Meadowpark, contact any participating builder, or Citizens Savings & Loan Association, 697-2231.
