Budget prescription battle begun

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, armed with a massive prescription for curing the nation's economic ills, is returning from the peaceful mountains of Maryland to find the battle of the budget already begun.

With most of the details disclosed and a congressional lobbying effort in full swing, Reagan spent the weekend at the Camp David presidential retreat polishing the program he will outline Wednesday night.

Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, said the fight over Reagan's plans is shaping up as "the biggest legislative battle in this country since President Franklin Roosevelt fashioned the New Deal."

On the early fronts: —AFL-CIO leaders caucusing in Florida this week are mapping strategy to resist planned cutbacks in federal jobs and unemployment compensation programs.

—Businessmen are complaining about reductions Reagan is expected to seek in the Export-Import Bank, which provides key aid to American businesses operating overseas.

—Several celebrities are protesting Reagan's plans to slash government subsidies for the arts. "We must pray that we not be thrown right back into the dark ages, where it's dog-eat-dog. We deserve better," said folk singer and actor Theodore Bikel.

—Vice President George Bush, joining the giant public relations campaign to promote the plan, urged support for the package in New York Sunday night, saying the administration's "instrument will be the remedial scalpel, not the meat cleaver."

The budget blueprint Reagan is bringing back to Washington today is expected to include reduction or elimination of 83 federal programs. The goal would be to cut $40 billion to $50 billion in the $739.3 billion budget proposed by former President Carter for the spending year that begins Oct. 1.

The plans, according to administration sources, include phasing out the government's popular public service jobs program, reducing extended unemployment compensation benefits and special unemployment benefits for workers hit by high import levels, cutting Medicaid and some Social Security programs and scaling down the food stamp program.

Some politically popular farm subsidies and government support for the nation's fledgling synthetic fuels program also reportedly could feel the budget ax.

"The biggest legislative battle since... Roosevelt fashioned the New Deal."

At the same time, military spending would increase $26.6 billion.

Reagan also wants to reduce Carter's proposed foreign aid spending by more than 22 percent, reduce individual income tax rates by 30 percent over three years beginning July 1 and cut business taxes retroactively to Jan. 1, sources said.

Sprinkled in are cuts that could touch some of the most sensitive nerves on Capitol Hill.

For example, Reagan's plan to dismantle the Appalachian Regional Commission would have its greatest impact in Tennessee and West Virginia. Those two states are represented by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker and Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, respectively.

Key to the success of the president's program will be its reception in Capitol Hill, where Reagan will deliver what White House press secretary

James S. Brady billed as "straight talk to the Congress and the nation" at 9 p.m. EST Wednesday.

A Reagan supporter, Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said congressional approval depends on whether the president's program is considered as a package or in pieces.

"If these cuts have to come to the floor one at a time... then there is no chance of getting this country turned around on fiscal restraint," Domenici said Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

But Sen. Russell B. Long, a Louisiana Democrat, said he sees success for only "65 to 70 percent" of the plan — and that much only if the Reagan forces can capitalize on what Long sees as "the momentum and the will of the people on his side."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas cautioned Sunday that the cuts won't come easily, even though Democrats are "every bit as eager" as Republicans to cut the budget.

"Everybody in the entire United States wants to reduce expenditures. Unfortunately, there isn't any line in the budget that says 'waste, fat and fraud,'" Wright said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"When you get down to specifics, it's extremely difficult," he added.

Newsweek magazine reported Sunday that Reagan's economic recovery program eventually could trim the federal work force by 10 percent — a total of 200,000 people. Most of those would be in federal regulatory agencies, which Reagan has pledged to curb as a way to aid American businesses.

The chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission has told Reagan's budget chief, David A. Stockman, that the president's federal hiring freeze will seriously affect his agency and hamper its nuclear plant inspection program.

Explosion kills man prior to Pope's mass in Karachi

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — An explosive device went off at Karachi's national stadium packed with 100,000 people today, minutes before Pope John Paul II arrived to celebrate a Mass. A doctor said the blast killed one man and injured two others.

The pope, making a brief stopover in this Moslem nation on his 12-day Far East trip, apparently was unaware of the explosion, which occurred in a stairwell while a choir sang before the Mass. The stair led to seating for foreign diplomats.

Dr. Dolphyn D'Souza, who examined the victims, said, "It was an explosion but we don't know what it was. One man was definitely dead. His whole abdomen was busted open." A CBS reporter on the scene said it sounded like "a huge firecracker" and it went largely unnoticed. He said there was no panic at the time.

Volunteer nurses rushed to the area and called for police to carry the victims to a first aid room, where one man was pronounced dead and his body loaded aboard an ambulance.

American vice consul Tim Kane was in the area, and took off his shirt in the blood-spattered concrete stairwell to cover one of the victims. Witnesses said they appeared to be Pakistani men in their 20s.

The pope arrived at the stadium, normally used for cricket matches, under heavy security after a 21-gun salute and honor guard greeting at Karachi's international airport.

There, the 60-year-old pontiff told diplomats, church leaders and Pakistani priest Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq: "I pray that the mutual understanding and respect between Christians and Moslems will continue and grow deeper and find still better ways of cooperation and collaboration."

His major gesture of good will to the world's 800 million Moslems continued in the 90-minute stadium homily. John Paul told the cheering faithful Christ "alone is the source of life" but that their evangelical effort must be conducted "in a spirit of dialogue and respect to those in your country who do not know Christ."

Through such dialogue, the pope said, "We have come to see more clearly the many values, practices and teachings which both our religious traditions embrace... our belief in the one almighty and merciful God, the creator of heaven and earth, and the importance which we give to prayer, almsgiving and fasting."

The pope made the brief stopover in Pakistan, which has 750,000 Catholics, en route to the Philippines, Guam and Japan on the ninth and most grueling trip abroad in his two-year pontificate.

The Pakistan stop came amid a backdrop of Islamic revival in the region, including Iran and Turkey. Zia has pushed an "Islamization" campaign in the nation's banks and other institutions.

Some priests complained about Zia's order limiting the airport welcome to bishops and a few other church officials. They called it an attempt to turn the papal stopover into a "state visit" to give the appearance John Paul sanctions Zia's military regime, rather than a security step.

Church leaders in the Philippines also expressed concern that President Ferdinand E. Marcos would attempt to capitalize politically on the pontiff's visit.

The Vatican said John Paul sent messages of peace and brotherhood to heads of states whose countries he flew over.

Pope John Paul's visit to the Philippines will be the second papal visit in 11 years. It will be the first in history to Japan and Guam.

Vatican officials said the pope's major theme on his 21,000-mile voyage would be peace — through disarmament, fair distribution of wealth, protection of human rights and interfaith dialogue.

L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, said the pontiff would call for critical decisions to advance the cause of peace because mankind is "threatened by an immense danger... an atomic conflict and the terrible existential and social inequalities which culminate in the tragedy of poverty and hunger."

Local church sources had warned before the pope left Rome that Zia and Marcos might try to exploit the visit for their own political purposes.

Marcos, who with his wife, Imelda, vied with Cardinal Jaime Sin of Manila for the pope's time and attention, sought to improve the atmosphere for the visit by lifting martial law, which he imposed eight years ago.

But scores of nuns, priests and seminarians joined more than 2,500 young people in an anti-government demonstration in Manila Friday. Calling for an end to "fascist dictatorial rule," they said they planned more protests during the pope's visit.

In the Philippines, the only Catholic nation in Asia, he was to visit the slum dwellers of Manila, Indonesian "boat people," sugar plantation workers and Moslems and other ethnic minorities.

In Japan, he was to pray for the victims and visit survivors of the 1945 U.S. atomic attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The pope has been taking daily Japanese lessons and for two months has been saying his morning Mass in Japanese, his first Oriental language, in his private chapel, with two Japanese nuns correcting his pronunciation.

Allies meet to discuss Reagan foreign policy

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Foreign ministers of three major U.S. allies — Britain, West Germany and France — met here secretly last week to discuss the implications for Europe of the new Reagan administration's foreign policy. West German officials said today.

The sources asked not to be identified and would not reveal details of the meeting last Thursday of West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher with Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet of France and Lord Carrington, the British foreign secretary.

But the sources said the discussion centered around U.S. foreign policy developments and events in Poland, where labor unrest has prompted fears in the West of Soviet military intervention.

There was no immediate U.S. comment on the meeting.

Some senior officials in the West German government have become uneasy over the escalating war of words between the United States and the Soviet Union, which the U.S. allies fear may endanger their own efforts to pursue a policy of detente with the Soviets.

Senior officials in Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's Social Democratic Party have also said privately they believe the U.S. government should not be supporting the junta in El Salvador and its rightist army in their war against leftist guerrillas.

Sailing ship beached, passengers wade ashore

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An 86-foot sailing ship returning from a whale-watching excursion ran aground in thick fog near here, but the 54 people aboard waded safely to shore, the Coast Guard reported.

"We were a couple miles offshore and the fog came from behind like pea soup," said Edward Barr, the ship's captain. "I did a mental calculation of how long to run (along the coast) before turning into the harbor. But I miscalculated and I turned into the point."

The ship, the California, was several miles off the coast returning from the whale-watching excursion about 4 p.m. Sunday when the fog rolled in. Barr radioed a Mayday to the Coast Guard.

Authorities estimated Barr turned his ship about 300 yards too soon. It grounded directly beneath the Coast Guard lighthouse station at the tip of Point Loma.

Efforts were planned to tow the ship, built in 1935, into deeper water and save it from the crashing surf, Barr said.

Crew members said there was no panic among the 49 Los Angeles-area passengers, and that everyone was able to slide safely from the ship into the waist-deep water and walk to shore.

Passengers said there was no indication of trouble aboard the vessel until a scraping sound was heard and the ship came to a halt.

"When it happened, nobody knew how far out we were," said passenger Larry Foutz.

"We heard a loud bump and the whole ship shifted," said Monica Schoppe, another passenger. "We all waited for it to right — and it didn't."

Dollar stronger in world

LONDON (AP) — The dollar posted fresh gains on world money markets today, showing some of the sharpest advances seen in months on the basis of indications of tough new economic policies from President Reagan.

The dollar hit a seven-year high against the French franc, touched its highest level in years against the sagging West German mark, the Swiss franc and Dutch guilder, and reached another unofficial all-time record against the Italian lira.

"The dollar is still riding the wave and may well stay strong during the week while the market waits for Ronald Reagan's economic speech," said one Swiss dealer.

Reagan's speech, scheduled for Wednesday, is expected to detail his plans for trimming the budget and curbing inflation.

The dollar boom on world markets was good news for Americans living or touring abroad, since their dollars go farther. However, it may hurt U.S. exporters since it makes their products more expensive in foreign markets.

Most U.S. banks were closed today for the President's Day holiday.

Today's midmorning European dollar rates compared to late Friday: — 2.2485 West German marks, up from 2.2055 and the dollar's highest level against the mark since November 1977.

— 2.0605 Swiss francs, up from 2.0085, highest level since December 1977.

— 5.1888 French francs, up from 5.0850. The dollar was last this high on Jan. 30, 1974.

— 2.4245 Dutch guilders, up from 2.3925, highest rate for four years.

— 1.0570 Italian lire, up from 1.0405, an unofficial record high.

The British pound slumped more than 3/4 cents to trade at $2.2503 as compared to $2.2870 on Friday. The pound has now fallen 18 cents since Jan. 21, although it has remained strong against other world currencies.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar rose to a seven-week high of 207.80 yen at one point in heavy trading, before closing at 207.65 yen as compared to Friday's close of 205.50.

Gold prices were slightly lower in quiet trading today.

London's five bullion houses fixed a recommended morning price of $487 an ounce, down from $494.50 late Friday. In Zurich, the metal traded for about $487.50, down from $491.50.

Earlier in Hong Kong, gold closed at $489.63, down $5.20.

In New York on Friday, gold finished the week at $494.00 Dollars. One year ago, gold was worth $660 dollars an ounce.

Silver was quoted in London today at $12.70 an ounce, up from $12.68 Friday.

Raising legal drinking age now in Senate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators had a chance today to decide whether to make Texas teen-agers wait an extra year to step up to the bar for a drink or buy a six-pack at a drive-in grocery.

Two senators had notified their colleagues they would seek approval of their bills raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19.

The Senate and House scheduled floor sessions and a full committee slate on the state holiday — Washington's birthday — in starting the sixth week of the 4½-month legislative session.

Closing arguments today in Scarsdale Diet trial

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Attorneys in Jean Harris' murder trial were going to court today to present final arguments to the jury that will decide whether Mrs. Harris killed Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower in a jealous rage or accidentally during a suicide attempt.

March 10. Prosecutors contend she was angered at Tarnower's affair with Lynne Tryforos, his 38-year-old office assistant.

Six people injured in crash in Lamesa

LAMESA — Six people, including a San Antonio family, were injured in a two-car head-on collision about 4:45 p.m. Sunday on U.S. Highway 87 in far south Lamesa.

During eight days of testimony in her own defense, Mrs. Harris told the jury she only remembered shooting Tarnower, 69, in the hand as he grabbed her gun when she tried to commit suicide.

Iran, Iraq claim successes

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran and Iraq claimed fresh successes in air, sea and land combat today as the Persian Gulf war slogged into its 22nd week in the snow-blanketed foothills of the Zagros Mountains and the rainwashed marshes of Khuzistan.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein threatened to conquer more Iranian cities to force the Islamic revolutionary regime in Tehran to "kneel and plead for peace." Hussein said Iraq has more tanks, planes and guns now than at the outbreak of the war 148 days ago.

Military communiques from the two nations, however, showed no break from the reigning stalemate at the war's two major theaters in Iran's western highlands, and the southwestern oil heartland of Khuzistan, both largely occupied by Iraq.

Iran claimed 83 Iraqi deaths and Iraq claimed 80 enemy fatalities in 24 hours of paratroop assaults and long-range artillery duels as helicopter gunships raided each other's positions at both ends of the 300-mile warfront.

An Iranian communique also claimed 80 Iraqi deaths in a flank attack that brought Iranian forces punching across the border to capture a chain of hills in north-eastern Iraq.

A communique from Iraq claimed that Iraqi warplanes sank an Iranian gunboat off Iran's besieged oil refining city of Abadan at the border waterway of Shatt al-Arab. The Iraqis claimed to have sunk an Iranian warship at the Persian Gulf's northern tip on Saturday.

The war claims could not be independently verified because mostly Persian Iran and predominantly Arab Iraq ban journalists from battlefield reporting.

President Hussein issued his threat of more conquest on Sunday when he addressed an Iraqi infantry brigade departing to the front from Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, according to the official Iraqi News Agency.

"We have refrained from grabbing more enemy cities and land to give the enemy leadership the chance to reconsider its position and accept peaceful coexistence with Iraq,"

Hussein said. "But if it fails to do so, then it shall be forced to kneel and plead for peace. . . . We are capable of taking more Iranian cities at will."

Hussein said Iraq concluded billions of dollars worth of arms deals since the start of the war, but did not say what countries the weapons were bought from.

"We have found additional paths to weaponry," said Hussein, whose main arm's supplier before the war was the Soviet Union. "We have also made deals with all forces of the black market to get arms and equipment."

Tyler students sharing school

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Overcrowding will be a way of life for high school students here during the next year and a half.

That's how long the 2,300 students from John Tyler High School will have to share Robert E. Lee High School, which has 2,400 pupils, while John Tyler is rebuilt, school board members say.

John Tyler was gutted Saturday by a fire that destroyed three-fourths of the school's classrooms and 90 percent of its office space.

One of seven firefighters injured in the blaze remained hospitalized Sunday.

Three teen-agers, two of them former John Tyler students suspended in December, were arrested Sunday in connection with the fire, which investigators said was definitely a case of arson.

Martin Dale Wingard, 18, and Arthur Gene White, 17, were charged with first-degree arson. Justice of the Peace Ray Day set bond at $50,000 each and both remained in the Smith County Jail.

The third teen-ager was 15 years old, a juvenile under Texas law, and authorities would not release his name. He was held on juvenile delinquency charges.

Fire Chief Gerald Weaver said White and Wingard were indefinitely suspended by the Tyler school board after a December incident in which an assistant principal said he was attacked and beaten when he told two male students to stop drinking beer in the school parking lot.

After the fire, the school board voted that all 4,700 high school-age students in this town would attend Lee on a split-day basis, with Lee students in class from 7 a.m. to noon and the John Tyler pupils attending from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., beginning Wednesday.

The school board heard reports which said only 34 of John Tyler's 101 classrooms could be made useable immediately, and that rebuilding the school would take a minimum of 18 months.

Board members said fire damage would probably exceed $7 million. An insurance adjuster said most of the loss was covered.

There were two fires set in the high school, according to Weaver — one in a second-story office building and the other in a first-floor social studies classroom, where a window was broken to gain entry.

Firefighters also said there was an unsuccessful attempt to set fire to Rice Elementary School late Saturday, but believed it was not directly related to the John Tyler fire.

Vegas hotel fire work of more than one arsonist

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — While fully booked hotels turned away would-be gamblers, arson investigators said they believe more than one person was involved in setting the fires that claimed eight lives at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel.

At least one of the four fires may have been set by someone who "wanted to jump on the bandwagon" after the first blaze erupted, arson investigator Mike Patterson said Sunday.

A 23-year-old Hilton busboy, Philip Bruce Cline, allegedly told police he accidentally set the largest of the four fires that erupted in the east wing of the nation's largest hotel Tuesday. He was booked for investigation of murder and arson.

The $10 million blaze injured 198 people. It followed by just three months an electrical fire at the MGM Grand hotel in Las Vegas that killed 84 people.

Patterson, chief arson investigator for the Clark County Fire Department, said Cline could not have been involved in at least one of the fires at the Hilton because he was giving officials a statement at the time it began.

Other fires could have been the work of a "pyromaniac or a goofball, but we have nothing to indicate that," said Bob James, another member of the arson squad.

"Whether there is a link with the suspect, we can't say at this time," James said. "We expect a few things to surface in the next couple days. We think for sure we've got somebody else involved."

Just a little time

A little of your time is all Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Midland wants.

This is Big Brothers-Big Sisters Week in the Tall City. It began Sunday and will continue through Saturday, celebrated in conjunction with the national organization.

The celebration also is "volunteer appreciation week" because it is the volunteers from all walks of life who make the organization possible. As program director Julie Wolfe notes, "The volunteers who are currently working with our program richly deserve all the recognition they can receive during this their special week."

The volunteers certainly have made a difference in the lives of many Midland children, who otherwise would not receive the acceptance, understanding, guidance and friendship they need.

According to Ms. Wolfe, "The Big Brothers and Big Sisters offer the precious gift of the friendship of a mature, moral, well-adjusted adult to a growing boy or girl who needs such friendship and guidance in order to one day themselves become mature, moral, well-adjusted men and women."

There is a great need in Midland for Big Brothers and Big Sisters. "The past year we have seen an alarming increase in the number of single-parent families in our community," Ms. Wolfe noted, "and it is to this need that our organization wants to address itself."

Finding good Big Brothers and Big Sisters is no easy task, however. Volunteers are carefully screened regarding their character, stability, maturity, motivation and availability to participate in the program.

But the volunteers who are now participating and have participated in the program in the past likely have learned that in sharing a little of their time and love, they have received a type of personal fulfillment they could get no other way.

All the Big Brothers and Big Sisters in Midland deserve our hearty thanks for a job well done. Their time and their caring is appreciated.

And many of the rest of us should become involved, also. In that way we can make a difference in a child's life.

Is anything really more important?

Controls fail again

In order to "gain control over the inflation monster," President Reagan is dismantling the Council of Wage and Price Stability. He said it had not only failed in its mission but had actually contributed to the economic crisis.

Interestingly enough, the council created by former President Jimmy Carter, agrees in principle with Mr. Reagan. The council's final evaluation of its two-year experiment with wage and price guidelines was a humble post-mortem.

The guidelines were largely overwhelmed by events and thus appeared to be a "dismal failure," the council reported.

The council also noted that the guidelines created an economic distortion by enabling workers with cost-of-living adjustment clauses in their labor contracts to realize significantly greater gains than workers without such anti-inflation protection. As a result, the council said, there may be a round of "catch-up" wage increases for workers without such clauses, and these can offset any small anti-inflation gains made during the two years of the guidelines.

Mark this as another in a long line of failures of wage and price controls, whether they be voluntary, as Carter's were, or mandatory, as former President Richard Nixon's were. Controls don't work because they distort true supply and demand.

When will mankind finally put to rest the erroneous idea that kings, regencies, presidents, dictators, parliaments or any other government force can determine the willingness or unwillingness of buyers to buy and sellers to sell? Only the free market can do that.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Panicky White House guards routed by dogs

WASHINGTON — The armed guards who man the White House gates are sworn to stop intruders, if necessary at the risk of their own lives. This is the story of how 10 of them were panicked and routed by two romping dogs.

An official account of the incident claims a "Great Dane" joined in intimidating the guards. But later investigation identified it as no more than a playful puppy.

The confrontation took place at the U.S. Agriculture Research Center in the wilds of the Washington, D.C., outlands. The White House guardians had gone there for motorbike training. The dogs were trespassing; they had strayed onto government property from a small adjoining farm.

Their owner, Karen E. Jones, had let them out for their morning run. Across the way, 10 stalwarts, mounted on motorbikes, were chugging along "in single-file formation." They were proceeding with "caution," they attest, "since three dogs had been sighted."

Sure enough, the three friskies appeared, and one allegedly charged the motorbike brigade. "The last officer in line was knocked to the ground," relates the bureaucratic account.

The aggressor is described as "a large white German shepherd." That would have been Jane, 60 pounds of pusillanimity. The exasperated owner insists Jane is "a real coward" and won't even attack on command.

Back to the bureaucratic prose: "While lying on the ground, the officer, fearing for his safety, drew his service revolver and fired at the shepherd. The shot missed, and the dog fled into the high grass."

The sprawled officer "then turned his head and saw a large red dog running toward him." This was later identified as Blarney, a beribboned Irish setter who had made the Obedience School honor roll.

The dog swang his gun around and "fired two shots." Declares the communique: "The dog dropped to the ground, struggled back to his feet and (ran) into the high grass."

Throughout the excitement, "the third dog, believed by the officer to be a Great Dane, stayed at a distance." In fact, this was a puppy called Flash, offspring of the Irish setter and German shepherd. The sight of him apparently spooked the White House detail. "Fearing another attack," states the report, "all personnel evacuated the area."

They later regrouped and went back to the field, where they found Blarney's body. While moving the dead dog, one officer cut his finger. Worried about rabies, he called the county health department and was asked if the dog had been run over. "To avoid a lengthy explanation, the officer merely agreed," the report explains.

Then the account gets a bit gruesome. The officers cut off Blarney's head with a hacksaw and sent it, along with the collar, to the health

A CHANGING WORLD

Canadians optimistic about Reagan's hemispheric view

OTTAWA — A few Canadians are horrified, most are cautiously optimistic and some have advice for President Reagan as he charts America's future.

On the plus side, Canadians feel that there is no direction to go but up after what they term the unproductive administration of Jimmy Carter.

"We didn't do well with Carter," Charles Lynch, Canada's No. 1 political columnist said in an interview, "so there are no great amount of tears being shed over his departure. He was the first president since before Franklin Roosevelt's time who did not come to Canada and we are pleased that Mr. Reagan is coming to see us (tentatively in April). So there is some optimism here."

Almost as quickly as he said this, however, Lynch, top man of the Southam newspaper chain's news services, talked of some misgivings concerning the new U.S. leader — but these, from an American view might be described as more emotional and philosophical than real.

"We wonder about an actor becoming your president," Lynch said, "and he (Reagan) is old — but also seems in a high state of fitness and he cuts a good figure."

But, Canadians, without the adoration and affection the U.S. public has for Hollywood figures, cannot quite grasp how an actor can make it to the White House.

"It's just that our people," Lynch said, "have trouble thinking that someone of that background can make it to the presidency. Do such people (actors) function as normal human beings? They are not viewed as intelligent men and women. They seem to be fuzzy people."

But, how about Mr. Reagan's election twice as governor of California, the nation's largest state? "Frankly," Lynch said, "lots of our people thought that was just funny."

Lynch also said that some Canadians think Mr. Reagan may be too "Goldwaterish," although his personal view did not subscribe to that evaluation. Also, the reality of politics, as many Americans suspect, may make the new president hew closer to a centrist line than the extreme right.

"You know, we in Canada have perhaps the most socialized country in the Western world," Lynch said, "and there seemed to be a great urge not long ago for the swing to the right that you think you may have seen in your election."

However, that (the Canadian election of conservative Joe Clark) lasted only eight months and we have the liberals again. There may be a moral in that for Mr. Reagan — if he sees his future as one with a small 'c' conservative mandate he should look to the north."

One thing that has pleased Canadians is the statement by Secretary of State Alexander Haig at his Senate confirmation hearings that there will be greater cooperation with Canada, including the early meeting with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

"Haig's statement," Lynch said, "was the first one of that type in my lifetime from an American secretary of state. It's a good beginning, particularly when we recall that Richard Nixon once in a speech listing friends of the United States didn't even mention Canada."

There still are Canadians who speak of an "imperial" Reagan administration and there are those who resent the major role U.S. firms play in Canadian business — and employment. But, they also are fully aware that cooperation in trade, even in defense matters, is vital to the well-being of both countries.

Canadians, Lynch insists, have no animosity toward the big brother to the south.

"It is more a matter of increasing indifference," he said, "because we have our own internal problems and they are formidable ones. We simply are becoming more introverted."

Mostly, however, Canada — in its own self-interest — wishes the "movie actor" well because a prosperous United States means a more prosperous Canada, and a secure one. As one French-speaking observer said, it is a matter of, "L'union fait la force" perhaps loosely translated as hemispheric unity, a need clearly recognized by most Canadians as of primary importance.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Feb. 16, the 47th day of 1981. There are 318 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 16, 1959, Fidel Castro became the premier of Cuba.

On this date: In 1804, a force of U.S. Marines slipped into Tripoli harbor and burned the U.S. Navy frigate Philadelphia, which had been captured by pirates.

In 1873, a republic was proclaimed in Spain. In 1967, 13 American helicopters were shot down in fighting over South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: Defense Secretary Melvin Laird advised President Nixon to expect some difficult days ahead in the drive to cut communist supply lines in Laos.

Five years ago: Patricia Hearst and the jury in her bank robbery trial visited the two San Francisco spots where Miss Hearst said she'd been held by kidnappers.

One year ago: United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim prepared to name a panel to investigate alleged crimes committed by the ousted shah of Iran.

Today's birthdays: Movie director John Schlesinger is 55.

Thought for today: Few people get up bright and early, but most of us just get up early — Anonymous.

INSIDE REPORT:

Begin will trust Reagan on first, questionable action

WASHINGTON — At Israel's suggestion, friendly senators have called off high-pressure political action against President Reagan's imminent decision to make Saudi Arabia F-15 aircraft more lethal — the first time in years that a U.S. action not favorable to Israel will be allowed to happen without bitter controversy.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin himself is the source of the surprising Israeli government decision not to court political battle with a new, hard-line Republican president who has sworn fidelity to Israel. One reason for Begin's retreat from high-pressure tactics so useful with the past: Israel has far more confidence in Reagan's loyalty than in any of his recent predecessors. That might change the U.S.-Israeli relationship for the better, giving Israel more self-confidence.

The way was cleared Feb. 4 for the usual outraged letter from pro-Israel senators warning Reagan not to give the Saudis long-range fuel pods and new armaments for their F-15s, needed for self-defense in the threatened Persian Gulf. When the aircraft were sold to Saudi Arabia in 1978 in the face of a tie vote by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, President Carter pledged they would be interceptors only — not fitted with bomb racks and long-distance fuel capacity.

Within hours after Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's public statement on Feb. 3 that a decision would soon be made on the extra equipment for the F-15s, Democratic

Evans

Novak

Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware had drafted a "Dear Mr. President" letter and was circulating it to colleagues.

But something happened on the letter's way to the Oval Office. Biden told us that the congressional recess had sent so many senators scurrying out of town that he was postponing his lobbying effort for lack of immediate signatures.

Insiders had a different explanation. They said Biden learned that the potent pro-Israel lobbying group the America-Israel Political Action Committee (APAC) was counseling extreme caution partly on grounds that Prime Minister Begin's badly weakened government was uncertain how to proceed.

What worried the Israelis were two disturbing possibilities. The first was that conservative Republicans would refuse to sign any letter trying to put the arm on the new president. In the Carter presidency there was no such restraint on Republicans or Democrats.

The second reason is strategic, not tactical. Neither Begin nor his Labor Party opposition wants to get off on the wrong foot with a new president whose professions of loyalty to Israel have been consistently higher than any president since Lyndon Johnson. A lobbying campaign against Reagan's first major decision involving Israel could change his mind about Israel, while failing to change his mind about sending the new equipment to Saudi Arabia.

"We just have to trust Reagan on this one," one pro-Israel insider told us. Such words would never have been spoken about Carter, who, fairly or not, was consistently faulted for failing to accept Israel's word about the Arab threat.

In addition to this trust of Reagan, the Israelis doubt that either Secretary of State Alexander Haig or Weinberger would bow to political pressure from the Senate on the Saudi arms deal. In sharp contrast to both Carter's secretaries of state, Cyrus Vance and Edmund Muskie, Haig is respected in Israel as a tough strategic thinker not to be toyed with.

That means Haig looks at Israel not in terms of American constituency-group politics but as an American ally with strategic strength to offer Washington, much like Saudi Arabia and other U.S. allies in the Arab world. Haig does not intend to name a successor to the astute Sol Linowitz, Carter's special ambassador on the Egyptian-Israeli Camp David agreement. The Reagan administration sees no need for an envoy particularly acceptable both to American Jews and to Israel.

By the same token, Reagan has made a tentative decision not to hire a resident White House emissary to the American Jewish community. Reagan feels his own credentials with American Jews are good enough.

The matter of the F-15s looks to Reagan and his top advisers like an ideal first test for working out a new, less paternalistic relationship with Israel while actually strengthening the U.S.-Israeli alliance. Haig has told Israeli ambassador Ephraim Evron that Israel's stake in a peaceful Persian Gulf should be just as high as Western Europe's, Japan's and America's, and that the U.S. would never permit Saudi Arabia to use beefed-up F-15s against Israel. Begin would not have swallowed that from Carter but he is on the verge of accepting it from Reagan. That could open a brighter new chapter in the tortuous history of Arab-Israeli relations.

CODE WORDS: FBI Director William Webster has assured Congress that, in accordance with an executive order from former President Carter, the bureau has discontinued the use of secret code names for information files on certain individuals. One such was the notorious "June" file, including information on the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Though the code names are now gone, the files still exist.

WATCH ON WASTE: Believe it or not, the new administration's tough talk on government economy seems to have gotten through to at least some of the spendthrifts on the federal payroll. The International Communication Agency's seven-member advisory commission, for example, had planned to hold its February meeting in Mexico City. But the junket has been postponed indefinitely. An ICA official said the commissioners "felt it would be inappropriate to fly to Mexico" after all.

Loop 250 contract awarded to Odessa construction firm

ODESSA — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has awarded a contract to Jones Brothers Rental Equipment Co., Inc. of Odessa to construct a portion of Loop 250 in Midland.

The project begins at State Highway 158, which is the Andrews Highway, extends northerly along Holiday Hill Road and turns easterly to intersect FM 868. It continues to Lamesa Road east of Big Spring Street. The length of the project is 6.7 miles with a portion of it being on a new location.

Contract price is $6,635,000 and 360 working days will be allowed to complete the work.

This project provides for the construction of frontage roads with curb and gutter adjacent to the right of way lines. Each of the frontage roads will be two lanes in width and each will operate with one-way traffic.

Cross-overs will be constructed at street intersections where future interchanges or grade separations are planned. Asphaltic concrete pavement will be used for surfacing.

Completion of this segment of the Midland Loop will provide a four-lane divided facility from Highway 80 on the west side of Midland to Lamesa Highway. This facility should safely handle the increasing traffic demands in this rapidly developing area for an extended period of time.

John Aldridge, resident engineer in Midland, is in charge of the project with District Engineer W. A. Lancaster of Odessa providing overall supervision.

Kermit capital murder trial begins in Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — More than 250 Howard County residents were called to the courthouse today as prospective jurors for the capital murder trial of a 19-year-old Kermit man.

Victor Carrasco Velasquez was indicted Dec. 9 on two counts of capital murder in the Nov. 15 stabbing deaths of Jeannie Marie Pardue, 51, and her 15-year-old daughter, LeeAnn Wallace.

He also was indicted for attempted capital murder in the stabbing of Molly Ann Wallace, Mrs. Pardue's daughter-in-law, who survived the attack. He has pleaded innocent on all three charges.

The trial was moved here from Kermit because of extensive local publicity, said one of Valesquez' two court-appointed attorneys.

Velasquez was denied bond and was held in the Winkler County Jail at Kermit from the time of his Nov. 24 arrest until his transfer here on Feb. 4.

Jury selection will probably take about a week, predicted presiding judge Ralph Caton, since each prospective juror must be questioned individually on the matter of the death penalty. If convicted of capital murder, a defendant in Texas must receive either a death sentence or a life prison term.

Deployment could accelerate arms race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deployment of both the advanced Trident II submarine missiles and the MX missile system, which would enhance American strategic capabilities, might lead to accelerated nuclear arms development in the Soviet Union, a federal study says.

"The Trident II missile, combined with other U.S. programs ... could increase Soviet fears of a U.S. first (nuclear) strike," according to an arms control impact statement sent to Congress on Saturday.

The Soviets might respond to deployment of both missiles by developing new nuclear weapons that would upset the nuclear balance and could not be easily controlled by any new arms agreement, the statement says.

Although acknowledging the possible arms control risks associated with deployment of the MX, the report says, "the national political and military risks involved in not doing so are even greater."

The impact statements by the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency say some mix of Trident II and MX missiles might be found that would not threaten arms control.

The United States has not made a decision on whether to deploy both the Trident II and MX missile.

Meanwhile, the second-ranking official at the Soviet embassy in Washington, Minister-Counselor Vladilen M. Vasev, said Saturday the SALT II treaty is "not in force" because the U.S. has not ratified it.

Asked about the fate of the strategic arms limitation agreement, Vasev told the Cable News Network, "I would say the ball is in the court of the (Reagan) administration ... We are in the process of waiting for the United States to do its side of the agreement."

The U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency reviewed more than 90 U.S. weapons systems and concluded that all were in accord with present arms control agreements. The report was sent to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The statements say both the land-fired MX missiles and Trident II submarine missiles would overcome increasing U.S. vulnerability to a Soviet first nuclear strike.

Arms control could be threatened, the statements say, if the Soviets developed a new weapons system to counter the increased capabilities the United States might gain from deployment of the Trident and MX missiles.

However, either the MX mobile missile system or the Trident II missiles could enhance arms control if the Soviets responded by building a controllable new mobile missile system of their own, the statements say.

"A situation in which both sides had deployed mobile intercontinental ballistic missiles could be more stable than one in which one side's ICBMs were mobile (or otherwise survivable) and the other's were potentially vulnerable," one statement says.

Mobile systems move nuclear missiles around so that the other side cannot locate them and destroy them in a first nuclear strike.

The proposed MX system would shuttle 200 U.S. missiles among 4,600 different launching sites in valleys in the Nevada and Utah deserts.

On other weapon systems, the statements say:

—Development of U.S. cruise missiles is unlikely to upset the U.S.-Soviet balance because their numbers are limited by agreement, but they potentially could force new arms control concessions by the Soviets.

"The possibility of a major increase in U.S. strategic capabilities in the absence of Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty limits, as suggested by cruise missiles and related force improvement programs, could provide a considerable incentive for the Soviets to make concessions as part of a SALT III agreement," one statement says.

U.S. involved in U.N. emphasis

Dear Dr. Solomon: As a disabled person, there have been times when I've felt that I was being treated as a second-class citizen. Since I am confined to a wheelchair, even entering a supermarket is an almost insurmountable task. Recently, however, there does appear to be a greater public awareness of what disability is — and what it is not. Now I hear that the United Nations is getting into the act. Do you have any information about any such activity and, particularly, whether the United States will be involved? — Mr. S.G.

Dear Mr. G.: The United Nations General Assembly has designated 1981 as the International Year of Disabled Persons (IYDP), and the federal government is very much involved. In general, IYDP seeks to advance the goals of independence, equality, and full participation in society for the 450 million persons throughout the world with physical or mental handicaps.

In this country, a Federal Intergovernmental committee is responsible for coordinating IYDP activities. Although the committee includes more than 30 representatives from a variety of federal agencies, the primary responsibility rests with the Departments of State, Education, and Health and Human Services (HHS).

Within HHS, the efforts of the Social Security Administration (SSA) illustrate IYDP activities on the federal level. I cite SSA in particular because of its significance in the lives of disabled persons. Through its disability insurance and supplemental security income programs, SSA pays monthly cash benefits to about 4.4 million blind and disabled individuals.

In keeping with the theme of IYDP, SSA has pledged to work towards removal of architectural barriers from its headquarters buildings and local facilities throughout the nation so as to facilitate access to these buildings by its own handicapped employees as well as by disabled individuals in the general public. It also is planning a special recruitment program for handicapped persons with the potential for employment with the agency.

These are only a few of the many activities planned on the national level in observance of IYDP; state and local governments are also being encouraged to participate. In view of all this activity, I imagine we will be hearing a great deal more about IYDP in the coming months.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Your recent article regarding a decrease in incidence of stomach cancer may have a logical explanation based on the work from Doctor T. Sigmura, director of Japan's National Cancer Institute. Recently, while he was a Fogarty International Fellow, Dr. Sigmura toured the U.S. and explained his theory about decreasing stomach cancer rates in both the U.S. and Japan. According to Dr. Sigmura, decreasing stomach cancer rates are mirror images of increasing use of refrigeration in these two countries. He attributes pickling, brining and other older preservative methods as the cause of the higher rates at the beginning of the century, as well as the more frequent contamination of foods by molds which produced carcinogenic mycotoxins. — Dr. Bruce Molholt, Science Director, Environmental Cancer Prevention Center, Philadelphia, Pa.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not delay in following up on yesterday's successes. You can now open new lines of communication that will benefit both career and social life. Rely on your own resources to move ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A "hearts and flowers" approach is best when it comes to romance. You draw new strength from loved ones. Tempers could flare at work. Keep a low profile and you will emerge unscathed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A splendid day for romance! You could be on the receiving end of a special concession. An opportunity exists to take advantage of someone else's mistake. Keep business dealings strictly aboveboard.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Avoid becoming involved with controversial people and projects. Solitude can help you think things through. Creative work progresses nicely. The future appears more secure. This is a good day to sign agreements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Give some thought to insurance, tax matters. Accountant or banker can offer excellent advice. Get in touch with distant contacts. Efforts to improve communication with loved one will soon pay off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obscure knowledge comes to light at opportune moment. Element of timing is the key to financial success. You recognize that speed is vital now. Devote evening hours to family matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work on one thing at a time today and rely on your intuition. Higher-ups will reward your efforts with a raise or promotion. New relationship has an excellent chance of becoming permanent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Creativity, originality impress employers. Go ahead and voice that unusual idea! Work behind closed doors if tackling projects involving figures. Associate could be too curious for his or her own good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today may lack yesterday's fast pace but you can expect good things to happen. Friend offers helpful, honest advice. Efforts to make more money will be accelerated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The busier you are today the happier you will be! Work on bringing correspondence up to date. Loans involving friends are likely to cause trouble later. Hold back on signing binding agreement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family members will be very cooperative today. If you come under fire at place of employment, keep cool. Young people are willing to perform those tasks you would rather not undertake.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An excellent day for dealing with projects that require keen concentration. Be prepared to handle things all by yourself. Promises made by others may not be kept. Evening favors the pursuit of romance.

What is your rebid?
A.—Despite your fine suit, don't rebid two hearts—that action normally shows a six-card suit. You have a minimum balanced hand, with stoppers in the unbid suits, which can be accurately described by rebidding one no trump.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:

1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—When partner "reversed" into hearts on the second round, he announced a hand worth about 18 points. His subsequent action showed virtually no support for spades—he might even have a singleton! Nevertheless, we recommend a leap to four spades. You have the values for game, and your suit should play for no more than two losers opposite any holding partner may have. However, your spades could prove virtually worthless at a no trump contract.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

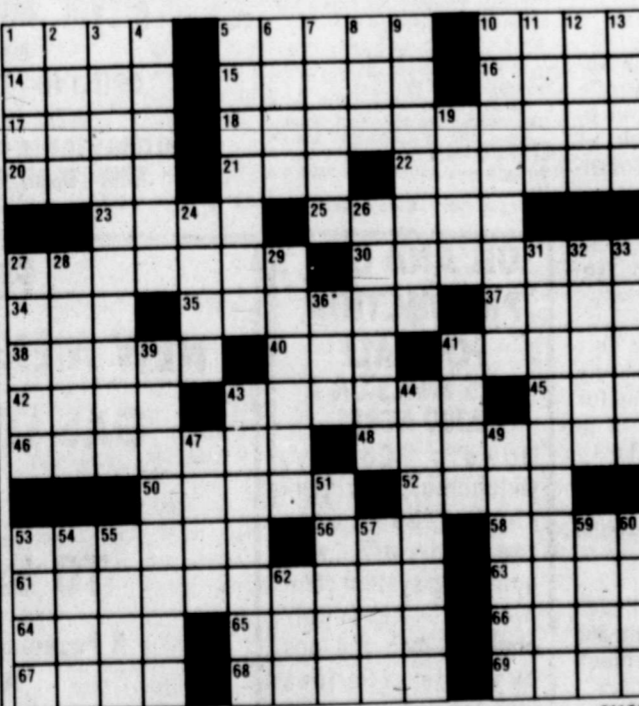

♠AQ9 ♥A9865 ♦K7 ♠A73
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ - Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 ♦ - Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Slam prospects flared when partner opened the bidding, which encouraged you to make two forward-going moves by overcalling at the two-level and cue-bidding the club ace en route to four spades. Partner, however, has shown a distinct lack of enthusiasm so you must be content with four spades for the moment. If partner has been taking it easy, awaiting to see whether you have a fit or not, and now bids again, don't settle for anything less than a small slam.

A.—A very awkward hand. Even though partner has taken a mere preference and probably has only three-card support for spades, you must make a move. After all, you have 15 high card points and partner has shown 10 or more. Our vote—a close decision—is to raise to three spades. The other bid worth considering is two no trump, but if no trump is the right contract, partner should declare it to protect his club holding from a potentially fatal lead through.

Higher prices expected

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana said Sunday that oil prices will continue to increase, with a 7- to 10-cent boost in the next several months pushing home heating oil prices to over $1.50 a gallon in some areas.

Speaking on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," John Swearingen said there will be no serious crunch on availability of gas or fuel oil supplies through 1981 despite the continuing Iran-Iraq war, which has deprived the world of about 4 million barrels of crude oil a day.

However, the 7- to 10-cent increase Swearingen said home heating oil consumers could expect in the next several months will not be the last increase in 1981, he said, "unless you can assure me that the OPEC people are not going to raise their price or cut their production."

Swearingen said oil producers have "made it perfectly plain" that they intend to raise the price of crude more than the inflation rate.

If that rate remains around 10 percent and the oil producers increase prices by 12 percent, he said, "we're talking about a doubling of crude prices" in five to seven years.

"What we're heading for is a continuing increase in oil prices because we import into this country 40 percent of what we use. As long as we're in that position," he said, the only choices are "to pay what they're asking or do without."

A third alternative, is to "use what we have more effectively and to try to enlarge our own domestic supplies," a course he said most major companies were trying to follow.

Although he acknowledged that domestic production of oil continues to decline, Swearingen said "I believe we're on the verge of turning that around." He said the situation should stabilize in the next year and "probably turn it up thereafter."

After President Reagan's decontrol of heating oil and gasoline Jan. 28, Swearingen estimated his company raised the prices of fuel about five or six cents a gallon.

Crewmen scramble

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A fire on a Gulf of Mexico oil platform sent 13 crewmen scrambling for safety Sunday and burned out of control for seven hours before it was extinguished by firefighters, an oil company spokesman said.

No serious injuries or major pollution was reported.

"One guy suffered minor brush burns as he slid down a rope in his underwear," said Al Spindler, a spokesman for Offshore Drilling and Exploration Co., owner of the production platform.

Workboats surrounded the platform and began spraying water on it soon after the fire broke out Sunday morning, Spindler said.

Spindler and Coast guard officials said automatic safety systems shut-down the several wells feeding into the platform. "We can't really evaluate the extent of the pollution at this time," said Coast Guard spokesman John Williams. "From what we've seen, it looks like the safety valves did work."

Spindler said the fire was believed to be confined to oil storage tanks on the platform.

"We are not viewing this as a major pollution incident," Spindler said. "What pollution there is was probably drainage from pipes."

Spindler said the fire broke out between 10:45 and 11 a.m., and crewmen aboard the platform escaped by climbing down ladders and ropes to waiting workboats.

The platform is located about 50 miles west southwest of Grand Isle, La.

Geologists find phosphate deposits

By WARREN E. LEARY
 AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Geologists doing research on the continental shelf have discovered major deposits of phosphate, a mineral crucial in making fertilizers and one whose dwindling domestic stocks have spawned fears of American dependence on foreign sources.

The National Science Foundation announced the discovery Sunday. It said the huge phosphate deposits, located about 60 miles off the coast of North Carolina, cover hundreds of square miles and have valuable commercial potential.

"This is a very exciting find," said William Stowasser, a phosphate commodity specialist for the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

"Some of the very rich phosphate deposits on (American) land will be depleted in the 1990s, and there has been a lot of concern that other countries might attempt an OPEC-type arrangement to increase prices as our supplies dwindle," Stowasser said in an interview.

OPEC, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, is a cartel that provides about 26 percent of the oil used in the United States. It decided last December to allow its 13 member countries to raise prices to a maximum of $41 per 42-gallon barrel, compared to about $15 in early 1979. Considering the possibility of such foreign control of phosphate, Stowasser said of the new offshore discovery: "It's good to know that there is something we are not going to run out of."

Dr. Stanley R. Riggs of East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C., and Dr. Albert C. Hine of the University of South Florida in St. Petersburg made the discovery while studying how such deposits form.

"Much of the technology necessary to begin to recover these shallow continental shelf mineral resources exists today," Riggs said.

"However, because there is no mechanism set up within the federal government to handle offshore mineral leases other than oil and gas," he continued, "these resources cannot presently be recovered."

Phosphates are necessary nutrients for plant growth, and phosphate fertilizers are an key factor in the productivity of the U.S. agricultural sector.

During two research cruises last year in Onslow Bay, the geologists drilled into the sediments and made seismic studies that led to discovering the phosphate deposits.

The scientists said their initial findings indicate a broad belt of phosphate regions extending almost 100 miles southwest of Bogue Banks to a point off Cape Fear.

The waters in the area range from 50 feet to 130 feet in depth. The phosphate sediments probably were trapped in cracks and basins during periods when the sea level changed, they said.

The richest single deposit tested so far in the new find is up to 26 feet thick and spreads out over an area of hundreds of square miles, Riggs and Hine reported to the foundation, which funds the research.

"This deposit gently dips into deeper basins below the 30-foot capabilities of our coring equipment," Riggs said. "However, our seismic information suggests that this deposit continues and becomes considerably thicker in the basins."

Stowasser, of the Bureau of Mines, estimated that if the deposit is this large, there could be 650 million tons of phosphate in that deposit alone.

The phosphate-bearing sediment is similar to those being mined today in North Carolina and Florida, where almost 85 percent of the U.S. supply of phosphates for fertilizer is produced.

When they made their discovery, the scientists were trying to learn more about the formation, deposition and accumulation of sedimentary phosphorites on the Atlantic continental shelf millions of years ago.

Refineries may have to slow down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States' rapidly growing reserves of gasoline are so great that refineries may be forced to slow down or shut down and gas prices eventually may drop, an oil industry analyst says.

Dan Lundberg said oil production runs at refineries are at "uneconomic rates" and gasoline stockpiles, fast approaching a record-breaking inventory, are so great that "the industry may have to drink it."

But his Lundberg Letter, a weekly oil industry periodical, stressed that "regardless of surpluses, certain increased costs must get through to the pump, so a decline in prices is not a reasonable prospect at this time."

The letter said consumer conservation of gasoline and continued production of fuel oil for winter heating were combining to create stocks of 277 million barrels of gas at refineries, in pipelines and at large terminals throughout the country.

Another oil industry publication official said Sunday that the nation has begun to control its consumption of petroleum products and could be on the way to easing the energy problem "without fully realizing it."

German Chacin, editor of the Energy Detente newsletter, said the U.S. economy has improved its energy efficiency 12 percent since the Arab oil embargo of 1973. He said that translates into a savings of 4.9 million barrels of oil a day.

"Since the petroleum price increases of 1973-74, conservation... has entered the scene with a vigor that many wouldn't have thought possible back in the 1960s and early '70s," Chacin said.

Energy Detente is a bilingual, twice-monthly publication that studies the energy situation in the Western Hemisphere. It is affiliated with the Lundberg Letter.

The Lundberg Letter, published Friday, said refinery production runs dropped to 72.7 percent of capacity in January from an already low 76.6 percent in December. Refiners, who generally like to run at about 90 percent capacity, are faced with "even greater slowdowns, perhaps shutdowns," the letter said.

Industry experts say production runs of less than 75 percent aren't profitable for most refineries.

A record surplus of 283.1 million barrels, set in April of last year, brought a 1.2 cent average drop in gasoline prices over an eight-month period, and another overload "would almost certainly cool the current round of price increases," the Lundberg Letter said.

If a dip in prices does occur, it could come "before the end of March," the letter said.

The Lundberg Letter had previously predicted an average price for all grades of U.S. gas of $1.45 a gallon by the end of 1981, but said in the latest edition that "excess supplies could lower that prediction."

Blues guitarist, Butterfield dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An autopsy was being conducted today on Michael Bloomfield, whose electric guitar playing for the Paul Butterfield Blues Band led a revival of urban blues music.

Bloomfield, 37, of Marin County, was found slumped in the passenger seat of his car in San Francisco about 11:30 a.m. Sunday, a deputy coroner said.

Authorities said they believed the death was accidental. An empty bottle labeled "Valium" was found on the car seat, the deputy coroner said, but no suicide note was found.

There were no signs of a struggle, the official said.

DEAR ABBY

'Half' woman needs wholly new attitude

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I had a mastectomy. It was a terrible shock because I had been in excellent health and never dreamed it could happen to me. I was 44 and very happily married to a wonderful man who couldn't have been more supportive during the ordeal.

When I recovered, my husband started to lose interest in me (physically), and I couldn't blame him. I felt like half a woman. Our marriage fell apart, and we were divorced two years later. Shortly after that, I had a second mastectomy.

I am still attractive, and men are attracted to me, but I don't know how to handle the possibility of another romantic relationship. In clothes, I look like a whole woman with a beautiful figure, but I feel guilty and deceitful because I know I am not.

I can't very well confess my deficiencies to a man on the first date.

But if I don't warn him, he could feel cheated.

Abby, must I forget about romance and the possibility of remarriage because I am damaged? I love life and I'm self-supporting, but I need to be loved again. — SOMETHING MISSING

DEAR MISSING: As long as you perceive yourself as "damaged" — or "half a woman" — your chances for being loved again are slim.

Please contact your local chapter of the American Cancer Society. It will have a long list of women in your community who have been down the same road but have learned how to live full lives that included romance and remarriage. They will be glad to help you build your self-esteem. That is really all you're "missing."

DEAR ABBY: We have a 10-month-old daughter, our first child, and she's an adorable, healthy little girl.

The trouble is Vera, my sister-in-law, who has a 16-month-old daughter. Vera has constantly compared the progress of my child with hers since the day mine was born. HER daughter sat up, crawled, walked and talked at a certain age, and what's the matter with mine?

I am sick of these comparisons, but I don't want to start anything with her. Will you please tell her, Abby? — BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: It would be better if YOU told her. Let her know that you are perfectly satisfied with your daughter's rate of progress. And should you have any questions about it, you'll consult your pediatrician.

DEAR MISS VAN BUREN: I wish to protest your column on suggested Christmas gifts for the elderly.

Thanks to you I was inundated with gift certificates and small tins of tuna and chicken!

I disagree with you 100 percent. I don't want my friends and family to think of me as an object of charity at Christmastime. Your practical gift suggestions, such as newspaper or magazine subscriptions, gift certificates and food, do not appeal to me at all. I would much rather have a frivolous, frilly nightgown. Then at least I'd know I am still considered alive and feminine! And if I must, I will eat a peanut butter sandwich for my Christmas dinner while wearing my frilly gown.

Please, stop speaking for the world, Abby. Who do you think you are — the omnipotent being? What colossal ego! — DISAPPROVINGLY YOURS IN CARLSBAD, CALIF.

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY, Letters Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Bake a 'love you' cake

HELLO LUVS:
 Isn't it sad to think Valentine's Day is past — and we've got to wait a whole year for it to come 'round again — or do we?

Darned if we do. Just any old day of the year is a good day to let someone special know you care. So here's my ever-lovin' idea: When you're counting your lucky stars because you have a special someone or when there's occasion to celebrate, like a birthday, anniversary, or promotion, bake your sweetie a heart-shaped Love-You Cake.

No need to buy special pans to get that heart shape, either. If you have a round pan and a square pan, you're in business.

Mix your cake and pour half the batter into the prepared round pan and the other half into the square pan. Bake as usual.

After you've removed the layers from the pans and cooled them, place the square cake in a diamond position instead of a square position on a tray. (You'll need a larger tray or serving plate than normal — a foil-covered piece of cardboard cut to size works fine.)

Cut the round layer in half and place the cut sides of each half next to the two top sides of the "diamond." There's your heart!

Tint the icing pink. Frost the entire cake, filling in and building up the adjoining pieces to make a smooth layer.

Decorate with candy hearts, cinnamon bits, or whatever your imagination suggests. You can even write a special little "message," if your heart desires. Just be sure to serve it up with plenty of love — as much as I have for you. — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
 Many years ago I learned from your column how to make those cute and useful scrubbers (or pompons) from nylon net.

I still use the net, but no longer remember how to make the scrubbers.

My daughter-in-law has some stainless steel pads, and I'd love to make some for her. — Hortense.

and you'll end up with perfectly cut strips.

Stack the strips one on top of the other, matching edges. Thread a big needle with heavy-duty thread or yarn, and baste right down the middle of the stack, using long basting stitches.

Draw up the yarn from both ends as you would when making a ruffle, pulling it tight as you can toward the center.

Tie the yarn ends together, then wrap the remaining yarn around the "waistline" of the scrubber once or twice, tie it off, and cut off the excess yarn.

If you want a non-professional scrubber that's really speedy to make, skip the basting and just gather up the nylon net strips in your hand, fan fashion. Wrap a rubberband around the middle or use yarn, tying it tightly as possible.

Now for the unveiling of the pompon! Remember how you make carnation flowers out of tissues? Well, do the same with the layers of nylon net — that is, pull one layer at a time, giving a yank to make it separate. This is a must, or you'll end up with a flat pompon.

So, for pennies, you've got a most versatile little workmate to help you get through those daily chores. — Hugs, Heloise

DAR American History Essay Winners named

LT. WILLIAM BREWER CHAPTER, DAR

Winners of the American History Essay Contest were presented at the February meeting of the Lt. William Brewer Chapter of our American Revolution held in the home of Mrs. Pat Baskin, 1401 Bedford.

Mrs. George Staley, chairman of the American History Month, spoke briefly on the Essay Contest conducted by the chapter. Subject this year was "Discuss a Leader of the Battle of Yorktown."

Medals and certificates of merit were presented to Sharon Graham, a seventh grader at Trinity School; LaBette Sale, a sixth grader at Hillander; and Genny Graham, a fifth grader at Hillander. Honorable mention with certificate and medal was presented to Ginger Miller, a fifth grader at Fannin Elementary.

Dr. Wyvell presented a report from the DAR magazine entitled "The Role of Women in National Defense" by Isabel R. Ward. She reported that during World War I a popular song was "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Whether national defense concerns overseas matters and foreign relations, or burning issues at home, this is the part that women traditionally play, she said. Dr. Wyvell pointed out that this does not down-grade the power, position or the influence of women, it just states that women are most influential when they are fulfilling their role as women.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. H. Gilmore Jr., Mrs. F.D. Hart, Mrs. K.M. Jastrow, Mrs. Ted Johnson and Mrs. Dean E. Wolf.

EXTENSION HOMEMAKER'S CLUB

Valley View Extension Homemakers Club met in the home of Chris Her-ring.

Jeanett Gardner was guest.

Members Juanice McFall and Chris Her-ring attended the Leader Training Session in Andrews recently. Club donated $35 to send a 4-H member to the 4-H Center in Brownwood.

Ms. McFall gave a program on "How to Make Dolls from Men's Tube Socks."

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF RETIRED PERSONS

Valentine's Day theme was featured when the American Association of Retired Persons met for a regular meeting and covered dish dinner at Crestview Baptist Church.

Program was presented by the Ragtime Gospel Band directed by Jerry Lancaster and Troy Stevenson.

Group meets the first and third Monday of each month. Persons 55 years of age or older are invited to attend. Next meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday. For additional information, call 694-0506.

MIDLAND STUDY CLUB

Midland Study Club met in the home of Betty Brock with Johnnie Burke as co-hostess.

David Johnson of Radio Shack was guest speaker. He presented a program on home computers.

Fena Berry presided over the business meeting. Members voted to give a cash gift to the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children.

JUNIOR LEAGUE OF MIDLAND

Junior League of Midland, Inc. honored its 1981 provisional members with a coffee in the home of Mrs. Glen Rogers. Assisting Mrs. Rogers were the sustaining members of the league.

New provisional members recently began an instructional course on all phases of league activities and a broad based community education. Directing this course are Mrs. Ferrell Davis, provisional chairman; Mrs. Robert Mann, assistant provisional chairman and Becky Baskin, professional provisional chairman.

League training will include a study of the league's history, administrative organization, placement opportunities and money raising projects. Following the league training, community leaders will speak to the provisionals on all aspects of Midland's government, education, health, welfare and arts. The course will also include field trips to many locations in the city in order to learn. These trips include Midland Independent School District board meeting and a meeting of the Midland City Council.

New provisionals include Mrs. Larry Adkins, Mrs. Geoffrey Barnett, Christi Branum, Mrs. Ken Callaway, Mrs. Craig Campbell, Mrs. Marion Flynt Chancellor, Mrs. Gary Choate, Mrs. Price Cowden, Mrs. Gary Durosette, Mrs. Patrick Garrigan, Victoria Griffith, Mrs. Bill Hightower, Mrs. Ed Inerarity, Mrs. Garland Lang III, Mrs. Mark Leaverton, Mrs. Leslie McLaughlin, Mrs. Samuel Lee Majors III, Mrs. Thomas Moore, Mrs. Michael Morse, Sally Muire, Mrs. Benny Polston, Mrs. Jerry Prothro, Mrs. James

Amy Brown eats constantly to live

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Petite, frail Amy Brown, suffering from a rare metabolic disorder that makes her ravenously hungry, has been so weak she was forced to abandon her high school classes.

Because of her condition — which forces the 5-foot-3, 92-pound woman to eat up to 30 dozen eggs a week — Ms. Brown and her boyfriend can't afford to go to movies.

But things are looking brighter. With the help of a tutor, the 19-year-old is preparing to graduate from high school, and she's engaged to be married to a sailor whom she met because of the publicity generated by her disorder.

"I'd say I'm very happy," she said. She has been plagued for six years by malabsorption of the kidneys, an extremely rare disorder that requires her to eat constantly to replace potassium in her body.

Doctors expect her body to mature during the next two years, possibly ending the constant hunger that keeps her weekly food bill at $200.

"I'm still the same. There's been no change," she said recently. "I still have to eat as much as ever, except that now I have to eat more and more eggs just to keep my cholesterol levels up."

Ms. Brown has struggled to complete her education, first by attending classes and now through daily tutoring. She expects to graduate from Jackson High School in June.

And she's recently become engaged to Ensign Donald Seeger, 22, who who read about her plight last year and started writing. The wedding is planned for some time when her medical condition improves.

Ms. Brown eats four times what a normal person eats daily. Her parents' modest rancher constantly is stocked with food to satisfy her hunger. There is nearly always something cooking on the stove.

A typical breakfast for Amy consists of a dozen fried eggs, bacon, fried potatoes and two glasses of chocolate milk. Lunch might include two steaks, more eggs, vegetables and three glasses of chocolate milk.

She usually downs an afternoon snack of sandwiches, cookies and milk before the family dinner. And before bed, she makes a sandwich or two. And, after several hours' sleep, she usually awakens to a growling stomach and her never-ending quest for sustenance continues.

She must avoid caffeine, alcohol and spicy foods. But despite all the calories, she is too weak to work or go to school and receives $98 a month in welfare and $70 a month in food stamps.

Since the welfare is not enough to cover her food bill, friends, relatives, benefactors and Ocean County civic groups help the family get by. Ms. Brown's father, Albert, is a public works employee.

But Ms. Brown usually has a happy disposition despite the problems, especially now that doctors are growing optimistic about her condition and Seeger has entered her life.

Jailers subdue unruly inmates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While riot-equipped city and state police waited downstairs, jailers using chains and handcuffs subdued a group of unruly Travis County Jail inmates who set fires, pounded on walls and shouted their displeasure at living conditions, officials say.

At one stage in the Sunday confrontation, the inmates were able to acquire some makeshift weapons, said Sheriff Doyle Bailey.

"They got a hold of some fluorescent (light) tubes and broomsticks," he said. "At one point, they got hold of one of our fire hoses."

Witnesses said 6-foot fingers of flame reached up the sides of the building as inmates poked wads of burning trash through holes in the walls. The sound of prisoners chanting and pounding on jail walls could be heard on the street, six floors below.

"It was scary as hell up there," said fireman Lee Gotcher, who said he went to the sixth floor while inmates were still setting trash and mattress fires. "I think they (jailers) did a fantastic job of keeping somebody from getting killed up there."

The jail occupies the sixth and seventh floors of the Travis County Courthouse.

The outbreak began as supper was being served and, according to Bailey, climaxed growing inmate dissatisfaction.

"I think the disturbance is the end of two or three days of unrest," he said. "There's been kind of a growing disenchantment with their clothing, sandals, bedding and food."

Bailey said there had been a much smaller disturbance Saturday night when two inmates started two small trash fires.

One inmate, identified as Victor Roy, was hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation, but there were no other injuries, said Bailey.

"I think 'major disturbance' is a pretty accurate description. I wouldn't consider it a riot because we didn't have any serious injuries or escapes," the sheriff said.

About 30 sheriff's deputies, Department of Public Safety troopers and Austin police officers were outfitted with helmets, flak vests and other riot gear downstairs, but they were not needed, Bailey said.

The jail officers were able to force the prisoners back into their cells from the common room where the trouble began about 6 p.m., said Bailey, and bound the prisoners with chains and handcuffs.

"None of the inmates ever got outside their tanks (cell blocks)," he added. "We never did actually lose control of the inmates, we just ran a little behind in putting them to bed."

Bailey said there were 96 prisoners in the area where the disturbance began but not all of them were involved.

"It would be difficult to say (how many were involved). We think the fires were started by about four inmates," he said.

Abducted Klansman says he was thought to be informant

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A former Ku Klux Klansman who was abducted, painted yellow and covered with feathers says fellow Klan members had accused him of being a federal informant.

But William H. Seward, 30, who was abducted Friday, some four months after he quit the Klan, denied any affiliation with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

A City Court hearing was being held today for two Klansmen accused of abducting Seward, threatening him with a pistol and then releasing him in East Memphis after covering him with yellow paint and feathers.

Richard Lee Roberts, 33, a locksmith, and Timothy Wayne Snider, 26, who told police he is unemployed, were released on $1,000 bond Saturday, several hours after being arrested at a Klan rally in nearby Covington.

The Klan rally was canceled after the arrests.

Seward, who left his home to go into hiding Saturday afternoon, told police he met his abductors while a member of the Invisible Empire faction of the Klan.

He said men invited him Friday night to join them in a yellow van to collect money.

Two hours later, Seward was pushed from the van near the Hyatt Regency Hotel. A Fire Department ambulance, summoned by an anonymous caller, took him to nearby St. Francis Hospital where the paint and feathers were removed.

A reporter for The Commercial Appeal, Memphis' morning newspaper, received an anonymous call Friday from a man who identified himself as a Klan official and said the organization was going to discipline a former member.

Shortly after Seward was released, the man again called the newspaper to say the discipline had been carried out. The caller said the former Klansman was punished because he was an associate of an informant in several federal cases.

hiding Saturday afternoon, told police he met his abductors while a member of the Invisible Empire faction of the Klan.

Doctors say convicted killer was insane at time of killing

ANOKA, Minn. (AP) — A man convicted of kidnapping and killing a 6-year-old boy while abducting two other people was suffering from paranoid schizophrenia at the time of the slaying, a psychiatrist has testified.

An Anoka County Court jury that convicted Ming Sen Shue of kidnapping and second-degree murder Friday in the slaying of Jason Wilkman was hearing more evidence today on whether Shue was sane at the time of the killing.

The defense contends that Shue was mentally ill at the time of the crimes and was not responsible for his actions.

Dr. James H. Stephans, a Minneapolis psychiatrist and neurosurgeon, said Sunday that Shue had "paranoid schizophrenia of the grandiose type" when the child was killed last May. Stephans was to continue testifying today.

Clinical psychologist

Dr. Kenneth A. Perkins testified during the weekend that Shue had no control over himself when he kidnapped the child.

Shue was convicted in September of kidnapping Mary Stauffer, 37, a Baptist missionary, and her daughter, Elizabeth, and was sentenced to life in prison. Mrs. Stauffer and her daughter were abducted a few hours before the Wilkman boy was kidnapped in a Roseville park. Jason apparently happened to see Shue standing next to an open car trunk in which the Stauffers were bound, testimony indicated.

Shue, a 30-year-old Roseville, Minn., man, was charged with second-degree murder as part of an arrangement under which he agreed to help authorities find the boy's body in a wildlife refuge.

Stephans said Shue told him that in the early 1970s he began having hallucinations and delusions, and started writing down the things he heard and saw as a way of relieving the pressure in his head.

Perkins said the defendant spoke of a pressure that was so intense that at times he felt he would explode.

Newborn quint still in critical condition

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Despite some improvement, five-day-old quintuplets born 12 weeks prematurely remain in critical condition, doctors say.

One boy was considered in grave condition, according to authorities at University Hospital, where the quintuplets were born Thursday to a 28-year-old Portland woman.

Drs. John Yount and Kenneth Barry said Sunday all five were on artificial breathing systems. The doctors said each quint had a 50 percent chance of living.

On Saturday, the infants were named, in order of birth, Trisha Jean, Cheryl Ellen, Kenneth Jason, Allan Michael and Brian Quentin. Quentin means "fifth-born."

Earlier, they were called "A," "B," "C," "D," and "E."

The hospital, at the parents' request, did not publicize their last names or other personal details. The doctors said Trisha and Brian have shown the most improvement. Allen was in grave condition with lung problems and some hemorrhaging that is common in premature babies.

Cheryl and Kenneth have ruptured lungs. Each has a tube draining fluid from the ruptured lung while the infant breathes with the other lung.

The babies, delivered by Cesarean section, all weigh less than two pounds and are about 14 inches long. Doctors said the mother was taking the fertility drug Pergonal and knew it increased the chance of multiple births.

The mother, who is in good condition, had not given birth before.

IF I COULD ONLY TOUCH HIM . . .

One day Jesus went out into the mountains to pray, and prayed all night.

At daybreak He called together His followers and chose twelve of them to be the inner circle of His disciples. (They were appointed as His "apostles," or "missionaries.")

Here are their names: Simon (He also called him Peter), Andrew (Simon's brother), James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James (the son of Alphaeus), Simon (also called "Zealotes"), Judas (son of James), Judas Iscariot (who later betrayed Him).

When they came down from the slopes of the mountain, they stood with Jesus on a large, level area, surrounded by many of His followers who, in turn, were surrounded by the crowds. For people from all over Judea and from Jerusalem and from as far north as the seacoasts of Tyre and Sidon had come to hear Him or to be healed. And He cast out many demons.

Everyone was trying to touch Him. For when they did healing power went out from Him and they were cured.

Mediation urged in fish dispute

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — Involving the Ku Klux Klan in a dispute between native Texans and Vietnam refugees competing for shrimp in Galveston Bay will not solve anything, said a member of a governor's task force.

"It is unfortunate that the Klan has been brought in," said Dr. Nguyen Van Chau, a member of Gov. Bill Clements' task force set up to try to mediate the long-simmering quarrel between the two groups of fishermen.

Texas Klansmen sponsored a rally near this South Texas community Saturday to show their support for the Texans in the dispute.

Native fishermen claim the Vietnamese do not respect customary fishing grounds and overfish the bay, causing economic hardship for the old-timers.

The U.S. Justice Department has tried to mediate but the dispute erupted into a shooting incident last year that killed one man.

Saturday's rally was highlighted by a fish fry, a cross-burning, the burning of a mock Vietnamese fishing boat and uniformed Klansmen standing guard with rifles at the approach to the remote rally site.

"Violence cannot resolve anything at all, and threats from one side or another will not help anything," Van Chau said Sunday from his home in Beaumont.

Texas Gene Fisher told the 300 people at the rally that he asked the Klan to get involved in the dispute to get publicity for the Texans' side of the story.

He said his motives were not racial but economic, as he feared the Vietnamese would drive the Texans out of business.

Said Van Chau, "It's true, fishermen along the Texas Gulf Coast are facing real disaster in the next year or two. But the problem is due to factors such as inflation, the cost of fuel, not being able to fish in Mexican waters and a reported depletion of the shrimp population in the Gulf. Those are the major problems, not the Vietnamese."

"These people are a very minor factor, but some ... blame everything on them," Van Chau said. "Burning a cross or boat, or claiming that they are Communists is ridiculous."

"What Gene Fisher and his collegues want, I do not know," Chau added.

What Fisher says he wants is "the attention of the state department and the federal government and I want them to understand how we are hurting along Galveston Bay."

"There are no fishermen that I know of that are KKK members, but this is one way to get people to listen to our plight," Fisher added.

As he spoke, Klansmen prepared a large sack-wrapped cross to be burned along with a small boat.

"The best thing that could happen would be if we could take 7,000 Vietnamese fishing boats, hook them all together, put them behind an aircraft carrier and tow them back home," Fisher said.

Invention detects 'hot spots' in wires

DALLAS (AP) — George Spencer hasn't built a better mousetrap. But the world may be beating a path to his door anyway when he finally gets his invention plugged into the marketplace.

By simply reading two meters on the face of a plastic box plugged into a wall outlet, Spencer says he can tell whether the electrical wiring is faulty, thereby preventing a possible blaze in a home or office building.

"The thing that impresses me is that he (Spencer) can walk into any building, old or new, and tell you whether the wall outlet is safe to operate," said Dennis Griggs, a Dallas patent attorney.

Griggs said he received a bit of a shock himself when Spencer plugged in the invention at the attorney's office and found that the wiring behind an outlet could not safely carry electricity to a space heater without causing serious stress to hidden wires.

"I was surprised that a couple of our outlets are underrated for a heavy electrical load," Griggs added.

Electrical fires in Dallas caused more than $3 million in damages over the past year, said Dallas Fire Marshall Jerry Lambert.

Spencer, awaiting a patent and a sponsor for his device, says the invention could prevent some of those fires by detecting "hot spots" in wiring which usually cannot be found by visual inspection.

He said he learned that after lightning struck the home of a friend in suburban Plano. Spencer said lightning traveled through the house without damaging any appliances and apparently without harming the wires, according to an inspection by the Plano Fire Department.

Spencer said he asked the firemen about verifying that the wiring was safe and found that there was no reliable detection device.

"The fire inspectors told me that within three to six months of lightning striking an area, there typically was a house fire," Spencer said.

The recent boom in home insulation has compounded the problem of natural aging since most insulation is laid over wires, creating a thermal-blanket effect that causes the wires to overheat, he said.

Spencer, who began his electrical training in the Navy and now works for Adar-Scientific-Atlanta, Inc., says he is not using scare tactics to promote a potential money-maker in the fire prevention business.

His own home was heavily damaged by fire after a child playing with a candle set the blaze. Though no one was injured, Spencer says he frequently thinks of the lives lost in other fires.

Turning to a page in a report issued by the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control, Spencer pointed to a photograph of the charred body of a child still huddled against a dresser in a burned-out bedroom.

"I remember this when I think of quitting," he said.

Relationship of diet, heart disease minimal

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Reports scolding Americans about the woes of high cholesterol as the path to heart disease have caused unnecessary panic, according to a Texas A&M University professor.

"For most Americans, there is no relationship between diet and coronary disease," said Dr. Raymond Reiser, professor emeritus of biochemistry at the Texas university.

"Yet, the campaign for us to alter our diet continues, when in actuality the threat exists for only about 30 percent of the population," he added.

Reiser is a noted lipids biochemist who, for several years, has conducted research at Texas A&M on the effects of diet and cholesterol.

Because of the present lack of knowledge regarding other heart disease risk factors such as hypertension, smoking, lack of exercise and genetics, Reiser said the emphasis placed on diet and blood lipids is premature and disproportionate.

"Not more than 20 percent of the people with high cholesterol levels would reduce their risk of heart disease if they followed diet recommendations," he said. "Perhaps 6 percent of the total population could reduce its serum cholesterol drastically enough to have any effect."

Reiser said medical associations and governmental agencies which issue advice while ignoring other factors are engaging in a dangerous practice.

"It could remove from the market some of the most nutritive foods available, such as meats, dairy products and eggs," he said.

Reiser explained that each year one out of 200 people above the age of 35 with average levels of cholesterol have heart attacks.

About 70 percent of the population falls in the category of having higher than normal cholesterol levels and three out of about 200 of these people are victims of heart disease, he added.

"Advertising campaigns have been so intense and so persistent that the word cholesterol has become almost synonymous with heart disease in most people's minds, not only the man in the street but also many physicians and nutritionists," Reiser said. "People have forgotten that evidence is conflicting and that, in the beginning, the prudent diet was a temporary measure until the conflict could be resolved."

Airman dies in Red River

LEBANON, Okla. (AP) — An Airman stationed in Texas drowned and his companion was hospitalized after their small boat capsized in the Red River near here, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

Police identified the dead man as Senior Airman Donald V. Flathmann, 21, of Margate, Fla.

Highway patrolmen said a second man in the boat, Dennis E. Murphy, 21, was pulled from the 45-degree water an hour after the 2 p.m. incident Sunday. He was listed in fair condition at Marshall Memorial Hospital.

Striking teachers jailed

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — Seventeen striking teachers and a union negotiator were sent to jail Sunday night when they refused to sign personal recognizance bonds and stop picketing classrooms, authorities said.

Each citation was issued separately and each teacher, plus Schneider, must receive an individual hearing. If Rainrad's court docket is crowded, some of the teachers may not be assigned a court date for days or weeks.

The teachers were sent to Stark County Jail amid a sit-down protest by some 25 people who attempted to block a bus being used to transport the teachers.

The husband of one striking teacher was arrested on charges of obstructing justice, resisting arrest and assaulting an officer, but was later freed on bond.

One teacher was slightly injured in the scuffle between the man and police. The teacher was treated at a hospital and released.

The jailed teachers were 17 of 25, plus union negotiator Richard Schneider, who were cited last Monday for mass picketing at Ravenna High School.

Ravenna Education Association President Alan Balog said Sunday that the eight teachers who signed the bonds did so for personal reasons.

The teachers will be held in jail at least until Tuesday, because of the President's Day holiday today.

Youths may have set fire to club

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Ninety detectives are questioning survivors of the Dublin nightclub fire that killed 48 people, checking reports that the blaze could have been started by youths with a grudge setting fire to chairs.

An off-duty fireman who was working at the Stardust Cabaret as a bouncer, John Fitzsimons, told officers at least two youths were seen setting fire to some stacked foam-backed chairs, a police spokesman said Sunday.

The spokesman said there were reports the youths, who he said had not been identified, could have had a grudge against the club, but he did not elaborate.

Other sources said the club refused to admit persons it considered troublemakers. But the manager refused to say if anyone was turned away Friday night, when about 800 people jammed the Stardust for a "Dance the Night Away" Valentine party.

The Sunday Tribune said five girls reported they saw youths lighting the padded chairs with matches just before the fire began to spread near the stage of the club early Saturday.

A 19-year-old waitress, Elizabeth Marley, said she saw two chairs afire and ran for help. "I told the barmen and the bouncers and between 12 and 15 of them rushed to the fire and tried to put it out with fire extinguishers," she said.

Witnesses said thick black fumes filled the nightclub within four minutes and burning plastic dripped from the ceiling on the panic-stricken young men and women trying to flee.

Officials had believed 49 people were killed, but a police spokesman said pathologists established that only 48 bodies were found. However, the mother of three teen-agers who were in the club, 40-year-old Mary Coyne, died of a heart attack when told her son and two daughters were safe.

"The strain must have been too much for her," a neighbor said.

By Sunday night the bodies of 15 victims had been identified, all in their teens or early 20s. Police said many of the others were so badly burned it might be impossible to identify them.

More than 130 others were injured. Eight were in critical condition.

"This fire comes to no great surprise to me," said Michael Maguire, the chairman of the Fire Officers Association.

"The association has been warning that this could happen, and has been making representations to the Department of Environment for many years on proper fire regulations."

The firemen's organization and the Fire Prevention Council said building regulations to increase the use of flameproof materials were proposed five years ago, but the government had not put them into effect.

Firemen said the proposed code would have outlawed the foam-padded chairs and polyurethane ceiling which gave off choking gas as they burned.

Etiquette adviser quits

CHICAGO (AP) — Noreen McBride, who was hired two weeks ago to advise Chicago's mayor on the proper etiquette for dealing with foreign dignitaries, has resigned her $35,000-a-year job, Mayor Jane Byrne says.

The resignation followed published reports that Mrs. McBride, 36, was fired last year from her job as a sales clerk because of tardiness and absenteeism.

Mrs. Byrne, whose appointment of an "etiquette aide" drew fire from officials who considered the job a waste of money, said Sunday from Palm Springs, Calif., where she was vacationing, that Mrs. McBride had contacted her chief of staff and informed him she was quitting.

In a telephone interview with the Chicago Sun-Times, the mayor said she had not spoken to Mrs. McBride personally about her resignation.

Mrs. McBride collected unemployment benefits for six months after she was fired from the $8,700-a-year clerk's job, though she later said she was running an "etiquette school" from her home during that time, the Sun-Times reported Sunday.

Robert Ryan, owner of Grable's Gift and Art Gallery in suburban Oak Park, said Mrs. McBride was "a good employee" during the 11 years she worked at the shop, but "she seemed to lose interest in the job."

Bra plant reopened

BUFORD, Ga. (AP) — The Lovace C. bra manufacturing plant was reopening its doors today after health officials determined natural gas leaks and stale air caused the mysterious illnesses of 45 workers.

The plant was closed Thursday when employees began getting ill for a second time in less than a week.

Company spokeswoman Trudy Piper said investigators from federal and state agencies would monitor the plant once it reopened. But she said the investigators have determined that health hazards no longer exist at the building where 515 employees work.

Workers first became ill on Monday last week, when some 20 employees were sent to hospitals after complaining of headaches and nausea when a forklift struck a natural gas heater and caused a leak.

Three days later, the plant was closed when 25 to 30 workers were dispatched to hospitals with similar symptoms. None of the workers remained hospitalized for more than a few days.

In a prepared statement issued Saturday, the company said, "The results of the investigation today suggest the episodes of illness may have been triggered by a combination of two minor natural gas leaks and stale air."

The statement said the noxious vapors accumulated in the plant "during cold weather when heaters were running at capacity and the buildings were tightly closed."

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1981

Jeanne Dixon talks with reporters outside the offices of the child death task force of the Atlanta Police Department after she offered her assistance in the investigation of the deaths of 17 Atlanta children in the past 19 months.

17th victim is identified in Atlanta child slaying

ATLANTA (AP)—Eleven-year-old Jeffrey Lamar Mathis, last seen almost a year ago when he walked to a service station near his home, has been slain in the Atlanta area in the past 19 months, police say.

That body was the first in the 17 deaths to turn up in suburban DeKalb County. Unlike many of the others, found in isolated areas, it was discovered behind an office complex in a densely populated area.

Medical officials who spent much of the weekend examining the skeletal remains found Friday in an overgrown area of south Fulton County made the identification Sunday.

DeKalb Public Safety Director Dick Hand said after the discovery of Baltazar's body that the more deaths discovered, "the greater the chance of apprehension. We've learned more and more with each one of these cases."

Dr. John Feegel, associate medical examiner for Fulton County, said dental records were the main tool used to identify the Atlanta child and to rule out the possibility the body was that of another missing black child, 10-year-old Darron Glass.

Police spent the weekend questioning workers in the Corporate Square Office Park, where the body was found. Authorities said they hoped to work up composite drawings of possible suspects seen in the area.

He said there were "minor inconsistencies" between the records of each child and the teeth found in the skeleton. But the skeletal teeth also had several consistencies with Mathis' records and none with Glass', he said.

The two discoveries Friday brought to six the number of children's bodies or remains that have been found in the Atlanta area in the past six weeks. All but two of the 17 victims have been male, all have been between the ages of 7 and 15, and eight of them either were suffocated or strangled.

Glass is the only child still missing in the series of 18 slayings and disappearances of black children. Feegel said no cause of death could be established from the remains, which were found by an FBI team in an area where the bodies or remains of six other children have been found since the string of slayings began.

Several hundred volunteers turned out Saturday and Sunday to search for clues in the cases in an area southwest of the city near where the Mathis child's remains were found.

Mathis' remains were discovered less than an hour before a maintenance worker on the other side of the Atlanta metropolitan area spotted the body of a young black male, later identified as 11-year-old Patrick Baltazar.

The volunteer searchers have been combing Atlanta neighborhoods since last fall, but have turned up nothing significant since the first search found the remains of 7-year-old Latonya Wilson.

Chaps, Hawks clash tonight in showdown

BY TED BATTLES

It shapes up as a duel between Midland College's Charles Johnson and Howard College's Randy Corker, when the Chaparrals and Hawks tip off at 8 p.m. today in Big Spring's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, but it could be someone like Virgil Slay who will decide it, if it's a standoff between the big men.

Johnson, who scored 20 in the win and 12 in the loss, and Corker, 27 in the win and 22 in the loss, will get their points, so the supporting cast probably will determine who wins.

Midland College, 24-2 and 12-3, takes a one-game lead over Howard, 20-7 and 11-3, into the action and needs a victory to avoid falling into a possible three-way tie for first place with the Hawks and Frank Phillips, tied with HC for second.

One thing for sure, the Chaparrals don't want to let the Hawks get out in front where they can dictate the tempo as they did in the Western Junior College Conference meeting at the Chaparral Center. Howard won that one, 74-72. A week earlier, Midland won at Big Spring in the finals of the ABC Classic, 95-84.

MIDLAND led most of the way, holding a 50-43 lead at half and everytime the Hawks challenged in the second half, it was Slay, the 6-1 sophomore from Dallas, who kept the Hawks at bay.

Slay was deadly from outside in the second half, hitting eight baskets and converting four free throws, all in the second half. In the first half, it had been the marksmanship of Derrick Wilson and Puntus Wilson that kept the HC defense honest. Wilson scored 12 of his 16 points in the first half and Wilson had 14 of his 20.

The outside shooting opened the inside for 6-6 Charles Johnson, who had a 20-point night. Corker, the 6-5 Trenton, N.J., sophomore, who leads the WJCC in scoring, had 22 points.

SLAY IS part of MC's South Oak Cliff connection that began with Cullen Mayfield, now at Midwestern, back in 1978. Slay was a junior teammate of Cullen's on the SOC team that won the state championship in 1977.

"I went to Navarro Junior College, broke my wrist and when I got back, never did get to play much. They had a good team, No. 1 in the nation, for a while, but I didn't like it there.

"Coach Stone gave me a tryout and I came to Midland," he said.

Slay was a quarterback in junior high who wanted to play wide receiver. "I didn't like getting sacked all the time. They wouldn't let me change, so I concentrated on basketball in high school."

At MC, he's concentrating on advertising with the hope of getting into public relations after college. "One of the good things about Midland College is that the players graduate. At some of the junior colleges, no one on the team graduates."

CHAPSTYQUES—Ernie Tate will miss tonight's game after suffering a scratched eyeball in the first half of the Amarillo College game Thursday. Ernie returned to play in the second half and wound up with 10 points...

Lee needs win for playoff

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

It all boils down to one ballgame. In the final game of the regular season, Shirley Stephenson's Midland Lee club will be trying to nail down the second half District 5-5A cage title when the Rebels square off against Big Spring, with a 4-25 season ledger and 0-6 district mark, in Big Spring Monday night.

Lee, 6-0 in the district and 19-10 on the season, with a win will force a playoff game with first-half district winner San Angelo. The Bobcats, 5-1 in district and 25-2 overall, close out their regular campaign here in the Tall City Monday at Midland High gym.

If Lee, which beat Big Spring handily in the first half, defeats the Steers Monday, the Rebels and San Angelo will tangle Thursday evening in a playoff game for the district title in Big Spring's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at 7 p.m.

The winner of the playoff will advance to the state bi-district playoffs next week at sites still to be determined. The four bi-district winners in this region will hold a regional tournament in Midland at Chaparral Center, Feb. 27-28. The winner will earn a berth in the state tournament.

Bearcats lead Lone Star race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's taken Sam Houston State University eight years, but the Bearcats are finally atop the Lone Star Conference basketball standings, at least for a day.

Their 78-61 victory over Howard Payne University Saturday put the Bearcats a half-game ahead of the Yellowjackets.

If Sam Houston can win its remaining two league games against East Texas State Monday and Stephen F. Austin Wednesday, it will claim an LSC regular basketball title for the first time since 1973.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

Arkansas and Houston have all but assured themselves a bye to the Southwest Conference post-season basketball semi-finals in San Antonio. But the third place pass to the quarter-finals is another matter.

Thanks to Arkansas' 70-55 victory over the Cougars Saturday the teams are locked atop the SWC standings with 9-3 records. It will be a race to the wire for these two teams to decide the regular season champion.

Both teams will need outside help now that they have split their regular season series.

TEXAS TECH jumped back into the third place picture Saturday night with an important 56-53 victory over Baylor in Lubbock.

The Red Raider triumph locked the two teams in a tie for third place with 7-6 records while Rice, which suffered a 71-56 loss to the Texas Aggies, is just a half game back at 6-6.

Texas and Texas A&M are still in the hunt

Tulsa, Wichita State tangle in key MVC tilt

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — With revenge on its mind and the Missouri Valley Conference basketball title nearly in its grasp, Wichita State is at home against Tulsa in a crucial conference game tonight.

The No. 16 Shockers are 10-1 in the Valley and 19-2 overall. Wichita State has put together a 10-game winning streak since losing at Tulsa, 91-84, Jan. 10.

Both teams victimized defending Valley champion Bradley last week. Wichita State blasted Bradley, 87-65, Thursday night. Tulsa clobbered the Braves, 74-54, Saturday while Wichita State was idle.

Coupled with Creighton's 95-83 win over New Mexico State Saturday, that leaves a three-way logjam for second in the league. Tulsa, Bradley and Creighton are all 8-4.

The top four teams in the Valley will have the home court advantage in the league's post-season tournament beginning March 3.

SWC squabbles for 3rd with 5-7 records.

While the first three teams get byes, the fourth through sixth place clubs get a home-court berth in the first round of the tournament March 2.

Texas Christian, which dined Southern Methodist 52-44, is in eighth place at 5-8 followed by the Mustangs at 3-10.

In games Tuesday night, Arkansas travels to Texas A&M, Texas is at Baylor, SMU is at Rice, and Houston is at TCU.

On Saturday, A&M is at Texas, Rice is at Arkansas, Tech is at SMU and Baylor is at Houston.

HOUSTON lost at Fayetteville Saturday when Coach Guy Lewis' decision to go to a delay game with the Cougars trailing backfired. Trailing by three points with 13:10 remaining, Lewis ordered a stall which lasted four minutes and 10 seconds before Lynden Rose launched an air ball.

Arkansas rebounded and ripped off nine straight points and romped to a 70-55 victory before a delighted soldout house in Fayetteville.

"I looked over at Coach Lewis and kinda wondered what he was doing," said Arkansas forward Keith Peterson. "We were ahead."

The victory tied the Razorbacks and Cougars atop the SWC ladder with 9-3 ledgers.

"I DON'T know if going to the stall helped them or hurt them but I know it helped us," said Arkansas center Scott Hastings. "I was tired and it gave us time to catch our breath."

Lewis defended his move, saying "Hell, that didn't lose the game...in a similar situation I'd still do it again."

Things weren't all roses in the Razorback lockerroom.

Sophomore guard Darrell Walker, who had been yanked out of the game by Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton for not passing to a wide-open teammate, stormed from the lockerroom. Sutton said "He will be disciplined."

Walker was suspended from one game this season for missing practice.

turnovers. We are preparing for the tourney," said Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson, whose team had dropped consecutive games at West Texas State and New Mexico State before winning Saturday.

Drake is at Creighton Thursday night and hosts Tulsa Saturday night in games that could go a long way toward deciding which teams play at home in the post-season tournament.

The tourney determines the league's representative in the NCAA playoffs.

Drake blasted Indiana State, 91-78, Saturday night to remain in contention for the home court spots on the eight-team bracket.

There are 10 teams in the Valley, but Illinois State does not begin scheduling Valley games until next season and West Texas State is ineligible for post season play because of NCAA sanctions so all other teams will be in the tournament.

McEnroe wins watered Pepsi

By MIKE McQUEEN

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — The 1981 version of the $300,000 Pepsi Grand Slam of Tennis at the plush BocaWest resort community was expected to come down to a battle between the top two players in the world — Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe.

Some 11,500 fans paid up to $30 in hopes of witnessing what may have been a memorable replay of the 1980 Wimbledon and U.S. Open finals in which Borg and McEnroe traded victories.

But Borg pulled out on Friday after he came down the flu — one of several developments that plagued the nationally televised, four-player tournament.

JOHN MCENROE won his first Slam championship after three tries with a 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 win Sunday over Guillermo Vilas, also making his third appearance in the event. In a consolation match, Brian Teacher beat Tim Gullikson, ranked No. 45 by the Association of Tennis Professionals, 6-2, 6-7, 4-0.

McEnroe's win avenged a loss McEnroe suffered the last time he and Vilas met, in the quarterfinals of the Monte Carlo Volvo Open. McEnroe collected $150,000 while Vilas won $75,000 in second-place prize money.

The tournament's troubles began Friday when rain forced the delay of the scheduled match between Borg and Vilas.

Within the next 48 hours, the following developments occurred:

—On Friday, Borg, four-time winner of this event, pulled out because of the flu.

—Vitas Gerulaitis, pressed into service after tournament officials went down the list of top-ranked players to No. 8 and found the others had commitments to play in a Palm Springs, Calif., tournament this week, suddenly defaulted on Saturday after losing to Vilas. Gerulaitis was to have played Teacher in a consolation match.

—Tim Gullikson, ranked No. 45 in the world by the Association of Tennis Professionals, was named as Gerulaitis' replacement in a consolation match — mainly because he lived at BocaWest and was available.

—On Saturday night, an anonymous caller said he had planted a bomb at BocaWest. No bomb was found and the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department said an arrest warrant was issued for the caller.

Irwin breezes to Hawaii win

HONOLULU (AP) — Hale Irwin won the Hawaiian Open by a 6-stroke margin and with a record score. He led all the way in the final round, by a minimum of 2 strokes. But it wasn't easy.

"It sounds absurd, but it's hard to play with a 5-stroke lead," Irwin said Sunday after scoring his first victory on the PGA Tour since the 1979 U.S. Open.

"A lot of experience came into play over those last few holes," said the man who now has won 12 American titles in 13 years on the Tour.

"I knew I had to play a good back nine, not so much making birdies but making good golf shots and a lot of par, forcing the other guys to try to catch me." He did that. And more.

IRWIN GOT the pars he needed to secure the victory. And then he put on a birdie-eagle finish to set the tournament scoring record at 285, 23 strokes under par on the 6,881-yard Waialae Country Club course that was robbed of its defenses by the rare absence of wind.

"Deep down I wanted to break the record, but, really, it was just a bonus," said Irwin, who started the final round with a 5-shot cushion, saw it dwindle to 2 strokes at the turn, then finished his closing 69 on a high note.

Don January, a 51-year-old veteran and an occasional competitor on the seniors tour, came on to take second at 271 after a closing 68.

Carner wins in overtime

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A triple bogey on the 10th hole cost JoAnne Carner the lead midway through the Ladies Professional Golf Association's S&H golf tournament.

But she parred it in the final round and got a standing ovation and a hefty dose of confidence to carry her to a 2-stroke victory in sudden death over Dot Germain.

"I knew I was going to play well when I parred 10," Carner said Sunday. She played conservatively and safely on the extra hole and stroked her way to a $15,000 victory in wind and rain Sunday. It was the second time in as many weeks she was forced into sudden death play.

Germain, the defending champion, made her only birdie of the day on the 18th hole to catch the veteran Carner at 1-under-par 215 in regulation play.

SHE HADN'T been playing well most of the day and the extra hole was no different. She hit a tree with her first shot, then hooked one and it landed in the bunker. She hit over the fairway, missed a 50-foot chip shot and wound up with a double-bogey 6 for second place and $9,800.

Jan Stephenson was third at par 216 for $7,000 and Cindy Hill was two strokes back to pocket $5,000.

Carner, who was in the lead for the entire back nine, bogeyed the 17th and skimmed the water coming in on the last hole. She made par and said she knew then — even before Germain shot — that they were headed for a playoff.

"I love playoffs. I usually win them," said the 11-year pro, who is 7-4 in sudden death. Carner lost the Whirlpool Classic last week in a playoff with Judy Rankin and winner Sally Little.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Petty claims Daytona

By The Associated Press
AUTO RACING—Richard Petty edged Bobby Allison by four seconds as the "King" of stock car racing roared to an unprecedented seventh Daytona 500 victory. Petty, a seven-time NASCAR champion and the all-time Grand National leader with 193 victories, never led before the 175th of 200 laps. His Buick Regal averaged 169.651 mph and he picked up $90,575 from the total purse of $780,000. Allison, driving a controversial Pontiac LeMans, was followed across the finish line by Ricky Rudd, Buddy Baker and defending NASCAR champion Dale Earnhardt.

TENNIS— Andrea Jaeger wore down Britain's Virginia Wade 6-3, 6-1 and won the Championships of California. The 15-year-old from Lincolnshire, Ill., seeded second, earned $24,000. Wade, 35 and seeded fifth, won $12,000 for her best tennis showing in 11 months...

American Bob Blaz defeated India's Chiradeep Mukherjee 6-1, 6-4 and won the men's singles final of the Indian Satellite tennis tournament, the United News of India said.

SKIING— Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark tied Annemarie Moser-Proell for most career World Cup victories at 62 as he defeated runnerup Alexander Zhirov of the Soviet Union by 1.47 seconds in winning a giant slalom event. Stenmark had runs of 1 minute, 22.21 seconds and 1: 18.75 for a combined time of 2: 40.96. Zhirov was at 2: 42.43, with Phil Mahre of Yakima, Wash., third in 2: 42.84. Sunday, Mahre rallied on the second run and edged Stenmark by three-hundredths of a second in winning a World Cup special slalom.

Mahre's victory was his first in the World Cup since 1979. He was timed in 1:34.36. Austria's Franz Gruber was third in 1:34.51.

BOWLING— Earl Anthony captured his 33rd career Professional Bowlers Association title, defeating top-seeded Tom Baker 218-202 in the final of the Roloids Open. Anthony earned $16,000, while Baker collected $9,000.

SPEED SKATING— Norway's Amund Sjoebrend edged countryman Kay Stenshemmet and won the world speed skating title as defending champion Hilbert van der Duim of the Netherlands was knocked out of contention after a fall in the opening 1,500-meter race. Sjoebrend, 28, who won the 1,500-meter race, placed third in the 10,000, 11th in the 500 and fourth in the 5,000, and collected 167,781 points.

HORSE RACING— Flying Paster, $2.80, scored a two-length victory over King Go Go in the $159,200 San Antonio Stakes at Santa Anita. King Go Go was later disqualified to third, and Doonesbury placed second, for bumping in the stretch... Moment of Touch, $15.60, and Tear In Her Eye, $44.70, won their respective division of the $45,000 Thelma Stakes at the New Orleans Fair Grounds. Moment of Touch bested Miss Flower Belle by 2 1/4-lengths in the first division, while a Tear In Her Eye cruised to a 6 1/2-lengths triumph over Plain Speaking in the second... Wayward Lass, $2.40, romped to an 11 1/4-length victory over Real Prize in the $54,400 Ruthless Stakes at Aqueduct.

Cub Boosters to meet manager

The Midland Booster Club will hold a meet-Roy Hartsfield Night from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday at the Holiday Inn, 4300, West Highway 80, Thursday night.

Hartsfield, who managed the Toronto Blue Jays for three seasons, is the new manager of the Midland Cubs. He spent 1980 in retirement.

"He is enthusiastic and optimistic about the coming season in Midland," says Midland Club General Manager Bill Schammel. "In baseball circles, Roy is well respected and often commended for his ability to work with young players."

NBA leaves 'em gasping

By The Associated Press

The last two minutes are supposed to be nitty-gritty time in the National Basketball Association, but several teams cut it even finer than that Sunday.

—San Antonio's James Silas popped in an 18-foot jump shot with three seconds left to lift the Spurs to a 110-108 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in a battle between division leaders.

—Otis Birdsong scored on a pass from Phil Ford, also with three seconds left, to give the Kansas City Kings a 107-105 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics, who had rallied from a 21-point deficit.

—Cliff Robinson scored 36 points, including a jump shot with 22 seconds left that broke a tie and gave the New Jersey Nets their first three-game winning streak of the season with a 134-132 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

—Larry Bird followed his own missed shot and scored the winning basket with 56 seconds remaining as the Boston Celtics pulled out a 120-118 triumph over the Denver Nuggets.

Jersey Nets their first three-game winning streak of the season with a 134-132 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

76ers 116, Hawks 98—Julius Erving scored 27 points and Philadelphia held Atlanta scoreless for the last 3:02 while running off the game's last 10 points.

Pacers 113, Bulls 107—George McGinnis scored a season-high 27 points and pulled down nine rebounds to lead Indiana. The Pacers, who led by 16 points with 10:58 remaining,

Red Sox make offer to Fisk

BOSTON (AP)—The Red Sox have made another contract offer to free agent Carlton Fisk, but the team apparently isn't too optimistic the star catcher will sign with Boston again.

"Even before hearing back from him," one unidentified club official told The Boston Globe, "I'd say our chances of signing him are possible but not probable."

Fisk received the latest offer on Saturday, an offer the Globe said was "hardly different" from one Fisk, his agent, Jerry Kapstein, and the Red Sox discussed on Jan. 23.

The three-year pact, with the annual salary computed by guarantees, comes to slightly less than $420,000 per year, plus incentives, plus $100,000 severance if the team chooses not to pick up the option on the fourth year.

Blues climb to top of NHL heap

By BARRY WILNER

AP Sports Writer

Two years ago, they won only 18 of 80 games. Today, they stand atop the National Hockey League.

The St. Louis Blues rode a pair of power-play goals by Blake Dunlop and Tony Currie's game-winning at 2:46 of the third period to a 5-4 victory over the New York Rangers Sunday night. The triumph propelled the Smythe Division-leading Blues into the NHL overall points lead with 80, two more than the New York Islanders, whom St. Louis tied 1-1 on Saturday.

"This was a big weekend for us," said Dunlop, who helped St. Louis build a 4-0 lead that the Rangers cut to 4-3 before Currie's decisive tally. "This road trip has been a big test because we're playing the top teams and have stood up to the challenge."

The game in Madison Square Garden—where the Blues had gone more than 12 years without a victory until beating the Rangers 2-1 last October—was the fourth straight road game for St. Louis. The Blues previously tied in Buffalo and Montreal before reaching the New York arena.

Blues climb to top of NHL heap

"We showed a lot of character tonight," said Blues goaltender Mike Liut, who displayed a lot more than that in the game. Liut stopped 30 shots, one of which, taken by Ron Duguay in the second period, hit him in the shoulder and temporarily dazed him. "We were up 4-0, they came back, but we hung in there and showed a terrific effort. A lot of teams would've folded."

Canadiens 5, Flyers 5—Philadelphia rallied from a 5-2 hole, with Ken Linseman producing the deadlock thanks to a lucky bounce. Montreal goalie Denis Herron had gone behind the Canadiens' net to clear the puck when it took a wild bounce off the boards and came in front to Linseman, who tucked it into an unguarded net.

North Stars 7, Canucks 2—Dino Ciccarelli, Mike Polich and Tom McCarthy each scored two goals as Minnesota used a five power-play goal blitz to wallop Vancouver.

"I guess the fans were in the same position I was—kind of excited," said Ciccarelli, 20, who has five goals in five games since being called up from the minors by the injury-depleted North Stars. "I won't know if I've got a permanent job until I'm told. But if I keep scoring goals I figure to keep playing here."

Dislocated shoulder can't stop Wood

By JOHN NELSON

AP Sports Writer

Al Wood has played in 114 straight college basketball games for North Carolina, so it shouldn't have been surprising that he would ignore a little thing like a dislocated shoulder.

Before two minutes were gone in Sunday's nationally televised contest against Maryland, Wood aggravated an old injury, actually a partially dislocated left shoulder sustained earlier in the season.

"I thought we had lost him from the game," Tar Heels Coach Dean Smith said.

Wood, however, was nonchalant about the injury. "The rotator cuff in my shoulder popped out. It's done it several times," Wood said. "We put ice on it, and it felt fine, but I can see how you might think I'd be out for the game."

Wood, a senior forward who has not missed a single game in his 3½ seasons with the Tar Heels, returned after a brief rest and scored 28 points to lead 10th-ranked North Carolina over Maryland, 76-63, at Cole Fieldhouse in College Park, Md.

"I have a lot of pain at times," the 6-foot-6 forward said, "but I'm back to about 90 percent now."

WOOD SCORED 16 of his points in the first half, helping North Carolina accelerate from an 18-14 lead to a 43-25 cushion at intermission.

"We didn't plan to be that far in front," Smith said, "but we played a superb first half."

Basketball players don't come from French Lick, Ind.

Los Angeles Times
You look at No. 33 of the Boston Celtics and you think you got the picture. Big white kid. All that gold-locks blond hair, scraggly moustache. Skin so fair you could almost see through it. The big honest blue eyes of the rube at a shell game. He looks as if he's standing in a load of corn shucks.
Okay. He's a rebounder, right? Comes in the game to get you a few boards while The Big Guy takes five to rest up. He sucks up a few fouls for you, knocks a few people around, not because he's mean, because he's clumsy. He tries, oh, Lord, how he tries! But the Lord didn't give him much to work with. He'd need a run to jump over an egg, if you know what I mean. Comes in there late in the game when it's already out of hand one way or the other. A mop-up pitcher.

You look down the roster. A-huhh. Just as you guessed. He's from French Lick, Indiana. Went to Indiana State. Cow college. Moo U.
YOU DON'T get basketball players out of French Lick, Indiana. You get them out of the playgrounds. The projects. The sidewalks of New York. Or the sidewalks of Chicago. Or North Carolina. Marquette. UCLA. You get apple pickers out of French Lick, Indiana. You find it on the map under "G-4." Go to Young's Creek and turn right.
What do the Celtics want with this kid, anyway? Somebody'll sell him the Brooklyn Bridge. The Celtics want magicians like Cousy. Cool cats like Sam Jones. The glowering Heinsohn. Street-smart immortals like Bill Russell. Hondo Havlicek. Not any guy shooting baskets in the gymnasium.

Okay, he's too white, too slow, too dumb, and too untested. Is this what put all those championship flags up in the rafters of Boston Garden? Red Auerbach would faint. Or would he? Isn't he the one signing this guy? Why isn't he getting Darrell Griffith or Joe Barry Carroll or somebody whose nickname is "The Glide" or "Dr. Dunkenstein" or "The Truck," "Magic," for crying out loud? Celtic fans want to know. Does this guy come with a load of pumpkins? What do we need him for? We already got a piano mover.
WELL, THAT was the shower of skepticism under which Larry Bird came into the National Basketball Assn. a year ago, walking out of the tall corn, and getting lost in the Callahan Tunnel. He had played his collegiate basketball at Indiana State University, which is not to be confused with UCLA, or even De Paul. He had enrolled briefly at Indiana but quit there because he had never seen so many people in one place before ("33,000 is not my idea of a school, it's a country") and not, as some said, because he got his first look at the fast break as practiced by a Bobby Knight-coached team, and thought he might get run over.
The word was out—if you took Larry Bird, you got him, corn silk and all. He was Down Home, moonlight on the Wabash, and he said "We wuz" and "You wuz" or "Me and my father, we..." American gothic. All he needed was the pitchfork.
But, when you put a basketball in his hands, this guy turned into the slickest article who ever sold a watch to a tourist or cut a deck on a riverboat. The kids under the streetlight in Harlem had nothing on him. He wasn't flashy. He wasn't "Dr. L." or "Magic." He was just there. Wherever the ball was. He wasn't fast. But, when you got the ball, they have to wait for you anyway, don't they?

A LOT OF people were upset when he got chosen Rookie-of-the-Year over Magic Johnson—but not anybody who had seen him play a lot. And, in Boston, that came to around 14,490 a night, a Celtic record.
The Celtics had won only 29 games and lost 51 the year before the hick from French Lick got there. They won 61 and lost 21 with him on the boards. This year, they're 46-13.
The other night, the Boston Celtics came into Los Angeles to play the world champion Lakers. The Forum was packed to the roof. There is no team the Lakers' fans would rather beat than the lordly Celtics. About half those pennants hanging from the Boston Garden roof were put there at the expense of the Lakers.
No player from the glory years of the Celtics ever put on a better exhibition against the world championship club than Larry Bird—not Bob Cousy, Russell, Tom Heinsohn, K.C. or Sam Jones, Ramsey, Sharman, Havlicek or Cowens. "Birdie," as the Celtics call him, even stole the ball from the imposing Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. And scored it each time.
He threw in 36 points, 8 field goals in a row, some from 2 1/2 point range, and he pulled down 21 rebounds. He had six assists. His outlet passes whistled to receivers like Jim Plunkett's. He beat the Lakers with the way Cousy used to. The way Russell used to. The way Celtics used to.

In the locker room later, he surveyed the cloud of interviewers branding microphones, notebooks, tape recorders, as if they were all two-shot fowls. "Can I please just get dressed first?" he pleaded politely.
The press watched while he pulled on a pair of work pants, a lumber shirt, and jogging shoes. "It looks like he's going out to put the hay in," whispered a print journalist. Around him, the street boys were putting on their spangled night costumes they most prefer. Jewelry flashed in the lights. Bird didn't even have a wrist-watch. In French Lick, they tell time by the cows.
The questions had their usual low quotient of in-depth. Was this his best game ever? Well, he didn't like to compare. Did he especially like to beat the Lakers because of the comparisons between him and Magic Johnson? No, he wanted to beat the Lakers because the Celtics had lost their last four games on the road, and they didn't want it to become a trend. Did he feel the specialness of the Celtic tradition and want to carry it on? Well, he had never been a Celtic fan particularly back home in Indiana, but when he got to Boston and saw those pennants and numbers hanging from the ceiling, and heard the fans, he had come to appreciate the pride of being a Celtic. He was proud to be part of it, to be carrying it on.
The problem now for all the wise-guys of the NBA is going to be, how you gonna keep 'em down on the farm, after they've seen L.B.? Do the scouts now have to fly into Terre Haute and rent a dog? Are there more basketball players under the harvest moon than there ever were under the neon? Or is the Bird in the hand just a needle in the haystack? Either way, it's for sure his jersey will one day hang from the Boston Garden rafters, too, along with the Joneses, Cousy, Havlicek, Russell, et al. You'll have no trouble recognizing it. It'll be the one with hay on it.

Sometimes they surprise you When is quarterback washed up?

BY MELVIN DURSLAG
Hearst Special News Service
A problem incredibly delicate for a man who coaches pro football is the determination of when a quarterback is washed up.
Dealing with flesh, bone and mental state, one doesn't make this determination very easily, resulting in an awful lot of misses and near-misses.
We were discussing the matter the other day with Leeman Bennett, champion coach of the NFL West, whose experience with Steve Bartkowski at Atlanta has been slightly terrifying when Bennett reflects on how close he came to giving up on Steve.
"There is no doubt that Bartkowski lost his confidence," says Leeman. "He came to Atlanta a little mixed up. He got married, was quickly divorced and was obviously confused. The history of football is, a confused quarterback usually means a fired coach."

ball deed of the year. But how was San Francisco to foresee such a resurgence?
Before the start of the 1980 season, Oakland had to make a decision on Ken Stabler, precisely as Houston had to make one on Dan Pastorini. Each obviously figured its quarterback was on his way to drydock.
So they traded — with no conclusive results.
You can picture the predicament at Miami of Don Shula, who now must decide whether Bob Griese, the highest paid quarterback in football, is a competitive goner.
If Shula gives up on Griese, will someone else snatch him and come up with another Plunkett?
And if Griese stays, will he merely debilitate the Miami payroll?

DALLAS gave up on Craig Morton, and the next thing you knew, the guy was taking Denver to the Super Bowl. And then he was reverting to the form he showed at Dallas.
Repeatedly, scientists informed George Allen at Washington that Billy Kilmer was ready to be lowered into the Potomac.
But Allen resisted — and dredged from Billy several years of valuable service.
Gambling that mileage remained on an aging Joe Namath, who, through swimming, could build up his legs, the Los Angeles Rams drowned, taking Joe at high costs, amid the blare of trumpets, the rams got zero for their effort and expense.
So, as Leeman Bennett says, the process of outguessing quarterbacks is a continuing crag game in pro football.

"MANY PEOPLE ask, for instance, what Archie Manning would do if he landed with a club with a good offensive line," says Leeman. "Archie seems to have fine ability, but a team taking him at great cost still would be gambling that he is able to do it."
Of course, there is little reason for Archie to want to leave New Orleans. The Saints can win a game for him just about any season.
But getting the wheels rolling at Atlanta, where all games are now sold out, Bennett naturally is hoping that Bartkowski suffers no slippage in the next year or two ahead.

If he does, will the Falcons give him to Oakland, or will they wait for another rehabilitation?
As Bennett points out, easier jobs exist in the world than predicting the commercial life of a quarterback.

Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski, being jarred loose of the ball by a couple of Los Angeles Rams, came back from the scrapheap.

TO COMPOUND Bartkowski's problem, he also got injured, and it often is the case in the National Football League that a quarterback injured — especially the first time — endures a fear problem. Knowing that he can get hurt, he isn't too anxious to hold the ball. He isn't sure when to stand in the pocket, when to step up, or when to flee outside.
A victim of knee and elbow surgeries, Bartkowski had fallen out of rhythm, yielding the post to a gentleman named Jim Jones and bringing unspeakable grief to the Atlanta coach, now having to decide whether to keep Bartkowski or sell him for scrap.
"The luck factor then enters the picture," says Bennett. "In this case, we kept Steve, he stabilized his life, gave us a great season and wound up the Pro Bowl quarterback."

The next case study is that of Jim Plunkett, taken by San Francisco from New England for two first round draft choices, two seconds and a backup quarterback.
Losing his poise unaccountably, Plunkett couldn't hit the side of the Golden Gate Bridge. Now came time for a tender decision — and the 49ers turned Jim loose.
What he was to do at Oakland may have been the most formidable foot-

Miller's one-year deal may save him a bundle

As Junior Miller was saying in this space Sunday before being so rudely interrupted, with agents pestering him in his senior year at the University of Nebraska, Junior requested that they cease and desist until after the football season so that he could concentrate on the business at hand.
Some ignored Junior's pleas, but Larry Munro abided by his request and wound up with the signature of the All-America tight end.
"Larry does all of the negotiating," advises Junior, "but he consults with me."
So far, Junior is pleased with the arrangement. "He takes a percentage. Some take their share off the top. We have a one year deal and I have the option of continuing the arrangement if it works out. Some agents sign you up for six years, but sometimes you discover when the agreement expires that you wind up owing a bunch of money and have nothing left to pay it with."
It was no secret in high school that basketball was Junior's favorite sport. He could have gotten a college scholarship in either sport. He admits he misses it and gets a pang of envy when he sees a game. "But if I had it to do all over again, I wouldn't change a thing."

other two Texas junior college conferences, East and South, settle their differences with a playoff, usually a best-of-three between the champions with the winner going to the nationals.
This year, explains MC Coach Jerry Stone, the Northern-Western survivor will meet the East-South winner in a playoff to determine which goes to Hutchinson. "I don't know why," says Stone. "It's just that every so often they do it that way."
BAD NEWS for ball-park peanut snickers. Fans at Arlington Stadium probably will have to do without this season. Texas Rangers concession figure the drought last summer may force abandoning the baseball fans' mid-innings staple.
"We're considering dropping peanuts," says Jerry Jones, head of the stadium concessions. "The price we would have to charge would be too high. Right now we are looking at a bag that is 25 percent less in volume, but 50 percent more in price. We'd have to charge a dollar for a 1 1/2 ounce bag of peanuts and that's too much."
Rice made its recruiting forays along with other SWC members last Wednesday, but the Owls won't announce whose signatures they have corralled until Feb. 18, the national signing date. Of course, the information was squealed by other sources, anyway, but the idea, naturally, was to make it as difficult as possible for non-conference scavengers...
Pitchers Herman Segelke, Norm Churchill, Henry Mack, Steve Viskas and outfielder Mel Hall, all with Midland last season, are on the Chicago Cubs' spring training roster.
Among non-roster players invited to the Chicago Cubs spring training camp in Mesa, Ariz., are catchers George Enright and Mike Shepston and infielders Scot Fletcher and Dan Rohn, and pitcher Dave Giesel, all ex-Midland Cubs.

Hamsho foe's head is harder than punches

Mustafa Hamsho took a 10-round middleweight decision over Curtis Parker at Atlantic City, N.J., and said his opponent was a pushover with a head harder than his punches. "He's a very busy fighter. Very strong, very busy. He comes with three punches — one, two and then he comes with the head."
But in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, it was Parker's inside aggressiveness that wiped the smile off Hamsho's face and brought the battle to its advertised slugfest. "I thought I won the fight," Parker said. "I thought it was even and then I came back. It was a mistake. It was a mistake."

Richard Petty, savoring his Daytona 500 Grand National Stock Car Race victory Sunday, echoed a familiar complaint that the smaller new cars mandatory on this year's NASCAR circuit just don't handle as well as the larger ones they replaced. He didn't have any complaints about his tires, though. In fact, his pit crew's decision only to refuel and forego a tire change on his final pit stop was a key to his seventh victory here...
