Prime rate cut

NEW YORK (AP) — The prime lending rate at major banks dipped as low as 18.5 percent today for the first time since Dec. 5, although most major banks kept the key rate at 19 percent or higher.

Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest commercial bank, today cut its prime lending rate to 19 percent from 19.5 percent, and was quickly followed by No. 4 Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and No. 6 Chemical Bank. But they failed to match the 18.5 percent prime rate set by No. 7 Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co.

Ameritrust Co. in Cleveland, however, the nation's 40th largest bank, today matched Continental Illinois, reducing its prime rate to 18.5 percent from 19.5 percent.

And many of the nation's large banks, including No. 1 Bank of America and No. 2 Citibank, continued to keep their prime rates at 19.5 percent.

Continental Illinois, based in Chicago, undercut the rest of the banking industry Friday evening, announcing it was reducing its prime rate a full percentage point to 18.5 percent, effective today. Among other banks at 19 percent are No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., which led the move on Feb. 9, and No. 9 First National Bank of Chicago.

Continental Illinois' move came after the Federal Reserve Board released its weekly data on the nation's money supply, which showed commercial and industrial loans at the nation's banks fell $1.188 billion in the week ended Feb. 11.

Roger Anderson, chairman of Continental Illinois, noted the continued weakness in bank loan demand in announcing the cut in the bank's prime rate.

The prime rate is what banks charge on loans to their best-risk corporate customers. Smaller businesses generally pay higher interest for their bank loans.

The prime does not apply to consumer loans. Rates on those loans are limited by law in most states and vary widely. But the prime is closely watched because it often signals the direction of all kinds of interest rates, including consumer-loan rates.

Analysts have been predicting a widespread reduction in the prime rate for weeks, based on reduced demands for commercial loans and lower costs of funds.

The prime rate hit a record 21.5 percent in December.

Brezhnev wants summit with President Reagan

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev made a major overture to the new U.S. administration today, calling for a summit meeting with President Reagan and a resumption of U.S.-Soviet negotiations to limit nuclear arms. But he also denounced "bellicose calls" from Washington.

He also proposed that the two superpowers limit their submarine fleets and the deployment of submarine missiles. And for the first time he said that the Soviet Union would discuss Afghanistan with the United States although only as part of talks about the demilitarization of the Persian Gulf region.

Opening the 26th congress of the Soviet Communist Party, the 74-year-old chief of the party said in a keynote address that the state of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union "and the sharpness of world problems demanding resolution ... dictate the necessity of a dialogue on all levels, an active one."

"Experience shows that the decisive element here is meetings on the highest level," he added. "That was true yesterday and remains true today."

Although he offered negotiations, Brezhnev declared that since Reagan became president "candidly bellicose calls and statements have resounded from Washington, specially designed, as it were, to poison the atmosphere of relations between our countries."

According to a Soviet journalist, Brezhnev delivered only a summary of the speech. It apparently was a concession to his age and the state of his health. Soviet television carried about six minutes of the address live then switched to a studio announcer reading the contents. Nearly five hours later, live coverage resumed and Brezhnev was shown delivering the final few pages.

No explanation was offered for the unusual procedure and Western reporters were not allowed to attend the meeting.

Referring to SALT-2, the second Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty which the U.S. Senate refused to consider after the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and which Reagan says favors the Soviet Union, Brezhnev declared:

"For our part, we are prepared to continue the relevant negotiations with the United States without delay, preserving all the positive elements that have so far been achieved in this area. It goes without saying that negotiations can be conducted only on the basis of equality and equal security."

After a 90-second standing ovation from the 4,904 delegates in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses, Brezhnev asserted that the Soviet Union is working to "preserve and deepen detente" despite "acutely" more aggressive policies of the United States.

"When thunder clouds gathered on the international horizon by the beginning of the 1980s," he said, "the Soviet Union continued to persevere in efforts to remove the threat of war and to preserve and deepen detente and acted to expand mutually beneficial cooperation with most countries of the world."

He charged that the West, not the Soviet Union, is "slowing the detente process."

Brezhnev said any talks with the United States about Afghanistan could only deal with international aspects of the situation. This apparently meant he was not prepared to discuss the legitimacy of the communist regime there.

Otherwise, he reiterated the Kremlin's previous position on Afghanistan. He defended the Soviet military intervention there, saying "the undeclared war" against the communist government posed "a direct threat to the security of our southern frontier" and "compelled" the Soviet Union to "render military aid."

"We will be prepared to withdraw the military contingent with the agreement of the Afghan government," he continued, "but before this is done, the infiltration of counter-revolutionary gangs into Afghanistan must be completely stopped."

Japan receiving first papal visit

TOKYO (AP) — After six days of adulation by millions of Filipinos, Pope John Paul II today began the first papal visit to Japan, where Catholics are a tiny minority and the public has shown little interest in his Asian trip.

The pope's Philippine jetliner, with "Viva Il Papa!" painted on the side, landed this afternoon in rain and fog at Tokyo's Haneda International Airport.

He came from the sunny, predominantly Roman Catholic U.S. island of Guam, where he stopped for the night after leaving the Philippines, celebrated Mass for 20,000 people and again condemned artificial contraception and abortion.

In contrast to the 100,000 Roman Catholics that jammed Manila airport for the pope's arrival there, the welcoming crowd at the Tokyo airport was made up of government and church officials, including Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito, and about 100 young Catholics wearing T-shirts bearing the words "Young and Pope."

Only about 400,000 of the 117 million Japanese are Roman Catholics. There were also no crowds along the route of the pontiff's 20-minute drive from the airport to St. Mary's Cathedral, where he told about 3,000 Japanese Catholic clergy: "It is a joy for me to set foot on the soil of Japan... this hospitable land where Mother Nature has brought forth prodigies of incomparable beauty that speak to all the world about the glory of the Creator."

Speaking clear, fluent Japanese in public for the first time, John Paul said he came to Japan "as a pilgrim of peace, bearing a message of friendship and respect for all of you." He praised Japanese Catholics for "their religious faith that for generations has been expressed in good works and has been authenticated by the extraordinary witness of heroic martyrs."

An estimated 280,000 Christians were imprisoned, tortured, executed or otherwise punished between 1614 and 1635, after the Tokugawa Shogunate banned Christianity. They included 26 foreign and Japanese priests and followers crucified in Nagasaki.

Although Christianity has been firmly lodged in Japan for centuries, most of the people are Buddhists or Shintoists, and less than 1 percent are Christians.

During his three-day stay in Japan, John Paul will meet with Emperor Hirohito and Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, celebrate Mass at Tokyo stadium and visit Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the two cities devastated by U.S. atomic bombs near the end of World War II.

Nagasaki was founded by the Jesuits, and 75,000 of Japan's Catholics live there.

The Japanese government assigned 10,000 police to guard the Pope during his visit, including a special unit of 20 men carrying tennis rackets to ward off any objects that might be thrown at him. Officials said they expect little trouble, but small leftist and rightist radical groups may stage demonstrations.

During his visit to Guam, the pope was met by small but enthusiastic crowds of Americans and Guamanians. Celebrating Mass before 20,000 people at the Plaza de Esplanada in Agaña, the island's main city, he recalled the 400-year history of Christianity on the Pacific island.

Aging friar blessed

Polish-born Franciscan Brother Zeno Zebrowski, age 89 and bedridden most of the time, receives a blessing from Pope John Paul II Monday following the pontiff's arrival in Tokyo. Zebrowski has been in Japan since 1930, survived the atomic bombing of Nagasaki and dedicated his life to helping Japanese rebuild their war-torn country. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan prepared to 'break kneecaps'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back from a California vacation and jokingly described as ready to "break a few kneecaps" for his budget and tax cuts, is lobbying personally for approval in Congress and support in the statehouse.

So far, Reagan's top White House adviser says, the reaction hasn't been so bad.

"You have the predictable special-interest group reaction," White House counselor Edwin Meese III told reporters Sunday aboard Air Force One en route to the nation's capital from California. "Yet even there the stridency has been lacking in terms of what you might have."

Presidential aide Joe Canzeri denied a fight is brewing and joked, "We are just going to stroke a little, break a few kneecaps."

Reagan withdrew from the campaign last Thursday, the day after he presented his program to a joint session of Congress, and left it to his aides and Cabinet members to rally support while he relaxed at his mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

HIS APPOINTMENTS TODAY INCLUDED members of Congress, who begin work on the package this week, and governors, who would have to pick up some of the slack in scaled-down federal programs.

Reagan was to give the governors a personal briefing during an hour-long afternoon session at the White House.

Meese said he expects Congress to cooperate in Reagan's efforts to cut personal income taxes 30 percent over three years and slash $41.4 billion from the fiscal 1982 budget proposed by former President Carter.

While budget director David A. Stockman said over the weekend he would recommend Reagan veto any attempt to give larger tax breaks to low- and middle-income Americans, Meese said, "We don't feel that that will be necessary."

"We feel that Congress will realize that decreasing unemployment and decreasing inflation and spurring economic recovery is an important aspect to the country and they will respond to the program," Meese said. "We have no reason now to believe we'll have to resort to those measures."

Administration officials tested the waters before the National Governors' Association Sunday, promising to cut strings on financial aid in return for state support for cutting the federal government down to size.

Reagan was working on that part of his program today, discussing the transfer of some federal functions to the states.

Meese told reporters he didn't think that would result in renewed racial discrimination or less benevolent treatment of the sick and poor.

"I think it's kind of silly to say that people in Washington can decide priorities better than people at the state and local level," he said. "I don't think the national government possesses any particular wisdom."

ASKED WHETHER SOCIAL PROGRAMS among the states could become so disparate that federal courts would step in, Meese replied: "I think you start with the idea that there are certain things guaranteed by the federal Constitution. ... But I would say at this particular point in history I don't think you have states that want to discriminate."

Meese predicted the states wouldn't do much differently than the federal government has. He said federal bureaucrats "go to absurd lengths" to advance their own ideas "which may bear no relationship to what Congress or the people or anybody else wants."

After four days at his California retreat, aides described Reagan as refreshed despite reports that he complained about a lack of privacy.

"He seems to be in great shape," said Meese. "You can tell that the fresh air, sunshine and physical exercise were well worthwhile."

As he switched from a helicopter to Air Force One at Point Mugu Naval Air Station, Reagan himself said he had spent "a very nice two days."

Asked whether he did any work, Reagan responded: "Oh, sure. We brought in some more firewood, got rid of some more old dead brush."

Congress working on Reagan plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress begins intensive work this week on President Reagan's economic proposals with Democrats vowing not to rubber-stamp them, Republicans countering that the nation won't accept foot-dragging and the administration insisting its three-year income tax cut not be gutted.

Legislators from both parties have expressed concern over the economic effects of Reagan's proposal that tax rates be slashed 10 percent a year for three years, starting July 1.

Democrats have said they favor a tax cut, but not the one the administration wants.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said Saturday the administration's plan "will not favor the working people, the people who pay taxes and have nothing left. It will make the rich richer and the poor poorer. It is unfair, unreasonable and inequitable."

The tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee opens hearings on the tax package Tuesday and committee chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said it will take weeks to hear all the anticipated witnesses.

White House budget director David A. Stockman told The Associated Press in an interview that the administration is open to negotiation with Congress on some parts of the tax plan but is insisting on a three-year package.

A one-year tax cut "won't help (the economy) a lot," Stockman said. "One-year tax cuts do not generate the kind of permanent economic re-

Sunday wrecks kill two

A 26-year-old Midland man was killed in a one-vehicle accident in Upton County early Sunday morning and an Odessa man died in a one-vehicle accident in Midland County.

Harold Rex Williams of Midland was killed about 5 a.m. Sunday when the truck-trailer rig he was driving south on U.S. 385 just north of McCamey ran off the roadway, struck a culvert and rolled 3 1/2 times before coming to rest on its left side.

Williams was thrown from the truck and landed in the northbound traffic lane where he was struck and dragged about 40 feet by an unidentified vehicle, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesman.

Investigators theorized Williams may have fallen asleep at the wheel of his truck.

sponse that we're looking for," he said. "People can't make long-term plans on the basis of only one year."

Stockman, becoming a frequent Capitol Hill witness, was due before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee today to continue his pitch for the plan.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Margaret Robinson. His body was taken to Dennis Funeral Home in McCamey.

The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper Bobby Bowlin of McCamey.

Carroll Coy DeHay, 35, of Odessa was killed about 1 a.m. Sunday at the intersection of State Highway 158 and Farm Road 1788 in Midland County when the vehicle he was driving failed to negotiate a curve, left the roadway and rolled over, throwing DeHay from it.

DeHay was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Peace Justice Charlie Sprayberry.

The mishap was investigated by DPS Troopers David Jones and Bill Fort of Midland.

At the same time, Energy Secretary James Edwards was scheduled to lobby for Reagan-backed cuts in energy research programs before the Senate Energy Committee.

The Senate Budget Committee, meanwhile, is beginning to move on a package of spending cuts, with Republican leaders pressing for quick action in an effort to pressure the House into acting promptly.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman, is expected to introduce legislation early this week to implement those cuts, getting the process rolling.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said, "It is my expectation that the Senate will act very promptly indeed. ... Every day this is delayed makes it more difficult to pass."

He added that if Democrats in the House or Senate block Reagan's program, "people will rise up in a rage of indignation in (the) 1982" elections.

Byrd's answer to that was that Democrats "don't have a constitutional duty to rubber-stamp every thing this president or any president asks for."

Brezhnev warns Poland against labor unrest

MOSCOW (AP) — In a strong warning against continued labor unrest in neighboring Poland, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev accused "imperialist, subversive" forces of using the Polish crisis in an effort to undermine the communist system. And he said the Polish Communist Party at its last meeting noted that "the pillars of the socialist state in Poland are in jeopardy."

In a speech opening the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress, Brezhnev indicated that "mistakes and miscalculations" by Polish leaders were as much to blame for trouble in the country as outside "imperialist" forces. In Poland, he declared, "opponents of socialism supported by outside forces are, by stirring up anarchy, seeking to channel events into a counter-revolutionary course."

Brezhnev said the Polish party was "redressing the critical situation" by tightening its links with the working people and "working on a concrete program" to restore the health of the economy. He noted that a summit meeting of Warsaw Pact leaders last Dec. 5 in Moscow gave Poland "important political support."

But missing from Brezhnev's assessment of the current situation was a phrase in the summit meeting communique expressing confidence that the Polish party and government would be able to "overcome the present difficulties" on its own. Instead, the Soviet leader dwelt on only that part of the Dec. 5 communique that said the Polish population "can firmly rely on their friends and allies. We will not abandon fraternal, socialist Poland in its hour of need, we will stick up for it."

As in the summit communique, Brezhnev stopped short of threatening to send Soviet troops to restore order in Poland.

Ingram files for re-election to post

Thomas P. Ingram, director of the Midland County hospital district, has filed for re-election to that post, but does not plan to make any formal announcement, he said this morning.

Ingram, vice president of Lone Star Abstract and Title, said since he's been here 32 years "Midland has been very good to me and I want to return that, if I can. I hope to give them another two years of my time, at least."

Ingram said, however, he was "not going to solicit any contributions" and planned to run on his record of achievement while a director for the past two years.

"I'm not a politician," Ingram said. "I don't think any of us on the board are. I don't believe in going (that) way," he said, explaining his "quiet" campaign plans.

"I just like to pay my dues," he explained. "And I think I've got a pretty good track record."

One of the more outspoken members, Ingram said, "I guess maybe I've done some good (things) for this board."

Ingram said the hospital has made much progress in the past two years. "In the past the hospital has been a rather mixed up organization... and changes have been taking place out of necessity rather than as a result of planning," he said. He added during his past term, "things have turned around" and the hospital was beginning a more organized period.

Now that operations "run more efficiently," Ingram said, "it's time for us to sit down and actually prepare some long-range plans."

With the Tribrook efficiency studies completed, Ingram said the hospital is "recognizing their problems and we have been out there trying."

"Now that the administrator is going to be doing the job he is hired for," Ingram continued, "and the trustees will be doing what they're supposed to do, the board (of directors) is going to be the approving agency to see that everyone else is doing his job."

Ingram continued to say, "During my two years on the board, I have learned an awful lot about the internal workings of the hospital. If I can help them, then I will."

Ingram said although he's been asked to run for other political offices in Midland, such as the city council, he felt he would have a conflict of interest on most other governmental bodies. "I won't run for any of the others," he said, "because I'm still active in business and feel if I was on those I would have a conflict of interest. On the hospital board, I feel that I can sit there and do what has to be done without coming into a conflict with any other thing that comes along."

Ingram said he believes the five-member board has "a good make-up right now" and he would like to see all three departing members run for the seat again.

"They do everything they can, as well as they can, as fast as they can," he said. "We're doing a lot of things now that have not been done in the past. (We) just have to put them in their priorities."

Ingram said, "I try to do what I feel is the best thing."

Sonoma County producing wine

Copley News Service California's Sonoma County may be losing its inferiority complex.

Running No. 2 to storied and esteemed Napa, Sonoma has for years tried harder, and recently seems to have reached parity in all things except perhaps Cabernet Sauvignon.

No rain for area

There's no rain in the forecast for the Permian Basin, but the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport says the weather will be more springlike tonight and Tuesday.

Forecast to be fair and warmer tonight, temperatures will drop to the low 40s. A warm southwesterly wind will be mild at 5-10 mph tonight.

Tuesday will be partly cloudy and warmer with a high in the upper 70s. Winds will be southerly and somewhat strong at 15-20 mph and gusty.

The month's rainfall looks as if it will stand at a trace, according to the Weather Service, as February draws to a close with less than a week remaining.

Sunday's high was a mild 60 degrees — not even close to the record for the date set in 1977 at 86 degrees.

Madison, Iowa; three sisters, Grace Elizabeth Bohannon of Hobbs, N.M., Betty Lou Fung of Pasadena, Calif., and Judy Darlene Mustard of Garden City, Kan.; and several aunts and uncles.

Cecil Garcia

ANDREWS — A funeral mass for Cecil Garcia, 49, of Andrews, was to be said at 11 a.m. today at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Andrews. Burial was to be in Andrews Cemetery.

Garcia died Friday in an Andrews hospital from injuries received in an industrial accident at the Andrews County Gin.

Rosary was recited Sunday evening at the Singleton Funeral Home Chapel of Chimes.

He had lived in Andrews four months, moving here from Stamford. He had lived in Haskell most of his life.

Survivors include his wife, Maria Garcia; three sons, Mike Garcia, Joe Garcia and Cecil Garcia Jr., all of Andrews; four daughters, Mary Lou Cobb of Oklahoma City, Okla., Polly Ann Garcia, Ruth Garcia and Gloria Garcia, all of Andrews; a sister, Michela Garcia of Mexico; two brothers, Alfonso Garcia and Lewis Garcia, both of Mexico; and four grandchildren.

Shanks' trial begins this week

Rex Bradley Shanks, a 27-year-old Abilene man who is charged with helping plot and then executing the murder-for-hire death of the husband of a former Abilene schoolmate of his, is to go on trial this week in 142nd State District Court in Midland.

Shanks is accused of stabbing James David McPeters, 46, of Odessa, to death on the night of July 28 just off Interstate 20 between Midland and Odessa.

The state is claiming that Shanks mortally wounded McPeters with a kitchen knife after the victim's estranged wife, Patricia Louise "Patty" McPeters, 26, had set up her husband for the kill and had offered Shanks and another "hit man" proceeds from McPeters' life insurance coverage to dispose of her husband.

A jury in 142nd State District Court last Dec. 18 found Mrs. McPeters guilty of murder and assessed her punishment at 50 years in prison. She was sentenced by Judge Perry D. Pickett, who has since retired from the judgeship.

Officers check prowler report

Police officers investigating a prowler report in the 3800 block of West Wall Street late Sunday evening arrested a 21-year-old Midland man after he allegedly dropped a plastic bag containing a substance believed to be marijuana.

Reports indicated the man was crossing the street when he was observed.

Police, Fire Roundup

served dropping an article from his right hand. Officers then stopped him and asked for identification.

They retrieved the article, reports indicated, and found it to be a clear plastic bag containing a substance believed to be marijuana.

No charges had been filed by early today.

Midland firemen quickly extinguished a fence fire Sunday afternoon at the Don Stuckey residence, 3226 Camarie.

The fence was blazing when firemen arrived. Reports indicated the fire was probably set.

The fire reportedly caused heavy damage to about 20 feet of fence and light damage to about five feet.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

How to get rid of grease spots

DEAR HELOISE:

My son works at a gas station and his uniforms get greasy. I've tried everything from bleach to additives and pre-soaks, and nothing seems to help.

I didn't rub the cleaners directly on the spots. Could this have made the difference? I would appreciate it very much if someone could tell me what to do. — Mrs. Antoinette Alfonso

Laundry can literally be a pain in the neck. All the different fabrics, all the different stain removers, not to mention all the stains that family members can come up with in a day's activities — it's mind-boggling!

None of us is an expert and has all the answers for each stain on each type of fabric. Common sense tells us we can't use one standard remedy for every garment we wear. Hot water sets some stains, cold water sets others. What do we do? I wish I could give you all the answers in a few easy steps, but that's impossible.

One thing I can tell you, though, is when you are in doubt, and you can't get an immediate answer from me or a knowledgeable friend, contact your local dry cleaning establishment, or even your extension agent. They'll be glad to share their expertise.

But, back to Mrs. Alfonso's problem: First, most stains do need direct treatment. What I mean is this: apply your pre-wash spray, solvent, or whatever, directly to the stain. Of course, bleach and additives should be added to the wash water before the clothes are put in. Never pour bleach directly on the fabric — bleach must be diluted.

There are as many remedies for grease stains as there are types of grease. But in your case, car grease, motor oil, and such types familiar to mechanics can best be removed by using a pre-wash spray or a mechanic's hand cleaner (the kind that is a paste and comes in a can). Spray or apply directly on the grease spot and rub it in good.

Wash your clothes as usual, making sure you use enough soap and the correct water temperature for that particular type of fabric (your soap container should give you this type of information). Don't overload your washing machine — give the clothes room to agitate.

Another good thing to remember is to always tackle that stain as soon as you can. Don't let it set and, above all, be sure to catch it before you wash the garment. Sometimes washing without pre-treating will set the stain, then you've got more problems.

Hope this sheds a little light on the laundry blues. — Heloise

BLANKET STORAGE
Dear Heloise: Since moving into a small house, I find it a problem storing extra blankets and quilts.

We do have a spare guest bedroom, so I put all my unused blankets on the bed, spreading them flat, then covering them with the bedspread.

No one's the wiser, and they're out of the way, yet handy. — Mrs. Lyle Miller

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: I have one of those rubber suction cup shower mats that had darkened and looked terrible. I tried scouring powder, soap and straight chlorine bleach, but nothing would touch it.

Then I saw you on television recommending use of a solution of 1 1/4 cup household bleach and 1 1/2 cup automatic dishwasher detergent to one gallon of hot water to whiten cottons.

I tried this as a last resort before throwing away the mat, and it worked! It restored the mat to its original white.

For this I thank you very much. — W.E. Crayne

And for showing me one more way of using this formula, I thank you!

Did you know, though, that you can wash a bathmat along with a load of towels in your washing machine, adding a safe amount of bleach, and getting a beautifully clean mat?

Try it next time. — Heloise

If you've come up with a clever cleaning cue, send it to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but, sure as winter tomatoes need ripening at room temperature, she'll use the best hints received in her column.

CLUB NEWS

Burglary prevention topic of program

LION TAMERS CLUB Security measures which have proven effective in protecting homes against burglary were discussed by Sgt. Lalo Camarillo at the Wednesday noon meeting of the Lion Tamers Club at the Woman's Club.

Camarillo, veteran member of the Crime Prevention Division of the Midland Police Department, recommended a number of practices which could be instituted at minimum cost in burglar proofing the home. He was introduced by Mrs. George Loudamy, vice president, who also presided at a brief business session following the program.

Locks and other burglary prevention items were displayed and demonstrated by the speaker in discussing the subject. He recommended the taking of an inventory of all household furnishings, appliances and other valuables. Proper marking for positive identification also was suggested. Camarillo listed the various free services and equipment offered by the Police Department in this regard.

It was announced that club members will meet March 2-3 in the Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas Co. to package "silverware" to be used in the Downtown Lions Club's annual Pancake Jamboree, scheduled March 14 at Dellwood Mall.

Mrs. Alex Ewing was introduced as a new member. Guests present were Mrs. Clyde Hobbs and Mrs. Bill Parker.

WOMAN'S WEDNESDAY CLUB

The Woman's Wednesday Club met in the ballroom of the Woman's Club. Meeting was opened with the reading of the collect.

Mrs. C. W. Chancellor introduced Mrs. Earl Chapman who gave a program on her trip to China. She showed slides of her travels.

Mrs. Thornton Hardie and Mrs. Clark Steinberger were hostesses for the tea hour. Seventeen members attended.

WESTSIDE EXTENSION CLUB

Westside Extension Club met in the home of Mrs. Eunie Darris, president. Roll call was answered with the question of "What is a true friend?" Program was on patterns and marking articles for sale for the Oct. 23 annual day.

A report on a council meeting was given by Opal Reeves.

District meeting will be April 22 in Odessa. The group agreed to attend.

DEAR ABBY

Respect best shown now, not later

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations on your 25th anniversary as "Dear Abby." I have a very special reason for wanting to wish you well.

Twelve years ago you had a letter in your column signed TOO LATE. Abby, that letter motivated me to visit my aging and ailing mother EVERY DAY during her last two years in a nursing home. I am ashamed to admit that until that time I thought I was doing quite well to visit her every Sunday for an hour.

I will always be indebted to you, Abby, for selecting that letter for your column. It motivated me to change my ways, and now I can live with a clear conscience.

Please run that letter again, Abby. It might do for someone else what it did for me. — GRATEFUL IN LONG ISLAND

DEAR GRATEFUL: I am grateful to you for reminding me to run it again. I have printed it three times, and each time I have heard from readers expressing appreciation. With pleasure I give it a much deserved rerun.

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, gray-haired parents. They sat at home alone, loving me just the same. It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them. I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think. — TOO LATE bridesmaid. It may not be very "graceful," but it beats getting stuck with a bridesmaid who is no longer a friend.

DEAR ABBY: I can't forget that survey you took after having received the letter from TIRED IN NEBRASKA. There must be something wrong with women who are 50 and tired of sex.

I am a woman of 50, and I enjoy my 61-year-old husband more now than I ever have. With our children grown and gone, the setting is ideal for romance. I still race home from the office to bathe and meet him at the door in a lace coat (the type one wears over a bathing suit). There's more to life than cooking, laundry and making beds!

I no longer have to worry about pregnancy or having the children hear us. These are the best years of our lives. I'm saving up for a mirrored ceiling!

Sign me, "Not Dead Yet in East Lansing, Mich." or — BETTER THAN EVER

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 LaSalle Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

LOSING 51 lbs.

and several inches

S. Nelson is perhaps one of the more spectacular examples of the stunning results that may be attained through Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salons International. Read what she has to say about the program that has benefited millions throughout the world over the past 30 years.

"I hated myself fat, and every new year I promised to really get with it and lose; however, it never happened. Finally my doctor advised me, tactfully, to stay out of his office until I decided to lose weight. He just couldn't help me. Out of desperation, not believing, I called for a courtesy treatment at Pat Walker's. This was the turning point in my life. With a loss of 51 pounds and several inches, I began to enjoy my life with my friends and family, especially my three grandchildren. The Pat Walker program gave me a positive approach to everyday living."

How's your approach to life?
Now the national director for Pat Walker, Ms. Nelson firmly believes the program can upgrade the life outlook of the overweight as surely as it makes them slimmer, trimmer, more confident of their appearance—and themselves. In the elegant atmosphere of a Pat Walker salon (where there's none of the noise and confusion you may have encountered at gyms and spas), you can reduce IN ABSOLUTE PRIVACY. Moreover, you have assistance from interested professional counselors (who also conduct their counseling, by the way, in complete privacy).

Another difference: SYMMETRICON
Symmetricon is the equipment, exclusive to Pat Walker's, providing passive exercise that gently shapes and firms your figure while it also improves your circulation and helps correct posture. You wear your regular street clothes during treatments. At Pat Walker's you can lose weight (and keep it off) ON YOUR OWN INDIVIDUALIZED PROGRAM—without strenuous physical exercise or stringent diets.

Intrigued? Call TODAY 683-62789 for your complimentary treatment and figure analysis. There's no obligation. All you need to do is call or come by to reserve time for your FREE appointment.

SPECIALTY OF THE HOUSE

The president begins

It isn't ironic that Ronald Reagan has plunged headlong into his economic plan to save the nation; it's inescapable realism. Anyone who thinks the president was kidding when he said in his address to Congress Thursday night that there will be widespread, across-the-board cuts in the federal budget isn't living in the real world. We've seen during this first month of Ronald Reagan's administration that the new chief executive has a firm grasp of the workings of the federal government. In fact, after a month in office he seems to have a better feel — and better control — of the problems plaguing this nation than Jimmy Carter did after four years in Washington, D.C. The president, of course, has announced all the cuts he wants made in the federal budget. He's politically astute enough to realize that he will not get all he wants. That doesn't matter. The fact is if he is able to bring about a fourth of all the cutbacks he is proposing, he will have helped to bring about a reversal of the direction this government is headed. The president knows he's got a difficult job to do. But his plan for economic recovery incorporates a great degree of compassion for the poor unable to help themselves and the elderly. That's good. Regardless of the impressive reception Reagan received from the combined houses of Congress he knows he will face some opposition in his plan to bring about an economic recovery. It is fortunate that Reagan has done his homework. He's attuned to how Washington operates and seems to be skillfully avoiding some of the pitfalls Carter suffered during his administration. Perhaps there's even a chance that the senators and representatives will push aside their partisan endeavors and join Reagan in truly making the economic recovery plan a program of the government rather than a program of Reagan's administration, as he said he hoped would happen. The American people elected Ronald Reagan for a reason, knowing all the while that a president's ability to bring about change without the consent of Congress is severely limited. The American people truly want their senators and representatives to join with President Reagan in bringing about economic recovery and, with it, a brighter tomorrow for us all. Hopefully, members of Congress realize that.

Have fun near to home!

With spring just around the corner in the Permian Basin, many families may be starting to think about vacation trips. This year, much as in recent summers, the cost of gasoline and inflation's impact on families likely will play a part in determining the length and duration of vacation trips. Permian Basin residents caught in the crunch of the high gasoline prices and inflation's grip, may find it economically beneficial to consider trips to nearby points of interest this year. Such locations are numerous and appeal to a wide range of interests. Just to mention a few, nearby vacation spots should appeal to camping and hiking enthusiasts, bicyclists, fishermen and other sportsmen, hunters and nature-lovers, and those individuals who get enjoyment simply by browsing through museums.

The West Texas region and Southeastern New Mexico are chock-full of enjoyable things to see and do. Why not enjoy some of them this year?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Brezhnev warned Carter about neutron bomb

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's recent announcement that the Reagan administration would "very probably" decide to produce the neutron bomb and deploy it in Western Europe created an international furor. World leaders had thought the neutron bomb issue was defused for good back in April 1978, when Jimmy Carter made the surprising decision to "delay" its deployment. At the time, Carter's turnaround was thought to be based largely on West Germany's reluctance to support the bomb's deployment there. Another possibility, though, was that Carter backed down on the neutron bomb — which kills people but leaves inanimate objects unscarred and has relatively short-lived radiation effects — because of concern that it would cause the Soviets to break off SALT II negotiations. A secret message to Carter from Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev lends support to the latter theory. A copy of the Brezhnev letter has been obtained by my associate Dale Van Atta. It was sent on Jan. 5, 1978 — three months before Carter's announced decision to put the neutron bomb in the deep-freezer. It is a remarkable document, sharply worded and pointedly addressed to Carter personally because, as Brezhnev wrote, "it is no secret that the decision whether to start production and deployment of neutron weapons depends now above all upon the U.S. government, upon you personally, Mr. President." Noting that the matter was one of "significant acuteness," the Kremlin boss said bluntly: "The seriousness of not-so-veiled threat: Americans could not expect to escape the "devastating scythe" simply by being thousands of miles away. "Perhaps some entertain the hope to stay on the sidelines if and when the point is reached that neutron weapons are killing Europeans," Brezhnev wrote. "This calculation is illusory in substance. Today neutron weapons are thought of in connection with one means of delivery, but tomorrow, or the day after, they may be attached to other vehicles of a completely different range — not of hundreds but of thousands of kilometers. Today these weapons have one yield. But tomorrow — it could be ten or a hundred times greater. Such is the law of the arms race..." Then Brezhnev got around to SALT II. "In what light would the negotiations currently underway... appear if simultaneously the deployment of neutron weapons was forced?" he asked. He answered: "Not much would be left of people's trust in solving the problem of disarmament, and in the success of ongoing negotiations. Moreover, the negotiations themselves, at least in some cases, would face the threat of being broken off." Finally, Brezhnev warned that the United States could not hope to maintain its monopoly on the neutron bomb. He wrote that "if the choice of the United States is in favor of the neutron bomb, this will put the Soviet Union before the necessity to meet the challenge, that is to act in the same way as we were forced to act when atomic weapons came into being." The letter was signed, "Sincerely, L. Brezhnev." Three months later, after West Germany had reluctantly agreed to deploy the weapon, Carter surprisingly reversed himself and called off the neutron bomb. The SALT II negotiations continued, and a treaty was signed in June 1979. The Reagan administration has shown no inclination to revive the SALT II talks, and is now proposing to go ahead with the neutron bomb.

CHARLEY REESE

Reagan's quickly proving he's a master politician

The first weeks of the Reagan presidency remind me of the story of the boy who left home at 18 and returned three years later. He was amazed at how much his parents had learned during the three years. Quite a few of my colleagues in the press are amazed at how smart a president Ronald Reagan has shown himself to be. After all, they had supposed him to be just a dumb actor. Reagan, of course, has never been dumb. Part of the misconception was just the liberal bias which tends to make a liberal view everyone who disagrees with liberal dogma as stupid, evil, or crazy. In less than a month, President Reagan has assembled a cabinet of experienced and intelligent men. He has surrounded himself with competent staff. He has set priorities and begun the tasks of accomplishing them. Already, he has proven himself to be 1,400 times more competent than Jimmy Carter. The budget cuts are a good example of just how well he is handling his job. Even before his inauguration, Reagan made it a point to establish cordial relations with the Congress, both Democrats and Republicans. By way of contrast, Carter had managed to antagonize the Congress before he took office by verbally assaulting Congress even though it was controlled by his own party. In budget matters, a president only proposes; the Congress acts. Some conservatives are carping that Reagan is not cutting enough and to be sure, Reagan is not proposing the cuts he thinks would be ideal. He is proposing the cuts he thinks he can reasonably expect the Congress to accept. To do otherwise would be foolish. Federal spending has not been reduced seriously in living memory. If President Reagan can achieve any reasonable reduction in the federal budget, it will be an important victory. He will have shown both the people and the Congressmen themselves that a reduction in federal spending actually is possible. He will have made it possible to achieve more reductions later. His speech to the nation was another step in a sound strategy. In that speech, Reagan used his considerable powers of persuasion to explain to the American people why the reductions are necessary. The speech was designed to help take the heat off Congress, which is more sensitive to public pressure than a president. Finally, the announcement that certain sensitive programs like school lunches and aid to the elderly would be exempt, was a brilliant ploy by a master politician. With that announcement, Reagan caught his liberal opponents with their guard down and gave them a hard shot to the groin. The liberals in Congress were primed and ready to go to the mat in the name of hungry children and cold widows and thus defeat the entire Reagan program by putting the Scrooge label on him. Now these liberals are standing there with their mouths open. Reagan has forced them to fight on his ground, not theirs. Now they will be in the position of trying to defend programs with far less popular support. Like a good armor general, Reagan has bypassed the enemy fortresses to strike at the softer targets first. I am not suggesting that Reagan is the perfect president. He will surely make mistakes. The oath of office never confers divinity on a human being. But it is comforting, after four years of Jimmy Carter, to know that the man in the White House is at least a competent politician and understands political process necessary to accomplish his goals.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Several unions are worried about the robot problem. The number of robots working in factories is at a record high and I suppose when the robots start getting into management, the unions will have an even bigger problem. You can complain to a human corporation president about robots, but if you're complaining to a robot president about robots, he might get turned off. It's all too obvious that the only solution for the unions is to organize the robots. Not that this is a cure-all — unfortunately, you will have union robots and scab robots. Then, as history all too clearly tells us, there will be strikes during which the union robots will be beaten up by the company's goon robots. The unions are beginning to realize that it takes factories to manufacture all those robots, and it takes human workers to man those factories. But they'd better hurry up or you'll have robots begetting robots — from Japan.

INSIDE REPORT:

Most recent 'flash' signals potential nuclear woes

WASHINGTON — A mysterious "flash" signifying a likely nuclear explosion in the far reaches of the South Atlantic, eerily similar to the still-unexplained September 1979 flash in the same general area, was secretly recorded several weeks ago by sensitive U.S. monitoring devices. If the "flash" was indeed a very small nuclear test blast, as is strongly suspected by top intelligence officials who are now certain that that is what occurred in 1979, President Reagan is confronted with one of the gravest, most perplexing mysteries of the nuclear age. The mystery: Is the "nuclear club" expanding another notch, or has a card-carrying member taken advantage of the remote waters where the South Atlantic joins the Indian Ocean to test weapons without risk that the world will ever discover who he is? Whatever the answer, the December "flash" monitored by a U.S. reconnaissance satellite makes one fact clear with deadly logic. With all its monitoring and verification tools, the U.S. is still unable to solve two enigmatic nuclear riddles, either one of which could affect the course of world history. That surely counsels caution in current comprehensive test ban treaty negotiations with the Soviet Union. Some Carter administration officials were convinced that President Carter's effort to explain away the 1979 explosion as an event that never happened was a direct result of inability to solve the riddle. To acknowledge publicly that a nuclear test could be conducted even in a remote area without the U.S. knowing which country triggered it would undermine Carter's zealous pursuit of the comprehensive test ban treaty. It would also mock his whole non-proliferation program. So, the White House Office of Science and Technology issued its shocking report last July contending that the 1979 event was not a nuclear test at all but rather a chance collision between the reconnaissance satellite and a very small meteor. Specialists in the Carter administration were aghast at this kiss-off of what in fact has created an agonizing dilemma for the U.S. and a dangerous game for the world: anonymous weapons testing. The contrary opinion written by the Defense Intelligence Agency was put under a tight "secret" seal after it was read by Carter White House aides. It's still undisclosed findings: The probability is overwhelming that the "event" in September 1979 was no space collision by a low-yield weapons test. Since that DIA report, sent to the White House last spring, new evidence further bolsters that verdict. As for the second anonymous test in December, evidence is only slightly less compelling and still being gathered. Indeed, few if any high Reagan officials have yet been informed that U.S. monitoring devices picked up the telltale signals in the same general area — a vast water land with a diameter of 3,000 miles — southwest of the South African coast. Questions now being urgently addressed in the intelligence community are not confined to the identity of the fugitive state responsible for triggering nuclear tests behind the world's back, although that question is clearly an important one. There is no consensus as to the guilty party with this exception: It probably is not the Soviet Union. Intelligence specialists, however, are not unanimous even on this point. It is possible, we were informed, that the Russians lofted the low-yield weapons on balloons from a submarine or trawler and fired them simply to test whether American verification devices were competent to pick up the small blasts. Most analysts, however, lean to less conspiratorial theories: that the two tests signaled the entry of a new state to the nuclear club, possibly Israel (known to possess nuclear devices) or South Africa; that they are a culminating testing point for nuclear-club member France in developing its own neutron bomb; or that they belonged to India or even Pakistan. Whomever the villain is that chooses to keep on testing nuclear devices in the atmosphere, the deeper significance to Reagan and his men is this: Technology for discovering nuclear testing and verifying performance of states pledged not to engage in certain types of testing is dangerously lagging. Surely that raises the question of whether the U.S. should forget about negotiating the comprehensive test ban treaty and at once launch a weapons testing program to catch up to unprecedented Soviet testing the past few years. Although that program appears to be unconnected to the mysterious tests in the faraway South Atlantic, what happened there is a warning signal that the U.S. may know far less about the difficulties of verification than it has believed. If so, it could be suicidal to rely on goodwill, good intentions or even signed treaties that cannot be totally verified.

WATCH ON WASTE: As newcomers to government budget-cutting, the Reagan administration could do worse than heed the advice of an oldtimer in the game — the General Accounting Office. For example, the GAO's sleuths uncovered 2,493 unused public school buildings in 19 states. Eying the congressional appropriation of more than $5.8 billion for construction of new buildings in Fiscal 1979 alone, the GAO suggests that at least some of the empty schools could be used — saving the cost of new construction.

Harris jurors enter seventh day of deliberations

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — After six days of deliberations, jurors in Jean Harris' murder trial appear stalled over a key question: Did the former headmistress intend to kill her lover, "Scarsdale Diet" developer Dr. Herman Tarnower?

Sunday's 9 1/2-hour day of deliberations was the jury's longest so far. The eight women and four men spent the whole day behind closed doors without sending any notes to indicate what progress they had made.

Deliberations were resuming today. "There's been no communication whatever from them, so we can only assume they are still working on the top count," Judge Russell R. Leggett said, referring to the count of second-degree murder that Mrs. Harris faces.

"I've been an expectant father three times, and it's never been this bad," defense lawyer Joel Aurnou said as he paced the corridor near the jury room.

Mrs. Harris awaited the verdict from an undisclosed location about 10 minutes by car from the Westchester County Courthouse. For the first time in the three-month trial, she stayed away from court Sunday because the jury didn't ask to rehear any of her testimony or the judge's instructions on the law.

Jurors asked three times after Leggett's original instructions to be told the definition of an intentional homicide. Each time, Leggett told them that intent to murder may be formed the instant the gun is fired, without premeditation.

Mrs. Harris, the 51-year-old former headmistress of the Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., was charged with killing the 69-year-old millionaire cardiologist, her lover of 14 years, at his Purchase, N.Y., estate last March 10.

The prosecution alleged Mrs. Harris killed Tarnower in a jealous rage over the doctor's affair with Lynne Tryforos, his 38-year-old office assistant.

Mrs. Harris contended Tarnower was shot accidentally as she tried to commit suicide. Although Tarnower sustained four bullet wounds, Mrs. Harris testified that she could remember only shooting through Tarnower's hand as he attempted to grab the gun from her.

Leggett told the jurors they could consider two reduced charges — second-degree manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide — only if they agreed unanimously that Mrs. Harris did not intend to kill Tarnower.

Neither of the lesser charges implies intentional homicide or carries a mandatory prison term. Both would allow Mrs. Harris to sue to collect the $220,000 Tarnower bequeathed her.

Ex-official to explain charity donation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former Energy Department official who gave $4 million in federal money to charitable organizations on the next-to-last day of the Carter administration was called before a congressional subcommittee today to explain his actions.

Paul Bloom, former DOE special counsel, was scheduled as the star witness before the House Government Operations subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources.

The panel scheduled the hearing to take testimony on Energy Department enforcement of oil company pricing violations and the disbursement of money obtained in settlements of court actions against the companies.

Bloom was expected to explain his Jan. 19 decision to give the $4 million in settlement money to charitable organizations so they could disburse it to poor people having trouble paying their heating bills.

The Reagan administration is trying to get what's left of the money back, saying Bloom exceeded his authority.

Department spokesman Phil Keif said Energy Secretary James Edwards "is not objecting to getting the money to low-income people. He just wants it back so that a decision on how to disburse it will be made in the right way."

For the past three years, Bloom headed the Energy Department's investigation of the country's 35 biggest oil companies, resulting in allegations that the companies had committed $11 billion in pricing violations.

The $4 million was left over from a $280 million settlement Bloom reached last year with the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). The settlement stipulated that the company, generally known as Amoco, would return $29 million to its biggest industrial customers of heating oil. However, Amoco informed Bloom last month that it had been unable to return $4 million of the total.

On his last full day in office, Bloom directed that $1 million each be given to the National Council of Churches, the National Council of Catholic Charities, the Council of Jewish Federations and the Salvation Army.

The agreements with the four charities specified that they would use the money to help poor people pay their heating bills, with none of the money used for administrative costs.

Reagan administration officials said they didn't discover the action until Feb. 9 and asked the charities to return the money. But the charities said they already had distributed much of the money.

The Salvation Army said it had spent almost all of its allocation. Col. Ernest Miller said the organization had been told by the Carter administration "to get it out fast so that it could be used by poor people before the winter heating season ended, and we complied."

The Council of Churches and Catholic Charities said only about one-third of their money had been distributed to local affiliates, and the Jewish Federation said only a small amount of its share had been disbursed.

All four charities have stopped further distribution of the money while their lawyers examine the Energy Department claim. But they have urged the Reagan administration to drop the matter and let the money be used as Bloom intended.

"If we have to return his money, the people who are really going to be hurt are the poor people who are spending 40 to 50 percent of their income on heating bills, who have to make a decision between heating and eating," said Chris Cowap of the Council of Churches.

Cartoonist dies at 73

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Maltese, who created several cartoon characters and helped create the Roadrunner and the Coyote, has died at age 73 following a six-month bout with cancer.

Maltese, who died Sunday at Good Samaritan Hospital, shared several awards for his writing and animation, including Academy, Emmy and Annie awards.

He was the creator of the French skunk Pepe LaPue, and while with Hanna Barbera Productions helped create and write for such cartoons as the Flintstones, Jetsons, Augie Doggie, Quick Draw McGraw and Tom and Jerry.

While with Warner Bros., he worked on Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Yosemite Sam cartoons.

He worked with Chuck Jones to develop the Roadrunner and the Coyote.

Trial opens on Postal Service back pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unusual civil trial beginning in U.S. District Court today could bring more than $300 million in back pay to half a million American workers whose employer violated a federal wage law.

The defendant in perhaps the most lucrative back-pay case ever is the Postal Service.

And, in an unusual twist, one of the plaintiffs suing on behalf of the workers is the Labor Department. It is not often that one federal agency sues another.

The case revolves around the Postal Service's admitted violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act, a New Dealer law that provides, among other things, for a minimum wage and overtime pay after 40 hours per week.

The Postal Service has admitted in legal papers that it did not comply with the law from May 1, 1974, when the act began applying to the agency, to May 20, 1978.

The Labor Department has charged that the service's computer system did not properly compute overtime, and that employees were not paid for some of the time spent on the job.

The Postal Service already has paid $11 million to private law firms — even though it has its own lawyers — for help with legal work in the case, said Edward Ward, the chief Postal Service attorney in the trial.

About $1 million was paid to a private law firm for help in defending against the Labor Department suit, and $10 million was used to hire a firm to devise a system by which the Postal Service could process future claims by employees, Ward said. These anticipated claims involve violations of the wage law that are not involved in today's trial.

Donated skin can reduce pain, possibly save a life

Dear Dr. Solomon: I would like to know what is involved when a person agrees to donate his or her skin to a burn unit after death. I am contemplating making such an arrangement, but I'm also concerned about the possibility of disfigurement. I would also like to know how the skin is used. Can you provide this information? — Herman

Dear Herman: Donated skin is used as a temporary graft for burn patients, providing the same protective functions as did the person's own skin. In this fashion, donated skin helps reduce pain and possibly can even save a life.

The process of removing skin from a cadaver is not disfiguring. Only a paper-thin layer of skin is removed, and only from unexposed areas of the body. Since the procedure takes about one or two hours and is completed within 19 hours after death, even funeral arrangements need not be delayed.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I recently completed a course in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, and I would enthusiastically recommend it for everyone. What I still don't understand, however, is how it works. Although the instructor seemed to be very competent in demonstrating the technique, he couldn't explain why it is effective. Will you enlighten me? — Suzy

Dear Suzy: Although cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) has been around for about 20 years, doctors still are not certain exactly how it works. What we do know is that when the heart stops beating effectively, the rhythmic compression of the chest produces circulation of blood to the brain and other vital organs.

The original theory behind CPR was that chest compression caused the blood to flow because the heart was being squeezed between the breastbone and backbone. Now there is some evidence that the squeezing of the lungs may be a much more important factor. In other words the entire chest, not just the heart, may function as a pump.

The new theory stems from the work of Dr. J. Michael Criley, professor of medicine and radiology at the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine. A few years ago, he and his colleagues found that a person undergoing a cardiac arrest could maintain the flow of blood to the brain, and thus remain conscious, by coughing forcefully every few seconds. Apparently, each time the patient coughs, a surge of blood equal to or greater than that produced by a normal heartbeat is sent through the arteries. It was concluded that a similar mechanism might be responsible for the flow of blood during CPR. Not all researchers accept the chest pump theory of CPR, and Dr. Criley himself admits that it might not be practical for a patient having a heart attack to be asked to cough.

The result of research on the mechanism of CPR may have practical application. While basic CPR probably will remain unchanged, new findings may lead to improvement in the techniques and equipment used in hospitals and by ambulance personnel responding to emergencies.

52 former hostages facing diverse futures

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The past is Iran.

The future is all over the world.

For the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran for 444 days, tomorrow means new assignments, new ideas and, in some cases, new jobs. Some of the servicemen plan to stay in the military; others envision civilian careers. There are books to be written, appearances to be made and offers to consider. Few of the former hostages plan major changes in their lives as a result of their ordeal, but all are making adjustments.

Kathryn Koob of Jessup, Iowa, plans to keep her job as a cultural officer with the International Communications Agency. She says she wouldn't mind going overseas again — but she also says she would be very careful about picking the country. Miss Koob wants to write a book about her experiences in Iran, but has not made any firm plans.

Robert Ode, 65, retired from the State Department in 1976, but he accepted a temporary assignment that put him in the U.S. Embassy on Nov. 4, 1979. Ode's wife moved to the retirement community of Sun City West, Ariz., during his captivity and he says, "Since ... I have a lovely home here and the golf course right in front of me, I don't think I will probably take any (assignments), at least not in the foreseeable future." Ode wants to travel, however. "I've always been fascinated by new places," he says. "We may go to Europe next summer, maybe Iceland. We're also going to visit Mexico and I'd give my eyeteeth to go to China."

Marine Sgt. Steven Kirtley, 23, of Little Rock, Ark., will stay in the service until his enlistment runs out Dec. 29. "Then I'll go to school," he says, probably at the University of Arkansas. He hasn't decided what he'll study.

Richard Morefield, 51, who was consul-general in Iran, says he is "ready to get back to Washington and get back to work." He expects he will be stationed in the United States for a year. "After that," Morefield says, "I'll go wherever the president want me to go."

Michael Metrinko of Olyphant, Pa., also will keep his job with the government. "I'm going back to work with the foreign service ... I have no idea where they will assign me, but ... I like the work. It's what I want to keep on doing."

Barry Rosen, 36, a press attache at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, says he probably will accept a fellowship at Columbia University. He says he'll concentrate on Iranian studies although he doesn't expect to be back in the country "for a long time."

Jerry Plotkin, 47, a businessman from Sherman Oaks, Calif., has received numerous business offers and has signed up with the International Creative Management Agency in Los Angeles, said his attorney, Steven Klein. The agency will help Plotkin work out a deal for the book he plans to write.

Kevin Hermening, 22, of Cudahy, Wis., also a Marine sergeant, has six months to go before his enlistment is up. He plans to leave the service and go to the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee School of Architecture.

Army Col. Charles Scott, 48, of Stone Mountain, Ga., has several options, according to Col. Chris Crescioni, who has been acting as a spokesman for the former hostage. Scott has 31 years in the Army and could retire with maximum benefits. He also could accept offers of positions at Fort Gillem or Fort McPherson, near his home. "As far as I know, he hasn't made up his mind," said Crescioni.

Marine Sgt. James Lopez, 22, of Globe, Ariz., who helped buoy the spirits of his fellow hostages with political cartoons, plans to put together a one-hour documentary cartoon which he hopes to market this spring for broadcast on network or public television.

"I've been drawing pictures and cartoons as long as I can remember," says Lopez. "This is really like a dream come true. I don't care if we make any money on it. I'm just having fun."

But, says Lopez, who has a year to go on his tour of duty, "I'm still a Marine." He says he wants to be an embassy guard as he was in Iran — but preferably in Australia or Norway.

Weather, crime, economy blamed in tourist slump

MIAMI (AP) — Cold weather, a well-publicized crime increase and the sluggish national economy have cursed the winter of '81 and driven away the tourists, say hotel operators and tourism officials in this resort city.

"How am I doing? I'm doing fine. Well, actually I'm lying," said Frank Thorn, manager of the plush Eden Roc Hotel on Miami Beach. "Everybody is in the same boat around here and it's just about staying afloat."

Hotel-motel occupancy in Miami Beach was a dismal 51.4 percent in December. In January, it improved to 73.7 percent — still 15 percentage points below normal, The Miami Herald reported Sunday.

Officials said the Northerners who normally vacation in South Florida every year never arrived this season. They blame the economic slump and "propaganda" about the crime rate.

Hotels throughout South Florida, particularly in Miami Beach, reported scores of cancellations during the days immediately following last month's report on ABC's "20-20" program that hotel officials said portrayed South Florida as a violence-ridden shambles.

"For years and years, we would get the same people here every year," said Betty Habib, manager of the Blue Seas Motel on Miami Beach. "This year, they're just not coming. I mean, put yourself in the places of those people. Are you going to come here and spend your money after hearing all that propaganda about the problems we have here?"

She said the Blue Seas is now about 70 percent occupied. "We should be at 105 percent occupancy at this time of year," she said. "They should be waiting in line to get in here."

But above all, the people blame the weather, which included a severe cold snap earlier this year.

"People who are planning vacations might overlook all the other problems, but if they call their sister-in-law down here and she says it's freezing or it's raining, they just aren't going to spend money to get here," said Arthur Horowitz, who has operated restaurants in South Florida for 35 years.

The tourist slump has been worst in Dade County, where crime problems have been widely publicized. But officials in nearby Broward County said their business is off by 10 to 15 percent. Even in Palm Beach County, local officials concede business has slipped by 4 percent.

"We never worried about a bad season before," said Tommy Mercer, manager of tourism and convention development for the Fort Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce. "But then, we've never had problems like this before," he said.

For all of Florida in 1979, tourism was a $16 billion business. The figures for 1980 are due this week. Meanwhile, as some businesses offer substantial discounts in an effort to attract customers, statistics bear out what the hotel operators say.

Collections of Miami Beach's 2 percent tourist tax dropped 13 percent in December compared to the previous year. Restaurant business and car rentals were down in January by an estimated 10 to 20 percent.

However, Dade County officials see a ray of hope in the coming summer season. Last summer, the Miami area was very successful in attracting visitors from Europe and other foreign points.

But even that silver lining may have a dark cloud around it — last year the U.S. dollar was declining in value, creating a favorable exchange rate attractive to foreign tourists. This year, the dollar is strengthening, which is good news for most Americans but could be even more bad news for the tourist industry.

Police seek victim's identity

CLINES CORNERS, N.M. (AP) — Police are trying to track down the identity of a man who was struck and killed by a vehicle shortly after being put off a cross-country bus for unruly behavior.

Officer Wayne Mahana of the State Police said the man, believed in his 40s, was killed early Friday on Interstate 40, approximately seven miles east of here.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Monday, Feb. 23, 1981
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: One of the famous Fondas, Peter, was born on this day. Although Peter has not yet attained the same fame as his father Henry or his sister Jane, he will do very well in the year ahead — and so should you!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This can be a highly enjoyable, romantic week. Business pace is apt to be slow. You may be nearing an important decision. If so, doublecheck all facts and figures. Advantageous new opportunity opens up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You feel more alert today after a weekend of rest and recreation. Personal matters will need prompt attention. Rein in purse strings. Money is discussion topic for entire family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Work cycle may be expanded now. Talk with those who oppose your ideas. Candid conversation could prevent a misunderstanding that would be costly to everyone concerned. Romance takes center stage this evening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial situation looks more promising now. Others will keep their promises. Hold your emotions in check and domestic scene will remain serene and happy. Seek advice from close friends, not strangers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A sudden change will both surprise you and speed progress. Mix business with pleasure and you can reap profits. Soft-pedal differences with mate or partner to avoid confrontation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Get your facts and figures straight before attending important meeting or finalizing contract. Someone in a position of authority asks probing questions. "Impossible dream" could materialize if you pay more attention to loved one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Brisk pace at place of employment will inspire teamwork and a feeling of unity. Exercise self-control, especially around older person. Afternoon or evening brings a visitor. Spend evening relaxing with mate, close friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Morning is a good time to launch pet projects. Influential person shows renewed interest. Capitalize on knowledge of mate or partner. Social event is the highlight of your day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much can be gained by being cooperative today. Ignore the petty jealousies of others. Concentrate on completing projects already under way. Others should be allowed to voice their opinions without interruption.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work at a steady pace to boost production. Higher-ups will be impressed. A special bargain will highlight your day. It could be connected with the purchase of furniture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Family members will be in a jolly mood. Show greater self-discipline when it comes to spending. Relax and enjoy an enlightening group discussion this evening. You gain new insights.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dig beneath the surface to come up with the right answers. Others will respect your opinions if you air them without vehemence. Avoid choosing sides in a family argument.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q873 ♥J652 ♦8 ♣AJ85
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♦
Pass 2 ♦ Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—First of all, partner's double is for takeout—you have not yet bid. He must have a pretty good hand and you could hardly have a better hand considering that you have not yet said a word. You want to play in partner's better major. You can get him to show it by cue-bidding three diamonds. Naturally, you intend raising to game whichever major partner bids.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ7 ♥8743 ♦K764 ♣92
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner is making a general strength game try. In support of hearts, your hand is worth 9-plus points—almost a maximum. Accept his try by all means—bid four hearts.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A62 ♥KQ87 ♦7 ♣K9842
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You started out with a near minimum opening bid. Partner's one heart response has improved your hand quite a bit, but not enough to warrant a jump raise of his suit. Your hand revalues to 15 points, which is only a solid raise to two hearts.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q107 ♥6 ♦QJ65 ♣98543
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ Dble. ?

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠872 ♥KJ97652 ♣932
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 2 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Give thanks that, so far, you have not been doubled. We would recommend a bid of three diamonds if you could be sure that partner would pass. Unfortunately, he is far more likely to return to three hearts. Pass. Don't rescue partner when he is not yet in trouble. There is time enough to pull to three diamonds if the opponents double.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K10762 ♥7 ♦A5 ♣AKJ75
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♦ Dble. Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If you elected to jump to six spades, we would not blame you one bit. Even though partner passed originally, he has since come to life with two jump bids, and it is hard to place him with a hand that will not offer good play for slam. To be sure, you should check for aces first by bidding four no trump.

Chaps seeking clincher tonight

Midland College will be gunning for its 10th straight basketball victory at 8 p.m. tonight at Chaparral Center in a homecoming game against Odessa College. And if the Chaparrals get it, it will give them the Western Junior College Conference title, no strings attached.

ern Conference. The tournament winner will face the Region XIV winner for the right to go to the nationals at Hutchinson, Kan., March 16-21. Tyler, ranked in the nation's top five, is favored to win that Region.

SPORTS

The Chaps clinched, at worst, a share of the pie with its thrilling come-from-behind 57-55 victory over Frank Phillips College at Berger Thursday night. That gave the Chaps, 14-2 in WJCC plays, a two-game edge over pursuing Howard College and FPC, both 12-4, with only two games to go.

WITH A 26-2 record going into their final home appearance of the season, Coach Jerry Stone's high-stepping hoopsters already have assured themselves of the most successful season in MC history and a berth in the Region V tournament in Brownwood next week.

Odessa College lost 78-71 to Howard College Thursday and has been a hot and cold club all year. In the previous meeting with MC posted a 106-82 win as Puntus Wilson scored 18 points and Scotty Tutwiler 17. High for the game, however, was OC's Craig Ehlo with 35 points, sinking 12 of 20 floor shots.

Midland travels to Snyder Thursday to close out the season against Western Texas College, where they have never won.

MIDLAND COLLEGE, Howard and Frank Phillips have sewed up spots in the Region V tournament while South Plains will play the WJCC fifth place team, a struggle that still hangs in the balance, for the final berth. Four teams also will represent the North-

Irish snap Cav streak

Woolridge buzzer basket does it

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It's getting to be old hat for Digger Phelps. "It's never the same the second time around," says the Notre Dame basketball coach. Or the third, fourth or fifth, etc. For still another time, the Fighting Irish pulled off one of their patented, headline-making victories Sunday. They beat top-ranked Virginia this time, 57-56, on a last-gasp jump shot by Orlando Woolridge, who claimed: "I never made a bigger basket." The triumph by the 11th-ranked Irish broke the nation's longest streak by a Division I college basketball team, 28 games dating back to last year. But you can understand why Phelps has become so nonchalant about such things — for the Irish, these high-profile triumphs have become traditional.

THE BIGGEST one of all, of course, was on Jan. 19, 1974, when they stopped UCLA's record 88-game winning streak 71-70 at South Bend. On other occasions, the Irish ended UCLA's 115-game nonconference streak at home in 1976, ended San Francisco's 29-game streak in 1977 when the Dons were No. 1 and beat DePaul in 1980 when the Blue Demons brought a 25-0 record and No. 1 ranking into Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center.

With the end of the Cavaliers' string, Louisiana State emerged with the nation's longest Division I streak at 25 games — including Sunday's 67-57 triumph over Texas A&M. The fourth-ranked Tigers clinched the Southeastern Conference championship by beating No. 8 Tennessee 66-65 Saturday.

In other action Saturday, No. 2 Oregon State routed Washington State 81-53; No. 3 DePaul stopped Marquette 78-71; fifth-ranked Wake Forest was upset by 20th-ranked Maryland 94-89; No. 6 UCLA lost a 74-72 decision to Stanford; No. 7 Arizona State turned back Arizona 71-66; ninth-rated Utah downed Texas-El Paso 69-59 and No. 10 Kentucky defeated Vanderbilt 80-48.

Also, No. 12 Iowa trimmed Purdue 67-62; 13th-ranked North Carolina whipped Clemson 75-61; 14th-ranked Wichita State beat Creighton 83-70; 15th-ranked Illinois downed Michigan State 82-63; No. 16 Indiana tripped Minnesota 74-63; 17th-ranked Brigham Young stopped New Mexico 78-72; Northwestern upset No. 18 Michigan 74-70 and No. 19 Lamar turned back Arkansas State 89-69.

Notre Dame came out on top with the help of a Cavalier blunder. With 10 seconds left and Virginia leading 56-55, the Cavs' Lee Raker failed to get the ball in play within five seconds, turning it over to the Irish. After a timeout, Tracy Jackson missed a jumper and Kelly Tripucka was stripped of the ball before he could shoot. Woolridge then grabbed the ball and hit the winning shot from about 16 feet.

"I grabbed the ball, turned and shot and I didn't think about it until I saw it went through the hoop," noted Woolridge, who said he didn't realize the impact of what he had done "until about 800 people jumped on me."

Aggies' mascot banned

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Texas A&M supporters got an unpleasant surprise when they tried to bring their mascot dog to the basketball match with Louisiana State. The dog was not allowed in.

"We just feel that any animal is not eligible to enter the LSU basketball area," Jack Gilmore, assistant athletic director, said Sunday night when the animal was turned away.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Miller, Alcott take victories in golf

By The Associated Press
GOLF—Johnny Miller captured the $300,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open by two strokes with a record 270. Miller shot a 68 in the final round to edge Tom Weiskopf for the championship and break the old tournament record of 272 set by Hale Irwin over the par-71, 7,029-yard Riviera Country Club course.

Weiskopf parred the 18th hole to take second place at 68-272. Miller Barber, who will be 50 in March, tied for third with Gil Morgan at 273. Barber had a final-round 69 and Morgan a 70, both at 273.

Amy Alcott shot a 5-under-par 67 for a 12-under-par, 276 total and a one-stroke victory over defending champion JoAnne Carner in the $150,000 Bent Tree Ladies Classic. Carner finished with a 3-under-par 69 for a 277 total on the par-72, 6,088-yard Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course. Sandra Post hit 72 in the final round for a 5-under-par 283 total, while Beth Solomon shot 70 to wind up at 284. Dot Germain and Beth Daniel both carded 69s in the final round to wind up at 285.

TENNIS—Jimmy Connors defeated Ivan Lendl 6-3, 7-6 for the $28,000 first prize in the $175,000 Grand Marnier-ATP Games at the La Quinta... Top-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia beat Bettina Bunge 6-4, 6-4 to win the Avon Championships of Houston...

Bjorn Borg of Sweden defeated Vitas Gerulaitis 2-6, 6-2, 6-4 at Melbourne to win the Benson and Hedges Gold Challenge Series, then combined with dual Grand Slam winner Rod Laver in a doubles exhibition against John Newcombe and Peter McNamara, who won 7-5, 6-3... Francis Gonzalez of Puerto Rico took second place in the Caribbean Cup Tournament by defeating Tkue Nastase 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. Gonzalez had lost the singles crown Friday to Paraguayan Victor Pecci, 6-2, 6-4.

Pecci totalled 52 points, Gonzalez 46, Nastase 40 and Panatta 34.

AUTO RACING—Darrell Waltrip held off a challenge from Richard Petty and survived a fender-bender accident 15 laps from the end to win the Richmond 400 Grand National stock car race. Waltrip, who averaged 76.570 in his Buick Regal, took the lead for good on lap 355 of the 400-lap event at Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway and finished about 10 car lengths ahead of Ricky Rudd's Oldsmobile Cutlass. Petty's Buick Regal was third, a lap down, followed by rookie Morgan Shepherd's Pontiac Grand Prix and Benny Parsons' Ford Thunderbird.

SKIING—Raisa Smetanina of the Soviet Union won a World Cup 20-kilometer cross country ski race near Leningrad, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

TRACK—Thierry Vigneron of France tied his world indoor record in the pole vault with a leap of 18 feet 8 1/2 inches in a European Track and Field meet dominated by East and West Germany...

Francie Larriue of Los Angeles set a world best indoor time of 5 minutes, 55.2 seconds as she won the women's 2,000 meters at the Edmonton Journal Indoor Games Saturday night, passing Debbie Scott of Victoria, British Columbia for good with about 300 meters left.

BOWLING—Earl Anthony routed four higher-seeded opponents including top-seeded Roy Buckley 242-223 to win his second consecutive Professional Bowlers Association title in the $125,000 AMF Magic-Score Open, defeating Mike Aubrey 189-141; Paul Moser, 236-226; and George Pappas, 247-214.

HORSE RACING Saturday's Races—Stancharry, $5.20, captured the $54,400 Santa Catalina Stakes at Santa Anita when Minnesota Chief, who crossed the finish line first, was disqualified for interference in the stretch... Little Bonny, $39.40, scored a 4 1/2-length victory over Lobsang II in the $186,200 Pan American Turf Handicap at Gulfstream Park... Hoedown's Day, $15.40, scored a 1 1/2-length victory over Always a Cinch in the $68,700 Gold Rush Stakes at Golden Gate Fields... Irish Tower, $2.80, posted a 3 1/2-length victory over Charlie Coast in the $85,350 Grey Lag Handicap at Aqueduct... Law Me, $48, romped to a four-length victory over Brazen Ruler in the $40,800 LeComte Handicap at the Fair Grounds... Legendary Star, $4.80, drew out to a 10-length triumph over Bandance in the $12,500 Wollaston Purse at Suffolk Downs... Full Flame, $10.40, scored a 1 1/2-length victory over Petro D. Five draw 1st round ECAC byes CENTERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — Northeastern, Holy Cross, Fordham, Old Dominion and James Madison have all received byes into the semi-final round of their respective region of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference, it was announced by the ECAC Sunday.

The ECAC will invite six teams to each regional, with the top two seeds receiving byes. The remaining invitations will be announced either Friday or next Sunday.

In the ECAC North, Northeastern, 20-5, and Holy Cross, 16-8, will both receive byes but their seeding order has yet to be determined. Maine, 12-12, is seeded third and will host the No. 6 seed, either Colgate, 10-16, Niagara, 10-15 or Canisius, 9-15.

McMurry wins TIAA

By Associated Press
McMurry center Keith White, who led his team to its fourth straight conference basketball title, has been named player of the week again in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

He also nailed down a spot on the all-conference team released Sunday.

McMurry's Vance Hughes joined White on the all-conference team and also was named freshman of the year, and McMurry coach Herschel Kimbrel was selected coach of the year.

McMurry will represent the TIAA in the NAIA District 8 playoffs.

Sam Houston, Howard Payne clash for title

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — In the first game, the two teams together set a record for most points scored in a Lone Star Conference basketball tournament game with 182.

In the second game, the two teams together set a record for fewest points scored in an LSC tourney with 90.

When both semifinal games were over, Sam Houston's 50 points was just as valid a ticket into the finals as Howard Payne's 97. Those teams meet for the tournament championship here tonight, with the winner officially named conference champion and host team for the NAIA's District 4 playoff.

The Yellowjackets thundered past Texas A&I, 97-85, in the first of Sunday's games, behind the 27 points, 11 rebounds and two assists of 6-4 junior forward Joe McBride.

Howard Payne broke the tournament single-game scoring record, previously 91 points set by East Texas State in 1977.

Sam Houston overcame Abilene Christian's early slowdown tactics for a 50-40 victory in the nightcap, with Tony Massey contributing 16 points, Anthony Carroll adding 14 and Willie Whittenberg chipping in 11 to round out the Bearkat players in double-figures.

Bob Dillon...a friend for 12 years...gone

Bob Dillon died when his car flipped on the outskirts of Midland at 2 a.m. Saturday. We were still awake, trying to unwind from a late Friday when we learned of the accident.

We didn't sleep the rest of the night, shock, I guess, but it wasn't until 7 a.m. that it really sank in, the realization that the person we'd been working next to for the last 12 years would no longer be around.

That's when, like the dagger-wielding tragedian in MacBeth, the stabbing whys of recriminations, sadness and the seeming uselessness of it all began.

ORDINARILY, Bob would have covered a game Friday night, but he worked the early morning shift, so we told him to take the night off.

One can only guess at what happened coming north on Holiday Hill road that night. Newly four-lane, it was still treacherous in that drivers, still not accustomed or aware of the change, turn south too soon. Did a car coming the wrong way blind him momentarily with its glaring headlights? Or perhaps was he confused by the signs and construction work at the Andrews Highway intersection?

It could have been either, we suppose. Bob's eyes had been giving him trouble lately and only Friday morning he had complained that he couldn't read the screen of the computer terminal clearly. If only we had scolded him into an eye checkup. We know Bob was 45, but he was a big kid at heart at times and needed to be taken by the ear, once in a while.

BOB was a kind and thoughtful person, but despite all of the friends Bob made during his years in West Texas, he sometimes seemed lonely and searching for something, even in a crowd. We wish we could have helped him find it.

Bob had two great loves. Well, one love, really, his five-year-old daughter Camie. Whenever, Bob turned up missing from the office, it was because he was picking her up at school, dropping her off at a ballet class or just being a loving father.

Bob's other love was more of a passion. He had to love what he was doing, it certainly wasn't the monetary rewards that kept him at it all these years. As he once told his dad, Dr. Austin Dillon, "I'd do it even if they didn't pay me. I just love sports that much."

WHEN THINGS first began to go fuzzy and his old glasses were of no use, he discovered a pair of spare glasses Joe Salman left on his desk in the oil department. They helped. Whenever Joe would forget his glasses and lift papers and search through drawers in search of the spares, he would find them on Bob or on Bob's desk.

They would joke about it. Saturday morning, we spotted a pair of glasses on Bob's desk. We took them across the hall to Joe. "Are these yours?"

"Yes."

If only we had the vision to see that he made an appointment with a doctor...

New Braunfels theatre wins in Texas Non-Profit Festival

DENTON — The Texas Biennial Festival of Texas Non-Profit Theatres concluded Sunday with an awards brunch and the announcement of winners.

Of the 11 plays entered, the Circle Arts Theatre of New Braunfels, with its production of Edward Albee's "Seascape," was selected to compete in the April regional festival in Oklahoma.

The regional winner will take its play to the national festival in Kalamazoo, Mich. in June. Once every four years, the national festival winner goes to Monaco for the International Invitational Festival.

This is a Monaco year, with that festival being held Aug. 27 through Sept. 5.

The special audience acclaim award, which is computed from the evaluation form that those attending filled out, went to the Country Playhouse of Houston for its production of "The Middle Ages," written by A.R. Gurney Jr. This group also was selected as the alternate choice to attend the regional festival if for some reason the New Braunfels group cannot attend.

Other awards were given in the area of graphics, set design and costumes. Midland Community Theatre won the graphics award. The other two went to the host theater, Denton Community Theatre.

"I have a certain philosophy about theater festivals," TNT president Art Cole, who is the former executive director of the Midland Community Theatre, said at the brunch. "I can afford to have a certain philosophy because I started this in 1965 (MCT performed in Monaco in 1965). The true importance of the event is that everybody wins by the learning experience."

And those there agreed.

Supreme Court to vote on spending limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether an "unauthorized" political committee may spend unlimited money to back a presidential candidate whose authorized campaign is financed from public funds.

A $1,000 spending limit imposed by Congress was struck down by a three-judge court in Washington last year after Common Cause, a citizen lobby group, and the Federal Election Commission challenged multi-million dollar campaigning by three "unauthorized" committees for the election of President Reagan.

The nation's highest court also: — Agreed to decide whether state and local laws can limit the amount of money people give to campaign committees in referendum elections. The justices said they will resolve that freedom-of-speech and freedom-of-association question by reviewing a California court ruling.

The state's high court split 4-3 in upholding a Berkeley ordinance that since 1974 has limited personal contributions to such committees to $250.

—Refused to sidetrack a $630 million libel suit filed against Penthouse magazine by owners of the resort Rancho La Costa, who were called

"mobsters" in a March 1975 article. The justices, citing lack of jurisdiction, left intact a state court ruling that forces Penthouse to defend itself at trial. Penthouse lawyers had asked the court to use the case to further clarify the libel-law definition of a "public figure." Such figures have to prove "actual malice" in libel cases: that is, that a statement was made with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard for its truth or falsity.

—Refused to second-guess an interpretation by the California Supreme Court of Proposition 13, the state's famed 1978 tax-cutting measure.

The justices turned down an appeal from the San Diego County Board of Supervisors, which contended the state court's interpretation defied voters' intentions. The issue concerned an alleged conflict between the proposition and a provision requiring a one-year delay on any tax rate change affecting property not "secured" by real-estate that could be seized in case of non-payment. The state court held that the delay clause should be applied.

—Left intact a Canton, Ohio, zoning law that prohibits mentally retarded persons from living in "family homes" in parts of the city zoned for single-family and two-family dwellings. The justices refused to review an Ohio Supreme Court ruling that the ordinance, as interpreted by Canton zoning officials, is valid.

The dispute centered on the 1977 purchase of a Canton house by the Siffrin Residential Association, a non-profit group that arranges normal living environments for the mentally retarded. Zoning officials said such homes should be limited to areas zoned for boarding homes and apartments houses.

—Cleared the way for the custody transfer of a child from its adoptive parents to its natural father, who was prevented by the child's mother from challenging the adoption earlier.

The case arose from a love affair that turned sour between two students at Santa Clara University in California, Robert Terrazas and Roneva Anderson. Miss Anderson, in releasing the baby for adoption over Terrazas' objections, had falsely claimed that the identity of the child's father was unknown.

Under the Presidential Election Campaign Fund Act, Reagan had chosen public financing for his campaign and was granted $29.4 million.

He and the campaign committees he authorized to represent him could legally spend no more than that amount and were barred from accepting any other contributions.

The law allowed unauthorized political committees to raise and spend up to $1,000 each to support a party's presidential ticket. The law provides penalties up to a $5,000 fine and a year in jail for officers of a committee which violates that limit.

The Federal Election Commission has reported that unauthorized committees spent at least $11 million campaigning for Reagan, on top of the $29.4 million his authorized campaign was permitted to spend.

The Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee, representing Reagan's presidential opponents, filed a complaint with the FEC against such "unauthorized" big-money campaigns.

The FEC and Common Cause filed lawsuits last July against the high spending planned by three pro-Reagan committees: Americans for Change, Americans for an Effective Presidency and Fund for a Conservative Majority. The latter admitted spending about $1.9 million on a "Citizens For Reagan" project.

Midwest farmers' crops depend on spring rains

By The Associated Press

The fortunes of Midwestern farmers whose crops are baking in hot, dry weather may depend heavily on whether the next 90 days or so bring the rain the fields desperately need.

"It's really critical if we don't get some moisture, I'm afraid," Eugene Glock, a soybean and corn farmer near Rising City, Neb., said of the coming fall harvest. "The rainfall patterns in Nebraska are such that you can't plant dry and make it."

"It's a little early to panic yet, but we have to have above-normal precipitation to replenish the subsoil supplies," said Ralph Neild, a University of Nebraska horticulture professor who says rainfall in Nebraska has been 34 to 72 percent below normal since Sept. 1.

The deficiency must be made up between now and May 15, particularly in non-irrigated areas, he said. Otherwise the spring and summer rains will cause erosion unless they arrive at timely intervals.

But the drought in the Midwest is affecting more than just farmers. It is being felt acutely in municipal water supplies, first in tiny communities and now in larger cities.

And in the Northeast, despite two days of rain that boosted water levels in some reservoirs to above the half-full mark, officials say the drought danger is far from over.

When the Marmaton River in Kansas ran dry in last summer's drought, the city of Fort Scott, Kan., turned to nearby Lake Fort Scott to provide water for the city's 14,000 water customers.

The lake now is less than two-thirds full, and even that could play out in a year and a half, said George O'Neal, Fort Scott utilities director.

"We've had problems with shortages before," O'Neal said. "But we've never bucked up against anything like this."

Mandatory or voluntary conservation measures are already in effect in some areas.

In Nebraska, Glock's records show no rainfall on his farm last September, an inch Oct. 15, one-fifth of an inch Oct. 23 and another one-fifth Oct. 27.

During the same period in 1979, he recorded about 7 inches of rainfall.

Before the flood-causing rains in the Northeast began early Thursday, reservoirs in New Jersey's Hackensack Water Co. system were just over 30 percent full, said George Haskew, senior vice president. When the rains ended Saturday, they were over the 50-percent mark. Hackensack Water serves 60 communities in Bergen and Hudson counties.

Dallas officer shot, in serious condition

DALLAS (AP) — A 24-year-old Dallas police officer remained hospitalized in serious condition today after undergoing surgery for a gunshot wound he received during a routine check of a parked car.

Doctors said John McCarthy suffered a "very serious wound" to the right side of the head.

A police spokesman said McCarthy was shot about 2:05 a.m. when he and his partner, officer Phillip Brown, stopped to check the car.

The spokesman said McCarthy and Brown warned the occupants of the vehicle, a 20-year-old man and a woman, that they were subject to arrest because they were unclothed in a public place. The couple reportedly had agreed to dress and leave the area when one or more shots were fired from the vehicle as McCarthy and Brown returned to their patrol car.

Woman's suicide kills children, too

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — A policeman's wife wrote a note for her husband and two kids that said, in part, "I wasn't the best Mom."

She then committed suicide by breathing automobile exhaust fumes and her children died in their sleep when those fumes leaked from the garage into the house, investigators said.

Jackie Marie Heerd, 33, was found lying on the kitchen floor of her home in this Dallas suburb. Her automobile, gasoline tank empty, was in the garage and the door from the garage into the kitchen was open — carbon monoxide filled the house, police said.

She apparently was returning to the house when she collapsed, leaving the door open to the fatal fumes.

"She may have changed her mind about committing suicide, she may have remembered one last thing to do. We don't know," said field investigator Tony Badger of the Dallas County Medical Examiner's office.

"We think it happened sometime in the morning because the car had run out of gas, the kids were still in bed and it looked as if they had all been dead about six hours," Badger said.

The children — Richard Lawrence Heerd, 5, and Sheryl Lynn Heerd, 10 — were found dead in their beds, clad in their pajamas, he added.

The grim discovery was made by Mrs. Heerd's estranged husband, Mesquite Police Sgt. Richard Heerd, between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday, police said.

Badger issued a preliminary ruling of accidental asphyxiation by carbon monoxide in the children's deaths.

"It didn't look like she meant to kill the kids," he said. "She left a note to her children and husband."

Sale of old silver dollars is criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government sale of nearly a million century-old silver dollars, replete with misplaced orders, changing prices and the approval of bad checks, "left a legacy of cynicism, disappointment and mistrust," a congressional study says.

Rep. Chairman Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., chairman of the House Banking subcommittee that investigated the sale, called the offering "one of the most horrifying examples of government mismanagement I have seen in my 16 years in Congress."

The General Service Administration made "critical errors" at nearly every turn, he said.

The subcommittee report, released Sunday, criticized GSA for failing to fill all the orders, changing announced prices, putting out misleading press releases and sending coins and refunds worth more than $1 million in exchange for bad checks.

At one point, the study said, 3,865 orders were lost for a month.

Some people purchased 35 coins, while others were denied one, according to the report.

Roy Markon, the GSA official who handled the sale, said problems resulted because of over-response "due to the way the price of silver jumped rapidly. We weren't expecting the kind of response we had to deal with."

Man guilty of child's abduction, death

ANOKA, Minn. (AP) — A 30-year-old electronics repairman who allegedly stalked a former teacher for years — then slashed her face while she sat on the witness stand — faces sentencing next month in the death of a boy who may have been a witness to her abduction.

A jury on Saturday rejected defense arguments that Ming Sen Shiu was mentally ill and found him guilty of kidnapping and second-degree murder in the abduction and slaying of 6-year-old Jason Wilkman.

In September, the Roseville man was convicted in U.S. District Court of kidnapping Mary Stauffer, 37, a Baptist missionary, and her daughter, Elizabeth, 9, of Arden Hills.

The prosecution contended Shiu abducted Wilkman and beat him to death because he was a possible witness to the May 16 abduction of the Stauffers. The Stauffers escaped from Shiu's home after being held captive 53 days.

Anoka County District Judge Robert Bakke set sentencing for March 2. Assistant County Attorney Michael Roth said he would recommend Shiu be sentenced to the maximum of 40 years in prison.

The same jury found Feb. 13 that Shiu committed the kidnapping and slaying, but his legal guilt hinged on whether he was mentally ill at the time of the crimes.

"I think justice was done. This is the second time a jury has found him sane," Roth told reporters.

He was sentenced to a life term in federal prison on the Stauffer charge and the trial judge recommended he not be considered for parole for at least 30 years. Shiu would serve his state sentence after release from federal prison.

Defense psychiatrists testified Shiu was a paranoid schizophrenic who suffered from hallucinations and was out of touch with reality. They said Shiu was under the delusion that Mrs. Stauffer — his ninth grade algebra teacher — loved him and they said he had been stalking her for years.

The legal test for mental illness in Minnesota is whether a defendant is able to understand or control his actions or is able to appreciate that his actions are either legally or morally wrong.

Mrs. Stauffer was repeatedly raped by Shiu, who made video tapes of the encounters. The tapes were used as evidence in both trials.

Defense attorney Ronald Meshbesh said he would appeal the verdict against Shiu, who was valedictorian of his high school class and had a successful electronic repairs business in Minneapolis.

"He's depressed," said Meshbesh of his client, who is also appealing the federal court verdict. "He's been depressed most of his life."

Testimony in the Wilkman case began Feb. 7.

The following day, when Mrs. Stauffer was on the witness stand, Shiu bolted from his chair at the defense table and grabbed her around the neck before deputies and bailiffs could intercede. She was slashed across the face with a small pocket knife the defendant carried; the wound required 62 stitches to close.

Shiu later told psychiatrists that another inmate gave him the knife in December and that he had been carrying the knife in his pants for about five weeks.

Bakke later denied a defense motion for a mistrial on grounds that the jury had been prejudiced against Shiu by witnessing the courtroom attack. Bakke said it would be wrong to give a criminal defendant an opportunity to abort a trial by his own conduct.

Shiu is expected to face charges for the attack.

He was placed in leg irons, handcuffed and strapped to a chair for the remainder of the trial.

The Newspaper BIBLE

IT'S TIME TO TAKE YOUR STAND!

"I have come to bring fire to the earth, and, oh, that My task were completed! There is a terrible baptism ahead of Me, and how I am pent up until it is accomplished!"

"Do you think I have come to give peace to the earth? No! Rather, strife and division!"

"From now on families will be split apart, three in favor of Me, and two against—or perhaps the other way around. A father will decide one way about Me; his son, the other; mother and daughter will disagree; and the decision of an honored mother-in-law will be spurned by her daughter-in-law."

Then Jesus turned to the crowd and said, "When you see clouds beginning to form in the west, you say, 'Here comes a shower.' And you are right. When the south wind blows you say, 'Today will be a scorcher.' And it is."

"Hypocrites! You interpret the sky well enough, but you refuse to notice the warnings all around you about the crisis ahead."

"Why do you refuse to see for yourselves what is right? If you meet your accuser on the way to court, try to settle the matter before it reaches the judge, lest he sentence you to jail; for if that happens you won't be free again until the last penny is paid in full."

Civil rights trial for sniper suspect opens

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The case against Joseph Paul Franklin, the avowed racist accused in the sniper slaying of two black joggers, has become the largest criminal investigation in Utah history.

Police say 25 detectives have interviewed thousands of potential witnesses and pursued more than 10,000 leads in preparation for the civil rights trial that begins today with jury selection.

Franklin, 30, who has denied involvement in any killings, is charged with violating the men's civil rights by killing them. He allegedly fired six rounds from a high-powered rifle at Ted Fields, 20, and David Martin, 18. The two were gunned down Aug. 20 as they left Liberty Park, where they had been jogging with two white teenage girls.

Franklin said after the killings that the men deserved to die for "racism."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Stephen W. Snarr and Richard Roberts, a Justice Department civil rights specialist from Washington, D.C., will prosecute the case. Snarr said they expect to call 64 witnesses and introduce more than 75 pieces of evidence.

Defense attorney Robert Van Sciver said he would call a dozen witnesses, including Franklin, for a defense "based on the fact that he was not the man."

Franklin once predicted he will be acquitted because, "I believe the Lord is on my side."

Police in Cincinnati, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Oklahoma City once wanted Franklin for questioning in sniper attacks on blacks in their cities, including the shooting last May of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan, who survived the attack.

In jailhouse interviews, Franklin denied involvement in any race killings, but said he wouldn't hold it against whomever killed Fields and Martin.

"Any Klansman would say a white girl with a nigger ought to be shot," Franklin said.

The FBI said investigators questioned Franklin about the Jordan shooting, but declined to comment about the results.

He also has been charged by the state with first-degree murder in the slayings.

The Justice Department insisted on trying the Mobile, Ala., man on the federal charges first. State officials have worried that if Franklin were convicted on the federal charges, he could use the double jeopardy protection of the U.S. Constitution to avoid the murder charges. The issue has not been resolved.

U.S. prosecutors filed motions in December seeking a psychiatric examination of Franklin, but dropped the request when the defense said sanity would not be an issue.

Franklin was arrested last September in Florence, Ky., on a stolen car report. While he was being questioned at police headquarters, he jumped through a window and escaped. He later told reporters, "The Lord didn't think my time had come to get caught."

After a nationwide manhunt that lasted nearly two months, Franklin was arrested Oct. 29 in front of a Lakeland, Fla., blood bank.

Employees of the blood bank, alerted in advance by investigators who believed Franklin earned money by selling blood, recognized him from photographs and called police.

Lefever says junta deserves U.S. military backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's choice to head the State Department's human rights office says El Salvador's military-civilian junta deserves U.S. military backing even though it is not "angelic."

Ernest W. Lefever, named assistant secretary of state for human rights last week, also criticized socially active priests and nuns in Latin America who use religion "as a garb for cloaking political activity."

In a recent interview, Lefever cited El Salvador's embattled government as an example of the new Reagan administration approach of supporting some "authoritarian" governments to prevent takeovers by "totalitarian" forces.

"Often we have to choose the lesser of two evils," Lefever said. "The government in El Salvador deserves support in terms of military aid. That doesn't mean the government in El Salvador is angelic. I don't know any government that is."

Lefever argued that human rights is a "double calculus" that must take into account the prospects for a "totalitarian" victory in a country which may currently be governed by an "authoritarian" regime.

He said authoritarian governments are preferable on human rights grounds because they permit many freedoms, such as freedom of religion and freedom of the press, while totalitarian governments which control communist countries permit none.

However, asked if actual freedom of religion can exist in countries where socially active priests and nuns are threatened with violence from right-wing and government security forces, Lefever made a distinction between freedom of religious thought and social activism.

"There is a difference between religious leaders being involved in theological thought and nuns and clergymen engaging in activities inimical to the interests of the government," he said. "It's a question where religion is used as a garb for cloaking political activity. ... Some religious groups have overstepped their bounds."

One example, he said, is "nuns hiding machine-guns for the insurgents."

Lefever's remarks come amid growing social activism on the part of the Roman Catholic Church in Latin America, where many priests and nuns have claimed that working towards "social justice" is a legitimate part of their ministry.

That trend has been met in some countries with increased violence being directed against church officials by right-wing forces, often alleged to be government-directed.

In El Salvador, Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an outspoken advocate of social and economic reform to aid the poor, was gunned down last March. In December, four American churchwomen involved with social programs for El Salvador's poor were kidnapped and murdered.

Lefever, however, said his comments were not specifically directed at church activism in strife-torn El Salvador, where Catholic leaders have been among the leading critics of the U.S.-backed military-civilian junta.

In general, Lefever said church groups should "remain above the battle," except for condemnation of "gross evils" like terrorism or the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Lefever also said he objects to published reports that characterize him as an "ultraconservative" or a foe of human rights.

"As a human being, I'm bothered by any violation of human rights anywhere or anytime," he said. "The new administration is not downgrading human rights but upgrading it. ... We're broadening the concept of human rights."

Noting his background as a theologian, Lefever added, "Choosing the lesser of two evils is the essence of morality. ... Perfection is never a question."

He accused the Carter administration of "certain simplicisms" in its human rights approach and said "both public scoldings and punitive measures against allies tend to be counterproductive."

He urged instead a "quiet diplomacy" to encourage friendly governments to improve their human rights records, reserving public condemnation for unfriendly governments.

No serious injuries reported when bus dangles from cliff

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (AP) — While the front of their bus hung precariously over a 100-foot cliff, a group of police officers returning from a weekend trip with their families kicked out back windows and escaped without major injury, officials say.

Fourteen people, including bus driver Aloysius J. Capper III, 25, of Wildwood, N.J., were treated for bruises after the accident Sunday, which occurred when the bus crashed through a retaining wall on a hairpin turn along the Minnewaska Trail, police said.

According to passengers, who returning from the Catskills, the driver was attempting to steer through cars parked along the narrow, severe curve by mountain climbers and parked by sightseers who stopped to take advantage of the panoramic view.

No cause for the accident was determined and no charges were filed.

"I guess another foot and they would have lost the whole load," a state trooper said.

Several of the officers aboard kicked out the back windows, which were designed as emergency exits, while others prevented frightened passengers from rushing to the front of the bus, state police said.

All 39 passengers got out through the back, although some pushing and shoving occurred and some passengers climbed over others, some passengers said.

"The bus was hanging halfway over the cliff and halfway back. I thought I was looking at a movie, and I'll never forget it," said Delores Johnson of Wildwood, N.J.

Child's body found

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Police dug up the remains of a 2-year-old child after the mother said she buried the boy herself because she couldn't afford a proper burial, authorities say.

The woman, identified in the coroner's report as 22-year-old Rose Adame, was arrested in Houston last week on an unrelated charge, and during the course of the investigation, police there learned of the incident.

Mrs. Adame returned to San Jose on Friday and led police to a remote area on IBM property, where they dug up the body of Rudy Adame, according to a police news release.

She told authorities, according to the coroner's report, that the child became ill last November, that she had no money to seek medical treatment and that she buried him herself when he died Nov. 30 in a San Jose motel room where she was staying.

Initial autopsy results released Sunday failed to reveal the cause of death. No charges were filed.

Homicide Lt. Robert Moir said Mrs. Adame had tears in her eyes when the child was exhumed.

"She buried the child two days before his second birthday," he said.

He said he assured her "there will be a decent burial for her child. ... She was relieved that the child will receive a decent burial. It was like a ton of bricks being lifted off her shoulders."

Chaves gains seven wildcat sites

Seven wildcat operations have been announced for Chaves County, N.M.

Great Western Drilling Co. of Midland will drill two of the projects as 5,200-foot operations.

No. 1 Quail-Federal is 3/4 mile south of an undesignated Abo gas area and 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 3-6s-25e. Ground elevation is 3,932 feet.

Great Western No. 2 Quail-Federal will be dug 1 1/2 miles southwest of an undesignated Abo gas area and 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 23-6s-25e. Ground elevation is 3,822 feet.

The Abo produces at approximately 3,750 feet.

Plains Radio Broadcasting Co. of Amarillo will drill No. 1 Campbell-State as a 6,000-foot wildcat in Chaves County, 15 miles west of Boaz.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 7-9s-27e and seven miles southwest of an undesignated Wolfcamp and Abo gas field.

Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia staked No. 1 Newman-TP as a 5,150-foot wildcat in Chaves County, 17 miles north of Dexter.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 21-10s-26e and 1 1/4 miles northwest of the Brown (Queen) field.

Mesa Petroleum Corp. of Midland announced locations for two 4,400-foot wildcats in Chaves County, 20 miles northeast of Elkins.

The projects are in an undesignated Abo gas area. No. 1 Davis is 1 1/2 miles east of production and 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 12-7s-25e.

Mesa No. 2 Davis will be drilled 1 1/2 miles east and slightly south of production and 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 1-7s-25e.

Mesa Petroleum also announced location for a 4,400-foot wildcat 1 1/2 miles northeast of an undesignated Abo gas area.

It is No. 1 Comer, 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 18-5s-25e.

CHAVES FIELD TESTS

Western Reserves Oil Co., Midland staked two projects in an undesignated six-well Abo area of Chaves County, 28 miles northwest of Boaz. Each will be drilled to 5,400 feet.

No. 1-24 Bevnor-Federal is to be drilled 5/8 mile north of production and 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 24-5s-24e.

The operator spotted No. 12-24 Bevnor is to be drilled 5/8 mile north of production and 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 24-5s-24e.

CHAVES DISCOVERY

Maralo, Inc., of Midland No. 4 Chavelea-Carson has been completed as a Mississippi gas discovery in Chaves County, 1 1/2 miles south of the lone well in the Carson (Morrow gas) field.

The operator reported a daily potential of 1,035,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 30/64-inch choke and perforations from 10,548 to 10,566 feet.

Total depth is 10,600 feet, and 5 1/2-inch casing is set on bottom.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 15-9s-31e.

CHAVES FIELD WELL

Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia No. 3 Powers-Federal "OL" has been completed in an undesignated Abo area of Chaves County, 20 miles northwest of Elkins.

The well finished for a daily potential of 3,682,000 cubic feet of gas, through a 1/2-inch choke and perforations from 3,730 to 3,874 feet after a 60,000-gallon fracture treatment.

Scheduled as a wildcat, it drilled to 4,300 feet in the Wolfcamp and 5 1/2-inch casing was set on bottom. The plugged back depth is 4,297 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 14-6s-25e.

EDDY LOCATION

Marathon Oil Co. announced location for a southeast offset to its No. 1-31 Martinez-State, undesignated Bone Spring oil discovery in Eddy County, 16 miles southwest of Loco Hills.

Scheduled to 12,000 feet, it will be drilled as No. 2-31 Martinez-Federal, 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 31-19s-29e.

Solar energy supporters encountering storm clouds

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Supporters of solar energy are running into storm clouds in Washington, but the use of the sun to heat water and homes continues to spread.

The Energy Information Administration, which is part of the Department of Energy, said recently that 28 percent more square feet of solar collection devices were produced in the first six months of 1980 than in the same period a year earlier. The agency said the solar manufacturing industry is growing "vigorously."

The Solar Lobby, a non-profit group formed to promote the use of renewable resources for energy, says that more than 300,000 active solar units have been installed in the United States. The organization also says the country could get as much as one-fourth of its energy from the sun by the year 2000.

The Reagan administration's budget plans, however, call for sharp cuts in government spending on development of solar energy. Backers of solar energy say the proposals could cripple the industry.

There are two ways to use solar energy — actively and passively. Passive systems make use of the architecture and design of a building itself. Extra-thick masonry walls, for example, or windows that face south can be used to gain energy from the sun.

Active systems start with a collector — an insulated, weather-tight box with a glass top and a dark bottom to absorb the heat from the sun's rays. One or more collectors can be placed on the roof, against the walls of a building or even on a separate support frame. The collectors heat air or liquid which is moved to storage areas by fans or pumps. The heat is kept in the storage areas until it is needed.

During the night, or on cloudy days, heat is circulated from the storage areas throughout the house. An auxiliary heater, like a conventional furnace or a wood-burning stove, is used to provide heat and hot water during long cloudy spells. According to the Solar Lobby, an active solar system can provide 50 percent to 75 percent of a home's heating needs.

The cost of solar equipment has declined in recent years, while the price of conventional fuels has risen. Many families may find the sun's energy is cheaper than they think, and a hot water system is a relatively simple way to start using solar power.

The Department of Energy says that the cost of a solar hot water system, including installation, is approximately $2,000 to $3,000. You can get a federal tax credit of 40 percent of the first $10,000 you spend on an active solar system. (Passive systems do not now qualify for tax credits.) If you spend $3,000 on a solar hot water system, you could subtract $1,200 from your federal income tax bill. The actual cost of the system would be $1,800.

You have to weigh the cost against what you save in fuel bills. You can get a rough idea of the savings by calculating how much you now spend on hot water. (About one-fourth of the average family's heating bill goes to provide hot water.) The Solar Lobby says that a well-designed and installed solar hot water system can save up to $250 a year in fuel bills, depending on whether you heat with oil, gas or electricity. At that rate, it would take a little over seven years for your savings to equal your $1,800 cost.

Buying solar equipment can be tricky. If you have trouble finding a dealer, or if you have doubts about the dealer you are considering, check with the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center. The toll-free telephone number is: 800-523-2929.

The Solar Lobby offers a "Consumer Guide" to using the sun's energy. It is available from the organization at 1001 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Suite 510, Washington, D.C., 20036. There is a $1 charge for postage and handling.

Texas operators report 129 oil, gas discoveries

AUSTIN—Texas operators reported 65 gas and 64 oil discoveries in January 1981, the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division announced today.

In the year-earlier month, 138 gas and 43 oil discoveries were filed with the state's regulatory agency.

Gas discoveries in the first month of the year include 23 in Southeast Texas, 12 in deep South Texas, 10 in the Refugio area, five in the San Angelo area, three each in East Texas, West Central Texas, the Panhandle and the Midland area. Two in North Texas and one in the San Antonio area.

Oil discoveries include 11 in West Central Texas, 10 in the San Angelo area, nine in deep South Texas, seven in the San Antonio area, six each in Southeast Texas and the Lubbock area, five in the Refugio area, four in North Texas, three in East Texas, two in the Midland area and one in the Panhandle.

In January, operators reported 433 exploratory and field tests wound up as dry holes.

New applications for permits to drill oil and gas test totaled 3,028 in January, compared with 2,565 in the same period of 1980.

Applications to drill, deepen, plug back and for service wells in January amounted to 3,271 against 2,830 a year earlier.

Operators filed 741 amended applications to drill. A year earlier they submitted 406 amended requests.

Are we ready for new auto?

By PATRICK BOYLE
The Los Angeles Times

Is America ready to be shoehorned into a two-passenger commuter car?

Diane Nenne is. The 18-year-old college student already drives a Honda Civic, one of the smallest cars available in the U.S. market. And after viewing a group of even smaller cars recently as part of a marketing study, she said she would be willing to move to what some see as the next generation of minicars.

"I personally like small cars," she said. "I don't like sitting in something that looks like a boat."

Market researchers say Miss Nenne is part of a still "mini"-minority of car buyers whose needs and tastes run to two-passenger cars with very little room for kids, luggage and the dog. Most Americans, even those buying small Japanese and American cars, have traditionally needed more space than is available in a tiny two-passenger commuter car.

However, rising gasoline prices might be changing that habit, creating a new niche in the U.S. car market that could widen into a major segment. And because the world's smallest cars are now built by the Japanese and European auto makers, analysts worry that should an American market develop more quickly than expected for such cars the U.S. auto industry could fall even further behind its foreign competitors.

The smallest American-made cars — of Chevrolet Chevette, Ford Escort, and Chrysler Corp.'s Omni-Horizon — are all about a foot longer than the Volkswagen Rabbit, two feet longer than the Honda Civic and three feet longer than some of the smallest cars made in Japan.

General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. both will reportedly introduce their own new minicars in 1984, but the vehicles will be about the same size as models currently sold in the United States by Toyota and Honda — and will be larger than the two-passenger commuter cars these and other Japanese companies already build and sell in Japan.

American auto executives have traditionally scoffed at suggestions that a large U.S. market might develop for cars with room for only two passengers and with engines so small they have barely enough horsepower to get the car up to freeway speed.

However, recent evidence indicates that some car buyers are indeed interested primarily in fuel-stingy transportation — commuter cars built elsewhere routinely deliver well over 40 miles per gallon in city traffic — and care little for the creature comforts Detroit has grown fat selling for so long. Despite the continuing slump in auto sales generally, the smallest cars available here — the Honda Civic and Toyota Tercel — have continued to sell well.

Field work reported in Basin areas

Parker & Parsley, Inc., of Midland spotted location for a south offset to one of the four wells in the Azalea (Grayburg) field of Midland County, seven miles southeast of Midland.

Scheduled as No. 1 Golladay "G," the project will be drilled to 4,300 feet, 1,533 feet from south and 3,051 feet from west lines of section 55, block 37, T-2-S, J. L. Veazey survey.

LOVING PROJECTS

Durham, Inc., will drill its No. 1-14-19 University "A" as a south offset to one of the six wells in the Meridian (Delaware) field of Loving County, 10 miles east of Mentone.

The 5,200-foot project is 2,313 feet from south and 510 feet from east lines of section 14, block 19, University Lands survey.

Durham, Inc., also will drill No. 2-14-19 University in the Meridian (Delaware) area. It is one location north of production and 10 miles east of Mentone.

The drillsite for the 5,200-foot test is 1,047 feet from north and 510 feet from east lines of section 14, 19s, University Lands survey.

STERLING AREA

Texaco Inc. announced location for an 8,400-foot Pennsylvania project 7/8 mile southeast of production in the Conger (Pennsylvania oil and gas) field of Sterling County, 16 miles southwest of Sterling City.

It is No. 3 V. E. Brownfield, 2,179 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 48, block 32, T-5-S, T&P survey.

MITCHELL RE-ENTRY

Texas International Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma City will re-enter a former Ellenburger well in the Dixon field of Mitchell County and attempt to complete it from the Odum.

The project, No. 11 Edwin Parks, is 19 miles south of Colorado City and 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey.

CROCKETT COUNTY

Joe McGuire of Midland No. 1 Joe F. Bean "C" is to be drilled as a 1 1/2-mile southwest outcrop to the Pikes Peak Draw (Canyon gas) field of Crockett County, 14 miles northwest of Ozona.

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 48, block UV, GC&SF survey. Contract depth is 8,000 feet, and ground elevation is 2,490 feet.

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland announced location for No. 4-62 Half in the two-well Hafala (Queen oil) pool of Crockett County, six miles southeast of Iraan.

It is one location southwest of production and 1,507 feet from north and 6,600 feet from east lines of section 62, block 1, I&GN survey. Contract depth is 1,700 feet.

IRION LOCATIONS

MEG Petroleum Corp. of San Angelo announced locations for three projects in Irion County.

No. 1-40-8 University-Gult is to be drilled one location southwest of one of the eight wells in the Irion 163 (Ellenburger) field 2.3 miles southeast of Barnhart.

It is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 8, block 40, University Lands survey. The contract depth is 9,000 feet.

MEG No. 2 Sugg-Farmer is to be dug one location west of a 2 1/4-mile northeast extension to the Rock Pen (Canyon oil) pool of Irion County, 3.3 miles northwest of Mertzon.

The 8,500-foot project, which will drill into the Ellenburger, is 2,200 feet from south and 2,120 feet from east lines of section 19, block 1, H&TC survey.

MEG also staked No. 1 Rock Pen North 1/2 mile northeast of the 2 1/4-mile extension. Scheduled to 7,400 feet, it is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 20, block 1, H&TC survey.

PECOS RE-ENTRY

J. V. Atkinson of Midland announced plans to re-enter the former Adobe Oil & Gas Co. No. 1 McLaughlin, a 5,070-foot wildcat failure in Pecos County and attempt to complete it as the third oil well in the Wodlaw (Queen oil and gas) field.

The dry hole was abandoned in January 1976.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 122, block 11, H&GN survey and eight miles southwest of Girvin.

It will be operated by Atkinson as No. 1 McLaughlin.

GAINES LOCATION

Exxon Corp. No. 8 Sam Jenkins has been staked as a south offset to one of the six wells in the Jenkins, North (Canyon) field of Gaines County, 11 miles southwest of Seminole.

Drillsite is 2,300 feet from north and 4,400 feet from west lines of section 11, block AZ, psl survey. Contract depth is 9,100 feet.

HOCKLEY PROJECT

Diamond Shamrock Corp. of Amarillo No. 1-20 Mary Louella Campbell is a new project in the four-well Linker (Clear Fork) field of Hockley County, three miles south of Levelland.

Staked as a southeast offset to production, it is 750 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 20, block 31, Baylor County School Land survey.

Contract depth is 7,800 feet.

Subcommittee calls Bloom to explain cash give-a-way

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former Energy Department official who gave $4 million in federal money to charitable organizations on the next-to-last day of the Carter administration was called before a congressional subcommittee today to explain his actions.

Paul Bloom, former DOE special counsel, was scheduled as the star witness before the House Government Operations subcommittee on environment, energy and natural resources.

The panel scheduled the hearing to take testimony on Energy Department enforcement of oil company pricing violations and the disbursement of money obtained in settlements of court actions against the companies.

Bloom was expected to explain his Jan. 19 decision to give the $4 million in settlement money to charitable organizations so they could disburse it to poor people having trouble paying their heating bills.

Department spokesman Phil Kelf said Energy Secretary James Edwards "is not objecting to getting the money to low-income people. He just wants it back so that a decision on how to disburse it will be made in the right way."

For the past three years, Bloom headed the Energy Department's investigation of the country's 35 biggest oil companies, resulting in allegations that the companies had committed $1 billion in pricing violations.

The $4 million was left over from a $280 million settlement Bloom reached last year with the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). The settlement stipulated that the company, generally known as Amoco, would return $29 million to its biggest industrial customers of heating oil. However, Amoco informed Bloom last month that it had been unable to return $4 million of the total.

On his last full day in office, Bloom directed that $1 million each be given to the National Council of Churches, the National Council of Catholic Charities, the Council of Jewish Federations and the Salvation Army.

The agreements with the four charities specified that they would use the money to help poor people pay their heating bills, with none of the money used for administrative costs.

Reagan administration officials said they didn't discover the action until Feb. 9 and asked the charities to return the money. But the charities said they already had distributed much of the money.

The Salvation Army said it had spent almost all of its allocation. Col. Ernest Miller said the organization had been told by the Carter administration "to get it out fast so that it could be used by poor people before the winter heating season ended, and we complied."

The Council of Churches and Catholic Charities said only about one-third of their money had been distributed to local affiliates, and the Jewish Federation said only a small amount of its share had been disbursed.

All four charities have stopped further distribution of the money while their lawyers examine the Energy Department claim. But they have urged the Reagan administration to drop the matter and let the money be used as Bloom intended.

"If we have to return his money, the people who are really going to be hurt are the poor people who are spending 40 to 50 percent of their income on heating bills, who have to make a decision between heating and eating," said Chris Cowap of the Council of Churches.

Iran contacted firefighters, newspaper says

HOUSTON (AP) — The Iranian government asked oil well firefighter Red Adair and his chief competitor to help rebuild battle-scarred oil fields while the U.S. hostages were being held last fall, according to the Dallas Morning News.

Iran sent Telex messages to Adair and to Boots and Coots, another Houston-based well-firefighting team, asking for help with oil fields damaged by Iraq, the newspaper said Sunday.

The two companies passed the messages to Washington and the Carter administration "told us to sit back and see which way the wind blows," Adair told the newspaper.

President Carter had banned shipments of oilfield equipment and technology to Iran, hoping the sanctions would speed release of the hostages seized at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Adair's company had finished a firefighting job in Iranian oilfields shortly before the hostage seizure and embassy takeover in November 1979.

After the hostages were taken, Carter imposed an embargo on trade with Iran or travel to Iran. In response to the messages from the National Iranian Oil Co. in Tehran, the administration told the Iranians they could deal with the firefighters after the hostages were freed, the News said.

The newspaper quoted oil industry sources in London as saying the Iranian oil company is eager to repair oilfield equipment damaged in the war, but the Reagan administration has yet to say whether high-level help should be given Iran. "There's no easy answer, and I don't know what it will be once they evaluate the situation," said Pat Campbell, firefighter and administrative coordinator for Boots and Coots. "But I know that we and Red have never turned anyone down out of hand."

Estimates of damage to Iran's oil fields vary widely; but Adair said: "Everything over there is pretty much torn up. That's worse than starting from scratch."

He predicted cleanup would "run into the billions and billions" of dollars.

The two oil well firefighting companies manage to satisfy virtually all of the need worldwide for wild well control, averaging 65 jobs a year apiece.

The Iranian job "would be the biggest job we ever took on," Campbell said. "But I don't know how we could obligate ourselves on such a job for so long."

Group proposes handgun ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal advisory committee is recommending a ban on the manufacture and sale of handguns for other than official purposes as a means of deterring juvenile delinquency.

"When a handgun is easily available, a juvenile is more likely to have access to it and consequently more likely to commit a violent crime," said the National Committee for Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Protection.

The committee's 522-page report also recommends that law enforcement agencies increase the number of patrolmen walking beats in neighborhoods with high rates of juvenile delinquency.

"The presence of an officer familiar with the juveniles and aware of the problems of the neighborhood creates an atmosphere where positive interaction between juveniles and law enforcement personnel can occur," the report said.

The committee's report was completed last July and released Sunday by the Justice Department's Office of Juvenile and Delinquency Prevention, which coordinated the five-year study.

The report notes, however, that its recommendations do not necessarily represent official policies of the Justice Department.

President Reagan has opposed restrictions on handguns.

The 21-member panel, appointed during the Ford and Carter administrations, proposed 286 standards covering virtually every aspect of the juvenile justice system. Its work was authorized under the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974.

Implementation of the standards is voluntary. Other suggested standards cover arrest of juveniles, diet for delinquents in homes, security for and destruction of law enforcement records about juveniles and other areas.

The committee also proposed: —The establishment of an executive office of youth advocate in every state with the power to investigate and report on malfeasance in the juvenile justice system.

—The abolition of all forms of plea-bargaining in cases involving juveniles.

—The establishment at the state and local levels of coeducational training schools for delinquent juveniles, with enrollment limited to 100 juveniles each.

—The establishment of local family courts with jurisdiction over nearly all legal matters affecting children.

Ecuador, Peru squabble threatens to escalate

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The border squabble between Ecuador and Peru threatened to mushroom into war as the two nations sealed their common border with troops and tanks and Peru said it might invade its neighbor's territory to stop what it claims are Ecuadorian thrusts into its territory.

Tanks and soldiers of both countries spilled onto the Pan American Highway Sunday, closing a part of the roadway that runs along the Andes mountain spine of South America's Pacific Coast.

Nearly a week of border skirmishing between the two countries was quelled by a cease-fire on Feb. 2, but the truce began unraveling last week.

Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry said that since Friday Peruvian troops had seized three Ecuadorian border posts he said were set up on Peruvian territory near Peru's most productive oil fields.

Calling the alleged presence of Ecuadorian troops on Peruvian territory an "act of war," the president's office said the military has been ordered to pursue Ecuadorian troops into Ecuador if necessary.

Ecuador accused Peru of mounting air attacks on its border posts Friday and Saturday, but did not report any casualties.

Two Peruvian and eight Ecudorian soldiers have been killed since the border skirmishes began on Jan. 28, according to official reports. The latest reported victim was the co-pilot of a Peruvian helicopter shot down Friday morning. Peru said 13 soldiers were injured in the crash.

In the Ecuadorian capital of Quito, the government called on the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile — guarantors of a 1942 border treaty between Peru and Ecuador — to stop Peru from carrying out its invasion threat.

Ambassadors of the four countries met Saturday night in Brasilia, Brazil, and a diplomatic source said Sunday that they were concerned about the mounting complaints of cease-fire violations from both sides.

The four nations have assigned their military attaches in Lima and Quito to act as cease-fire observers, but a source in Lima said the observation team in that country had not left the capital in four days.

A Peruvian source said the U.S. helicopter that was to transport the observers to the contested border district, a remote region in the jungle-clad Cordillera mountains, had crashed on Tuesday. The source said a second helicopter that was to have ferried observers from Quito has been diverted to the search for the first craft and its three American crewmen. Both ships came from the U.S. Southern Command in Panama.

U.S. to allow Poland to defer repayment of $80 million debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, while studying a comprehensive plan of financial assistance to Poland, will allow the financially troubled country to defer repayment of more than $80 million in debts to the United States, it was reported today.

The Reagan administration's decision was expected to be announced at a Paris meeting of representatives of Poland's Western creditors, The Washington Post reported.

The newspaper, quoting State Department sources, said the debt deferral was a first step in aiding the Polish government, which has been beset by labor strife and economic ills.

The Post said the deferred debt involves funds of the Commodity

Credit Corp., which is part of the Agriculture Department.

A State Department spokeswoman declined comment on the newspaper report.

The Soviet Union last week gave Poland a four-year deferral on the repayment of its debt.

The Post said the Western nations attending the Paris meeting, which begins today, also are expected to make financial pledges to Poland.

Poland owes about $23 billion to Western creditors, mostly European banks and nations. The U.S. share of that debt is estimated at $2.5 billion, mostly in government loans.

Under the terms of its borrowing, Poland is required to pay more than $10 billion annually in principal and interest, according to the Post.

JOHNSTON-MACCO Schlumberger

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

Johnston-Macco, an oil field service and manufacturing division of Schlumberger Limited, is currently looking for a qualified individual to fill the recently established position of Administrative Assistant to our Central Region Manager.

The responsibilities of the position include:

- Acting as the primary financial and administrative liaison between the Central Region field organization and our Houston, Texas headquarters.
- Preparation and analysis of monthly financial and operational reports pertaining to profit center and product line performance.
- Development and implementation of improved reporting procedures in connection with a decentralization of accounting, administrative and data processing functions from headquarters to the region office.
- Budget preparation and control.

The successful candidate should have an accounting degree and 1 to 3 years experience in either an accounting or financial capacity. In addition, the individual should be a self-starter that can work effectively with top management. Good analytical and communicative skills and a working knowledge of EDP are also required.

The position offers a competitive starting salary and benefits package and represents an excellent career opportunity in a rapidly growing, progressive company.
