Reagan likely struck by ricocheting shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, his recovery called "really amazing" from a wound that doctors say might have killed him, probably was struck by a ricocheting bullet rather than a direct shot, sources say.

Now in his third day of convalescence, the president "is in extremely good spirits after experiencing the best night's sleep since he has been in the hospital," his physician said this morning.

Dr. Daniel Ruge said the president slept from 9 p.m. until 6 a.m. EST and "he looks fine."

"He is awake, alert and talking with hospital personnel," Ruge said in a statement relayed by assistant White House press secretary David Prosperi. "His vital signs are normal, although he is still complaining of soreness in his left side, which is quite normal."

White House counselor Edwin Meese III said Reagan may be released from George Washington University Hospital early next week. And deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the president is still planning to travel to San Diego, Calif., April 27-28 to meet with Mexican President Jose Lopez-Portillo.

Reagan's accused assailant, John

W. Hinckley Jr., meanwhile, was appearing today before a U.S. magistrate who will hear the results of psychiatric tests and determine whether the case should be sent to a grand jury.

In the most optimistic medical report to date on White House press secretary James S. Brady, doctors said he was breathing without assistance, moved both sides of his body and uttered his first words since slipping into fatal shock.

fering a gunshot wound through the brain in Monday's assassination attempt. He remained in critical condition, however.

Contradicting earlier declarations that Reagan's life was never in danger, qualified medical sources said Wednesday that the 70-year-old president lost almost half his blood after he was shot and doctors said they "thought they might lose him" in the first, anxious moments at the hospital.

The sources, who insisted on anonymity, said doctors in the emergency room could not find the cause of apparent internal hemorrhaging and feared the president was in danger of White House officials said they could neither confirm nor deny the report.

On Tuesday, Dr. Dennis O'Leary, dean of clinical affairs at the hospital, said Reagan "was in no time in any serious danger. He was alert and awake with stable, vital signs up until the time he underwent anesthesia."

Dr. Solomon Edelstein, the hospital's director of emergency services who arrived several minutes after the president, confirmed that Reagan's blood pressure was low but discounted suggestions his life was in extreme danger.

Once doctors discovered the small wound under his left armpit, they inserted a drainage tube and drew out substantial quantities of blood from his chest, the sources said. Then, they began giving the president five pints of blood by transfusion and he was soon out of danger, the sources added.

Authoritative sources also revealed that investigators now believe the president was wounded by a .22-caliber bullet that careened off the door of his limousine rather than by a direct shot. Two bullets hit the car — one of them smashing into the right rear window and the other hitting the rear door.

Texans stumping for budget cuts

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Replete with the blessings of Vice President George H.W. Bush, the Republican Party of Texas today kicked off a two-day blitz to gather support for President Reagan's economic program and to ward off expected opposition from various interest groups.

Ernest Angelo Jr., a member of the National Republican Party and deputy campaign manager for Reagan's presidential campaign, is leading the economic program campaign and made the first announcement during a news conference this morning in his office.

The news blitz also includes numerous state Republicans and will hit 20 cities. Involved with Angelo in today's announcement were Robert Monaghan, a regional coordinator with Reagan's campaign; Kenn George, state finance chairman; and Bill Shaner, Midland County Republican chairman.

The GOP is calling upon "all concerned citizens — Republicans, Democrats and Independents — to join us now in helping the President to ensure the economic future of our country," said Angelo.

And the best method to do this is by writing, calling or wiring their congressmen, including Sens. John Tower and Lloyd Bentsen, both of Texas, and urging support for Reagan's program, he added.

HE EXPLAINED Texas is the first state to undertake such a support move, and other states may pick up on it. It was not, he stressed, planned after the Monday assassination at-

Few political contributions noted

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

In comparison to the 1980 City Council contests, this year's competition could be dubbed "The Year of the Cheapskate," with the exception of one candidate.

That lone exception to the rule is Jesse Hatfield whose latest campaign contribution report listed 49 contributors and the largest receipts of any city candidate — $5,365.

But this is just tiddlywinks compared to the political game of last year when the mayor's race pitted Martin Allday against G. Thane Akins and produced the biggest income and outlay of any mayor's race in the history of Midland. Last year at this time, Allday reported $25,000 in contributions and $19,000 in expenditures. Akins had received $9,494 and had spent $6,186.

The contributions also were smaller this year with the majority running at $100 or less. Last year saw amounts of $500 and even one of $1,250 going to the candidates.

81 Election

Reports of contributions and expenditures were required by law to be in the City Secretary's office by March 28, the seventh day before the election. However, since that fell on a Saturday the deadline was extended to Monday. Elections for the City Council, Midland Independent School District board, Midland County Hospital District directors and a $6.6 million school bond issue are slated Saturday.

James McCullough, city secretary, said there is no limit on the amount an individual can donate to a local political race. Nor are businesses prohibited from contributing. The only exception is a corporation, he said.

However, he noted that "you have to be careful in getting money from doctors because they're usually incorporated. If their contribution is a check written on a corporate account, it's a violation."

McCullough follows the Texas Municipal Election Law book.

Hatfield, owner of No. 1 Sports Place, is seeking election to Place 1, a chair given up by incumbent Doris Howbert. His opponent is Giffert Alstrin, president of Western State Bank.

Alstrin listed a $3,000 contribution from himself and $100 from Dr. Martha Madsen. He has spent $1,530.

Hatfield reported contributions totaling $5,365 and expenditures of $5, 223.21. Those handing over $100 or more included:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davis Sr., $100; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Warren, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Gaddy, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ferguson, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Davis Jr., $100; Mr. and Mrs. F. Ferrell Davis, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russell, $200; Mr. and Mrs. F.H. Mills Jr., $100; Mr. and Mrs. George Staley, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Boley Embrey, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Laughlin, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Way, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Wood, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Martin, $100.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Dawson, $150; Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Cappadonna, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Allday, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Durham, $100; Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Todd Jr., $100; Mr. and Mrs. Don

Series to explore alien situation

On Jan. 15, 1981, the United States Border Patrol again engaged in on-site searches and arrests of illegal Mexican nationals, arousing the ire of many persons throughout the Permian Basin.

While over the years the tendency has been to view the illegal alien situation in terms of sheer statistics — how many are here, how many are caught per month, how much revenue is lost through welfare programs and displaced jobs — the real story is on an inner level, involving the dreams and hopes of employers, Mexican-American citizens, Border Patrolmen, and illegal aliens themselves.

In a six-part series beginning Sunday in The Reporter-Telegram, staff writer Patrick Dearen, author of a novel on aliens (THE ILLEGAL MAN, 1981) seeks to reduce the subject to a personal level through character profiles of many of those directly involved. He explores the dismay of employers over the re-instatement of Immigration Service "raids," the stoicism of Border Patrolmen in their everyday duties, the anger of Mexican-American activists at supposed harassment to prove their citizenship, the fear illegal aliens must live with every day of their lives.

What ultimate effect will the re-imposed raids have on the game of tag played by the federal government and millions of Mexican nationals? What impact will the Permian Basin sustain? These issues, and others, will be examined.

Library leads high school changes

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 12th in a 14-part series studying the candidates and issues in Saturday's school, city and hospital election.

By LOREN BERGER
Staff Writer

Midland High School will receive a new library, twice the size of the current one, if voters choose to vote favorably in Saturday's school bond election.

The $6.6 million bond package will allow construction of two new elementary schools in addition to $1.05 million in renovation and construction to Midland High and minor improvements at Lee High School.

In addition to construction of a new library at Midland High, which has been repeatedly termed "vastly inadequate" by school administrators, the bond also will allow for expansion of the band hall and renovation and expansion of both school's office areas.

The library at Midland High, built in 1949, is approximately half the size of other secondary school libraries in the city, according to Midland High Principal Jack Stone. "The library can only accommodate one class at a time," he said. "There is no place for individual research and books have to be stored in the windows."

Due to limited space, there is no room for book processing and little storage place for audio-visuals, microfilm or headphone equipment, he said. Machines are sent to classrooms on a rotating basis.

If the bond proposal passes, the school district will construct a new library by enclosing one wall in the school's central patio area, currently centered between two classroom areas. The new facility would encompass 10,400 square feet, more than twice the size of the current library which is only 4,000 square feet.

With new library construction, administrators are making a subtle change in traditional library philosophies. "The library now is only a place to store books," Stone said. Stone said with the construction of a translucent roof and atrium in the new building, students will be exposed to more aesthetic surroundings which will provide a more psychologically conducive area for study habits.

Current library space will be used for expansion of conference and vice-principal offices. "Conferences are usually held in the lobby with typewriters and copying machines operating in the background," Stone said. He added that students have been discouraged from seeking counseling in the past because little privacy is afforded by open conference areas.

Other renovations suggested in the bond proposal will be expanding the school's band hall 30 feet, creating an additional 1,600 square feet. The loading zone directly east of the building would be altered to create a right-hand turn lane at A and Illinois streets to ease the school's traffic flow.

The band hall, which was built in 1949 to house 80 students has a current

Texas may soon get generic drug law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas is one of only two states without a law to let pharmacists substitute generic drugs for brand-name products, but that could change during this legislative session.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, told the Senate Human Resources Committee on Wednesday that his bill, the result of six years of work, could save consumers and taxpayers $14 million to $20 million the first two years it is in effect.

And he says he is willing to add safeguards that will bring the committee into "complete agreement" with the measure.

He said the amended bill will include provisions to keep foreign "bath-tub-type operations" from manufacturing substandard drugs outside the U.S. and selling them here.

The bill already provides that physicians may prohibit selection of an equivalent drug by signing the prescription form next to a line stating the drug must be "dispensed as written."

The doctor may not use a pre-printed prescription form distributed by a pharmaceutical company.

If a doctor's order is unclear, the pharmacist may substitute the cheaper generic. A substitution may be made only if it costs less, and the druggist may not add on a service charge to raise the price.

The committee took no action on the bill. Brooks said several changes would be made and the measure would come up again next week.

The bill would greatly benefit retired people who "can't afford insurance sophisticated enough to cover drug costs, but who are too proud to ask for charity," said Paul Jacobs of the Texas Retired Teachers Association.

"Passage of (the bill) would benefit all Texas consumers ... and is perhaps the most important health care bill before the legislature this session," said Margot Beutler of the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now.

ACORN released figures from a survey showing the price differences for several drugs. Penicillin V, a generic, cost $5.47 per 100 tablets; V-Cillin-K, a brand product, cost $10.53.

A hundred tablets of the tranquilizer meprobamate goes for $2.82, the survey said, but under the brandname Milltown, it costs $13.69. Ampicillin, a generic, costs $13.45; as Polycillin, it sells for $32.45.

Woman fired from job wins settlement

DENVER (AP) — Three years ago, Leslie Thaxter, of Dallas, Texas, discovered she was afflicted with a bizarre allergy that caused her to gain 10 pounds overnight after ingesting virtually any food or chemical.

Because she felt the disease too debilitating to continue her job as a real estate salesman, Mrs. Thaxter decided to resign. Before she could sell her stock in the company, however, she was fired.

Mrs. Thaxter, a 35-year-old mother of two, then sued Distinctive Properties Ltd., a Denver real estate company she had helped form.

A Denver District Court jury on Wednesday awarded her $123,000 and in an unusual move, asked the defendants to send handwritten letters of apology to Mrs. Thaxter.

Mrs. Thaxter's lawsuit alleged that she had been mistreated by the five other founders of the real estate company when they fired her. She claimed they had failed to act in good faith when they prevented her from selling her stock to someone outside the company for about $40,000 — subsequently offering her only $4,500 for the same shares.

Defense attorneys tried to demonstrate Mrs. Thaxter had been a disruptive member of the staff, who was absent often because of her illness and frequently asked staff members for special favors.

Testimony during the trial showed that Mrs. Thaxter, who now lives in Fort Worth, Texas, was in excellent health until one fall day when she drove into the mountains.

"I had a hard time breathing," she testified. "My heart was pounding. My throat closed. I couldn't swallow. My face became numb."

After her mountain trip, her body started to swell up whenever she ate anything, causing her to be dizzy and nauseous. Once doctors fed her nothing but five grams of salt during a 12-hour period and she gained five pounds in excess body fluid.

Her disease was diagnosed as "immune deficiency," which doctors say prevents her body from producing the normal defenses needed to cope with chemicals in the air and most food.

The disease catalyzed a severe change in lifestyle. She now wears clothes made only of silk and cotton. Carpets in her home made of natural fibers have had to be replaced by those made of synthetics. No chemicals can be used in the house and she says the only completely "safe" foods her system can handle are organically grown carrots and baked potatoes.

Although her normal weight of 105 lbs. has ballooned to 135 lbs. because of water retention, she eats sparingly and fasts several times a week. She still spends months at a time in the hospital.

Once her health stabilizes, Mrs. Baxter says she'd like to return to the real estate business.

"I've tried to play down the illness as much as possible," she says. "You still have to carry on."

Thallium finding prompts probe

ORANGEFIELD, Texas (AP) — Finding toxic thallium in water from a local well has touched off an investigation by state and local health officials, authorities said.

Traces of the toxic metal were found in well water used by Roxie Owen Denney, 56, who died last November at a Galveston hospital. Thallium also was found in urine samples submitted by Mrs. Denney's 29-year-old daughter, health officials said.

"We're having a state man (from the Texas Department of Health) come down next week," said Harold Welsh, sanitation inspector for the Orange County health department. "We are going to move on this."

Welsh said he was contacted Tuesday by officials at the Texas State Poison Center at Galveston and informed of the water sample analyses. The water samples were gathered last fall after officials were unable to explain Mrs. Denney's death. No autopsy was performed on the woman.

Thallium was used widely as a roach and rat poison until it was banned from most consumer uses in 1972.

Medical records obtained by the Corpus Christi Caller-Times show Mrs. Denney displayed several symptoms of thallium poisoning, including numbness in the extremities and altered mental states, before she died.

Lice spray forces school closings

CHILLICOTHE, Texas (AP) — Public schools here are closed for the rest of this week because of student reactions to two chemicals that were sprayed throughout the school complex to quell an outbreak of head lice, school district officials said.

The chemicals were sprayed by school board members and volunteers and included Lindane and Tox-Phene, normally used to rid cattle of lice, said Dr. Roy Fisher, the city health officer.

Fisher said between 60 and 80 students have reported rashes, headaches, nausea and runny eyes in reaction to the toxic pesticides, which were sprayed Friday. Students began reporting adverse symptoms of exposure on Monday, he said.

Fisher said he thought the symptoms were annoying but not serious. He said the schools should be safe by Monday.

Officials at the schools have tried for several weeks to rid the buildings of lice. Students have been screened for lice daily for the past two weeks, Fisher said. He said between 15 to 45 percent of the students had been found to have head lice or nits, their eggs.

The schools were sprayed following an emergency meeting of the school board. School superintendent Monte Pannell said the spraying was undertaken as "a precautionary measure."

Why control handguns?

Since the assassination attempt Monday of President Ronald Reagan, the gun control lobby already has become vocal again.

Taking a tipoff from the emotional presidential assassination attempt, gun control advocates will be calling for handgun control in the next few weeks. That's how it was when former Beatle John Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City apartment building.

The concerns of the gun controllers are valid; it's their logic that's difficult to comprehend. Most Americans are horrified by the increases in violent crime and we all should pledge to take steps to bring about a reduction in the crime rate.

But we have to approach such an endeavor realistically if we are to achieve any measure of success.

Banning the use of handguns will not stop killing; other weapons are too plentiful. It matters not to a presidential assassin whether he must use a .38-caliber handgun or a .30-.30 rifle to accomplish his goal. If a firearm of any type is unavailable, an assassin will use a bomb or a knife or anything lethal.

Banning handguns or firearms in general, in addition to trampling on the basic guarantees provided Americans under the Constitution, would serve only to establish a vast underground network — or black market — for the weapons. Firearms would still be available.

Certainly something needs to be done. Taking steps to make the president safer when he is in public is one alternative. Such a move must be done carefully and thoughtfully so the president is not removed too far from the public eye; that is essential in our open and free society.

As the next step, society itself should get more involved in the law enforcement system by meting out stiffer penalties through our judicial system and reforming the parole system to keep convicted criminals behind bars.

Those steps can help make society safer for us all.

If handguns are banned, criminals may not be the only people who possess guns. But you can bet that every criminal who wants a handgun will be able to get one.

Hope for Argentina

Hope does not always spring eternal in Argentina, the Latin American land bogged for years in dictatorships and depressions. A new president could change things for the better.

The hopeful sign for the Argentines was the presidential inauguration in Buenos Aires of General Roberto Eduardo Viola. The nation's 38th chief of state was hand-picked by the military junta that has been governing, and misgoverning, Argentina for the past five years. For that reason alone it would be premature to talk about the rebirth of democracy in the near future, yet there is reason to hope President Viola will preside over a freer and more prosperous nation than his predecessors.

One indicator is the composition of the new Cabinet. Seven of its 13 members are civilians, whereas the ratio was five to three in favor of the military in the previous Cabinet.

Relations with the United States are better than at any time since President Carter took office. This is a ready result in subtle changes in Argentina policies, including a promise by the new president to take a more serious look at the disappearance of thousands of civilians.

The most encouraging prognosis of all came from the lips of the newly inaugurated president himself. General Viola asked his fellow Argentines to have faith and hope, and he entreated the youth of his country to "seek participation in the political life of the country" so that really in the immediate future they can be architects of a real democracy in our country.

It has been a long time since a president of Argentina has spoken so boldly, and so bluntly, about democracy. It is enough to give hope to the hemisphere that some interesting history is about to be written.

Will 'Mob' hinder crime and drugs probe?

WASHINGTON — The House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control is supposed to investigate the connection between dope smuggling and organized crime. But there is some question whether the committee's new chairman, Rep. Leo Zeffereiti, D-N.Y., is the right man to crack down on the Mob.

He probably owed his re-election last year in part to the efforts of the International Longshoremen's Association in his Brooklyn district. And the ILA's connection to organized crime has been termed "a national disgrace" by Justice Department crime fighters.

The ILA local in Brooklyn was headed by the notorious Tony Scotto, recently convicted of racketeering and tax fraud in New York. The local contributed $3,341.77 to Zeffereiti last year through its political action committee.

According to political sources in Brooklyn, Scotto's dock workers also turned out poll watchers and campaign workers for the 53-year-old congressman. Zeffereiti barely survived the Reagan landslide last November, and the longshoremen were important to his re-election.

Scotto is identified in Justice Department documents as a "capo" in the Carlo Gambino crime family; he controlled the Brooklyn and Staten Island waterfronts. Even after his conviction, the ILA did nothing to punish him. The New York Waterfront Commission finally forced his removal, but in his place the union appointed Scotto's cousin by marriage.

This will insure continued Mob control over the powerful local, charged former Senate investigator Ray

Jack Anderson

Maria in an interview with my associate Tony Capaccio.

The sordid story of the longshoremen's union is detailed in a secret 1977 Justice Department report, which concluded that the ILA is "completely dominated by men who either have strong organized crime ties or are members of the organized crime syndicate."

The Justice Department reported: "Abuses are common throughout the jurisdiction of the ILA ... The syndicate dictates who does business on the East Coast and in what manner."

The Gambino and Vito Genovese crime families allegedly agreed on their spheres of influence in the late 1970s. According to Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations sources, Michael Clemente of the Genovese family controlled the Manhattan docks; he allegedly had jurisdiction over such top union officials as Scotto, Teddy Gleason, George Barone, Fred Field and Thomas Buzanca.

Here's a partial list of ILA officials convicted of racketeering or alleged to have Mob ties, yet who are still in power:

— George Barone is both an inter-

A CHANGING WORLD

Even Sen. Charles Percy sees El Salvador danger

Dr. Benjamin Spock is back with us. So is Andrew Young. And Jesse Jackson. And Coretta Scott King. Even Edward Asner of "Lou Grant" television fame. And, flag-burning Canadians, those who shielded deserters and draft dodgers of Vietnam War days.

More and more, men and women accused of violent crimes, excuse themselves by blaming association with the Vietnam War, real or imagined, for their behavior.

The reason for all this new wave of the opposite of patriotism? It is based on the fact that concerning El Salvador, President Reagan has decided to take action vital to the safety of all the Americas in the face of communist aggression.

This is a 180-degree switch from the days of ex-President Jimmy Carter, who presided over the leftist-Marxist conquest of Nicaragua. It also is a switch from the political policy that forbade American military men to win the Vietnam War.

It even is a switch from the beginnings of defeatist policy as enunciated by President Harry Truman in 1950-51, when he refused to let Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur win the Korean War.

The Korean War experience stirred America's left-wingers and self-anointed do-gooders. They shut their collective mouths when President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent U.S. Army and Marine troops into Lebanon to successfully thwart a Soviet-led communist takeover in that vital Mideast nation, but they came out in full force for the Vietnam debacle.

Now they are back, some well-intentioned but always, it seems, tacitly in favor of communist adventures rather than their own country's efforts to preserve freedom.

Currently they are denouncing Mr. Reagan's valid and even noble determination to prevent a Red takeover in all of Central America. They are planning a march on the Pentagon for May 3, under the banner of something called the People's Anti-War Mobilization. They are spending lots of money on New York Times full-page ads, loudly proclaiming the same nonsense that dominated their Vietnam era activities.

Unfortunately, they are finding ready listeners to their cries of despair — particularly among the nation's largest newspapers and some of the major television networks.

Journalists more than ever these days are of the liberal stripe, and the reporting in both the written and televised media is becoming less and less objective. Just about everything President Reagan and the government of El Salvador say is wrong and everything about the communist-supplied leftist terrorists is correct. Thankfully, small and medium-sized newspapers and some individual television stations still are providing a balanced view of a difficult situation that is vital to U.S. interests.

Nicaragua is gone. El Salvador, without U.S. help, will follow. Guatemala is teetering. So is Honduras. So is little Costa Rica. And where might the communist surge move next? Mexico, naturally. Do those who cry out about imperialism and the "rights of the people" think things will be better for those countries if the Reds prevail? The experience of communist-controlled Vietnam should give them the answer. And, do they think that a Red Cuba, Red Central America and possibly a Red Mexico would be a good omen for the United States?

Over the years, these critics of America have felt they have a friend in often-liberal Sen. Charles Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. If this friendship still prevails, the Spocks, the Youngs, the Jacksons and others should heed what Percy says: "The United States will do whatever is necessary to prevent a communist takeover in El Salvador."

Even Percy knows that vital U.S. interests are at stake in El Salvador and other nations of Central America. It is unfortunate and damaging to America that those 200 who signed a critical New York Times ad — and other protesters — do not also understand the significance of blatant communist aggression when they see it.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Jane Byrne, the mayor of Chicago, will move into an apartment in a high-crime public housing development. This seems to be an act of courage beyond symbolism — especially on that first day when she finds her limousine on cinder blocks.

The Reagans have apparently been influenced by Jane Byrne's taking on this experience of blight and squalor. You notice the White House only serves domestic champagne.

Other public figures would do well to follow Byrne's example. Lee Iacocca could move to Japan to better understand the problems of the solvent.

Gloria Steinem could sign on as a housekeeper at Hugh Hefner's house. By baking brownies, doing windows and sewing curtains for the famed publisher, she could call attention to the lack of males in this country holding jobs as domestics.

Dean Martin could study temperance with Donnie and Marie. David Stockman could spend a weekend studying the philosophy of Hubert Humphrey.

Jane Byrne says she may rotate her residences among other Chicago housing projects. So you'll never know where Her Honor is going to turn up — which makes her sort of an Irish MX missile.

INSIDE REPORT

Assassin's bullet struck at administration's 'vital force'

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Only hours before he was shot, Ronald Reagan demonstrated the indispensability of his own presence and convictions to maintaining his administration as an instrument of revolutionary change in American government and American life.

At 8:30 a.m. Monday, President Reagan breakfasted with key officials of the administration. He exhorted them not to be sidetracked by political considerations in carrying out the economic plan but to remember that this was one administration specifically mandated to make deep and permanent changes. "I got the impression that he felt that if we didn't agree with that," one policy-maker told us, "that we had no business being there."

The assassination attempt that afternoon left those who share Reagan's dream cold with fear at the futility of going on without Reagan. There is no alternative to Reagan himself to assure that his goals are not diluted into the fuzzy pragmatism of the previous 16 years of postwar Republican administrations.

The administration of Dwight D. Eisenhower, to whom Reagan often is compared, functioned efficiently without apparent disruption during three prolonged absences of the ailing president. While Reagan indeed resembles Eisenhower in wholesale delegation of duties, he alone has set the ideological tone of his administration in a way the old general never did. Accordingly, the announcement

Evans

Novak

Reagan would be able to function as president the very day after his shooting and might leave the hospital within two weeks was of vital importance. Nobody could guess what would happen to this administration's motive force during protracted convalescence for its chief. Far from being the irrelevancy of his caricatures, Reagan is the vital spark that moves his administration.

Vice President George Bush has gained Reagan's confidence, as witness his triumph over Secretary of State Alexander Haig in their power struggle. But even if Bush, with vastly more governmental experience than Reagan, fully agreed with Reagan's revolutionary goals, he could not match Reagan's ideological commitment. The White House senior staff, including the president's long-time servitors, seem closer to Bush than Reagan in lack of ideological intensity.

Nowhere is this clearer than in the Reagan tax cut. When Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the House Ways and Means Committee was quoted (incorrectly, Rostenkowski later said) as saying the three-year tax rate reduction bill was dead, the president was furious. That fury was not discernible in either his senior aides or his vice president, who had campaigned hard against Kemp-Roth while he was a candidate.

On the day of the shooting, plans were underway to invigorate the tax program with a Reagan speech to the nation. The president's incapacitation obviously delays that important effort, but probably not for long. A more serious injury would have removed, with critical effect, the administration's single most effective advocate for tax reduction.

Those anguished hours on Monday (inexpressably worsened by the grave wound suffered by Jim Brady) when nobody knew the extent of the president's injuries, suddenly made his ideological supporters aware of the absence of true votaries in his administration. The closest is budget director David Stockman. But at age 34, Stockman lacks the president's constancy. In his quest to balance the budget, Stockman has flirted with tax gimmicks and seemed cool toward defense increases; Reagan has had to set his young disciple straight.

Less than a week before the gunman struck, Reagan demonstrated the uniqueness of his interest in ideas and philosophy. The council of non-government economic elders assembled here March 4 to consider the administration's drift toward protectionism on Japanese auto imports. To the man, the economic elders were against it.

Professor Milton Friedman was scathing, pointing out that the impact of quotas was equally disastrous for free-market economics whether they were "voluntarily" accepted by the Japanese government or imposed by act of Congress. The president nodded his head, indicating agreement with Friedman that the administration had gone wrong. He had been expected to make that clear this week.

No other recent president would have been so moved by a word-famous ideologue on the trade issue, where governments historically follow considerations of realpolitik, both domestic and foreign, not ideology. Nor is it likely that George Bush would. But Reagan himself is no less an ideologue than Milton Friedman.

That is what makes the president personally irreplaceable if his administration truly is to change the nation. Confined to George Washington University Hospital, his administration's vital force is depleted. If he had been killed or incapacitated, his radical quality would have ended.

Reagan wounded: Fact is stranger than fiction

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was like a scene from a political thriller: a fallen president, the vice president absent, the strong-willed leader of the Cabinet assuming control at the White House.

But this was not fiction. At 4:15 on the afternoon of a rainy Washington Monday, as President Reagan was taken to surgery, a bullet in his lung, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. declared: "As of now, I am in control here in the White House."

It was an unfortunate choice of words.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said he and Haig agreed — at Haig's suggestion — that the secretary should be the "chief contact" at the White House.

Reagan aides said there was no quarrel with Haig's role, and they praised the teamwork of the administration high command in a troubled hour.

A Pentagon spokesman discounted reports of clashes between Haig and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in the White House situation room. "Everything went smoothly," said Army Maj. Gen. Jerry Curry. "There was no argument between Haig and Weinberger, nor were there heated words or heated exchanges that would involve conflict between the two."

Haig took command of the situation room as the ranking member of the Cabinet. As he reported on the situation after a gunman wounded the president, his voice shook with emotion. His message clearly was intended to be one of reassurance and continuity.

Haig said he was in close touch with the Airborne Vice President George Bush, that key members of the Cabinet were at the White House, that U.S. allies had been told of the assassination attempt and the stable condition of the wounded president, that there was no military alert and no need for one.

"We wanted to let the world know that a government was in place and the White House, pending the return of the vice president, and in close touch with him," Haig said. "If something came up, I would check with him, of course."

That hardly could be considered a message of reassurance, of a government functioning as usual. When it is functioning that way, the secretary of state runs foreign policy, not the White House.

Furthermore, Haig is a man who has fought for power inside the Reagan administration, most recently over the assignment of Bush to head a crisis management team. There was an echo of that controversy Monday — Haig said crisis management was in effect, and he was it.

He also was a man of extraordinary authority as White House chief of staff during the final days of Richard

M. Nixon's presidency.

Although Bush was away when Reagan was wounded, the vice president never is far from the communications network that enables a traveling president to act. Out of town does not mean out of power, for a president or, if need be, a vice president.

When he got back, Bush said he had been in full and complete communication with Washington throughout the day. "I can reassure this nation and a watching world that the American government is functioning fully and effectively," he said.

Then he set about his job, in effect, running the administration for the hospitalized president. But he claimed no powers and did no advertising.

To the contrary, he shunned the trappings that could have gone with the task.

Senators investigate teen-age pregnancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate hearing got conflicting views on whether giving contraceptive advice results in increased teen-age pregnancies — but first had to sit through a movie showing, among other things, a man and woman engaged in sexual intercourse.

"The appropriation of money for family planning services makes the problem of teen-age pregnancy worse. That is, there is a statistically significant correlation between an increase in family planning dollars and the rise in teen-age pregnancy rates," contended Susan Roylance, vice president of United Families of America, at Tuesday's hearing before the Senate Labor Committee.

"There is simply no evidence to support the notion that the availability of these facilities encourages sexual activity among teen-agers," Jane Wells-Schooley, vice president of the National Organization for Women, said in a statement submitted to the committee.

The committee is investigating the results of federal grants to the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, whose film "About Sex" was shown at the hearing.

An Analysis

functioning," Haig's spokesman, William Dyess, said afterward.

Bush couldn't do it. He was flying from Austin, Texas, to Washington.

So Haig, the take-charge general, took charge.

"Who is making the decisions for the government right now?" he was asked.

"Constitutionally, gentlemen, you have the president, the vice president and the secretary of state in that order, and should the president decide he wants to transfer the helm to the vice president, he will do so," Haig said. "He has not done that."

Actually, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Sen. Strom Thurmond, president pro tem of the Senate, are ahead of the secretary of state in the line of succession.

"As of now, I am in control here in

Abortion private choice, witness says

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A woman's decision to have an abortion is "morally excruciating" and lawmakers should not substitute their own moral standards for hers, a witness against seven anti-abortion bills said.

"These bills are all designed to prohibit and restrict access to abortion," said Jan Friese, with the Texas Abortion Rights Action League. "They are not drafted with the intent of protecting women."

"When a woman makes a decision to have an abortion, it is a morally excruciating decision. I don't think the legislature ... can make these moral decisions for her," she said at the Tuesday hearing before a subcommittee of the House State Affairs subcommittee.

However, most witnesses who testified during the two-hour hearing favored the measures. The subcommittee delayed action on the bills until next week.

"Our goal is to stop abortions, to shut it down completely," said Dr. Steven Hotze, president of Texas Doctors For Life.

He urged the subcommittee members to "have the courage" to disagree with the U.S. Supreme Court, adding that "some of the justices might soon pass on (die)" and new ones might reverse the 1973 decision permitting abortion.

Cathy Garza, another member of the group, urged legislators to make no exceptions for pregnancies resulting from rape or incest.

"Degradation and shame" are less important than the life of the fetus, she said.

One of the bills, by Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Simonton, would ban abortions in any medical facility that receives tax money, which includes most hospitals in Texas.

A measure by Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, would require that abortions of "viable fetuses" be performed in hospitals.

Negotiator's role ignored

BOSTON (AP) — A former U.S. ambassador says he helped bring Algeria into the negotiations that freed 52 American hostages from Iran, but didn't get the recognition he deserved because he was black.

"It's a paradox, I know, because I like my privacy," said Ulric Haynes, 49, in an interview in Tuesday's Boston Globe. "But I've come to suspect my invisibility had something to do with my skin color."

Haynes, of New York City, was named ambassador to Algeria in 1977 after working for the Ford Foundation, the State Department and the National Security Council.

He was seen widely on television greeting the returned hostages when their plane landed at Algiers on the first stop after Tehran in January.

"I know the role I played, and they can't take that away. Had we not turned the Algerians' attitude around from hostility to respect in the 3½ years we were there, the hostages would not have gotten out when they did."

"In fact, I am the one who came back to Washington in February 1980 and suggested that the Algerians be asked to take a leading role in the negotiations. The Algerians haven't gotten all the credit they deserve either," Haynes said.

Haynes left government service for private business as the Reagan administration came in.

Walesa remaining in control despite militant criticism

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Despite criticism from militant union leaders, Lech Walesa emerged from another tussle this week still in clear control of Poland's independent labor movement.

The 37-year-old head of the Solidarity ty labor federation again prevailed over union militants unhappy with his

AP News Analysis

agreement with the government which resulted in suspension of plans for a general strike Tuesday. Solidarity's national coordinating commission at a meeting in Gdansk

Tuesday and Wednesday approved the agreement, called off the strike and canceled the strike alert it ordered March 20. But the man whose name has been synonymous with Solidarity since its founding last August had to listen to criticism of the agreement and his leadership style, union sources told reporters, who were barred from the meeting.

Walesa told the reporters he may have lost some friends on the commission but he still has many among the federation's 10 million members.

His popularity with the workers was evident last month when the mustachioed union leader arrived at a rally in Radom after local Solidarity leaders declared a strike alert seeking redress of grievances smoldering since food riots there in 1976.

When Walesa stepped from his car and approached the dais, the crowd of 14,000 erupted in applause and cheers. The applause continued as he pleaded for moderation.

The Radom strike was cancelled. But Walesa was confronted with another challenge 10 days ago, after police in Bydgoszcz evicted 23 Solidarity activists from a government building and beat three of them so badly they had to be hospitalized.

At a meeting of the federation's national commission on March 23, other members argued heatedly for an immediate general strike. Walesa insisted on a cautious tactic of short warning walkouts, negotiations with the government and the threat of a general strike.

He stormed out of the meeting after an inconclusive vote on his proposal. The next day he threatened to relinquish his leadership of the federation presidium if his plan was rejected. The commission quickly approved it.

Walesa himself said he was only "70 percent satisfied" with the agreement he negotiated last weekend with Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski. In it the government agreed to punish those responsible for the police action at Bydgoszcz. But it refused to give the union satisfaction on the issue that had brought the labor leaders to the Bydgoszcz city hall, the demand of private farmers for legalization of an agricultural Solidarity.

When the national commission met in Gdansk this week to ratify or reject the agreement, Walesa calmly smoked his pipe and explained "at great length the need for compromise not confrontation," one member of the commission reported.

There was much criticism because the agreement did not satisfy the farmers' demands. Walesa was accused of being too soft. But one union adviser said there was never any possibility that the commission would repudiate what he had done.

"He's too powerful," said the adviser.

Reagan may offer farm commodities to Poland

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)

The Reagan administration may offer surplus farm commodities at favorable prices to Poland's deputy foreign minister to help ease that country's growing food and financial crisis, a U.S. official says.

The deputy prime minister, Mieczyslaw Jagielski, had talks scheduled today with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Vice President George Bush and Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

The official who disclosed the food offer, who asked not to be identified, said the administration also was considering more deferral of repayments on Poland's $2.5 billion debt to the United States. Earlier, the administration permitted Poland to put off $88 million in scheduled payments.

Jagielski arrived in Washington on Wednesday after talks in Paris with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing. The Polish leader received commitments of $797 million in credits this year, partly to enable Poland to import food.

Polish officials have said that without additional help, they will be forced to reduce food imports, thus worsening existing shortages and perhaps heightening the already severe political tensions. There is general agreement among Western countries that the Polish government's attempts to work out an accommodation with Solidarity, the independent trade union, will be much easier if Poland can overcome short-term economic difficulties that include repayment on debts totaling $25 billion.

In one of his last acts before the attempt on his life Monday, President Reagan discussed the Polish issue in a trans-Atlantic telephone call with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who has emerged as a leading supporter of additional Western aid to Poland.

Reagan and Schmidt agreed that supplemental aid to Poland would not be provided in the event of the forcible repression of the Solidarity movement by either the Soviet or the Polish armed forces.

A White House statement announcing that position was made shortly before Solidarity decided to call off a general strike set for Tuesday in return for the government's promise to punish those found responsible for beating a group of union leaders.

Moscow levels charges

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Solidarity labor federation canceled its nationwide strike alert in preparation for new negotiations with the Polish government. But Moscow leveled a new charge of anti-Soviet activity in Warsaw, and there still was no word of when military maneuvers in and around Poland would end.

The strike alert declared March 20 was called off by Solidarity's national commission Wednesday. The commission on Tuesday cancelled plans for a general strike in protest against the beating of union activists in the industrial city of Bydgoszcz and ratified the agreement reached the day before by the federation's leader Lech Walesa and Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

PAP, the official Polish news agency, said the commission cancelled the strike alert because it hoped to be treated as a "partner" in future negotiations with the government. But Rakowski told a news conference the government's relationship with the 10-million-member labor federation would depend on whether radicals gain control of the union.

"Both we and the realistic segment of Solidarity may have a lot of trouble with the radical wing," he said.

In the agreement between Walesa and Rakowski, the government agreed to punish those responsible for the police action in Bydgoszcz, the first police violence against the independent labor movement since the strike wave last summer resulted in its legalization.

Thai troops fail to rally public support for coup

By TERRY A. ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Military commanders trying to overthrow Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda failed today to rally the Bangkok public to their side as Prem marshaled the royal family, three of Thailand's four regional armies and the acting commander of the air force against the rebels.

Ignoring Prem's second demand that they surrender, Gen. Sant Chitpatima and his associates called the public to a rally in Bangkok to hear them explain their action. But Prem in a broadcast from his headquarters in northeast Thailand urged the people to stay home, and only about 1,000 showed up. The rally was canceled.

In another attempt to court public favor, the rebellious officers announced on Radio Thailand that they would reconvene Parliament and allow it to choose a prime minister within 15 days. The plotters dissolved Parliament and suspended the constitution at the start of their coup attempt Wednesday morning.

The prime minister, a general who is also commander in chief of the army, dispatched a troop column toward Bangkok and sent two air force jet fighters streaking over army headquarters in Bangkok today to reinforce his ultimatum to the rebel generals.

Prem, 60, appeared to have the upper hand in the power struggle within the ruling military clique, military and other sources said. After Sant, the deputy army commander in chief, and his associates took over Bangkok before dawn Wednesday, the prime minister escaped to a military base at Korat, 150 miles northeast of the capital, and took King Bhumiphol Adulyadej, Queen Sirikit and their family with him.

The royal family has little constitutional power, but it is enormously popular and respected and because of that wields great influence. Prem was quick to utilize this support, broadcasting a message Wednesday night by the queen condemning the rebels.

The king's support also insured Prem continued recognition by the United States. In Washington, State Department spokesman William J. Dyess told reporters the Reagan administration's "position is the king is the head of state in Thailand, and we deal with whatever government is appointed by the king."

With no violence and no bloodshed so far, in the tradition of Thailand's long history of military coups, the U.S. Embassy issued a mild statement urging American tourists to remain in or near their hotels and "to check with their travel agents or airlines before proceeding to the airport."

An embassy spokesman said U.S. officials did not believe the situation to be dangerous.

Bill allows road landings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Counties could allow crop dusters and other aircraft to land on county roads under a bill passed Wednesday by the Texas House.

The bill's constitutionality was questioned by Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, but it was sent to the Senate on a voice vote without further debate.

"I'm just wondering whether ... this bill is constitutional," Coleman asked Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, the sponsor.

"This is my little contribution to county ordinance-making power," replied Laney, who gave no explanation of the reasons behind the bill.

Coleman said after the bill passed he seriously doubted its constitutionality, and he had an explanation why nobody challenged Laney about the bill, which he said would create a "questionable" policy.

"Nobody seems willing to ask the chairman of the House Administration Committee any questions," Coleman said.

The committee oversees representatives' expenditures for office staff, newsletters, equipment, travel and the like. It also allocates office space and parking places.

Laney said crop dusters and aerial applicators of agricultural chemicals asked him to sponsor the bill. He said they waste fuel and time returning to their airstrips to reload with chemicals.

In some cases, he said, a plane must fly 20 to 50 miles to get the chemicals for 15 minutes worth of spraying.

MIDLAND CITY COUNCIL

15 YEARS OF CITY AND URBAN PLANNING EXPERIENCE CAN MAKE THE DIFFERENCE.

"Midland is growing about seven per cent a year. We're faced with walking that fine line between sound fiscal policies and maintaining and improving city services. We especially need to support our law enforcement services to a greater degree. I am pledged to meeting the demands of growth while restraining tax increases."

"We always seem to be running headlong into solving problems that were created years ago. It's time we started planning for the future instead of paying for the past. I can bring to the City Council my 15 years in city and urban planning to improve the quality of life for all Midlanders for today and for generations to come."

"We need to expand our parks system to keep pace with the city's growth. I would like to see a regional park developed for north or northwest Midland, and improvements made to the existing parks in south and southeast Midland. We need to consider every available source of funding, including state and federal grants."

"Our streets are in such poor repair that it's going to cost several million dollars to bring them up to standard. I cannot over-emphasize the importance of proper planning and construction in the first place to save tax dollars over the long run."

Smoke pours from a fifth floor room in Caesars Palace hotel. Clark County firefighters responded to the alarm at 10:15 a.m. The entire highrise portion of the hotel was evacuated. Ten firefighters and six guests were reported injured, no deaths were reported. Firefighters had the blaze extinguished within 30 minutes.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — At least one Killer Bee senator is still wary of election bills.

Two years ago 12 senators fled the Senate to block a separate presidential primary after they learned the primary might be added as an amendment to an unrelated bill.

By hiding out the 12 prevented the Senate from obtaining a quorum to act on legislation.

Hotel security guard stands by as a guest is given oxygen after evacuation from Caesars Palace Hotel. Six guests and ten firefighters were injured, most of them slightly in a fire that gutted one suite of the Strip resort.

Three still hospitalized following hotel blaze

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Three people, including a fireman who suffered severe burns, remained hospitalized today following a fire that gutted a fifth-floor luxury suite and forced hundreds of guests to be evacuated from Caesars Palace hotel.

Sixteen people were sent to hospitals with injuries — mostly described as minor — after the blaze Wednesday in the 14-story central tower at the Strip resort.

It was the third resort fire resulting in injury or death in Las Vegas within the past five months. A blaze last November at the MGM Grand hotel-casino across the street from Caesars Palace killed 84 people, and a Feb. 10 fire at the Las Vegas Hilton killed eight people and injured 198 others.

Clark County Fire Capt. Donald Warren was the most seriously injured Wednesday and was listed in satisfactory condition with burns on the face and shoulders.

Andy Sanino, 52, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., and fireman

Randy Crommellin, 32, also remained hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Gamblers continued to play in the resort's casino area as fleeing guests and hotel employees made their way out the front entrance. The casino area was not evacuated.

"You'd never think you'd find yourself in the middle of a casino with a nightgown on," said hotel guest Helen Ginsburg of Denver as she sat outside a hotel restaurant.

In an effort to determine the cause of the blaze, fire investigators late Wednesday poked through the rubble of the five-room suite where firefighters had contained the flames. Fire Department spokesman Capt. Ralph Dinsman said it was too early to determine whether the fire was deliberately set.

Caesars officials said they were uncertain whether there was anyone in the suite at the time of the fire.

The blaze, which sent smoke billowing through the fifth and sixth floors, was extinguished within 30 minutes of the first report of the fire shortly after 10 a.m. Dinsman said decorative concrete blocks in front of the windows of the giant hotel may have helped to prevent fire from creeping up the side of the tower and touching off blazes in upper rooms.

Mrs. Ginsburg and her husband, Morris, were on the sixth floor just above the room that caught fire. The couple said they reported the blaze to the hotel operator, then looked into the hallway and saw hotel maids pounding on doors to evacuate guests.

Adams in good health

NEW YORK (AP) — John Quincy Adams believed in the healthful benefits of exercise.

According to Jack Shepherd, author of "Cannibals of the Heart: A Personal Biography of Louisa and John Quincy Adams," Adams walked four miles every morning, and swam on warm days until four months before his death, at age 80, in 1848.

When asked what he thought had preserved his health into his old age, Adams replied that there were three rules: "1. Regularity, 2. Regularity, 3. Regularity."

The key

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Waiting for an attendant to pump gasoline or to pay at one service station in Odessa is a long wait. There are no workers.

The key to getting a fill-up is for the driver to insert a key into a numbered keyhole inside a master control panel. Gasoline going through the station's two pumps is automatically registered and charged to that particular key account.

The station is owned and operated by Phillips Petroleum for 150 company vehicles in this area.

An original musical, "America For me," written by Jenny Ready, music teacher, was presented at a PTA meeting of Burnet Elementary School. Fourth graders clustered at Burnet from the Burnet, South and Fannin schools presented a patriotic program of America depicting its history in song and slides. Business, professional women's seminar deadline nears

Deadline for registering for the Seminar for Business & Professional Women is Friday.

Designed for all women in any business or profession, this seminar should be of benefit to all women in business, from the chief executive officer to the clerical employee.

Fee is $25, to be made payable to the Uptown Chapter, B&PW. Fee for full-time high school or college students is $12.50. This price includes lunch and all materials handed out.

Mail check, along with name, address, phone number and firm name to Kathy Atkin, Box 3118, Midland, TX 79702.

Cancellations must be received by Monday in order to receive a full refund.

Persons should list three workshops which they wish to attend among the following: Assertiveness training, time management, stress management, investments and career planning.

The seminar will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Permian Basin Graduate Center Building, 105 W. Illinois.

One of the workshops, stress management, will help the participant deal with stress, anxiety and tension which are pervasive in our society.

"Tension takes it toll on our lives by draining us physically and mentally, and by reducing our capacity to enjoy and to adapt to life," said Teresa "Sam" Guyton, instructor.

"Stress cannot be avoided. To live without a challenge is to risk stagnation. The secret is to learn to know our optimum stress level so we may function at our potential."

Ms. Guyton holds a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Syracuse University and a master of arts in behavioral science from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. She has been employed by the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation for the past 11 years as therapist, supervisor of Outpatient Drug Program and supervisor of consultation and education.

Another workshop, investments, will give the participant a basic knowledge of money market funds, tax-advantaged investments such as tax-free bonds, tax-deferred annuities and IRA and Keogh plans.

Also covered will be topics such as investing in common stocks, their yields, price-earning ratios and book value, how to read the Wall Street Journal and listed stock options.

Edwin T. Atkin, instructor, received a bachelor of science degree in geology from Indiana University and worked as an exploration geophysicist with Texas Instruments and Atlantic Richfield. In 1979, he joined Shearson Loeb Rhoades Inc. as an investment executive.

Kay Maley, counselor of support services for women at Odessa College, will conduct a workshop on career planning for women who are interested in breaking with tradition and entering today's careers.

Marion Kimberly, an individual, marriage and career counselor here, will instruct a workshop on assertiveness training. This course is designed to aid the participant in distinguishing assertive from aggressive or passive behavior.

Dr. Lee Buice, assistant to the president at Odessa College, will instruct the course on time management. This course will cover aspects of managing time and factors which affect one's ability to control personal and professional time.

For more information about the course, call Kathy Atkin or Bobbie Reynolds at 683-5281.

DEAR ABBY
Hard-working cook wants her just desserts

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six years to a wonderful man. Although I have hinted broadly on many occasions that I would dearly love some acknowledgment of my cooking, I have yet to receive one word of appreciation for anything I have prepared since our marriage.

I know he enjoys good food because he has mentioned from time to time that his first wife was a great cook. I have baked cakes and pies from scratch, made gourmet dishes, casseroles, stews, pot roasts and turkey dinners with all the trimmings, with nary one "That was good, dear."

I am considering serving him dog food, scooped out of the can and garnished with a few steamed onions and a sprig of parsley, just to see if I get a reaction. I know a man could have far worse faults than being totally indifferent to a wife who knocks herself out nightly in the kitchen, but one gets tired of buying groceries, planning menus and preparing fine meals for someone who never utters a word of appreciation. Sign me ... UNAPPRECIATED IN LONG BEACH

DEAR UNAPPRECIATED: A friend of mine had the same problem. In desperation she wrote the following message and presented it to her husband with his coffee after dinner:

"The chef respectfully requests that you comment on the dinner you have just consumed. Would you rate it: Excellent? Good? Fair? Poor?"

"Failure to comply with this request could cause the dining room to discontinue its service."

Needless to say, she received a generous outpouring of compliments — and still does. Try it.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a mother-daughter difference of opinion. Is it all right for a 16-year-old daughter to entertain a young male friend in her bedroom with the door shut? The daughter says all they do is talk and listen to music. — HER VS. ME

DEAR ME: If I were the mother, I'd vote for the open door policy. (Minimize the temptations.) If I were the daughter, I'd opt for the closed door policy. (Maximize the privacy.) However, rank has its privileges, so it's an open-and-shut case — with mother the victor.

DEAR ABBY: What should a man of 87 do with a collection of interesting old letters? I had over 1,000 until today, when I burned over 100. I felt like a murderer, but storage space is limited.

My children would not be interested in them, as most were from friends and relatives I knew before they were born.

Some were from very distinguished people whose literary style was quite wonderful. — GEORGE FROM GEORGIA

DEAR GEORGE: If your children aren't interested in these letters, perhaps their children or grandchildren will one day appreciate them. To burn such letters is to destroy a part of history. Offer them first to someone in your family. If you have no takers, give them to any interested friend.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped (18 cents), self-addressed envelope.)

EASTER EGGS EXTRAORDINAIRE IS '81 April no. 1

Do you give gifts of brightly colored eggs for Easter? So did the 19th Century Russian Czar Alexander III. But no ordinary eggs were these. They were designed by a famous jeweler and goldsmith, Peter Carl Faberge.

Faberge suggested to the Czar that he surprise the Czarina on Easter morning with a very special egg. It was made of silver and enameled white to simulate an ordinary egg. But what extraordinary surprises lay within! Inside was a yellow sphere. Within the sphere lay a multi-colored hen on a velvet cushion. When the hen was removed, the cushion opened to reveal a replica of the Imperial Crown. An inside the crown hung a tiny ruby egg. This was the first of fifty-seven bejewelled eggs the Czarina would receive in her lifetime.

Another very famous egg is that presented by Czar Nicholas II to his mother, the Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna, in 1898. The egg, in gold and enamel with pearl and rose diamond "lilies of the valley," contains miniature portraits of the Czar and the Princesses Olga and Tatiana.

Examples of Faberge's lavish art occasionally travel the museum circuit. You might watch for this if you are intrigued by these descriptions of his work. At our jewelled creations are somewhat less spectacular than those of Faberge, but we think you'll be enchanted with their beauty none the less. Please stop by to see our collection.

Being a loser makes a slim winner

By JEANNETTE BRANIN
Copley News Service

Something funny was going on, and the delivery boy for a pizza restaurant was spooked enough to investigate.

He telephoned Gene Morgan, developer-director of The Grove, a reducing and conditioning spa at Lake Elsinore, Calif.

"I've had a call to deliver pizza for four persons to your place," he told Morgan. "But here's what's weird. The woman wants it delivered to the second bush inside the main gate. What do you think?"

"I'll never understand why some people will commit the money and the time to get in shape, and then cheat on themselves," Morgan said.

Such backsliders are rare, Morgan said. Most of his clients are delighted to see pounds slipping away, as much as 15 pounds in two weeks.

Low-calorie foods are the most effective cause of weight loss, Morgan makes them as appetizing as possible, in appearance and flavor.

Lemon wedges and slices of sweet red onion are always on the dinner tables. The lemon gives salt-free seasoning and zip to soups, salads, vegetables, meat and fish. The onion brings psychology into play: Because the onion is aromatic, because the flavor lingers, the mind tells the stomach that it is satisfied.

Here are some of the recipes from The Grove diet kitchen:

COTTAGE CHEESE-CUCUMBER CANAPE

One-half cup finely chopped cucumber
One-half cup low-calorie cottage cheese
Dash of salt substitute
Dash of freshly ground pepper
Blend all ingredients and spread on Melba rounds, sprinkle with minced chives. Calorie count: 1 ounce mixture, 16, 1 Melba round, 7.

BOUILLON

1 cup water
1 bouillon cube, beef or chicken
1 tsp. dehydrated red bell pepper
1 tsp. dehydrated green bell pepper
1 tsp. onion flakes

1 tsp. parsley flakes
Simmer 5 minutes or longer to improve flavor, over low flame. Makes one serving of 6 ounces. Calorie count: 11.

TUNA PLATE

1 (8.5 oz.) can tuna in water pack
One-fourth cup chopped celery
Pinch of dehydrated green bell pepper
Pinch of dehydrated red bell pepper
1 tsp. diet mayonnaise
1 romaine lettuce leaf
One-half hard-cooked egg
2 slices cucumber
2 slices tomato
Mix together tuna, celery, bell peppers, and mayonnaise. Garnish with lettuce, egg, cucumber and tomato. Makes two servings of 4 ounces each. Calorie count: One serving, 180.

BAKED CHICKEN

1 chicken breast, 4 ozs. with bone
1 chicken thigh, 4 ozs. with bone
Seasoning to taste: pepper, garlic powder, parsley, etc.
One-half cup buttermilk
One-fourth cup lemon juice
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place breast and thigh in shallow pan, cover with buttermilk mixed with lemon juice. Sprinkle with seasoning. Bake for 45 to 60 minutes. Makes one 8-ounce serving. Calorie count: 200.

ORIENTAL VEGETABLES

One-half head Chinese lettuce
2 sticks celery, chopped
4 ozs. mushrooms
4 ozs. bean sprouts
One-half large white onion, thinly sliced
One-half stalk napa cabbage (celery cabbage)
2 tbsps. soy sauce
Cook all vegetables together until transparent. Add soy sauce. Makes eight servings of 3 ounces each. Calorie count per 3-ounce serving: 38.

English rite of teatime comes to U.S.

By TOM HOGE

The venerable English custom of afternoon tea is being popularized in this country by a young chef who is not British but Alsatian.

"We began serving afternoon tea four months ago," said Jean-Pierre Henry, 30-year-old executive chef of Chicago's Whitehall Hotel. "It was actually the idea of the hotel's English-born manager, Michael Littler. We had some doubts at first, but it is proving very popular."

Henry learned to prepare afternoon tea not in England but in Strasbourg, where he studied to become a chef.

"It was simpler there," he said, "just tea and those pastries for which Strasbourg is famous. Here we serve real English afternoon tea, with sandwiches, scones and pastry."

Before World War II, teatime in England was an elaborate ritual with exclusive tea shops and hotels serving asparagus and watercress sandwiches, pate de foie gras and buttered toast. This was followed by trays of eclairs, tartlets and other sweets.

In some English country manor houses of that day, tea was actually an early dinner complete with bacon and eggs, buns, crumpets, biscuits and cake.

Today tea in England is much simpler, usually limited to a biscuit and a scone or two. But Henry prefers the old way.

Henry makes his own scones, a Scottish invention. Here's the recipe.

2 ounces butter (half a stick)

¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted flour
½ cake and ½ bread
1½ teaspoons baking powder
1-3rd cup black raisins
2 whole eggs beaten
½ cup milk

Mix together butter and sugar in mixing bowl till smooth. Add salt, flour, baking powder and raisins. Keep mixing and slowly add beaten eggs and milk. Continue mixing for two minutes. Remove from bowl onto table top. Let dough rest for 30 minutes. Roll out dough to half-inch thickness and cut out 2½-inch diameter circles. Place dough circles on a buttered and floured baking pan. Bake scones in preheated 375-degree oven for 20 minutes. Makes 12-16 scones.

Simple toys best

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Water, sand and modeling clay make the best toys for young children, says a specialist in child development at Syracuse University.

Alice Honig, associate professor of child development in the College for Human Development, says children use play to test their ideas about how the world works.

"By acting on toys they find out what fulcrums are, what gravity is like, what materials they can squeeze, what materials can be pressed and squashed and what can be stretched," she says. "Children also learn, through play, how to get rid of things that are frightening them or have been scary or troubling."

Ms. Honig tells parents when they see their children "playing out" past scoldings or punishments it is part of the child's way of "working through their troubles."

Baths: Welcome contrast to privies of the past

By HARRIET STRONG
Copley News Service

Our ancestors would be amazed to see the design changes now being introduced to change crude privies of the past into lavish havens of escape for the '80s.

The "1981 Official Kitchen and Bath Color and Design Guide" just released by four major manufacturers of home building and furnishing products — GAF, Kohler, Magic Chef and Wilsonart — gives a glimpse of the trends of the future in baths.

"The New Horizons bath appears at the most luxurious edge of the imagination, lifting the whole house away from the ordinary," the Guide reports, then reveals a stunning interior design that doesn't look like any bath I've ever seen.

Literally at center stage is a huge, luxury tub sheathed in a polished black decorative laminate. The tub has a control panel where bathers set water temperatures and whirlpool adjustments for jet hydro-massaging action.

But that's not all. Carved out of the laminate wall is a Habitat — an environmental enclosure that simulates nature's sun, rain and, as an option, sauna steam. Our grandparents never had this good!

Color coordination throughout this bath is superb. Decorative laminate colors harmonize with plumbing fixture and vinyl floor covering colors. Black decorative laminate also surfaces the vanity cabinet and walls.

Bold stripes of a sand-colored laminate accent all black surfaces. This almond beige shade also covers countertops and back splashes, coordinating with the lighter beige cushioned vinyl floor. Like the laminate, the seamless vinyl floor is designed for easy care. How our ancestors would have loved this shiny floor which requires no wax!

Adding a luxury touch and bas relief to the scene is an accent wall of copper metallic laminate above the tub platform. A bright, reflective setting indeed!

The vanity cabinet on one side of the tub encloses lavishly proportioned his and her lavatories. The parchment color is repeated in the toilet and the bidet on the opposite side of the tub.

Even the toilet in this Space-Age bath has a revolutionary Timed Flush System, and both it and the bidet have water-saving action as an additional energy saver.

Bathrooms were never like this.

See all 12 of the imaginative bath and kitchen ideas plus individual vanities and kitchen islands by writing Success System, Dept. C, P.O. Box 2256, Fort Worth, Texas 76113. Enclose $3. Plans for all the kitchens and baths for $2 each.

AT WIT'S END

Fix it if you can

By ERMA BOMBECK

I sat next to a really neat lady at a luncheon the other week who got to talking about braces on the teeth . . .

She said, "How come you never mentioned my braces?"

I stared awkwardly into her fruit cocktail and said, "I don't know . . . I guess I didn't want to make you self-conscious."

"I'm not," she said. "You are. It's funny, kids are great about it. They'll come right up and say, 'When do they come off?' or 'Wouldn't you kill for a caramel?' But not adults. They act like they don't see them."

It occurred to me that adults are that way about a lot of things. People make such a flap about face and body lifts. I personally considered Eleanor Roosevelt the most beautiful woman I ever met, but if something bothers you and you can still get the parts, I say go for it!

Or, as a wise friend of mine once said, "To heck with my ironing board, let's put the silicone right up front where everyone can see it."

There is something admirable about a woman (or man) who works on perpetual maintenance. My mother-in-law went through extensive and expensive bridgework at the age of 74. Another woman in her 60s got a face lift and it made such a difference to her. Too often, we're intimidated by age. Everything becomes predictable. At age 20 the teeth start to go, at 30 the skin dries up, at 40 the eyes dim, at 50 all the muscles relax and bag around your knees, and at 60 you fall asleep during a tax audit.

I defy you to gather together a group of women (or men) and find one who is totally happy with the way she looks. One friend of mine confessed she hated her nose.

"What's wrong with it?" I asked. "It works, doesn't it?" she said. "That's not the point," she said. "It looks like George C. Scott's."

"So?"
"So, I can't act."
She had the nose altered and I swear I never saw the difference, but she did.

The mind is also not exempt from the self-improvement route. People who are college graduates are the first to admit it's overrated. I knew people who graduated with honors who couldn't operate a pay toilet. But another friend of mine lived for the day when she could enroll in the university and unlock the doors of ignorance.

Whatever stands in the way of your self-confidence . . . whether it's an overbite, toeing inward, a 30-pound honker, hips like saddlebags, weak eyes, a quest for Thoreau, wrinkle city, hamster hair or a concave chest, fix it.

I know I never started to live until I lost ten pounds . . . five off each upper arm.

Here's the answer: Spray paints

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — I recently bought a can of spray paint. The instructions say not to swing your arm in an arc as you move the sprayer from side to side, but in reality I find that this is not easy. It seems that the most natural way to move your arm is in a slight arc as you are spraying. Why does the manufacturer not want you to use this seemingly more natural method of spraying?

A — Because when you move your arm in an arc, even a tiny one, as you spray, the sprayer will not always be the same distance from the surface of the material being finished. Try holding your arm fully extended and move it from side to side near a wall. You will find that the tips of your fingers remain the same distance from the wall during the full stroke. But if you make even the tiniest arc in your swing, which will bend your elbow a bit, your fingers will be closer to the wall during the fully extended movement than at any other time. If your fingers do not stay the same distance from the wall all the time, neither will the sprayer. And when that happens, you will get a light concentration of paint on the wall at one point, a heavier one at another, and a still heavier one when your arm is fully extended. To get the same amount of paint on a surface throughout the entire stroke, the end of the sprayer must always be the same distance from the surface.

(The techniques of painting, including the use of brushes and rollers, are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Fruit fly outbreak worries Texas farmers

PHARR, Texas (AP) — Citrus growers and shippers say they are uneasy about efforts to keep a California outbreak of the Mediterranean fruit fly from spreading to Texas.

"Although we fully appreciate the efforts in California to control it, the fact still remains that we're not certain the situation has been eliminated," said Bill Weeks of the Texas Citrus and Vegetable Growers and Shippers Assn.

Weeks was among 60 persons who met Wednesday with Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown and members of a state-federal team battling the destructive pest in California.

Brown and several others said a controversial plan to spray the insecticide Malathion from planes over the infested area should have been carried out earlier.

"We're going to have to decide if we're going to let the bugs win and let our hands be tied by groups that don't know what they're talking about," Brown said, referring to environmental organizations opposed to aerial spraying.

Texas halted the shipment of unfumigated or unrefrigerated produce from California but later lifted the quarantine when California avocado growers filed suit in federal court. The U.S. Supreme Court subsequently struck down the quarantine.

In settling the avocado growers' suit, California agreed to conduct hearings in Texas on how the fruit fly is being fought.

The Mediterranean fruit fly, called medfly, lays eggs inside many varieties of fruit and some vegetables. The larvae eat the fruit, destroying its commercial value.

Larvae drop onto the ground, bury in the dirt and remain in an inactive, pupa stage until they emerge during warm weather as adult flies 30 to 60 days later.

Since the California outbreak in June, sterile flies have been released to interrupt the insect's breeding habits, crews have sprayed insecticide from the ground and fruit has been stripped off trees in a 50-square-mile area.

Officials also have quarantined fruit within a 500-square-mile area in Santa Clara and Alameda counties. The infestation is in an urban area in neighborhoods where many homeowners have citrus trees in their backyards.

The team fighting the medfly wanted to spray the insecticide Malathion from 100 feet altitude but was denied permission by city and county governments after citizens and environmental groups objected.

Officials will know if they have succeeded once temperatures warm and any surviving flies emerge from the soil, said D. Scott Campbell of the USDA.

"There are pupae out there, I'm sure, that will emerge. Hopefully the bait (ground) spray will catch them," added Wayne Granberry, another USDA official on the joint state-federal team.

Campbell said California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has declared an emergency, which will allow the team to "trespass" local air space for "public health and safety."

Some in the audience said they were not satisfied with all the explanations. "It's been ten months and it's still not been totally eradicated," said Robert Schupp, a Mission citrus shipper.

Group fights for contraceptive funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Family planning advocates, afraid that their money will be cut off if the Reagan administration's proposed block grants are approved, are asking Congress to preserve the chief source of funds for contraceptive services for 1 million American teen-agers.

"We don't want block grants because we don't want states to decide where, if at all, there will be family planning," Scott Swirl, legislative director for National Family Planning and Reproductive Health Association, said Wednesday.

The president of the Planned Parenthood Federation, Faye Wattleton, said maintaining the organization's independence was essential for keeping poor women off welfare.

"This is particularly important when it comes to teen-agers," she said. "Many teen-age mothers who have small children to take care of, few skills, little education and no husband in the home must become dependent on public welfare for support," she said in a statement prepared for submission today to the health committee of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., the subcommittee chairman, has introduced legislation to extend the family planning program for four years.

Family planning grants are authorized by Title X of the Public Health Act, which is due to expire Sept. 30. The administration proposes that the states take over the program, if they want, using funds from one of the four block grants it wants to establish.

Some 3.8 million women, 1 million of them teen-agers, received contraceptive advice last year at a cost of about $90 per patient. Federal money involved — which was supplemented by other funds — totaled $162 million. Another $76 million was provided for research.

Planned Parenthood affiliates received about $30 million of that money, more than any other organization, through 239 separate grants — 79 to local health departments, 91 to community agencies, 12 to hospitals, 28 to universities and 29 to Planned Parenthood affiliates.

Some members of Congress have accused Planned Parenthood of promoting sexual activity by teen-agers and contributing to the breakup of the family. The Senate Labor Committee on Tuesday held a hearing at which the Planned Parenthood film, "On Sex," was shown and denounced by one senator as pornographic because it showed a man and a woman engaged in sexual intercourse.

Supporters argue that services are provided to adolescents only after they have become sexually active. Asta Kenney told a lobbying conference Wednesday that although the number of sexually active teen-agers has grown to about 50 percent, the number of sexually active teens who use contraception dropped 15 percent between 1973 and 1978.

Political consultant Joan McLean told the 500 participants in the workshop. "It's time that the right wing not be the only group that waves the American flag and uses its right to petition."

Transplant patient improving

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Though she still faces a long road to recovery from the surgery that gave her a new heart and lung a record 25 days ago, Mary Gohlke is improving steadily, her surgeon says.

The 45-year-old Mesa, Ariz., newspaper executive made medical history Wednesday when she surpassed the old record of 23 days for surviving a double transplant. She is the fourth such patient in history and the first in a decade.

Three previous heart-lung recipients lived 14 hours, eight days and 23 days. The operations took place between 1968 and 1971.

On March 9, surgeons at Stanford University Medical Center transplanted the heart and lungs of a 15-year-old victim of a traffic accident into Mrs. Gohlke, who remains in critical but stable condition.

Before her operation, Mrs. Gohlke was desperately ill with primary pulmonary hypertension, a lung disease that also affected her heart.

Dr. Bruce Reitz, who led the transplant team, said Wednesday that although Mrs. Gohlke faces a long recovery period, "her prognosis seems better now than at any time in the past three weeks."

"Mrs. Gohlke now faces the challenge of rebuilding her strength and stamina. In the last few days, she has shown steady improvement," he said.

The use of a new drug, cyclosporin A, has so far prevented any infection and has helped the healing of the windpipe, a "troublesome problem" in the first three pioneering transplants, Reitz noted.

Infection poses "the major potential risk" to her recovery, said Reitz, assistant professor of cardiovascular surgery at Stanford.

"Obviously, Mrs. Gohlke has not been without problems in the last three weeks, but no problems have arisen that we did not anticipate," Reitz said, referring to a setback she had on March 23, when it appeared her body was rejecting the foreign organs.

Doctors put her on a respirator, but she rallied and was breathing on her own again two days later.

Mrs. Gohlke has begun lifting light weights to build her strength, Reitz said and has been taken outdoors "for a change of scenery."

She probably will stay in the intensive care unit two or three more weeks and then be transferred to a regular ward, doctors said.

New Jersey swimmers seeing tampon litter

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Swimmers and sunbathers at New Jersey beaches who in the past have withstood deadly sharks, oil slicks and foul-smelling red tide may have a new problem this season — beaches strewn with plastic tampon applicators.

Dr. Susan D. Halsey, senior coastal geologist for the state Department of Environmental Protection, says "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of Playtex "Gentle Glide" tampon applicators are being found on beaches from Sandy Hook, an island park off Central Jersey, to Atlantic City in the south.

The beached applicators, she says, "pose an unpleasant litter problem to the public."

Ms. Halsey, in a March 24 letter to International Playtex Corp. of Stamford, Conn., said nearly all of the applicators found by state officials and citizens are Playtex's "Gentle Glide" brand.

She declined Tuesday to speculate on the source of the pollution. The plastic applicators, unlike nearly all other sewage, are not broken down by the sea and weather.

New York City and several New York and northern New Jersey sewage authorities still dump their sludge off the New Jersey coast.

Leonard Berger, Playtex's director of consumer affairs in Paramus, N.J., said the devices probably are coming from faulty sewage treatment plants or a community without proper sewage treatment. He said properly-run sewage plants screen out the applicators for eventual burial or incineration.

"There's no way of easily telling the source because the tides, the seas and the winds move things around," Berger said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Kicking the habit

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father-in-law's two-pack-a-day habit has finally caught up with him. After a screening at the plant at which he works, he was told he has an early stage of lung cancer. Previously when we would ask him to stop smoking, he'd say there was no point in giving up cigarettes because whether or not a person got cancer depended on fate. Now when we argue with him, he says it doesn't matter if he continues to smoke because he already has cancer. I find his argument very aggravating, but I don't know how to answer him. Can you help? — Willard

Dear Willard: First let me say that I assume your father is in the hands of a competent physician and that he is being treated for the condition. Obviously, a patient in whom cancer is detected at an early stage has a better chance of survival than if the disease was in an advanced stage.

Secondly, but related to my first point, a person with lung cancer who stops smoking even after the diagnosis has been made will survive longer than someone who continues to smoke while being treated. A study by the Veterans Administration Medical Oncology (cancer) Branch shows that patients who continue to smoke even after a diagnosis of cancer has been made have a median survival time of 47 weeks; for those who stop smoking at the time the diagnosis is made, the median survival time is 52 weeks; and for those who quit smoking at least two months prior to the diagnosis, it is 70 weeks.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My son has written me from college that his is in the school infirmary with a case of infectious mononucleosis. He says he is doing fine and there is no need for me to worry. Since a trip to the school to visit him would involve an expense I can't really afford, I hesitate to undertake it. How serious is this condition? Your advice in this matter would be appreciated. — Mrs. B.P.

Dear Mrs. P.: In general, infectious mononucleosis is a curable illness. Since your son is in the school infirmary and receiving proper medical attention — and, I assume, otherwise in good health — he should make a satisfactory recovery. However, complications can occur and, occasionally, may even prove fatal if they are not properly diagnosed and treated.

Whether you should visit your son is a personal matter that I can't really advise you on. However, since infectious mononucleosis is not uncommon among a population of college students, and since your son is under medical care, I would feel there is no great cause for concern over the eventual outcome.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At what age is it possible to begin taking a child's temperature orally? — Mrs. D.L.

Dear Mrs. L.: You can begin taking your child's temperature orally at about six years of age, when he or she is able to understand the need to keep the thermometer under the tongue without biting it. If the child is uncooperative, it will be necessary to wait a little longer.

Interferon: Some good, bad news

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

How good is this interferon, anyway? Is it the breakthrough the American Cancer Society is banking on so expensively?

The first results of studies of interferon use are starting to filter out — some good, some not so good.

The American Cancer Society is investing heavily in research to see if interferon, a natural glycoprotein in the body, is effective as a cancer-fighting agent.

It is known that interferon can help stimulate the immune system against disease — and, it is hoped, against cancer sufficiently to enable the body, when injected with interferon doses, to help put down cancer.

It also is an anti-viral agent, and it is in this area that interferon so far is showing the most promise, said Dr. Malcolm Mitchell, chief of oncology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine and a pioneer in interferon studies.

Its performance against cancer has been spotty. A major limitation, Mitchell feels, is its inefficiency in getting into the cerebral spinal fluid, perhaps inhibiting treatment of brain malignancies.

"That is discouraging," he said. "And even more upsetting is it doesn't go into the respiratory tract either."

Nor has there been any dramatic effect exhibited in the studies of interferon against leukemia. "There have been no substantive remissions produced, and it appears that interferon has no important role in the treatment of leukemia," Mitchell said.

He said the most promising interferon study is the one being done in Sweden on patients with osteosarcoma, a bone cancer.

Most of the patients have had amputation, and the interferon is being used as an adjuvant — supplemental — therapy after surgery. In at least half of the group, the cancer has already spread in the body.

Mitchell said five-year survival rates are being reported in some patients treated this way, while patients in a control group that did not get interferon have died.

Some patients suffering from myeloma, a cancer arising in bone marrow, have also been treated with interferon on an experimental basis and have responded favorably, some with total remissions of the disease.

"This may be a disease we should concentrate (interferon therapy) on," Mitchell said.

He said that in another group, about a third of women with breast cancer unresponsive to chemotherapy have been given interferon and are showing some improvement.

Wednesday after arriving for an overnight visit to the LBJ Ranch in Stonewall. The Carters will tour the LBJ Library in Austin today.

Carters in Texas for library visit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter headed to Austin today for a look at the Lyndon Johnson Library after spending a night at the sprawling Central Texas ranch the late Johnson called home. Carter and wife Rosalynn were guests of Lady Bird Johnson at the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of here, Wednesday night. The Carters flew into Austin's Municipal Airport and hopped on another plane for the short flight to the ranch at Stonewall.

the Texas trip after the Monday wounding of President Ronald Reagan. However, he decided to go ahead when he learned that Reagan was doing well and recovering quickly. The former president also planned to meet with National Park Service officials to talk about the LBJ Ranch, deeded to the park service by Mrs. Johnson after the death of her husband, according to Phil Wise, a member of Carter's staff. Carter's own home in Plains may one day become the property of the park service, according to Wise. "There's nothing unusual about it. It's a fairly common thing that former presidents or their families have done to preserve a president's birthplace or home," Wise said.

Workers vote to end strike

SEATTLE (AP) — Tugboats manned with union workers were plying Puget Sound and Alaskan waters today after a 16-day strike. About 1,000 members of the Inlandboatmen's Union of the Pacific had been off their jobs since March 17 in an attempt to get better pay, scheduling and working conditions from their employers, represented by the Northwest Towboat Association. A tentative agreement reached Tuesday night was described to about 500 members of the IBU at a meeting Wednesday afternoon. The rank and file voted "overwhelmingly" to return to work pending a vote on the contract itself, said IBU international president Jim Herman. But a member of the negotiating committee, who refused to identify himself, said the show of hands on whether to accept the union leaders' advice was "not a very large majority."

Three men receive three years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three men have been sentenced to a total of three years in prison and given $24,000 in fines for a mail fraud involving as many as 5,000 California investors. U.S. District Judge Stanley Weigel also demanded community service work from Thomas A. Sartain, 41, of Houston; James D. Lang Jr., 39, of Orinda and Michael J. Scotto, 69, of Nativato. Sartain was sentenced to two years in federal prison and fined $8,000. Lang drew one year and an $8,000 fine and Scotto faces five years prison and was fined $8,000.

Woman convicted of prostitution

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas woman whose attorneys were unable to fashion a plea-bargain agreement faces a possible 10-year prison sentence today, after a jury convicted her of aggravated promotion of prostitution. Jurors deliberated 40 minutes Wednesday to find Sherry Rice Blanchard guilty.

Escapee from Tehran headed to U.S.

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An American woman, who fled Iran two days ago, slipped out of Turkey today apparently heading for a reunion with her husband in the United States, airport sources said. Eleanore Minquez, a physician employed at a Tehran hospital, told authorities she secretly crossed Iran's rugged western border on horseback. Mrs. Minquez turned herself in to Turkish officials on Tuesday and was taken to Ankara where she contacted U.S. Embassy personnel. She signed a privacy-act statement at the embassy and then secluded herself in a hotel, where a receptionist said she appeared "as if a great weight had been lifted from her shoulders."

Texas Senate readying for debate on ticket scalping

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas senators will get a chance soon to debate a bill that would limit scalpers to $3 profit per ticket on each ducat resold to sports and music fans.

The measure by Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, was approved 6-1 Tuesday by the Senate Jurisprudence Committee after hearing evidence that scalpers often make to 200 percent on their ventures.

Brooks' bill would not license ticket brokers, as did a law that was repealed in 1975. However, it would make it a penalty to sell tickets within 1,000 yards of an athletic or music event and would limit profits to $3 on each ticket.

"We feel the need for statewide control because the public does not like to be taken advantage of by someone wanting a quick profit," said Al Lundstedt, business manager of the University of Texas athletic department. He said $15 dollar tickets to the Texas-Oklahoma football game are cornered by scalpers and resold for $75 to $250.

Dan Gattis, assistant general manager of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, a non-profit organization, said their $7 tickets for singer Dolly Parton's concert were advertised in the newspaper for $17.50. When Ms. Parton did not show because of illness the fans got no refunds from the scalpers.

Jim Weidler, vice president of the Houston Sports Association, said scalpers frequently gather in parking lots outside the Astrodome, sometimes with bodyguards to protect the large sums of money they collect from fans.

"They gang up on fans just arriving and tell them that their tickets are the only ones available when there are plenty of perfectly good tickets at the box office," he said.

Rick Nichols of the Houston Oilers football team said they have problems with stolen tickets surfacing as

Radio profits decline in 1979

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising expenses caught up with the American radio industry in 1979, forcing a 25 percent decline in pre-tax profits despite a 9 percent increase in revenues, a new report shows.

The Federal Communications Commission report said radio revenues rose to $2.87 billion from $2.6 billion in 1978. But expenses rose 13.7 percent, from $2.3 billion to $2.64 billion, reducing pre-tax profits from $311 million to $231 million. The decline followed a year in which radio profits jumped 26 percent from $246 million in 1977.

Eve must be heard to be believed

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (AP) — Some children should be seen and not heard. Eve Marie Shahoian isn't one of them.

When this blue-eyed product of an Armenian-Norwegian marriage opens her mouth, everyone listens: here's one 10-year-old blessed with a voice as golden as her hair.

The incredibly pure, sweet tones of an operatic coloratura soprano would be no surprise issuing from the lungs of an adult. But Eve, all pink cheeks and white frills as she sits on a couch and watches a videotape of herself performing on NBC's "Tonight" show, must be seen — and heard — to be believed.

"Everything that she does, the tone, the quality, the beauty, that's all God-given," said Eve's mother, Kitty, who sang too, like her mother before her, and her mother before her.

"My mother was acclaimed in the 1930s for her voice, and she sang professionally. I sang in church choirs, but never professionally. I was never motivated like Eve is. She really loves to sing for people," Mrs. Shahoian said.

So Eve sings — "Sempere Libera" from "La Traviata," "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto," all in the original Italian, which she doesn't understand — for an audience at the Oakland Symphony, or to the millions watching the "Mike Douglas Show" or Johnny Carson's "Tonight."

In the glare of television lights she's a star, transformed by the magic of her voice and the bursts of applause. But in the diffused sunlight of a San Leandro afternoon, she's just another fourth-grader recovering from chicken pox.

"(When I sing) I feel like I'm flying," said Eve, who stunned her parents with her talent before her third birthday.

"When we first heard her sing, when she was about 2½, we were bowled over. We used to sing to her, and she'd copy my mother," Mrs. Shahoian said. "She seems to have all the good things of all of us. I had the very delicate voice, where my mother had more of a range. So she (Eve) got the range and the delicacy."

And she's got something more.

"Eve is motivated. She wants to do it. She's got all the guts. Whenever she can find a stage, that's where she wants to be," her mother said.

"I like the feeling. I like being nervous. It's exciting," said Eve, who said she wants to be an actress, singer and mother in another 10 or 15 years. Meanwhile, she roller skates and plays the piano like the other little girls at her public school.

Eve doesn't need any pushing, but her mother wouldn't give it to her if she did.

scalped tickets.

Norm Sonju, general manager of the Dallas Mavericks pro basketball team, said there have been recent instances of scalpers blocking entrances as they try to sell tickets to fans at high prices.

Two Austin men appeared to oppose Brooks' bill.

"This is completely against the free enterprise system," said Leonardo Prado. "No one forces anyone to buy or sell a ticket."

Prado said ticket scalpers do not always come out ahead. "I've seen guys outside the UT-OU game trying to sell $15 tickets for $5 just to cut their loss," he said.

Fred Ebner, a retired UT alumnus, said the bill would be "just one more victimless crime law. Taking the police away from enforcement of real crime laws."

Ebner said it would affect him personally because "the only way I can afford a season ticket to UT football games, on my Social Security, is to buy extra UT-OU tickets and sell them at a profit."

Dubs is bearish on movie making

By JOHN KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

MEDFORD, Ore. (AP) — To say Arthur R. Dubs is bearish on movies may be stretching the point a bit. But the brash and aggressive Oregon filmmaker has made a fortune on about a dozen so-called wilderness films, which sometimes include cameo roles for bears.

Dubs' Pacific International Enterprises Inc. may be the most successful independent movie production outfit at work today.

"We don't need all those thick carpets out front to sell pictures," says Dubs, who is 50. "Everybody said we couldn't do it, but we did — out here in Medford, Oregon."

Now Dubs has co-produced, for $3 million, his most expensive film, "Windwalker," which also has become the most widely acclaimed of Pacific International's productions.

Praise from the critics in the past has taken a back seat to his movies' box-office rewards. "The Adventures of the Wilderness Family" grossed $2.6 million in a 14-day run in 1976, and has grossed $60 million overall.

"That's the classic of them all," Dubs says.
Dubs (the name sounds like cubes) has been a champion at "four-wall-ing" films, which means he rents theater space and brings in his own movie behind an advertising blitz. He then takes all the box-office receipts.

Sounds easy, but Dubs says he has seen about 75 independent studios collapse in his dozen years of filmmaking.

Dubs makes no excuses for his films. If nothing else, they are good, clean entertainment, a quality in film that seems to be disappearing these days, he maintains.

"Those are the only types of pictures I want to produce," he says. "And I do want to produce an Academy Award picture, OK? It's just the trend right now is horror films, exploitation films and shock films."

"I feel I'm contributing something to society without shocking anyone," he says. "I don't need the money that bad."

His films have played across the world. The major exception is the Soviet Union.

"They don't pay very much in Russia," he says.

Dubs started in the film business as a hobby, and then a tax writeoff.

An outdoorsman and building contractor, he headed out to the wild with camera, gun and 16mm camera, and came back in 1970 with about 40,000 feet of film that eventually became "American Wilderness." It cost him less than $50,000.

The film included his own capture of a huge polar bear, just this side of Russia under the watchful eye of Soviet fighter jets, he says.

Ten years later, he has about 30 people working for him in his main offices in Medford, where all adverrior's return from death to settle some accounts, including a feud with the rival Crows.

Of course, somewhere along the way, the warrior meets a bear.

All of the actors are American Indians, except the lead, which is played by British actor Trevor Howard. With the high budget, spectacular cinematography and Keith Merrill, an Academy Award winning director, Dubs knew he had a winner.

But the film was passed over when the Oscar nominations came out in February. Money and politics had as much to do with that as quality, he says.

"First of all, it was produced by an independent," he says. "You have to get in line for the academies."

Still, Dubs says he's got the skeptics second-guessing themselves. "Now, we've got their attention."

Now, executives fly into Medford to see Dubs and barter for syndication and television rights to his collection of films.

An indication that he has evolved from the camera-toting outdoorsmen to the maverick movie mogul who has eschewed the glitter of Hollywood and the glamor of New York?

"No, I wouldn't say so," he says. "Maybe an independent movie mogul."

Critic says ABC News did best work on assassination attempt

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In shifting from the entertainment to news mode following the assassination attempt against Ronald Reagan, ABC is said to have lost $1 million in advertising alone. The switch of the Oscar telecast from Monday to Tuesday cost the network a full night of revenue earning prime time programming.

Nobody at the network is complaining, of course (the call to public duty taking precedent and all that). But ABC's coverage of Monday's tragedy figures to pay off in the long run.

ABC's coverage of that long, grim Monday was quality stuff, fast, as accurate as could be expected and remarkably thorough. If America indeed turns to the tube when it wants to know now, ABC was the network to choose.

Frank Reynolds occasionally seemed a bit more shaken by events than some may prefer of an anchorman in times of crisis, but unflappable Ted Koppel eventually showed up to lend some calm to the scene. Besides, there's something to be said for the anchorman-as-human being aspect of Reynolds' occasional shakes. It was a scary story.

What ABC did on Monday was prove to viewers that ABC News is a place to turn to when in need for news. Four long years of image polishing by Roone Arledge, sterling performances by Koppel & Co. on "Nightline" and whizbang pictures on "World News Tonight" set the scene for ABC's ascendancy; one day of being first and best when it really counted may have cinched it.

ABC was there with the first bulletin of the shooting, the first clip of the shooting, the first word that Reagan had been shot. A viewer switching channels soon got the idea that CBS and NBC would have been well-served by keeping an eye on the ABC monitor. "The last with the least" had come of age.

but he was absolutely indispensable as a guide through frightening woods on dark nights.

That's not to disparage the work of Dan Rather, whose performance was completely professional and singularly cool-headed. Rather is to be commended for his frequent reminders that John Hinckley Jr. was innocent until otherwise classified by a jury.

And Rather, the working reporter-turned anchorman, is best in a breaking story, fetching pertinent details from field reports and employing his innate dramatic sense to good effect. Unfortunately, CBS was late with the story, late on many details and behind on breaking events through much of the day. That didn't help Rather's cause.

Over at NBC, where Marvin Kalb and Edwin Newman ran things, ABC's dust was swallowed in big gulps.

Kalb was steady as a rock, as usual, and did a fine job of anchoring the incoming reports, but where was John Chancellor? Preparing NBC's prime-time special on the assassination attempt, says the network. Hmm. Rather for CBS and Reynolds for ABC managed both tasks.

Such evaluations may seem to be making too much of one dark day in the news, but the networks know better.

'Dallas' continues to dominate Nielsen rating competition

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS continued to build on its dominant position in the networks' ratings competition in the week ending March 29, with eight of the 10 highest-rated programs, including "Dallas" in first place, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

The No. 1 finish for CBS in the weekly competition was the network's sixth in a row and 19th in the 22 weeks since Oct. 27. "Dallas," meanwhile, placed first for the 15th time in 21 weeks.

CBS' rating for the week was 19.9 to 17.4 for ABC in second place and 14.4 for No. 3 NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.9 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes were tuned to CBS.

The most recent week's survey was as distressing for NBC as it was exhilarating for CBS. NBC's average rating of 14.4 matched the season's previous low, recorded by CBS in mid-September. Indeed, CBS and ABC maintain the season did not start until Oct. 27. NBC claims the starting date was Sept. 15.

NBC listed only two shows among the 20 most-watched, "Diff'rent Strokes" in seventh place and "Real People" in a tie for 13. In addition, the network had three of the five lowest-rated: "Hill Street Blues" in 61st place, "Nero Wolfe" in 64th and "NBC Magazine," 65th. The 61st-rated "Hill Street Blues" was a repeat of a special shown earlier in the week that was rated 55th.

An ABC movie, "Mr. Majestyk," finished 62nd, with a CBS News special, "Inside Hollywood: The Movie Business," 63rd.

The only other non-CBS program in the week's Top 10, besides "Diff'rent Strokes," was ABC's "Love Boat," in seventh place.

The rating for "Dallas" was 32.1. Nielsen says that means of all the country's homes with television, 32.1 percent saw at least part of the program.

CBS also scored with the final chapter in a two-part presentation of the film classic "Gone With The Wind," which finished sixth, and with "Magnum, P.I.," the most successful of the season's new series, in ninth place.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," with a rating of 32.1 representing 25 million homes, "60 Minutes," 28.5 or 22.2 million, "Dukes of Hazzard," 27.1 or 21.1 million, "M-A-S-H," 26.2 or 20.4 million, "The Jeffersons," 25.2 or 19.6 million, and the movie "Gone With The Wind" Part II, 24.7 or 19.2 million, all CBS; "Love Boat," 23.8 or 18.5 million, ABC; "House Calls," 23.1 or 18 million, and "Magnum, P.I.," 22.2 or 17.3 million, both CBS, and "Diff'rent Strokes," 21.6 or 16.8 million, NBC.

The next 10 programs were: "That's Incredible," ABC; "Alice," CBS; "Greatest American Hero," ABC, and "Real People," NBC, tie; "Trapper John, M.D.," and "Archie Bunker's Place," both CBS, tie; back-to-back episodes of CBS' "Knot's Landing," tie, and "Happy Days" and "Three's Company," both ABC.

Jazz group plans to tour Poland

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Intrepid," written by Jemeel Moondoc, leader of the Ensemble Muntu, could be the jazz quartet's themesong.

The four are leaving for Poland on Saturday, to give 10 concerts in two weeks. They will be the only Americans appearing at the Jazz-on-the-Odra Festival.

Somebody from Poland — they don't know who — heard the quartet last fall in Holland. Their contract came from the Polish Jazz Society. And they never considered canceling the trip because of events in Poland.

The other three members of the New York group are Roy Campbell, trumpet, William Parker, bass, and Rashid Bakr, drums. Moondoc plays alto, saxophone.

'Same Time Next Year' at two area theatres

"Life is saying yes."
— Bernard Slade

And yes is the answer two very properly married people say to a one-night stand that becomes for both a "Same Time Next Year" lifetime of one night illicit rendezvous.

This Bernard Slade play, which premiered on Broadway in March of 1975, is currently being staged in the Midland-Odessa area, not just by one group, but by two. And at the same time.

Theatre Midland's run began Friday night and extends through April 11. The Country Squire Dinner Theatre's production began March 24 and closes April 18.

This is indeed an unusual situation. Normally area theaters avoid simultaneous runs of the same production.

As Midland Community Theatre executive director Don Bachmann, who also is the director for the show, said, "A formal announcement of our season was made in August when we announced the plays with the dates and the time slots. We've done a whole membership campaign around the season and it's not something that is not well-known by theater-goers in Midland and Odessa.

"I THINK IT'S a sad situation when a professional house has to schedule in a play that an amateur house has scheduled months before," Bachmann added.

Della Ray, general manager of Country Squire, said, "It was not intentional. We are not trying to compete with the community theater at all. Peter (Fox, owner and president) has worked with community theater so long that that's really his first love.

"The situation is a result of incorrect contract dates," Mrs. Ray said. Peter Fox clarified the explanation by saying, "We didn't find out that Midland planned to produce the show until after we had contracted with the Hortons and they had arrived here for rehearsals."

Although both productions make for a pleasant evening, this comedy seems to lend itself more to a stage presentation than a dinner theater production.

THE PLAY DEALS with two characters that are in an intimate and, at times, tense situation. In delivering their lines, it is important for the protagonists to leave the impression they are alone sharing this time together.

Unfortunately, dinner theater productions almost always involve obvious attempts at playing to the audience. Such is the case with this Country Squire production which stars Robert and Marilyn Horton. Their lines were delivered to the audience and not to each other. This delivery tended to stymie the character development that is so necessary in convincing the audience that what it is seeing is real and not make believe.

Also each statement in this play has a cause and effect relationship and the audience wants to be able to see both characters. This is hard, possibly impossible, to do with a center stage that has an audience on several sides. Some lines were lost all together because Robert or Marilyn were blocking the audience's view of each other.

—ANOTHER DIFFICULTY encountered in this play is the necessary aging process. The play spans almost 25 years, from 1951 to 1975, in the lives of these two lovers. The closeness of the audience to the actors in a dinner theater does not lend itself to believable quick changes in age.

This comedy is more effective from the distance of a theater stage than from the close quarters of a dinner theater setting. At least, that's the way it appears to this reviewer after seeing both productions.

Another test of an actor's effectiveness is the audience response. Saturday night the almost full house at Theatre Midland laughed in all the right places and also was absolutely silent in the right spot.

The Tuesday night crowd at the Country Squire, which was slightly less than one-fourth full, did not respond with the same spontaneity. It was silent at the right moment, but some of the lines which drew laughter at MCT did not do so at the Country Squire.

This was a matter of timing, and, at times, Robert's was a bit off. Marilyn seemed more into her role than he did. He left one with the impression that he had done this so many times that he took being into the role for granted. And he wasn't.

HER LAUGH WAS truly infectious and seemed quite spontaneous. Of the two, her performance was more convincing.

The roles of George and Doris were played at MCT by James Sainers and Colia Morrow. Both were excellent Saturday night, closing to a standing ovation.

The character development was more evident in their performance and their attire seemed more appropriate throughout the six scenes.

Each scene takes place in the same guest cottage five years apart. In the first scene, the twosome is just getting to know each other. A rapport and understanding develops between them with the passing years. The first three scenes are slower than the last three because each builds on the other.

This growing relationship was more clearly evident in the character development that James and Colia projected Saturday night, than was the case with Robert and Marilynn Tuesday. Both James and Colia convinced the audience that they were the characters Robert and Doris.

BOTH PRODUCTIONS made subtle changes in the settings throughout the play.

However, the piano playing was more believable from the MCT stage than from the Country Squire's.

Although it was apparent that neither Jim nor Robert were actually playing it, the audience at MCT could not see the keys moving. Such was not the case at the Country Squire. Part of the audience could actually see that the piano was not being played. Plus the sound at the Country Squire came from such a distance that its effectiveness was even more diminished.

The closing scene at MCT has Colia delivering the final line, whereas the Country Squire production had Robert saying the same line. The

Armadillos finally wed

KOUNTZE, Texas (AP) — Hoover and Starr, two longtime residents of the area surrounding this east Texas town, have found wedded bliss as the state's first legally married armadillos.

Hoover, described as a portly but outgoing member of his species, parachuted out of a low-flying airplane only moments before the wedding ceremony began. His bride, wearing only a wedding veil, paced nervously in her basket as the Rev. Glen Drongoole of Sour Lake prepared the altar.

Hoover's handler and best friend, Gordon Baxter, said the wedding was long overdue. Starr bulged expectantly.

MCT interpretation was more effective. The play itself is an excellent one, guaranteed to make an audience laugh and cry. It is however an adult comedy and the language may be offensive to some. The profanity and the delicate subject matter were dealt with effectively by both Country Squire and MCT.

Original 'Oklahoma' company gathers for sweet reminiscing

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — After "Oklahoma!" opened on Broadway March 31, 1943, the opening-night party given by Perle Mesta was at the Plaza Hotel. Thirty-eight years later, to the day, a party for the musical's "family" was held at the Plaza Hotel, with Celeste Holm, the original Ado Annie, the host.

At the end of some reminiscing and letter reading, Miss Holm led the crowd present in singing "Oklahoma!" and then the 24 "originals" present gathered around Betty Garde, the original Aunt Eller, for some family pictures.

They included Alfred Drake, who was Curly, Joan Roberts, who was Laurie, and Joseph Buloff, who was the peddler, Hakim.

A letter from choreographer Agnes de Mille, giving a speech in California on Tuesday night, recalled rerouting the second act during the two-week tryout in New Haven and Boston. A big dance headed by George Church, present at the party, was thrown out. Miss De Mille added, "All of our lives have been blessed by playing in anything so expert. The beholders also are blessed."

A letter from Shirley MacLaine said it was her first Broadway show, in the chorus, and her first inspiration in musical comedy. A letter from Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh claimed authorship, in the legislature in 1953, of the bill which made "Oklahoma!" the state song.

Hi Anzell, Jud in the first road company, recalled the cast waking up Sioux City, Iowa, at 2 a.m. one clear night after a snowfall by singing "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" as they pulled a handtruck full of baggage to their hotel from the train station.

Miss Holm waved toward Faye Elizabeth Smith, Faye in the show, and said she had suggested to Richard Rodgers that the second chorus of the title song be sung in harmony instead of unison. "And it stopped the show."

Tall City Relays title battle brewing

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The Midland High and Midland Lee track teams better prepare for the worst Friday because invaders are coming from both the North and South with eyes set on the Tall City Relays title.

Both San Angelo and Amarillo Tascosa have strong track units this year and both expect to walk away with the team title. Both Lee and Midland High have some guns of their own and are not expected to let the championship trophy leave town without a fight.

The meet, the only track show of the year in Midland, begins at 2:30 p.m. Friday with field event finals and running preliminaries, but the real show will begin at 7 p.m. when the running finals begin with the 400 meter relay.

JOINING THOSE four teams in the varsity and junior varsity divisions will be Odessa High, Big Spring and Amarillo High. The MHS and Lee girls will take on a field of Odessa High, Odessa Permian and Andrews in the third division.

Lee, San Angelo and Tascosa have all won team titles this year. Midland High and Amarillo High have both placed second in meets this season, so it shapes up as a major dog fight, possibly not being decided until the final event of the night.

Lee appears to be the big favorite in the JV event while the girls' crown appears to be up for grabs.

But it will be in the varsity division where the major confrontations will take place. Headlining the meet is the 3200 and 1600 meter races where Robert Schooler of Lee is expected to wage a fierce battle with Tascosa's David Williams. Both are unbeaten in both events. One will leave with at least one loss. Schooler owns a 9:34.7 in the 3200 and a 4:28:98 in the 1600. Williams has a 9:41.1 and a 4:24.7. San Angelo's Dirk Davis and Ruben Aquillon both are 3200 threats and Davis is a good miler.

The 800 meters also shapes up as a classy event with Midland High sophomore James Beverley leading the way with his best of 1:55.5. San Angelo's Daniel White owns a 1:56.48 and Brent McCarty has a 1:56.90. This could be the fastest 800 meter field in the state this week because Odessa High's Dale Heron is also under two minutes this year. Beverley is unbeaten in all four of his 800 races this season.

THE 100 meters also shapes up as a good race. Lee's Darrin Williams owns one of the fastest times in the state with a 10.6 this year, but he is coming off a loss. Tascosa's Wade Hunt owns a 10.8 and is unbeaten this year. MHS' Billy Taylor has not won this year, but he has a couple of seconds and was a big winner a year ago. Odessa High's Hector Sanchez has beaten Taylor this year also.

Tascosa also has four pole vaulters over 13-feet this year, headed by Charlie Alexander with a 13-8 and David Rittenberry with a 13-3. Midland High's Jim Kemper is coming off his first victory with a 12-6 and is improving.

The hurdle events could have a strong field. Lee's David Piccolo, the defending 5-5A champion, is expected to win the 300 intermediates while Midland High's Elston Montgomery and Bruce Crawford are expected to give heated chase. Piccolo has a 39.8 this year twice. However, the 110 highs could be another story. Piccolo owns a career best 14.4 in the event, but Scott Yocham of Midland High and Steve Yarbrough of San Angelo have both been under 15 seconds. Piccolo has not lost in three 300 meter hurdle efforts and owns one victory in the highs.

Lee's Arthur Williams will try to keep his unbeaten string alive in the 200 meters, but he will have to face Hunt, Odessa High's Dewayne Conklin and Taylor in the key battle. Williams posted a blazing 21.2 last weekend in Hobbs to become one of the state's premier sprinters. He hasn't lost in four outings.

LEE'S KEITH Brown is another Rebel entry hoping to keep a string alive. Brown has not lost in two outings in the shot put with a best of 55-8. However, Big Spring's Greg Jones owns a 56-11 1/2 this year and is the favorite. Brown is also listed as a contender in the discus. He had a 177-0 in his first week of compe-dition at Andrews, but failed to place last week at Hobbs. Odessa High's Keith Maddox has a 167-2 and may be the most consistent thrower in the field. Lee's Clyde Smith owns a 161-6 this year while San Angelo's Mark Lambert is also over 160.

Midland High's Troy Bush won his first high jump last weekend with a 6-5, and if he can return to that form, he may have another title in his pocket. It seems like Bush found himself in the course of one weekend.

The 400 meters could also be an important race in the team standings. The local schools have been weak in this event, but San Angelo's Arthur Hawkins and Tascosa's John Patterson both have 50.0 times this year. Tascosa's Greg Guest also has a long jump of 22-3 1/2 to top the field, but MHS' Mike Velasco has been over 20 feet in his only meet this year since reporting from basketball.

Lee and San Angelo seem to have the upper hand in the mile relay with times of 3:21.7 and 3:23.69 respectively. Midland High, however, has won once in the mile relay this year. Lee also seems to have the best numbers in the sprint relay with a field leading 43.39, but San Angelo and Tascosa also own good sprint units.

COMPARING times and distances for this meet could be dangerous. None of the teams have had good weather in which to show their wares this year. If the weather stays nice and calm, times could show a marked difference for all involved. If the wind is high and the dust is blowing, then the times posted this year might serve as an indication of things to come Friday.

The Lee JVs have won two titles this year and should add a third Friday. The MHS and Lee girls have won no titles this year, but should have an opportunity to garner some points this week with the small five-team field.

Permian won a girls title this year at Almore, N.M., and Odessa High placed third at Seminole last week. Andrews has the main attraction, however, with Teresa Conway, a long jumper who has been to the state meet twice.

Houston Rockets Moses Malone (24) reaches out and grabs the ball from Los Angeles Lakers star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (33) during the closing minutes of the games Wednesday night in Los Angeles. Malone led the Rockets to a 111-107 upset win over the defending NBA champions.

Malone shoots down LA

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers, hoping to become the National Basketball Association's first repeat champions since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics, suddenly find themselves one game away from playoff elimination after running into a red-hot Rocket named Moses Malone.

Malone, Houston's 6-foot-10 center, scored 38 points and grabbed 23 rebounds — including 11 off the offensive boards — to lead the Rockets to a 111-107 upset over the Lakers in Los Angeles Wednesday night in the opening game of their first-round playoff series.

"To win we had to play our hardest and best game of the year, a maximum effort," said Rockets Coach Del Harris. "It was our best game of the year and for all I know the best game in the history of the franchise."

Houston, which posted a 40-42 record in the regular season and didn't gain a playoff berth until the final weekend of the campaign, can wrap up the best-of-three mini-series by winning Friday night. A third game, if necessary, will be played in Los Angeles Sunday.

"WHEN I score big and rebound well, we usually win. We're no push-overs," said Malone. "But this series is not over yet. You have to respect the world champs."

In the other Western Conference first-round series, the Kansas City Kings posted a 98-97 overtime victory over the Portland Trail Blazers at Portland. With Chicago's 90-80 triumph at New York on Tuesday, that means three of the four mini-series openers were won by the visiting team. Philadelphia, which defeated Indiana 124-108 Tuesday, is the only home team to win so far.

Houston raced to a 16-point lead during the second period and was ahead 60-50 at halftime behind 23 points by Malone, the NBA's leading rebounder and No. 2 scorer during the regular season. Los Angeles fought back and twice cut the deficit to two points but could never draw even.

The Lakers trailed by just three points with 19 seconds remaining before guard Mike Dunleavy hit two free throws for Houston. A basket by Earvin "Magic" Johnson again cut it to three, but a free throw by Malone clinched the victory.

JOHNSON LED the Lakers with 26 points and Norm Nixon and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 22 and 21 points, respectively.

"We are in a whole lot of trouble," said Johnson. "I'm mad, upset and disappointed."

"Our course is clear," said Lakers Coach Paul Westhead. "There are no options and no contingencies — we must win in Houston. We must be more aggressive, keep the ball away from Moses and keep Moses away from the boards."

And as the Lakers learned Wednesday night, that's no small task. Kansas City's backup center, Joe C.

Meriweather, scored four of his six points in overtime, including the winning basket with 57 seconds remaining. The Kings erased an 86-76 deficit with six minutes left in regulation to win.

"This doesn't mean much," warned Kings guard Ernie Grunfeld, who scored 10 of his 16 points in the fourth quarter. "They've shown that they can beat us in Kansas City."

Kansas City's Otis Birdsong, who led all scorers with 29 points, sent the game into overtime by hitting a driving layup with one second left.

AFTER MERRIWEATHER'S go ahead basket, Portland center Mychal Thompson missed a 10-footer. The Blazers regained possession with nine seconds left, but despite the urgings of Coach Jack Ramsay, nobody called a timeout to set up a play. Instead, Kermit Washington heaved up an air ball from beyond the three-point arc just before the buzzer.

"There's no excuse for it," Thompson said of the failure to call a timeout. "We just didn't do it."

"Somebody out there had to call it," Ramsay said. "I couldn't call it on the sidelines. We were all hollering." But forward Calvin Natt, who dribbled the ball upcourt in the final seconds, said he didn't hear Ramsay.

THE PACERS, who have lost all seven of their games against Philadelphia this season, hope the home-court advantage will help them break that streak.

Mitchell displays howitzer

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

MESA, Ariz. — A Shreveport Giants leadoff hitter opened the game by bouncing a Norm Churchill pitch up the middle for a single and was wiped out at second base a couple of pitches later by a howitzer.

The runner was out by a good 15 feet. The visiting writer asked a pitcher enjoying an off day in the stands, "Who was that?"

"Mitchell," Bill Early informed. "We had a third baseman last year named J.W. Mitchell, but I guess I don't know this guy...what's his first name?"

"J.W.," Early, now on the Iowa roster, replied patiently.

"What's he doing back there?" a writer from Texas asked and then retracted, "Skip it, after that throw, I know."

IN HIS five innings behind the plate, Mitchell wiped out another jargon-minded runner at second.

"It's not my idea," Roy Hartsfield, the new Midland Cubs manager, explained after the game. "I understand they started catching J.W. last fall out here in the Instructional League. I like the way he handles himself. He came out of the chute on that first throw as well as anyone could."

As for a reason, "We know Mitchell can play third. He's a real pro. Now we want to see if he can handle this. It helps to have someone who can play two positions when you have a short roster."

Hartsfield has been accustomed to working with major league numbers as manager at Toronto for three years, now in the Texas League, he will have a 21-man roster.

As the Cubs swing into the final phase of spring training, Hartsfield admits the team has reached the "tired stage. They have been going morning and afternoon for two weeks and it is beginning to become a grind. The uncertainty of where they will be playing affects them. Besides, these kids report in shape and are ready to go into the season in 10 days, once they get their hands toughened up."

AS SOMEONE new to the Chicago organization, Hartsfield is making the most of spring training to learn as much as he can about the personnel. "I've flip-flopped my lineup after five innings of play. I purposely avoided looking at any of last year's statistics when we started. I want to judge everyone on what they show me here."

Charles Johnson named to national all-star team

Charles Johnson, Midland College's 6-6 sophomore swing man, reaped the biggest honor of his two years with the Chaparrals when he was named as a member of the first team national junior college men's all-star basketball team today.

The National Junior College Athletic Association squad is chosen by a national basketball committee from the names submitted by 22 regional directors following nominations by junior college coaches.

The first team: Ronald Jackson, Roxbury, Mass.; Greg Wiltjer, North Idaho; Elton Webster, Tyler, Texas; Nelson Johnson, Golden Valley Lutheran, Minn.; Odell Mosteller, Hiwassee, Tenn.; Charles Johnson, Midland, Texas; Fred Watkins, Lincoln, Ill.; and Devi Parks, Arizona Western.

BRUIN BREWINS: Randyartz, a first round draft choice who pitched for Midland three seasons ago, will start for Chicago against the San Francisco Giants in Phoenix Friday night. Farm director C.V. Davis was scheduled to arrive here today after a month in the Chicago hospital as the result of a heart attack. The Houston Astros are scheduled for a Ho Ho Kam game Saturday and the Dodgers will be here next week.

Portland Trail Blazers' Mychal Thompson puts a hand in front of Kansas City's Sam Lacey as Lacey tries to go to the basket during their NBA playoff game Wednesday night in Portland.

START WITH Steve Stone, the 1980 Cy Young Award winner with a 25-7 record. Move to Jim Palmer, 16-10 and a three-time Cy Young king.

THE ATTACK is in the hands of people like Winfield (.276, 20-87) at San Diego, Reggie Jackson (.300, 41-111), Bob Watson (.307, 13-68), and Rick Cerone (.277, 14-85).

DETROIT is in much the same fix as Cleveland—a talented team stuck in a tough division. Sparky Anderson's Tigers have some quality players like Steve Kemp (.293, 21-101), Alan Trammell (.300), Al Cowens (.280), Lance Parrish (.286, 24-82) and Richie Hebner (.290, 12-82).

THE KEYS for new manager Ralph Houk will be replacing Carlton Fisk, Fred Lynn and Rick Burleson, longtime Red Sox mainstays, and finding some dependable pitching, always a problem in Fenway Park.

BALTIMORE also has some bats. Ken Singleton (.304, 24 homers, 104 runs batted in), Al Bumbry (.318, 44 stolen bases) and Eddie Murray (.300, 32-116) lead the attack.

Even with 103 victories for the best record in baseball last year, New York did not stand pat. In addition to making Winfield the richest kid on the

Best hitter, not best baseball teams, lives in AL West

By The Associated Press
Baseball's best hitter lives in the American League's West Division, but baseball's best teams don't.

The hitter is Kansas City's George Brett, who flirted with the first 400 season in 39 years last year and finished just short of the target at .390.

Brett's Royals have won the division crown four times in the last five years and they'll battle California and Oakland for it this season. The have-nots who'll chase them are clubs like Minnesota, Chicago, Seattle and Texas, with no real standouts among them.

Brett, who hit 24 homers and drove in 118 runs last season, has plenty of punch surrounding him in the Royals' lineup. There's Willie Aikens (.278, 20-98), Willie Wilson (.326, 79 steals), Amos Otis (.251, 10-53), Clint Hurdle (.294, 10-60) and Hal McRae (.297, 14-83). The departure of catcher Darrell Porter could be a problem but Manager Jim Frey believes John Wathan (.305, 6-58) can be an adequate replacement.

The pitching seems solid with Dennis Leonard (20-11), Larry ura (18-10), and Paul Splittorff (14-11) as th main staters and Dan Quisenberry (12-7, 33 saves) as the boss of the bullpen.

—If Brett isn't baseball's best hitter, then California's Rod Carew is. Carew is a seven-time batting champion and his .331 last season was largely overshadowed by Brett's brilliance.

Carew headlines an intriguing Angel lineup which could make things interesting in the AL West if everybody stays healthy. California did some player shuffling, most of it with Boston, hoping to regain the division crown it won in 1979. The Angels' most important newcomers, all acquired from the Red Sox, are Fred Lynn (.301, 12-61), Rick Burleson (.278, 8-51) and Butch Hobson (.228, 11-39).

They join Carew, Bobby Grich (.271, 14-62), 1979 MVP Don Baylor, Dan Ford and Brian Downing. Baylor, Ford and Downing all were hampered by serious injuries which torpedoed the season for California a year ago.

The Angel pitching is spotty. They signed free agents Geoff Zahn (14-18 at Minnesota), Bill Travers (12-6 at Milwaukee) John D'Acquisto (2-5 at San Diego and Montreal) and Jesse Jefferson (5-13 at Toronto and Pittsburgh), hoping to come up with a winner. The holdovers include Don Aase (8-13), Dave Frost (4-8), Fred Martinez (7-9) and relievers Andy Hassler (5-1, 10 saves) and Dave LaRoche (3-5, 4 saves).

Oakland trumpets Billy Ball, a fundamentals approach to the game named after the A's fiery manager, Billy Martin. He manufactured a second place finish last year and is shooting for the top this time. If he gets there, it will be on the fleet feet of Rickey Henderson (.303), who stole 100 bases last, and the powerful right arm of Cy Young runner-up Mike Norris (22-9).

Dave Revering (.290, 15-62), Tony Armas (.279, 35-109), Wayne Gross (.281, 14-61) and Dwayne Murphy (.274, 13-68) are the main cogs in the A's offense. Henderson and Rick Langford (19-12), Matt Keough (16-13) and Steve McCatty (14-14) are the important arms behind Norris.

The last time Chicago won anything was 1959 when the Go-Go White Sox were AL champions. Free agent Ron LeFlore (.257, 97 stolen bases at Montreal), should add some zip to the attack and Carlton Fisk (.289 at Boston), a late addition to the free agent grab bag, gives the club catching stability.

Fisk should help Manager Tony LaRussa's young pitching staff immeasurably. Kids like Brit Burns (15-13), Dick Dotson (12-10), Lamarr Hoyt (9-3) and Steve Trout (9-16) are certain to benefit from his expertise. The bullpen belongs to Ed Farmer (7-9, 30 saves).

New Manager Don Zimmer has some quality hitters in Texas like underrated Al Oliver (.319, 19-117), Mickey Rivers (.333, 7-60) Buddy Bell (.329, 17-83) and Jim Sundberg (.273, 10-63). Bump Wills (.263, 34 stolen bases) is a capable second baseman but shortstop has been a perpetual headache.

The pitching staff is constructed around old Fergie Jenkins (12-12) and young Danny Darwin (13-4) as well as Doc Medich (14-11) and Jon Matlack (10-10).

A 12-game September winning streak earned interim Manager John Goryl the Minnesota Twins' pilot job for 1981. Perhaps encouraged by that spurt, management reversed its contract policies, signing Roy Smalley (.278, 12-63) and Butch Wynegar (.255, 5-57) to expensive, long-term contracts. Other important regulars are John Castino (.302, 13-64) and Ron Jackson (.265, 5-42).

The pitching mainstays are aging

Jerry Koozman (16-13), Pete Redfern (7-7), Al Williams (6-2) and Roger Erickson (7-13) with Darrell Jackson (9-9) recovering from alcohol problems. Doug Corbett (8-6, 23 saves) is the bullpen stopper.

Seattle offers a new look for Manager Maury Wills and sluggers Richie Zisk (.290, 19-77 at Texas) and Jeff Burroughs (.263, 13-51 at Atlanta) should have a picnic in the cozy Kingdome.

Bruce Bochte (.300, 13-78), Dan Meyer (.275, 11-71) and Tom Paciorek (.273, 15-59) are steady hitters but the Mariner pitching is spotty behind starter Floyd Bannister (9-13) and reliever Shane Rawley (7-7, 13 saves).

Prediction: Kansas City, California, Oakland, Chicago, Texas, Minnesota, Seattle.

Floyd withdraws from Greensboro golf event

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A family emergency forced leading money-winner Ray Floyd to withdraw from the $300,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament Wednesday.

Floyd, who won consecutive PGA Tour events last month, was in Greensboro and had registered for the tournament when he received word his son required emergency ear surgery.

Floyd, who tops the season's money-winning list with $173,812 and was one of the favorites for the $54,000 first prize here, withdrew immediately and returned to his home in Miami.

His absence left Bill Rogers, the winner last week in the prestigious Heritage Classic, as the leading money-winner in the Greensboro event. Rogers is No. 9 with $76,584.

As often happens, most of the game's leading performers skipped this event in order to prepare for next week's Masters, the first of the year's Big Four tournaments.

Steve Mahre steals limelight

GIRDWOOD (AP) — Steve Mahre stole a little of the limelight from his brother Phil on Tuesday, winning the Spring Series giant slalom race at the Alyeska Ski Resort.

Mahre's winning time of two minutes, 42.59 seconds was more than four seconds faster than runner-up Michael Frost.

Phil Mahre, coming off the first World Cup overall title ever won by an American skier, lost his bindings about one-third of the way through his first run.

Christin Cooper captured the women's giant slalom in a time of 2:33.12, also four seconds faster than her nearest competitor.

Right behind Frost's second-place time of 2:46.78 was Mark Tache at 2:46.80, followed by Scott Hoffman, 2:47.15, and Daniel Stripp, 2:48.87.

Cindy Nelson was second in the women's competition at 2:37.16, followed by Karen Lancaster, 2:38.99; Brenda Buglione, 2:41.36 and Rebecca Simning, 2:41.87.

Racing continues Wednesday and Thursday with the U.S. National Alpine Championship giant slalom and slalom. Top finishers will earn a spot on the U.S. Ski Team.

Tigers send 'The Bird' back to minor leagues

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' flamboyant pitcher, was sent today to the team's minor league farm club at Evansville, Ind., after compiling a dismal 11.40 earned run average in spring training and being shelled by the Pittsburgh Pirates in his latest outing.

The Tigers announced they had obtained major league waivers on Fidrych, who was the American League Rookie of the Year in 1976 after posting a 19-9 record and a 2.34 ERA. But since then, Fidrych has been plagued by injuries, including arm trouble.

One of Fidrych's worst performances came Tuesday when the Tigers were beaten by the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5 in an exhibition game. Fidrych worked one inning, giving up three runs on four hits and two walks.

"It was lousy," Fidrych conceded.

"It should have been a lot better." Fidrych had almost a hurt look in his eyes, but he never wavered, never conceded that he might be finished.

"It's going to come," he said. "You're getting hit, you're getting hit. You know, it's got to come. It's got to go you're way one of these days."

Prior to being sent down, Fidrych said he was confident he would be on the Tigers' 25-man opening day roster next week.

Manager Sparky Anderson, however, would not confirm Fidrych's hope.

"I just won't comment," Anderson said. "I can't. I never have in these situations, where men are fighting for jobs. It just wouldn't be fair, now not, not heading into the final week of camp."

Fidrych said he would have been happy just working out of the bullpen.

Whooping cranes making comeback

American wild whooping cranes are continuing their slow, steady recovery from near extinction with a record number of birds on their wintering grounds.

The main flock of 78 birds, two more than last year, will soon be migrating from the Texas Gulf Coast to nesting grounds in Canada. Meanwhile, a transplanted flock of about 17 whooping cranes are now migrating with their "foster" sandhill crane parents from the Rio Grande Valley of New Mexico to the Idaho Rockies.

PROSPECTS FOR future growth in the main flock are even more encouraging, with about half of them—19 pairs—now active breeders.

Six young hatched last spring are among the 78 whoopers wintering at the Fish and Wildlife Service's Aransas National Wildlife Refuge and nearby in Texas, after the 2,600-mile fall migration from Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park. Upon arrival at Aransas, families and breeding pairs staked out territories of about 400 acres where they feed on clams, blue crabs, and occasionally acorns.

LATER THIS month, the breeding pairs will begin their spectacular courtship rituals—dancing and leaping into the air, their satiny black-tipped wings spread in what one observer has called "a joyous celebration of life." They will begin mating before reaching Canada, some at Aransas and others during migration, by mid-April, most of the flock will have left Texas for this hopscotch journey north.

As the main flock approaches courtship ritual time, the young "Foster" flock already has departed from Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge in New Mexico for its 750-mile return to Grays Lake refuge in Idaho. At least 15 have arrived at a favorite midway stopover at two national refuges in Colorado's San Luis Valley.

TWENTY YOUNG whoopers, including four fledglings, left the Rockies last fall but three birds could not be found during the winter. A fourth, missing for a time, was found near Wilcox, Arizona, with a flock of sandhill cranes. The remaining 16 whoopers wintered at one or near the Bosque refuge, where they do not exhibit the territorial behavior of their Aransas relatives. They seem to recognize their own kind, however, and often stay in groups, aloof from larger numbers of sandhills. The sandhills, in turn, seem to accept their larger, more aggressive cousins and respect their need for extra space, yielding to them in observed confrontations.

The foster flock was started at Grays Lake in 1975 with greater sandhill cranes hatching whooper eggs from wild nests in Canada and from a captive breeding flock at the Service's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland. The "foster" parent sandhill cranes have successfully reared the whoopers as their own and have taught them the migration route to Ne Mexico.

BY LAST summer all three surviving whoopers hatched in 1975 has staked out and defended nesting territories, exhibiting the characteristic behavior of breeding-aged males. But they have trouble finding a female whooper of suitable age.

Dr. Rod Drewien, a research biologist who oversees the foster flock for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, believes males in the flock far outnumber the females, based on their size and behavior.

The restoration another success story, but the flocks will probably never be as large as they were at the turn of the century, but more and more whoopers are showing every year.

Nebraska opens bid for third gymnastics title

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Buoyed by the improving health of star performer Jim Hartung, Nebraska opens its bid for a third straight NCAA gymnastics title Thursday night.

Hartung, last year's national champion in the all-around, is recovering from an ankle injury that kept him out of the floor exercise and vault during the latter part of the regular season.

However, Coach Francis Allen says the junior has been regaining strength in the ankle and will be ready for the opening round compulsory competition that kicks off the three-day meet.

"He didn't perform well for about nine weeks, but he looks good now," Allen said. "The ankle affected his jumping and landing. He landed like he was landing on eggs. But the competition will bring out the best in him. He's ready to defend his title."

Hartung will be joined in the all-around by the three gymnasts who finished behind him in last year's meet, plus Bart Conner of Oklahoma and Southern Illinois' Brian Babcock.

Sophomore Peter Vidmar of UCLA was second a year ago, Iowa State senior Ron Galimirov took third and sophomore Phil Cahoy of Nebraska was fourth. Conner, who did not compete in last year's NCAA meet, won the Big Eight Conference title and beat Hartung for the American Cup championship last month at Fort Worth, Texas.

Big Eight rivals Oklahoma and Iowa State, along with UCLA, will be Nebraska's top challengers for the team championship. Oklahoma beat the Huskers for the Big Eight title last month, Iowa State defeated both Oklahoma and Nebraska in dual meets this season, and the youthful UCLA team gained valuable experience in last year's NCAA meet.

There are a lot of ways to get from California to New York quickly. For Jason Thompson, the turnpike through Pittsburgh is not one of them — not when Bowie Kuhn's putting up roadblocks.

Thompson, the left-handed first baseman who hit .288 with 21 home runs for the California Angels in 1980, was dealt to the Pittsburgh Pirates

Kuhn blocks Jason Thompson deal

Astros trade Ken Forsch

Wednesday — and then on to the New York Yankees. In the three-way deal, the Angels ended up with catcher Ed Ott and pitcher Mickey Mahler from Pittsburgh and the Pirates wound up with first baseman Jim Spencer, minor league pitchers Greg Cochran and Freddie Tolliver and some of Yankee owner George Steinbrenner's cash.

HOW MUCH? That's what Kuhn would like to know. That's one of the reasons he gave for temporarily holding up the two trades. Since 1976, Kuhn has insisted on a $400,000 ceiling in all trades involving money.

The other reason for holding up the deal, according to Bob Wirz, major league baseball's director of information, was that Kuhn wants to know whether the two trades, "having been made back-to-back ... are inter-related." Wirz acknowledged that there is no specific rule banning such interlocking deals. "But in this case, until we know all the facts, it's being held up overnight," he said.

It was the second big deal in 24 hours involving the Yankees. On Tuesday night, they completed a six-player trade with San Diego. The keys were the center fielders, Jerry Mumphrey coming to New York and Ruppert Jones heading west.

The deals with Thompson as the linchpin were Wednesday's biggest before the midnight interleague trading deadline passed.

The Angels also added pitching strength by acquiring 34-year-old Ken Forsch from Houston, where he was 12-13 with a 3.20 earned-run average in 1980. After the season, he asked to be traded. The Astros first tried to ship him to San Francisco, but Forsch vetoed that deal. Then they worked the deal with the Angels, getting 22-year-old utility infielder Dickie Thon in return.

LIKE THE Pirates and Angels, the Chicago White Sox made two trades Wednesday. They sent outfielder Thad Bosley to Milwaukee for minor league outfielder John Poff and relief pitcher Mike Prolly to Philadelphia for reserve second baseman Jay Loviglio.

Bosley, who hit .224 last year for the White Sox, didn't figure to make the team this year. Prolly, 5-10 with a 3.06 ERA and eight saves last year, became expendable when the White got reliever Dennis Lamp from the Chicago Cubs last week.

Detroit picked up infielder Mick Kelleher from the Cubs in exchange for cash or a player to be named later. Kelleher batted .146 for Chicago in 1980, playing 31 games at third base, 17 at shortstop and 57 at second. In another deal, Baltimore traded shortstop Kiko Garcia to the Astros for minor league outfielder Chris Bourjos.

Mills and Breed win tennis meet

Lantz Mills and Jerry Breed defeated Bill Mills and Tom Huzzey, 6-3, 6-4, over the weekend in the finals to win the Midland Tennis Club's Men's Scramble tennis tournament.

Dennis Brittain and Eric Inagaki won consolation honors with a 6-3, 5-7, 7-5 win over T.K. Love and Mike Hicks. Barry Bering and Ken Renfro won the Class B championship with a 2-6, 7-6, 6-3 win over Clarence Marley and Amed Omar. Class B consolation honors went to Ken Moore Sr. and Ed Atkin with a 3-6, 7-6, 7-5 win over Don Baer and Bryan Bullen.

Chinn suffered the injury in a head-on tackle that followed an option play. He is expected to remain at Park Plaza Hospital for the rest of the week.

Graham first bowler to roll 300 in city tourney

By RANDY ISENBERG

Ross Graham became the first bowler to roll a 300 game in the 41 year history of the Midland Bowling Association City Championship tournament Sunday in the singles event at Air Park Lanes.

Graham also rolled a scratch 743 series and a 1994 all events total for the nine games, a 221.55 clip, and another tournament record.

Graham is a 30-year-old construction worker for HBF Construction Company and has been bowling for 10 years. Ross has been a Midlander since 1956 and graduated from Midland Lee. Graham enjoyed playing baseball as a youngster and took up bowling as a means of venting his fierce competitive drive.

He was the 1980 city scratch all events champion and won the scratch all events title with partner Choya Young. This year his highest average is 205. He is averaging 198 and 197 in two other leagues and 190 in the travel league.

Graham is a gutsy bowler and battler. He credits doubles partner Young as being a big help in his perfecting and in keeping his adrenalin flowing at an even pace. "Choya is the type of guy that never gives up," Graham said of his partner. "He could be bowling at a 120 clip and still be battling and that kind of attitude is helpful to me."

It should be noted that Young bowled very well also, including a 688 set for three games.

In discussing his 300 game, Graham says he didn't start thinking 300 until after the eighth strike. "I have had seven in a row many times before and I know that after that it gets tough."

Commenting on the 10th frame, Graham said, "By the time I threw my last ball (the 12th), my hands and knees were shaking so bad that all I was thinking was lining up on my spot, look at my target and roll the ball hard."

"All of a sudden, I was moving on the approach and then I looked up and saw the ball moving toward the pocket. After that I went kind of blank. I didn't remember what happened and I didn't see all the pins go down."

It was Graham's second 300 game in the last eight months, bowling his first perfect in a summer league at Super Bowl.

"Mental conditioning and mental toughness through and through are important," Graham said of the ingredients needed to roll a perfect game. "You have to keep your adrenalin down, control its flow. When I'm bowling good, I like to jump around a lot and run out my strikes. When you deliver the ball well and it feels good, you get really excited about it. You have to have a good positive mental attitude to bowl well. You have to have confidence in yourself and feel good about yourself."

Graham says he felt like giving up the game a few years ago while he was in Dallas at a tournament. He saw a couple of 17 and 18 year-old bowlers rolling and cranking the ball hard and he realized then that that is what he wanted to do.

He asked Clint Benefield to help him learn to throw the ball hard, and after three months of practice, Ross says, "I was throwing the ball harder, turning it more and scoring better."

In the last eight months, Graham has had two 300s and eight 700s, but he has no designs for the Pro tour. He describes himself as a hometown bowler who enjoys bowling with friends.

Locke quit or fired?

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Did Bates Locke resign as basketball coach at Jacksonville or was he fired?

That question remained unanswered today in the wake of Wednesday's announcement that the 43-year-old Locke would no longer head the Dolphins program.

School officials said in a brief press release that Locke had submitted his resignation and had not indicated what his future plans were.

But Locke told reporters and his team that the administration had asked for his resignation, but that he had not given it to them.

Two months ago, Kenny offered Locke a five-year contract with an accompanying letter asking the coach to sign and return it by Feb. 15. Locke, whose current pact expires Sept. 1, never did.

Locke, who coached at Army, Miami (Ohio) and Clemson and with the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association before coming to Jacksonville.

OC tennis coach quits

ODESSA — Susie Girard, who has been tennis coach at Odessa College for the past two years, submitted her resignation Wednesday, effective this summer at the end of her contract.

Girard, who heads both the men's and women's tennis programs at OC, said she has no immediate plans. She is a former OC tennis star and also played at Texas and Odessa High. In addition to her coaching duties at OC, she also teaches physical education.

Barry Rodenhaver, OC athletic director, said, "We will put the wheels in motion to look for the best possible coach."

Dr. Phil Speegle, OC president, said, "We appreciate Susie coming in and taking over a tough job."

Energy leader optimistic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Houston oilman who was the leader of President Reagan's transition team on energy said today the American people, as well as industry officials, are "optimistic" over the nation's energy outlook.

Michel Halbouty said the nation has the potential to produce as much oil and natural gas in the future as it has in the past.

"That goes for the rest of the world also," Halbouty told the Senate Nominations Subcommittee.

The subcommittee recommended on a 4-0 vote the confirmation of Halbouty, Edwin Cox and Edward Vetter of Dallas and Henry Harkins Sr. of Alice to the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council. "The Reagan administration will go a long way toward creating avenues on which the energy industry can move ahead," said Halbouty.

Sampson wants news on Pistons and Mavs

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Ralph Sampson, the University of Virginia's coveted 7-foot-4 sophomore center, has asked the Detroit Pistons and Dallas Mavericks to submit information on their National Basketball Association clubs, says Virginia Coach Terry Holland.

Working through Holland, Sampson asked the Pistons Wednesday to submit information about the Detroit franchise — as much as they can provide. What their draft choices are.

Things like that," Holland said in a telephone interview with the Detroit Free Press.

When contacted by telephone, Detroit General Manager Jack McCloskey volunteered to fly to Virginia to speak with Sampson, Holland said.

"I called Ralph and asked him if he wanted that," he said. "But he told me he didn't want to listen to any sales pitches. He just wanted general information (about the clubs), in writing."

Gretzky continues to knock Bruins from books

By The Associated Press

The Great Gretzky continues to knock Boston Bruins from the National Hockey League record book.

Wayne Gretzky of Edmonton posted two assists Wednesday night in the Oilers' 4-4 tie with the Colorado Rockies to set a single-season assist record with 104. That wiped out the mark of 102 set by Boston's Bobby Orr in 1971.

Just three days earlier, the 20-year-old center broke the season scoring mark of 152 points set by Orr's teammate, Phil Esposito, the same year.

In other NHL games, the Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 2-2 tie, the Hartford Whalers edged the Quebec Nordiques 5-4 and the Winnipeg Jets and Vancouver Canucks played a 4-4 tie.

One more record Gretzky is shooting for this season is the mark for points per game. The NHL record is 1.97 set in 1943 by Bill Cowley of Boston. Gretzky's 53 goals and 104 assists give him 2.01 points per game.

Despite Gretzky's effort, the Oilers were held to a tie when Lanny McDonald scored his second goal of the game at 1:15 of the third period.

Black Hawks 2, Maple Leafs 2

Reg Kerr's second goal of the game with 9:20 remaining gave Chicago the tie with Toronto. Chicago got the power-play opportunity when the Leafs were penalized for having too many men on the ice.

The tie gave the Leafs 68 points, two more than the Washington Capitals in the fight for the 16th and final playoff berth. Toronto has two games remaining, Washington three.

Whalers 5, Nordiques 4

Blaine Stoughton's second goal of the night, with 11:41 remaining, gave Hartford the victory over Quebec. Stoughton's game-winner, his 43rd of the season, came on a 12-foot wrist shot that bounced off the pads of Quebec goalie Dan Bouchard and into the net. Both teams were shorthanded at the time.

Jets 4, Canucks 4

Thomas Gradin's 20th goal of the season for Vancouver capped a wild third period in which six goals were scored, three by each team. Kevin McCarthy, Per-Olav Brasar and Harold Snepsts also scored for the Canucks.

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — It all started on Jan. 12 after a White House telephone operator wore jeans to work. Her boss sent a memo suggesting that jeans were not proper attire for White House employees. It blew up into a major national news story on the Reagan administration's plans to impose strict new dress codes on all female federal workers, requiring they wear skirts and dresses and not jeans or slacks to work.

Now that the dust has settled, it appears no sweeping edicts were sent down and only some of those people reporting the news are covered by any official dress codes.

"Dress codes for the Reagan administration don't exist," said Sheila Patton, press secretary to First Lady Nancy Reagan. "We don't need a dress code, especially in the White House, because everyone dresses properly since we consider it an honor to work here."

Several White House secretaries confirmed Patton's statement. "I have never seen a piece of paper about a dress code, and I assure you if there were one, the news would spread like wildfire," said one press office secretary.

Only journalists covering formal White House events, such as state dinners, are required to dress in the black or white tie attire requested for the guests.

But the rumor of a sweeping dress code for all federal employees made such a good story that it got into print anyway, one agency press spokesman said.

Interior Secretary James Watt was the subject of several local newspapers' gossip columns.

"Interior Secretary James Watt, like his boss the president, a bit of a traditionalist where women are concerned, let it be known shortly after he took up residence in his sixth floor office that he wanted the women on the floor to wear skirts and dresses," the Washington Post reported Feb. 18.

"According to the Energy Daily, the order backfired. The very next day every lawyer in the department gave the new secretary a silent dressing-down. They all showed up in slacks," the Post reported.

"That story was completely false," said a woman department lawyer. "It was never more than just a rumor."

But before anyone checked it out, the president of the National Organization for Women was asked for her reaction.

Eleanor Smeal predictably decried the code for women when none exists for men, and the story continued to circulate on the wires.

Asked for a review of the facts, an exasperated Interior Department spokesman said: "It makes a great story, so why spoil it?"

Rumors like that grow, the spokesman said, because Secretary Watt is "very straitlaced but he doesn't impose his views on anyone else."

Patton said the memo that started the dress code rumors was circulated while former President Carter was still in the White House by the supervisor of the White House telephone operators.

"The employee dress code thing flared up just after it was announced President and Mrs. Reagan were requesting all members of Congress to wear morning coats for the inauguration ceremonies," Patton said. "The White House memo then got blown all out of proportion and the rumors started."

A spot-check of other government agencies turned up no evidence of dress codes for employees.

But for journalists, the story is different, and there is some grumbling, especially since this dress code most affects men.

Those reporters, photographers and camera crews who cover formal White House events must either own or rent formal attire to be allowed into the reception and dining rooms to get their stories.

Since the ruffled shirts and cummerbunds often get in the way of 30 pounds of lighting and sound equipment for the television technicians, they complained.

"The rule got mixed reviews at first," Patton acknowledged. "But this was not a new rule. It has always been around, but it had been allowed to lapse during the Carter term."

Gun issue

standard for some

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Secret Service agents protecting President Reagan during the assassination attempt Monday used an Israeli submachine gun that is standard issue for many security forces around the world.

Millions of television viewers saw a Secret Service man menacingly waving a Uzi submachine gun as Reagan was hustled into his limousine and other security men wrestled the president's alleged assailant to the ground.

When the TV film of the shooting was played on Israeli television, viewers easily recognized the locally made weapon, which has been used by the Israeli army and security forces for nearly 25 years.

A military spokesman said the Uzi, a light-weight, easy-to-handle yet powerful weapon, was first developed in the 1950s and was first used in action in the 1956 Sinai Campaign. The gun, which shoots 9mm bullets, was designed for short-range warfare, with a maximum range of 350 yards and a magazine carrying 25 rounds.

Weighing less than eight pounds and consisting of only six parts, the Uzi is simple to operate, dismantle and repair and has a high survival rate under harsh battle conditions.

(INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT)

APRIL 15 IS DEPOSIT DEADLINE

If you haven't already made your 1980 contributions to your Individual Retirement Account — or even if you haven't opened one yet — you still can at First Savings and Loan in Midland through April 15.

To take advantage of your tax shelter for 1980, you must open or add to your IRA before you file your tax return.

And remember, we pay the maximum interest permitted on all IRA tax sheltered accounts. If you are not now covered by any other retirement plan and invest 15% of your annual salary (up to a maximum $1500 each year) you will not have to pay any federal income taxes on your IRA, or the interest it builds, until you retire or begin withdrawing the funds.

Not only can you reduce your income tax, if you also happen to be under 35 years old now, you could, by the time you retire, be a quarter-millionaire! Social Security might not be so bad with a quarter of a million dollars to ease over the rough spots!

Stop by First Savings downtown at 500 W. Wall or in San Miguel Square and open or add to your IRA account before time runs out. The few minutes it takes now can make a world of difference when you retire.

Three Rivers man sent for federal medical help

ODESSA — A 21-year-old Three Rivers man, who admits to suicidal tendencies and to drug and alcohol abuse, was ordered to a federal medical center for 60 days for observation and treatment before Federal Judge Lucius D. Bunton decides on disposition of the man's case.

Judge Bunton ordered the defendant, Robert Luis Guerra, who recently has lived in Odessa, to undergo observation and treatment to determine if he can overcome his compulsions for marijuana, drugs and alcohol.

Guerra, who had been on probation for possession of marijuana, admitted to violating conditions of probation in 1980 by a possession of "pot" (marijuana), by being drunk and by beating up on his ex-wife.

"I had a misunderstanding with my (ex-)wife," he told the judge, who was holding court in the Ector County Courthouse. Judge Bunton usually presides in Midland.

True to his courtroom code, the judge offered the defendant a chance to speak on his behalf and to make a plea for compassion and for mitigated punishment.

"What do you think I ought to do to you, Mr. Guerra?" Bunton asked. "Obviously, you're not off of whiskey. You're still drinking, Mr. Guerra."

The judge recognized the man for being "smart" and for his understanding the laws and probation rules he had violated.

"You think I ought to let you free and beat up your wife?"

Guerra indicated that he didn't know exactly what would be best for him.

"I hate to send you to the penitentiary," Bunton said. "It's a very harsh thing to do."

The judge continue his query of the defendant.

"Do you want to get off of drugs? Off of whiskey?"

"Yes, sir," Guerra meekly responded. "I want to live a normal life."

The judge then ordered Guerra's 60-day commitment in the federal medical facility for "study and observation." Following that period and his perusal of the medical and psychiatric reports, the judge will decide on Guerra's punishment.

"I'm worried about your life," Bunton said, and about his misuse of "pills" and his use of "dope" and whiskey.

The judge sternly told the man that he's "got to want to" get off of dope, pills, and liquor before any treatment could be effective.

"Maybe," the judge said, "the doctors can help you. You can't be a normal human being unless you get your act together."

Andrews to host tribute to film star Gene Autry

ANDREWS — A little nostalgia will hit West Texas this weekend as Andrews hosts its first "Mayor's Tribute to Gene Autry: an American Hero."

Andrews Mayor Louis T. Miller has spent months compiling "the largest exhibit of Gene Autry movies and related memorabilia, under one roof, ever shown."

Collectors and aficionados in conjunction with the mayor and the Chamber of Commerce of Andrews will present some 2,000 items during the tribute to the native Texan cowboy — including eight of Autry's 93 feature-length films — which begins Friday for area schoolchildren and Saturday at 9 a.m. for the general public. Saturday's exhibit lasts until 9 p.m. Sunday's activities are scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m.

There is no admission charge for any of these events, according to Miller. However, there is limited seating for the films.

Himself a 30-year collector of Autry memorabilia, Miller said the items shown in the tribute were assembled from eight different collectors and dealers from across the country.

As this is the first "Texas tribute" to the cowboy's 50 years of show business, Miller said the Andrews event will be a "Texas-sized deal."

Miller has been on a letter-writing campaign to receive recognition for Autry for the special weekend, even though Autry himself is not expected to show up. According to the mayor, who proclaimed Sunday "Gene Autry Day in Andrews," Gov. Bill Clements made Autry an honorary admiral in the Texas Navy on March 26; the Texas House of Representatives passed a resolution (No. 161) by Rep. Jim Rudd saluting Autry Wednesday; the U.S. Senate passed Sen. E.L. Short's resolution No. 396 to recognize Autry; the Andrews County Commissioners passed its resolution for him March 30; and U.S. Rep. Kent Hance sent a letter in recognition of the day — and wrote President Ronald Reagan about it.

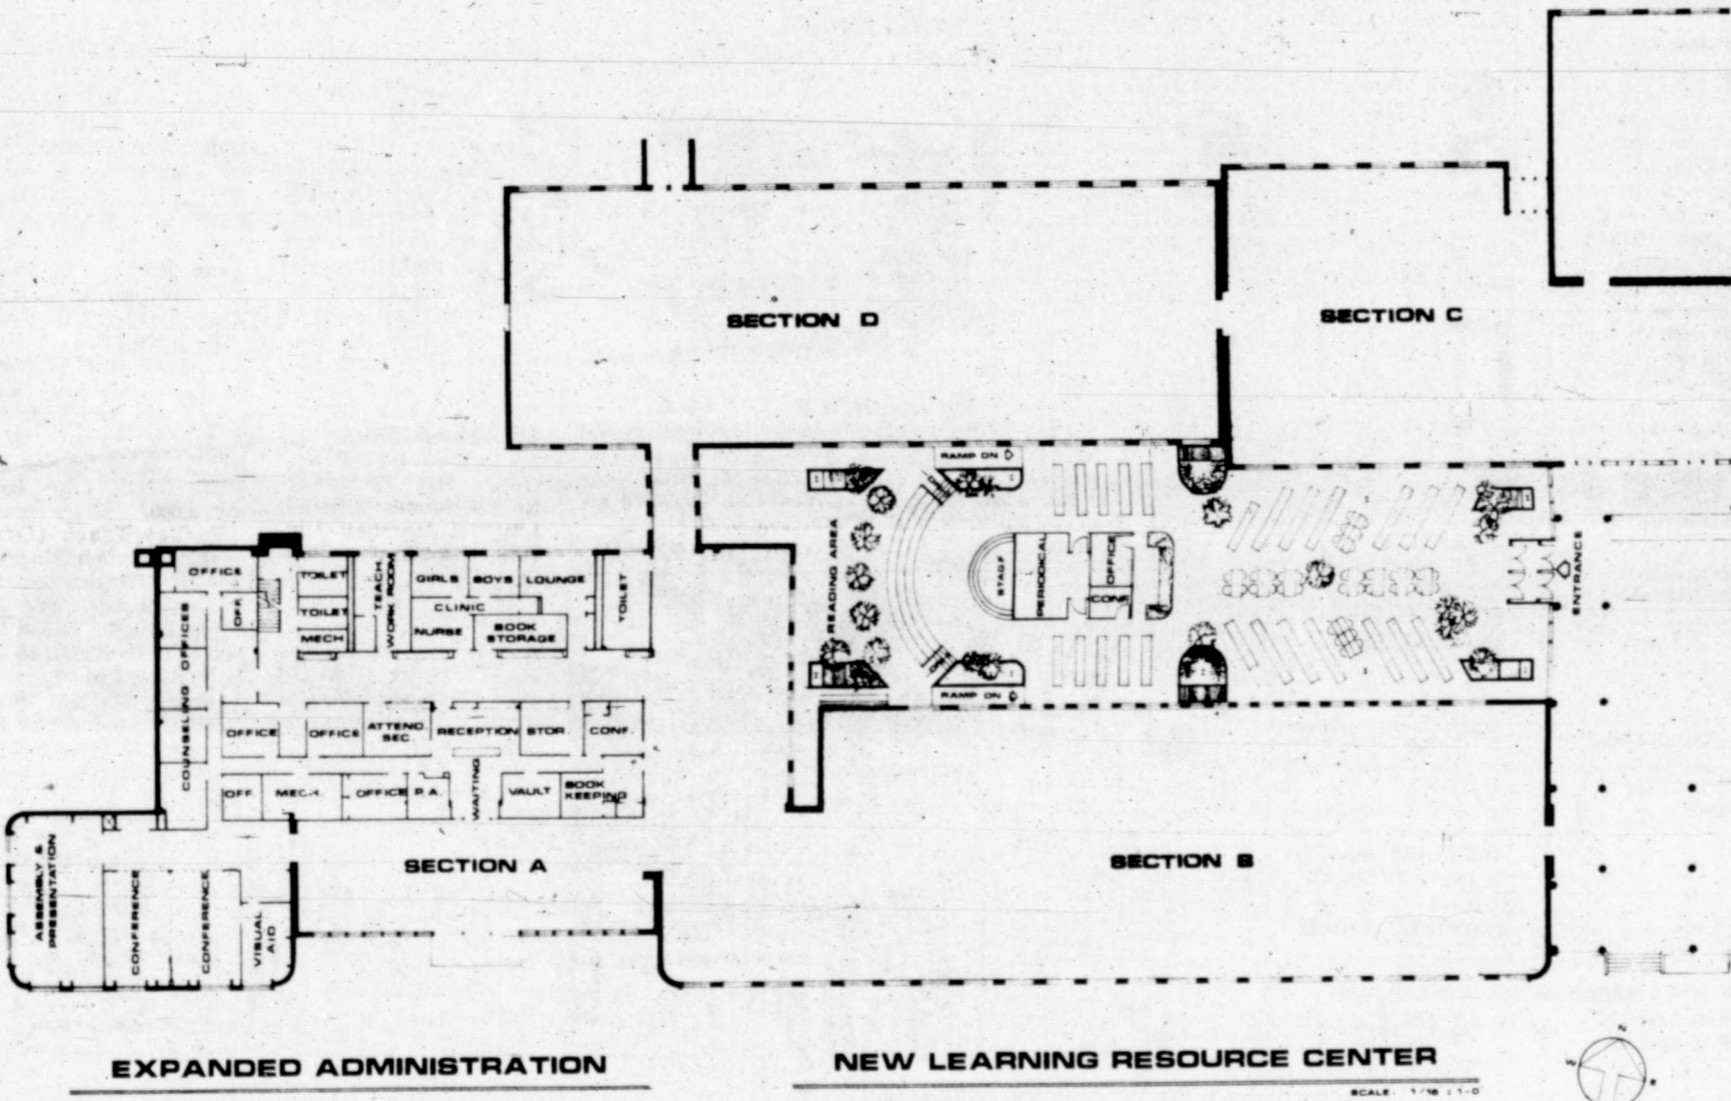

Louis T. Miller

The exhibit will be held in the Andrews Civic Center at the city's airport on Big Spring Highway, and films will be shown only a short walk away at the Andrews Senior Center (in the same parking area).

The Andrews Boys Club and the Senior Citizens will serve refreshments as a fund raising projects, but everything else is free.

Memorabilia will be from the collections of Eddie Brandt of North Hollywood, Calif., Truman Evtitt of Fort Worth, Ray Lavoie of Beverly Hills, Calif., Chuck McCleary of Los Angeles, Calif., Tom Rigsby of Abilene, Jim Rutland of Land O'Lakes, Fla., Bob and Charles Smith of Canton, Okla., and Miller.

Among the films to be shown in the order they were released will be "Tumbling Tumbleweeds," "Oh, Susanna," "Melody Ranch," "Twilight on the Rio Grande" and "Cowtown." In addition, the group will show Autry's first TV show of his series, "Head for Texas," and his last show, "Ghost Ranch" at the festival.

A new learning resource center at Midland High School would involve closing an outer patio and placing library facilities between two classroom areas. Conference rooms and administrative offices would be moved into the old library building.

U.S. may resume aid to Nicaragua despite acts

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is holding out the possibility of resuming U.S. assistance to Nicaragua despite that country's past role as a conduit for weapons shipments to leftist rebels in El Salvador.

State Department spokesman William Dyess said Wednesday that provisions of U.S. law require a termination of U.S. assistance to Nicaragua.

But he said there is no hard evidence of arms transfers through Nicaragua over the past few weeks and the administration is anxious to encourage a continuation of these "favorable trends."

Accordingly, Dyess said, the United States is considering a resumption of a $10 million food aid program and does not rule out the eventual renewal of economic development assistance as well.

His announcement followed a lengthy administration study of how to deal with Nicaragua's alleged role as a major shipment point for an estimated 200 tons of Soviet-bloc weaponry to Salvadoran rebels late last year and early this year.

When Congress approved a $75 million assistance package last summer, it included a provision requiring termination of aid disbursements if Nicaragua were found to be supporting violence in another country.

Some $60 million of that assistance was disbursed before the United States obtained documents captured from Salvadoran rebels purportedly showing Nicaragua's role as a weapons conduit.

The Carter administration temporarily suspended aid disbursements in January, a policy which was continued after President Reagan took office.

It was not until Wednesday that the Reagan administration formally terminated the Nicaraguan aid program.

But officials have expressed concern that a permanent cutoff would play into the hands of pro-Cuban elements within the Sandinista leadership in Nicaragua and deprive the United States of its only hope of moderating that country's political direction.

According to one official, the administration could legally resume assistance to Nicaragua under a provision giving the executive branch authority to send U.S. aid to a given country if the president determines it is in the national interest.

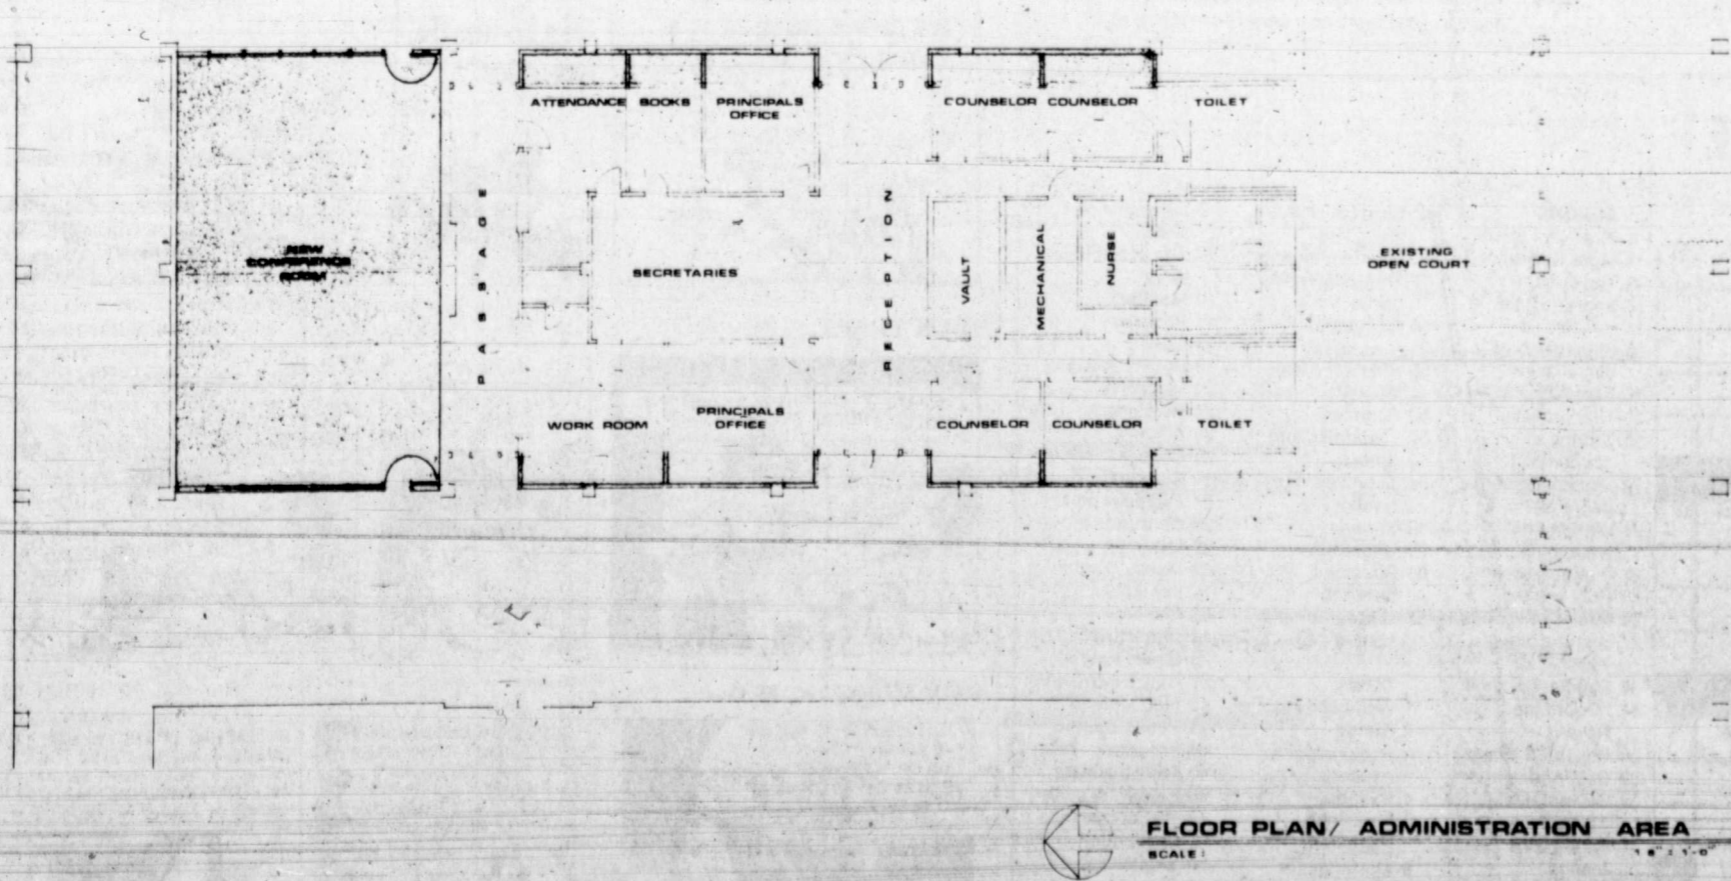

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the administration plans to pursue that course if it is convinced that Nicaragua has severed its military ties with the Salvadoran rebels.

Dyess said the United States remains concerned that some arms traffic may be continuing through Nicaragua and that political and logistical support "very probably continues."

On the other hand, he said, "important U.S. security interests are at stake in the region."

"We want to encourage a continuation of recent favorable trends with regard to Nicaraguan support for the Salvadoran guerrillas."

"We also want to continue to assist moderate forces in Nicaragua which are resisting Marxist domination, working toward a democratic alternative and keeping alive the private sector," he said.

Expansion at Lee High School would involve extending east and west administrative wall offices four feet in addition to construction of new parent and teacher conference rooms.

a third trump. But declarer was able to counter in elegant fashion. He won in his hand and cashed just one high heart. On this he sluffed one of dummy's diamonds.

Now declarer led a low diamond and finessed the nine. When that forced the ace, the contract was safe. The jack of diamonds would drive out the king, and there was still a trump in dummy to take care of the fifth heart.

What if the finesse of the nine of diamonds lost to the ten? Declarer was no worse off than if he had cashed all his high hearts and discarded diamonds from dummy. The defenders would have been able to take two high diamonds and force dummy to ruff the third diamond.

But now declarer would still have been able to fall back on a 4-3 heart break to land his game.

Answer on Market Page

Combining chances is a key element of declarer play. South avoided several pitfalls on this hand to bring home a close contract.

In terms of high cards, South did not have much more than a minimum opening bid. However, his hand had good trick-taking potential, so after his partner raised spades, he went straight to game and kept his heart suit concealed.

West led a heart, won by dummy's king. When a spade to the ace felled the queen, it would have been easy for declarer to go wrong. For instance, if declarer abandons trump and tries to discard dummy's diamonds on hearts, he can be defeated. East will ruff the third diamond, cash the king of spades and ace of diamonds, and exit with a diamond. Declarer is left with three losers in his hand and only two trumps in dummy to handle those losers, so he will end up down one.

Declarer found a better line. He continued with the jack of spades. East did the best he could by winning the king of spades and continuing
