First National reveals plans for new tower

Staff Writer

Midland's First National Bank, which prides itself as Texas' largest independent bank, is giving towering credence to the Tall City image by announcing plans for a 40-story bank-office complex in downtown Mid-

"It is with pride, confidence, and excitement that we...share our architects' rendering and models depicting the facility," Charles Fraser, president of the bank, said this morning in the Midland Hilton immediately following a bank shareholders' meeting.

As envisioned, the downtown office complex will provide "potential office space in the magnitude" of 11/2 to 21/2 million or more square feet and will ultimately provide parking space for as many of 14,000 automobiles, a "shopping galleria patterned after the Williams Center in Tulsa (Oklahoand the Galleria in Houston," and a site for the Midland County

The dual complex will be located in 14 acres referred to as North Super Block and South Super Block.

"It's a monstrosity," said Midland County Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis. "It's fantastic.

The 40-story building, the first of two towers proposed by the bank, will tower over the existing bank, which grew from eight stories to 24 stories

"THE FIRST National Bank of Midland has essentially acquired all of the land not now owned by either the city of Midland or Midland County in two separate tracts, which we will refer to as the 'North Super Block' and the 'South Super Block,' " said Fraser.

The North Super Block will be bounded by Missouri Avenue, Loraine

Street, Front Avenue and Big Spring Street and will consist of approximately 370,000 square feet or slightly more than eight acres.

The South Super Block will be bounded by Industrial Avenue, Main Street, Washington Avenue and Big Spring Street and will contain about 280,000 square feet or about six acres. "I must emphasize," Fraser said, "that we are a banking institution and under no circumstance will be become a real-estate developer."

Wood & Associates, a Dallas-based architectual and masters planning firm, has been working with the bank for about nine months in developing the project designed.

Fraser did not offer a specific dollar-figure on the project or any of its

The design, Fraser said, will incorporate the "flexibility" to accommodate the bank's expansion's needs, space for existing tenants and other "demands not only for parking to support our growth but also to mitigate the extreme pressure now existent on the central business district, amenities for the community and the overall demands for first-class office space" for the "next decade and beyond." The North Super Block will house a multi-level garage for 4,000 automo-

Chamber board airs new projects

Clean-up campaign, airport expansion discussed

By SUE FAHLGREN

Plans for the future expansion of Midland Regional Airport and details of the spring clean-up campaign were announced at the Chamber of Commerce's Wednesday board meeting.

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation at the airport, said growth at the airport is forcing the expansion.

For the first quarter of 1981, boardings were up 17 percent," he said, adding the first three months of the year are "historically low travel months." Most other airports in Texas showed a drop in boardings for the quarter, he said.

In what may be the first obvious move toward expansion, Banks announced American Airlines would begin operation at Midland Regional Airport on June 11. Later this year, Sun Air will begin four daily flights (three to Dallas-Fort Worth and one to Houston) on DC-9s.

The addition of two new airlines 'does present quite a few problems,' Banks pointed out. "One of the major problems is where's the airport going

Airport officials hope to be able to serve the additional travelers with more runways, access roads and parking facilities purchased through a future bond issue without a tax

"The revenues are going to take care of that" bond debt, Banks told Chamber directors. "We still have to go out for this bond vote."

Parking, he said, had to be the first priority in the expansion. Parking brought in $32,000 in 1969, he said. In 1980, the figure was up to $668,000 and will climb to $730,000 in the near future, Banks said.

"The parking situation is de-sparate," Banks said. He added a new road system with more frontal access should help parking somewhat, how-ever the parking problems need to be solved before any expansion can be

In other Chamber news, the spring clean-up campaign has been set for the weekends of May 16 and May 23. Chamber volunteers again will pick up without charge everything from trash to tree limbs which residents bag from their yard.

We'll do our best to make Midland as beautiful as we can as we move into the summer months," W.H. "Bill" Collyns, director of the cleanup campaign, said. Details of the clean-up will be announced later.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Association will host Pioneer Days May 11, including an appearance by Gov. Bill Clements, a buffet at the Petroleum Club and tours of the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum.

On May 13 the Chamber will receive the final report on its parking study of Midland. That report has been delayed from April 27.

The annual chamber banquet is scheduled for May 1 with Dr. James Edwards, secretary of the Department of Energy as featured speaker. Fred Tyler announced Edwards would be giving a "major energy address." In addition, the banquet will feature a 15-minute videotape documentary on Midland during the 1970s and the forecast for the city

Mayor 'encouraged' by economic briefing

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

Mayor G. Thane Akins said he felt "encouraged" by the federal government's economic recovery moves after attending a day-long briefing session Wednesday with Cabinet members and Vice President George Bush in Washington for southern and southwestern region mayors, county officials and state legislators.

Akins said this morning the federal government was moving away from full-control and affording local and state officials to accept more power over community affairs.

"That's the direction they're heading," Akins said. "It's the sort of thing that's got to be done. They seem to be moving that way (away from federal control) and it is encourag-

In meeting with Cabinet members Donald Regan, David Stockman, Drew Lewis, Terrell Bell, White House staffer Jim Baker and Bush, the 150 southern officials seemed "highly supportive" of Reagan's economic recovery plans.

"All of these people spoke of the overall philosophy they were operating under in trying to get something done," Akins explained "Basically, they said some things the people here in this area have been waiting to hear for a long time," he said, meaning the advancement of local controls and the shunning of federal restrictions.

Akins said a panel of the Office of Budget and Management had a question and answer session on budgeting plans for such topics as block grants, education and the CETA program, transportation, community development and housing.
"In all of these areas, a different attitude was very evident," Akins said. "In terms of the Department of Education, in particular, there was an attitude of, if not eliminating it, then cutting back and placing it under the guidelines of state bodies. The same thing is true with the Depart-

Akins said the administration's economic recovery package reflects cut-backs and phasing-out of regulations and streamlining government con-trols. "That's the whole thrust of this program. They are combining a lot of categorical things," he said. "They want to place the needs of the community and the state back in the hands of those people who can better see and better serve those localities.

"It's what we've been hopeful for,"

"Government trying to control commodities fouls up the market. Taking controls off would lead to increased drilling."

Butler's 'energetic' background makes him good choice for post

Butler is not without his own list of credentials for the FERC post. Born in Midland, Butler gained his law degree from The University of Texas and worked for a law firm for two years before serving a two-year stint as Tower's chief legislative

HE LEFT THAT POST in 1975, but returned to Tower's office in 1979 as administrative assistant, specializing in energy issues. Using his background, Butler coordinated the drafting of energy issue papers for the Republican Platform Committee during the party's national convention in Detroit last summer. And he has been responsible for the Reagan tran-sition team's policy paper on the Alaskan Natural Gas Transportation

The responsibilities of FERC are no light task, according to Butler. FERC directs the regulating of all well sales of natural gas, interstate sales of natural gas by pipelines, interstate (wholesale) sales of electricity, interstate transportation of crude oil and oil products and licensing of hydroelectric projects.

Of all these job divisions, it will be control of natural gas sales that will hit closer to Midland. As Butler explained the history of pipeline regula-tion he also peered into the future for natural gas.

Back in the early 1900s, companies in the northwest were in competi-tion."But it's silly to lay pipelines right next to each other."

Leaning back hair chair, Butler related that today there is no competition in transporting gas by pipe-line, and that's why the FERC regulates that industry.

"They set the rate to what would be an equivalent of competitive charges.

There's a complicated set of evaluation forms which are used to see what the rates should be."

Distribution of the briefing paper to congressional leaders marked the start of the administration's fight to gain approval for the sale, which the oil-rich Saudis have used as a test of U.S. friendship.

Formal substitution of the sale proposal will come later - after President Reagan and his aides try to quell congressional opposition. Once the plan is sent to Congress, the House and Senate have 30 days to block it. By at least one congressional count

A stream of tractors from as far away as Hereford, Tulia and Hope rolled into Amarillo Wednesday, where farmers attended a hearing conducted by U.S. Rep. Charles Stenfold of Stamford.

Farmers protest Reagan bill

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Echoing complaints made against Jimmy Carter a year ago, spokesmen for Texas farmers complained to a Congressional subcommittee that President Reagan's farm policies would mean "total disaster" for U.S. farm-Almost 200 people attended Wednesday's day-long public hearing here on the Reagan administration's 1981 farm bill. Almost four dozen of them testified.

Many of those attending had shown their displeasure with the proposed Reagan policies by joining an early morning tractorcade into the city.

Doug Seal of the Texas Democratic Farmer's Caucus was one of the witnesses. He claimed the proposed administration farm policy would result in "total disaster for the American farm family."

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford directed the hearing, along with Democratic panel members U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower of Vernon and Kent Hance of Lubbock, and Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn.

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, also appeared at the hearing

House panel investigating allegations on commodities

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee on small business is looking into allegations that the Agriculture Department is following cumbersome and sometimes wasteful procedures in buying food commodities for donation to school lunch programs.

Rep. Andy Ireland, D-Fla., chairman of the panel, said Wednesday he will begin hearings next week on the role of small businesses in the department's commodity procurement process.

"Small businesses have complained to the subcommittee that there is a lack of competition for and growing concentration in the bid awards made by the USDA for meat, poultry, fruit and vegetable buys made." Ireland said.

"They also have told me that the same problem exists in the processing of USDA commodities. As a result, I have scheduled several hearings to explore this issue."

Ireland said two days of hearings will be held on April 28-29. Witnesses will include school board members, school food service diretors and several small-business operators.

A subcommittee staff member said at least one more day has tentatively been added for sometime next month to give Agriculture Department officials, including Secretary John R. Block, an opportunity to testify.

Currently, the department spends about $1 billion a year on a wide variety of food commodities which it then donates to schools, nursing homes and other institutional programs.

A background paper accompanying Ireland's announcement included a list of allegations that the subcommittee's staff gleaned from interviews with small-business people, food service officials and

Reagan approves plan phasing out embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has approved phasing out the grain embargo against the Soviet Union under a plan designed to encourage Soviet restraint with Poland, a broadcast report says.

CBS News quoted an unidentified official Wednesday as saying the plan calls for allowing the Soviets to purchase more wheat and possibly more soybeans depending on "how they behave" over labor unrest in Poland. Corn would not be included because of a drought in the Midwest, CBS said.

The report said Reagan approved the concept last week and would formally decide to lift the embargo at a meeting today with top officials. It is to be announced Friday after the commodity and stock markets have closed, the network said.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said, however, "I can't confirm a meeting (today) and the president has made no decision." At the regular briefing for reporters earlier, Speakes several times said the president had not decided.

Weekend weather for area towns expected to be nicer

The gray skies and rain may be clearing up by Friday for a pretty weekend, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport

Skies will be partly cloudy tonight, but there is no precipitation in the forecast. The low tonight should be somewhat cooler, dropping to near 50 degrees.

The low this morning was 54 degrees. The record low for the date was set in 1944 at 37 degrees.

Skies will be fair and weather mild on Friday as temperatures once again climb to near 80 degrees.

Winds will be light and variable tonight, becoming southerly at 10-15 mph on Friday.

Rainfall recorded at the NWS Wednesday amounted to .35 of an inch, bringing the monthly total to 2.04 inches and the year-to-date total to 3.83.

Wednesday's high was 79 degrees, while the record high for the date was set at 96 degrees in 1965.

First National Bank plans new 40-story office complex

biles and will parallel Front Avenue.

The proposed twin, 40-story towers will contain 800,000 square feet of gross space. Both are proposed for the northwest and northeast corners of the tract.

BANK EXECUTIVES for some time have been negotiating with Midland County and city of Midland officials to relocate the Midland County Public Library, which was built in 1958 at 301 W. Missouri Ave. for $387,-282.82 financed via bonds. All told, including subsequent additions and improvements, the county has invested $449,460.76 in the library, which covers a quarter of a block at Missouri Avenue and Colorado Street.

"It is hoped," Fraser said, "that negotiations with county and city officials will result in the relocation of the Midland County Library to a location at the center of the northern Super Block adjoining the multi-level parking garage at street level." he said.

ing garage at street level," he said.

The library will be seated in a two-acre, V-shaped landscaped plaza along the Missouri Avenue side of the complex.

The sunken library plaza will complement the bank plaza now at the corner of Big Spring Street and Wall Avenue and will feature a garden and fountain.

The architects' library scheme calls for 26,000-square-feet of floor space.

"This size will allow the library to fill increasing community needs by additional floors to the structure," said Fraser, who, in addition to The First National Bank's president, is its chief executive officer and chairman

"This relocation could, hopefully, fulfill another of the 'Objectives for the '80s' goals in providing the community with a library facility adequate in size to meet the growth of the '80s."

The scheme also calls for enclosed parking for library patrons.

THE SOUTH SUPER block will provide for about 900 parking spaces per level at a rental cost per space that will make downtown parking "more financially palatable."

The area, subject to approval by the city of Midland, will be cleared and hard-surfaced to provide interim parking "for those persons displaced from the North Super Block construction site."

"In the future," he said, "it is contemplated that one or more decks up to a maximum of 10 floors can be added to this area such that ultimately as many as 9,000 or 10,000 automobiles could be located on the Southern Super Block." Fraser said.

Access to the parking area across the Missouri Pacific Railway Co. tracks will be provided by a "well lighted, pedestrian tunnel."

Fraser, stressing that the bank is a financial institution and not a real-estate developer, said that financing for "Eagle Plaza" will be arranged so that "our highest priority, which is to be a safe place for people to deposit their money, is in no way compromised."

"Our second highest priority is to earn a reasonable return for our stockholders on their $72 million equity investment in the bank."

"We will accomplish this second objective by continuing our role as the dominant source of bank financing within our trade area."

The First National Bank, which is into its ninth decade, was rooted in ranching, farming and railroading and gained its impetus as a burgeoning financial institution after the Santa Rita discovery oil well in 1923 at Texon near Big Lake about 70 miles southeast of Midland.

The Santa Rita gave rise to phenomenal drilling activity and to the Permian Basin Oil Empire of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Midland's independent bank helped finance oil-and-gas ventures, related industries and businesses and continues in that role today.

"Consistent with the motivation provided First National by its directors and stockholders for the past 91 years, we are dedicated to prudent development of Midland," Fraser said, "and trust that the community will endorse our construction of 'Midland Plaza' or 'Eagle Plaza' or whatever name the complex may ultimately assume."

That proposed complex may give birth to a third 40-story tower if the economic climate encourages further development by the bank.

"The people of Midland and the Permian Basin have provided us with the opportunity to be a 'billion-dollar bank,' " Fraser said.

"We will provide West Texas with an office-and-banking complex of which it can be proud — a complex which reflects our faith in the future, and...will further Midland's ranking as the third largest office center in Texas."

Texas' metropolitan centers of Houston and Dallas are No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in office space.

respectively, in office space.

The Midland Hilton at Wall Avenue and Loraine Street, the site of this morning's announcement by Fraser, was the old Scharbauer Hotel more than 50

The six-story Scharbauer and the 12-story Petroleum (T.S. Hogan) Building were built in the late 1920s and became omens for a office city keyed to petroleum.

The old Scharbauer was razed 1973. The Hilton boom started in 1974. Hogan's Petroleum Building still stands in downtown Midland.

Seven prisoners escape

EAGLE PASS, Texas (AP) — Authorities were searching today for seven prisoners who escaped from their jail cells in this South Texas border city Wednesday.

Officers said the six federal inmates and one county prisoner, apparently aided by someone outside the Maverick County Jail, used a hacksaw and propane torch to cut their cell bars. They then soaped their bodies to slide between the bars to freedom.

Authorities said they had no leads to the prisoners, who escaped between 4 a.m. and 7:15 a.m.

Brady said stable after surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surgeons closed a hole in the bullet-pierced brain of White House press secretary James S. Brady early today after a buildup of air had caused potentially dangerous pressure inside his skull. Brady was reported "very stable" through the 54-hour operation and in no danger.

The operation, which began late Wednesday and lasted past midnight, was described officially as "non-urgent." It followed the insertion of needles into Brady's brain to drain off air in fluid canals.

Dr Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for George Washington University Hospital, said the 40-year-old Brady was awake and "wiggling his toes" on his way to the recovery room.

O'Leary added, however, that doctors are "guarded" about the success of the repair, saying that would not be known for a few days.

The air leak and the resulting surgery represented a "setback in terms of the totality of (Brady's) recovery" from the serious head wound he suffered in a March 30 assassination attempt on President Reagan, O'Leary said.

But O'Leary stressed it was not a setback in Brady's "neurologic recovery," that is, the recovery of his brain functions previously described as remarkable. Surgeons noted Wednesday night that the "previous injury to the brain was observed to be healing well," according to a White House

It was the second complication in Brady's recovery from the wound he suffered in the gunfire that struck him, Reagan and two law officers. Over the weekend, anti-convulsant drugs caused a fever and rash, which disappeared when different medication was used, officials said.

Reagan was informed of the surgery about two hours after it began, said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes. Earlier in the day, in his first interview since the shooting, Reagan said he prays daily for Brady's recovery and was holding his job open for him.

Pressure inside the skull is dangerous. If great enough, it can injure the brain stem, which controls automatic body processes such as breathing. "This is an nth-degree situation which we weren't close to," O'Leary said. "But increased pressure in the skull can result in various kinds of neurologic damage that are hard to define and hard to notice."

Pressure on the brain and infection are the most critical complications that can follow brain injuri5s.

The White House said Wednesday

"This can be very subtle. Maybe the patient is just tired and wants to

But Dr. Arthur Korbine, who performed the initial five-hour operation after Brady was shot, ordered a brain scan by tomography, an X-ray procedure that yields a cross-section of any desired portion of the body.

That scan revealed "a significant amount9" of air in the left and right ventricles, the interconnecting canals normally containing cereberospinal fluid, according to the White House statement read to reporters by Speakes.

said, are controlled by the Natural Gas Policy. Under this, the FERC "makes determinations of what wells fit in what categories."

Deep gas, for example, is that discovered at greater than 15,000 feet. And because it falls into that category, the policy states that the "producer can charge whatever the market will bear. The problem is finding a buyer to pay what they want to charge," said Butler.

The question put before the FERC now, in Butler's view, is "how much flexibility the common man has in raising the gas rates."

The commission has allowed some additional costs to be tacked on in certain categories. Gas prices, thus, can be hiked in this manner and these extra charges don't require FERC approval, according to Butler.

Price controls on additional categories of natural gas should be expiring Jan. 1, 1985. And when all divisions of natural gas shed the controls. Butler explained, the responsibilities of the FERC for regulating well-head price would be eliminated. This, he added, "could reduce the size of the commission."

Currently, it staffs 1,800 persons. And a third of those could be gone if the controls are lifted, according to

"PHILOSOPHICALLY, we would like to see government get out of that business," Butler said, echoing the President's campaign promises.

"Government trying to control commodities fouls up the market. Taking controls off would lead to increased drilling."

Drilling for natural gas decreased during the 1970s as controls increased. And industries were prohibited from using natural gas. But Butler believes "we've turned the corner" and natural gas will be more in demand in the future. And as the demand increases, so will production

"I believe there's an incredible amount of natural gas under the land. If we can get the government's nose out of producers' business, we'll find a lot of gas."

Butler pointed to a recent large discovery in the Tuscaloosa Bend to support his theory of large undiscovered pools of natural gas.

The cost of finding such a large natural gas réserve is far below that of developing alternate sources, he said. That one well in the Tuscaloosa Bend cost $14 million, but is bringing in 144 million cubic feet of natural gas a day.

A coal gasification plant, he said, cost $1.8 billion to construct and is producing 137.5 million cubic feet a day, Butler related.

"We went through a period when wrong decisions were made about natural gas. Production went way low and as a result there were shortages in the early 1970s. That created curtailments."

THE REACTION by the government was, Butler commented, "We're running out of gas."

Natural gas is a "clean-burning fuel," he said of the resource's advantage. "It was the best home heating fuel."

And it was a major source of power for running electric companies in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana. But former President Carter took that gas and shipped it north, he charged, restricting its use in the south for power plants.

"And the pricing categories brought distortions across the market. Utility companies then had to resort to more expensive fuels," he added. They were junking useful plants before their (plants') lifespan

Butler outlined two constraints on natural gas:

—Supply constraint. "The higher the price, the more gas you'll have."
People cut down their use when the prices go too high.

—Demand constraint. "Rate design by the FERC discourages industrial

The problem with demand restraints, he explained, is that producers won't give more than the market demands. The real future growth for natural gas lies in the industrial area. Most homes today are being constructed for total electric use.

AS THE DESIGNATED head of the "FERC, Butler expects to see the repeal, "or at least the modification of these price controls. As long as there are national gas price controls, the producers will have to labor under it."

Despite the loss of his interest in a producing well, Butler looked at the job in another positive light: "I'll get a bigger office," he laughed.

Burglaries, thefts top crime list

Theft and burglary complaints with total losses in excess of $6,300 topped the list of criminal activity reported to police and sheriff's deputies during the past 24 hours.

Jack Blair, 2806 N. Garfield St., reported the theft of a man's necklace and pendant worth $2,500, while Don Tinley of Littlefield, Colo., told officers a briefcase containing numerous items valued at $625 was stolen from a room at the Lexington Apartments, 1003 S. Midkiff Road.

In addition to a calculator, pocket tape recorder and oil well drilling books, Tinley said blank checks from The First National Bank of Midland and checks from the Republic National Bank of Colorado were in the brief-rest on its hood in Scharbauer Draw.

She was apparently thrown from the vehicle and was found lying nearby. A hospital spokeswoman said the Evans woman was still being treated at 8:30 a.m. this morning.

Police study Atlanta group's witness claim

ATLANTA (AP) - Police say they will be able to determine quickly whether a civil rights group that has come up with an unidentified "witness" has solved some of the 25 slayings of young blacks that have plagued Atlanta over the last 21 months.

"I don't consider the nature of the information something that will take a long time" to evaluate, said Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown. He did not say exactly how long it might take. He also said late Wednesday that police did not have enough evidence to arrest anyone.

Roy Innis, staff director of the Congress of Racial Equality, announced Wednesday his investigators had found a "psychopath" they believed responsible for the slayings. Innis said the investigators also had found a witness who could link the "psychopath" to at least six of the killings. He did not identify the witness or detail the evidence.

However, an editor who spent five hours Monday interviewing the witness said he felt the person's story was "plausible."
"I'm emphasizing that I'm using the word plausible, not believable or anything else, but plausible," said John Schaffner, managing editor of The Atlanta

"I wouldn't literally call this person a witness, but it is a person that possibly might be able to shed some light" on the investigation, Schaffner said. He would not discuss the results of the interview.

"We are very convinced we have broken this case, and we can prove it," Innis said, producing an envelope he said contained a picture of the "psychopath." Innis, fighting to retain control of the fading civil rights group, would not make the picture

However, the New York Daily News quoted Larry Mitchell, a spokesman for Innis, as saying the CORE suspect was a black man. Mitchell added the group's investigation indicated a conspiracy involving Innis said his investigators would "collar" their suspect by 1 p.m. Saturday if police had not arrested anyone or made some progress by then. Innis said CORE had the person under surveillance.

"I certainly consider it (Innis' information) important," said John Glover, special agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office. "We will be checking it

Wednesday night, Atlanta television station WAGA reported that Innis's witness was a Miami woman who had received information by telephone from an Atlanta man.

According to the station, the woman said she was told that a black man and white man were responsible for several recent slayings. Brown declined comment on the WAGA report.

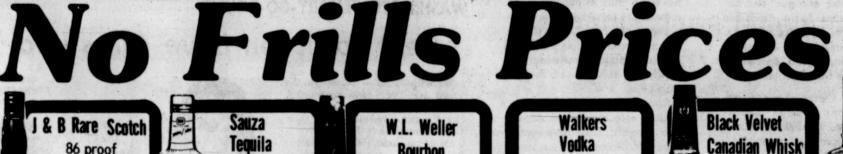

Schaffner, who refused to say if he talked to a Miami woman, said Innis aide George Holmes called him Monday and asked for a meeting to discuss evidence in the cases. The interview took place that In a statement, Schaffner said he told Holmes that unless the CORE investigators took their information to the police by 6 p.m. Tuesday he would do so. He said he called authorities Tuesday night. A special task force is investigating the slayings as well as one disappearance. Meanwhile, Brown said, police are trying to figure out the latest wrinkle in the string of slayings. Three of the last four victims have been adults. All 21 prior victims were children.

Mr. Reagan's approach

In some quarters there was moaning and gnashing of teeth when Ronald Reagan was elected president. Supporters of the human rights crusade waged by former President Jimmy Carter, for example, fearfully assumed the subject would be given far less emphasis under the administration of President Reagan.

Now, if one looks closely, the fallacy of that assumption becomes evident: Reagan's administration appears no less commited to human rights; the approach is just different.

Look at what is happening in Argentina, for example. Human rights in that Latin American country have been trampled for years. No president of a humanitarian nation, in good conscience, could ignore the situation.

President Carter chose to impose an arms embargo against Argentina and withheld other military assistance. His administration also embarked on a diplomacy of aloofness which resulted in an understandable chilling of the relationship between Washington and Buenos Aires.

When President Reagan entered the picture, he began to edge back toward normalcy. The first thing he did was to invite the then President-elect Roberto Eduardo Viola to Washington. Then he asked Congress to lift the arms embargo Carter had imposed. And he sent several military officials to Argentina to discuss defense problems.

What has the result of all this been? Well, anyone expecting overnight success in the field of human rights probably will be sorely disappointed. Reports indicate that the press there is still muzzled, political activity is banned and hundreds of Argentinians remain jailed without the benefit of official charges or fair trials.

On the other hand, Viola, who has taken office as president, has promised to investigate the disappearance of 6,000 citizens of that nation. Already he has put a stop to kidnappings. Assassinations appear to have ceased for the time being.

And when six human rights leaders were arrested in Argentina recently, U.S. Ambassador Harry W. Shlaudeman protested and they were released.

These are signs of progress. At least the two nations are communicating now and where there is communication, there is hope, at least, of progress.

Debt collection issue turns into 'Catch-22'

WASHINGTON - Legislation that would help the federal government collect billions in bad debts has put the Reagan administration in a

On the one hand, if the White House supports the debt-collection bill vigorously, it faces the certainty that Democrats in Congress will demand that the "windfall" collected from Uncle Sam's delinquent debtors be applied to programs that have had their budgets slashed.

On the other hand, if the White House doesn't support the debt-collection bill, it will be in the position of betraying its own loudly trumpeted determination to cut waste and fraud in government. Democrats will be able to argue that if the administration won't support such an obvious way to reduce the government's expenses, it must not be serious about the budget cuts.

How the administration will wriggle out of its dilemma may be revealed today, when Budget Director David Stockman is scheduled to testify at a Senate hearing on the bill. Stockman was supposed to appear earlier this month, but canceled at the last minute, to the dismay of the legislation's backers, Sens. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and James Sasser, D-

One provision of the bill would allow the government to report the names of delinquent debtors to commercial credit-rating bureaus. Thus a borrower who reneged, say, on a student loan would risk a bad credit rating.

Another provision would permit the government to garnishee up to half the wages of federal employees who fell seriously behind in mortgage, education or other government loan payments. According to Department of Education figures, there are 18,000 federal employees who have default-ed on their student loans; the Veterans Administration reported that thousands of federal workers are also delinquent on VA loans.

Indeed, a Capitol Hill source told my associate Lucette Lagnado that top government officials are on Uncle Sam's deadbeat list. Not only has the government been handcuffed in its efforts to collect the bad debts, but the delinquent debtors' careers in the bureaucracy have not suffered a bit. The White House has advised its budget experts to downplay the debt collection issue, but Percy is determined to push the legislation, which he estimates would bring in $1 billion to $2 billion in the first year alone.

MENDING THE CLOAK - Counterintelligence is an important part of the spy-versus-spy game between the United States and the Soviet Union. But under the Ford and Carter administrations, this vital function of the CIA and FBI was allowed to all but wither away. Now President Reagan is trying to give counterintelligence a boost its advocates say is overdue. Indeed, the CIA has long known about a secret conference of top KGB officials in 1959 that set the KGB's main mission as penetration of the United States gov-

The ravages suffered by our counterintelligence force over the past few years are outlined in some recent secret CIA documents.

Under Jimmy Carter, the Justice Department's Office of Internal Security was cut from about 300 staff personnel to about 60. The employees involved were transferred to the overworked Freedom of Information Recently, however, the director of the FBI's Washington office increased by 15 percent the number of agents assigned to monitor the activities of some 240 Soviet bloc officials believed to be involved in espionage At the CIA, the decline of the Office of Security began with the firing of counterintelligence chief James Angleton in December 1974. Then-CIA Director William Colby had decided that Angleton's Byzantine suspicions had crippled the CIA's operations. Much of the data Angleton had compiled was destroyed, and new laws curtailed some of the agency's counterintelligence efforts. The counterspy staff was reduced drastically.

Now, CIA sources say, the Reagan administration intends to reverse the trend, in hopes of putting the kibosh on the KGB's freewheeling espionage activities in this country.

WATCH ON WASTE - The Russell Senate Office Building was built in the first decade of this century, and the Architect of the Capitol decided recently that the windows were rotting out. So the windows on the three original sides of the stately old building are being replaced - at a cost of $528,000. But Senate staffers insist many of the windows being replaced are in perfectly good condition.

Latin America's future is going to be bloody, if the Communists and other Marxists have their way. The Marxists reason that the only sure way to topple military governments or regimes backed by their armed forces is by violent means, as was done in Nicaragua and as is being tried in El Salvador.

For all practical purposes they have, with considerable reason, ruled out "the peaceful way to socialism' which is what they tried, and failed to achieve, in the early 1970s in Chile.

Carried to its logical conclusion, the thinking of Latin American specialists in the Soviet Union means that at least the governments of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Paraguay, Peru and Uruguay, in South America, and Honduras and Guatemala, in Central America, can brace themselves for the start or continuation of what the Marxists call "wars of national liberation" and what the anti-Communists call "terrorism."

As the foreign observer can see looking only at the bloodletting in El Salvador, the difference between "terrorism" and a "war of national liberation" depends chiefly on one's ideological vantage point.

Those who view El Salvador as it is viewed from Moscow insist that the Salvadoran guerrillas are trying to 'liberate" themselves from imperialist domination, from colonialism, from neo-colonialism and a number of other objectionable isms. As seen from Washington, the conflict in El Salvador is the result of the efforts of a Marxist-led minority to oust the military-dominated government and impose "socialism" on that Central American republic and its 4.5

The Marxists are engaged in a "war of national liberation" which, as William Safire points out in his "Political Dictionary," is what the Communists define as "a 'just' war against 'colonial' powers, started by a faction within the country and possibly assisted by a Communist neighbor. Safire recalls that the late Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev endorsed the concept when he declared more than 20 years ago that "liberation wars ... are revolutionary wars. Such wars are not only admissible but inevitable. ... The Communists will support such just wars and march in the front rank with the people waging liberation struggles." As the guerrillas in El Salvador have made clear by word and deed, their goal is the destruction of the capitalist system they say the United States has imposed on the country and its replacement by what they call 'democratic socialism." Democratic socialism is a term that has not really been defined and, even Marxists agree, no acceptable democratic socialist model exists in the world today, nor has one ever-existed. No Latin American Marxist who entertained even slight hopes of winning support for the revolutionary cause would ever suggest that the Soviet Union or any of the Soviet satellites, and above all, Cuba, should serve as a model for his country.

Nevertheless, they all talk about "building socialism" in Latin Ameri-

And they have been for years, during the "Cold War" period, during "detente," and now, in Latin America and in the Soviet Union.

To judge by the reports that come out of Moscow, it seems safe to say that the Communists are painfully aware that nowhere in Latin America could they win a national election by themselves. Even an alliance that grouped the Socialists, the Radicals and other Marxist parties with the Communists would not be enough. Their experience in Chile in 1970

With the presidential vote split among three candidates, the Marxist coalition's standard bearer, Salvador Allende, managed to obtain only some 36 percent of the popular vote. It was just with the help of liberal Christian Democrats that they were able to gain power and hold it until the excesses of the extremists in the Socialist Party provoked the Chilean armed forces into deposing Allende. The latest issue of America Latina, the magazine published by the Soviet Academy of Sciences, devoted 78 of its 304 pages to a report on "Chile Today" (Chile Hoy), described as "the corrected shorthand versions" of a round table discussion by a number of Marxist specialists op Latin America.

At least two of the 15 participants in the round table, Pavel Grishaev and Vladimir Totski, made it clear that, as Grishaev put it, the only way for the Marxists to triumph in Chile is by means of "the violent substitution of the military dictatorship with an authentically democratic form of gov-

Forced busing proceeds peacefully

By SCOTT KRAFT Associated Press Writer

Court-ordered busing for school desegregation, object of violent protests in the mid-1970s, still is entangled in the courts in many American cities. But it spread to dozens of school districts in the past decade and is

But it spread to dozens of school districts in the past decade and is proceeding peacefully, school officials say.

"I think it (busing) is about where it's been" for the past several years, said Tom Atkins, general counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "We're not going to backtrack."

Busing was the subject of three separate federal court actions this week involving schools in Los Angeles, St. Louis and Ocala, Fla. Although each was significant for the local school district, none was a national trendsetter legal experts say.

tional trend-setter, legal experts say.

Forced busing ended this week in Los Angeles, the nation's second-largest school district, after the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused to postpone a dismantling of the program. The busing of some 23,000 school children there still is caught up in state law and strictures of the California Constitution, however.

Until 1979, integration could be forced in California school districts under state law even without proof that the racial imbalance was a product of discriminatory policies.

A PUBLIC referendum changed that, and because no discriminatory policies were proved in the city schools the school board halted forced busing. A federal appeals court last weekend refused to postpone the school board's action as did U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist. The referendum still is being challenged in the California Supreme Court.

Boston officials work to keep schools open

BOSTON (AP) - Prodded by a state judge who gave them two more days to resolve their differences, city officials were huddling today with a court-appointed mediator in an effort to keep Boston's bankrupt public school system from shutting down Monday.

For weeks, political feuding has blocked efforts to find a way to pull the nation's oldest public school system out of the red.

Superior Court Judge Thomas Morse Jr., who had threatened to intervene if a plan wasn't produced by Wednesday, gave the City Council and the mayor two more days to find a remedy.

A court-appointed mediator said he would meet with all sides around the

FOR THE PAST week, School Committee President John D. O'Bryant had been saying he would have to decide today whether to reopen the schools Monday after spring vaca-tion, so that teachers and students could have advance notice. But he told the Boston Globe he might put off a decision until Friday.

Morse expressed reluctance to in-tervene in what a City Council lawyer called a "political morass," despite pleas from the state Board of Education and the teachers' union that he issue an immediate order requiring classes to reopen when children re-turn from Easter break.

Morse asked lawyers for the City Council, the mayor and the School Committee to "do everything humanly possible to see if a resolution can be achieved short of a court judgment." "I am so discouraged at this point," said Boston Teachers Union President Kathleen Kelley. "I'm cynical about whether a solution can be

City Councilor Rossemary Sansone also said she was disap pointed Morse did not order the school be kept schools open. "I guess we'll have to regroup," she said.

The Board of Education has filed suit seeking to force the system to hold classes for its 64,500 students for the 180 days required by state law. School officials estimate they need an additional $30 million to reopen Mon-day and hold classes until June 19.

THIS YEAR'S $210 million budget

In extending the time limit for at settlement, Morse accepted a suggestion from the man he appointed as mediator, Harvard Law School Professor Charles Haar, who said a compromise was being blocked by "politi-cal infighting" and "extraneous mat-

Haar accused the Council and Mayor Kevin White of attempting to exploit the schools' financial crisis by linking it to proposed changes in city government and to other issues. By tossing disputes aside, Haar told the judge, "A reasonable, fiscally prudent, political solution can be

Political tension between White and the council reached a head just hours before the Wednesday deadline when White rejected a $75 million bond and tax package designed to keep the

The package contained provisions that would have required the rehiring of laid-off police and firefighters, allowed recall of elected city officials and imposed curbs on the mayor's powers.

Well Dogs, our Easter break was very needed because the beautiful weather is giving everyone spring

The first half of the baseball season is coming, and our batters are doing a tremendous job. The track teams are also doing great so everyone help support our hard working teams. Remember to get your dates for the Jr., Sr. Prom on Saturday night, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. The band is Shade Tree, the dress is semi-formal, and there is no cover charge.

There is a set up for the Junior Council on Saturday at 10 a.m. and a clean up on Sunday at 2 p.m. The annual fund raising event is coming on May 9 at 8 pm. to the Chaparral Center. This year the Midland and Lee Yoouth Centers present Tom T. Hall and Bill Anderson.

Tickets are now available at Chaparral Center, both Music Hauls and Endless Horizons.

While busing opponents won in Los Angeles, the U.S. Supreme Court refused to block any desegregation plan in St. Louis that might include suburban schools and also refused to curtail the federal government's authority to go to court to seek busing in Ocala, Fla.

"From what we have so far seen, the Justice Department in the area of civil rights is a wasteland," the NAACP's Atkins said. "We don't expect them to be particularly helpful. But we'll rid them out."

John Wilson, a spokesman for the Justice Department, noted that Attorney General William French Smith 'has said e does not favor busing as a remedy" for segregation.

Wilson added that a lot hinges on who Reagan appoints as the new assistant attorney general in charge of civil rights.

Elsewhere in the land, court-ordered busing appears to be on track.

"The school year has gone very, very smoothly," said Pat Crawford of the Pittsburgh school district. About 12,000 of the district's 46,000 students began mandatory busing this year. The Pittsburgh plan has been challenged in court by supporters who say it doesn't go far enough and opponents who claim it is unconstitution-

IN BOSTON, scene of violent protest over busing in the mid-1970s, things are quiet. About 35,000 of the city's 64,500 public school students are bused under a plan devised under court order in 1974.

Busing touched off riots in Louisville, Ky., in 1975, but about 16,000 of the district's 93,000 students are being bused, and there have been no pro-

A sampling of cities where court-ordered or court-supervised busing is in effect, followed by the number of students being bused: Cleveland, 40,000; Detroit, 27,000; Maryland's Prince Georges County, 39,000; Buffalo, N.Y., 25,500; Dallas, 14,000; Little Rock, Ark., 11,000; Kansas City, Kan., 10,000; Omaha, Neb., 9,000; St. Louis, 7,500; Kansas City, Mo., 7,000; Seattle, 6,800; Springfield, Mass., 5,000, and Bridgeport, Conn., 2,500.

Chicago school officials have until the end of the month to develop a desegregation plan that may include busing. Indianapolis' court-ordered desegregation plan, which includes busing some 22,500 students, is scheduled to go into effect in the fall.

In Mobile, Ala., a federal judge dismissed the case of 180 high school students who make daily roundtrips of 100 miles to school in another community under a 1975 court desegregation order. That ruling is on appeal in the federal court of appeals in Atlanta.

A relative comforts Mrs. Myra Browne, mother of 18-year-old James Browne who died in Londonderry Sunday when an army Land-Rover drove into a crowd of rioters in the city's Bogside district. Browne and another victim, 19-year-old James English, were buried overlooking Bogside Street, where they died.

Worst violence in eight nights strikes N. Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) The worst rioting in eight nights of violence hit Northern Ireland as police and troops battled mobs of young Roman Catholics after the funeral of two youths killed by a British army

Meanwhile, IRA hunger striker. Bobby Sands got weaker, and Pope John Paul II's ambassador to Ireland indicated the pontiff might try to get him to call off his fast unto death.

Rioting and street fighting raged Wednesday night in Catholic districts of Belfast and Londonderry, the province's two largest cities, and in Lurgan, Newry, Strabane and Porta-

Roving bands of youths attacked police and troop patrols with rocks, bricks, gasoline and acid bombs and nails and ball bearings fired from slingshots. The troops retaliated with plastic bullets.

A score of cars and trucks were hijacked and most of them were set

No casualty count was available, but several soldiers were burned by gasoline bombs and several police were burned by acid.

The violence subsided shortly after midnight when the rioters went home to bed, police said.

The young Catholics took to the streets after simultaneous funerals in a Londonderry cemetery for two 18year-olds killed by an army Land-Rover during a riot Sunday. The army said the deaths were accidental, but Catholic eyewitnesses charged that the driver deliberately plowed into the crowd at high speed after troops failed to disperse it with

The Irish Republican Army has promised more and worse violence if the British government lets Sands die. But the government gave no indication of retreating from its refusal to meet his demand that imprisoned IRA guerrillas be given the status of political prisoners instead of common criminals

Sands, 27, was in the 54th day of his hunger strike in Belfast's Maze Prison, and members of his family who visited him Wednesday reported he was dangerously ill. They said he can no longer keep down water, his only sustenance since he stopped eating March 1. He has constant headaches, his sight and hearing are seriously impaired, and he has difficulty concentrating while talking, the family

They reported he was still deter-mined to die if his demand was not granted.

The Vatican's ambassador to Ireland, Papal Nuncio Gaetano Allibrandi, met in Dublin with supporters of Sands. He said afterward Pope John Paul could intervene if he was asked to and if he considered it necessary. He noted the pontiff has "expressed concern" over the hunger strike.

Sands, who was recently elected to the British Parliament from a Catholic district of Northern Ireland, is serving a 14-year sentence on a gun charge. British authorities denied that the release Wednesday of IRA member Dolours Price on medical grounds had set a precedent for clemency for

Israeli frogmen blow up Palestinian boat in Tyre

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Syrian-Christian fighting tapered off in Beirut today but picked up in east Lebanon's Roman Catholic city of Zahle. Israeli frogmen reportedly blew up a Palestinian guerrilla boat in the southern port of Tyre.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said its forces sank a Palestinian vessel in an overnight raid, but gave no details of the operation. Lebanese provincial authorities said Israeli frogmen paddled into the Tyre harbor and dynamited a yacht the guerrillas had converted into a military

Tyre, the guerrillas main Mediterranean port, came under renewed shelling at dawn today from pro-Israeli Christians in the "Free Lebanon" enclave along the Israeli-Lebanese border, the authorities said.

The latest strike came during nearly a month of bloodshed in Lebanon, some of the worst nationwide violence since the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war. At least 375 people have been killed and more than 1,300 wounded in the latest hostilities by Lebanese official counts.

Officials in Beirut said fresh efforts capital's international airport and sea harbor that were closed when Syrian-Christian shelling across the mid-city Green Line that divides the city into Christian and Moslem sections reached a new peak Tuesday.

A cease-fire ordered Wednesday evening by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis appeared to be taking hold today in the capital, except for occasional bursts from snipers, as Syrian and Christian tanks and artillery fell

It was the 19th truce ordered by Sarkis since Syrian artillery attacked the Christians in Zahle on April 1.

But police reported continuing exchanges of gunfire between Syrian forces besieging Zahle and Christian Phalange Party defenders on two hills overlooking the city.

Police said eight people were killed and 32 wounded in Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut.

Meanwhile, Syria's official SANA news agency reported today that Syrian forces captured an unidentified Israeli during the fighting with Pha-langists on Zahle's hills and that he confessed 16 other Israeli experts were working fulltime with the Pha-

Reagan says he'll be more alert after shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, won-dering why no one ever tried to shoot him before, says he won't be afraid to leave the White House again but "I have a hunch I'll be more alert" after last month's assassination attempt.

"There's not going to be any change in the way we do things," Reagan said Wednesday in his first interview since he was shot March 30.

The convalescing chief executive said constant security threats are part of the job and "you get a little used to it."

But he added: "You sometimes wonder in your mind when and how it's going to happen or any attempt or what it would be like."

Reagan said that since the attack which wounded him, White House press secretary James S. Brady and two law officers, he has seen films showing him milling in crowds "and I find myself wondering,

Well, why didn't this happen 27 times before?" The president, interviewed by the senior White House correspondents of The Associated Press and United Press International, appeared ruddycheeked, his gait quick but somewhat stiff, his handshake strong, 23 days after he was wounded. Under the ground rules set by White House deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver, questions were limited to the shooting, the president's recuperation, and related topics.

Reagan recounted his reaction to the assassination attempt, which he said "still seems kind of unreal," and his near-panic, gasping for air as the presiden-tial limousine sped from the scene of the shooting outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Reagan said that once he heard shots "my first instinct was to take a look and see what was going on from where they were, but the Secret Service man behind me had a different idea and the next thing I knew I found myself pushed into the car." And then there was the pain. It didn't occur as soon as the bullet entered his left side and came to rest in "It was the most paralyzing pain ... as if someone had hit you with a hammer," Reagan said. "Suddenly I found that I was coughing up blood." On a cart at the George Washington University Hospital, "they found the wound and that I'd actually had been shot," he said. "The more I tried to breathe and the deeper I tried to breathe, it kept seeming as if I was getting less air and you know that panic that you can get if you're strangling on something. I almost had the feeling that it was going to diminish to the place where I wouldn't be getting any and then they shut me up by

Reagan said "I'm feeling fine" now. His discom-fort is diminishing, he said, and he has been able to resume his regimen of exercise, albeit at a slower sticking a pipe down my throat" to aid the breath-

"I don't think I'm going to hurdle any tables in the room here for a while," he said.

Still, the 70-year-old president said he is astonished by his recovery, adding that horseback riding, his favorite recreation, will "come along pretty soon." Reagan did not say when he expected to return to the Oval Office, although top aide Edwin Meese III said separately that might come early next week.

The president said that with Congress in recess and with him now back at the White House, his schedule has hardly been altered by the shooting and his tax and budget proposals are "going along all right" on Capitol Hill. His daily routine at the White House, as Reagan On recent mornings, he has been speaking by telephone with members of Congress. FREMONT, Calif. (AP) - The strip-search of a woman who failed to pay a ticket for not licensing her dog was a routine procedure designed to keep contraband out of the city jail, Fremont police say.

But Marlene Penny, the 29-year-old mother of four who underwent the search in December 1980, called it "unbearably frustrating.

She has launched a letter-writing campaign to the Fremont City Council the mayor, the governor of California, the American Civil Liberties Union and President Reagan - because "I thought people should be aware that this was going on.'

Mrs. Penny said her encounter with police began last fall when she was issued a citation requiring her to license the family dog. She missed a deadline for paying the ticket, and a $90 warrant was issued against her.

"I couldn't pay the $90, " she said. "It was three weeks before Christmas, and I had to buy presents for four children.

Erma wins cook-off prize! By ERMA BOMBECK miments of cookery:

The local March of Dimes staged a gala gourmet cook-off recently, pitting one culinary artist against another. The audience was breathless as the mistress of ceremonies announced the winner of the second prize for marinated mushrooms -

ERMA BOMBECK! They were stunned for a moment. My heart stopped beating. Would they buy it? A kitchen outsider who had a reputation for living by the box? Who thought gourmet was married to Steve Lawrence, and who used a slotted spoon to mix paint? Finally, the audience broke into applause. It was a moment to reflect on how I had gotten to this point of triumph.
Three months ago I was wandering through a supermarket picking out every box that read "JUST ADD WATER" and tossing! it into my basket.

From out of the shadows stepped a man who introduced himself to me as Professor Higgins. He said he had made a wager to his friend that he could make a gourmet cook out of me in three months. "Do you know any French?" he asked. "But of course. Me-

It is window cleaning time again, isn't it! Oh, yuk! But when you can't see past the windowsill, it's time to remedy the Washing windows isn't really all that bad unless you live in a three-story mansion or a glass house. It's getting your-self in the mood to gather up all those supplies that taxes us the most.

Once you've reached that state, the rest glides along pretty easily — especially when you can see the fruits of your labors right before your baby blues!

As for an inexpensive window cleaning solu-tion, you can't beat plain old vinegar and water. But non-sudsing ammonia and water will cut through that grime in jig time too. A couple of glugs to a gallon of water should do it. If it smells strong enough, it should do the job. Just pour a bit of it into a spray bottle for easy applica-

Before you start clean-ing those windows, wipe the dust off first or you'll end up with mud pies.

Once you've washed the windows down with the cleaning solution, if you have a squeegee handy, it'll speed up the drying process immensely. Otherwise, remove those remaining drops of water with a piece of black and white crumpled up newspaper. Save those paper towels for more glamorous jobs.

Now stand back and You're clean and neat look! Clean, sparkling once more. The top on windows at a nominal expense, and not really all that much effort, right?

Have a good day. — Hugs, Heloise

Any doubters of the dismal linguistic decline have only to look at a menu or check the frozen-food section of the local supermarket. The hash browns are next to the french fries.

According to the rules of English - learned to appease high-school teachers and soon forgotten along with sentence diagramming - a verb becomes a past participle most commonly by virtue of adding "d" or "ed" unless said verb already ends with a "d" or a "t." By way of this rule, roast beef has long been acceptable instead of roasted beef and fire-wood is split instead of splitted.

Senior nudists celebrate 50th anniversary

Associated Press Writer DAVIE, Fla. (AP) -Ray and Helen Perkins are celebrating their Golden Anniversary. Not of marriage; they passed that milestone two years ago. What they're more excited about is the 50 years they have lived in the nude.

The Perkins are sunbathers "au naturel" who endure the nuisance of wearing clothes only when the temperature is uncomfortably low or when they join that other world where people masquerade in under and outer garments. "I recommend it for everyone," said Mrs. Perkins, a robust redhead of 75. "The sun makes your body stronger and healthier."

At 81, Perkins is a busy handyman at the private nudist camp where the couple lives west of here in Broward County. His handshake is strong and he could easily pass for a man decades younger. He shows few symptoms of old age.

"People think lying in the sun for a day or so does them a lot of good," he laughed. "All they do is fry themselves."

The couple became nudists in their native Brooklyn, N.Y., when the practice first became known in this country. "I saw a nudist magazine and thought it would be interesting," recalled the white-haired Perkins. "Helen told me to see what it was like, so I

"He talked me into it," giggled Helen, who admitted she was embarrased the first time she shed her clothing in public. "But I got over that right away. The Perkins have one

For the Perkins and Seminole Health Club, nudism is a sincere way of life - not a vent for kinky fantasies.

Jan Youngman makes sure of that. She and her husband, Charles, started the private trailer park and resort eight years ago on 10 secluded acres of tropical-like

"If people have any funny ideas, they might as well go somewhere else," explained Mrs. Youngman, 46. The camp's rules are explicit no physical contact in the swimming pool, no liquor or foul language on the premises, and when a social dance is held, clothing is re-

The residents and visitors at Seminole are a friendly lot. They cluster by the outdoor pool or play games in the recreation room like at any other resort. There are volleyball and tennis,

For the uninitiated, the first visit to Seminole can be a bit disconcerting, particularly when one has lunch in the camp's dining room and a statuesque brunette without so much as a pair of sandals - is having a hamburger at the next table.

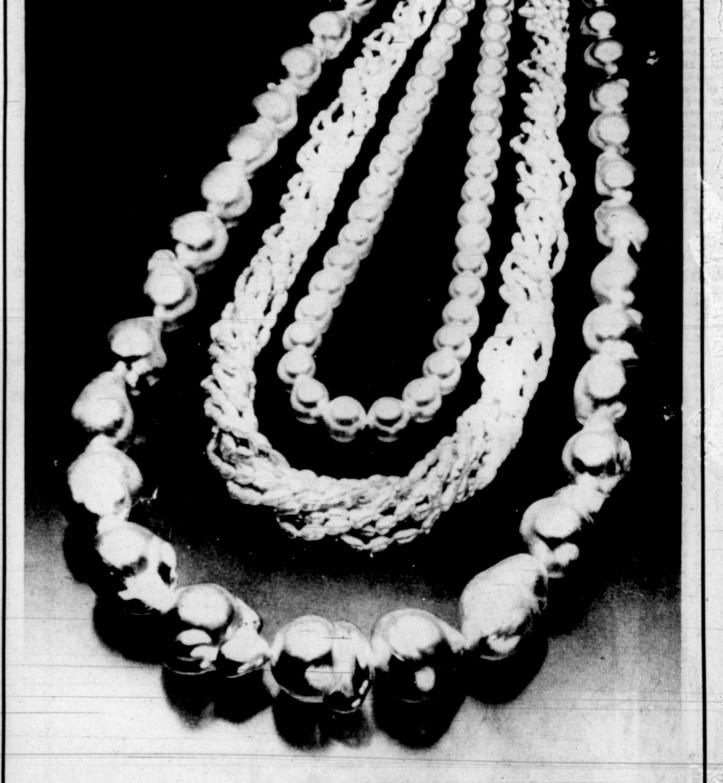

But nudists attest that awkwardness or embarrassment quickly disappear after one sheds their clothing.

Thumbprint cookies

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

There's an old-fashioned cookie that each new generation of cooks seems delighted to discover.

Irma Rombauer in her "Joy of Cooking" called these cookies Jelly Tots. Old-time Shaker cooks in Hancock, Mass., called them Jelly Dots. Other cooks named them Thumbprints. But by whatever name they go, they're made from a simple, rich dough, shaped into balls and pressed with a thumb then each imprint (indentation) is filled with jam, jelly or some other sweet concoction. One difference among the versions: the Shaker cookies are made with brown sugar instead of the usual white, and they are rolled in nuts variations our tasters appreciate. One change of our own: we like to fill some of the indentations with pretty red strawberry preserves, the rest with spicy bought ginger

Breast-feeding being promoted in Rio de Janeiro

By JIM BROOKE Special to The Washington Post

RIO DE JANEIRO - Responding to a scientific study showing that a large percentage of bottle-fed babies in Brazil's largest city are undernourished, the conservative military government of Brazil has launched a campaign to encourage mothers to breast-feed their children.

The campaign was yet another blow to Nestle, the Swiss-based multinational corporation that has been under fire for several years for promoting the use of infant formula in underdeveloped countries. Nestle, the sole commercial supplier of infant formula in Brazil, has been accused of encouraging poor mothers to use its formula even though the women often dilute it with unsafe water or are unable to prepare it under sanitary conditions.

The worldwide campaign against Nestle may even become an issue in the debate over confirmation of President Reagan's nominee for assistant secretary of state for human rights, Ernest W. Lefever, of the Ethics and Public Policy Center in Washington. The center, which reprinted a Fortune magazine article defending Nestle and describing its church-supported opponents as "Marxists marching under the banner of Christ," has accepted a $25,000 contribution from Nestle.

Brazil's campaign to promote breast-feeding, launched on the 17th anniversary of the anticommunist coup that brought the military to power here, is undoubtedly the Third World's largest such campaign.

Bearing such slogans as "Infant mortality is five times lower among breast-fed babies," millions of posters of nursing infants are being tacked up in school rooms, health clinics and maternity wards. Soap opera idols have been mobilized for a blitz of radio and television advertising. Starting this month, all light, gas, water and telephone bills — even betting cards for the immensely popular national soccer lottery — will carry the slogan: "Nurse your

"I tell mothers their milk is for their babies cow's milk is good for calves," Dr. Yedda Paschoal de Oliveira, director of the nationwide drive, commented when interviewed recently in her Brasilia

Dr. Paschoal calculated that last year families in Brazil spent $100 million on powdered milk, which she said meant 180 million quarts of mother's milk

Although breast-feeding was virtually universal in Brazil until the 1940s, today only one-quarter of Brazilian babies are nursed past two months. By six months, the proportion has dwindled to 2 percent.

Reaching under a stack of breast-feeding posters, Paschoal pulled out a study by the Sao Paulo School of Medicine that is the backbone of the campaign in Brazil, and has implications for other Third World countries. Working in 1979, the researchers closely monitored the feeding and growth of 191 babies in low-income families in Sao Paulo. The report found that:

-32 percent of the bottle-fed babies suffered from malnutrition, compared to 9 percent of the breast-fed babies. Experts here say 70 percent of the weight of the brain is formed during the first two years of life, and malnutrition at this age often causes irreversible mental deficiencies.

-23 percent of the bottle-fed babies had to be hospitalized, while none of the breast-fed babies had to be hospitalized. -Most of the hospitalized babies had diarrhea, which is the most frequent cause of infant death in A separate study of infants from six to 11 months in Sigulem, a Sao Paulo suburb, found that 96 percent of deaths registered were among children breast-fed less than six months. A Nestle spokesman in Sao Paulo said recently that he was not aware of the School of Medicine

But the survey findings were echoed in random interviews with mothers in Rocinha, one of Rio's largest — and worst — favelas or shantytowns. "I started giving Nestogeno (formula) to my baby boy at 1 1-2 months, but he got a stomach infection that almost killed the child," one woman, known only as Nicinha, said as she sat in her two-room house, partially roofed with flattened soy oil cans. Nicinha said her baby was consuming four cans of formula a week. To save money she diluted the mix with flour, corn meal and cream of rice cereal. At $2.50 a can, a month's supply of Nestogeno costs $40, while most wage earners of Rocinha earn Brazil's minimum salary — $80 a month. The Sao Paulo study found that formula feeding a baby for one year would require 43 percent of the income of a poor family of four, compared to the cost of breast-feeding, approximately 4 percent.

"The water here also doesn't help," Nicinha said, waving to a green-gray open sewer gurgling three feet from her doorstep. Favela residents get their water from nearby wells, but they say this water is polluted, frustrating efforts to sterilize baby bot-

Across the sewer and down a narrow, slippery alley Maria da Conceicao sat in her darkened room, nursing her 1-year-old son, Vito.

"They are much stronger," she said of breast-fed babies. "They don't get sick with diseases."

Dr. Amandio Ferreira de Souza, head pediatrician at Rio's Poor Mother Hospital agreed with Maria da Conceicao's comments.

"Almost all the diarrhea cases I see are bottle-fed babies," he commented.

Without hesitation, Dr. Amandio said his fellow pediatricians in Rio are "100 percent" in favor of breast-feeding, but for many years his profession was the target of a multifaceted promotional campaign by Nestle.

Until recently, Nestle gave a fr3e, one year's supply of powdered milk to Brazilian pediatricians, nutritionists and maternity nurses when they or their wives had children. The Sao Paulo report found that Nestle advertising helps support professional journals, and Dr. Amandio said the company frequently sponsors meetings of pediatricians.

Nestle spokesmen maintain that the company never advertised their infant formulas to the general public, but critics charge that promotion occurs in subtle forms

"The cans always say, 'Mother's milk is best for your child, but in the absence of milk ... " commented Dr. Paschoal, director of the nationwide nursing drive. "It is that 'but' that creates doubt in the mother's mind. Studies show that doubt and worry cause the milk to dry up."

In another case, the February issue of Claudia, Brazil's largest circulating women's magazine, carried an unsigned "debate" on breast-feeding. The article contrasted "mothers of the most savage tribes of Africa (who carry) their babies slung around their necks" to "professional, active, independent, women (for whom) breastfeeding can constitute a prison." Sandwiched among the pages of the "debate" was a full-page advertisement for a Nestle b. aby cereal.

"Claudia's" readers are middle and upper class, and such advertising has been very successful, according to Ines das Gracas Maria, head nurse of the nursery at Santa Lucia private hospital, located in Ri o's affluent southern zone.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Alcoholism, abuse big health problem

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

Alcoholism and alcohol abuse are considered by many public health experts to be the number one health problem facing the United States today. This week, April 19 through 25, is Alcoholism Education Week.

During this week, an extra effort is made to make the public aware of the facts regarding alcohol and alcohol abuse. Alcohol is a potentially addict-ing drug. Addiction to alcohol always occurs in stages. In the early stages of addiction the person may be only psychologically dependent on alcohol for a sense of well being, freedom from anxiety or psychological comfort.

Later on, he may require more and more alcohol in order to achieve the same sense of well being and psychological comfort. As he begins to require more and more of the drug to achieve a given effect, the person is developing an increased tolerance to the drug which indicates that he is farther along on the road to alcoholism than he may suspect.

As the drinking problem continues to worsen, the As the drinking problem continues to worsen, the person may begin to require alcohol in order to keep a feeling of physical well being. For example, when he does not drink he may experience a variety of minor disturbances, aches or pain. He may complain of stomach problems, headaches or poor sleep.

, Finally, the person with a severe drinking problem may begin to exhibit withdrawal symptoms whenever he is deprived of alcohol or whenever he voluntarily stops drinking. These withdrawal symptoms may consist of severe emotional and physical reactions such as hallucinations, disorientation, insomnia, convulsions and severe tremors.

It is helpful to realize that alcohol, in its chemical make-up, is virtually identical to the anesthetic ether. By recognizing its anesthetic properties, it is easy to see that as the person becomes increas-ingly intoxicated with alcohol, his brain is literally put to sleep, although in stages.

During early stages of intoxication, the centers of the brain which affect a person's impulse control are first effected. He may become loud and bois-terous and engage in behavior which he would not otherwise engage in. As intoxication progresses, the person becomes more and more stuporous, losing his ability to talk, walk and think in normal fashion. In advanced stages of intoxication, the person may lose consciousness and pass out.

Warning signs of alcoholism include broken promises to stop drinking, more frequent drinking, increased tolerance to alcohol and personality changes. Later warning signs which indicate that the problem has progressed beyond initial phases in-clude the denial of drinking alcohol, increased drinking alone or in the morning, more noticeable signs of drinking on the job, more difficulty in feeling good regardless of how much is consumed and drinking as a daily necessity in order to feel good.

Latter signs of alcoholism which indicate that the disease is almost full-blown include increased feelings of loneliness, isolation from family and friends, distrust of people wanting to help, strong guilt feelings about drinking, extreme nervousness, increasing tension, deteriorating health, malnutrition, hallucinations, convulsions and tremors.

Treatment for persons with drinking problems may begin at any stage of the problem. Ideally it is always best to begin early in the process while a person still has some degree of control over how much he drinks. However, in practice many individuals have to reach a rock-bottom low po lives before they wake up to the fact that alcohol is controlling them. Unfortunately, this low point occurs only after a person is fully addicted to the

If treatment is not obtained for alcoholism, the alcoholic may indeed die from a variety of possibilities ranging from an accident to any number of physical dieases associated with advanced alcoholism. The kind of treatment required is dictated by the state of the person's physical health and whether or not he is fully addicted to the drug at the time treatment begins.

There is a great tendency to deny the severity of a person's drinking problem, especially when that person is a loved one or close friend. Such denial and blinding of one's self to the realities of alcohol abuse merely postpones the time when the reality must be faced and makes the treatment of the person with the drinking problem that much more difficult. Early recognition and treatment of alcohol abuse is the key to reducing the incidence of this very serious health problem.

Jury could get Daniel custody case today

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Jurors could begin deliberating whether the widow of former Texas House speaker Price Daniel Jr. should keep her two young sons today after final arguments in the child custody suit

Final arguments in the six-week-old trial were scheduled for 12:30 p.m. CST. Jean Daniel Murph, sister of the slain politician, contends Vickie Daniel is an unfit mother in her effort to wrest custody of her brother's two sons, Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1. Mrs. Daniel, 33, also is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of her husband, and that trial has been set for next fall. Psychiatrists and family members brought to the stand by Mrs. Murph's attorneys - including former Texas Gov. Price Daniel Sr. portrayed the former Dairy Queen waitress as an emotionally unstable mother who might harm her children.

But the defense team, led by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, chipped away at Daniel's reputation, saying he led a double life that included strange sexual practices, heavy drinking and drug use.

Mrs. Daniel testified that during her stormy four-year marriage, her husband often beat and sodomized her, fondled his son's penis and had a "weird" relationship with Mrs. Murph in which he would push up against his sister and put his knee between her legs. She said he drank to excess, smoked marijuana and refused to give her money to buy necessities for

Other members of the politically powerful family testified for the defense, saying they saw bruises on Mrs. Daniel on various occasions and that the elder Daniel vowed to intervene if custody of the children could not be taken from his daughter-in-law.

Defense witnesses also related incidents in which Daniel allegedly smoked marijuana, mistreated and hit his wife, kissed a female employee and made sexual advances toward a male client.

Family Court Judge Sam S. Emison Jr. ended a major dispute between the two sides this week when he entered into evidence a bag allegedly containing marijuana owned by Daniel.

Haynes said the bag, containing a leafy substance resembling marijuana, rolling papers and a pornographic magazine, was discovered in a closet in a trailer used by Daniel's law firm.

One witness said he saw Daniel take some marijuana from the closet in the fall of 1979, but Mrs. Murph's attorneys produced documents that showed the man was in jail at the time. Haynes countered that the witness had meant 1980 when he said 1979.

In rebuttal testimony Wednesday, Mrs. Murph took the stand again to recount her versions of conversations with relatives and to say she saw nothing strange about her relationship with her brother.

Air Show set Sunday

ODESSA — Those amazing feats which aviators do inside-out, upside-down, sideways and most anyways will be performed live Saturday and Sunday in the fifth annual Schlemeyer Memorial Air Show over Odessa's Schlemeyer Field.

Competition in the weekend show, sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association's Chapter 123 of Midland-Odessa, will be judged by two national aerobatic champions, Mike Sharp of Midland and Gene Beggs of Odessa, and other aerobatic pilots.

Beggs, an instructor-pilot based at Midland Regional Airport, is the 1980 advanced-category champion in the International Aerobatic Club and is working toward the unlimited — ultimate — IAC championship.

Anti-shark suit passes tough test

By CHERYL YOCKEY Los Angeles Times SAN DIEGO — Armored head-to-foot in his 16-pound steel mesh entishark suit, Jeremiah S. Sullivan surrendered himself to a school of hungry blue sharks lured by bloody bait canisters anchored off the stern of a 50-foot sportfishing

Within minutes, a sleek 7-foot shark approached him, tentatively tasted the thin metallic garment, then darted away in fear.

Sullivan, a free-lance photographer and natu-ralist, stared out the window of his oceanfront San Diego home and recalled the frightening but successful test of the anti-shark suit in finfilled waters off San Clemente Island last July.

"Sharks are not that aggressive," claims Sullivan, who studied marine biology and shark behavior at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in San Diego.

The one major problem sharks have is that their teeth are just too sharp. They don't bite that hard, but their teeth are so sharp they'll go through you like a hot knife in butter."

Testing the suit with Sullivan were underwater photographers Ron and Valerie Taylor, codevelopers of the suit, who filmed shark sequences for "Jaws." Before testing the suit here, Sullivan and the Taylors worked in sharkinfested Australian waters with several tropical shark species. Since then, the Taylors have tested the suit with hammerheads and gray reef sharks.

While studying shark behavior at Scripps in 1978-79, Sullivan, a onetime cruise ship dive master, found that research had been done on sharks' reaction to metals such as rusty steel. The study suggest ed that metals, which produce a galvanic electric current in seawater, disturb most sharks.

'Sharks are very sensitive to electric fields," said Peter A. Klimley, a part-time marine biology professor at Scripps consulted by Sullivan in reearching the suit.

It is also known that sharks have broken off teeth biting metallic objects, Klimley noted.

'Since sharks' teeth are not as strong as metal, logically, a metal suit that conforms to the body should prevent shark teeth from damaging the flesh, and in turn prevent tissue damage, blood loss and shock which is what kills people," Sullivan said.

After discussing the shark suit idea with the Taylors, whom Sullivan has assisted in several films, plans were drawn up for the suit, which covers the head and body, exposing only the

The fine steel mesh swim with flexibility Sullivan said. The weight of the suit also eliminates the need for a diver's weight belt.

Critic disappointed with ABC

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - This is weird. The 1980-81 prime time television season ended this week. Where's the hoopla? The laurels? The ticker-tape?

CBS, by a mile. In the strike-abbreviated 25-week season, CBS averaged a Nielsen prime time rating of 19.8, compared to ABC's 18.2 and NBC's 16.6. (That means that during the average prime time minute during the 25-week season, 19.8 percent of American homes with TV were tuned to CBS.)

CBS absolutely blew away its rival networks for the season victory, but has maintained rather a low profile about it all. CBS does mention, in restrained tones, that the 1.6 ratings point margin of victory was the biggest since 1973-74, when CBS beat NBC by more than two points. What about the party hats? The noisemakers? The joyous shouts of "We're No. 1?" After its second consecutive season victory, I suppose CBS is beginning to feel regal again, and is pleased to be done with that nasty business of fighting it out in the streets with the hooligan ABC. But I'm really disappointed in ABC. The erstwhile champion isn't even making a show of its loss this season.

ENTERTAINMENT

Last season, when CBS dethroned ABC by a tenth of a point, ABC scowled and clenched its fists and grumbled on about how CBS didn't keep a proper count or it started the season too early, or some such. Eventually, ABC's publicity and research boys got together and programmed their statistical tea-leaves to read that ABC had won the ratings race.

But this year, ABC is trying to sneak away from the battlefield without handing over its sword. ABC, so boisterous in victory in the late '70s, is trying to slip silently away from the scene of its defeat.

This year, ABC isn't even acknowledging there is a prime time season. "We haven't taken a position on the season yet," says an ABC official. Gee, they took a position on it when ABC's 'kidvid' revolution knocked CBS out of first place. ABC's backhanded way of acknowledging the end of the TV year will be to terminate the "season-to-date" tabulations in the weekly ratings reports to the

All I can say is thank heaven for NBC. Good old NBC, without whom the ersatz TV season would be forgotten, is carrying on and making noise about the season as if it had won. Which, of course, NBC was a long, long way from doing.

NBC, so sensitive about losing and about the tenuous status of President Fred Silverman, has made good sport out of the TV season. You may remember that NBC began its season on the traditional starting date of Sept. 15, despite the actors' strike, in order to milk "Shogun," for an early "season" lead.

Five-year ratings went to Susan Fry and Missy Kibler of Grand Staff and Sharon Phipps of Sibelius.

Tommy Nunez of the Chopin Club received an eight-year rating. Ninety-two students in all received ratings.

New Orleans to host World Fair

PARIS (AP) — The Bureau of International Expositions gave its unanimous final approval Wednesday to a 1984 World's Fair in New Orleans, the city's first such exposition in a century.

"We're very excited about the approval and registration," New Orleans Mayor Ernest Morial said. "We think New Orleans is appropriate for the World's Fair because it is America's most international city. New Orleans first proposed the fair in 1974.
"It was a considerable amount of effort," said Morial, "but it certainly was

New Orleans' other World's Fair was held in 1884. The one a century later is expected to attract 11 million visitors to the city.

The international bureau's approval came after President Reagan gave his formal endorsement to the fair following assurances by the organizers that they will have $37.5 million in support pledges by May 15. They said they had $31 million in guarantees already.

ACLU sues over religious cable

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit against the city of Pittsburgh, seeking to void a new cable television contract that provides a full-time channel to a religious

The Pittsburgh chapter of the ACLU filed the suit this week in U.S. District Court, claiming the contract between the city and Warner Cable Corp. is unconstitutional because it violates the separation between church and state.

The contract includes a provision to grant Christian Associates of Southwestern Pennsylvania a channel and more than $60,000 for equipment to produce local, religion-oriented programming

The ACLU, which filed the suit on behalf of three persons, also named Mayor Richard Caliguiri and the City Council as defendants. The contract was awarded to Warner Cable Corp. in January 1980.

The suit said Christian Associates excludes some religious groups from membership. Christian Associates represents 22 church bodies in nine counties,

Pentagon eyes home militia

WASHINGTON (AP) - For the first time in three decades, the Defense Department is trying to determine who will guard the nation if the National Guard

"The governors can't be left without forces to deal with civil disturbances and natural disasters," one senior official, who asked to remain anonymous, said Wednesday.

In a summary of a new study, Pentagon specialists said a key task of a "stay-behind" force would be guarding the nation's factories from sabotage and terrorism.

Those specialists, who also asked not to be identified, said Wednesday that their study was aimed at avoiding the problems which arose in forming such units in the World War I, World War II and the Korean War. No such force was organized during the Vietnam war because few National Guard units were

In peacetime, National Guard units are controlled by state governors. But the federal government may take them at any time. In any future war crisis, Guard units are certain to be mobilized early in the absence of a draft, officials say.

Centralized planning for a possible militia to re-place the National Guard at home "has fallen into disrepair" since the Korean War nearly 30 years ago, planners said.

In the summary, which was prepared for Congress, the problem was stated this way:

"Because the threat to the internal security of the nation will escalate during mobilization, a non-deployable, stay-behind 'home defense' force will be needed to assume the National Guard's peacetime mission of 'protecting life and property and preserving peace, order and public safety within the United

But for the 650 people participating in a nuclear disaster exercise here, everything else was real — including the low-level radiation sprayed on the mock accident site.

Hundreds of troops and technicians poured into a remote corner of the Nevada Test Site on Wednesday for the NUWAX-81 exercise, designed to test the nation's ability to cope with a nuclear accident.

The exercise began, according to the script, when one of two Army helicopters carrying nuclear weapons from an air base to an Army storage depot collided with a light plane, "killing" all six on the helicopter and the two in the plane

One of the nuclear weapons was thrown free before the chopper plummeted to the ground and another was burned when the wreckage caught fire. But the conventional explosive used to trigger the third exploded in the flames, scattering the nuclear components of the weapon throughout the town.

In their efforts to make everything as realistic as possible, exercise organizers sprayed a thin mixture of radium 223 and mercury 197 over the area. The elements were selected because of their resemblance to the weapons-grade plutonium that would have been used in actual nuclear weapons.

White-suited figures probed the charred, twisted remains of a large Army helicopter at the site Wednesday while others, also dressed in the protective suits, roamed the hills surrounding the mock crash site. A helicopter and plane loaded with sophisticated detection equipment criss-crossed the

Gavin says Mexico

secure' WASHINGTON (AP) - Actor John Gavin, nominated to be U.S. ambassador to Mexico, disagrees with an influential senator's characterization of Mexico's political situation as "not all that stable." Gavin, who, like his friend President Reagan, is a former president of the Screen Actors Guild, told a hearing Wednesday, "I don't think it is right for a candidate for the office of ambassador to Mexico to make any such statement at this time.'

Gavin, testifying before a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on his nomination, was responding to a question by conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

"The fact is that there is intervention by Marxists sponsored by the Soviet Union and using Castro," Helms said. "Would you not agree that the entire political situation in Mexico is not all that stable?'

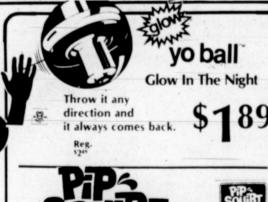

Gavin agreed that "the Marxist ideology is indeed espoused by a certain sector. But I believe on balance we need not fear for the security of the Mexican Republic.

Gavin, 50, interrupted Helms' questioning at one point to say: "Mr. Helms, if there is any question about my views about Castro, let me tell you I recognize that Mr. Castro is a puppet and client of the Russians."

Aside from the ex-change with Helms, most of the questioning of Gavin was mild. Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., did ask, however, what attributes Gavin had for the ambassadorship other than being a movie actor and a long-time friend of President Rea-

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO - The Midland Lee Rebels and the San Angelo Bobcats are expected to wage an all out team war here at Bobcat Stadium Friday night when District 5-5A holds its annual "Who's Best Now" track meet.

Rain, rain please let MHS-Lee play

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

The nursery rhyme "Rain, rain go away, come again another day so little Johnny can go out and play," is a phrase that Midland High baseball coach Tim Whalen and Lee coach Ernie Johnson must be muttering to themselves every minute of the day.

For the third time in a row, the Rebels and Bulldogs were rained out as they tried to play their first-half ending District 5-5A game Wednesday

The game almost got started. Lee had finished its infield practice and the Purple Pack was taking infield when the skies opened up and the drops started falling. The tarps came out and were put over the mound and batter's box, but it proved to be a made up, the umpires' schedule is booked solid. So, finding a day to play and an umpire crew to work the contest is becoming more difficult.

No definite date has been set to try and play the Lee-MHS game again. Today was mentioned, but Whalen said, "It is very doubtful the field would be dry enough to play on." If unable to play, both coaches expressed interest in playing the game Friday. The game is the final firsthalf district game for both teams.

It is an especially important game for the Rebels since a win would give them a share of the first half title with Abilene High and Abilene Cooper. MHS is out of the first half running.

Midland High has been out of action for so long the Bulldogs may need an introduction to the art of competition when the weather breaks. As of now, the Purple Pack is scheduled to make up its game with Odessa Permian on Wednesday, April 29; Monahans, Thursday, April 20; and with Big Spring, Thursday, May 7. Lee has a makeup game to play with Odessa High in Odessa. That game has been set for Thursday, shattered in this zany meet over the years. It's where the unexpected happens as often as the heart beats.

The action kicks off at noon Friday with the field event finals. Running preliminaries are at 1:30 p.m. and the night finals begin at 7:30.

Lee and San Angelo are the heads on favorites to shoot for the team title, but there is concern that Odessa Permian may pull off another shocker as they did last year. The no-name Panthers won't win many events, but Mojo seems to work just fine, as it did a year ago, with thirds, fourths and fifths. Permian captured the title on the last event last year when disqualifications in the mile relay handed them the title.

However, Lee enters the meet as the favorite in eight events while San Angelo is favored in four. Permian, Midland High and Odessa High carry

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Del Harris has played, watched and coached too many basketball games to believe the home court advantage will forever remain almost non-existent.

And he figures Friday night, when his Houston Rockets return home deadlocked 1-1 in their Western Conference championship series with Kansas City, would be the perfect time for the old "HCA" to reappear.

"We're happy to get the split," Harris said Wednesday after the Kings, led by 31 points from Reggie King and timely buckets by John Lambert and Ernie Grunfeld, wallopped the Rockets 88-79. "We think the home court advantage still will show itself in the playoffs.

In twelve playoff games, the Rockets have won only once at home. Regardless of our road record, I still would rather be home, with the home crowd," he said.

Moses Malone struck for 31 points and helped bury the Kings in the series opener Tuesday night 97-78, but the Kings held the dominant center to just 18 Wednesday while King scored 21 in the first half and 10 in the second.

"I just went out there and played hard," said the 6-foot-6 power forward two years out of Alabama. "We had to win it tonight. You wouldn't want to go back to Houston 0-2. We have to control the tempo and we have to contain Moses. We have to contain him because we can't stop him."

Trailing by a point at halftime, the Kings jumped to a 61-54 advantage by outscoring the Rockets 14-6 the first six minutes of the third period. Houston got no closer than five in the fourth period. Harris seemed miffed when questioned about Kansas City's defense of Malone. Only in one other playoff game, against San Antonio, was he held to

"Hey, Moses Malone has played seven years and nobody has stopped him yet," said Harris. "If you think Moses Malone has been wiped out of the playoff picture, I'd say you're in for a surprise. Last night, it was our night. Tonight it was Kansas City's night. This is going to be an interesting series.'

The Kings, still without injured guard Otis Birdsong, used only seven players.

"We played as tough as we know how," said Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons. "We got solid play from everybody. We played seven people and they did the Lambert, a 6-10 reserve, scored 18 points, six more than his previous high this season.

"How many times have you heard people boo Lambert and tell me to get him out of there," said Fitzsimmons. "I'm glad I don't listen to people." Lambert credited his teammates with his big

"When we're down, somebody has to come in and pick us up and tonight I'm glad it was me," he said. The reason we played so well is because we were looking for each other. We were not so individualistic. That helps the offense out and it takes a lot of the happen in this meet and usually does.

For Lee to win the meet, the form sheet must hold for the Rebels because depth has been a problem this year. They are high on quality with a chance to win at least eight of the 15 events. San Angelo has some quality and a lot of depth to work with. The team crown should come from one of

But the 5-5A track meet comes down to individuals and that is where the importance lies since the region meet is all-important for the athletes. The following is a look at how each event shapes up for Friday.

Discus: Lee's Keith Brown owns the best toss this year with a 177-0. That would win this meet going away, but Odessa High's Keith Maddox is favored with his 167-2 because of his consistency this year. If Brown or teammate Clyde Smith return to the 160-foot plus performances that they have had, Lee could win nine events.

Shot Put: Brown is unbeaten in this event and his 57-11 is the best this year among this group. Big Spring's Greg Jones is a good bet for second and San Angelo's Todd Parker and Lee's Terry Thompson and Smith are

Pole Vault: Permian's Charles Brown has a 13-6 to his credit and Cooper's Dave Owen has a 13-0. Permian should get a lot of points in this event while Midland High's Jim Kemper and Big Spring's Joe Hicks

High Jump: This has been a wild and whacky year for this event, but San Angelo is favored for the top two spots with Ryan Thomas and Paul Hayes, both 6-6 leapers. From there it will be a race. MHS' Troy Bush owns a 6-5, but has been inconsistent. Lee's Darrell Clark got a 6-4 last week, but had never cleared 5-10 before that. Abilene High's Loyal Proffitt is an-

Long Jump: San Angelo's Trey Wright is the favorite with his home pit to jump in, but Big Spring's Ed Matthews is a real threat. Both have jumps of 22-21/4 this year. Cooper's Owens is another 22-footer while Lee's Kenneth Brown and Midland High's Mike Velasco are both over 21-feet

400 Meter Relay: Lee is favored here in an event where handoffs are critical. This is an event where surprises are as common as the cold. Lee's Darrin Williams, Troy Barber, Carleton Johnson and Arthur Williams own the best sprint time of 42.5. Threats should come from Permian, Odessa High and San Angelo in that order. And that's based soley on sea-

3260 Meter Run: Lee's Robert Schooler has lost only once this year and has never been beaten by a 5-5A foe. It will be Schooler and then a fight between Permian's Smith, San Angelo's Dirk Davis, Odessa High's Jake Madrid and San Angelo's Ruben Aguillon. Schooler's best of 9:32.53 is over 10 seconds better than his nearest rival.

110 Meter Hurdles: This could be a San Angelo dog fight between Trent Russell and Steve Yarbrough. Russell is the favorite with a 14.41 this year and Yarbrough has a 14.55. But Lee's David Piccolo, Abilene High's Loyal Proffitt and Midland High's Robert Crawford are all under 15 seconds. Look for a surprise or two in this one. Crawford was a winner last this event in 5-5A. However, Midland High sophomore James Beverley is the heads on favorite with his state ranking 1:54.5, nearly two seconds better than the rest of a tough field. San Angelo's Daniel White has a 1:56.48 and Brent McCarty has a 1:56.90. Lee's Michael Goodley, Odessa High's Dale Herron and Permian's Ricky Ramos are all under 1:58. Beverley is unbeaten and that is the bottom line. Goodley has been a late starter, but has been knocking seconds off his time in every outing.

100 Meters: Lee's Darrin Williams owns the best time with a state ranking 10.6 and he has not lost to a 5-5A foe this year. Permian's Billy Howell has a 10.8 and is coming on strong as is Midland High's Billy Taylor and Odessa High's Hector Sanchez, both with 10.9 this year. Taylor won his first race of the year last week. Many 5-5A observers thought Taylor won this event last year in a close race where officials picked him third. He may have the most to prove.

400 Meters: This could turn into a San Angelo sweep with Arthur Hawkins leading the way with a 49.13. Randy Bartlett and Darrell Jackson will try to give the Bobcats the meet's only 1-2-3 sweep and the team title could hindge on this event. Permian's David Griggs appears to be the threat to breakup the Bobcat domination. 300 Intermediate Hurdles: There may be no event more attractive than this gang war. Lee's Piccolo is the favorite due to the fact that he is the defending champion, but Midland High's Crawford owns the best time with a 39.1 and beat Piccolo last week in Monahans. MHS also has Elston Montgomery with a 39.7 just off Piccolo's pace of 39.6. Permian also has two good entries with George and Meeks while Yarbrough of San Angelo is another threat. Crawford has been the surprise of the year and is now burning on all burners. He scored 23 points for the Bulldogs last 200 Meters: Lee's Arthur Williams is one of the state's best and has been consistently under 22 seconds all year. He owns a 21.2 this year. Arthur is a big favorite. Odessa High's Dewayne Conklin and Permian's Billy Howell are others under 22 seconds this year.

1600 Meter Run: Lee's Schooler is the favorite with his 4:24.1, but San Angelo's Dirk Davis defeated Schooler in Midland this year. That was the only Schooler loss in this event. Schooler is the defending champion in this event and he would probably just as soon keep the title. Permian's Smith and Steve Forbes should also score points.

1600 Relay: Lee has just come into its own here and now appears to be running times that will be hard to beat. Barber, Goodley and the Williams brothers produced a 3:19.0 last week in Monahans, a good two seconds better than the rest of the 5-5A field. San Angelo, OHS, Permian and Midland High should follow in that order.

That's the way the 1981 war shapes up on Thursday, but on Friday the athletes may have different ideas. Why should this year be any different

Sixers behind Bird's 34 Celtics dissect

BOSTON (AP) - In a 24-hour span, the Philadelphia 76ers went from one-point winners to 19-point losers. The explanation, Coach Billy Cunningham and forward Julius Erving agreed, is simple.
"They established how they wanted to play,"

Erving said after Wednesday night's 118-99 National Basketball Association playoff romp by the Boston Celtics. "It would be foolish for me to really dissect what happened. We just didn't have it."

"They outplayed us in all phases," added Cunningham. "We didn't play well and they had a lot to

The Celtics' victory, one day after a 105-104 loss, evened the best-of-seven Eastern Conference championship series at one game apiece. The scene shifts to Philadelphia for games Friday night and

The Celtics led all the way after scoring the first eight points. They broke the game open with a 14-0 burst late in the second quarter that boosted their lead to 59-41. They led 66-47 at halftime and never let Philadelphia closer than 14 points thereafter.

Larry Bird, who had 34 points and 10 rebounds Tuesday night, was deadly from the outside Wednesday night, hitting 14 of 21 shots. He scored 23 of his Celtic-high 34 in the first half and added 16 rebounds and five assists.

"What he did out there tonight was a season for some people," said Cunningham.

'They're looking to me now in this series," said Bird. "It really takes a lot of pressure off when you start hitting from the outside.

Philadelphia planned to go inside to Daryl Dawkis and Caldwell Jones. Because of poor ball movement, Cunningham said, that failed and "we were settling for 20-foot shots.

Rookie guard Andrew Toney took a lot of them. He scored 35 points and pd Philadelphia in scoring for the second straight game "I thought we shut down their break very well and they went more one-on-one tonight than they did last night," said Boston guard Nate Archibald, who had 19 points. "We may double team guys and see what they do from there. I don't think they can win with him (Toney) scoring 30 or Doc (Erving) scoring 30. The other guys just stand around when they play

Boston made 52 percent of its shots, compared to 47 percent in the first game, and outrebounded Philadelphia 52-41 Wednesday night

Although Boston Coach Bill Fitch said, "I don't think this game will have any bearing on the next,' Cunningham noted, "We weren't aggressive. We were reaching. We weren't moving our feet on

"I didn't like the way we lost," Cunningham added. "If we play in Philly the way we played tonight, we're going to get beat."

EL PASO — For the second night in a row, the Midland Cubs couldn't nail down the final out and ended up losing to the El Paso Diablos, 7-6, on a two-out, two run blast over the left field wall by Johnny Evans in the 11th inning of a Texas League thriller Wednesday.

Bruce was picked also on the Western Junior College Athletic Conference team after averaging 75.2 strokes per round in WJCAA, despite adverse weather conditions. In Region V play, Bruce shot 75-76-76-227 to place sixth behind medalist Chris Johnson, Western Texas College.

WTC took first with an 896 followed by McLennan, Odessa College, New Mexico JC, Weatherford, Midland, Grayson, and Cisco.

Tuesday the Cubs lost 4-3 on a twoout homer in the ninth by Willie Lazado. El Paso now leads the series by a 2-1 margin with games two more games slated for today and Friday. However, it was raining hard in El Paso this morning and tonight's game may be postponed.

Wednesday's loss was an especially tough one to take for the Cubs. Midland's Bill Morgan had given the Cubs a 6-5 lead in the top of the 11th with his first homer of the year. But Evans delivered his two-out smash off Cub reliever Rob Blyth after John Skorockocki had singled to open the inning.

Evans had four hits in five at-bats and drove in five runs. He gave El Paso a 1-0 lead in the first with an RBI single and hit a two-run homer in the third to stake El Paso to a 3-0 lead. He was a one-man wrecking crew.

El Paso catcher Terry Shoebridge homered in the fourth and Willie Lozado drove in a run in the fifth for the Diablos' other runs. Lozado has now hit safely in all 13 El Paso games this

The Cubs didn't score until the fourth when Craig Kornfeld tripled and scored on Carmello Martinez' sacrifice fly. The Cubs added two in the seventh when Jack Upton delivered a two-run double. Midland tied it at 5-5 in the eighth when Mel Hall came through with a two-run single.

Chick Valley picked up the win for the Diablos despite giving up three runs in 41/3 innings of work and Morgan's homer in the top of the 11th. Blyth absorbed his first loss of the year and had given up only one hit in 31/4 innings of work before Evans touched off his game winner.

Kush verdict needs long look

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Now that the American judicial system has exonerated Frank Kush, we can get on with the business of College Football...if that's really what you want to do.

Kush, you will remember, is the ex-Arizona State coach who was accused by a former punter, Kevin Rut-, ledge, of getting his players' attention with an occasional smack of his hand...or anything else that might be

In his defense, Kush denied ever striking a player "skin-to-skin" but said helmet slapping and face mask grabbing was not unusual. "It was designed to get their attention. That's Kush was a character builder, obviously.

It seems here, however, that the construction of character does not necessarily require the commission of physical violence by the constructer on the constructee.

The frightening part is that some college sports people think that belt-ing an athlete is all part of the game. Their game, perhaps, but not the game college teams ought to be play-

After the Kush verdict, the coach told ABC radio sports that the implications of his trial were deep.

"The entire American sports system would have been in major jeopardy if Rutledge had won the case," Kush told ABC. "It would open up an entire new avenue if a player in any sport decided he didn't like the procedure taken by the coach.

"I do not plan to change my coaching style," he said. "I plan to approach the CFL the same way I coached in the collegiate ranks. I've been coaching for 25 years and I feel the style I have developed is one of a winner. I will not change. I will not be intimidated by any individual that does not agree with my style." Wonderful.

Oakland bullpen finally gets save

By The Associated Press

In the Oakland A's bullpen, they play a waiting game.

"We sit out there cheering and yelling, trying to keep sharp so we're ready when they need us," Jeff Jones says of the little-used A's relief

For a change, though, an Oakland starter didn't complete a game Wednesday — and Jones was thrown into the breach to save a 2-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, the 14th in 15 games for the red-hot A's.

"I guess it's been determined that the bullpen won't be used that often," said Jones. "But when we are, we want to contribute.

Both Jones and Craig Minetto came on in the ninth inning and saved the game for starter Brian Kingman. Jones retired the last two Twins batters to earn the A's first save of the

"I don't think they rolled over us," said Minnesota center fielder Mickey Hatcher. "It was all their pitchers. They've kept us in a slump that we haven't been able to shake. We're certainly capable of scoring more runs than that. Maybe it's good that we got this slump out of the way

Tommy Herr is in a rut. He keeps hitting triples and driving in runs. He did it for the third consecutive game - a two-run drive in the second inning this time - to extend St. Louis' winning streak to six games and Chicago's losing streak to nine.

"That's just guys getting on base," Herr said of his league-leading 11 runs batted in. "As long as I get the hits, I'm going to drive in runs."

Herr's hitting backed the four-hit pitching of unbeaten Lary Sorensen, who extended the Cubs' string of scoreless innings to 21. Braves 7, Reds 3

Bob Horner's also in a rut. For the second consecutive game he drove in four runs against Cincinnati, this time with a homer, single and double. That's from zero to eight RBIs, from nowhere to second in the league.

"You saw the real Bob Horner in the last two games," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. The Reds also saw the real Gaylord Perry, who checked them on six hits for his first victory and first complete game of the season. He's 10 victories away from becoming the 15th pitcher to win 300 games.

Padres 4, Giants 0 Juan Eichelberger and Gary Lucas teamed for a five-hitter and San Diego broke the game open with three runs in the eighth inning to beat the Giants.

Mike Phillips' triple and Gene Ri-chards' single off Ed Whitson in the fifth gave the Padres the only run they needed, but they got their cushion when, with the bases loaded in the eighth, reliever Randy Moffitt threw

Sabres eliminated Three NHL teams avert graveyard, but

By The Associated Press

Three teams whistled past the National Hockey League graveyard Wednesday night. But the Buffalo Sabres couldn't carry the tune.

The Edmonton Oilers, Philadelphia Flyers and St. Louis Blues averted playoff elimination with clutch vic-tories to extend their quarterfinal series to a sixth game Friday night.

The Oilers trail the defending champion New York Islanders three games to two after a 4-3 road victory; the Flyers bombed Calgary 9-4 at home and are down 3-2 to the Flames, and the Blues edged the Rangers 4-3 in St. Louis and trail New York 3-2.

But the Minnesota North Stars continued their excellent play away from home, winning their fifth playoff road contest in five tries and ending the Sabres' season, 4-3. Minnesota won at 13:14 of the second period, then set up Brad Maxwell to give the North Stars a 3-1 margin. They increased it to 4-1 on Al MacAdam's sixth playoff goal — his line, which includes Steve Payne and Bobby Smith, has 18 goals and 20 assists in eight playoff

The Sabres rallied within a goal with 1:42 left but Minnesota rookie goalie Don Beaupre closed the door.

"When it comes to the playoffs," said Beaupre, an all-star goaltender this season, "everything is done to perfection — every pass, every play.

"I think I was really following the puck. I wanted to play in the playoffs so bad" - this was just his second start in the eight games - "my concentration was really up.

"In the first period, I never really had a chance to get the feel of the puck," said Beaupre. "But in the second, I started to grab the puck and hang onto it and was able to get the feel."

Andersson thinks the North Stars, who made it to the Stanley Cup semifinals last season, are ready for any-

"Five games? What did I think before the series? I thought: No way. It's unbelievable," said Andersson. "Now we know we can beat anyone. I think we can outskate anybody.

"I think you get a feeling that maybe you're a team of destiny. I feel that way right now," added Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor.

Sabres bench boss Roger Neilson thought Minnesota got the breaks.

"I've never seen so many bad bounces," he said. "We should have had a 3-0 lead in the first period instead of a tie. But it was a disjointed

"How many ways can you say it?" asked Buffalo defenseman Jim Schoenfeld. "When you lose, you

Oilers 4, Islanders 3 The Islanders lost because they didn't come prepared to play 60 minutes, according to two of their skaters, and because Edmonton goalie

Andy Moog was sensational. "In the first period, we started off lax," was the analysis of Islanders center Bryan Trottier. Trottier had one Islander goal and linemate Mike Bossy had the other two. "We were not aggressive enough and not skating or forechecking enough. We were a little soft and not concentrating. I guess it's human nature. You sort of expect them to come out flat after beating them in overtime in the last game. And you can be over-

"We can't beat them playing one period of hockey."

Wayne Gretzky set up two first-period tallies — by Doug Hicks and Glenn Anderson — then Brett Callighen put Edmonton ahead late in the second period and Matti Hagman got the clincher in the third session. "This is a big boost for us," said Gretzky, the NHL scoring king, "and we're really looking forward to Fri-day night. We were relaxed, even though it was such a big game.

To win the Cup, you need great goaltending and Moog is giving it to

"Anyway, we're too young to realize what pressure is.

Flyers 9, Flames 4

Philadelphia responded to the pressure of a must-win situation by blasting the Flames out of the Spectrum with five goals in the first period, three by Brian Propp. Bill Barber scored twice for the Flyers, giving him 50 lifetime playoff goals, and Ken Linseman had four assists as the Flyers blasted Calgary goalie Pat Riggin, who had stymied them the last three games, all Flames vic-

"We gave a tremendous effort tonight," said Flyers Coach Pat Quinn.

"We forechecked well, we capitalized on the breaks and, most important, finished off our plays."

Flames Coach Al MacNeil wasn't about to blame Riggin for the loss.

"There was just too much coming at him," said MacNeil, who saw the Flyers score on nine of 35 shots. "We had too many passengers and not enough workers.' Blues 4, Rangers 3

St. Louis, which was second in league standings to the Rangers' 13th, looked like they wouldn't get beyond Wednesday night when New York grabbed a 3-1 lead. But the Blues applied constant pressure in the final two periods and rookie Jorgen Pettersson scored the tying and winning

The Blues, who lost three straight to the Rangers after an opening victory, also got standout goaltending from all-star Mike Liut.

"I think we've realized that we were being embarrassed, we were being humiliated," said Blues Coach Red Berenson. "We were standing around. We were two periods from talking about it all summer."

Broken back delays jockey's wedding

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Cyd Snellings has been around race tracks all her life. She knows the dangers, but she never dreamed it could happen again to someone she loved, not to her fiance.

"Not after my sister," she said Wednesday. "We just figured the odds were against it."

She was standing in a room at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, stationed behind the orthopedic wheel chair which held her husbandto-be, jockey Sam Boulmetis Jr., son of the hall-of-famer.

When a horse fell at Pimlico March 23. Boulmetis was slammed to the track like a ragdoll, then kicked by a trailing horse. It broke his back, paralyzing him from the waist down.

"My sister's paralyzed, too," Cyd said. "Her name is Julie. She was 19 when it happened, an accident at Delaware Park. She's 23 now. They say it would take a miracle to get her legs back. With her, they were afraid to even operate.

They showed a film of Boulmetis' accident to a group of reporters who were invited to the hospital here to talk to the young jockey, his famous father, also named Sam, and the doctors who are caring for him.

Then Cyd rolled Boulmetis into the room. She squeezed his shoulders real hard to let him know she was there as he smiled for the photographers and answered questions.

"The last couple of days I've been feeling pretty good," said the jockey, whose father was inducted into thoroughbred racing's Hall of Fame in 1973 after his mounts earned more than $15 million in purses during his 18 years in the saddle.

"Most of the pain has subsided," said the young jockey. "Ive got some feeling in my legs."

The orthopedic surgeon who operated on Boulmetis, Dr. Jerome

M. Cotler, said it would be 18 months to three years before the full extent of recovery was known. But he offered some encouragement. "He does have sensation, and he's young," said the doctor. "And at this age they seem to do very well."

Cyd met Boulmetis after he broke a collar bone at Delaware Park in 1978 when another horse snapped a leg.

"I don't hate racing," she said. "I want to go back to the track and see my friends. "But it's a dangerous profession. If I had kids, would I let them race? No.

"You know that song — 'Mama Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys.' Well, I think they ought to change it to jockeys. My father, he raced in the late 1940s and 1950s. Murray may pass physical

BALTIMORE (AP) The Baltimore Orioles received an encouraging report on Eddie Murray following a series of Xray tests Wednesday, but results of a blood test won't be known until Thursday.

Dr. Leonard Wallenstein, the club physician, said the X-rays disclosed no problem for the ailing first baseman in his chest, abdomen, nasal passages or neck mus-cles.

Writer upset over 'OSO' treatment

By Melvin Durslag Hearst Special News Service

Mrs. Georgia Frontiere President, Los Angeles Rams Dear Mrs. Frontiere:

As a season ticket buyer following your club dutifully from Los Angeles to Anaheim with the promise of a smooth, equitable and enjoyable transition, I began this experience last year with a demotion that found me shifted from the 30-yard-line in the Coliseum to deep in the end zone at

Countless others were similarly

THIS YEAR, no applications for many of these people arrived at all. In my case, I telephoned the Rams to inquire what happened. Calling up my account number in the computer, the ticket person informed me that I was listed as an OSO.

"I don't mean to crack any codes," I asked, "but what is an OSO?"

'An OSO stands for 'One Season' Only," I was told. "That means that your application comes up each year for administrative review. You will be reviewed when Mrs. Frontiere returns from Hawaii."

I trust you had a nice trip, because all those listed as an OSO didn't hear from the Rams for another five weeks. The application then arrived, reading, in part:

"As you know, no automatic renewal privileges goes with these special tickets. Availability problems necessitate review of this privilege each

Let me interrupt here to note use of the word "privilege." It is deemed a privilege to buy four seats deep in the end zone for $661. I can remember when it was the privilege of pro football to accommodate a buyer. The letter continues:

"Mrs. Georgia Frontiere has personally reviewed and approved your account for the 1981 Los Angeles Rams football season. Therefore, we are able to offer this seating location to you for all games in 1981."

THE REASON I write is twofold...first, I am overwhelmed by your offer to sell me seats, once located on the 30-yard-line, deep in the end

The second purpose is to reciprocate. I wish to inform you that no automatic renewal privilege goes with reading my column. Your case has been reviewed by me personally, and I am able to approve you for the 1981 season only.

Regrettably, I can offer you nothing better at this time than the first edi-

But it doesn't seem to feel its integrity is at stake, nor does it feel that investigation is required, when rumors circulate that owners are taking locations of loyal fans and selling them to brokers and favorite sons.'

THAT'S WHAT the man said, Mrs. Frontiere, and I am able to inform you he is a federal judge, equally enraptured by the privilege he has been afforded of purchasing your tickets.

5:25 p.m. on the edge of the swift current immediately below the dam.
"He took out most of my line, and when I looked down and saw my line running low, I tried to apply more pressure," Lamb said.

FORTUNATELY, Lamb was using 20-pound-test line on surf tackle and eventually was able turn the fish in the current.

The fish will exceed the current 33-pound, 31/2-ounce record striper by about five pounds if certified by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. The current record was caught by Louisianan James F. Kent at Toledo Bend on Feb. 8, 1980.

Lamb's fish is the first record striper coming from any other lake than Toledo Bend or Texoma since the fish were introduced to the state in the late 1960s. It actually was caught from the upper end of Lake Austin, a narrow reservoir which winds through Austin's west side.

Biologists said stripers have been stocked in most of the reservoirs along the Colorado River "Highland Lakes" chain, including Lake Austin.

Each spring a number of large stripers were caught below the dams where they concentrate for the spawining run.

The earlist striper stocking in the Highland Lakes chain was in Lake Travis in 1973. This is probably one of those original fish, thus eight years

WHERE WILL the striper record stop. There's no telling. Already strippers over 50 pounds have been taken in freshwater impoundments, rivers and below dams in the East and West. Probably the only reason a striper 50 pounds or more hasn't been taken from Texas waters is because they haven't been stocked in Texas lakes and rivers as long as other sectors of the country. Biologists who've performed studies on several Texas lakes, mostly Texoma and Toledo Bend claim they've netted stripers over 45 pounds and some think larger stripers are swimming these waters. One of the fastest growing striper populations in Texas at the present time are the scrappers in Amistad

Del Rio, which we claim, along with Mexico, has really been producing some fine striper catches this winter and spring. We ran a column about the latest striper record back in February when a Hale Ceter man caught a 30-pound, eight-ounce striper. Unless something bigger and better comes along, we believe this should be the largest for this spring, but who knows. But look out next fall, we'll predit another striper record. And we'll predict new striper records to fall until the 45-pound mark in reached. How long that will take is anyone's guess, but it'll eventually

THERE'S NO double, but the striper has grabbed the attention of many a Texas angler. This saltwater specie, who's been successfully introduced to freshwater impoundments and will readily spawn, has created a new dimension in freshwater fishing in Texas. And the good thing about the striper is that everyone can catch the wild battlers. However, there's a lot of controversy centered around the striper situation as well. Some anglers and most avid bass fishermen are complaining that the introduction of stripers will eventually hurt the black bass and other gamefish populations in one particular lake. And they are probably correct if the stripers are introduced into small lakes and reservoirs. But Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists have not confirmed any damage from striper populations in huge Texas water impoundments. The only thing the striper might hurt is the white bass population, which roams and sports the same habitat as

The lake which biologists are now concerned with is Lake Texoma. They (biologists) are already seeing a decline in the white bass population. They feel there isn't enough forage fish in the lake to support the whites and stripers. And they believe the stripers will eventually eliminate the white bass population.

IN ANY Texas lake where white bass populations are heavy and the striper was introduced and doing well, biologists feel the striper will dominate.

So far, fishery biologists have not recorded any evidence where stripers are hurting other gamefish popula-tions. They feel (in larger reservoirs) that the stripers will not compete for forage or feed on these gamefish species — crappies, black bass and cat-

The program is relaively new in Texas and more studies will be performed on the introduction of stripers. So time will tell what and where stripers will end up on the Texas fisherman's list. So far, they've created quite a scene from the angling stand point.

We enjoy your comments and thoughs on stripers vs. other Texas gamefish and would like to hear from you on this.

Rescue workers, including National Guardsmen, worked into the earlymorning hours today before they found the body of Gary Huskey, 31, an assistant manager reported missing after a twister hit the savings and loan. His car was found outside, and police suspected that he had been trapped inside.

Waiting is the most difficult part," said Huskey's aunt, Lettie Tyner, while the search was underway. "They found his desk; he wasn't under it or around it. The waiting is terrible - not knowing."

In Malden in extreme southeast Missouri, police said an elderly man died of a heart attack after his home was damaged by a tornado, but officials declined to say whether the death was related to the storm. He was not identified immediately.

Homes and businesses were damaged by the twister that hit Malden and then hopscotched across the rural countryside before touching down again in East Prairie, where two residential areas were damaged.

By a 15-12 vote, the Senate added an amendment to a bill that would make a father subject to a paternity claim for all the child's life. The bill, by Sen. Ray Farabee, which also would allow voluntary assignment of wages to support a child, finally passed on voice vote and was sent to the House. "A person should have an obliga-

He said federal authorities are pushing state welfare agencies to do a better job of making fathers support their children but that was often impossible under Texas' present one-year limitation to establish a parentchild relationship.

Texas has a constitutional prohibition against mandatory withholding of wages but Farabee's bill would allow a person to voluntarily allow onethird of his gross wages to be deducted for support of a child.

Agnew trial now focusing on damage to state

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) - After 51/2 years, three taxpayers who want former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to repay kickbacks he allegedly received while governor were getting their day in court. Suzanne Saul, Reina Chassy and John A. McMillen, who filed the suit on trial here, were to testify today as court proceedings resumed after a one-day

The suit asks that Agnew, who served as governor of Maryland from 1967-68 before becoming Richard Nixon's vice president, pay to the state treasury $177,500 he allegedly accepted in kickbacks from consulting engineers who received state highway contracts.

The suit also seeks $120,610 in interest from the

The civil suit, which has been joined by the state, was filed in 1976, three years after Agnew resigned the vice presidency and pleaded no contest to a federal charge of tax evasion.

He received a $10,000 fine and three years' unsupervised probation.

Mrs. Saul said at the time that the suit was "a matter of principle."

"We want to show other public officials that they just can'l quit and say they're sorry and get off scot-free," she said.

Lawyers for the taxpayers and the state devoted the opening day of the trial Tuesday to witnesses who alleged Agnew accepted 50 percent of the kickbacks

The Evening News quoted sources as saying the soldier matches descriptions of the gunman and of the man who stabbed another black man in the heart on New Year's Eve. The man recovered. It said the soldier reportedly once owned a .22-caliber rifle. Police have said the weapon used in the killings was believed to have been a sawed-off

The paper said its sources said detectives hope to examine military records to see if the soldier was either on leave or had not yet joined the Army when the slavings took place.

MORRISTOWN, Tenn. (AP) - The snail darter's days of distrupting development and enthralling environmentalists may be numbered.

Biologists said Wednesday they probably will recommend next fall that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service begin removing federal protection for the tiny

"It would appear that the snail darter is in a lot better shape than we thought," said Dr. David Etnier, a University of Tennessee zoologist who discovered the threeinch fish eight years ago in the Little Tennessee River.

Until late last year, the Little Tennessee was believed to be the snail darter's only natural habitat. And that was where the Tennessee building the Tellico

The discovery of the fish prompted environmentalists to take the snail darter's fight for survival all the way to the Supreme Court. With the dam 90 percent complete, the court ruled in favor of the snail darter, a member of the perch family that feeds on snails in river beds.

But Congress and then-President Carter exempted the $136 million dam from the requirements of the Endangered Species Act, and the TVA closed the dam's sluice gates in November 1979.

Since November 1980, the snail darter has found the fish in four other east Tennessee waterways.

When the snail darter threatened the dam's completion, TVA spent $1 million studying and trying to transplant the fish into other streams.

Last November, Etnier found a few snail darters in South Chickamauga Creek near Chattanooga. He discovered more in March in the nearby Sequatchie River, and others were found in Sewee Creek and the upper Watts Bar Reservoir.

"It appears that these populations we have found have been there all the time, and they simply weren't found because we weren't looking in the right places," Et-nier, a member of the Snail Darter Recovery Team, said Wednesday as the seven-member scientific group met to evaluate the discoveries.

That, he said, would mean the snail darter-Tellico Dam fight was

use UPS for Texas parcels is a serious problem. A hardware wholesaler in Dallas, for exam ple, can't supply a store in Longview, Texas, as promptly or economically as a competitive wholesaler in Shreveport, Louisiana, can.

The Tony Lama Boot Company in El Paso spends extra time and money trucking parcels into New Mexico. UPS is then permitted to take them back into Texas for distribution.

WE'D LIKE YOUR HELP

The Texas Legislature is now discussing a bill which would clarify the authority of the Texas Railroad Commission (the agency that regulates transportation matters) to consider requests such as ours to-provide service to and from all points in Texas.

We think this bill would be a step forward, and we'd like to see it pass. If you agree with us, a note to your Senator and Representative in the Texas Leaislature could be very helpful.

Quake-devastated Algerian town now being rebuilt

AL ASNAM, Algeria (AP) — Much of the city remains deserted. Rub-ble and damaged build-ings are still much in evidence. Signs of hope are everywhere, however, as thousands work to put Al Asnam back on the map after the devasting earthquake here last Oct. 10.

It was late afternoon when this lively western Algerian city of 125,000 began to shake from the earthquake that was measured at 7.5 on the Richter Scale - in between a "major" earth-quake and a "great" one like the San Francisco disaster in 1906. Minutes later, 75 percent of the buildings here were destroyed or damaged.

Official death and injury figures never have been released, but more than 3,000 bodies were pulled from the rubble at Al Asnam. Unofficial reports put the death toll as high as 10,000.

Hundreds, perhaps thousands more, died in isolated mountain villages. The authorities estimate 437,000 people suffered loss throughout the province and they are near completion of a list of the victims on which to base compensation and housing plans. Today, bulldozers rumble from dawn to dark in El Asnam and more than 5,000 workers are clearing the rubble and putting up 20,000 prefabricated homes for

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Surgery not always necessary for ulcers

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've suffered with an ulcer for a number of years, and my doctor now says that surgery may be necessary. Isn't there a drug that can accomplish the same thing? I'm sure I heard recently that surgery is no longer always necessary. -

Dear Pat: It's true that surgery is not always necessary for ulcer patients, but that doesn't mean that it's never necessary. The drug you proba-bly have in mind is called cimetidine, and it has prompted some people to claim that it has practically eliminat-ed the need for ulcer surgery. However, Dr. Michael Gold, chairman of the department of gastroenterology at the Washington Hospital Center, warns that it would be misleading to regard it as a cure-all.

For some patients with advanced ulcer problems - such as bleeding, perforation, or obstructions of the stomach's opening - surgery may be the only effective treatment. I don't know, of course, whether you fall into this category. On the other hand, cimetidine has been used successfully in the treatment of patients with stress ulcers. These are caused by changes in the stomach lining as a result of serious illness or injury, such as severe burns or brain tumors. Another drawback is that cimetidine does produce some undesirable side effects, including confusion in some patients and a lowered white blood count. The bottom line is that while the drug can be extremely useful in some cases, it may not be of much value in others.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am in my late twenties, and undergoing chemotherapy for leukemia. My wife and I have one child, but we had always counted on having at least two children. Is it possible for me to father a child despite the drugs that have been used in my treatment? — Phil

Dear Phil: As you imply in your letter, chemotherapy does affect male fertility. However, some men who have survived acute leukemia have been able to father children after treatment ended, and at least one case has been reported were a man fathered a child during the course of chemotherapy. Incidentally, the child in this instance was completely normal.

A honest answer to your question must be that the chances of your becoming a father again are slim but "It was the Rock Island Railroad that built the bridge," said Drake. "Here was the great river which bisected the country and to ever get the West developed, the river had to be crossed by rail."

Before the bridge, huge lumber barges ferried people and supplies across the nation's mightiest waterway.

After it, there was a single strip of rail to carry a new generation of homesteaders into the

The history of the bridge includes some famous names, among them Abraham Lincoln, then a novice lawyer from Springfield.

Shipping interests de-clared the bridge a menace to navigation and took the issue to court. Lincoln successfully defended the railroad.

Soviets tie the hands of U.N. in Lebanon

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing have suggested U.N. intervention to halt the fighting in central Lebanon, but Soviet and Syrian opposition has tied the hands of the world body.

Because of that opposition from Syria and its Soviet allies, there is a "lack of a political foundation for a formal mission from the U.N.," a senior U.N. official said.

The official, who asked not to be identified because of the explosiveness of the situation, said the most that could be expected was quiet and discreet diplomacy to end the bloody fighting in Lebanon between Israelibacked Christian militiamen and Syrian troops ian troops.

U.N. moral support might also be offered to the beleagued Lebanese government of Christian President Elias Sarkis, the official said, but he ruled out any prospect of sending a U.N. peacekeeping force into the shell-battered central cities of Beirut and Zahle, 30 miles eat of the capital

"It's no secret," the U.N. official said, "that the whole question of internationalization is an extremely devisive issue in Lebanese politics—internationalization meaning U.N. instead of the present arrangement worked out by the Arab League."

He referred to the Arab Deterrent Force, comprised mainly of 22,000 Syrian troops who entered Lebanon in 1976 to bring an end to the civil war raging between the Christian militias and an alliance of leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas. The Syrians, after initially turning their guns on the leftists, switched sides and periodically have turned their guns on Christian militiamen in and around Beirut.

"Whenever anyone mentions a U.N. force, the Christians start to cheer and everyone else starts to quake," a U.S. diplomat said.

Last week, the Soviet Union blocked the Security Council from adopting even a mildly worded statement of concern about the renewed crisis, as well as consideration of a French proposal to send a special U.N. envoy to Beirut.

The Soviets insisted the council blame Israel for the latest outbreak of fighting in central Lebanon, a move the United States and other Western members of the 15-nation council found unacceptable.

The Russian attitude obviously reflected Syrian opposition to any outside interference in what Damascus considers its sphere of influence in Lebanon — the territory lying north of the Litani River. A 6,000-man U.N. peacekeeping force is stationed south of the river, between warring Palestinian guerrillas and the Israelibacked Christian militiamen of Lebanese Maj. Saad Haddad.

A new U.N. initiative in Lebanon is a "dead issue," a Syrian diplomat said Wednesday, with obvious satisfaction. The government of President Hafez Assad would view an expanded U.N. role as "interference in Lebanon's internal affairs," the diplomat told a newsman

Obviously under Syrian pressure, the Lebanese government itself has not requested any Security Council

Timber interests to do battle with environmentalists bill

By ELEANOR RANDOLPH ane Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Timber interests and environmentalists were expected to square off in a bitter legislative battle when hearings opened Wednesday on a bill to open almost 62 million acres of wilderness to possible devel-

"We can no longer afford land management paralysis," said Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., when he introduced the bill. "Our country needs timber, minerals, oil, gas and recreation sites, and it's up to us to decide just how these demands can be met with the limited resources we have available to us."

Hayakawa's proposal, which is backed by a coalition of Republican senators, is opposed by environmental groups who charge that the spon-sors are railroading the bill through the legislative process by holding hearings this week during the Easter recess, when most Democrats in Congress are out of Washington. The hearings will be conducted by a Senate Energy and Natural Resources subcommittee.

"This is on a very, very fast track," protested Peter Kirby, a spokesman for the Wilderness Society. "It is very unusual to have these hearings during recess. It must mean they're in a hurry for this one."

With the Republicans now controlling the Senate, Hayakawa has a better chance than in the past to speed the process for allowing development of roadless acreage within the National Forest system.

Hayakawa's bill concerns a National Forest Service study of 62 million acres of potential wilderness called RARE II (Roadless Area Review and Evaluation).

In the study, the Forest Service said that 36 million acres of national forest should be considered "non-wilderness" and open for development, 11 million acres should be studied further before a decision is made, and about 15 million acres should remain as pristine wilderness

However, the study, finished in 1979, hit a snag for potential developers in 1980 when Judge Lawrence Karlton of U.S. District Court in Sacramento issued an injunction against use of one million acres in California for commercial use. Karlton said that the study was faulty because, in part, the public was not consulted about the use of the land.

In what may become one of the most controversial parts of Haya-kawa's bill, the legislation tries to sidestep Karlton's ruling by saying: "No justice, judge or court of the United States shall have jurisdiction to hear, determine, or review, or to issue any writ, process order, rule, decree, or comment with respect to the legal or factual sufficiency of the RARE II (findings)."

"Nobody's quite certain that's con-stitutional," said one Democratic senator's aide who would not permit use of his name. "It raises some nteresting questions about whether the judge in California could even lift his injunction if this is passed so that the California land could be opened (to development)."

Environmentalists and some Democratic members of Congress also object to a timetable set out by the bill, which would give Congress until 1983 to determine whether forest lands under study in the East are definitely wilderness or non-wilderness; the deadline for lands in the West is 1985.

If Congress fails to make a decision on the land, Hayakawa's bill would allow it to revert automatically to land that could be developed.

"We have to set a deadline on this planning," Hayakawa said recently when he announced the bill. "We have been planning forever."
Environmentalists, however, have charged that this would mean that a few senators could make the territory revert to non-wilderness by simply stalling the legislation through the years.

"Then it would be open season,"

says Tim Mahoney, who is working on the bill for the Sierra Club. "We consider this the most radical timber industry initiative so far over the nation's wilderness."

State engineer denies El Paso's request for water permits

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Engineer Steve Reynolds has rejected all of the water permit requests filed by the city of El Paso in its efforts to obtain New Mexico water rights.

Reynolds denied El Paso's water permit applications Tuesday, and in doing so apparently cleared the way for the Texas city to take New Mexico to court to challenge the state's right to block the exportation of New Mexico water to El

A copy of Reynolds' decision was mailed to a federal court judge in Albuquerque, who earlier this year ruled he could not consider the lawsuit until certain conditions had been met.

U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton also was sent letter from Reynolds' office explaining that because of the state engineer's decision, action on the lawsuit

Reynolds said he decided to deny El Paso's request for water permits to speed up the process for resolving the lawsuit.

He said he decided the interests of New Mexicans, particularly those living near El Paso, would "best be served by expediting this matter."

The El Paso Public Service Board filed the lawsuit in September. The lawsuit claims a New Mexico law banning the exportation of water to other states violates the U.S. Constitution. Lawyers for the El Paso board were dismayed when Bratton indefinitely postponed action on the lawsuit.

Lawyers for El Paso then pursued various strategies aimed at getting a hearing on the lawsuit. One of the board's lawyers, Doug Perrin, expressed optimism Tuesday that the decision issued by Reynolds will spur action on the "It sounds like that will get the (federal) judge to consider the lawsuit, said El Paso attorney Doug Perrin. "It appears the battle has finally been joined."

Perrin said his positive reaction to Reynolds' decision was ironic because technically the decision rejected an effort by El Paso to obtain New Mexico Specifically, Reynolds rejected 266 permit applications filed by El Paso for water in the lower Rio Grande underground water basin in Dona Ana County. Reynolds concluded "that the use of New Mexico's public waters in another state, as proposed by El Paso's applications, would constitute a violation of the New Mexico Constitution.' Reynolds' decision did not mention the state law specifically prohibiting the export of water across state lines, which is the basis of El Paso's lawsuit. But Reynolds said later he considers the specific law an adjunct to the state constitution.

New Mexico law gives the state engineer the power to reject water permit applications if studies determine existing water rights would be impaired. Reynolds and his staff had argued such studies were required for El Paso's water permit applications before other issues could be considered.

Friday, April 24, 1981 YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-

DAY: Those born on this date have that special something known as "star quality." Hollywood superstars sharing this birthday with you in-clude Barbra Streisand, Jill Ireland and Shirley Maclaine. The unpredictable actions of others will continue to affect your career this year. Make the most of your creative talents and you will come out on top. Do not be deceived by a new romantic interest. A shared liking for glamour is not love. Take your time when making farreaching personal decisions. Happiness and success come to those who work hard while waiting for their big outlook is very promising.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take your time when making major decisions. Other people may be overly demanding now. Stand your ground! Your intuition is right on target. Pamper yourself this evening. Plan a special dinner.

chance. Be patient. Financial

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A good day to catch up on routine chores and errands. Write important letters. A quiet new romance could be part of the picture this evening. Parents should include offspring in their entertainment plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Partnership matters receive full illumination today. Finance and travel enjoy excellent influences. Loved one does you a huge favor. Be sure to give credit where it is CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work requires a great deal of versatility on your part. Avoid becoming involved in the get-rich-quick schemes of friends, relatives. Romance is glamorous as long as you can afford it!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A favorable day for time schedules, routine tasks and financial planning. Handle rela-tives with kid gloves to preserve domestic harmony. Show more affection! Partner reveals new understanding for your point of view.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be gentle when dealing with sensitive people and issues. You need to be more practical where friendship, love are concerned. Career must take precedence over romance at times. Spend evening at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New strengths are found in unexpected places. Avoid giving the impression that you are overly confident or conceited. Others will take offense if they think your attitude patronizing. Get together with good friends tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An excellent day for invention, innovation and experimentation. The emphasis is on making changes and putting things in proper order. Discuss finances with offspring. A close friendship benefits you again and again. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You would be wise to adhere to traditional values now. Emphasize cooperative ventures when talking with partners. Aim for clarity when discussing romance. You may have misunderstood mate's intentions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep the economic climate in mind when making long-range business decisions. You may find concentration somewhat difficult today. Drive carefully if on the road late this evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Make your money work for you! Answer correspondence that has been sitting on your desk for several days. You need to clear the air with romantic partner. Speak from the heart.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March Pay more attention to your own well-being. Study, self-improvement projects can help advance career. A compromise or concession will open up new avenues for romance and fun.

OAK5 ♠ K 1096 The bidding: South West North East

Pass 2 V Pass 40 Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Ten of •

You never know when a seemingly insignificant card will play a key role as the play of the hand develops. One pip in a side suit was the difference between victory and defeat on this example.

South did not want to open one no trump because of his weak doubleton in spades. When North raised, South made a game try in the suit in which he needed help. Despite his wasted king of spades, North correctly decided that his fifth trump and singleton in partner's "help wanted" suit merited acceptance of the invitation. West led his top spade, and when dummy appeared, declarer feared that he might have to lose four tricks-two spades, and one in each minor suit. Declarer allowed the ten of spades to hold the first trick, and East won the continuation with the jack. Declarer ruffed the ace of spades with a high trump, then drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy. Declarer called for the seven of clubs, and East followed with the eight.

For a moment declarer toyed with the possibility that East might be ducking with the ace, but with three trumps still in dummy, that was unlikely. Declarer's club spots and the fact that East had played the eight suggested another line.

Declarer covered the eight of clubs with the nine and West won the queen. The diamond return was won by declarer, who now led the king of clubs. Obviously, declarer intended discarding a diamond from dummy if West followed with a low club; so West covered with the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy and, when East's jack came tumbling down, both declarer's remaining clubs were established. He returned to his hand with his high diamond, and sluffed dummy's two diamonds on the ten and six of clubs. A diamond ruff in dummy allowed declarer to score up a well-played game and the rubber.

Note that if the six and five of clubs are interchanged, declarer has no play for his contract. He can obtain one discard from dummy, but that is all.

Government says VDTs not harmful in normal conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says million journalists, bank employees, librarians and other workers have little to fear from using video display terminals.

But an evaluation of data on health problems associated with VDTs concluded Wednesday that eyestrain, blurred vision, sore necks and backs, fatigue, headaches, tension and other complaints from these workers may be explained by improper use of the machines in the work environment.

The conclusions were drawn by the Food and Drug Administration and were included in an article on VDTs in an agency magazine, FDA Consumer.

The article said VDTs, the computerized typewriters now being used in homes as well as offices, emit less radiation than televisions, flourescent lights and space heaters.

Studies were conducted by FDA's Bureau of Radiological Health, which is responsible for assuring the afety of adiation-emitting products, and by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, which conducts research on workplace haz-

"The consensus of the studies is that VDTs emit little or no harmful radiation under normal operating conditions," FDA found. "The emissions that are detectable are well below any existing national and international standards."

Health complaints can be explained by ergonomics or factors that affect the way a worker adjusts to conditions in the work environment, the study said.

Eyestrain, for example, may be caused by poor room lighting and glare from the display screen. Sore necks, backs and legs may be attributed to incorrect equipment layout. Pressure for higher productivity may be responsible for stress and some other health complaints.

A NIOSH survey of about 250 VDT workers at two newspapers and an insurance company last year ed to recommendations that would correct some of the problems. Among those suggestions:

—Workers should be able to adjust the height of keyboards, screens, chair seats and backrests, screen brightness and contrast, leg room, viewing distance, room lighting levels and chair tension. —Screen glare should be controlled by using blinds or drapes on windows, hoods and glare shields over screens and positioning machines in the proper room

-Workers should take breaks of at least 15 minutes every two hours when using VDTs steadily.

—Workers should undergo a complete eye examination before beginning work with VDTs and have limited eye exams periodically. FDA did its own tests of 125 VDT models for leakage of X-rays and other radiation. All the tests were performed after the machines were adjusted to produce the largest possible quantity of radiation. Eight of the 125 units emitted more radiation than

FDA allows for television sets. The manufacturers of those models were notified of the problem and have either corrected it or taken the offending models off the market, FDA said.

Builders, real estate to pay penalties

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a crackdown on advertising for homes, the government has obtained agreements with 11 builders and one real estate agreements with 11 builders and one real estate company to pay a total of $488,000 in penalties.

The Federal Trade Commission settlements, announced Wednesday, involve ads that allegedly could mislead home buyers on the interest rates they would be paying.
In this era of high interest rates, housing industry

ads have increasingly emphasized mortgage rates, now one of the primary considerations among home

The FTC charged the 12 companies with illegally advertising their credit terms. The FTC accused the companies of violations of the 1969 Truth-in-Lending Act, including use of "simple interest" rates rather than the "annual percentage rate" that tells consumers the total annual rate of finance charges. FTC lawyer Justin Dingfelder said companies advertised interest rates that did not include such costs as insurance, loan origination fees and

Dingfelder said the computations used by the companies could have resulted in a loan being advertised at 121/2 percent when the annual percentage rate required by the law would have shown the

Herman Smith, president of the National Associa-tion of Home Builders, said builders are having trouble complying with Truth-in-Lending require-ments because of complex regulations and not be-cause of any intent to deceive customers.

"In many cases, builders are reluctant to put useful information about interest rates in their advertisements because of fear of failing to comply with these highly complicated regulations," Smith

He said the association asked the Federal Reserve Board to rewrite technical parts of the regulations "that confuse rather than help consumers in comparing mortgage interest rates.

Earnings are up for two major oil companies, and down for another

NEW YORK (AP) - Oil companies say high crude oil prices are helping their profits, but consumer resistance to those prices is hurting.

Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), the nation's sixth-largest oil company, on Wednesday reported first quarter profits fell 34.6 percent to $376.7 million, or $1.29 a share, from $576 million or $1.95 a share a year earlier.

But Standard Oil Co. of Ohio report ed a 15.5 percent rise in profits and Getty Oil Co. said it earnings rose 1.9 percent. Both companies cited higher crude oil prices as the principal cause of the increase. "Today's market for refined petroleum products is characterized by slumping demand, excessively high inventories and an inability to recover higher costs in the marketplace, Indiana Standard Chairman John Swearingen said in announcing the profit decline. His company's revenues rose to $7.9 billion from $6.5

billion a year earlier. Sohio, the nation's 14th-largest oil company, said it earned $520.4 million, or $2.12 a share, in the latest quarter, up from $450.7 million, or $1.84 a share, in the same period of 1980. Revenues rose to $3.12 billion in the first three months this year from

Getty, ranked No. 15 among the nation's oil companies, reported profits of $230.2 million, or $2.80 a share, up from $225.8 million, or $2.75 a share. Revenues climbed to $3.29 billion from $2.27 billion.

Sohio said it sold crude oil at an average price of $32.15 a barrel in the uarter, up from $22.37 a year earlier. Both it and Getty produce more crude oil than they refine, while Standard of Indiana, which uses the Amoco name, is a net buyer of crude oil.

With a worldwide oversupply of oil, intense competition has held down earnings from refining and marketing operations, in some cases produc-ing losses. In the United States, refineries are operating at only 67.7 percent of capacity, according to industry figures.

Discoveries filed in Lea County

Estoril Producing Corp. of Midland has completed the No. 1 Curry Federal as a Strawn gas discovery in the Antelope Ridge field of Lea County, New Mexico.

Producing from perforations made from 12,049 to 12,196 feet, the well flowed 4,947,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a 15/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 5285 pounds per square inch.

Truck drivers seek police protection after shootout

By The Associated Press

A gun battle between striking miners and coal truck drivers that left four men wounded has prompted eastern Kentucky coal company operators to call for police protection and warn that the area is on the verge of "war" because of the 26-day United Mine Workers walkout.

The shootout took place near Belfry, Ky., as a 10-truck convoy was returning to the non-union Mary Helen Coal Co. after making deliveries. The truckers said they were ambushed by pickets, but union miners, who had been trying to close the mine, said the truckers started the shoot8ng.
