Tax reformer crusades in Midland

The size of Texas' state government and the cost of operating it are increasing faster than the population count. To put a hold on these numbers, Howard Jarvis was in Midland Wednesday advocating the right of initiative and referen-

Jarvis, 78, author of Proposition 13 in California, held a news conference in The Midland Hilton and spoke at a public meeting in Midland Center during the evening. Traveling with Jarvis and drumming up support for Texas 13 was Waggoner Carr, former state attorney general and speaker of the Texas

Texas 13, explained Carr, is a non-profit organization of Texans dedicated to pushing through legislation allowing residents the right of initiative and referendum. Deane Stoltz of Midland is on the Texas 13 board.

Jarvis contended that citizens have two basic rights - the right to vote and the right to petition the government. The latter isn't allowed in Texas, he said.

In California, the right of initiative allows any citizen who wants to add a law to the books to write the legislation and obtain 550,000 signatures. Once this is done, the proposal goes before the voters, said Jarvis.

Although Jarvis wrote Proposition 13 in 1963, it wasn't until 1978 and many property tax increases later that the public took note. Previously, Jarvis had encountered difficulty getting enough qualified voters to sign the petition.

Instead of causing a decline in state services as some California legislators had claimed, the proposal "created 600,000 new jobs."

"I've never seen too much tax relief," he said vehemently. "Half of all you make goes for taxes. If you raise taxes, you create unemployment. We need to do everything to create em-

He explained that although taxes have been cut, instead of decreasing state revenues, the cut in California created more jobs and thus more revenue

Jarvis, who has been in demand for speaking engagements

thoughout the country since the passage of Proposition 13, said taxes in his home state had increased so much that many people couldn't afford to pay taxes on their property. "They were foreclosing 7,000 properties a month for non-payment of taxes. It was just impossible to pay them. What had started at $40 a month had gone up to $160 a month."

To explain his theory that the "tax system here is manufacturing poor people very rapidly," Jarvis said he purchased an $8,000 car last year. He had an organization research what all the taxes on that car cost, from the time the ore was dug for the body until it was delivered to the car lot. On that automobile, he said, $4,500 of the price reflected taxes.

Unless a restraint is placed on the State Legislature through initiative, Jarvis forecasts a future of gloom for the nation. He talked with Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher recently, said Jarvis. She spoke of the problems with her country and said it is going down the drain.

But what bothers her more, according to Jarvis, "is that the U.S. is following England down that drain. Do you have the guts to do something about it?" he asked of the audience. "Yes," replied a few of the 75 Midlanders in the room while others nodded their heads. In supporting Jarvis's contention that government is costing too much, Carr claimed that cost of state government has gone up 158 percent in the past 10 years. Meanwhile, state population has risen only about 17 percent, he said. The state welfare department has upped its cost 370 percent. And a study shows that 64 percent of state employees reported they didn't have enough work to keep them busy, Carr

Today, 45 cents out of every dollar a person earns "is going to the tax collectors. By 1988," said Carr, "you will keep only 37 cents of each dollar. How are you going to live on 37 cents if you can't live on 55 cents?" The state government has grown so large it no longer hears the taxpayer but turns its ears to the lobbyists, Carr

He called for the taxpayers to unite and push for the right of initiative and "put reasonable restraints on state govern-

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — America's chief hostage negotiator, on a hastily arranged visit to Algeria that stirred fresh hopes for the release of 52 Americans held in Iran, met today with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Behvahia

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who earlier said U.S. and Iranian positions appear a little bit closer, met for two hours with Benyahia. Neither side released any information on the meeting.

U.S. officials said Christopher Wednesday to questions transmitted by Algeria from Iran about the substance and mechanics of the U.S. proposal to set up an escrow account in Algiers with several billion dollars in frozen Iranian assets. The money would be released when the 52 hostages, spending their 432nd day in captivity today, were freed.

Last month the Iranians demanded that the United States put $14 billion in the Algerian Central Bank to ensure that the estimated $8 billion to $14 billion in Iranian assets frozen by the United States is eventually released, and that it deposit an additional $10 billion to guarantee that any assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in the United States would be turned over to Iran.

But $5 billion or more of the frozen Iranian assets are blocked by U.S. courts that are hearing claims against the Iranian government by American firms and individuals. And the U.S. government has no control over the shah's wealth and is not known to have offered any financial guarantees to Iran regarding it.

Nelson Bunker, William and Lamar Hunt invested $93 million in Western Canadian mineral properties in a buying binge this week and New York bankers say the brothers have been given the go-ahead to purchase holdings in "at least a half a dozen mining ventures.

This week's buying involved three Western Canadian mining concerns, but a spokesman for Hunt Energy Corp. of Dallas would not confirm or deny that other approved acquisitions also involve Canadian properties.

The Vancouver-based Invex group said it sold royalty interests in two of its mining properties Tuesday to Procan Exploration Co., the Hunt brothers' Calgary based partnership.
The same day, Cadillac Explorations Ltd. of Calgary said it sold Procan a 40 percent royalty interest in some of its mining claims and leases for $55 million.

The purchases came one day after the Hunts bought for $35 million a 50 percent royalty interest in certain mining claims and leases in the Northwest Territories owned by Terra Mining and Exploration Co.

is 50 percent owned by Terra. Alan Savage, president of Invex Resources, said Procan agreed to provide $1.5 million for exploration and development required at its Kelly Creek copper and silver property near Terrace in northwest British Co-

The Kelly Creek property is a joint venture between Invex Resources and Cathedral Minerals Ltd., which in turn is controlled by Invex.

Procan has also spent $1.75 million on a royalty interest in Imperial Metals and Power. Under the agreement, Imperial will core drill its Groundhog coalfield licenses to establish whether mineable reserves of thermal coal exist.

Before the Hunts embarked on their spending spree, they needed to get permission from Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and First National Bank in Dallas under the terms of a $1.1 billion refinancing program to bail the brothers out of a disastrous foray into the silver market last year.

The Hunt brothers bought considerable amounts of silver in 1979, includat $35 an ounce. But when the speculative market began to crumble, the Hunts failed to meet the margin

New Polish confrontation shaping up

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - A new confrontation between Poland's independent labor movement and the communist government appears to be taking shape over the 40-hour work week.

The presidium of Solidarity, the nation's largest independent union with about 10 million members, was expected to give final approval today to a demand for a five-day, 40-hour work week with no reduction in pay.

The government, seeking a solution to the nation's grave economic problems, says the country cannot afford the 40-hour week yet.

Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski, who negotiated the agreements that ended last summer's wave of strikes and recognized the workers' right to form unions free of Communist Party control, said in a television appearance that the government was standing by its counterproposals.

They call for either two Saturdays off each month or all Saturdays free but with an extra 30 minutes on the job each day.

"Not everyone was unanimous in this complicated matter," Jagielski said. "However, taking into account all factual arguments, a close study of the possibilities and the economic aspects basic for every citizen, the government expects that its decision will meet with understanding on the part of the crews and trade unions."

Solidarity claims the Gdansk strike settlement on Aug. 31 promised a five-day work week with no extension of the working day.

Meanwhile, the government was grappling with a regional labor dispute in the southeastern corner of the country 10 miles from the Soviet border.

Workers and farmers occupying a government building in the town of Ustrzynki Dolne refused to negotiate with a government delegation led by Stanislaw Ciosek, a minister without portfolio responsible for trade union affairs. Jan Wolinski, a spokesman for Solidarity's rement delegation "cannot undertake any decision and is not authorized to sign any agreements. He said the militants would not negotiate until the Warsaw government dispatched a "competent commission" to deal with their complaint that local authorities were harassing Solidarity activists. About 70 farmers and workers took over the administrative building in Ustrzynki on Dec. 29. Workers in 17 local enterprises staged a one-hour sympathy strike Tuesday.

A student protest loomed in Lodz, Poland's second largest city. Dissident sources said students in the law and administrative colleges were threatening a sit-in Friday unless the regime agreed to some 30 demands. They include freedom for political prisoners, screening of a controversial film on last summer's strikes in the Baltic seaport of Gdansk and curbs on the security services

The course would have included lessons in "The flagman, who he is is and what he does;" "The flagman versus Environment." "The flagman versus humans" and "The flagman versus vehicles."

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, left, meets with members of Solidarity in Gdansk, Poland. A new labor conflict sharpened as miligional office in nearby Rzeszow, claimed the govern- tant workers and farmers in a town near the Soviet border refused to negotiate with a government commission dispatched to hear their grievances. Today, the famous salad remains a major drawing card at the restaurant. The beige-colored, three-story hotel is a landmark along Revolucion Avenue, Tijuana's busy main street.

Patrons have included such Holly wood greats as Gary Cooper, Elizabeth Taylor and Victor Mature, says restaurant manager Carlos Spinga. "We used to have a menu with the been phased out except on demand. "Everybody's in a hurry today, so we make the dressing in large quanti-

Some recipes called for bacon, too, but we don't use that," he said.

Here is the Original Alex-Caesar Cardini Salad Recipe:

Wash and dry 10 romaine lettuce leaves and refrigerate in a bowl before crisping. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Put six half-inch slices of french bread onto an ungreased baking sheet and bake until crisp - 45 minutes to one hour. Brush with 11/2 tablespoons from one-quarter cup of olive oil and return to the oven to brown, about 15 minutes.

Crush together three cloves of garlic and six anchovy filets and gradually add one tablespoon of the oil. Spread this mixture onto the bread slices, cut into cubes and set aside. Cover one egg in boiling water and cook for one minute. After placing the lettuce leaves into the salad bowl, add one tablespoon of fresh lime juice, one teaspoon of Worcester Sauce, quarter cup of freshly grated parmesan cheese, and the cubed bread, toss the ingredients and add salt and pepper

More subs to be converted By L. EDGAR PRINA When the Ohio, which will be delivered more than two years later than originally scheduled, goes on

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has decided to let the Navy proceed with the conversion of two more aging Polaris fleet ballistic missile (FBM) submarines to attack types before the first of the big new Trident boats is combat ready.

This was reported yesterday by Pentagon sources who said the conversions would begin sometime early this fall at about the time the Navy is to take delivery of the USS Ohio, first of the 18,700-ton Trident submarines. But although General Dynamics' Electric Boat Division, the builder, is expected to turn over the Ohio in late August or September, it will be the spring of 1982 before the ship is ready to go on "boomer duty" or patrol, because of crew training, at-sea exercise and shakedown cruise require-

Some administration officials had argued that taking the Polaris submarines out of the deterrent force before the first Trident was ready could send a wrong signal (unilateral disarmament, for example) to foes and friends alike at a time of Soviet aggression in Afghanistan and Kremlin threats against Poland

The Navy, however, contended and contends that, even though it now has 80 fewer ballistic missile launchers at sea because of the withdrawal of five of what had been its remaining 10 16-tube Polaris boats, it has actually increased its nuclear striking capability by retrofitting the longer-range, more accurate Trident I missile into five Poseidon FBMs.

The Polaris boats are armed with the 2,500-mile Polaris A-3 missile, which carries three warheads. But these warheads are not independently targetable and, therefore, would strike a single target. On the other hand, each 4,000-mile-range Trident I now aboard five 16-tube Poseidon submarines carries eight MIRVs or multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles (warheads).

Seven additional Poseidon submarines are due to be retrofitted with the Trident I. Nineteen other Poseidon boats will continue to carry the Poseidon missile, which has 10 MIRVs and a range of 2,500 patrol it will be armed with 24 Trident Is, each carrying eight MIRVs. Thus, the Ohio, the first of 14 Trident submarines now planned, will be capable of attacking 192 separate targets. The Navy has already inactivated two Polaris boats, the Abraham Lincoln and the Theodore Roosevelt. Their missile sections have been removed.

Three others, the Ethan Allen, Sam Houston and Thomas A. Edison, are undergoing conversion to the

With the permission of the Defense Department, the Navy will go ahead with plans to similarly convert two of the remaining five Polaris FBMs the Robert E. Lee, Patrick Henry, Georg ton, John Marshall and Thomas Jefferson. Three of the five will continue as ballistic missile submarines until their nuclear fuel runs out. They are expected to operate with one crew each. Then they, too, may Mathematically, all fines ses stand an equal chance of success. However, when faced with a choice of finesses, that does not mean it doesn't matter which one you take! Often, your choice should be predicated not so much on which would win, but on which you can afford to lose.

There was nothing unusual about the auction. After South opened one no trump. North might have probed for 4 44 heart fit by employing Stayman. But he had no ruff ing value and decided that his hand would play equally well in no trump, so he made the value bid.

By TIM AHERN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hodding Carter III may well have written the epitaph for President Carter's foreign policy when he said the bureaucratic fight between Zbigniew Brzezinski and the State Department produced a 'Tower of Babel" that had many voices purporting to speak for the U.S. government. Hodding Carter, chief spokesman for State when Cyrus R. Vance was secretary, calls the national security adviser a "rat terrier" and writes in the February issue of Playboy that the president should have told him to

'shut up." It is the latest and perhaps the loudest shot yet fired in the bureaucratic war that has been going on between the State Department and the National Security Council, now headed by Brzezinski, since the NSC was elevated from obscurity in the Nixon administration by Henry A. Kissinger.

The council, formed after World War II, is the White House organization responsible for gathering and channeling intelligence and foreign policy information to the president. The fight between the NSC and State reached its peak last spring when Vance quit as secretary in the wake of the failed attempt to free the 52 American hostages in Iran. Brzezinski recommended the military mission be mounted and Vance opposed it. Carter chose Brzezinski's view, and the soft-spoken Vance submitted his letter of resignation after discovering that the raid had been approved at a meeting to which he had not been invited Though Vance indicated the raid decision was the chief cause of his departure, there have been persistent reports - which he has done little to dispute since leaving the administration - that he and Brzezinski were embroiled in a running battle for supremacy throughout their tenure in the Carter administration.

Called, "Back to the Classroom: New Dimensions for Women," the workshop will meet at 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. in the Counseling Center, located on the second floor of the Student Union Building at OC.

"With more and more adult women returning to college to continue their education, the need for help and information to smooth the way has increased," said Kay Maley, OC women's counselor and workshop coordinator. "Discussions at the workshop will ing a career, brushing up on study skills, balancing a career and family, furor surrounding Brzezinski, say the situation will be different in the new administration. The national security adviser's status will be downgraded they say, with the secretary of state's office given primacy in advising, and perhaps more important, speaking for the president in foreign affairs.

In a recent interview with the New York Times, Vance said, "It is of fundamental importance that there be only two spokesmen for the government on matters relating to foreign policy: the president of the United States and secretary of state.' Though he did not refer to Brzezinski by name, Vance clearly had him in mind when he said, "any other arrangement leads to confusion. Vance's successor, Edmund S. Muskie, has also refused to criticize Brzezinski by name. But in a pre-election interview, he said he would recommend changes in the management of foreign policy if Carter were re-elected. Without mentioning Brzezinski, he said, "We need constantly to work at the challenge of communication, identifying our respective roles and avoiding confusion in that respect." United Nations Ambassador Donald F. McHenry, on the other hand, referred directly to Brzezinski when he said recently, "A person who has the job of coordinator, which I would perceive (the NSC director's) position to be, would do well to coordinate and leave the public role of foreign policy to the secretary of state and to the president

Brzezinski himself has publicly said little about the bureaucratic battles. Initially a low-profile job, the position of NSC director took on added stature during Richard M. Nixon's presidency, when Kissinger mounted foreign policy initiatives involving the Soviet Union, China, the Middle East and Indochina - often without even informing Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers eventually resigned during Nixon's second term and was replaced by Kissinger, who held both jobs for a time:

In his criticism of Brzezinski, Hodding Carter said the adviser "apparently saw himself as another Henry Kissinger." And "while he had neither Kissinger's intellect nor his political savvy, he did share one important asset: immediate access to the president."

"I think we have developed a mischievous system that often leads to two secretaries of state," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, when Muskie was confirmed last May.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., said he wanted to "send a signal" to President Carter that Brzezinski should lower his profile. "A more anonymous staff person" should be the president's national security adviser, he said.

That is exactly what Reagan appears to be planning. Richard V. Allen, who will be the national security adviser in the new

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - An overnight sell recommendation by a well-known investment adviser touched off a steep decline in the stock market Wednesday in the busiest session in Wall Street history. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 30 points at its afternoon low, finished with a 23.80 loss at 980.89. New York Stock Exchange volume reached 92.89 million shares, shattering the rec-ord of 84.08 million set in the session after the election last Nov. 5. The Dow's slide marked an abrupt reversal of the strong rally that had been in progress over the first three sessions of 1980, when it climbed 40.70 points to its highest level in more than four years.

The turnabout came after Joseph Granville of Holly Hill, Fla., publisher of a market letter with a wide following, sent out a "sell" message to subscribers to his "early warning service."

Granville could not be reached for comment. His message, however, was quickly relayed through Wall Street.

Several sources confirmed he had recommended that his subscribers sell all their stock holdings, and sell short some of the stocks that have risen the most in recent months.

Granville, a controversial figure who is as disdainful of orthodox Wall Street analysts as they are of him, has exerted a powerful influence on the market in the past. When he sent out a buy recommendation last April 22, it helped touch off a 30.72-point jump in the Dow.

He also is known for sudden changes of opinion. The most recent edition of his weekly market letter, dated Jan. 3, urged, "Do some aggressive new buying. The market is signalling a sharp upswing ahead."

More than 100 stocks were delayed in opening because of the flood of orders that hit the market. Some of those issues did not trade for several hours.

At the 4 p.m. close in New York, all 15 of the most-active Big Board issues showed losses. The list of casualties included many big-name blue chips, includ-ing International Business Machines, off 2 at 691/2; General Motors, off 2% at 46%; Eastman Kodak, down 1½ at 74, and United Technologies, off 2% at 62%.

NEW YORK (AP) - With would-be customers priced out of the market, with new construction buried in an economic morass, with financing demanding a tax lawyer's agility, real estate people are having their problems.

But some of the industry's problems, according to a fellow who relies on some 34 years of critical observations, were brought on by itself.

"What problems?" William D. Patterson was

"Incompetence," said Patterson, who helped found and who now heads Delaware's largest Realtor, Patterson Schwartz, headquartered in the capital city of Wilmington. He expounded:

"I told a real estate group a while ago that we aren't a profession and they got angry. But we're not a profession. We're approaching a profession and we're making great strides, but we've got a way to go."

Patterson, it may surprise some to learn, is also an official of the National Association of Realtors. He is in fact the brand new president of its educational arm, the Realtors National Marketing Institute.

"If we have a theme for this year it's specialization and professionalism," he said. Education will be the vehicle. "Education and training is the bottom line in this business," he said. It will be proven again this year, he said. Perhaps as never before, he suggested.

"The real estate business is becoming more complex and competitive," he explained. "For the time being, and if mortgage rates stays at 14 or 15 percent, we'll need a lot of innovation or we won't see deals."

Patterson's job for the year — he'll be detached from his Wilmington office — is to spread word of the institute's many courses and books for, he says, "those seeking to be more than sales peo-

McGovern gets tacky with priest

HOVEN, S.D. (AP) - A Roman Catholic priest who criticized campaign workers for leavng leaflets on cars parked outside church says s sad that a letter from former Sen. George McGovern called him a "horse's ass" and "a disgrace" to the church and to politics.

"The letter doesn't hurt me, but it saddens e," said the Rev. Leonard A. Nemmers of St. Anthony's Rectory at Hoven.

Nemmers had asked McGovern for an apology for some campaign tactics during the November election, which the veteran senator lost to Rep. Jim Abdnor.

A McGovern campaign committee distributed literature on windshields of cars parked at church services, and the priest, a registered Democrat, objected, contending the workers ere using the church for politics.

Nemmers said he received an apology from campaign manager Harvey Wollman and thought the issue was dead.

Then came McGovern's letter, dated Dec. 18. "Far from giving you an apology, I want to say that if I had to pick the Number One candidate for the biggest horse's ass in South Dakota in 1980, you would win hands down. I think you are a disgrace, both to the church and to decent politics," said the letter.

Nemmers paid to have the letter printed in the

"I had the letter printed ... because a man of is stature shouldn't be writing letters like that." Nemmers said. "It's uncalled for. Throughout our differences in the campaign, I never once attacked his person."

Nemmers said the letter indicated McGovern was bitter over the election loss.

McGovern was unavailable for comment on the letter, but longtime aide George Cunningham said the letter had to speak for itself.

McGovern's secretary, Pat Donovan, said she typed the letter for McGovern. Senator McGovern wrote the letter and believed what he wrote," she said. "I think the

Begin may resign

(AP) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin will resign next week, setting the stage for early elections, possibly by this summer, Israeli newspapers predicted today.

Begin will quit unless a compromise is reached on salary demands by the nation's 58,000 teachers, and both Finance Minister Yigael Hurvitz and Education Minister Zevulun Hammer decide to stay in office, the papers said.

Hurvitz, seeking to cap an inflationary spiral that left Israel with the world's highest inflation rate - 131 percent - last year, has threatened to quit if the Begin government gives in to the teachers' demands for higher pay, while Hammer says he resign if the teachers don't get salary
