Store clerk survives gunshot in stomach, thanks to belt buckle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man walked into an all-night convenience store and ordered clerk Buzz Warner to hand him the money from the cash register. "Go to hell!" replied Warner, thinking it was a joke he did not consider very funny. But the robber lifted a pistol and fired one shot at the store clerk's belly from across the counter at point-blank range. "I clutched my stomach. It was like someone hitting me with a fist," Warner said. Crouching and holding his waist, Warner watched the young gunman run from the store. Then he pulled his hands away from his abdomen, expecting to find blood.

Instead, he found a chunk of leather missing from his belt buckle. "It was just messed up a little," said Warner, who was not injured in the Tuesday holdup attempt. The bullet ricocheted from the metal shank of the buckle, covered in tooled leather, and was found laying on the glass countertop. Warner said he had worked at the store for about six weeks without problems. He said he would never forget the day two years ago when he bought the belt buckle. "I've never been a day without it," he smiled. "Thank God I had it on then."

Ethnic leadership eyed Mexican-Americans here have their own idea

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The definition of a leader varies from person to person, ethnic group to ethnic group.

Mexican-Americans in Midland have their own idea of leaders and related their views Wednesday during a panel discussion for the Midland Health and Welfare Association meeting at the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Manuel Carrasco was raised in Midland, started at De Zavala Elementary School, made it through high school, went to college and came back to Midland. He currently serves as coordinator for the Midland schools. Assisting him on the panel was Sister Eva Hernandez of the Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Leadership, said Carrasco, involves a wide range of differences. In Midland, leadership among the Mexican-Americans is expressed in two ways — meeting needs and political.

Midland has various organizations which try to answer needs or problems that arise in the Mexican-American community, he said, pointing to La Mano, an acronym for League of Mexican-American Organizations.

When it was organized, problems were brought to the group, which then divided into task forces to examine the complaints.

Sister Eva singled out the Mexican-American Advisory Group on Education as an active organization that bridges the communication gap between citizens and the school district.

If there are rumors of problems in the schools involving Mexican-Americans, Carrasco said the organizations try to bring the people together to iron out the problems. It's a "helping" type of leadership.

"Midland takes on a helping commitment, we don't talk about this very much," he added. "It's a different style of leadership."

Looking at the meaning of political leadership, Carrasco named several Mexican-Americans who have run for a local office but lost. The most recent was the school board election last April when Oralisa Corrales sought a position on the board but failed to garner enough votes.

An exception has been that of Gloria Hinojosa who serves on the Midland College board. She explained she was first appointed to it and then won election to the spot.

Sister Eva maintained that the number of Mexican-Americans running for office is few because most of the people work at hourly jobs and don't have the time to devote to public service. "The people mentioned have their own businesses and have the time to spend on meetings."

"Many older citizens are afraid to go to meetings because of the language barrier," she added.

Recently, however, when a Mexican-American group has opposed something involving their community, the people have been protesting at City Council or school board meetings, said Carrasco, which is good.

A problem that has arisen in the Mexican-American community here in recent elections is that the people have voted for other candidates, not the Mexican-American, said one member of the group. Another person suggested single-member districts might resolve that problem.

But, countered one woman, when an election was held a few years ago on the issue of single-member districts, it was the Mexican-American precincts that voted against the idea.

The reason for the defeat, Carrasco theorized, was lack of proper communication with the Mexican-Americans about the issue. "If a Mexican-American gets on TV and says we need it, the issue probably would pass. The emphasis needs to come from our own community."

Difficulty in obtaining bank loans was mentioned by the group with Sister Eva explaining the people "are afraid to put their names on paper. Our people are not that forceful. It hurts their pride when they're rejected."

Not only that, said Mrs. Hinojosa, but bank officers "ask so many questions that it intimidates the people."

Carter sending Congress deficit-ridden budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is turning over to Congress and his Republican successor a lame-duck, deficit-ridden budget of about $740 billion for 1982 that includes boosts for the military and inflation-swelled increases in social programs.

The farewell budget Carter planned to unveil today is expected to propose a 12 percent rise in spending, a deficit of almost $30 billion and a 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax increase.

But Ronald Reagan has vowed to rewrite the budget and propose his own tax policies soon after he becomes president on Tuesday. He is counting on approval from a Republican-controlled Senate and a more conservative House.

Reagan wants immediate reductions in personal taxes and cutbacks in non-defense federal programs. In

Carter offers support to President Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A somber President Carter, looking ahead to life as a "fellow citizen of the world," is pledging to spend his waning days in office trying to bring the American hostages home from Iran and is vowing to support Ronald Reagan "to the very limits of conscience and conviction."

In a nationally broadcast farewell address Wednesday night, Carter said three critical tasks will outlive his presidency: preventing nuclear holocaust, promoting human rights around the world and protecting the environment.

He never mentioned the economy, one of the key issues that made him a one-term president, and spoke only briefly of the American hostages whose captivity in Iran haunted his last year in the White House.

"I will continue as I have during the past 14 months to work hard and to pray for the lives and the well-being of the American hostages in Iran," Carter said. "I can't predict yet what will happen, but I hope you will join me in my constant prayer for their freedom."

Seated in front of his desk in the Oval Office, Carter did not mention Reagan by name. But he said he understood "as few others can how formidable is the task the president-elect is about to undertake."

"To the very limits of conscience and conviction, I pledge to support him in that task," Carter said. "I wish him success and Godspeed."

Ignoring his landslide defeat last Nov. 4, Carter extended his "deepest thanks" to the American people "because you gave me this extraordinary opportunity to serve."

Then, in the only portion of the 20-minute speech that bordered on emotion, the president closed by saying: "From the bottom of my heart, I want to express to you the gratitude I feel. Thank you, fellow citizens, and farewell."

Carter himself spent a lot of time writing the speech, and most of it was devoted to three themes of his presidency: nuclear proliferation, human rights and the environment.

He said: "I want to lay aside my role as leader of one nation and speak to you as a fellow citizen of the world about three ... issues: the threat of nuclear destruction; our stewardship of the physical resources of our planet; and the preeminence of the basic rights of human beings."

In what may have been a special message to the 40th president, the 39th president warned that an "uneasy era ... is likely to endure for the rest of this century. ... a period of tensions within nations and between nations — of competition for scarce resources, social, political and economic stresses and strains."

"During this period, we may be tempted to abandon some of the time-honored principles and commitments which have been proven during the difficult times of past generations," Carter said. "We must never yield to this temptation. Our American values are not luxuries but necessities."

In the 35 years since the first atomic bomb fell, Carter said, "The risk of a nuclear conflagration has not lessened. It has not happened yet, thank God, but that can give us little comfort — for it only has to happen once."

He warned that the danger "is becoming greater. As the arsenals of the superpowers grow in size and sophistication and as other governments acquire these weapons, it may only be a matter of time before madness, desperation, greed or miscalculation lets loose this terrible force."

The president made no reference to the SALT II treaty that he supports and Reagan opposes, but he declared that "there is no disagreement on the goals or the basic approach to controlling this enormous destructive force." He said reducing the nuclear danger "has been a concern of every American president since the moment we first saw what these weapons could do."

The president spoke of "real and growing dangers" to the air, water and land. But he added that acknowledging "the physical realities of our planet does not mean a dismal future of endless sacrifice. In fact, acknowledging these realities is the first step in dealing with them."

The struggle for human rights, Carter said, "overrides all differences of color or nation or language," he said. "I believe with all my heart that America must always stand for these basic human rights — at home and abroad. That is both our history and our destiny."

Putting his own interpretation on a passage from the Declaration of Independence, Carter said:

"For this generation, life is nuclear survival; liberty is human rights; the pursuit of happiness is a planet whose resources are devoted to the physical and spiritual nourishment of its inhabitants."

Hostage talks continue amid 'prudent optimism'

By The Associated Press

An Algerian newspaper today reported "prudent optimism" over the negotiations to free the hostages in Iran. Senior Western diplomats in Tehran met with Iran's chief hostage negotiator, meanwhile, and a letter from 185 congressmen urging speedy release of the Americans was handed over.

The Algerian newspaper El Moudjahid offered its glimmer of hope in a headline over news agency reports from Tehran and Washington on the negotiations. The reports made no direct reference to Algeria's role as middle-man in the talks.

Observers in Algiers said the reference in the closely-controlled government paper could be taken as a reflection of government feeling.

There were no outward signs of activity this morning at the U.S. Embassy in Algiers, where U.S. chief negotiator Warren Christopher was awaiting the latest Iranian response to American proposals to free the hostages.

However a Western diplomat in Tehran told The Associated Press in Beirut that he had been told, but could not confirm, that Iran had submitted its reply "to the latest American proposals" via Algerian intermediaries. This apparently referred to the U.S. proposal to release at least some of Iran's frozen assets in exchange for the hostages' freedom.

Also in Tehran, 14 top-ranking Western diplomats visited Behzad Nabavi today to appeal for a "quick solution of the (hostage) problem."

sources said.

The meeting came one day after Nabavi told the Iranian Parliament that the 52 hostages would either be freed or put on trial before the end of the week. At the same time the Parliament took what appeared to be a major encouraging step by approving an emergency bill authorizing a third country, probably Algeria, to arbitrate financial differences between Iran and the United States.

Tehran Radio reported, meanwhile, that Nabavi and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai met briefly today with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the patriarch of Iran's revolution. The subject of their meeting was not announced, but there was speculation it dealt with the hostages.

A Swiss diplomat said in a telephone interview that his embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Iran, had presented parliamentary speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani with a letter signed by 185 members of the U.S. Congress "appealing to the Iranian Parliament for a quick solution of the hostage issue."

Largest antitrust case ever finally has day(s) in court

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. prosecutors and attorneys for American Telephone & Telegraph Co. are finally making it into federal court for a head-to-head battle — six years after the government filed the largest antitrust case in history.

Attorneys for AT&T — the Bell System — predicted the trial starting today would be "long and tedious" and could take more than a year to complete. Prosecutors did not contest that estimate.

Gerald A. Connell, who is leading the team of antitrust attorneys assembled by the Justice Department, was expected to take three hours today just outlining the government's case. George L. Saunders Jr., who will represent AT&T, has said his opening response will take six hours.

Neither the government nor AT&T has ruled out the possibility of a settlement that could cut the trial short and negotiations will continue outside the courtroom. Serious discussions began only three weeks ago, however, and both sides claim the start of the trial will make it more difficult to obtain a settlement.

At stake in the case is the very future of AT&T, since the government is asking U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene to break up a company that last month became the first ever to report profits of more than $6 billion in a 12-month period.

The prosecutors are asserting that only the dismantling of the Bell System will "redress the monopoly power that AT&T possesses, has abused and likely will continue to abuse."

Pickup truck takes power out for 1,166 Midland customers

A Texas Electric Service Co. spokesman this morning said 1,166 customers were without power for almost an hour Wednesday night after a pickup truck struck a TESCO utility pole.

The accident occurred in the 200 block of Golf Course Road about 8 p.m. According to police, Thomas Ford Bozzell, driving a Midland Newspapers Inc. pickup, was westbound on Golf Course when he swerved to the left, crossing the oncoming lane of traffic. He then struck the utility pole.

Bozzell received minor injuries in the accident but refused treatment.

Power went out just north of downtown Midland at 8:20 p.m. and was restored at 9:14 p.m., according to Jack Hilliard with TESCO.

Massachusetts officials studying gas-use cuts

BOSTON (AP) — State officials were studying reports on natural gas consumption today to determine whether they would have to force schools and businesses to close in order to save scarce fuel supplies.

Officials of Boston Gas said that unless figures showed that gas consumption had dropped by at least 10 percent, some sort of mandatory restrictions on usage would have to be imposed.

At the current rate of consumption, if nobody conserves and this cold weather keeps going, then we'll run out by Monday, said James F. O'Connors, assistant vice president of Boston Gas, the state's largest gas company.

New charge filed against official

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The former director of one of Wisconsin's three state-run mental hospitals has been charged with another sex offense as state officials try to figure out how he got the job under an assumed name.

Investigators said Matzker's use of the Boerum name had been traced back to 1972. San Francisco banker William T. Boerum said he knew a Raymond Matzker when a student at Manhattan College in New York, but hadn't seen him since their graduation day in 1966.

runaway and orphan boys — said Matzker was employed as a social worker under the name of Boerum from 1972 to 1974.

Close said he fired Matzker and a man who had been his boss after discovering discrepancies in their references.

Wisconsin officials were trying to track down the other man, who reportedly worked with Matzker in New York. In 1973, the man described himself as a social services consultant in Grange, Ill., and recommended Matzker for licensing by the state of Wisconsin as a nursing home administrator.

Howbert out of city race

Doris Howbert announced Tuesday she won't run for a third term on the Midland City Council when city elections roll around in April.

Mrs. Howbert has served four years on the council, and she said at the time she first ran that she would limit it to two terms.

Deputies cleared in death

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Three deputies suspended for off-duty gunplay on New Year's Eve a block and a half from where a 13-year-old boy was mortally wounded have been cleared of the teen-ager's death and reinstated to the force.

Sheriff Ray Montes said Wednesday his men could not have fired the bullet that killed Robert Fierro, 13, because ballistics tests showed it came from a different caliber gun than the three deputies were using at the time.

James O'Neil, executive director of the Catholic Guardian Society in New York, said Matzker and the other man had both worked there.

Thieves taking tools

Thieves must have been on a do-it-yourself kick Wednesday, with two toolboxes complete with tools reported stolen.

James Charlie Lawson of 4000 W. Illinois Ave. No. 144 said the box contained sockets, ratchet wrenches, open end wrenches, crescent wrenches and screwdrivers. He said he did not know where the pickup was when the tools were stolen.

Police Roundup

Novak said he saw a man taking the tool box and chased him, but he got away. About 20 minutes later, officers spotted a man matching Novak's description. The 19-year-old man was arrested and remained in City Jail this morning.

According to police, Robert Michael Rhyland, 30, was eastbound on Cuthbert at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday when his vehicle swerved into the oncoming lane of traffic, swerved back to the right, jumped the curb and continued until it struck the northeast portion of a house belonging to J.D. Friddy.

Max Egloff, who cooks at the S.C. Governor's Mansion, reflects back on his career spanning some fifty years. Egloff, who began cooking in Freiburg, Germany, cooked for German Field Marshall Rommel in North Africa during WWII. (AP Laserphoto)

He thinks cooking must be first class

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Hands that once cooked for German Field Marshal Rommel in gritty North African desert field kitchens now prepare state dinners in South Carolina's Governor's Mansion.

They belong to Max Egloff, a sturdy little man who began his cooking career more than half a century ago in Freiburg, Germany, and still loves food more than anything.

"But it's got to be first class," he insisted in a recent interview. "One thing I always believed is that second grade doesn't exist. You cook first class food, you can make it all over the world. You cook second class, you won't make it."

To hear Egloff tell it, there's precious little first class cooking around these days, and what there is costs twice what it's worth. Excellent cooking has to be economical, he said.

"I waste nothing. I work out every meal to the last portion, so I don't overcook. There is a tremendous amount of waste in the food business, especially in the United States."

Last year, Egloff said his expenses at the mansion were just a few dollars more per month than his predecessor spent five years ago.

"Savings and sanitation are the two big things in a kitchen," he said.

Egloff has cooked in hotels and restaurants on both sides of the Atlantic and on luxury passenger liners in between.

His kitchen career has been interrupted only once, when World War II broke out and he entered Rommel's 6th Army as a tank machine gunner.

But he was back at the stove as soon as the officers heard of his profession, and by the time the army was shipped to North Africa in 1941, Egloff was cooking for Rommel and other senior officers.

"He ate only what the soldiers were eating," Egloff recalled. "That was very strict with him. He really was a wonderful guy. He loved the soldiers. Not that you had it easy with him. But you would feel he was right and square with everybody."

When the war ended, Egloff had his own small hotel. But the business languished in Germany's falling postwar economy, and Egloff finally sold out in 1953 and moved to Chicago, where he became executive chef of a major national food service contractor.

He moved south after the first of several heart attacks, and ran a couple of fine restaurants in Columbia before more heart attacks and surgery forced him to retire.

But the wife of then-Gov. James Edwards coaxed him into the mansion in 1978, and he's been there ever since, supervising a kitchen staff of state prison trustees.

"Both the governors (Edwards and Gov. Dick Riley) are wonderful people to work for," he said. "Governor Riley, he likes barbecue. That's what he really likes. But he mostly eats everything. He's very easy to feed. I never saw a plate come back from him with food on it."

Governor Edwards, he liked sauces. He and his wife travelled a lot, I think, and they liked really fine cooking."

"I like a nice stew," he says. "Or fresh fish. And I like soul food. Soul food and South German food is about the same. Lots of pork."

British-made tanks, reportedly captured by Iraq from Iranian forces recently, sit near Basra, Iraq. The tanks are some of the scores of vehicles reportedly taken undamaged by Iraqis during a recent battle south of Susangerd in southwestern Iraq. (AP Laserphoto)

Iranian counter attack loses ground

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran's counter-offensive caused the heaviest fighting of the Persian Gulf war but the Iranians lost ground on at least one of the two fronts, Western reporters visiting the battlefield found.

On a two-day tour of the Susangerd front, 80 miles north of Abadan, the reporters found Iraqi infantry, armored and engineering units moving deeper into Iran, while the Iranians were reported to have retreated to the north of Susangerd.

The commanding general said 220 Iranian tanks were destroyed or captured in four days of fighting begun by the Iranians Jan. 5. He said about 110 tanks escaped, but the Iranians were unable to launch a fresh assault from their new positions.

The Iraqis advanced their heavy artillery to sites far in front of where the tank battles took place, and their mobile rocket launchers moved more than a mile closer to the Iranian lines than the Iraqi front-line cannon.

The reporters saw Iraqi earthmovers building roads for fuel trucks and pits to hide them in and tractor-trailers dragging away abandoned Iranian tanks.

The general refused to discuss Iraqi losses but the reporters counted the wreckage of 23 Iraqi tanks. And of 40 Iranian tanks seen, fewer than a dozen appeared to have taken serious hits.

Inside the turrets were helmets, gloves, food packets, sleeping gear and operating manuals. The ground was strewn with strings of grenades, full rocket racks and unopened canisters of tank shells, all with the markings of Iran's U.S. and British suppliers.

Long-range Iraqi artillery pounded Susangerd, still held by the Iranians 116 days after the Iraqis invaded Sept. 22, and fighting was still reported 100 miles to the north on the other front in the counter-offensive, in the western highlands of Gilan e-Gharb and Ilam.

Iran's Pars news agency claimed the recapture of several strategic hills in the past few days, but Iraq said it repulsed the Iranian attacks and killed 271 Iranian soldiers in Gilan e-Gharb, plus 16 in the refinery city of Abadan, at the southern end of the invasion front.

Meanwhile, U.N. special envoy Olof Palme began another quest for a peaceful settlement of the war Wednesday. The former Swedish prime minister met in Baghdad with Vice President Tareq Aziz and Foreign Minister Saadoun Ham-madi.

The Gulf News Agency said Palme reviewed previous mediation efforts and discussed new steps that might be taken to settle the conflict that Iraq began to regain sovereignty over the Iranian side of the Shatt al-Arab estuary, the southern end of the border between the two countries and Iraq's only waterway to the Persian Gulf.

Police on alert in Buffalo for rally on King birthday

By The Associated Press

Atlanta was wrapping up a five-day celebration and Washington, D.C., was preparing for thousands of marchers as communities around the nation today observed the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the slain civil rights leader.

Police dogs and helicopters carrying special weapons teams were posted in Buffalo, N.Y., as neo-Nazis and counter-demonstrators prepared to rally in the racially tense city.

A separate memorial service was being held for King elsewhere in Buffalo.

A rally and march were also planned in Atlanta, King's hometown.

In Washington, pop singer Stevie Wonder and other organizers said they expected 20,000 people to participate in a march honoring King.

In Buffalo, where a white assailant or assailants are suspected in the unsolved slayings of seven black men in recent months, Police Commissioner James B. Cunningham scheduled more than 300 officers for duty in Niagara Square.

That was where neo-Nazi leader Karl H. Hand Jr. said he would conduct a "white civil rights" rally and the Martin Luther King Day Memorial Rally Coalition said it would hold a counter-demonstration.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey signed a proclamation making today "Martin Luther King Day" and said people could best honor King's memory by "not over-reacting to the empty gestures of a few malcontents."

Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, who has declared Jan. 15 a holiday in Pennsylvania for two years, called Wednesday for the nation to honor King with a holiday.

CRMWD files for extension on Stacy reservoir permit

BIG SPRING — Just to play safe, directors of the Colorado River Municipal Water District Tuesday instructed the general manager to file for a two-year extension of the district's permit to build the Stacy reservoir.

Regulations call for the beginning of construction within two years of the granting of a permit in order to keep it intact, but the April 10, 1979, permit for Stacy has been hung up in judicial appeals since that time. Presently, it is before the Court of Appeals in Austin, and there is no indication when this tribunal will rule, or if it is favorable to the district, whether the protesting Lower Colorado River Authority and others will persist in an appeal to the Supreme Court of Texas.

If the extension is granted, as expected, this will give CRMWD until April 10, 1983, to begin work on the Stacy dam across the Colorado River

25 miles southeast of Ballinger.

The board also authorized notices of intent to introduce a bill in the 67th Legislature to amend the act by which the 31st Legislature created the district in 1949. Two principal changes will be sought, one to enlarge the boundaries of the district from the January 1, 1950 corporate limits of the members cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder to the corporate limits as of January 1, 1981. This also would carry a proviso that the district could annex territory annexed by cities in the future.

The second change would be to enable the district to be the sponsoring agency for projects under the Clean Air Financing Act and the Regional Disposal Act. Territorial boundaries for this authority would be the counties within the Colorado River Basin above the east county line of Coleman Counties, and certain other contiguous counties.

Canadian conservationist jailed in dolphin case

TOKYO (AP) — Police today arrested and jailed a Canadian conservationist who has admitted freeing 150 dolphins from slaughter pens in the harbor of Shizuoka, a city in central Japan.

Patrick C. Wall, 35, of Stephenville, Newfoundland, was held on suspicion of damaging property and forcible obstruction of business, said a spokesman for the Shizuoka public prosecutor's office. If he is charged, tried and convicted, he could be sentenced to three years in prison.

Wall, a member of the Greenpeace conservation group who arrived in Japan in November, admitted he released the dolphins last month from pens where they awaited slaughter for local consumption.

"I am ready to go to jail if I have to," he told The Associated Press in a recent interview.

He said he opposed the "senseless slaughter" of the mammals and wanted to spotlight what he said was the threat posed by dangerously high concentrations of mercury in dolphin meat.

Authorities said Wall will remain in jail without bail for the next 10 days while officials decide whether to bring charges against him.

Terrorists release d'Urso

ROME (AP) — Citing "proletarian" mercy, the terrorist Red Brigades freed Judge Giovanni d'Urso today, 34 days after kidnapping him, and left him bound, gagged and covered with blankets in the back seat of a car parked near his office in the Justice Ministry.

He squirmed around and unhooked the car with one of his bound hands. Two policemen who were rushed to the scene removed the gag and asked if he was d'Urso. "Yes, yes, that's me. Let's go," he said.

A doctor who examined him said d'Urso was shivering and in shock but otherwise healthy. Witnesses said he had grown a heavy beard, and was wearing a tie and V-neck sweater under a suit.

The end of d'Urso's ordeal, in which the urban leftist guerrillas threatened to "execute" him and the government refused to negotiate with them despite appeals from his family, was announced by Rome's police chief over RAI, the state radio network.

"He's well! He's well! He's well! He's well!" Police Chief Augusto Isgro shouted. Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni said, in announcing d'Urso's release to the Chamber of Deputies, "My wish at this moment is that men should never again make others suffer by their actions."

D'Urso, 49, telephoned his wife, Franca, who hurried to the police station and fell into her husband's arms in a lengthy embrace. The judge's brother, Corrado, and 17-year-old daughter, Lorena, also joined him, police said.

He was found after a communique Wednesday said the Red Brigades were freeing him and following an anonymous telephone call early today to the Italian news agency ANSA. The call said he could be found alive in a tan Fiat 127 near the Via Portico d'Ottavia, in the old Jewish ghetto a few blocks from where the Red Brigades left the bullet-riddled body of former Premier Aldo Moro in 1978.

As assistant prosecutor Domenico Sica interviewed him at police headquarters, the police set up roadblocks at key intersections and at entrances to the main freeways out of the city. Forensic experts examined the car for clues that could lead to his captors. RAI said investigators reported the car had been stolen.

The Vatican said Pope John Paul II, who appealed Sunday for d'Urso's release, "displayed great happiness" on learning that he had been freed.

D'Urso, who was in charge of assigning prisoners to maximum security facilities, was kidnapped outside his apartment house in Rome on Dec. 12. It was the first political abduction by the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist group, since they kidnapped Moro in March 1978 and murdered him 54 days later after the government refused to negotiate for his release.

Despite a series of communiqes, the terrorists set no specific terms for d'Urso's release until last Saturday. On Jan. 4 they announced they had "sentenced" him to death, but Saturday night they said they might "suspend" the sentence if the nation's major newspapers published a series of statements drawn up by some 80 imprisoned members of the terrorist organization.

Premier Arnaldo Forlani's government urged the newspapers not to give in to "terrorist blackmail." D'Urso's wife appealed to them to publish the statements, saying, "A man's life surely is worth more than a couple of newspaper pages." But only the Socialist party's Avanti and a few small papers published the manifestos before a 48-hour deadline expired Monday night.

A group calling itself the "Popular Committee to Save d'Urso" appealed Tuesday to the Red Brigades to extend their deadline 48 hours, and 11 Messaggero, Rome's biggest paper, published the prisoners' statements in its Wednesday editions.

"We are giving you back the executioner d'Urso," said the communique from the Red Brigades later Wednesday. "Proletarian justice permits an act of magnanimity. The sentence is suspended and the prisoner is set free."

A few hours later, a man found at a construction site was reported to be d'Urso but the report was erroneous.

Leftists hold capital; U.S. resumes aid

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas held one provincial capital today and battled government troops in two other eastern provinces of El Salvador as the United States resumed military aid to the little Central American country in response to the rebel offensive.

Reports Wednesday indicated the government controlled most of the country, but the national guard, El Salvador's army, was reported unable to break through a guerrilla cordon around San Francisco Gotera, capital of the eastern province of Morazan.

Fighting also was reported in the provinces of La Union and San Miguel. The three provinces are within about 100 miles of San Salvador, the capital, and are close to the remote mountains of Honduras where the leftists reportedly trained and still have secret bases. They are also within 40 miles of leftist-ruled Nicaragua, across the Gulf of Fonseca.

"The situation is difficult," military sources said. They said government forces were mounting cleanup operations and the guerrilla foothold would be broken.

The fighting reportedly tapered off sharply Wednesday after three days of what the guerrillas called their "final offensive" against the military-civilian junta led by President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

After government troops repulsed their first attacks last weekend, the guerrillas shifted their offensive to the eastern provinces.

An estimated 600 people, including about 50 soldiers, have been reported killed since the guerrilla offensive began. But the losses and battle claims were impossible to verify. More than 9,500 people were killed in El Salvador last year as the national guard and right-wing death squads battled the leftists.

U.S. Ambassador Robert White told reporters Wednesday there was "clear evidence that Nicaragua has permitted its territory to be used as a transfer point for arms into El Salvador."

Black mayor wants monument moved

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ernest Morial, the city's first black mayor, plans to dismantle a 19th century obelisk that has been dubbed "the white supremacy monument."

The monument, at the foot of Canal Street near the Mississippi River, marks the spot of a fight in 1874 between local people and supporters of Northern politicians who came here after the Civil War.

and using them to build barricades until government troops arrived to secure the area. (AP Laser-photo)

"This changes the nature of the insurgency movement here and makes it clear that the insurgency of the left is dependent on outside sources," said White after a meeting with Duarte at which he informed him of the resumption of U.S. military aid, including the loan of two transport helicopters.

The $5 million program of non-lethal military aid was cut off on Dec. 5 following charges of government involvement in the murder of three American nuns and a lay social worker. Economic aid was resumed later in the month after U.S. investigators reported they found no evidence of official involvement.

In Washington, the State Department said military aid was being resumed because the leftists "are better armed and constitute a military threat" and that captured documents and weapons confirm they have substantial foreign aid.

White said he was inclined to believe the government's claims that foreigners have entered El Salvador to join the leftist guerrillas, but he said he had seen no evidence of this.

The government said more than 100 leftists landed this week on a beach on the Gulf of Fonseca across from Nicaragua, where the Sandinista guerrilla movement overthrew right-wing dictator Anastasio Somoza in the summer of 1979.

"It is obvious they came from Nicaragua," Duarte said, adding that his conclusions were drawn from the type and manufacture of the landing boats. He declined to say whether he thought the intruders were Nicaraguans.

Photographer Harry Mattison of Time magazine visited the beach Wednesday and said government soldiers there told him about 50 of those who landed had been killed. He said an army colonel told him there had been several such landings in the previous four or five days and as many as 500 leftists may have landed.

The soldiers said they thought the invaders were Panamanian, Nicaraguan or Cuban because many of them were black. Those nations have sizable numbers of blacks among their populations, while El Salvador has few.

Some kind of grain embargo likely

Bergland says Reagan will 'break his pledge'

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he thinks the incoming Reagan administration will keep the grain embargo in place for the time being or at least limit the amount of grain that can be sold to the Soviet Union.

"The most sophisticated grain analysts and others don't believe Governor Reagan will lift the embargo as President Reagan" soon after he action to ease the embargo during his campaign, talk from his camp lately has been that the situation will have to be looked at more closely.

John R. Block, Reagan's choice for secretary of agriculture, opposes the embargo and said at his nomination hearing last week that a sales ban should be imposed "only as a last resort under extreme circumstances."

But Block also said he did not "know all the details" on whether the current embargo might qualify as an extreme circumstance.

Virtually all farm groups — The National Grange is one exception — want an immediate end to the embargo, imposed by Carter Jan. 4, 1980 in retaliation for the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan.

AGRICULTURE

takes office Jan. 20, Bergland said.

"Most people I talk to that are watching this one very carefully believe that once Mr. Reagan has access to all of the documents, and the vast security implications are thought through he will not lift it, notwithstanding his pledge to the contrary," Bergland said.

"He will simply break that pledge, and there will be some political reaction, because I know some people who supported him vigorously on that issue only."

Bergland, whose remarks were included in a wide-ranging interview Monday, said the embargo issue kept emerging during his campaign for President Carter last fall.

"And I just got beat black and blue out there in that election campaign," Bergland said. "I could not sell the presidential position on the grain embargo."

Although Reagan promised quick

Bergland said he thinks "the real test will come" when the Reagan administration has to decide whether to seek an extension of the five-year agreement.

Even if the embargo is lifted, Reagan will have to decide on how to deal with the Russians regarding farm commodities in the future, he said.

What if the five-year agreement is allowed to lapse this fall?

"That puts them (the Soviets) in a position where they can really create a commotion in this market. They can manipulate it to suit themselves. They can issue statements that have depressing effects on the grain markets and then they can very quietly buy," Bergland said.

"They're big enough and powerful enough so they can manipulate the whole economy of the United States by issuing statements which are taken by investors and speculators as market sensitive, and simply not following through."

U.S. estimates Soviet grain production will be low in '81

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians should be able to increase farm acreage this year after their dismal 1980 harvest, but Soviet production will probably still fall below the government's 1981 target, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

"Total grain area for the 1981 crop could well recover from the (311.2 million acres) estimated for this past year," department analysts said.

But even if the anticipated 316.2 million acres is put into production this year, per-acre yields over the past 10 years have averaged 1.6 million to 1.7 million metric tons and have never exceeded 1.8 million.

"Even if 1981 crop yields approach the high side of the range, the Soviets would find it difficult to achieve the production level of 236 million tons called for in their 1981 plan," the analysts said in the monthly evaluation of Russian grain prospects.

That would mark the fourth time in six years Soviet grain production has fallen below the planned level.

The report left unchanged at 185 million metric tons the USDA's estimate for the 1980 Soviet harvest, noting that the Russian government has yet to issue an official production report for the crop that has been shriveled by poor weather. The USDA estimate is only slightly higher than the drought ravaged harvest of 1979 and 50 million metric tons lower than the 1980 target.

The Agriculture Department also made only minor revisions in its world harvest forecasts for the 1980-1981 crop, increasing estimates in all three categories. World grain production was increased 2 million metric tons to just over 1.54 billion tons, oilseed production rose by 600,000 metric tons to 160.3 million tons and cotton production rose 100,000 bales to 64.1 million bales.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and, for example, is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

U.S. corn, bean crops better than expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1980 corn and soybean crops, shriveled by hot, dry weather, still turned out to be slightly higher than Agriculture Department experts had previously thought.

In its annual review of farm production last year, the department on Wednesday put the corn harvest at 6,647,500 bushels after estimating it last month at 6,461,000. The new harvest estimate is still nearly 1.3 million bushels below the record crop of 1979.

The soybean crop was put at 1,817,000 bushels, compared to last month's estimate of 1,775,000 bushels, still 450,000 bushels below the 1979 crop.

The record wheat harvest was pushed upward to 2,369,600 bushels from the December estimate of 2,362,000 bushels.

Even despite the drought-reduced corn and soybean crops, overall crop output last year was the second highest on record. It measured 134 percent of a 1967 base used as a standard. Production in 1979 set a record 144 percent on the all crops index.

On a metric basis, 1980 U.S. corn and wheat production totaled more than 230 million metric tons while the entire Soviet grain harvest is expected to be no more than 185 million metric tons.

Alabama group pulls out of Farm Bureau

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Alabama Farm Bureau announced Wednesday that it was withdrawing from the American Farm Bureau Federation, which represents 3.3 million farmers throughout the country.

The breakup was caused by differences of opinion over how much business a farm bureau local can conduct in other states, said John H. Dorrill, a spokesman for the Alabama group.

With more than 330,000 members, the Alabama delegation is the fourth largest in the national organization, he said. He said the Alabama members pay about $600,000 in annual dues to the national organization.

The Alabama group's board of directors unanimously voted for the withdrawal during the American Farm Bureau Federation's annual convention here.

Goodwin L. Myrick, president of the Alabama federation, said in a statement that the withdrawal stemmed from a prolonged dispute in which the national group accused the Alabama federation of breaking membership rules.

Those rules say that a state organization cannot cross state lines in engaging in federation business, such as selling insurance.

Dorrill said the Alabama federation has some affiliated companies in Georgia and Mississippi which sell life, auto and casualty insurance.

"We just have more activities than some of these states," he said. "But we were not doing anything to harm farm bureaus in other states."

Dorrill said the Alabama Farm Bureau would continue to cooperate with other states in representing farmers.

The Alabama group also plans to directly represent its members in Washington rather than pay the national organization to do that work.

"We believe we are big enough to go it alone," Dorrill said.

Eight Midland 4-H'ers to compete in district contest

Annual District Six 4-H Food Show will be Saturday at Midland High School.

Over 176 entrants will be competing from 22 counties in this district. Eight representatives from Midland in both the junior and senior divisions will compete in various categories.

Participating from Midland will be Suelyn Szuba, Kem O'Connor, Cindy Triplitt, Kim Watson, Sonya Bostwick, Richard Triplitt, Stacey Hillis and Angela Floyd.

Four seniors will be picked from the four older divisions and advance to the State 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University.

Listed below are the four recipes in the senior division. Junior division recipes will be published at a later date.

Suelyn Szuba will compete in the breads and desserts division with her Cinnamon Walnut Coffee Cake.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Szuba, 1502 N "C," she is 14 years old and has been a member of 4-H for two years.

CINNAMON WALNUT COFFEE CAKE

- 1 pkg dry yeast
- 1/4 cup warm water (105 degrees to 115 degrees)
- 1 cup sour half and half, scalded
- 2 tablespoons milk, scalded
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 egg at room temperature, slightly beaten
- 3 1/2 to 3 3/4 cups all purpose flour

Filling

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup walnuts
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon

Topping

- 1/2 cup powdered sugar
- 1 tablespoon milk
- vanilla, to taste

Dissolve yeast in water. Combine sour half/half, milk, butter, sugar and salt.

Cool to lukewarm. Add yeast and egg. Beat in enough flour to form a soft dough. Knead until dough is elastic and not sticky. Place in a greased bowl and cover. Let rise in a warm place 1-1 1/4 hours.

Punch down, divide into two pieces. Roll each piece into a 12x12" square. Spread butter on each piece of dough. Sprinkle nuts, brown sugar and cinnamon on top. Roll up each piece like a jelly roll, seal ends.

Place loaves with seam side down on an ungreased French bread pan. Cover with foil. Let rise 45 minutes.

Uncover and bake in a preheated 350 degrees oven for 24-28 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from pan at once.

Combine topping ingredients. Drizzle on top when cooled.

KEM O'CONNOR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Connor, 713 Boyd, is also a two year veteran of 4-H. She is 14. Her entry in the snacks and beverages category is Spice Nut Cake.

SPICE NUT CAKE

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup buttermilk or sour milk
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup nuts

Sift together first seven ingredients. Add shortening, brown sugar and buttermilk. Mix until all flour is moistened. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed on electric mixer. Add eggs; beat two minutes more.

Mix chopped nuts and raisins together with 2 tablespoons flour, then add them to the beaten mixture. Stir until nuts and raisins are evenly blended. Bake at 350 degrees in a well greased and lightly floured Bundt pan for 35-40 minutes. Let cool 10 minutes, then turn out. Let cool completely before adding glaze.

Glaze: 1 cup confectioner's sugar, 3 tablespoons milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Blend all ingredients, adding more milk, a couple of drops at a time, if needed, to make glaze thin enough to dribble over cake.

ENTERED IN THE MAIN DISHES SENIOR DIVISION is Cindy Triplitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Triplitt, Rt. 2. At 15 years of age, Cindy has been a member of 4-H for six years. Her entry is Almond Chicken.

ALMOND CHICKEN

- 1 (8 oz.) can pineapple chunks in heavy syrup
- 3 cups cooked and diced chicken
- 2 stalks celery, diagonally sliced
- 1 green pepper, cut into one-inch pieces.
- 3/4 cup whole almonds, toasted
- Chicken bouillon
- 2/3 cup sherry
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 2 tablespoons green onion slices
- Hot cooked rice, optional

Drain pineapple, reserving juice for sauce. Combine pineapple with chicken, celery, green pepper and almonds in 2-qt. casserole. Combine reserved pineapple juice with enough chicken bouillon to measure 2 cups. Add sherry, soy sauce, cornstarch, ginger and garlic powder. Stir well to dissolve cornstarch; pour over chicken mixture and mix well. Bake in 375 degrees oven 40-45 minutes, or until sauce has thickened, stirring occasionally. Sprinkle with green onions. Bake 5 minutes longer, or until heated through. Serve over rice, if desired.

KIM WATSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watson, 2006 W. Tennessee, is 14 years old and a six-year veteran of 4-H. She will prepare No-Bake Macaroni and Cheese in the side dish division.

NO-BAKE MACARONI AND CHEESE

- 1 (16 oz.) package rotelle, large shell, ziti or elbow macaroni
- 1 1/2 pounds sharp cheddar cheese
- 1 bunch radishes

Four new Angels meet press at Anaheim luncheon

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Rick Burleson, three times an All-Star game selection and rock-steady shortstop at Boston for seven seasons, ranks himself among the top five or six middle infielders in all of baseball.

But he says the Red Sox didn't share his $500,000-or-so thoughts about annual payment for a top shortstop who regularly led his team in hits and runs scored.

Burleson, one of four new California Angels introduced at a press luncheon Wednesday, didn't hear anything to lower his opinion of himself.

"Rick Burleson ... is going to be the glue to our infield. He's the shortstop we've been needing since Jim Fregosi left," said Buzzie Bavasi, Angels' executive vice president, who obtained Burleson and third baseman Butch Hobson from Boston in a recent trade.

Bavasi also had high praise for the talents of Hobson and newly signed free agent pitchers Geoff Zahn and John D'Acquisto, before Bavasi hurried away to negotiations with agents for Burleson and Hobson.

"I don't know if the Angels are thinking that long, but I'm looking for a five or six-year deal," Burleson said. He and attorney Jack Sands of Boston want to tear up a contract that ends with an option year in 1982 — and let Burleson concentrate on what he calls "playing every day, hitting .275 and hustling all the time."

Asked about his contract difficulty at Boston, Burleson said the Red Sox "couldn't part with the $400,000 or $500,000 or $600,000 a year it would take."

Burleson, American League All-Star second baseman three consecutive years from 1977-79, also won his Red Sox most valuable player honors in 1979-80, batting .278 each year. He led the club in runs (88) and hits (179) in 1980.

"I don't want to go the free agent route and they don't want that. I think it'll be resolved," said Burleson.

Hobson, who missed about half of the 1980 season with a separated shoulder, also would be in the option year of his contract in 1982. His agent Tony Pennacchia of Providence, R.I., met with Bavasi Tuesday.

"We're pretty close," was all Hobson would say about money and terms.

Hobson played 4½ seasons with Boston, two of them marred by in-

Raider offense has improved since Nov. 23

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders' game-film study in preparation for the Philadelphia Eagles, their opponents in Super Bowl XV, includes some embarrassing footage from a Nov. 23 game in Philadelphia.

The Eagles won 10-7 that day, ending Oakland's six-game winning streak which made the Raiders play-off contenders. Philadelphia's defense pummeled quarterback Jim Plunkett with eight sacks and limited Oakland running backs to 73 yards on 26 rushes.

"I think Philadelphia is going to see a different offense this time. We're able to do more things now," right tackle Henry Lawrence said Wednesday.

Before last Sunday's American Conference championship game at San Diego, Plunkett remarked: "If we just execute well, there's no telling how many points we can score."

The offensive unit went out and scored 34 points, its most since Oct. 20, and totaled 362 yards to take the critics off its back.

"We got into a situation back in Philly where we had to pass a lot, and they were able to tee off on our quarterback. Some of the sacks shouldn't have been made. It was a matter of not all of us being aware of what everyone else was doing," the 270-pound lineman added, speaking of blocking assignments but not going into details, naturally. "Our offensive line has really come together now.

"Our running backs are healthier than when we played in Philly and Jim has been throwing the ball very well. We had some bad breaks in that game, too. We lost a fumble at the 3-yard line and Jim threw a pass to Bob Chandler, who was free in the end zone, that was tipped by a defensive back at the last second."

The Raiders settled for 275 net yards on offense that day and held the Eagles to 271 in a defensive struggle. The Oakland offense gained more than 300 yards only once in the final six weeks of the National Football League season, getting 311 yards in the season-ending 33-17 romp over the lowly New York Giants.

But offensive captain Gene Upshaw said, "I'm tired of apologizing for being in first place."

He added, "When we were going bad, we never criticized each other."

There was some locker room ribbing. Linebacker Ted Hendricks, a star on the defensive unit, told Upshaw and friends, "We don't mind driving the ball downfield and scoring on an interception for you guys."

Coach Tom Flores, whose team takes a five-game winning streak into the Super Bowl, said one major reason for the recent offensive improvement is, "We've got our halfbacks back."

Fullback Mark van Eeghen carried much of the running load late in the season as halfbacks Kenny King and Arthur Whittington recovered from minor injuries.

"I'm still not back to 100 percent yet, maybe 80 or 85," says King, an AFC Pro Bowl selection who averaged 4.4 yards per carry in the regular season and has made some important contributions in the playoffs. "Hopefully, with this Sunday off, I'll be completely ready on the 25th."

NMSU hitting road for pair

LAS CRUCES (AP) — New Mexico State, which failed to win at home last week in a pair of Missouri Valley Conference basketball games, will try to find success on the road this week with conference clashes at Wichita State tonight and West Texas State Saturday.

In both games, NMSU Coach Weldon Drew said the Aggies figure to be the underdogs.

"Along with Bradley, Wichita State was one of the top pre-season favorites in the conference and the way they've been playing, they are certainly living up to their advance billing," Drew said.

Giants named Robinson skipper

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After the Cleveland Indians fired him in 1977, Frank Robinson — major league baseball's first black manager — thought he'd never get another chance. Now that he has, he intends to make the most of it.

"I hope and feel like I can justify the faith the Giants organization has shown in me," Robinson said Wednesday after being named San Francisco manager. "I feel like I can bring leadership to this ball club."

The 45-year-old former star outfielder said at a news conference at Candlestick Park that he had sought another chance to manage in the major leagues since the Indians let him go after 2½ seasons.

But he said that until Giants' owner Bob Lurie contacted him, no other team had offered him even a nibble. For the last two seasons he has been first-base coach with the Baltimore Orioles.

"I felt that I'd never get another chance," said Robinson. "A lot of people asked me why and I said for the simple reason that from the time I left Cleveland until a week ago, no one from any other organization ever contacted me.

"I just felt like evidently I did something wrong or someone had said something against me and had spread it around baseball, and it was like hands-off."

"The more openings that became available and the more I was passed over, the more I felt that I was right," he said.

Robinson was accused of a lack of communication with his players at Cleveland, but he denied that, saying, "I didn't have communication problems. Some of the players there that I had problems with just didn't like what I had to say."

He promised an "open-door" policy with the Giants, adding that "the door swings both ways. I can go out into the locker room and get them and bring them into my office, and they can walk through the door to my office and feel right at home."

Lurie was lavish in his praise of Robinson, who he said had agreed to a multi-year contract. Details were not disclosed.

"I think he knows how to manage, he knows how to win and he knows how to communicate," said Lurie. "I think Frank will have the ability to earn the respect of the players and fans in a very short time. And I think he can bring back a winning tradition to the Giants that is desperately needed."

Lurie had searched for a new manager since firing Dave Bristol last month at baseball's winter meetings.

Under Bristol, the Giants finished fifth last season in the National League West.

Robinson said he hoped to take the Giants back to the top, but cautioned that "I don't look for that to happen overnight and I don't think anyone in the organization expects it to happen overnight."

"But I think in time it will happen," he added.

Robinson managed Baltimore's Class AAA Rochester, N.Y., team for part of the 1978 season before joining the coaching staff of the Orioles.

Robinson left an impressive record in a 21-year big league playing career which started in 1956 with the Cincinnati Reds.

juries. Elbow chip was removed in 1978 post-season surgery, and a shoulder separation held him to half a season, 11 homers and 39 RBI in 1980.

Hobson in good health has been awesome, hitting 30 home runs with 112 RBI in 1977. In 1979 he belted 28 homers and had 93 RBI.

"I'm okay now. I've been working with weights, and I split about a cord of wood a week at home in Alabama this winter," said Hobson.

To get Burleson and Hobson, the Angels sent Boston their young, solid-hitting third baseman Carney Lansford, often brilliant reliever Mark Clear and veteran center fielder Rick Miller.

Two Loyola forwards academically ineligible

CHICAGO (AP) — Loyola of Chicago officials say two senior starting basketball forwards have been declared academically ineligible from team play for the rest of the season.

The spokesman said Wednesday the two players immediately ineligible are Kevin Sprewer, who was the No. 10 rebounder last week in NCAA Division I, and Steve Parham.

Sprewer, 6-foot-7, had been a Ramblin' starter for the past three years. This season, he averaged 17.3 points and 11.8 rebounds per game. Parham, also 6-7, was averaging 7.3 points and 5.5 rebounds per game.

According to the spokesman, neither had made "satisfactory progress toward graduation" and would remain on probation through the remainder of the winter and spring quarters.

Winklepleck losing big keg lead in Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Jim Winklepleck of Gladstone, Ore., had his huge second-round lead trimmed to 18 pins Wednesday during the third round of the $135,000 Showboat Invitational bowling tournament.

After the completion of the third round Wednesday night, Winklepleck had a 24-game score of 5,507 for a 229 average. He had a 105-pin lead entering the third round.

Mark Roth of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., remained in second place with a 5,489 total. Ernie Schlegel of Vancouver, Wash., leaped from 19th place to third with a 5,352 score, followed by Jimmy Certain of Peoria, Ill., at 5,335 and David Kappel of Chicago, Ill., at 5,337.

Charles DePlato of Bricktown, N.J., fired the tournament's first 300 game Wednesday, but didn't rank among the top 50 bowlers.

Texas Court to hear UIL Transfer rule

The Texas Supreme Court has agreed to decide whether the UIL's controversial transfer rule is constitutional at a hearing Feb. 11. According to the rule, a transfer must sit out a year before being eligible for varsity football or basketball.

The rule was challenged by John Sullivan in 1977 after he moved into the Austin school district from Vermont and was ruled ineligible. The Supreme Court agreed to hear the case on three points raised by Sullivan's lawyers: — That the rule is not rationally related to deterring recruitment. In one brief the Sullivan lawyers said it was like burning a barn to kill a few rats. — Family privacy is unconstitutionally impaired by the rule. — In violation of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, the rule infringes on Americans' right to travel among the states.

Boston Bruins President Paul A. Mooney expects the NHL team to move to Salem, N.H., 35 miles north of Boston, once a multi-million-dollar sports arena is built there. A proposal for the complex on the site of the former Rockingham Park race track, which burned last year, was revealed last month. "If the indications I've received are correct, then the New Hampshire site would be ideal. It would take millions of dollars to renovate the Garden and we run the risk of tripling our taxes. What sense does that make?"

Fin & Feather

Look out Florida and California. Texans know your lakes harbor some world record largemouth bass, but we're moving up in the world. No 20-plus pounders have been taken from Texas waters, but in a few years there is a possibility.

A Texas largemouth bass record was smashed Saturday by John Alexander, Jr., at Lake Echo, a private club lake near Athens with a 14-pound, 3 1/2 ounce.

Alexander, a salesman from Richardson, was fishing with Dewey Dalton of Dallas and hooked and landed the giant in 25 feet where very little brush was standing, an area that had produced some other big bass recently.

Alexander used an Arkie, (rubber-skirted) dark jig, with a black Pedigo split tail eel attached. The 20-pound Trilene line on the Garcia Ambassador 4000 (direct drive) reel was mounted on a Fenwick graphite rod. It took about four or five minutes to land.

The fish was certified, weighed and scaled by Al Forsythe, Texas Parks and Wildlife biologist. The Florida strain bass, not a hybrid, weight 14.23, officially.

The catch surpasses the 14-1/2 black caught Feb. 2 by Jim Kimbell, Pittsburg, at Lake Monticello. Prior Kimbell's bass, the Texas record of 13 1/2 out of Lake Medina had stood for more than four decades.

Doctors wait on Richard for 2 weeks

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors say it will be at least two more weeks before they can determine when Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard, recovering from a stroke July 30, can start throwing again.

"Everything looks promising but nobody is making any predictions," said neurologist Dr. William S. Fields, who examined Richard this week.

Richard suffered a stroke July 30 while working out in the Astrodome and underwent surgery to remove a blood clot in his neck.

On Oct. 14, Richard underwent an 18-hour operation at San Francisco's University of California Medical Center to replace a blocked artery in his right shoulder.

Doctors say Richard has resumed running since his October surgery but he has not been able to throw.

The waiting period also left the pitcher-rich Astros uncertain if Richard will be available for the 1981 season.

Hypothermia strikes quickly

A West Texas man came very near death in December after being exposed to cold and rain while walking less than five miles after his vehicle became disabled. Fortunately, this elderly victim of hypothermia was accompanied by a younger man who, after seeing the uncontrollable shivering and apparent disorientation, walked the victim to the nearest hospital. Through prompt medical care he recovered from an experience that has left many persons dead.

When you hear that someone has died from exposure to the cold or that a person has frozen to death the real killer is often hypothermia or exposure sickness. Hypothermia is derived from hypo which means low, and from thermia which means a state of heat. It is the result of the body losing more heat than it generates. A body temperature below 94 degrees F. should be considered a medical emergency. If the body core temperature falls below 78 degrees F. breathing and heart functions may stop.

Hypothermia usually follows near-exhaustion, whether from exertion or the loss of body heat from exposure or wet clothing. It occurs when a person is not clothed warmly enough for the air temperature around him. A person is further endangered if exposed to a low wind-chill resulting from a cold, windy rainstorm. Under such conditions the air doesn't have to be below freezing. Hypothermia can kill when the air thermometer is as high as 50 degrees F.

Hypothermia starts with the person feeling cold, tired and irritable. If he doesn't warm-up while in this stage he will begin to shiver uncontrollably. Shivering is usually the first of tge symptoms. Total collapse may occur within an hour of the onset of shivering. If the person stops shivering he is very near death.

Other symptoms may include memory lapses, stumbling or fumbling, drowsiness, slow or slurred speech and stiffening of the joints and muscles.

Some persons are much more vulnerable to extremes of environmental temperature than others. Such person should exercise particular caution when in the cold. An infant, especially a newborn, is at risk. Elderly persons often have impaired blood circulation and are more sensitive to temperature extremes. Any person who has impaired cardiovascular function, is unconscious or in a debilitated state should be protected.

Anyone who has suffered extensive injury to the skin or who is emaciated or obese is a risk. The physically active or inactive person is also a high risk potential. The inactive person doesn't generate enough heat due to his inactivity while the active person can become energy deficient.

Many deaths attributed to drowning were actually victims of hypothermia. The temperature of a swimmer drops steadily in water lower than body temperature. The shivering that results from exposure to cold water is actually the onset of hypothermia. Shivering is an automatic survival mechanism the body employs to generate heat.

A swimmer in cold water who falls victim to hypothermia usually has been swimming to long. His temperature has dropped, he loses his sense of direction because of disorientation and drowns. It has been observed that he will often just throw up his hands and submerge.

Treatment consists of promptly restoring the victims lost body heat. This means using warm applications, adjusting the environmental temperature, eliminating air currents, using insulating materials around the body, giving the victim hot food and liquids and encouraging some physical activity when appropriate. Friction generates heat so massaging or rubbing the body helps.

Get the victim out of wet clothing first, then warm him. If you are on a hike or backpacking trip and a companion shows symptoms, stop immediately and administer aid. Put up a shelter, if needed. Build a fire if weather conditions permit. Get into a sleeping bag with the victim so he can utilize your body heat to help restore his. A cold sleeping bag won't help the victim as he is not generating enough heat to warm it.

Wet clothing loses about 90 percent of its insulating ability. Wet clothing will rob the body of heat up to 200 times faster than dry clothing. Wool is a good insulator even when wet and will keep you much warmer than synthetics or cotton will. Wet cotton absorbs heat like a sponge absorbs water.

Edmonton Oilers stage rally to down Toronto in wild NHL tilt, 7-4

By The Associated Press You don't expect perfection from the Edmonton Oilers but they came darn close Wednesday night.

Trailing 3-1 entering the third period of their game in Toronto, the Oilers managed seven shots at Maple Leafs goaltender Jim Rutherford in the final session. They scored on six of them for a 7-4 triumph.

"You go for the holes out there," noted Oilers star Wayne Gretzky, who had two goals an assist as Edmonton found plenty of holes in the third period. "You've got to wait for a break and go for it."

"You let the puck do all the work and go for the holes. That's the way we try to play."

Stan Weir had the last two goals of the final-period onslaught and Lee Fogolin scored a shorthanded tally that put Edmonton ahead to stay and Brett Callighan had three assists. Terry Martin scored twice for Toronto, which lost for the first time in three games under new Coach Mike Nykoluk.

Elsewhere in the National Hockey League, Pittsburgh snapped St. Louis' 11-game unbeaten streak with a 6-3 victory, Minnesota and Buffalo deadlocked 1-1 and Los Angeles edged Hartford 5-4.

Penguins 6, Blues 3

Rich Kehoe was most responsible for the Blues' first loss since Dec. 17, scoring three times, giving him 33 goals, tying his career high for one year. It was the third three-goal game this season for Kehoe.

"He's a natural goal scorer. He doesn't overwhelm you. But if you give him chances he's going to put them in," said Blues Coach Red Berenson. "He always seems to be moving in for rebounds and he's always right around the puck."

said Penguins Coach Eddie Johnston. "All he needs is about three or four chances and he'll put the light on twice. He's got that quick release and good anticipation. He doesn't flip it either. He buries it on you."

"I guess it (scoring) comes a little easier for me," Kehoe admitted. "At times it just happens. I can't pinpoint any reason."

North Stars 1, Sabres 1 Don Luce, on his first regular shift of the game, scored midway through the third period to produce the tie. Ron Zanussi scored Minnesota's goal late in the first period.

The star of the game was Minnesota rookie goalie Don Beaupre, who stopped 16 shots in the first period.

"They dominated us in the first period," said North Stars Coach Glen Sonmor, "but Beaupre was just brilliant or we would have been blown away."

"I don't mind tight games," said Beaupre, "in fact, I like them more. I have to bear down more and the time goes faster."

Kings 5, Whalers 4 Stu Smith's first NHL goal tied the game for Hartford but, 30 seconds later, Marcel Dionne's 35th goal of the season proved the game-winner. Rookie Mickey Volcan also had his first NHL tally and Tommy Abrahamson scored twice for Hartford.

"Hartford came back and all I was thinking about was the 6-6 tie we had in St. Louis a couple of days ago that ended just like this one was shaping up," Dionne said. "We were fortunate to get the game and the two points. They missed a lot of chances."

The Whalers outshot the Kings 38-

Well fire out

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — An offshore drilling platform choked itself off Tuesday and stopped a flaming blowout that sent 31 rig workers into the frigid Gulf of Mexico, killing one and leaving two others hospitalized, an official of Placid Oil Co. said.

"The well fire is out. There's no gas blowing," said Van Cojins, district administrative assistant with Placid. "It bridged over. The hole filled up in a natural process."

The rig burst into flames Monday evening, about eight hours after the blowout sent rig workers scrambling overboard, said Coast Guard spokesman Jim Munro.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

You lack only one thing

Once when some mothers were bringing their children to Jesus to bless them, the disciples shooed them away, telling them not to bother Him.

But when Jesus saw what was happening He was very much displeased with His disciples and said to them, "Let the children come to Me, for the Kingdom of God belongs to such as they. Don't send them away!"

I tell you as seriously as I know how that anyone who refuses to come to God as a little child will never be allowed into His Kingdom."

Then He took the children into His arms and placed His hands on their heads and He blessed them.

As He was starting out on a trip, a man came running to Him and knelt down and asked, "Good Teacher, what must I do to get to heaven?"

"Why do you call Me good?" Jesus asked. "Only God is truly good!"

But as for your question—you know the commandments: don't kill, don't commit adultery, don't steal, don't lie, don't cheat, respect your father and mother."

"Teacher," the man replied, "I've never once broken a single one of those laws."

Jesus felt genuine love for this man as He looked at him. "You lack only one thing. He told him, "go and sell all you have and give the money to the poor—and you shall have treasure in heaven—and come, follow Me."

Then the man's face fell, and he went sadly away, for he was very rich.

Jesus watched him go, then turned around and said to His disciples, "It's almost impossible for the rich to get into the Kingdom of God!"

This amazed them. So Jesus said it again "Dear children, how hard it is for those who trust in riches to enter the Kingdom of God!

It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God!"

Workers guarded against noise levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has issued toughened noise-protection standards and promises more new safety rules before Ronald Reagan takes office next week.

Officials said a mandatory hearing-conservation program announced Tuesday will affect about 5.2 million Americans subjected to high noise levels.

The program, under the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, includes requirements that employers measure noise at work sites and provide employees with protective devices such as earplugs when noise reaches certain levels.

The regulations become effective on April 15 and essentially require action whenever employees are exposed to workplace noise that averages 85 to 90 decibels over an eight-hour period. The 85-decibel noise level is roughly comparable to that generated by an old vacuum cleaner or a busy traffic intersection.

OSHA also this week is finishing rules covering electrical standards for the workplace, and is proposing regulations governing conveyor-belt and dock-loading safety, and requiring the labeling of hazardous chemicals used in manufacturing.

Although President-elect Ronald Reagan has pledged to seek big reductions in government regulation of the nation's businesses, a Labor Department official said this week's activity is not a last-ditch effort by OSHA to flex its regulatory muscle before Reagan takes office Tuesday.

Continued smoking increases heart risk

Dear Dr. Solomon: I know from reading your column that people who smoke cigarettes put themselves in danger of developing coronary artery disease. But suppose someone has had a heart attack. Is there still a risk involved if that individual continues to smoke?—Eddie

Dear Eddie: Logic and common sense tell us that a person who continues to smoke following a myocardial infarction faces an increased risk of death, and this feeling is supported by hard data. Dr. J.T. Salonen studied 875 Finnish men, all under 65 years of age, who had survived for at least six months after suffering an acute myocardial infarction. Of approximately 300 men who continued to smoke after their illness, almost 20 percent died between six months and three years after the infarction; however, fewer than 12 percent of those who had stopped smoking died. The overall death rate in patients who continued to smoke was 1.7 times the rate of those who had stopped.

The risk of death also was linked to the number of cigarettes a person smoked each day. For those who smoked from one to four cigarettes daily, the mortality rate was 15 percent. The figure increased to more than 23 percent for those who smoked 15 or more cigarettes each day.

The conclusion is obvious: Having a myocardial infarction does not provide immunity to death in individuals who tempt fate by continuing to smoke.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A very close friend of mine started drinking after the death of her 8-year-old son. The drinking has not interfered with her ability to function—for example, she rarely loses any time from work—but it is obviously having an effect on her health. Although she does not deny that she drinks, she says she does not need help because she is not a real alcoholic, but someone who began drinking for a very specific reason. We are very close and I believe I could have some influence on her. Do you have any suggestions about what I might do in this situation?—Carrie

Dear Carrie: Since your friend's problem with alcohol can be related to a specific event in her life—that is, the death of her child—she falls within a category that some health professionals refer to as "reactive alcoholics." This distinguishes them from primary alcoholics, who find drinking highly desirable, and secondary alcoholics, individuals with a serious psychiatric illness. The fact that your friend may be a reactive alcoholic, however, should not be permitted to minimize the seriousness of her problem or her need for help.

If you do have influence on her, I suggest you try to convince her of the need for psychotherapy. The aim of treatment will be to help her adjust to her child's loss without the need to resort to alcohol, and to permit her to cope more constructively with other traumatic events she may experience in the future. Sometimes a clergyman or family physician can be enlisted to help convince the patient of the need for psychotherapy.

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 72242, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Judge says he would also like to own mechanical bull

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says he too would like to buy one of the whirling, bucking mechanical bulls that designer Joe D. Turner contends have become so popular on the night-club rodeo circuit that three Houston competitors are trying to horn in on his device.

Turner and Gilley's Enterprises Inc. are asking a federal court jury to enjoin Buck N Broncos Inc., Southwest Rodeo Enterprises Inc., and Texas Rodeo Bulls Inc. from marketing "copies" of Turner's rodeo training device.

The headless, legless demon used to amuse patrons at Gilley's — a Pasadena, Texas, nightclub billed as the world's biggest honkey tonk — became a fad after actor John Travolta tamed the mechanical beast in the movie "Urban Cowboy," the plaintiffs contend.

Country-western singer Mickey Gilley, who said he has "a big interest in this case because without the mechanical bull there never would have been an 'Urban Cowboy,'" is expected to testify today.

His attorneys argue that there is "a sense of urgency" to the case because of the movie-generated "fad or craze" nature of the mechanical bull market.

Turner testified Tuesday that although his machine is superior to those of the three defendants, the other bulls are essentially copies of his device.

Defense attorney Russell Weaver, however, argued that Gilley's is trying to monopolize the mechanical bull market and that the patent Turner acquired in 1975 is invalid because he failed to inform the government about developments that would have negated the patent.

Workmen wheeled an engine-driven bull made and sold by the defendants into the 11th floor courtroom of U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals on Tuesday and placed it near the "El Toro" model marketed by Gilley's. Under cross-examination, the defense asked Turner to examine the defendants' bull and explain the differences between the two devices.

"It's hard to find anything that is basically different except the color," said Turner after he noted the length of some parts varied.

At the request of attorneys, Turner, 59, a Corrales, N.M. native, demonstrated how the bull operates and compared it with other devices.

He said his invention simulated the action of a rodeo animal, allowed the rider to modify the intensity according to his ability and skill and could be used indoors.

After he finished, Seals inspected the bull and then asked, "Can anyone buy one of these things?"

"Yes," Turner replied. "I'd kind of like to have one for my bedroom," the judge said.

Haig approval expected today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander M. Haig, survivor of five days of grilling during which he promised "steely eyed" toughness with the Soviets and no vestige of Watergate abuses, now awaits only the formalities of Senate confirmation as secretary of state.

The first was due today, with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's vote.

After the longest confirmation hearings for a secretary of state-designate in modern times, Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston predicted no filibuster or other delay to prevent full Senate confirmation next Wednesday or Thursday of Haig's nomination by President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Cranston announced Wednesday he was inclined to vote against Haig when the hearings started last Friday but "I am now leaning toward a 'yes' vote."

On the final day of hearings, Cranston told Haig he still had only two concerns: Haig's refusal to denounce Watergate as immoral until committee Democrats pressed him to do so, and whether Haig will respect Congress' constitutional right to help formulate foreign policy. Several other Democrats joined Cranston in the latter concern.

Two Reagan Cabinet nominees already have cleared the first step to confirmation. The Senate Energy Committee on

Alexander Haig

Wednesday recommended approval of Denver lawyer James G. Watt as interior secretary and former South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards as energy secretary.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee had planned to vote today on Reagan's nomination of Raymond L. Donovan as labor secretary, but the vote was postponed, apparently so investigators could look further into dealings of Donovan's New Jersey construction company. No new date for the vote was scheduled.

Reagan to take quick action on policy decisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan, moving into Washington to await his inauguration, will review "fully blown" policy options in the next five days so he can begin acting on them the day after he takes office, his chief aide says.

Another aide said Wednesday that the new president's first acts in office were likely to be four executive orders: a federal government hiring freeze, abolition of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, suspension of all pending federal regulations, and an order to start the Cabinet looking for waste, fraud and abuse.

Reagan, whose trip here from Los Angeles was his first flight aboard the president's airplane, is meeting today with his designated Cabinet members and his economic advisers — the first of four pre-inaugural economic meetings he has scheduled.

Edwin A. Meese III, who will be Reagan's top aide in the White House, said aboard the flight to Washington Wednesday that the new administration would announce its economic recovery program within "the next two to three weeks."

He said the program would not declare an economic emergency despite reports such a declaration was contemplated.

Landing at Andrews Air Force Base just outside Washington, Reagan said he felt "a pang of sadness" when he left sunny California for snowy Washington, but was "looking forward to actually getting in and wrestling with the problems that have to be faced."

He was given an emotional sendoff from his adopted hometown, and said later aboard the airplane, "I was pretty close to not coming."

He toured the airplane, known as Air Force One when the president is on board but only by its tail numbers, 27000, at other times. When asked how he liked the luxurious Boeing 707, Reagan replied, "Rather small, but it will do."

Reagan carried with him some of his senior staff, including Meese; Michael Deaver, who will be the deputy chief of the White House staff; and Lyn Nofziger, the incoming presidential assistant for political affairs. All are Californians.

Meanwhile, James A. Baker III, who will be the chief of the White House staff, said in an interview that each of the four steps being contemplated for the opening hours of the administration could be taken without congressional action.

Baker said a major theme of Reagan's inaugural address next Tuesday would be to ask Americans to avoid unrealistic expectations about how quickly the new administration could deal with the economy.

Meese said Reagan would work during the five days before his inauguration on policy options "so decisions can be made on executive orders and executive actions."

"These all will be discussed by the Cabinet prior to Jan. 20," he said.

After Reagan and his wife, Nancy, arrived at Blair House, the government's guest residence diagonally across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, the president-elect's senior staff members began a private late-night meeting in a Washington hotel.

Senate to grill Smith on all-male club memberships

WASHINGTON (AP) — William French Smith, a wealthy West Coast lawyer persuaded by his friend Ronald Reagan to accept nomination as attorney general, is facing questions on his membership in two private clubs that exclude women.

One of the clubs also has been accused of job discrimination for refusing to hire women.

Smith, a trim 63-year-old Harvard Law School graduate, was scheduled to appear today before the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is expected to recommend his confirmation without major controversy.

Nonetheless, Senate sources said Smith was likely to be asked about the clubs — specifically whether he will keep up his membership in the Bohemian Club in San Francisco and the California Club in Los Angeles.

Smith, formerly Reagan's personal attorney, has said previously through a spokesman that he has no intention of resigning from either organization.

"He's not convinced there is a problem," said John Herrington, a Smith aide. "When and if he's convinced there is a problem he will decide what action to take, if any." Herrington offered that assessment in late December.

The California Fair Employment and Housing Department has accused the Bohemian Club of discriminating against women in its hiring practices.

In a letter Wednesday, the National Organization for Women asked Smith to resign from both clubs.

The letter, from NOW president Eleanor Smeal, noted that one of the reasons the Bohemian Club cited in defense of its policy against hiring women was that club members occasionally dress up in women's clothing, a practice the club said women employees might find offensive.

President Carter's first attorney general, Griffin Bell, underwent similar scrutiny and resigned his membership in all-male clubs in Atlanta.

Smith's friendship with Reagan covers 15 years of personal, political and legal advice. A polished and well-respected lawyer, Smith played a major role in the selection of the rest of Reagan's cabinet and is regarded as generally sharing most of the president-elect's conservative views.

In a discussion of his personal political philosophy, Smith was once quoted as saying:

"The last place decisions ought to be made is at the federal level. Keeping power at the lowest possible level is the liberal approach. You could even call it revolutionary or radical. That's the basis of my philosophy. It's about as far as you can get from right wing status-quo conservatism."

Smith, a partner in Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher, one of the largest California law firms, also will be surrendering directorships in a number of large West Coast corporations to take over at the Justice Department.

Early this month, Smith reportedly was angered by press criticism of his attendance at a birthday party for Frank Sinatra, who has been identified as having connections to organized crime figures. The singer was once denied a gambling casino license in Nevada because of those reputed connections.

At the time of the Sinatra birthday party, Smith said he was "totally unaware" of allegations that the singer had mob connections.

While Reagan was the governor of California, Smith served as a chairman of the board of regents at the University of California where he voted for higher student tuition and was instrumental in blocking reappointment of Communist Angela Davis to the faculty.

Smith, a slight man with meticulously combed white hair, was born into a patrician family in Boston. One of his ancestors was aboard the Mayflower and another was president of Harvard.

Smith family members traditionally have attended Harvard as undergraduates, but William broke the mold by graduating from the University of California at Los Angeles. However, he returned to form by taking his law degree at Harvard.

Reagan names Brock as final Cabinet member

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan today named William E. Brock, Republican National Committee chairman, to be special trade representative, the 17th and final Cabinet-level position for the incoming administration.

Brock, 50, has been chairman of the GOP National Committee since 1977 and is widely credited for an effective grass-roots organizing effort that contributed to the Republican election victories in November.

Brock's appointment to the trade post had been expected for the past several weeks. It was unclear why the formal announcement was delayed until today.

Brock, who is generally considered a Republican moderate, had been criticized by some conservative Reagan supporters for his refusal two years ago to use Republican Party funds to fight the Panama Canal treaties when they were considered in the Senate.

Legislators show little interest in inauguration

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The predominantly Democratic Texas Senate seems to have little interest in the inauguration of Republican President-elect Ronald Reagan on Tuesday.

The Senate adjourned Wednesday until next Monday, rather than waiting until after the inauguration. Asked why the Senate did not wait until after the inaugural to return to work, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said, "Nobody wanted to go."

Donovan vote delayed by construction probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee is delaying its vote on Raymond L. Donovan's nomination as labor secretary, apparently so its investigators can continue looking into the dealings of Donovan's construction company.

"I have no details," one staff aide said late Wednesday after Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, the committee chairman, postponed the vote originally set for today.

The aide said no new date for a vote has been scheduled, and it was not clear whether the postponement indicated that Donovan's nomination has run into difficulty.

A second aide said the reason for the delay is that the committee's investigation into the 50-year-old New Jersey construction company executive is incomplete. "I don't know when the investigation will be complete," said the aide.

As recently as Monday, Donovan seemed assured committee approval. Hatch and other Republicans said they were satisfied after the Cabinet secretary-designate answered questions for several hours about two business transactions more than a decade apart.

Hatch said investigators would wrap up loose ends of their work, but said, "Even if you presume the worst, you have to be convinced he's one of the best businessmen in the nation."

Even aides to Democratic senators who were openly skeptical of Donovan's testimony conceded he would win confirmation barring an unexpected development.

Donovan was questioned about two incidents, including one in 1967 in which his firm, the Schiavone Construction Co. of Secaucus, N.J., sent a $13,000 check to a firm later identified as being a dummy corporation set up to funnel kickbacks to politicians and mobsters.

Donovan defended the check as a legitimate business payment for the rights to dump construction debris on a vacant lot and said he didn't know about the kickbacks until long afterward.

The second area involved a federal investigation in which Schiavone employees reportedly told federal prosecutors they placed a "ghost" worker for several months beginning late in 1977 in exchange for labor peace from a Teamsters union local in New York.

Donovan told the committee he knew nothing either of the investigation or of the alleged arrangement until Senate investigators informed him of it last week.

After checking into them, he said the "ghost" worker, the chauffeur of a Teamsters business agent, was placed on the payroll to fulfill an obligation in a labor contract.

He conceded that the man never showed up for work. "We have never been extorted. We have never paid a payoff," he said.

Bell confirmation expected for Education post in limbo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrel H. Bell, a career educator who once pushed for creation of the separate federal Education Department he has been nominated to head, is getting a chance to reconcile that position with President-elect Ronald Reagan's campaign pledge to abolish the Cabinet-level department.

Bell was undergoing questioning today during confirmation hearings before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee. The panel was expected to vote on the nomination afterward.

Since his nomination last week — he was the last of the Cabinet members to be appointed — Bell has said in interviews the Reagan administration hasn't made any final decision on whether to abolish the Education Department.

Asked if he agreed with Reagan's stated plans to abolish the Education Department, Bell replied: "I haven't taken a position on that. I've said we ought to look at what alternatives might be."

There have been reports Reagan is considering reducing the department from Cabinet rank and making it an independent agency similar to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration or the National Science Foundation.

The 50-year-old Bell, U.S. commissioner of education from 1974 to 1976 in the Nixon and Ford administrations, was expected to encounter little if any opposition on the committee. The panel is chaired by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, one of the people who pushed for Bell's nomination.

Bell, currently Utah commissioner of higher education, testified last year in favor of creating a separate education department. His associates say Bell's main motivation in doing that was to get education out of HEW as opposed to a strong desire for a separate Cabinet-level department.
