The Americans "suffered far more than they should have suffered," Cannon said. "For freedom-loving peoples everywhere this is a very happy day."

tal planes brought them to the Rhein-Main Air Base in Frankfurt and two buses ferried them 20 miles to the hospital at Wiesbaden.

The Hesse state radio said police received bomb threats against the buses shortly before the Americans left the airport. The police refused to confirm or deny the report, but the buses traveled with a large escort and there was no interruption in the trip.

Cyrus Vance, who was secretary of state when the hostages were taken on Nov. 4, 1979, and quit because he opposed the unsuccessful attempt to rescue them in April, headed the greeters at the Frankfurt airport and rode in the first bus to the hospital.

Two emotions sweep nation in short time

WASHINGTON (AP) - In one extraordinary hour, two emotions sweep America: a sense of renewal and an appreciation of freedom. It is a new beginning and a clean end to an ugly piece of business.

Ronald Reagan, 69, the oldest man ever to take the presidency, the first divorced man, the first professional actor in that office, succeeds a drawn and gray Jimmy Carter.

And it falls to Reagan to announce the news America wanted:

The hostages are free. The hostages are airborne. The hostages are on the way to Athens, Algiers, Frankfurt - and home.

For America, this sunlit Tuesday is a day of change and liberation. Carter goes home, a two-day stubble of whiskers on his chin. He dances cheek-to-cheek with his Rosalynn to the rhythm of a country band on the streets of Plains.

Reagan takes the 35-word oath of office, swearing to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution, and offers "this breed called Americans" a speech of hope

His inaugural address is vintage Reagan: "We have every right to dream heroic dreams," he says, and pledges: "It is not my intention to do away with government. It is rather to make it work - work with us, not over us; to stand by our side, not ride on our back.'

The celebration of freedom is born with the liberty flight, on their 444th day of captivity in Iran, of the hostages, 50 men and two women

Seized by a band of Moslem fanatics on Nov. 4, 1979, they had been prisoners in an undeclared war of wills that became Carter's obsess-

But, perhaps by deliberate calculation of the Iranians, their release is delayed until Carter had surrendered the presidency to Reagan.

So Reagan, dressed in a flashy cutaway, gets the chance to lift a glass of California wine at an inaugural luncheon in the Capitol and announce, "Some 30 minutes ago, the planes bearing our prisoners left Iranian air-space and they're now free of Iran."

He offers this toast: "To all of us together, doing what we all know we can do to make this country what it should be, what it can be, what it always has been."

Across America, church bells peal.

Some 400,000 people line Pennsylvania Avenue for the inaugural parade. Many of them hold transistor radios to their ears to keep up with the hostage drama.

Reagan's gleaming limousine proceeds down the avenue. Four years ago, Jimmy Carter and Rosalynn, holding hands, walked. Now the Carters ride to Andrews Air Force Base for their leavetaking.

At the airport, the ex-president encounters Anita Schaefer, wife of a hostage, Col. Thomas Shaefer.

Mrs. Shaefer: "I hope that some day you can meet my husband." Carter: "I'll be with him tomorrow in Germany and I'll tell him you love him

Later, he tells reporters: "I had to fight back the tears."

Three thousand people await the Carters at a military airport in Macon, carved from the red Georgia clay. Carter is weary, unshaven. But when he reaches Plains, townspeople and bathrobes, hopped over the railings separating each room's balcony, and joined the other four. They waved when they noticed photographers about 200 yards away. Elizabeth Ann Swift, who was a political officer at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and one of the two women in the group, also came out to enjoy the sparkling, crisp day and her new freedom.

Asked how much notice they received in Iran of their impending freedom, Cannon told reporters at a briefing that he thought "some individuals had little notice, as little as 15 to 20 minutes." Others, he said, had women checked into the hospital at dawn, after their dramatic release from Iranian captivity and a freedom flight to West Germany via Algeria.

Just after noon, some of the hostages appeared on the balconies of the hospital, bantering with hospital personnel in the bright sunlight. Orderlies tossed up a copy of the military newspaper Stars and Stripes to a group of four young men, who autographed the newspaper and threw it

Cannon said he knew of no former captive who was suffering immediate medical problems. He said the returnees were free to leave the hospital if they wish, but they were advised that previous returnees found an orientation period in seclusion valuable

Record bids, sales recorded at Midland County stock show

By ED TODD Staff Writer

"It went out with a bang," said Bud Lea, who was somewhat apprehensive about the livestock sale. "It was the best I've ever seen."

It was the best for many, but not for all. And Lea needn't fret over the sale.

Record bids and records sales were set Tuesday night at the 32nd annual Midland County Livestock Show in which 127 steers, swine and lambs were auctioned off for more than last year's bidding of $56,948.45 on 126 animals.

Top bid was about $3,700 for Kelly McVey's 1,340-pound exotic Angus-Chianina black steer, which a Midland accounting firm brought for $2.85 cents a pound under the prodding of Snyder auctioneer Tommy Marricle.

The top per-pound bidding was $11.45 cents for 4-H'er Angie Cas-beer's 100-pound Rambouillet lamb, which brought more than $1,000. Last year's top bid on a champion lamb was $726 at $6 a pound.

The high bid on Kim Parker's grand champion swine was about $2,-200 at $10.25 a pound.

Floor bids on the animals not included in the auction topped out at 63 cents a pound on calves, 44 cents a pound on lambs and 39 cents a pound on swine

"It's not very much," figured hog farmer Ken Pruitt, who helped work the sale. "No, you can't feed them for that."

But the $10.25 a pound that went for Kim Parker's Bluebutt hog was enough to afford a life of luxury for the pig.

"Trying to get over the shock of that," said an almost disbelieving 19vear-old Jeff McVey, whose girl friend Kim exhibited the 223-pound pig named "Arnold."

'Great for the first time (to exhibit a pig)," said Shelly McVey, 15. Her brother, she said, "put a lot of work in" helping Miss Parker take care of the swine.

"Oh, boy," beamed Shelly, "I can't believe the bids went that high.

Her father, Ted McVey, was whooping it up. The steer raised by daughter Kelly had won the grand championship Monday and then drew the record sale at the Midland auction

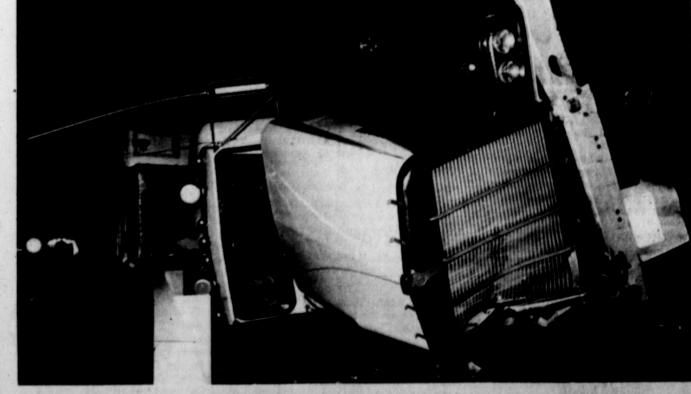

"It sure makes it hard to sleep at night, I'll guarantee it," he said. "We're so wound up," said Shelly.

"I hate to be partial," said McVey, "but those kids took care of their animals." "I think it's wonderful," said his wife, Reta.

Their daughter's prize steer, whom she named Bubba, was bred to win livestock shows and to draw top dollar, McVey figured. Terry Dalton, Kelly's vocational-agriculture teacher at Lee High School, helped the McVey daughter raise and groom the steer.

"He (Dalton) had so much confi-Midland Memorial Hospital Administrator Ray Branson told the Board of Governors Tuesday the heapital's number one priority is to find nurses and the hospital needs "15 RNs for the patient load we have now.

Branson said there is a nurse shortage at MMH, "just as there is nationally. We are in the situation now that we have beds that could be opened. patients who could be put in them and physicians who could get them there" but they do not have the nursing personnel to do so. As it is, Bransonsaid two departments have such serious nurse shortages they are in danger of closing: the critical care unit and the post critical care unit.

Branson said one reason the hospi tal has "recently lost several staff" members is because the city has attracted more physicians.

'New physicians need office help. We have lost some nurses, and always will have nurses who leave to work in physicians' offices," the administrator told the board. Of the 85 currently active members of the medical staff, 16 have come to Midland in the past year. The hospital is bringing in a new recruiter early in February and hopes to alleviate the problem quickly, he said Already, Branson noted, the hospital has implemented a cash incentive program for new RNs and LVNs in which the new nurse and the presently employed nurse who recommends the hospital will receive cash bonuses for their efforts. Since implementing it Dec. 25, Branson said five RNs have been hired which he believes would not have come to work there other wise The Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center won't have much effect on the nursing shortage, according to Assistant Administrator of Operations A.C. Buchanan. He said chemotherapy and surgical therapy to be offered at the center are being delayed until the implementation of the radiation therapy sometime in May. When that happens, he said, there would only have to be one nurse for a period of six to eight months, when the nursing staff would increase to two or three "You'll find that the Allison Center is going to attract personnel," Branson added.

Also on the administrator's list of priorities for the hospital. Branson added improved utilization of services and equipment; passing the Joint Commission Survey for hospital accreditation; increased employee morale; cultivation of the Women's Auxilary work; and increased cooperation among the medical staff, administrator and the boards, respectively

Board of trustees President Tevis Herd added some goals for the current year when he spoke to the governors.

'This year is more or less the end of an era with the ending of the construction and at the same time the beginning of a new era with a new administrator that we are all excited about.

Herd said he hopes the hospital would develop "new long-range plans and new additions to the hospital in many ways." In addition, he said the clock that the late Prime Minister hospital's boards would be re-evaluating the trustees roles and their Golda Meir gave to Suissa's town in committees and begin instructing the 1972. members so the body would "more clock to Sadat if Egypt and Israel adequately reflect the way the hospital is going. ever made peace.

Notes from inaugural

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nancy Reagan says the first time she heard her husband's inaugural address was when he delivered it Tuesday.

"I never heard the speech before," she said. "I just thought it was a wonderful speech.

Mrs. Reagan, who said she came close to tears during the inaugural ceremony, had a brief reply when reporters asked what kind of first lady she would be: "Myself."

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, who began Tuesday with a 20-minute service at St. John's Church on Lafayette Square, says that from now Inauguration Day

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - The Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility today for killing the first British soldier in Northern Ireland in 1981. Pvt. Christopher Shenton, 21, was slain and another soldier critically wounded Tuesday night when gunmen opened fire on them as they closed a security gate in Londonderry leading to the Catholic Bogside area.

A dozen high velocity shots were fired at the soldiers and the gunmen made their getaway in a car stolen earlier in the day from a Catholic area of the city, second largest in the province, police said. The getaway car was later found abandoned.

WASHINGTON - Under a warm winter sky, Ronald Reagan was sworn in as the 40th president of the United States Tuesday and immediately summoned the nation to an era of renewal, to a reawakening of its industrial might and a rejection of small dreams.

Right hand raised, left hand on the Bible of his mother, Nellie, the former governor of California repeated the oath of office in firm clear tones, voicing the 35-word pledge phrase by phrase after Chief Justice Warren Burger.

Then, after the United States Marine Band played ruffles and flourishes and a 21-gun salute boomed across the Capitol grounds, Mr. Reagan spoke for 15 minutes, warning of "an economic affliction of great proportions" that had descended upon the nation, that had piled deficit upon deficit and mortgaged the future.

He promised to act, to restore a vigorous economy, to curb healthy

They traversed a parade route lavishly decorated in red, white and blue bunting, where crowds began gathering shortly after daybreak in cloudy, but unusually warm January weather. The temperature pushed must act to preserve tomorrow. All must bear the burden, he said, and immediately declared too much government part of the problem.

'We are a nation that has a government - not the other way around. It is time to check and reverse the growth of government, ..." he stated emphatically. "It will be my intention to curb the size and influence of the federal establishment.

"It is not my intention to do away with government," he continued. "It is rather to make it work. ... If we look for the answer why for so many years we achieved so much ... it was because here in this land we unleashed the energy and individual genius of man.

We are too great a nation to limit ourselves to small dreams," Mr. Reagan said. "We are not ... doomed to an inevitable decline. ... So with all the creative energy at our command, let us begin an era of national renewal. Let us renew our determination, our courage and our strength. ... We have every right to dream heroic dreams. The new president contemplated the magnificent vista before him the long sweep down the Capitol Mall to the Washington Monument, which he said symbolized a man of humility who came to greatness reluctantly. "Off to one side, is the stately memorial to Thomas Jefferson," he said. "The Declaration of Independence flames with his eloquence. "And then beyond the reflecting pool, the dignified columns of the Lincoln Memorial. Whoever would understand in his heart the meaning of America will find it in the life of Abraham Lincoln.

the size of government, to unleash the energy and genius of the American people and make the United States the nation of heroes it truly is.

At the end, the hushed thousands crowding the west front of the Capitol stood and applauded. The president, his first lady by his side, waved and smiled, then retired into the Capitol for a luncheon and reception, then later a massive one-hour parade down the Avenue of Presidents -Pennsylvania Avenue - watching from a special stand in front of the White House.

Even as he spoke, one of the nation's most troublesome crises was ending. Wire services flashed word that Iran had freed the remaining 52 American hostages it seized Nov. 4. 1979, and they were now en route

He cited a number of everyday heroes, and then paraphrasing Winston Churchill, stated, "I did not take the oath I have just taken with the intention of presiding over the dissolution of the world's strongest economy.

The president pledged in the days ahead he would remove a number of roadblocks that have slowed the economy, would lighten the tax burden, would not compromise.

In calling for sacrifice he cited two heroes: Dr. Joseph Warren, killed on Bunker Hill in the Revolution, who had stated, "Our country is in danger, but not to be despaired of ... on you depend the fortunes of America ... act worthy of yourselves.

The other was Martin Trepton, who lost his life in World War I but left behind a diary saying "America must win this war. Therefore I will work, I will save, I will sacrifice, I will endure.

Mr. Reagan said the crisis facing the nation today does not require such a sacrifice but does "require our best effort, our work and our willingness to believe in ourselves.

"Together with God's help we can and will resolve the problems which confront us. Why shouldn't we believe that?" he asked. "After all - we are Americans.'

Italian train crash kills four

COSENZA, Italy (AP) - At least four people were killed and scores injured when an express train hit a pile of mud from a landslide and derailed before dawn today, police said

The accident occurred between two tunnels near the station of Cetraro, about 40 miles northwest of this Calabrian town.

The Rome to Reggio Calabria express train derailed and fell into a ravine. Another passenger train coming from the opposite direction sideswiped some of the derailed cars.

Reagan settling into White House today

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan partied past midnight in celebration of his presidency and the hostages' freedom, and then settled into the White House today with a renewed commitment to rebuild the economy and pare the size and cost of government

'We don't have a thing to worry about," a jubilant Reagan declared to a black-tie crowd of supporters packed into a hotel ballroom. "Between us we're going to straighten things out and we're going to take the high road.

After swearing in his White House staff today, Reagan planned to convene his first Cabinet meeting. His aides said he would issue a directive to begin searching for waste and abuse in the federal bureaucracy and also may suspend pending federal regulations so they could be reviewed.

Also being considered, but likely to come later, is an executive order abolishing the Council on Wage and Price Stability, the officials said.

The return of the 52 American hostages from Iran was still unfolding as Reagan set out Tuesday night for appearances at a formal dinner and nine inaugural balls. As aides told him the latest developments, he shared the news with partygoers, updating his announcements as the night wore on.

"I think you might like to have a little news bulletin," he said early in the evening. "I have just learned that the planes have landed in Algiers. Fifty-two - and I won't call them hostages, they're prisoners of war are well and hearty and preparing to board American planes

At his final appearance, he told the audience, "These POWs are only minutes away from landing in Wiesbaden. West Germany," where they will stay for the next few-days to readjust to freedom.

Reagan's announcements and characterization of the hostages as POWs drew cheers and whistles at each stop

Over a four-hour span, Reagan sped from party to party around town, never staying more than 10 or 15 minutes. Organizers estimated the total attendance at more than 45,000, and all the balls were packed. Reagan was decked out in white tie and tails, but his wife Nancy stole the fashion show. Mrs. Reagan, with her hair pulled back in a chignon, wore a white satin and lace sheath that sparkled with crystal and chalk beads.

"I think she looks gorgeous," Reagan said.

For Reagan it was, in his words, a "perfect day," particularly because of the hostages' release.

"I'm more pleased than anything I can say," he told reporters as he posed for pictures in the Oval Office during the afternoon. "It's been a very wonderful day. I guess now I can go back to California.

In his inaugural address after taking the oath as the nation's 40th president, Reagan trumpeted an "era of national renewal" and said Ameri-cans "have every right to dream heroic dreams.

He vowed anew to pursue his plan for tax cuts - 30 percent for individuals, spread out over three years and to try to rebuild the economy. "Progress will be slow, measured in inches and feet, not miles, but we will progress," he promised.

He pledged to reduce the federal government and as his first official act after the inauguration imposed a freeze on the hiring of most civilian federal employees.

Reagan played on the theme during his party tour. Noting the celebrations were being televised to almost 100 cities across the country, Reagan said the money raised at the community balls would be used for charities in those areas.

"That's kind of a good symbol that money staying at home and I hope the idea's going to catch on," he said

The new president's mood was soaring as he went from crowd to crowd, and at one party he poked fun at himself, at age 69 the oldest man ever inaugurated as president.

At the National Air and Space Museum, he pointed at the Wright Brothers plane and quipped: "No matter what they say, it isn't true I flew that. . .

WASHINGTON (AP) - Contrary to what many believe, Ronald Reagan didn't become the oldest president when he took the oath Tuesday. Dwight D. Eisenhower will hold that record for a few months longer

But Reagan will be the oldest man sworn into the office, being just 17 days shy of 70 years old on inauguration day. The previous record holder was William Henry Harrison, who took office when he was 68 years and 23 days old.

It will be of little comfort for Reagan to know that Harrison managed to live only 32 days after he was inaugurated.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE Needs important in marriage

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

Question: I am married for the second time. I am finding that my present wife is seeming more and more like my first - especially the qualities that irritate me. I just can't believe that this is all bad luck. Can you shed any light on this for me?

Answer: Some people who re-marry choose mates who are quite similar to their first ones. Often such similarities do not appear until the couple has been together for several months or maybe years.

Psychological needs play an important part in the choice of a marriage partner. When such needs are strong or have been unmet, a person often "chooses" an individual for marriage on the basis of whether or not the chosen one can satisfy these needs. This choice occurs outside of the person's awareness. Everyone has his "weak spots" and often two people will marry after each has determined if the other can help him overcome his own weaknesses. This determination also occurs outside of awareness.

Second spouses are thus often chosen from the same pool of individuals who are seen as capable of meeting these psychological needs.

For example, a person who wants to be "taken care of" will often marry someone who is "strong" and "dominant." Such a person will tend to favor strong, dominant people and virtually not see others who do not meet this psychological criterion.

It is only with time that the chosen person is discovered to have irritating features to his personality - virtually the same irritating features that all "strong" and "dominant" types are likely to have. This discovery comes as a surprise to all concerned because most of these factors operate outside of everyone's awareness.

This process of psychological assessment and choice of a partner takes place in all marriages and long-term commitments. It is when the unmet psychological needs are unreasonable or infantile that serious problems occur in relationships.

The choice of a marital partner is an incredibly complicated series of psychological and social events. Much remains to be learned about the intricacies of this process.

Question: How is someone to know when he should get professional help for a personal or family problem?

Answer: Professional help should be sought when a person's usual problem solving methods no longer bring the desired changes. Ideally, professional help is indicated at the first signs that a person's normal role functions (as spouse, parent or employee) are being adversely effected. Usually, others are the first to notice such effects, however,

Since therapeutic change requires changing patterns and sequences of behavior, professional help is most effective before maladaptive patterns become deeply entrenched.

Question: If counselors tell you what to do to solve your problems, why can't a person read a book or article on the subject and get the same results?

Answer: Very few personal problems are caused by a lack of insight or knowledge. Most are caused by repetitive patterns of maladaptive behavior. Such patterns often persist, even when the person knows better. Often the person feels helpless to change by himself. To alter these patterns often requires the outside assistance of a professional psychotherapist or counselor. The therapist does not simply give the client information, but helps the client alter his own unique maladaptive patterns.

language ruling

The high court on Monday let stand an appeals court decision which upheld the 1975 firing of Hector Garcia.

Garcia, a Mexican-American who spoke English and Spanish, was dismissed by Gloor Lumber and Supply Inc. of Brownsville, Tex., partly for speaking Spanish with another employee in violation of a company poli-

The company required salespeople to speak only English on the job except when dealing with Spanishspeaking customers.

The company said this policy was necessary to avoid offending customers who speak only English, to maintain the workers' fluency in English, and to enable English-speaking supervisers to monitor employee activi-

Garcia charged that the Englishonly rule discriminated against him by forbidding him the use of his native language.

On other issues Monday, the Supreme Court:

-Agreed to decide whether the Minnesota State Fair must allow members of the Krishna Consciousness sect to roam freely among visitors while selling literature and seek ing donations

-Agreed to determine whether free food and lodging provided by an employer for workers at remote locations are "wages" subject to Social Security and unemployment insurance taxes

-Rejected an appeal by Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Jan Schaffer against her six-month jail sentence for refusing to tell a court who gave her information on the FBI's "Abscam" investigations into congressional influence-peddling.

In the language case, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission had decided there was 'reasonable cause" to think Garcia was fired because of discrimination, in violation of federal law

But a federal district judge in Laredo, Texas, said the language policy was a valid business necessity. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed.

The district court said the language issue was only one of several reasons for Garcia's dismissal.

The appeals court said, "The language a person who is multi-lingual elects to speak at a particular time is by definition a matter of choice"

The lumber company's English-onthe-job rule conflicted with Garcia's preference for speaking Spanish, but that "does not convert it into discrimination based on national origin," the appeals court said.

In other cases, the Supreme Court:

-Let stand the dismissal of a discrimination complaint against a foreign government, the United Arab Emirates, which asked job applicants in this country to list their religion.

-Agreed to review police evidencegathering rights in two drug-arrest cases. In one case a man was arrested when police found cocaine in the pocket of a jacket in the back seat of his car; in the other, a defendant claimed that packages of marijuana found in his car were "personal luggage" which could not be searched without a warrant.

Emergency raise asked for state employees

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Feeling "a little time pressure," Sen. Lloyd Doggett has proposed an emergency pay raise for state employees that would cost $109 million over the next seven months.

Doggett's proposal - scheduled for a hearing today before the Senate Finance Committee - is twice as much as a proposed pay hike submitted by Gov. Bill Clements. It would become effective Feb. 1.

Doggett, D-Austin, indicated Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill offset the ravages of inflation" - to go into effect Feb. 1.

The Texas State Employees Union and University Employees Union said their members have experienced a 20-28 percent decline in real income since 1974.

The unions said more than 7,000 state employees have signed petitions supporting a $100 a month emergency pay raise from February through August, with $150 a month increases in September this year and September 1982

Also, they said, the state should pay overtime for work in excess of 40 hours a week and should pay all state

A Doggett aide said a 6.8 percent pay increase for the seven-month period beginning in February would

Increasing benefits for retired state employees by 6.8 percent would cost nearly $25 million through August, the aide said. Increasing teacher retirement benefits by 3.4 percent would employees' insurance.

cost $109 million.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said he and Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, want to repeal a 1979 law that allows utility companies to charge customers for water lines, sewer lines and other improvements by real estate developers that the customers have already paid for in buying their lots

Although the 1979 law affected more than 100 utility districts across the state, Gibson said he did not think "we've seen a case in Texas where it's been abused to the extent" it has been by Tarrant Utility.

Bumper stickers used for many purposes, have varied messages

By LINDA DUFFIELD Associated Press Writer

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — Some are amusing, some satirical, others brief. But it's a good bet that most of the messages plastered on the rear bumpers of just about anything with wheels have points to make.

The message, in the form of the bumper sticker, is a subtle type of advertising akin to the roadside billboard, said Robert Ames, who works for a Virginiabased advertising specialty company.

"Bumper stickers are a big item," said Ames, who operates mostly in western Maryland and portions of Pennsylvania and Virginia. "They are used for political purposes, they are used for causes, they are used by associations."

As an example, Ames pointed to a bumper sticker which suggests, "If your child can read this, thank your teacher," obviously aimed at giving a boost to those who toil in the classroom.

And, he noted, "In many cases bumper stickers are used as a fund-raising item," such as one sold by the Hagerstown Area Youth Soccer League. That sticker says to all and sundry: "For the fun of it, play ... soccer."

Politicians often turn to the bumper sticker to get their names before the public, said Ames. In that case, "It is a reminder type of advertising," different from "action type" advertising which appears in newspapers and on television and radio, he said.

Ames said the bumper sticker, and other advertising specialty materials, provide "more individualized material" than might be the case with some other forms of advertising.

Bumper stickers come in all sizes and colors, with the cost varying accordingly, said Ames. He said the size could range from a small of 3 3-4 inches by 7½ inches, to a large of 25 inches by 28 inches, "if somebody had a large enough bumper."

The number of words bumper sticker buyers choose to grace their particular items can vary, Ames said.

"You can put the Lord's Prayer on the head of a pin, or you can put one word on the head of a pin," he said. "You can put a lot of words on a bumper sticker and it is going to be hard to read because in many cases they are in motion." But he added, "I would say it's like the average stationary billboard. The optimum number of words is 15."

Ames suggested that bumper stickers could be used to get across almost any message anywhere. He recalled one Virginia resident who, on a recent trip to Europe, took along a batch of bumper stickers touting his home state.

"As a result," said Ames, "a good portion of Scotland is now able to know that Virginia is for lovers," the motto printed on the stickers.

But Ames described bumper stickers as only "the tip of the iceberg" in the specialty advertising market.

Businessmen, politicians and others with causes to espouse can have their messages imprinted on almost anything, from yardsticks and dip-stick cleaners to T-shirts, hats and key chains, he said.

The most popular items in his line, he said, are calendars and pens, which 'are basically given out because they are functional and useful items.'' In many cases, the price is right, too.

Some bumper stickers sell for as little as 6½ cents each in lots of 10,000, and a businessman or politician can pass out personalized pens at a cost of $85 for 500.

The United States supplied about 6 percent of the 76.5 million tons of coal sold on the world market in 1979, the task force said in a report Monday.

It forecast that would triple to 18 percent in 1985, increase to 25 percent in 1990 and hit the 38 percent figure by the year 2000.

Meanwhile, the report also forecast a rapid rise in total coal sales as more countries looked for an alternative to expensive and unreliable supplies of oil

The report estimated the world coal market excluding Communist and developing countries would increase to between 475 million and 565 million tons by 2000.

The problem of clogged port facilities which added an average of 40 days waiting time for ships seeking U.S. coal in 1980 should begin clearing up in mid-1983 and be totally alleviated by 1985, the task force said.

Approximately 23 million tons of new coal loading capacity annually is already being built at the nation's ports and there are plans for another 160 million tons, according to the report.

vate industry, the states and local governments," the report concluded. Their response now appears to be entirely adequate.

The report said the long delays in 1980 at such harbors as Baltimore and Hampton Roads, Va., were caused by strikes in two other principal coal expoting countries - Australia and Poland - which increased demand for U.S. coal beyond all previous forecasts.

The task force proposed deepening the principal coal loading harbors to 50 feet instead of spending $1.5 billion to deepen four harbors to 55 feet. There is support among various members-of Congress to deepen the ports of Baltimore, Hampton Roads, New Orleans, and Mobile, Ala., to 55 feet.

"The battles to be fought over port deepening will be some of the most heated of the next Congress and may preclude any port being deepened." said Bernhardt Wruble, executive director of the task force.

He said a good compromise would be to deepen the principal ports to 50 feet from the 40 to 42 feet currently, allowing them to handle much larger ships but not the largest 150,000-ton coal vessels. The question of port depth does not affect the loading capacity but it does make U.S. coal more competitive by reducing shipping costs by between $4

Damaged ship leaks gasoline

NEW YORK (AP) - Cleaning efforts were under way Tuesday after an estimated 500,000 to 1 million gallons of oil leaked from the damaged tanker Concho into Brooklyn's Gravesend Bay, a Coast Guard spokesman said

Cargo was being transferred to the barge Exxon Albany from the 621-foot Concho, which was intentionally grounded Monday after it suffered hull damage, said Chief Warrant Officer Michael O'Brien.

The spill occurred after walls between oil tanks buckled, said O'Brien, who added, "There is oil everywhere."

The Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Department will begin tests Wednesday to determine the extent of damage to the bay, he said.

Another area of investigation was whether the conversion of homes from oil heat to gas played a significant role in the shortage. Some legislators have called for a moratorium on conversions until gas supplies stabilize. Temperatures rose above freezing Monday in the Boston area for the first time in weeks, and forecasters said the thaw would continue.

Meanwhile, a tanker carrying emergency supplies of liquefied natural gas from Savannah, Ga., was due in Boston Harbor on Friday. Until the vessel arrived, state officials planned to "play the (crisis) by ear, day by day," said a spokesman for lay on orders of Gov. Edward J. King.

King asked that people keep thermostats in gas-heated homes no higher than 63. He also ordered businesses to keep their thermostats at 55 or below, but lacked power to enforce the order.

Boston Gas customers managed to keep consumption at 10 percent below normal during the early part of the weekend. But Larry Carpman, spokesman for the state energy agency, said the conservation figure dropped to 4.5 percent between 8 a.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday.

"We expected use would be up," he said, because of the "psychological effect" of the announcement Sunday that school would reopen.

Texas families celebrate release

By The Associated Press

Former hostages.

Those words were as sweet as champagne to the families of the three Texans who flew from Iranian captivity to freedom Tuesday.

And those families' joy reached across the state to become acts of celebration reaching from courthouse lawns to city skylines to the side of a dusty West Texas mountain.

As word spread that the captivity had ended for the 52 Americans held captive in Iran, Texas family members celebrated with tears, cheers and the popping of champagne corks.

'I'm just happy, happy - and it's not the champagne," said Dorothy Royer, who had poured champagne for friends in Houston upon learning that Mrs. Royer's son, hostage William B. Royer, had left Tehran.

"They are gone from Iran - yay!!" shouted John McKeel of Balch Springs, thrusting his fist into the air as he received the official word that his son, Marine Sgt. John McKeel Jr., had left Iran on an Algerian jetliner. "The celebration starts now!" In contrast, his wife, Wynona, reacted by saying,

"Thank God. I'm going to go cry now. The McKeels were told of their son's freedom by Undersecretary of State Mark Johnson, who called at 11:53 a.m. CST Tuesday. While still on the phone, McKeel turned to the dozens of reporters crowded around: "They have confirmed they are in the air. It's official. They are in the air.'

"I'm really excited now,' said Mrs. Royer, 79, who got her state department phone call at precisely the same time as the McKeels. "For the first time, I'm really excited. This is something I've waited for a long time.

This is the next to the happiest day in my life. The happiest will be when I see him again."

She said she had not decided what she would say to

I'm not going to say. I'm not going to ask him how he is because I already know. And I'm not going to tell him that I love him because he's known that for 49 years.

But in Hurst, the parents of Navy Lt. Cmdr. Robert Engelmann continued to decline interviews.

"I have no comment,' said A.R. Engelmann, who celebrated this 60th birthday Tuesday. "We've heard about it (the takeoff), but I'd rather not say anything.

Engelmann did say, however, that the family had a good time getting his son's car ready for his return.

Texans from El Paso to Houston shared in the families' euphoria.

In Dallas, County Judge Garry Weber ordered the U.S. flag raised to its full height, after it had flown at half-staff since the hostages' captivity began.

In Fort Worth, the Rev. Jimmy Allen - one o her son when that time came, "But I do know what eight preachers who went to Iran in December 1979 on a fact-finding mission - said, "I am grateful to God," he said. "It is the answer to our prayers."

Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, added, "More people in America have prayed over that (hostage situation) than anything since World War II."

Americans celebrate release by ringing bells, placing bets

By The Associated Press

The Empire State Building was lit in red, white and blue, bells that had been silent for years were rung in joy and strangers embraced on city streets as Americans celebrated the liberation of the 52 hostages from Iran.

Gamblers in six states played hunches and flooded state-run lotteries with bets on the number 444 because the hostages were freed on their 444th day of captivity. The gamblers lost.

In midtown Manhattan, office workers began throwing adding-machine confetti and toilet-paper streamers out of windows when the news spread that the hostages had been freed. Mayor Edward Koch said he would like to hold a real ticker-tape parade for the former hostages when they come back to the United States.

In Memphis, Tenn., church bells rang for half an hour, increasing in volume as word of the hostages' freedom spread from church to church.

"The reaction of the people downtown was kind of like the ending of World War II - people were embracing in the streets," said the Rev. Douglass Bailey of the Calvary Episcopal Church in Memphis In Washington, the lights on the national Christmas tree on the ellipse near the White House were turned on. The tree was dark during the holiday season as a reminder of the hostages' plight. The Statue of Liberty in New York harbor was lit Tuesday night for the first time since 1976. In San Francisco, Mayor Dianne Feinstein proclaimed Tuesday as Freedom Day after the city's Emergency Services Department let loose with its sirens in a tribute to the hostages. The Nebraska Legislature approved a resolution designating each

Jan. 20 as Freedom Day in the state.

Taghi Rezalan, an Iranian-American rug merchant in Mill Valley, Calif., said he was looking forward to an end of anti-Iranian feeling in the United States and said he planned to give each of the hostages a Persian or oriental rug worth $1,000.

A 300-pound newborn rhinoceros at the zoo in Knoxville, Tenn., was named Freedom to honor the release of the 52 Americans, zoo officials said.

At the University of Maine at Farmington, a bell that has been silent for 25 years rang out following the release. University Vice President Roger Spear spent five hours ringing the bell, located atop Merrill Hall, the oldest building on campus.

Some Americans expressed their joy at the release by tearing down yellow ribbons that had served as reminders of the captives. Others put new ribbons up in celebration.

Tattered yellow ribbons were clipped from oak. trees near City Hall in Baton Rouge, La., and at the high school in Westminster, S.C., students planned to hold a ribbon-burning party on Friday.

In Park Forest, Ill., schoolchildren went all around town taking down an estimated 2,000 yellow ribbons that had been tied to trees, bushes, utility poles and flagpoles "I had a good cry to relieve the tension when I heard the hostages finally had left Iran today and now I'm absolutely jubilant," said Marsha Kunkle, 29, who became known as the "Yellow Ribbon Lady" after coming up with the idea of decking that Chicago suburb with ribbons to honor the hostages.

In Philadelphia, the massive Bicentennial Bell, a gift from Great Britain in 1976, pealed for five minutes as the jetliner lifted the Americans out of Tehran.

In Tulsa, Okla., celebrating children tied yellow ribbons around 52 trees in Owen Park.

Algeria, too, could benefit

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) - The success of Algerian diplomats in negotiating the release of the 52 American hostages from Iran could gain their North African nation strong diplomatic and economic advantages with the United States

Algeria won independence from France on July 3, 1962, after a bloody eight-year war of independence and is considered in the West to be a doctrinaire, ultra-leftist state. But there has been steady moderation in Algerian foreign policy since President Houari Boumedienne, the iron-willed champion of Third World causes, died two years ago and Chadli Bendjedid succeeded him.

Despite the divergence of their political philosophies, the United States is Algeria's biggest trading partner. It buys Algerian oil, was a big customer for its natural gas until a price dispute suspended deliveries last April and sells it food and industrial equipment.

Relations between the two countries are described as "pragmatic." They will undoubtedly get closer and warmer as a result of the Algerians' invaluable assistance in securing the release of the captive Americans from Iran.

There will be more pressure now on the U.S. government and the El Paso Company of Houston to give ground in the negotiations over the price to be paid for Algeria's liquefied natural gas.

The U.S. government may be more inclined to listen to Algerian arguments on behalf of the havenot nations of the Third World.

Congress could also be influenced to take a new view of the five-year-old war for independence from Morocco being waged by the Algerian-backed guerrillas of the Polisario Front in the former Spanish Sahara. So far, the United States has firmly supported Morocco.

The Algerians were reluctant at first to get involved in the hostage crisis for fear of a backlash if their efforts failed. They finally agreed to act as intermediaries largely because of their sympathy with the Islamic revolution in Iran, according to one senior official. He said his government wanted the crisis ended so Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary aims could be pursued.

The Algerian diplomats who brought about the agreement are of the generation of young revolutionaries who fought for liberation from France. In their 40s and early 50s, they took over a nation in political and economic chaos after the French left.

Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia, who supervised the hostage negotiations, was a member of the team that negotiated the peace agreement with France. He celebrated his 49th birthday this month
