Talk reaches 'engaging' end

LONDON (AP) - Prince Charles, heir to the British throne and one of the world's most eligible bachelors, is engaged to 19-year-old Lady Diana Spencer and the couple will be married this summer, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The announcement ended months of speculation about romance between the dashing 32-year-old prince and the daughter of an earl distantly related to the royal family.

The palace disclosed that Prince Charles proposed and gave Lady Diana a sapphire and diamond engagement ring a few days before she left for Australia Feb. 6. He then told his parents at their Sanringham estate.

Britain's future queen is the girl next door. Lady Diana grew up on the Spencer family estate in Norfolk county next to the royal family's Bandringham residence

Prince Charles and Lady Diana were quoted by the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, as saying in an interview today that they cannot recall meeting before November 1977 when the prince went to the Spencer estate for a pheasant shoot.

Prince Charles was also quoted by Press Association as saying the wedding will probably be in late July.

The Times of London said today Prince Charles "once said that he thought 'about 30' was the right age for marriage. The Press Association reported the couple offered these responses when asked about their age differences:

manager and a stranger damager

Lady Diana: "I've never thought about the age gap."

Prince Charles: "Diana will certainly keep me young. You're only as old as you think you are.'

The palace announcement, issued through the Press Association, said: "It is with the greatest pleasure that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh announce the betrothal of their beloved son, the Prince of Wales, to the Lady Diana Spencer, daughter of the Earl Spencer and the Honorable Mrs. Shand Kydd."

After the wedding the woman who has been dubbed "Lady Di" by British newspapers, which have hounded her since she became Charles' girlfriend, will become Her Royal Highness, the Princess of Wales.

He said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, the leader of the Labor opposition, Michael Foot, and the Archbishop of Canterbury were among those notified of the engagement in the past few days. The Privy Council, the monarch's official advisers, will meet to approve the marriage formally

Coup attempt fails; Spain's legislators free

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) - A coup attempt by a Civil Guard officer who tried to resurrect the Franco-style dictatorship by seizing the Parliament in a burst of gunfire collapsed today 18 hours after it began. Freed government and Parliament members left the building shouting "Long Live Democracy." Most of the 200 submachine gun brandishing Civil Guard members vyho

The coup failed when King Juan Carlos - his government and Parlia ment held hostage - told the nation he had ordered the Spanish army to "resto re the constitutional order" and the army proved loyal.

Tejero Molina and his followers took over the Parliament Monday with Dursts of gunfire during a debate on confirming Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo as Spain's third prime minister since the Franco dictatorship ended in 1975. Madrid Radi o said Tejero Molina demanded that Parliament be replaced by a military junt.a.

Commissioners won't join Welch

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioner Charlie Welch took another stand Monday for his people's fight against the city and its hydrologists. Again, he was thwarted.

His stance on the city's alleged pollution of underground water and Midland Draw through its sanitary landfill and sewage treatment plant got no support from his fellow commissioners during a regular meeting in the County Courthouse.

Welch, who has been an outspoken critic of the city and a 30-year defender of the people's right to clean water. accused the city of violating its state permit by dumping effluent water into the draw. Eventually, he asserted, the contaminated water seeps into underground water channels.

"It is physically, absolutely, positively impossible for them to live under their permit," charged Welch.

The permit, issued by the Texas Department of Water Resources, does not allow the city to dump any of its primary treated effluent into the draw. That permit also allows the city to put its sewage waters through one treatment process instead of a virtually purifying secondary - and costly - treatment

Too, the permit allows the primary effluent to be used for agricultural purposes after it has been in aeration lagoons.

Welch, who says he has been campaigning for pure underground water since 1950, asked his fellow commissioners to take action against the city and request the city to thoroughly clean up its effluent before channeling it to aeration and holding ponds and allowing it to seep into the Midland Draw

County Judge Bill Ahders pointed out that Midland Draw wasn't on the agenda and no action, if any, could be taken. The judge suggested that Welch get the issue on the agenda for a later meeting.

But Welch's frustration was vented on hydrologist Joe Reed, who, along with his father Ed Reed, for years have been conducting water studies for the city.

Welch accused Reed of being in collusion with the city and in trying to "cover up" past errors. These errors, Welch claimed, have contributed to pollution of underground water, the rising water table, water seeping into landfills and into mass animal graves, and draining off and further polluting underground water.

Welch was critical of the Reed proposal for a joint Midland city-county $53,174 study of the water table in the vicinity of the landfill and the sewagetreatment plant in southeast Midland. The study by Ed L. Reed and Associ ates Inc. would incorporate a test sampling of both sub-surface and underground water, would evaluate seepage from the sewage lagoons and would measure the flow in Midland Draw

But Welch said the study would be an exercise in redundancy and would yield nothing new or revealing.

Reed, who maintained his composure throughout Welch's onslaught, said he needed more information to make intelligent decisions on water problems.

"Until we know the causes," Reed said, "we cannot at this time suggest any solutions.

Welch charged that the hydrologist has given "terrible advice" to the city, that the only real benefit of more Reed studies would be the fee drawn by Reed, and that another and impartial hydrologist apart from Midland should make studies of the rising water table, alleged landfill drain-off and sewage seepage into the underground water.

"I think the people in this county are entitled to a different opinion, Welch said

"You don't need any more more of this (Reed) study," Welch lashed out at Reed. "You'll just have more money.

Reed took a cautious approach to proposals that the water in Midland Draw be dammed up or used for irrigation directly from the draw.

"There's some question about whether or not it (Midland Draw) is public water," Reed said

Monahans Draw, in which the city of Odessa has the state's permission to dump secondary-treated effluent, has been deemed a navigable stream and is public water. "I think we're going to have to get some legal opinion," Reed said, "so we don't compound our liability." Midland City Council today was to review the Reed water table-sewage-landfill proposal at City Hall.

There were no gunshot injuries despite the firing of hundreds of rounds by the Civil Guard members in the assault on the building.

The ministers and deputies emerged one by one from their all-night orcleal in the Parliament building. As they stepped into the bright winter sunshines, they shouted to cheering crowd of several thousand, "Long Live Freedom!" "Long Live Democracy!

As caretaker Premier Adolfo Suarez left the building he was embraced by members of his family and the crowd.

Tejero Molina and a hard core of his guardsmen remained briefly inside the building, then gave up. One of the freed hostages quoted Tejero Molina & s telling the captives just before the ordeal ended: "You can leave quietly. Nothing will happen here. The only thing that will happen is that I will have to pay with 30 or 40 years in prison.

Authorities said Tejero Molina, who plotted a similar takeover more than two years ago but got only a seven month sentence, accepted full responsi bility for the latest coup attempt but insisted that all non-commissioned offi cers and enlisted men involved in the takeover be given a guarantee against r eprisals. The hostages were freed after military authorities announced th at Tejero Molina accepted conditions for a "face saving surrender."

Tejero Molina at first demanded he be allowed to surrender in the of fice of the late dictator Francisco Franco. He also insisted that no army officer s or press photographers be allowed to witness his surrender to fellow offic ers of the Guardia Civil, Spain's paramilitary federal police.

Dozens of Tejero Molina's followers jumped from ground-floor wir dows of the Parliament with their submachine guns strapped to their should ers after it became clear they had no chance of winning.

About 20 of the hostages - including women deputies and sick captives were freed early today, and the captors then began surrendering by the dozens Tejera Molina and his followers in the Guardia Civil seized the lower house and Spain's caretaker Cabinet, but the attempted coup seemed do omed shortly after it was launched.

King Juan Carlos, in a radio and TV broadcast to the nation, ordered the Spanish army to "take all necessary measures to restore the constitutional order

"The crown, symbol of the permanence and unity of the nation, cannot tolerate any kind of action or attitude of persons intending to disrupt the democratic process by force."

The 221,000-man army remained loyal to the king everywhere. /Armored units move into Madrid during the night in apparent readiness to join hundreds of riot police surrounding the Parliament, or Cortes.

Ten military police jeeps moved into the courtyard of the building. Shortly after dawn, four armored personnel carriers advanced on the building, followed by several busloads of national police. Madrid Radio said the operation was commanded by the director general of the Civil Guard, Lt. Gen. Aramburu Topete. Topete, Madrid's civil governor Mariano Nicolas and the army deputy chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Alfonso Armada, entered the building and talked briefly with Tejero Molina, trying to persuade him his position was hopeless and he should surrender.

U.S. 'very interested' in summit

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. declared late Monday that the United States is "very interested" in Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's call for a summit and renewed arms talks. Haig said Brezhnev had propounded "new and remarkable innovations.'

Haig's tenor differed markedly from remarks made earlier in the day by presidential press secretary James Brady, who declared that the Brezhnev invitation may be nothing more than "a good guy-bad guy" tactic aimed at raising hopes only with the intent of dashing them.

"It would not necessarily be out of character for this to be a ploy on the part of the Soviets" Brady said.

Haig commented as he and French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet emerged from a five-hour meeting. Both said they thought Brezhnev's proposals, aired in a speech to the 26th Communist Party Conference, held promise.

"It seemed at first hand that there was a willingness towards a dialogue. which is, I think, something that ought to be picked up," Francois-Poncet said.

Haig said "I think it's clear that we are very interested in what Mr. Brezhnev had to say. There were new and remarkable innovations in that speech.

Two key Republican leaders on Capitol Hill, meanwhile, said Reagan would be ill advised to agree to an early summit with Brezhnev. One called the Soviet leader's suggestion "doggone slf servig" and the other said such a meeting could prove "counterproductive."

Brady said that "Soviet watchers have seen a pattern of good guy-bad guy tactics go back and forth.' 'They've done this in the past," he said. Q: Are you saying they're trying to seem conciliatory, when they're not?

Brady: "I leave it to your interpretation.

Q: But you seem 'to be saying you have no reason to believe this is something other than that.

Brady: "That's right."

In Moscow, the Soviet government insisted it was serio us about the offer. Officials there indic ated hope it might break the cycle of suspicion and recrimination between the Kremlin and the Reagan admiristration.

But a Soviet diplomat cautioned that "there is a wisk in making any proposals or concessions to Washington now.'

"With the present mood there, anything we offer could be thrown back in our faces, and we would have nothing to show for our initiative," he said.

State Department spokesman William J. Dyess said the United States finds the summait proposal "interesting" buy will have no other official reaction until it studies the text of Brezhnev's remarks.

files for place on city council

Local businessman George A. Veloz, 33, filed Monday for Place 3 on the Midland City Council in the April 4 election.

Veloz, owner of several small businesses, decided to run for the slot "because I feel I can contribute because of my background and progressive ideas to meet the challenges of the 80s."

Veloz will oppose John Phipps for the seat held by Carroll Thomas. The incumbent said he has picked up the papers to file for re-election, but he hasn't completed them. March 4 is the deadline for filing.

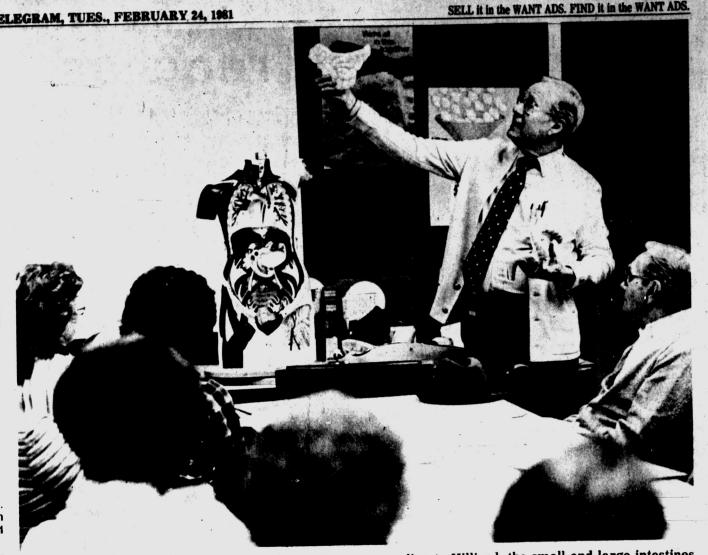

A member of the city Planning and Zoning Commission, Veloz said, "There's a big challenge in trying to meet the objectives that our city has," referring to the goals established during a community campaign last year to set goals for the city to reach during the 1980s.

He added that it would take the "coordination from the chamber, the private sector and the citizens so that these goals will be met. All our neighbors can contribute to meeting those objectives by creating an atmosphere of cooperation and cohesiveness.

An active community participant, Veloz said, "If the voters elect me as their city councilman, I would like to be thought of as a community leader, a good businessman and a citizen who has Midland and its future in mind." Veloz owns and manages seven

too, had cancer. Watkins said one of the most important things he learned from the experience was "if you catch it early, you're in better shape.'

And a Litton micromast oven was reported taken from a residence at 4288 Cardinal Lane sometime between 3 and 6 p.m., Feb. 21.

Sheriff's deputies were investigating numerous theft and burglary reports and an aggravated assault case, but details were not available by press time.

Grass and dumpster fires comprised the bulk of fire department activity during the past 24 hours, including a grease fire in the kitchen of a residence on County Road 55, east of County Road 1130, shortly before 5 p.m. Monday. A vent hood was destroved in that blaze.

The grass and trash fires occurred in the 1600 block of South McKenzie, the 1200 block of South Weatherford. along County Road 113, north of Highway 80, and in the 3600 block of Imperial Hiroshima has become a symbol of the threats toward which the whole of humanity is moving if it does not succeed in overcoming the terrible temptation to dominate others by means of all-out nuclear destruction.

'Here, where the memory and signs of the explosion of the first atomic bomb are living and obvious, the words of Christ cannot fail to take on a particular vividness: peace be with you," he said.

"These words must become a challenge. They must re-echo all the horror of the final warning. They must become an invocation, a categorical invocation to every possible coopera-

..Former Midland High School student Russell T. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. R.O. Smith, 808 Elk St., was awarded the doctor of higher education degree by the College of Wil-liam and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., in December, 1980.

Smith graduated from the Midland school in 1962 and received his BA and MA at The University of Texas at Austin.

He is now employed with Advance Technology in Virginia Beach, Va., as senior technical editor, writing primarily for a multi-discipline research firm engaged in military and other governmental consulting work. He has served in the United States Army, been a college professor, school board official and an executive director at a non-profit corporatin engage in jobtraining activities.

... IN THE Feb. 12 issue of "What's Cooking?" featuring low sodium Spaghetti With Meat Sauce, it was stated that for some people, salt (sodium chloride) was not a necessity, but a culprit.

It has been brought to our attention that sodium chloride is a necessity to every diet. We regret the error and any problems it may have caused...

... TRACY ANNE WILLIAMS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deen Williams of Midland, was entered on the dean's academic honor roll for the fall semester at Baylor University in Waco.

Tracy is also a member of the Alpha Lambda Delta honorary society...

...KIMBERLY ANN SEWELL has been elected Fiji Little Sister of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

She is a junior majoring in child development.

Kimberly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Sewell, 2612 N. Garfield. A 1978 graduate of Midland High School, she is also a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority...

motivated," says Maurita Robarge, professor of physical education at the University of Wisconsin, La Crosse. and fitn ess consultant to Scholl here. Ms. Hobarge says there are two kinds of motivation: internal and external. Those people who have internal control are motivated from within, and can often stick to an exercise routine from thick to thin.

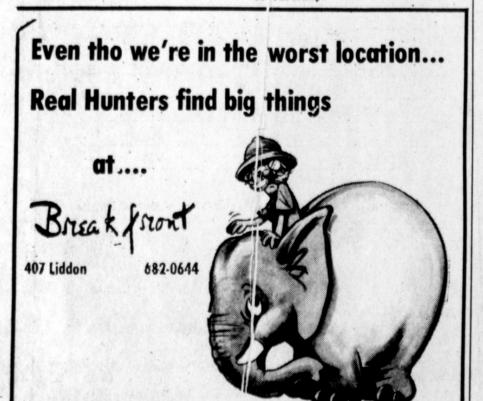

Externally motivated people depend on other people, situations and environment for direction. Without those external controls, they often lose the momentum to continue exercising.

"These are just different ap-proaches to life," says Ms. Robarge. 'One is no better than the other. But each requires a different type of exercise jolanning."

Externally motivated people often do better in an exercise class or other grou p, she explains. But an internally motivated person doesn't need the support and subtle pressure that a group provides for its members.

Realizing this difference is a big step, toward finding the right exercise met hod, she points out. Those who have tried it alone and failed, for instance, may want to try once more in a group situation.

"Recognizing a need for outside sup port can be critical, especially if you reach your exercise goals," advises Ms. Robarge. "At that point, many people simply stop exercising, and lose the benefits they've built up so carefully.

DEAR HELOISE: Did you ever price those beautiful shower curtains and go away empty-handed? Don't despair - get the same effect with a twin-size flat sheet.

The store-bought decorator curtains measure six feet by six feet, so all you need to do to the flat sheet is cut some of the length off.

To determine how much, place the existing hem either close to the floor or at the top of the rod, then hem the other end to get a six-foot finished length. Now, buy a plastic liner, either a transparent one or in a matching color. Lay the top of the liner over the top of the sheet and mark the eyelets to match, then make buttonholes for the curtain's hooks. When you hang up your curtain, the liner hangs on the inside of the tub and the sheet hangs on the outside.

SHINING CHROME Dear Heloise: Use silver polish for a long-lasting shine on chrome fixtures in the kitchen and bath. Great, too, on small toasters, etc. - Marion Johnson

You can even buy an extra sheet and make matching window curtains or other accessories, perhaps a decorative trim on guest towels.

With the money saved, buy one of those plastic curtain rod covers and matching hooks for a finishing touch. - Diane Lagow

Beautiful! To save even more of those hard-earned pennies, keep an eye out for sales on those decorator sheets. Sometimes the savings can be substantial and you can pick up some beauties in a really good quality.

I think you will love the results! - Heloise

TO KEEP WARMER

Dear Heloise: I bought a good winter coat, but it wasn't warm enough. One day, I read that a lot of body heat escapes through sleeve openings, so I made knit cuffs for the coat from a new pair of men's socks

They were the same color as the coat and did not show as I put them on the inside of the sleeve at the wrist. I can't believe how much warmer the coat feels. - M.E. Hair

FOR SMOOTH HANDS

Dear Heloise: When your hands feels like sandpaper, cup hand and pour in about one teaspoon table salt, then add enough baby oil to moisten.

Rub your hands together as you would when using soap, then rinse with warm water.

Radios changing appeal for adult listeners

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - Radio stations across the country are changing their format to appeal to adult listeners, says a broadcasting specialist at Syracuse University.

Americans can expect to hear more news, sports, big-band music and jazz programming as the average age in the United States increases, says Rick Wright Jr., assistant professor of telecommunications in the S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications.

"In the 1980s we can expect programming that will appeal to older people," Wright says. "The AM band is already beginning to fill with informational formats — all-news, talk, sports, even all-weather programs — to fill the older person's needs for different entertainment and education."

Wright says the FM band will be "loaded with music" aimed at audiences where the over-30 listener predominates. Radio stations on both AM and FM bands will be taking a closer look at audience lifestyles and preferences as they adjust their program format to capture more mature American listeners.

CLEANING HAIRBRUSH

Dear Heloise: To get your hairbrush clean, quickly and easily, just put your brush in a container, cover with water and add three to four teaspoons of baking

Let the brush soak for five minutes or so, swish it around and your brush will be squeaky clean. -Sandy Keller

Chrysler having hard time convincing its banking firms

By PATRICK BOYLE The Los Angeles Times

Chrysler Corp. may be enjoying increased success selling its cars, but executives have not been as lucky convincing all of the company's bankers to buy the latest package of $400 million in federal loan guarantees.

Banking and government sources say a snag has developed in reaching a final agreement on the loans that, if not resolved this week, could unravel months of negotiations and possibly result in the auto maker's demise. The Reagan administration is thus facing its first test of how long it will support a $1.5 billion aid program for the ailing company that is contrary to the administration's other economic policies.

When he took office, Reagan vowed to carry out the latest round of Chrysler loans approved in the Carter government's final days. Up to now, the new administration has been careful to point out that the Chrysler loans are not its responsibility.

"But the longer we stretch this out, it becomes more of President Reagan's problem, and less of the previous administration's," said one Department of the Treasury official.

A new element of uncertainty about Chrysler's future was introduced last week when General Motors Corp. announced that it will begin paying rebates of up to $700 to buyers of new cars in hopes of stimulating sales. Chrysler alone among the U.S. auto makers had been paying rebates to buyers in recent weeks and had been the only company to show continually improving sales. Chrysler sales were up 2 ercent in January over year-ago levels, while GM's sales were off 23 percent and the industry as a whole was down 20 percent.

However, payments of the rebates were causing Chrysler to lose money on every car it sold and the company had planned to discontinue them on March 1 in hopes of earning some profit out of its business. The GM announcement, quickly followed by a similar move by Ford Motor Co., prompted Chrysler to extend its rebate program — and again postpone its return to profitability.

The company later this week expects to report a loss for all of 1980 of nearly $1.8 billion, which would be a record for any American company Analyst believe that those losses will continue as long as the company is forced to stimulate sales by paying rebates, further clouding any hope that the new loan guarantees will be the last the company needs.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board had been scheduled to give final approval to the loans last Friday, but that was delayed a week after a dozen of the company's approximately 150 lenders refused to go the package in order to keep Chrysler from going out of business.

But a dozen of the banks balked at the deal and quietly worked out a separate arrangement with Chrysler providing for an immediate payment of part of the money the company had agreed to pay its lenders.

Under the original plan, the banks were to convert half of their $1.1 billion in debt to preferred stock and accept 30 cents on the dollar as full payment for the other half. Chrysler was to make the cash payments in quarterly installments beginning three months after first receiving the new loan funds.

However, the dissident banks demanded an immediate cash payment equivalent to 5 5-8 cents on the dollar of their debt, or just over $1 million, as partial payment of the first quarterly installment. After discussing the new provision with the loan board staff, Chrysler agreed, but the loan board last week turned down the deal.

"The Reagan people are very uncomfortable with this deal," one banking source said. "They want to make sure Carter's name stays on if it goes through and at the same time, if it doesn't, they want to make sure they don't get the blame."

Likewise, administration sources accuse Citibank and the other dissident banks of trying to shift reponsibility to the loan board if the deal collapses. high Treasury Department officials have already begun to pressure executives at the dissident banks to go along with the original deal, and Chrysler officials have stepped up their efforts to bring the last dozen banks into line before the Friday deadline.

Court accepts killer's insanity plea "controlled his thought patterns" and NEW YORK - The 38-year-old killer of former Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein, D-N.Y., was found innocent Monday by reason of insanity and will be sent to a state institution for treatment.

Newsday

At the end of a rain storm, and at the end of

President Reagan's meeting with governors, a

Acting State Supreme Court Justice Brenda Soloff found Dennis Sweeney "not responsible by reason of mental disease or defect." Her ruling, which under a new state law does not require a trial, was based on unanimous findings by psychiatrists for both the prosecution and de ense. They agreed that Sweeney is and was atthe time of the act -suffering from "severely debilitating mental disease."

The ruling comes less than a year after Sweeney walked into Lowenstein's Rockefeller Plaza offices, fatally wounded him with a pistol he had bought near his Connecticut home and then sat down to smoke a cigarette while office workers summoned police.

Sweeney's attorney, Jesse Zaslav, said Monda that Sweeney thinks that Lowenstein is still alive. He added that Sweeney believes Lowenstein was responsible for the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the plane crash death of New York Yankee catcher Thurman Munson.

Assistant District Attorney John Rieck agreed with Zaslav on the judge's ruling. The March 14 murder, said the prosecutor, was a "horrendous, brutal, anti-social act" but "our complete inability to prove criminal responsibility ... forecloses the possibility of a trial in this case."

Said Justice Soloff: "There is really is no other sensible disposition of this case.

Th3 slim, bearded defendant sat quietly during the proceedings, at times resting his head on his hand. He spoke haltingly and softly, saying that he understood the charge, the plea and the consequences.

J7stice Soloff said she will sign an order on March 23 turning weeney over to the state Mental Health Department. Under the law, if Sweeney someday is found to be cured, he could be freed and would not have to stand trial for the crime.

"I have no quarrel with the verdict," said Lowenstein's brother; Lawrence, Monday night. "We app4eciate Sweeney's mental state and know that no other motive could be established rainbow appeared over the White House late Mon-

"The tragedy that continues after the death of my brother is that you can still walk into a store - in some states, anyway - and buy a weapon without any serious question. This is a tragedy that can happen again and again.

Sweeney bought the we$pon, a 9mm. semi-automatic pistol, for $120 in a gun shop near his home. Sweeney, a native of Portland, Ore., met Lowenstein when Lowenstein was an administrator at Stanford University in Palo, Alto, Calif., in the early 1960s. A student, Sweeney joined Lowenstein in working on voter registration drives and other civil rights campaigns in the South.

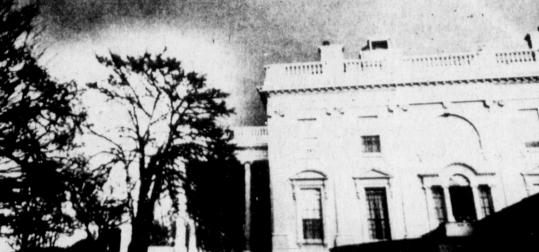

Sweeney, according to Portland, Ore. attorney Charles Hinkle, "was paranoid and thought that the FBI and the CIA were monitoring his tho7ghts and Al was responsible for their spying on him." Sweeney had lived in Connecticut for about six years, working as a carpenter and handyman.

years, the name Roger Baldwin has been synonymous with the concept of civil liberties.

Even now, while some might say that his kind of radicalism has been withered by the recent surge of the New Right, he continues to speak out for his beliefs.

"Listen, I'm 97 years old and I'm still optimistic enough to believe that fellows much younger than I are going to keep on fighting," says the man who, in 1920, founded the American Civil Liberties Union. "Even though I can't move, my heart is with them. You can't kill them off. It can't be done. This is a strong country with strong people. They're not going to be defeated by one election."

His movements are slow and painful as he opens the door to his house in the New Jersey woods, about 35 miles from New York City. He has just returned from a month in the hospital, where he was treated for double pneumonia. His voice is raspy and labored from a nagging case of emphysema, and he walks with the aid of a cane.

He is not happy about any of this. "I came out of the hospital with white hair, and I couldn't walk," he says, with obvious irritation. "You probably wouldn't believe that I had dark hair six months ago. Well, I did. I was your original brown-haired boy."

His face is a patchwork of lines, not surprising for a man of his years, but his mind is something else - untouched by time. To be thus trapped in a deteriorating body is a new kind of prison for Baldwin, who spent a year in jail as a youth for refusing to enter the military during World War

"I was a conscientious objector, and I still am," he said. "I would do it again. There is no such thing as a good war. Today, there are provisions for being a conscientious objector, but then, there was no alternative. It was jail or the Army. It was not an unpleasant prison. Prisons are pretty much the same. But you're very conscious of confinement.

He coughed and asked if one of his visitors might fetch him a glass of water. "Let me tell you, to be confined in a hospital or at home with an illness is also a sensation quite different from that of being free," he said. "I can't go out. I can't walk. Old age is unpleasant. But fortunately, I'm not confined in my interests. I'm a very adaptable person, and I have many resources in my head.'

Despite the drawbacks of old age, he says he would not choose to be young again. "I don't want to be any younger," he said. "I don't want to go back and retrace those years. I'm. content I've gotten this far without any accidents. I'm prepared to walk off the scene. I hope to leave pleasantly. If Icould just not wake up some morning, that would be fine. I'd like to have it that way. But I can't choose. I have no fear of death." He chuckled. "And it may come very

"I was twice honored ...," Cronkike writes. "Of course, it was an honor to receive the Medal of Freedom, but far more important than that was the fact that I was in the same class of medal recipients as yourself. Alongside your accomplishments, those of the rest of your fellow honorees pale in significance. There should be an even more special award for you."

Baldwin has remained much involved in the organization he created. despite his retirement in 1950 as its executive director. He chaired its national committee from 1950 to 1955 and still serves as its internationalaffairs adviser. "I'm still busy," he said. "There are so many things on my desk waiting to be done.

There has been no letup for Baldwin or for his organization, which has taken on numerous controversial issues during 61 years of litigation. Its first big case was the Scopes monkey trial in Tennessee, with Clarence Darrow arguing against William Jennings Bryan over the right to teach evolution in the public schools. Later came the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti, the two anarchists accused of murdering two factory workers in Massachusetts; the "Scottsboro boys" case, in which nine blacks were accused of raping two white women in the South in 1931: the censorship fights over the books "Lady Chatterley's Lover" and "Ulysses.

The ACLU fought for the organizing rights of the "Wobblies," the Socialist International Workers of the World, and for the right of Henry Ford to counsel his workers against unionization. It has also defended the rights of the Ku Klux Klan and the American Nazis to demonstrate. The Nazi defense cost the ACLU thousands of members several years ago.

"One of the advantages of the ACLU has been its alertness to get there first and see what's happening," Baldwin said. "The Civil Liberties Union became a significant organization very quickly after the first world war. We had the Scopes case, then a half-dozen other cases that brought us into the limelight very quickly. I didn't think we'd blossom into an agency that attracted as much attention as it did.

After his retirement from the ACLU in 1950, Baldwin became deeply involved in international work, both in the United States and abroad, traveling widely in behalf of the United Nations. "I went around the world and got involved in the politics of other countries for people struggling for moral freedom and liberty," he said. "It brought me into contact with people, like India's Gandhi. I never would have dreamed of meeting him otherwise. I grew up hearing of fa-

His life has been filled with such relationships. He has counted among friends people like socialist Norman Thomas and "the red queen of anarchy," Emma Goldman. "My friendship with Emma Goldman was an accident," he remembered. "She happened to come to St. Louis, where I was, as a public lecturer. I sponsored her. I felt that free speech was so important that she should be given a chance to talk. She left a great impression on me. She became a close friend, very close friend. We kept a correspondence for 30 years. We differed, but I was very fond of her."

Baldwin has a healthy respect for people, an untarnished faith that something redeeming can be found in almost everyone. "I don't have a feeling of hostility toward anyone," he said. "I have no enemies. There are a lot of people I don't like - their attitudes or what they have in their heads about the world - but, as people, I don't shun them.

That may help to explain why he was not disheartened by the results of the 1980 elections, which disclosed a conservative mood among the voters.

"Yes, of course, there's a danger there, but these cycles come and go,' he said. "Eventually, they go. This is a country, on the whole, that welcomes change. We've always throught we could do better if we changed leadership. We thought so with Mr. Carter and we thought so with Mr. Reagan. They got fooled with Mr. Carter. Maybe they got fooled again."

It does not upset Baldwin that his life is probably nearly over. "The fact of non-existence, of not being here, doesn't trouble me," he said, "and I don't believe in an afterlife, because there has been no evidence of one. I think it's very comforting to have those beliefs, things you can't prove and would like to see happen. But I take my comfort not in speculating about another world, but in trying to make this one rewarding for more people.

along with the package of concessions required by federal officials. Sources said the dissident banks, led by New York's Citibank, have asked for a change in the initial package that would provide them with an immediate repayment of a small portion of their outstanding loans as soon as Chrysler gets its $400 million in new loans.

The loan board vetoed the plan, and government and banking sources Friday both expressed an unwillingness to compromise their position on the issue. Either side could be bluffing and change its position at the last minute as the only means of keeping Chrysler afloat.

"I can't believe it will all come unraveled," said an official of a bank that has already approved the new Chrysler loan package. "I've got a feeling there's going to be a meeting of the minds."

Chrysler officials also expressed certainty Friday that the disagreement would be resolved in time for the loan board to act on the new loans at a meeting scheduled for this coming Friday

"I remain confident it's going to work out," said Gerald Greenwald, Chrysler's executive vice president for finance and the key company official in the negotiations with the banks and the government. "We're down to the last little piece of it. If all the parties moved foward this far, I can't imagine the process will now derail over some minor thing.'

For the last month, Greenwald and other Chrysler officials have worked frantically to convince the company's banks, suppliers and unions to approve a complex package of some $1 billion in concessions. On the last day the Carter administration was in office, the federal loan board required the wage reductions, interest concessions and price freezes as conditions of granting the new loan guarantees. No money returned Agence France-Presse

TEHRAN, Iran - The United States has not returned a "penny of Iranian assets" previously frozen in U.S. banks, the governor of the central Iranian bank, Ali Reza Nobari said in a press statement Tuesday.

"Not a penny will be transfered before Feb. 27, and we will receive our assets progressively," he add3d.

"In some aspects," the Reagan administration has not respected the Algiers agreement which unfroze Iranian assets and led to the release of the 52 American hostages. There are still "divergences between Iran and the United States," he added.

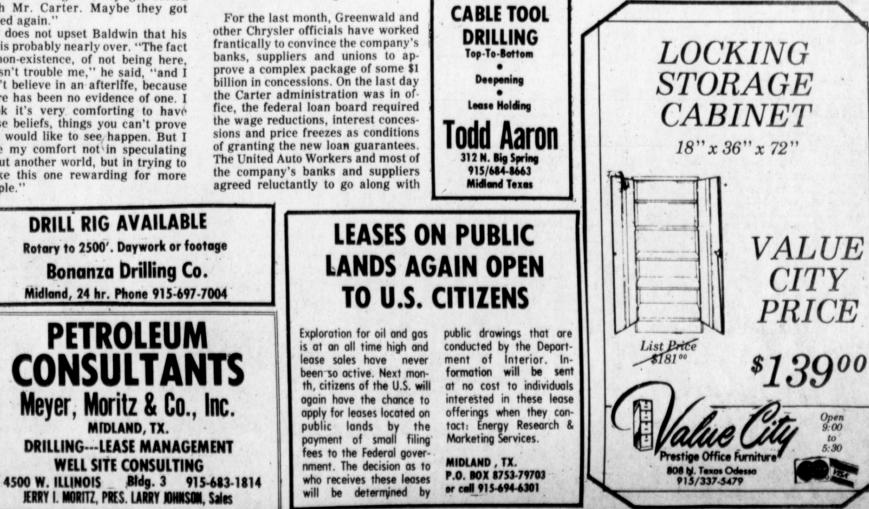

"It was understood that after the liberation of the hostages, the United States should unfreeze and return Iranian assets" held in banks in the U.S. and abroad, Nobari said. But the Reagan administration has not "made a single step in that direction" nor has it released weapons already paid for, he said.

"U.S. civil servants have simply said the money will be returned, but not the arms," Nobari added.

Ash said Monday that AM International's recover would begin to show up in earnings figures in the second half of this year.

One brother is found guilty, one acquitted in torture-robbery case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Defense lawyers today were plotting appeals of "the weirdest thing" they'd ever seen: a guilty verdict for one rancher but an acquittal for his brother in their third trial in the robbery-torture of three illegal Mexican aliens.

Patrick Hanigan, 27, was found guilty Monday by one federal jury, while Thomas Hanigan, 23, was acquitted by another panel on three counts each of robbery affecting commerce.

"The evidence was almost exactly the same," said defense lawyer Alex Gaynes, who represented the younger Hanigan. "It's just ... the weirdest thing I ever saw.

Meanwhile, the groups whose lobbying and research convinced government lawyers to seek federal charges under the Hobbs Act against the Hanigans called the verdicts "half-justice."

The case, nevertheless, underscored their contention that illegal aliens have certain rights, and that the Hobbs Act could be used to protect them, they said

"The Hobbs Act means the undocumented worker has a tool to fight back," said Urcinio Salaiz, a spokesman for the National Coalition on the Hanigan Case, which held courthouse vigils throughout the deliberations

The Justice Department had agreed to pursue the case if it could find an applicable statute, and Hispanic students at Antioch University's law school in Washington, D.C., suggested the Hobbs Act and four other possibilities after a year-long research project

But "half-justice is still no justice," argued Tony Bustamante, a Douglas native who launched the research project. "It's incomplete justice."

The Hanigans had been charged in connection with an Aug. 18, 1976, incident in which three Mexicans, who were crossing the Hanigan ranch in Douglas seeking work, claimed they were bound, stripped, robbed, tortured and shot at as they were forced to flee toward Mexico.

The brothers were acquitted of state charges in the incident, and their first federal trial ended in a hung jury.

This trial, unlike the earlier ones, featured separate juries and new evidence from Patrick Hanigan's ex-wife and a waitress.

One appeal, filed even before the juries reached their decisions, disputed U.S. District Judge Richard Bilby's determination that robbery affecting commerce includes robbery affecting the movement of undocumented laborers across the border.

Deliberations in second week in murder trial of Jean Harris

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - The jurors in Jean Harris' murder trial began their second week of deliberations today with no sign that they were nearing a verdict on whether the former headmistress killed Dr. Herman Tarnower deliberately or accidentally.

Mrs. Harris spent another day waiting with her brother and sister at an undisclosed location away from the courthouse, and for the second day in a row the eight women and four men sent no word Monday that a verdict was near.

At the close of the day, the jurors had deliberated a total of 40 hours and 36 minutes over seven days.

Defense lawyer Joel Aurnou spent Monday pacing in the 10th floor corridor outside the jury room and chainsmoking cigars while Assistant District Attorney George Bolen waited in his third-floor office.

"I don't want you to think this has affected my nerves," Aurnou said as he lit another stogie. "Somewhere in the bowels of this building there is a prosecutor who feels the same way, but not as much, because if he loses nobody goes anywhere."

Correction on hospital story

In Sunday's Reporter-Telegram, one of the nine members of Parkview Hospital's Community Advisory Board was deleted from a story on the creation of that board. Dr. Terry Tubb, a plastic surgeon and member of Parkview's medical staff, also is a member of that board.

against the 57-year-old former school headmistress carries a mandatory prison term of 15 years to life. In New York, charges of first-degree murder are applied only in cases involving slayings of law officers.

Three times since getting the case, the jury has asked Judge Russell R. Leggett for clarification of "intent." which is the basis of the murder charge.

Leggett said he assumed the jury was still considering the intentional murder charge against the defendant

Mrs. Harris, former headmistress of the Madeira School for girls in McLean, Va., was accused of killing the millionaire "Scarsdale Diet" developer, her lover of 14 years, at his Purchase, N.Y., estate March 10 in a jealous rage over Tarnower's affair with divorcee Lynne Tryforos, his 38-year-old office assistant.

During eight days of testifing in her own behalf, Mrs. Harris told the jury the 69-year-old Tarnower's affair with Mrs. Tryforos had no bearing on the events of March 10 and that he was shot accidentally while trying to prevent her from killing herself.
