

All Around The Town

By Mary Ann Sarchet

There are several events coming up in our family's life in the next few weeks, and some of them will require our presence elsewhere on weekdays.

We will be celebrating some milestones in our family, and we also will be taking care of some health problems that have been with us for quite a while. At this time we know we will be absent from the newspaper office May 24, May 30, May 31 and June 5.

We have a senior questionnaire that has not been returned to us. We have the recognition of the senior class of 2002 scheduled for May 23--the day before graduation--but if we don't receive the questionnaire back pretty soon, it will not be possible to include that senior.

A number of Silverton people and businesses donated water and food, and Silverton ministers delivered these things to the Red Cross for distribution to people in Happy.

A Silverton woman received a call this week from a man who said he was calling in regard to a new federally-mandated requirement that everyone must carry insurance on their credit cards. She told him that this isn't so, and he insisted that if your credit card falls into the hands of an unscrupulous person you could be responsible for thousands of dollars worth of unauthorized purchases.

When the conversation ended, she called her credit card company to inquire about this, and was told that if your credit card is lost or stolen, you are responsible only for the first $50.00 of unauthorized purchases, and that certainly you are not required to purchase insurance on the card.

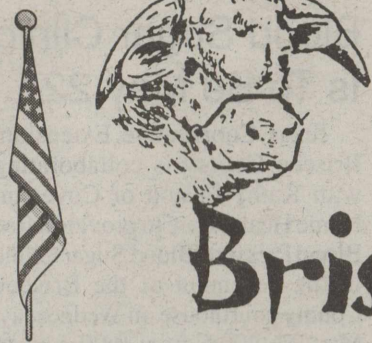

Obviously this was a scam being operated in this area. If you get a similar call, get rid of him and under no circumstances promise to send him money. In fact, don't give him any information about yourself or your credit card!

Senior Citizens To Have Luncheon

Silverton Senior Citizens will have their monthly luncheon and business meeting Friday at the Center.

Members of the Baptist Church will host the luncheon.

The Great Pink Flamingo Roundup Coming to Silverton

The Flamingo Cancer Crusaders are coming to Silverton. The fundraising project will begin Wednesday, May 15.

The fundraiser is for the American Cancer Society.

Someone will request the yard flamingos to be put in a friend's yard ($5.00). The person has to pay to have the flamingos removed ($5.00) and they can pay $3.00 to find out who put the flamingos in their yard. Flamingo insurance can be purchased for $10.00 to protect you from two referrals or $15.00 insurance never to receive the flamingos.

For all your Pink Flamingo needs, call Ruby, 823-2110; Patsy, 823-2482, or Tina, 823-2496.

Conclusion of the roundup will be June 3. Hurry--there's not much time.

Luminarias Now Being Sold For Relay For Life

The American Cancer Society's national signature event, Relay for Life, will take place at Valley School on June 7th beginning at 7:00 p.m. on Friday, June 7.

As a part of the event, luminarias are being sold in honor of someone who has had cancer or in memory of those who have lost their battle. A luminaria ceremony will begin at 9:00 p.m. on Friday, June 7, when all of the lights will be turned off and luminarias lit. The only light will be from the glow of the luminarias.

"This is our way of honoring the very reason for this event," stated Delene Tyler, Luminaria Chairman, "the people who have had to face this disease."

Anyone interested in memorializing or honoring a friend or loved one can call the American Cancer Society and purchase a luminaria for $5.00 at the event.

Funds raised from the sale of luminarias will benefit cancer research and the local programs of the American Cancer Society. For more information on Relay for Life or to purchase a luminaria, please contact Kyle Fuston, 806-823-2426 pr 923-2289.

Texas EMS Week Is May 19-25

Texas EMS Week is May 19-25 and Texas Trauma Awareness Month is May.

Silverton Volunteer Ambulance Service and the Texas Department of Health (TDH) remind you and your family that emergency response teams provide a lifesaving link between ill or injured individuals and medical care in Silverton and the surrounding area.

"Emergency medical response across Texas is provided every day by dedicated, trained professionals, working in ambulances and trauma centers stocked with lifesaving equipment," said Kathy Perkins, chief of TDH's Bureau of Emergency Management.

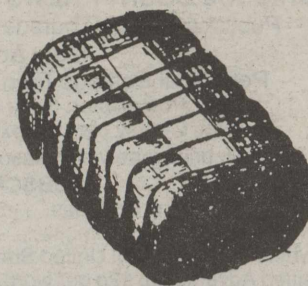

Ambulance staffs with at least two trained medics respond to calls for ill or injured people. The Texas Trauma System, made up of 188 trauma centers across Texas, coordinates in-hospital care so patients can receive the type of care they need as quickly as possible. This system is ready to spring into action, if needed, when someone calls 9-1-1.

"Nearly 45,000 trained and certified emergency personnel are part of Texas EMS," Perkins said. "They respond to people in need and give the best emergency medical care possible. These highly-trained medics treat patients from the emergency scene to the hospital and are an integral part of our emergency care system for victims of sudden and serious illness and injury."

Perkins said the Texas Trauma System begins with an informed public able to recognize a medical emergency and make the call for help, and includes a network of trauma centers that provide highly specialized care for the most seriously ill or injured.

To learn what you can do in a medical emergency before EMS arrives, order a copy of "When Minutes Count: A Citizen's Guide to Emergencies" by calling (512) 834-6700, or writing to: TDH, Bureau of Emergency Management, 1100 West 40th, Austin, TX 78756.

What a wonderful community in which we live. We have been overwhelmed with the outpouring of love and concern during our time of grief with the loss of my mother, Jane Holden.

Heartfelt thanks to each of you who attended the service; extended hugs and words of comfort; called; sent cards, flowers and memorials; and kept us uplifted in prayer. Your love and friendship mean so much to us especially during this difficult time. We are so fortunate to have friends and loved ones such as you. Thank you so very much for your kindness.

God bless you all.

Don't Be Afraid

As parents, it seems that we are always telling our children not to be afraid of one thing or another. Don't be afraid of the dark, of the thunder, or going to the doctor. We feel our children shouldn't be afraid of things that we're not afraid of. And usually, as long as the parent is present, the child may overcome some of their fear knowing that their mother or father is there to take care of any situation.

Although everyone probably has a fear of something, knowing that God our Father is always with us, should be a comfort to us whenever we become anxious or fearful. Telling ourselves or someone else to not be afraid is a nice statement, but one that is usually easier said than done. Building up a loving and trusting relationship with God is the best way to overcome our fears. The Bible tells us that God is love and there is no fear in love, and perfect love casts out fear.

...I will fear no evil: for thou art with me...

Cotton Market weekly

A Service Provided by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association

Some observers believe a "philosophical change" may have occurred in the cotton market on Friday in response to USDA's latest supply/demand report. The first U. S. projections for 2002-03 include sharply lower production, continued strong exports, higher domestic consumption, and lower ending stocks.

U. S. cotton production this coming season is projected at 17.8 million bales based on anticipated planted acres and the 10-year average of abandonment and yields. Domestic mill use is projected at 7.8 million bales, a 2.6 percent increase from the current season, reflecting anticipated growth in retail cotton consumption as economic conditions improve.

Exports are projected at 11.0 million bales, the same as the revised 2001-02 level, indicating stronger foreign demand and continued surplus domestic supplies will sustain a historically large U. S. share of world trade. Therefore, ending stocks in 2002-03 are likely to drop 1.0 million bales to 6.7 million, about 36 percent of total use.

"USDA's projections indicate the U. S. may conquer its oversupply situation in one year rather than two or three," one analyst said. "It reinforces the old adage--the best cure for low prices is low prices," he added.

World production and consumption for 2002-03 are projected at 91.0 and 95.5 million bales, respectively. Thus, world stocks could drop almost 10 percent to 40.6 million bales. Production is projected to fall seven percent as the current season's historically low prices should significantly reduce planted area.

For 2001-02, estimated U. S. ending stocks are lower than a month ago, reflecting higher forecasts of both mill use and exports which are based on activity to date. The world 2001-02 estimates show larger supplies relative to last month, but they are partially offset by higher consumption. However, ending stocks are expected to increase nearly 400,000 bales. Historical revisions in the estimates for Brazil account for a one-percent increase in world beginning stocks and about half of the increase in world production. Production increases also are expected in Australia and Pakistan.

"There's nothing in this report that's unrealistic," said one market analyst. "It shows demand is going to stay with us through next season and it's going to be strong, and domestic use is going to increase not only in the old crop, but also in the new crop. There's no doubt these are friendly figures."

At the New York Cotton Exchange, cotton futures settled with mild gains Thursday for the second consecutive session boosted by solid weekly export figures from USDA.

Contrary to most expectations, 2001-02 crop export registrations in the week ended May 2 rose to the highest level since the period ended February 21. Sales, however, were offset somewhat by sizeable cancellations from Mexico and Pakistan of 35,200 and 15,400 bales, respectively. USDA reported net export sales of 2001-02 U. S. cotton totaled 181,300 bales, four percent more than the previous week and 55 percent higher than the four-week average. Major buyers included Mexico, Turkey and Taiwan. Exports also increased as merchants expedited shipping orders in the face of a dwindling Step 2 payment rate.

Meanwhile, sales were lower on the spot cotton scene. Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas producers sold just 1,015 bales of cotton online in the week ended May 9. The week's total was considerably lower than the previous week's sales of 4,427 bales. Prices received by growers selling their cotton online ranged from 25.04 to 34.18 cents per pound compared to a range of 25.14 to 32.38 cents per pound the prior week.

One step at a time, that's how the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 (FSRI) has slowly gotten within sight of the President's desk and a final signature to make it law.

The process has at times been unbearably painful. The two-day Senate debate on the FSRI Conference Report brought much of that pain back into focus as opponents of the Bill stood one after another to rail against the legislation without offering a truly substantive alternative to solving agriculture's problems.

Unfortunately, most of these opponents of the Bill decided to base their arguments on a repetitive set of "facts" that were presented out of context in either a deliberate effort to muddy the debate or through an equally irresponsible lack of investigation.

Despite these last-ditch efforts by organizations like the Environmental Working Group and others, the measure passed the Senate on a strong 65-34 vote.

Now the focus shifts to the White House and President George W. Bush's pledge to sign the law once it gets to his desk.

Current information has the signing ceremony set for Monday, May 13.

The President's signature will fully set in motion the already shifting tide of implementation. United States Department of Agriculture officials have been working proactively to develop implementation procedures for those provisions that have long appeared to be destined for final inclusion in the Bill.

State and County Farm Service Agency offices are already gathering the available files to determine what additional information, if any, will be needed to help producers make decisions on updating bases and payment yields.

One feature of the Bill will require the dusting off and updating of rules governing delivery of direct and counter-cyclical program payments.

Work is also underway to utilize the additional funding allotted for conservation programs like the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) in the Bill.

Two new provisions that will not see implementation until 2003 are the Conservation Security Program and the Adjusted Gross Income Payment eligibility cap.

One new set of statistics, that growers should get used to keeping up with is the Average Price Received by Growers for program crops. Published monthly, the Average Price Received by Growers will provide the monthly marketings and average price received for each program commodity.

The resulting 12-month (marketing year) weighted average price will then be used to determine the availability of counter-cyclical payments under the Bill. These numbers will also be used in the calculation of the final CC payment rate.

For cotton the marketing year will begin August 1 of the year the crop is harvested and end July 31 of the following year.

For the 2002 crop the Counter-cyclical payment rate will be determined using the August 1, 2002 through July 31, 2003 marketing year.

Groundwater Contamination

Some groundwater is being contaminated by a colorless, toxic liquid called Trichloroethylene. TCE is widely used as a solvent for dry cleaning and degreasing. Unfortunately this compound has been known to seep into groundwater and make it dangerous for consumption.

USDA scientists have discovered that vegetable oil can be used to clean up groundwater contaminated with TCS. Soybean oil is also recommended because it is inexpensive. Vegetable oil has also shown to clean up groundwater that is contaminated with nitrogen fertilizer and herbicide chlorate. The best way to get the oil into the water is by injecting it into the ground. The oil, used in low concentrations, simulates naturally present microorganisms to grow. The TCE is degraded by these microorganisms as contaminated groundwater flows through the aquifer.

WEED RESEMBLING WILDFLOWER IS THREAT TO AG PRODUCTION

This spring wildflowers growing along Texas' roadways will be enjoyed by many, but looks can be deceiving. Nestled among these spring flowers is a blue-flowered form of branched broomrape. That is a parasitic weed that looks much like a wildflower, but is a threat to agricultural production if not properly contained.

Heart Attack Signs Different For Women Than Men

Cory Edwards, Briscoe County Extension Agent-FCS

Heart disease kills ten times as many women every year as breast cancer. Despite this fact, many women continue to think of heart disease as a condition of men and know little about the warning signs of a heart attack.

Studies conclude that after the age of 55, women and men are at equal risk for a heart attack. But 38 percent of women who have heart attacks die within a year, compared with 25 percent of men. Part of the reason for this is that many women are not diagnosed or treated for a cardiovascular disease before their attack.

"It's been under the radar as an issue in women's health", said Dr. Nieca Goldberg, author of "Women are not Small Men," a book on women's heart disease prevention. "Heart disease is a woman's greatest health threat."

Women suffering heart attacks often do not experience the same symptoms as men, such as chest pressure, pain shooting down the left arm, sweating, fainting and lightheadedness. Instead, women's signs include unusual fatigue; unusual shortness of breath; nausea; dizziness; lower chest discomfort; back pain; pain spreading to shoulders, arm, neck and jaw; and indigestion or gas-like pain.

crop productivity. The branched broomrape stands four to twelve inches tall. It is best recognized by its yellow straw-colored stems and blue snapdragon-like flowers. Major spreading of broomrape has been done by highway mowers.

Department of Transportation officials are currently experimenting with different chemical applications on roadways in an attempt to contain branched broomrape.

DO YOU REALLY KNOW WHAT YOU ARE FEEDING YOUR HORSE?

Top quality roughage is vital in equine nutrition. Quality roughage assists in maintaining a healthy digestive system; however, maturity is the main contributing factor in the nutritional value of hay. Characteristics of good quality roughage include a high leaf-to-stem ratio, cleanliness, and a fresh smell and appearance. Bales that are bright green in color are normally full of vitamins and carotene.

Moldy hay should never be fed.

In addition, check the bales for dirt, dust, or trash. This may indicate careless harvesting and may be harmful to the horse. The harvest season also affects the quality.

Horseowners may also mix grass hays with legumes to provide a tasty meal for their horses that is safe, palatable, and moderate in nutrient content.

It is believed that David Atchison was President of the United States for one day. James Polk vacated the office on March 4, 1849, but Zachary Taylor--who refused to be sworn in on a Sunday--was not inaugurated until March 5. Atchison, the president pro tempore of the Senate, filled in.

In the United States, an estimated five to seven million children age six and older are affected by bed-wetting, also known as primary nocturnal enuresis. According to The National Bladder Foundation, numerous treatments may

- Simple steps for kids' smiles:
1. Start cleaning teeth early. As soon as the first tooth appears, begin by wiping with a clean, damp cloth every day. When more teeth come in, switch to a small, soft toothbrush. Begin using toothpaste with fluoride when the child is two years old. Use toothpaste with fluoride earlier if your child's doctor or dentist recommends it.

ride toothpaste. Fluoride is important for fighting cavities. If children younger than six years old swallow too much fluoride, however, their permanent teeth may have white spots. To keep this from happening, use only a small amount of toothpaste (about the size of a pea). Teach your child to spit out the toothpaste and rinse well after brushing.

3. Supervise brushing. Brush your child's teeth twice a day until your child has the skill to handle the toothbrush alone. Then continue to closely watch brushing to make sure the child is doing a thorough job and using only a small amount of toothpaste.

4. Talk to your child's doctor or dentist. Check with the doctor or dentist about your child's specific fluoride needs. After age two, most children get the right amount of fluoride to help prevent cavities if they drink water that contains fluoride and brush their teeth with a pea-sized amount of fluoride toothpaste twice a day.

Parents of children older than six months should ask about the need for a fluoride supplement if drinking water does not have enough fluoride.

Do not let a child younger than six years old use a fluoride mouth rinse unless the doctor or dentist recommends it.
