'Special Conditioned' Cotton Explained By A. D. Peebles Of Munday

Insufficient samples were classed during the week ending Dec. 7 to give a summary on grades and staples according to A. D. Peebles in charge of the U.S.D.A. Cotton Classing office in Munday.

Market activity was about normal with middling light spot 15/16 averaging 30.54, middling light spot 31 32, 30.84; strict low middling light spot 15/16, 29.33; strict low middling light spot, 31/32, 29.84.

Farmers lose money each year as a result of "special conditioned" bales of cotton. Most of these special condition bales that create problems in classing and marketing can either be avoided or corrected.

As the name implies, a "special condition" bale is different from an ordinary bale and requires special attention. They may be repacked, false packed, water-packed, small "plates" and numerous conditions. In most cases, it is necessary to correct these conditions before the farmer can market his cotton advantageously.

Repacked cotton is common throughout the harvest season. "Repacks" are a result of combining two or more remnants or small bales regardless of whether they belong to the same farmer or whether they may be of the same quality. In other words, anytime that a bale is put back into the gin press and more cotton is added, the resulting bale is considered to be repacked and must be identified as such. These bales are not eligible to be put back into the CCC Loan Program.

Water-packed and False Packed bales are not too common as they can usually be prevented. Water packed bales are damaged by water, usually caused by being exposed to the weather or standing in water while in storage.

False-packed bales are bales that have the appearance of normal bales on the outside but the interior is made up of lower quality cotton, inferior cotton, linters, or even substances entirely foreign to cotton.

Small plates of inferior cotton on one side of the bale are very common. These "plates" may be caused in many ways. One of the most common causes is turning the gin press too quickly between trailers of cotton.

When samples from special condition bales are sent to the USDA's cotton classing office the Class Cards that are then returned to the farmer will indicate that such a condition exists.

These bales may then be corrected by the ginner or warehouseman by removing the inferior portion of the bale.

Such bales are then eligible for a review classification. The form requesting that the bale be reclassified must indicate that the bale has been "reworked" and exactly what was done to the bale.

Any operation short of the addition of cotton is called "reworked." Where the sample from a reworked bale is reviewed the class card will carry the notation "reworked to remove plate."

The bale is then a normal bale and can be sold or placed in the CCC Loan program.

Not all bales can be "reworked." They may be damaged beyond repair. Usually this can only be determined after the bale is opened and inspected.

MRS. O. L. JAMISON SPEAKS TO LIONS ON EUROPEAN TOUR

Knox City's Lions Club held their regular weekly meeting at the Methodist Fellowship Hall and had as guest speaker Mrs. Orlan Jamison of Knox City.

Lion President Bill Sams began the meeting by announcing that next Wednesday Lions members would be required to bring toys for the children and he also announced that Christmas tree sales were good. He also asked members to go by and get their Christmas trees at the lot adjacent to Lynn Electric Motor Co., and Graham Electric.

Another announcement was that John Robin is home and welcomes company.

Otto Lawson and George Houston were program chairmen for this week and Lawson introduced Mrs. Jamison to the club.

Mrs. Jamison based her talk on her recent trip to Europe and told the club of her impression of the 13 countries she visited abroad.

"Having been processed and shuffled around so many times in so many countries, I have a deep sympathy now for the Bracero," Mrs. Jamison said.

Mrs. Jamison said she had been asked so many questions concerning her trip and before she had made the trip she could remember the things most interesting to her that she had made a list of the things most asked and her opinion of them.

As for the most beautiful country, she said Norway was her first choice, and listed why she selected it.

The most historical country was England for that is where our history began, she said.

The country with the most to see in sculpture, arts, ruins and operas was Italy.

As for the country she preferred to live in she said Denmark was her pick for it was such a happy picturesque place, with many cathedrals and other sights of beauty.

Mrs. Jamison said she was disappointed in Versailles, France for it wasn't what she had expected it to be, but a boat trip on the Rhine River was exactly as the picture post cards depict ed.

The most delightful spot on her trip was Venice, she said and the most modern edifice was seen in Stockholm, Sweden.

Seven weeks and one day out of New York Mrs. Jamison returned to the United States. It was only a 15 hour trip, she said from London to Amarillo.

We've all heard numerous stories and yarns spun by fishermen and about fishermen, but very seldom do we hear much concerning hunters, and we feel this injustice should be remedied.

Mrs. C. C. Hutchinson was telling us that her son was extremely proud of his new-born son and on a recent visit to his parents home in Knox City, Wayne was visiting with various people who came in his folks business establishment. When he told one newcomer that there was a fine addition to his family, Mrs. Hutchinson was fixing to start beaming when she anticipated that he would mention his son, but no—Wayne said he had a new hunting dog!

I have never hunted with a dog and have been looking forward to Jeff Graham taking me out with his dogs for a hunt, but so far he hasn't invited me.

Anyway, I have decided a dog wouldn't help me, for I've found out you still have to shoot the birds—the dogs just find them for you!

Next week we will publish our "Merry Christmas" paper and the next week—Dec. 31 to Jan. 1 we will be closed. You will receive your paper though, as usual, on Thursday.

Getting a Christmas edition on the counter Dec. 20 doesn't make much sense, but neither does it make much sense Thursday, Dec. 27!

Folks haven't seemed to be in a festive mood this year, as in years past. For one thing, time moves faster nowadays than it used to! Last Thursday my wife celebrated her 20th wedding anniversary. She almost started a universal scandal when she married me at the age of three!

C of C Manager Tom Van Winkle said Santa Claus would be in Knox City every day—starting Friday—until Christmas. Santa will tour the business district each afternoon, helping the small fry and their parents decide on Christmas gifts and giving away candy.

At this writing we've received several letters to Santa, but we haven't read enough to tell yet what the youngsters will want most this year. Each year the fad changes, sometimes considerably, and it is a marvel to us how Santa and his helpers can start building toys dolls, etc. in January and practically a year later discover what the kids will want. Merchants are at a loss too sometimes, for they have to figure what to stock for Xmas in June and sometimes they have it and sometimes they don't!

Right now, we're glad we just write what they want and not have to buy it.

Our old sparring partner Geo. Houston is probably through flying his duster plane for this year as we've finally received a fair frost. George said he needed to defoliate some cotton last Saturday but for one thing he was out of defoliants and number two he hadn't have a plane. They have been hanged for the winter.

We know several farmers who haven't been able to kill cotton this year and some say it is starting out with a new bunch of buds, etc. Maybe the boll weevils got short changed some place and need some more cotton or else instead of defoliant being sprayed on the cotton George may have invented some chemical that keeps cotton from getting frost bite.

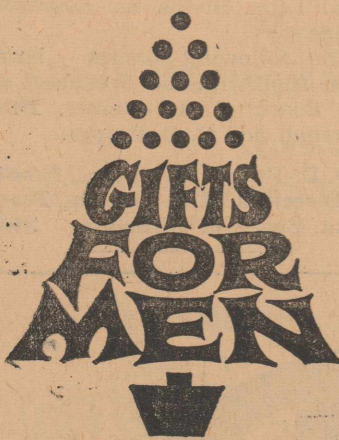

The sage who wrote that farming used to be a knack and now is a science couldn't be more correct.

DON'T FORGET KIDDIES

—Santa will be on hand Friday evening and each afternoon until Christmas.

ITS RELIABILITY COMES FROM ITS QUALITY

A nutshell description of Chevrolet trucks could be "Trucks That Work". It's not exactly earthshaking but it says a mouthful. It's what Chevrolet trucks are best known for—their reliability. Ready to work, day after day, whenever you are.

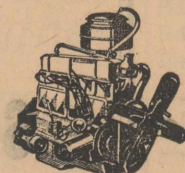

You can't build trucks that perform like this if you don't put quality into engine, chassis and body. Chevrolet does: double-wall construction, insulated cab, select-wood body floor, chain-supported tailgate, ladder-type frame, the careful attention to upholstery and finish. It's this kind of quality that makes any Chevrolet truck—from pickup to heavyweight tandem—worth more on the average at trade-in!

"They that sow in tears shall reap in joy." (Ps. 126:5-6). All are reaping the harvest of what has been sown, whether physical or spiritual. Some in great joy for they have sown in tears; some in abundance for they have sown in righteousness abundantly giving to the poor, helping to get God's word to the lost. But some are reaping in great sorrow for they have sown to the wind and are reaping the whirlwind.

Some have sown to the flesh and are reaping in corruption. All evil sowing reaps the same. When forwardness is in the heart he divideth mischief continually and soweth discord.

A forward man soweth strife and whistpers separateth chief friends.

He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity and the rod of his anger shall fall.

Sow the truth of God's Word and reap righteousness and eternal life.
