Grain Sorghum Producer May Reap Benefits

Area grain sorghum producers may reap some benefits from stronger market prices because of two important sales made last week by USDA. The first was to Israel for 4.4 million bushels, and the other to India for 12 million bushels. These sales show signs that the Nixon Administration is reinstating grain sorghum to the PL480 program.

Prior to Secretary of Agriculture Freeman's policy of omitting grain sorghum from PL480 allocations after April 1968, India had been buying up to 86 million bushels per year. The loss of this market last year had hurt the U. S. export of grain sorghum and thus weakened the prices received by farmers.

The grain sorghum producers association has been working to get such PL480 allocations to include grain sorghum ever since they were removed a year ago. A. W. Anthony, Jr., Friona farmer and GSPA president said, "These sales should improve our prices some. We hope USDA will continue such sales. If they do, our prices will strengthen without a doubt."

Dependable service is one of the plus values received when you do business with an established local merchant.

A business that stands the test of time must be built upon repeat business. The reliable merchant recognizes this principle, and accordingly back up manufacturer warranties and guarantees with his own promise of satisfaction.

Thus we have guidelines for becoming a happy consumer of goods and services: Check manufacturer warranties when buying brand name items. Buy from an established firm, a company with a reputation for reliability.

Trade with people you know -- with people you know you can depend upon.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Thurman Sensing

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

President Nixon's nomination of Judge Warren E. Burger as Chief Justice of the United States is heartening news for a nation deeply troubled over the course and character of the nation's highest court. Judge Burger, described as a "law and order" judge, give promise of providing a new direction for America's highest tribunal.

Certainly, a housecleaning at the Supreme Court is long overdue. The sordid Fortas affair shocked the American public. It underscored the wisdom of those conservative Senators who, when Abe Fortas was first nominated for the court, termed him a political fixer and wheeler-dealer unfit for judicial office.

The situation involving Justice William O. Douglas, another fiery "liberal" is equally shocking. The ramifications of his involvement with a foundation allegedly linked to hoodlum elements, should be examined in great detail by the Justice Department. It turns out that Justice Douglas was the paid president of the Albert Parvin Foundation and of the Center For the Study of Democratic Institutions, a "liberal" think tank in California that has kept up a drumfire against the foundations of American society, including law and order.

The Fortas and Douglas affairs actually should be regarded simply as openers in any study of the judicial mess. Much remains to be uncovered by investigators. Congressman John Rarick, (D-La), already has revealed that Justices Fortas and Brennan, plus federal Judges Brazelon and Wright of the federal courts in Washington, have been engaged in business together in the nation's capital--a curious relationship indeed for jurists who are supposed to avoid even the appearance of impropriety.

Chief Justice Earl Warren's call for a code of ethics for federal judges amounts to closing the barn door after the cows have strayed away. Chief Justice Warren cannot escape responsibility that easily. He has supervisory authority over the federal courts, but failed to exercise it. Apparently he was so busy promoting his pet political theories that he didn't have time or the inclination to look for unethical behavior on the bench.

The problem of the judiciary is not simply in the area of ethics, however. The Supreme Court has been busily undermining authority in the nation. For example, in mid-May a unanimous Supreme Court threw out the conviction of Timothy F. Leary, former Harvard University researcher and drug experimenter. The ruling unquestionably complicates the U. S. government's ability to deal with the possession and use of marijuana, a profoundly hurtful mind-influencing drug.

The Associated Press, in reporting the decision, said that the ruling "seriously damaged -- perhaps fatally -- the marijuana laws." This surely would be a tragic development for the country. Marijuana, while not addictive in the manner of heroin and other hard drugs, upsets and deranges a user's personality and moral values. The Bureau of Narcotics of the Justice Department has pointed out that marijuana use is the stepping stone to hard drugs and to dangerous chemicals such as LSD.

In other words, the Supreme Court had a duty to be mindful of the social consequences of robbing the federal government of lawful authority over marijuana. But, as in so many other cases in the past 15 years, the court has been unmindful of the right of society to protect itself against known evils. Instead in the Leary marijuana ruling, the court said the government had denied Timothy Leary protection against self-incrimination.

Hopefully, Judge Burger will bring a new outlook to the Supreme Court. He is on record, in a 1967 dissent to a reversal of a narcotic conviction, saying:

"I refuse to join in what I consider an unfortunate trend of judicial decisions in this field which strain and stretch to give the guilty not the same, but vastly more protection than the law-abiding citizen."

The Burger philosophy is desperately needed, for the Supreme Court has not only eased the lot of narcotic violators but has opened the door to the smut-peddlers who are flooding the nation with hard-core pornography.

The rights of society need the protection they have not had under the Warren Court.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: and make it count. They can "I have a problem that bugs me. I have always been popular, not that I cared, but everyone liked my personality. They respected me because I was different and did what I thought was right. But now around you -- real and last-I let things get to me. The friends I used to go with now are hate me, because someone has told them some things which are not true. This person who told them is a former friend and doesn't care what people think. I want to be right, and be kind, and be my own, real self. But, I do care what people think, and I do want to have friends. What should I do?"

OUR REPLY: You should always be your own, real self. If you are kind, and true to yourself and to others, no one can say anything against you

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE FRANKFORT, KY.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Teaching Someone to Drive

On the day Margaret got a learner's permit, her boy friend Fred took her out for a driving lesson. As they approached another car, waiting at a stop light, Margaret suddenly "froze." Worse, so did Fred.

Result: a collision, with considerable damage to the other car. In due course, the driver filed a damage suit against Fred.

"I'm not liable," Fred protested in court. "A driving teacher does not guarantee that his pupil will drive carefully."

Nevertheless, the court held him liable—not for Margaret's bad driving but for his own bad teaching. The judge said Fred should have made some effort, either by word or gesture, to avert the crash.

According to law, if you take on the responsibility of teaching someone to drive, you also take on the responsibility of doing so with reasonable care.

However, the law does recognize that a teacher's control has practical limits. In another case, after the driving lesson was supposed to be over, the pupil—acting on impulse—started the car again and jerked forward. The teacher shouted a warning and pulled the emergency brake, but not quickly enough to avoid hitting a pedestrian.

This time a court ruled that, while the teacher did have a special responsibility, he had fulfilled that responsibility by his efforts.

Nor are you held to a teacher's responsibility if you do not, in fact, occupy that role. Thus:

When an accident resulted from the improper parking of a car by the roadside, a claim was filed not only against the driver of the car but also against his passenger. It seems that, while the driver was parking the car, the passenger had remarked:

"There. I think you are far enough off the road."

But the court ruled that the passenger could not be held liable for merely giving bad advice. The judge said the occupant of a car does not take over the role—and the responsibility—of a teacher, just by trying to be helpful.

AGRICULTURAL BRIEFS

TWO-IN-A-ROW -- Crawford Community in McLennan County, for the second year in a row, has been named state winner in the Texas Community Improvement Program. Runner up communities were Gober, Fannin County; Quitique, Briscoe County and Haslet, Tarrant County. Each will receive a cash award and silver trays from the sponsors--the electric utility companies operating in Texas. Reagan Brown, Extension sociologist and program coordinator, announced the winners and said the final scores couldn't have been much closer. Each community has done a tremendous job during the past year to make their communities a better place to live.

W. A. Hawkins III and Quincy Hawkins are on the wheat harvest with C. L. Rich and Jim Rich. They will follow the harvest all summer.

EARLY PLANNING FOR SILAGE FACILITIES SUGGESTED

As dairy and beef cattle producers consider further expansion of silage feeding, they should also give careful thought to the need for additional silos and related filling, unloading and feeding equipment, says W. S. Allen, Extension agricultural engineer.

SPOT GRAIN SORGHUM DISEASES NOW

It is real important, says Dr. Wendell Horne, Extension plant pathologist, that farmers make close checks of their fields of growing grain sorghum in order to spot diseases and make plans for next year's control. Downey mildew and maize dwarf mosaic are among the most damaging; however, headsmutt, anthracnose and seedling diseases are also being reported. Local county agents have information on them, Horne said.

Research Foundation Given Approval For Water Study

Final approval of a project which will aid the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation in determining the feasibility of importing water to the High Plains was given this week to the High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway.

The project will determine the yield and production response of sugar beets and corn to various combinations of fertilizer and irrigation. The study at the Foundation is a part of the five and a half year research study assigned to Iowa State University by the Bureau in 1967.

The Foundation is one of several institutions cooperating with the University throughout western United States in compiling detailed information for the Bureau's study.

Purpose of the study is to develop better correlation between physical soil characteristics and crop yields under given conditions of irrigation in a wide range of geographic locations.

According to the arrangement approved this week, the Foundation will conduct 20 varying irrigation and fertilizer test plots each on sugarbeet and corn.

Attending the meeting at the Foundation Tuesday to approve the study were Alan Kleinman, economist, Iowa State University, and Bureau representatives, H. A. Schweers, Austin; George Loomis, Amarillo; Robert Vadar, Denver and Robert Struthers, Denver.

The total University study is expected to develop better correlation between physical soil characteristics and crop yields under given conditions of irrigation for improved methods of evaluating the productive capacity of irrigated farmlands in the western United States.

Commissioner of Reclamation Floyd E. Dominy said, "We are confident that this study will yield new concepts and methods that will improve Reclamation's procedures in land classification and economic analysis of irrigation projects."

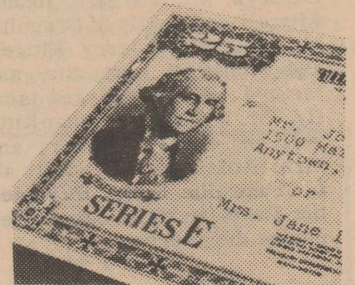

Director of the Foundation, Dr. Tom Longnecker, stated, "We are pleased that the Bureau and Iowa State have decided to place this research project here at the Foundation since it permits us to expand our irrigation fertilizer research to include sugarbeets and corn as well as cotton, grain sorghum, wheat and soybeans. More efficient use of water is the objective of these studies".

This is the purpose of the study. Past annual reports in cotton, grain sorghum and cotton also will be considered in completing the University study.

This shows the depth of the Reclamation economic and feasibility study into providing supplemental irrigation water to the High Plains. The University study is to be completed in February of 1973.

KITCHEN

KORNER

BY LELA GALLION

The hot weather makes one really glad for a few one dish meals to do away with that last minute rush just before meal time. Also a big help to anyone who has to take meals to the field (or do they do that any more?) I must confess I do not like to spend much time cooking in the summer time when it is real hot. Here are two good one-dish meals and a very good stuffed potato recipe.

MACARONI AND DRIED BEEF

3/4 c. elbow macaroni
2 c. milk
3 T. flour
2 T. butter
1/2 c. grated cheese
Salt and pepper
1/4 lb. dried beef

Cook macaroni until tender. Combine milk, flour, butter, cheese, salt and pepper and cook over low heat until thick. Cut dried beef into small pieces. Place layers of macaroni, dried beef and white sauce in buttered casserole. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in oven at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

TUNA CASSEROLE

1 c. milk
1 1/2 T. flour
1 T. butter
Salt and pepper

1 small pkg. (6-oz.) noodles
3 hard boiled eggs
1 can tuna fish
1 small can mushrooms

Combine milk, flour, butter salt and pepper. Cook over low heat until thick. Boil noodles. Add eggs, tuna fish and mushrooms to sauce and noodles. Place in greased baking dish and sprinkle top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in oven at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

SUPREME STUFFED POTATOES

4 medium potatoes
1/2 c. grated cheese
2 T. butter
1 tsp. minced parsley
1/4 c. minced celery
1/4 c. blanched almonds, chopped
1 c. thick white sauce
Salt and pepper
Paprika.

Bake potatoes, cut in halves, scoop out inside and mash. Add grated cheese, butter, parsley, celery, blanched almonds, white sauce, salt, pepper and paprika to potatoes, beat until fluffy. Pile mixture back into shells and reheat in oven until lightly browned. Serves 4 to 8.

LEWIS LLEWELLYN

What to Do About Filthy Films?

If you knew a man was selling poisoned candy to children and young people, would you patronize his store?

Even if the Supreme Court declared that the man must be allowed to continue to dispense his poison, wouldn't you feel a responsibility not to help him to stay in business?

Recently, Joseph Grunstein, film distributor, said, "I've been 40 years in this business, and frankly I'm ashamed of some of the films we handle now. I wouldn't want my kids to see them."

He justified his continuing to handle these indecent films on the basis that "this is what the market is demanding."

"Progress" of Movies

Over a period of years, movies have "progressed" from border-line scenes, shady situations, and double-entendre dialogue to the present practice of showing a man and a woman in bed together, partial or complete nudity, and even—in a Swedish import now showing in this country—an actor and an actress engaging in actual sex acts.

What should be our attitude toward motion picture theaters which exhibit films that are immoral and degrading—poisonous to the morals of all, especially our young people?

Perhaps Jack Valenti, chairman of the Motion Picture Association of America, has given us the answer to this question.

The public, said Valenti, has the "greatest civil right in the world to stay out of the movies."

Regarding the motion picture producer, Valenti said that he was opposed to any form of censorship. He added, "I want to shame him into raising his sights."

Well, while Valenti does what he can to shame the shameless purveyors of immorality, maybe the rest of us should adopt his other suggestion and "stay out of the movies."

What does the Bible say about this matter?

Of course, there were no motion pictures when the Bible was written, but there was immorality, and there are specific instructions as to what our attitude should be.

One thing that the Bible says is this: "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."

Another: "What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? And what communion hath light with darkness? . . . Wherefore, come out from among them."

"Stay Out"

Motion picture exhibitors and producers will respond to only two things, it appears—legal action and box-office figures.

Since our Supreme Court has made it practically impossible to control this moral cancer by legal means, we are left with only one weapon to use against those who would destroy our youth for profit.

This weapon is the one which Jack Valenti suggested that we use—"stay out of the movies."

You have an influence. Will you use it?
On which side?

Financial Facts

By Willis A. Hawkins, Jr.

Reproduction of American currency is permitted only by certain groups. These include numismatic, educational, historical and news gathering groups. Foreign paper currency also falls under the same control.

There are printing restrictions, however. All reproductions must be in black and white. They must be less than three fourths the actual currency size. Or, they must be more than 1-1/2 times the bill's size.

The reason for these restrictions is to prevent actual sized reproductions.

Neither coin nor currency is receivable by the United States. Nor is it redeemable.

However, imported foreign coins are receivable at the gold bullion value. This is $35.00 per fine ounce. The United States Government issues no gold coins. Nevertheless, the gold dollar remains our standard unit of value.

Real Estate Short Course Is Offered

A "Fundamentals of Real Estate" short course will be offered at South Plains College this summer. Pre-registration is now taking place and room and board arrangements must be accomplished independent of the college.

The course is approved by the Texas Real Estate Commission and will satisfy the 90-hour prerequisite for taking the State Broker's Examination, or one may take only 30 hours to qualify for taking the Salesman's License exam. The 30-hour course will also enable one to renew his salesman's license.

Classes for the first thirty hours will begin July 28 and continue through Aug. 1. The remaining sixty hours will be the following two weeks of August. Classes will meet from 9 a. m. until 12 p. m. and from 1 p. m. until 4:30 p. m. Monday through Friday. Final exams will be administered on Saturday mornings. Registration may be made now and tuition is $50 per week paid before July 15.

Jim Montgomery of Levelland is coordinator for the course and will do some of the instructing. Topics covered will include the following: Real Property Marketing, Real Estate Law, Applied Economics, Business Correspondence, Building Construction, Taxation, Salesmanship, Zoning Ordinances, Uniform Building Code, Finance, Arithmetical Calculations, Written Instruments Used in the Real Estate Transactions, and Land Economics. ## STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

Texas lawmakers have written the record of the 61st regular session, but their toughest job—levying the taxes to pay for what they have ordered—remains to be done.

In adopting a $2.8 billion one-year state budget (for 1970) they invited a special session to complete appropriations for 1971 and to decide on the inevitable major tax bill. Legislative leaders, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher, claim the latter will be smaller if the finance showdown can be delayed until next year.

Gov. Preston Smith, who holds the key to the timing of the special session, has made clear from the start that he feels the Legislature should face up to a biennial budget and the raising of needed revenue.

He could veto the single-year bill and call another session immediately—or accept it and schedule the remaining financial work whenever he pleases.

Many all-time legislative records have toppled at this session. Certainly, the 61st session passed more legislation than any before it, and it was committed in advance to spending more money.

A multitude of laudable ends were attained. Giant strides were made in the field of education. Teachers got a $61.9 million pay raise. Overhauls were ordered in the field of vocational and technical education. Three new medical schools, a dental school and two new nursing schools were CAREER OPPORTUNITIES—A recent Texas A&M University survey indicates an immediate need for 2,000 qualified farm machinery mechanics. According to Dr. Earl S. Webb, professor of agricultural education, the figure is expected to jump to 7,000 within the next five years. He said the Texas Education Agency was giving high priority to training programs in the field of farm mechanics.

Accent on Health

Did you know that it's possible for perfectly good teeth, with absolutely no decay, to simply fall out?

Teeth in excellent condition are often lost because the structure on which they rest gives way. Teeth are not locked in the jaw, contrary to some beliefs. They rest in a springy hammock of gums and bone. When this support becomes diseased and gives way, the teeth become loosened and may fall out if treatment is not started early.

Gum disease precipitating tooth fall-out is popularly known as pyorrhea. But the term is misused. Dentists apply pyorrhea to only one stage of a sequence of events grouped under the general heading of periodontal diseases.

While tooth decay is the chief cause of tooth loss in young people, periodontal disease takes a greater toll in people over age 35.

Years ago, the disease was thought incurable. Now, however, dentistry saves many teeth if gum tissues are treated in time, says the Texas State Department of Health.

Periodontal diseases usually start with gingivitis, or inflammation of the gums. Bleeding is a frequent symptom. Bleeding gums may be shrugged off as a fairly common occurrence. But dentists point out that this is a symptom calling for attention.

Bleeding gums grow progressively worse if untreated, as a general rule, and lead to more serious involvement.

The gums, which ordinarily hug the tooth like the collar of a turtle-neck sweater begin to fall away. Debris then works itself down into the pocket formed between gum and tooth. This leads to periodontitis with inflammation extending deeper into the tissues.

As disease progresses, pus pockets form and the springy, hammock-like tissue or periodontal membrane is destroyed. Finally, the root is affected and the tooth becomes loose. By this time, the possibility of saving the tooth is slim.

To keep your own teeth, develop a strong pattern of dental care, punctuated by proper brushing after every meal or snack. Most troubles are caused by the formation of acid in the mouth, usually within 20 minutes after eating. If you can't brush, a drink of water swished around inside the mouth will help allay the formation of acid. Regular checkups from sure healthy teeth and gums throughout a lifetime.

your dentist also will help insure healthy teeth and gums throughout a lifetime.

Substantial, perhaps drastic changes appear to be in the making for future government cotton programs according to Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

He says, "Cotton producers, generally, favor a continuation of the current cotton program with a few minor adjustments. But there are at least three reasons to believe it will be extremely difficult if not impossible for such a program to be enacted in this session or the next session of Congress."

His reasons include (1) the current mood of Congress where farm programs are concerned, (2) the attitude of the present administration, and (3) the lack of a unified cotton producer approach to legislation.

As an indication of the "Congressional mood" Johnson cited the recent passage in the House of Representatives of a $20,000 limitation on payments that can be made to any individual farmer in 1970.

This limitation, which came as an amendment to the Agricultural Appropriations Bill, is clearly discriminatory, and unless legislative changes are made will clearly wreck the present cotton program," he said, "yet it passed the House by a vote of 222 to 142."

Not only is the margin of the vote significant, he noted, "but the amendment passed over the opposition of almost the entire House leadership, including Speaker Carl Albert, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee George Mahon, and Bob Poage, Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture."

There is hope that the limitations amendment can be knocked out in the Senate and that the Senate version will be upheld in Conference Committee, Johnson believes "But there is still the problem of getting such a Conference report accepted by the House," he cautioned.

"Regardless of the final outcome of limitations on 1970 payments, it is obvious that cotton producers are in trouble when a measure so blatantly inequitable and so damaging to the supply-management concept of farm programs can pass the House under these conditions," Johnson said.

Concerning the attitude of the present administration, as reflected by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin, Johnson says it has been, at best, weak.

"The Secretary has taken no strong stand for or against any farm program or program philosophy, and he certainly was of little if any help toward defeating the limitations amendment," he stated.

The Secretary's statement on limitations was: "The Department believes it is possible to design a sound farm program that limits the number of dollars that can be paid to any one farmer for programs following the 1970 crop year. However, to make such a limitation effective, legislative changes are needed. With only the simple amendment that is possible in connection with appropriations bills, the so-called snap-back provision for cotton would come into effect.

"The cotton program would then become subject to a loan-and-redemption or a buy-and-sell-back arrangement that would increase costs while the large producers would escape the intent of the payment limitations."

The Secretary went on to say the Department was ready to work with legislative committees on basic changes in legislation and suggested "later in this session or early next session" as the preferred time for such work.

Last, "but certainly not least," among Johnson's reasons for believing producers face an uphill battle in Washington is cotton producers' own failure in recent months to develop and get behind a unified approach to legislation.

A strong effort has been made over the past several months by regional cotton producer organizations, including Plains Cotton Growers, by the Cotton Producer Steering Committee of the National Cotton Council and by others to put together a legislative proposal acceptable all across the Cotton Belt. But up to now the effort has failed.

Johnson points out that this leaves general farm organizations and other groups, each well organized and each with different but definite ideas as to cotton industry needs, in a much stronger position to influence changes in new cotton legislation.

"Their proposals for change may or may not be in the best interest of cotton producers," he concluded, "but with the current situation in Washington they are likely to prevail unless something is done to correct the indecisiveness and lack of Beltwide organization among producers."

Today it's just a skeleton against the sky. But tomorrow people will live in it, and it will become a home. Within its walls, the pattern of life will be carried out.

But will this be enough? As a home, will this house stand or fall as the years pass? Will the people who live in it develop into better, stronger human beings? Or will they acquire selfishness, greed, indifference, conceit?

Remember the foolish man who built his house on sand, only to have the rains wash it away, and the wise man who built his house permanently on a rock? The future of this house—the future of a home—depends upon its foundation.

In the story, the "rock" symbolizes the Church. Those who build their faith upon its foundation will take into their homes the strength to keep them standing, regardless of what life may bring.
