Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

Did you ever have a job to do that you dreaded with a purple passion?

The more you thought of it, the greater the dread, and the more enormous the job became. You almost worry yourself sick with the thought of it—right on up to the deadline—then you have to tackle it. And once you get right into the work, you find it quite enjoyable!

We think our banquet speaker last Thursday night, Dr. Charles Jarvis, had something like this in mind when he said: "Life is hard by the yard, but it's a cinch by the inch."

We don't know when we've squeezed more laughs into an hour's time than we did last Thursday night. And a lot of other banquet-goers did the same thing. The speaker was entertaining, yet he gave us some serious things to think about.

His "prescription for the happy life" was the right prescription for Munday people—and out-of-towners, too, who heard him. People you ran across next morning just appeared to be happier than they were the day before.

"No, we didn't go to the banquet," someone said next day, "but I wish we had. We could use some good laughs."

We couldn't quite connect Dr. Jarvis with the dentist we heard a few years ago at a press convention when we first learned he was to be our speaker. When we saw him, and recognized him, Thursday night, we knew we were in for a jolly good time at the banquet.

Munday's welcome mat is on the outside for Dr. Jarvis, and we think the Chamber of Commerce could repeat with him sometime in the future and have a sell-out crowd. They say that around 200 people attended the banquet. The crowd would have been larger had not so many people been entertaining the flu bug.

Dr. Jarvis pilots his own airplane to his speaking engagements. The local Chamber of Commerce had a reception committee ready to meet the speaker and his plane. About an hour before Dr. Jarvis was due to arrive in Munday, Barton Carl noticed a plane circle the town and act like it was going to land. He went to his other committee member, Charles Hogsett, and told him what he had seen. They rushed out to the landing strip of American Dustin Co., and there met the speaker.

Jarvis explained that when those clouds started boiling up Thursday, he took off from San Marcos about an hour early because he didn't know what kind of weather he'd encounter. Sometimes, he said, he has been forced to ground his plane and get on to his destination by auto, or other means.

We're indebted to a reader for two copies of a newspaper that we had never seen. It's the Sabine County Reporter (and Pine-land Star). Old Sabine is the county of our birth; yet, we had never seen the newspaper.

Quel Hughes of Vera was in the office a few days ago, and he handed us the papers with this remark: "I read in your paper where your were born in Sabine County, so I've brought you these papers."

Right under its masthead is this statement: "The Only Newspaper in the World That Gives a 'Hoot' About Sabine County." The owner, J. Darrel Milner, may be right at that!

He was among the first people we met in Munday. During our 25-year sojourn here, we've rubbed shoulders with him in different places and circumstances—in his home, his office, on the street, in our office or shop, at church, in the lodge hall, at a domino table—lots of places. We learned long ago that he didn't "straddle the fence" on any question, and most of the time he was on the right side of the fence.

We believe we lost a true and loyal friend, and the town a valued citizen, in the passing of M. F. (Judge) Billingsley. His influence in the community will live as long as there's memory of him.

M. F. (Judge) Billingsley, Attorney And Civic Leader Dies Early Saturday

M. F. (Judge) Billingsley, 74, practicing attorney in Munday for more than 40 years, passed away at his home in Munday early Saturday. He had been in failing health for several years and seriously ill for several days.

A civic and social leader for many years, Judge Billingsley had served as mayor of Munday, and as county attorney of Knox and Rockwall Counties.

He was born in Rockwall County in 1888, and was married to the former Miss Emma Jane Bounds on December 10, 1914, in Royse City. He studied law, not attending law school, and passed his bar examination in 1913. The family lived in Dallas for a few years before coming to Munday in 1922.

Judge Billingsley was a member of the First Methodist Church and served as teacher of the Men's Bible Class for many years. He had been a member of the Masonic Lodge for 48 years, and was past master as well as past secretary of his lodge. He was also a member of the Order of Eastern Star.

After practicing in this area for several years, Judge Billingsley became a partner of T. W. Bullington in January 1956, when the law firm of Billingsley and Bullington was formed. Mr. Bullington purchased Billingsley's interests when Judge retired early in January.

He is survived by his widow; three sons, R. M. Billingsley of Munday, E. M. Billingsley of Amarillo and Dan Billingsley of Roswell, N. M.; three sisters, Mrs. Kate Robinson and Mrs. Mary Porter, both of Eprap, Wash., and Mrs. G. G. Lexington of Salem, Wash.; three grandsons and three granddaughters.

Funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Monday from the First Methodist Church in Munday with the pastor, Rev. Rex L. Mauldin, officiating. He was assisted by Rev. Clarence Bounds, Methodist minister of Crowell.

The body was taken to Fort Worth by McCauley Funeral Home, and cremation was at 3 p.m. Monday at Laurel Land Crematorium in Fort Worth.

Serving as pallbearers were J. L. Stodghill, J. W. Massey, Jasper Beavers, Bud Phillips, Joe B. Roberts, Charles Baker, Bob Brown and Dorse Collins.

Former Knox County Woman Is Named Teacher Of The Year At Grandfalls

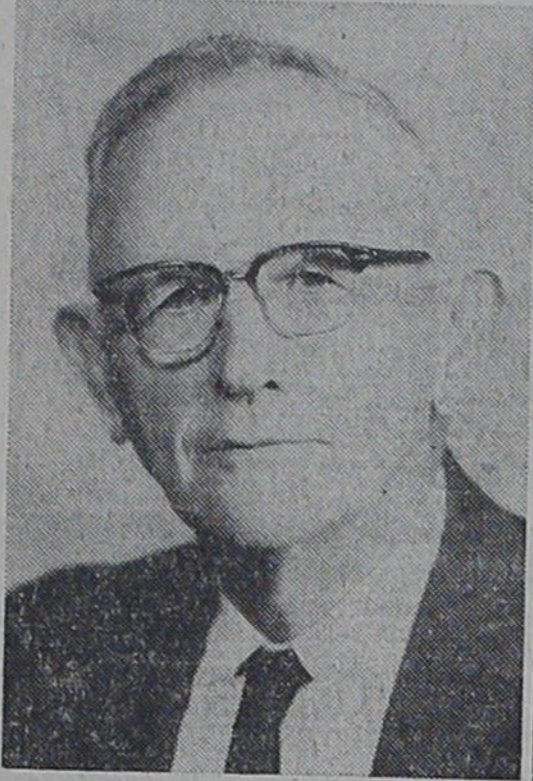

Mrs. Ruth Beck Kickey, teacher of the Latin-American first grade in the Grandfalls-Royalty School for the past 20 years, has been named Teacher of the Year by the Sorosis Club of which she is a member.

Mrs. Kickey is a teacher, friend and counselor to these children and it seems her selection was in keeping with the Texas Federation of Women's Club Latin American project this year.

On an educational tour of Mexico sponsored by Sul Ross College, Mrs. Kickey gained a broader background for teaching Spanish speaking children. Also, her ability as an artist enables her to train these little children to use their natural talents in art and making of all kinds of crafts. She has studied under Texas artists and currently is taking instruction in China painting from a Monahans teacher. Her home and school room reflect her artistic ability.

Mrs. Kickey was born in Knox County and graduated from Vera High School. After attending North Texas State College, she taught several years in Knox and Haskell counties before being married in Electra. Her husband died several years ago. They had two children, Mrs. Dorothy Kickey McGee of Ada, Okla., and Charles Hickey of El Paso. Both are teachers.

After being an excellent wife and mother, Mrs. Kickey resumed her teaching, first as a substitute and then as a regular teacher.

Firemen To Sound Warnings Of Storm

With the approach of the stormy season, members of the Munday Fire Department have announced that the fire siren will again sound storm warnings.

One continuous blast of the siren will mean that a dangerous cloud is approaching with possibility of high wind, hail or storm of some kind. This does not mean that a tornado has been sighted, but will be just a warning to Munday citizens of a storm possibility and to keep an eye on the approaching cloud.

ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN

Walter Lippmann, in a recent column concerning the hard sledding that the Administration's tax program is meeting in Congress, makes a point of deep significance.

He writes: "In an effort to please everybody a little, very few are left who are pleased very much. It is a program to cut taxes and at the same time to raise them, and no political leader can rouse the people to follow him in two opposite directions at once. . . . The country is baffled by it. Instead of focusing public attention on the vital need to stimulate the economy, each taxpayer has been invited to see whether he will lose more by the tax reforms than he will gain by the tax reductions."

In other words, the program is designed to be all things to all men, and that never works, Mr. Lippmann's case is supported by mountains of evidence. For instance, such diverse groups as the major industrial associations and the principal labor unions are both highly critical of the plan.

Mr. Lippmann is among the many who feel that a tax cut is essential now. But his pessimism over the Administration's scheme is thoroughly based. The political overtones are too obvious, and a thinking public has, with every justification, grave doubts as to its soundness—especially when it is accompanied by proposals for enormous increases in federal spending and the federal deficit.

FLY KITES SAFELY!

A California utility company has published a really worthwhile comic book. It features Bull-winkle Moose and his pal, Rocky the flying squirrel, and its main point is to stress safety rules for flying kites. Here they are—and they are mighty important with spring and summer just around the corner:

Don't cross streets or highways while flying kites. Don't fly a kite with a metal in the frame or tail. Don't use tinsel string, wire or any twine with metal in it. Don't fly a kite over television or radio aerials. Don't fly a kite near electric power lines. Don't pull on the string or climb a power pole to loosen a snagged kite. Don't touch fallen electric wires. Don't fly a kite in the rain.

ODESSA, TEX., AMERICAN: "It is not possible for one man to control the energy of another. One man may impose his energies on another in such a way that, through force, he can prevent the other man from using his energy as he might otherwise use it. But this is proof that the man using force cannot control the energy of the other. Were it possible for him to control that energy, no force would be necessary. He would simply will that the other person perform in such and such a manner and it would be done—exactly the same as when a man wills that his own arm be raised, or his own fingers bent, or his own mind engaged in a particular manner."

CONSUMER THE WINNER

This year, it is expected, the nation's meat consumption will increase both on a total and a per capita basis. The market for meat products is excellent. And supplies are ample.

This, one would think, would make all the elements within the meat industry happy. But that isn't quite the case. The packers, for instance, despite the absolutely vital nature of their work in seeing to it that consumers everywhere get the kind and cuts of meat they want, have been living, profit-wise, on a hand-to-mouth basis. Profits have simply not been adequate.

As one authority recently put the case, "We can assume that the producer will sell his livestock to the best advantage. . . . The retailer will buy to his best advantage. . . . what about the packer? He performs an extremely valuable service and if he is to keep pace and do it better on a continuing basis he has to be better paid than he has been."

This goes beyond the personal interests and hopes of the packing industry. In the long run, the consumer is the winner when any enterprise makes a fair profit. For profit is the key to progress, and to better service.

TUCKER, GA., DEKALB TRIBUNE: "It has been said that the power of words is one of the world's most potent powers and judging from what it costs to put words on paper for the public to read, the statement doesn't surprise us. Fortune Magazine reports that it costs $2 for every word the magazine prints. Before his tragic death, Ernest Hemingway was paid up to $1 per word for his writings."

BRIDGEHAMPTON, N. Y., NEWS: "One hundred years ago George S. Boutwell, first Commissioner of Internal Revenue, had a staff of only one clerk, and personally read all letters from taxpayers."

According to Newsweek, "Competition for the short supply of space-age engineers and technicians is so stiff that personnel managers of U. S. corporations are being forced to fall back on an old Civil War recruiting device—the bounty." It quotes a notice by one corporation which offers an award of $100 to any employee who introduces a technical-professional applicant who is subsequently hired.

A World School to foster the People-to-People aims of international understanding and global friendship has been proposed by General Dwight D. Eisenhower. Speaking in Stockholm during his recent European tour, the former President envisioned "a new and different kind of clearing house for world thinking, teaching and learning in the vast field of human relations."

Letters From The People

STATEMENT BY SENATOR MOFFETT

A good citizen of Munday has just sent me a recent clipping from the Munday Times containing a statement about me made by a Mr. R. E. Greenway, whom I do not recall that I have ever met. His statement quotes a part of a letter, which I wrote on February 22, 1957 to the then members of the City Council at Munday and three or four other city councils in the North Central Texas Municipal Water District. This letter was written just a few days after the bill was introduced, which created the above district, and informed the members of the City Council, about some of the terms of the bill with the suggestion that if they wanted changes, same could likely be made. No changes were suggested and the bill creating this district was passed as sent to me and Representative Cloud.

The purported copy of the letter, which I sent to the City Council on February 22, 1957, was not quoted correctly in the newspaper recently, and contains inferences that are not accurate. Furthermore, it is purported to be signed by me with the title of Representative, 29th District. This is a gross error. At the time I wrote the letter in 1957, I had been in the Senate 18 years and I have never represented the 29th District in the House or the Senate, as the newspaper statement indicates.

My position on the Water District is that since the people have voted to have the district, and also voted to finance it, and since water is becoming an increasingly scarce commodity, I now definitely favor the continuation of the district. I do not appreciate anyone placing a distorted statement about me in any newspaper. Furthermore, whatever doubts I might have had on February 22, 1957 concerning the benefits to be derived from the North Central Texas Water District have long since faded, and I believe the district as now organized has a desirable and worthy purpose, and I am favorable to its continuance.

Respectfully,
 George Moffett

Notes From Knox Farms, Ranches

By Joe W. Doby, Knox County Agent

Now that the fund raising drive for the Screwworm Eradication program is about complete, producers realize that the success of program from now on rests with them. The importance of checking livestock and reporting every case that looks like a screwworm cannot be overemphasized.

Call Mission collect if screwworms are found. Knowing immediately where every screw-worm case in the Southwest is located has become so important to the eradication program that arrangements have been made so livestockmen can call the Mission headquarters collect when an infestation is detected.

When a screwworm case is found, officials would like producers to do two things: (1) collect about 10 worms from the wound, place them in water or alcohol and hold them for further instructions and (2) report the infestation to eradication officials by calling collect to Justice 5-1646 (Mission). No telephone call should be made unless a sample is available.

The following information should be available at the time the call is made: 1. Name, 2. Address and telephone number where producer can be contacted, 3. Date when sample was collected, 4. Location of farm or ranch where case was found, 5. Location of wound on animal.

Producers are urged to call day or night, whenever the infestation is found. At night or on weekends, the information will be relayed to eradication officials, who will contact the producer for further information and instruct him to either mail the sample or hold it to be picked up by a livestock inspector.

I would like to urge every producer in this area to either call this number at Mission or call me and I will place the call. This is very important as one case that is not reported can multiply into hundreds in a short time.

I wrote last week about using a high aromatic content napatha for the control of grass and weeds in cotton. This week I would like to list some more chemicals that may be used for weed control. Diuron (sold under the trade name Karmex DL) may be used at the rate of 1/2-1 1/2 lbs. pre-emergent on 10-14 in. bands at time of planting. Lower rates for sandy loam and higher rates for clay soils. Cotton should be planted 3/4 inch deep and hill-dropped. Not recommended for extremely sandy or heavy clay soils. One disadvantage of this material is in case one has to replant, the Diuron will interfere with the germination of the cottonseed.

Using a flame cultivator is another means of weed control. It can be started when cotton is 8-10 inches high or about 3/16 inches in diameter.

I would strongly recommend that all cotton farmers consider some means of mechanical weed control. I don't believe we can continue to farm cotton and pay a big hand labor bill for hoeing and pulling. The man who stays in will be the one who uses only mechanical means of growing cotton from start to finish.

The Share-the-Fun Festival and King and Queen Contest has been postponed from Thursday, March 21 to Saturday, April 6. The time and place remain the same, Gilliland School at 8 p.m.

The 4-H Rifle Contest will be held Saturday, March 30 at the Brazos River bridge north of Rhineland at 9:00 a.m. The tractor operator's contest will be held at 10:30 that same morning at the Knox Prairie Seed yards. The method demonstration contest will be held at 1:30 in the lunchroom of the Munday Grade School, also on March 30.

Proclamations designating Knox County as a Type II Brucellosis Control Area, subject to the hearing on the subject, have been posted in the Courthouse by the Texas Animal Health Commission. The hearing has been set for May 6 at 9:30 a.m. in Austin. Anyone may go or send representatives to protest the action if they so desire. After the hearing, the Commission will decide on a definite course of action. If they decide in favor then the date to start the quarantine and the program to make the county modified-certified free will be June 15, 1963.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

Top Tennis Award

For the first time in the history of tennis, a major trophy has been awarded to the player showing the most popularity and sportsmanship.

It is the Martini & Rossi Popular Tennis Player Trophy voted to Rod Laver of Australia. He was selected on the basis of a public vote conducted by World Tennis, a major sports publication. The magazine conducted the poll among its readers while making ballots available at major tennis tournaments and country clubs throughout the world.

During the 1962 summer months, the Martini & Rossi trophy was on display at such major tournaments as the Pennsylvania Grass Court Championships at the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa.; the Eastern Grass Court Championships at Orange, New Jersey; the Newport Invitation Championships at Newport, Rhode Island; the National Doubles Championships at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, Mass., and at the National Championships in Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y.

At these tournaments, spectators and players alike voted for the player of their choice, adding to the votes of the fans voted through a ballot running monthly in World Tennis Magazine.

Final tabulations were made on September 8th. The announcement of the winner was made that evening at the Tennis Writers Dinner.

Rod Laver's name is being engraved on the huge silver Martini & Rossi Trophy. Silver circles on the two-tiered wooden base were placed so that the names of the winners could be inscribed thereon. Laver, in his acceptance speech, said that this was the most thrilling moment in his tennis career. The friendship that players and fans had shown to him, a visitor in this country, through their votes was a warm memory that he would never forget.

Laver is the first recipient of the Martini & Rossi award and is also the first player in 25 years to accomplish the grand slam in tennis, winning the Australian, French, English and U.S. Championships in the same year.

Committee System / Has Great Record

Evidence continues to pile up as to outstanding success of the farmer-committee system of administration in accomplishing the objectives of laws enacted by Congress. Programs for which the committees have been responsible for field administration over the years have involved huge sums of money, and the incidence of loss has been phenomenally low. Such program responsibility is illustrated by the following examples of the field administration:

Cost-sharing conservation payments totaling $4.9 billion (1936 through 1961) to from 1 to 3 million farmers each year;

Non-recourse price-support loans amounting to $21.1 billion in the past 15 years;

Recourse loans to farmers (since 1948) for constructing farm storage facilities with a capacity of 759 million bushels;

Land-diversion payments aggregating $1.8 billion under the 1961 and 1962 emergency feed grain and the 1962 wheat stabilization programs;

Successful operation of the system of CCC-owned grain storage facilities — about 237,000 structures with a capacity of 980 million bushels, located on more than 3,800 different sites.

Acreage allotment and marketing quota programs involving 3.4 million individual farm allotments covering 70.8 million acres;

Sugar program payments of $1.4 billion (since 1937) to 61,000 producers;

Wool program incentive payments of $324 million (since 1954), under more than 437,000 applications a year;

Other assigned program including emergency feed, soil bank, surplus removal and emergency conservation.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Reports There Are Plenty Of Answers On Cuba But Doubts If Any Of Them Will Work

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek looks at a problem this week, but then throws up his hands.

Dear editor:
Somebody has to do it, and there's always plenty of men hunting the job, but being President of the United States is one job I wouldn't be interested in. Too many problems with no answers.

I don't mean to say that running this Johnson grass farm doesn't involve a lot of problems, and some of them may not have any answers, but I don't have to contend with a lot of people furnishing answers that won't work. And even in the worst year, there are always times when I can wake up some mornings without anything really bothering me. This doesn't happen in the White House.

For example, right now everybody wants the United States, and therefore the President, to do something about Cuba. One man out of many I was listening to on television said the way to handle Cuba is simple, just cut off the flow of oil to the island, that'll bring Castro to his knees. Now I'll admit you can't run machinery or a country very long without oil, I've tried it with my tractor and it's the quickest way I know to bring it to its knees, and also to the repair shop.

So when somebody asked, "Wouldn't stopping a Russian ship bearing oil to Cuba be an act of war?" this man said, "Well, naturally, I'm not in favor of war, what I mean is I'm in favor of stopping the flow of oil to Cuba provided it wouldn't be considered an act of war."

Yeah, and I'm in favor of skipping the payments on my television set provided it wouldn't be considered a default. I'm in favor of abolishing all taxes provided it wouldn't abolish the country.

One of the easiest jobs on earth is to tell somebody else what he ought to do, then move on to something else, and if you look back over your shoulder and discover he's done it and the results are disastrous, you can always turn around and ridicule him for not having more sense than to do a fool thing like that.

This just doesn't happen under one certain President, it happens under all Presidents. But I guess they must have known this when they applied for the job.

Personally, I not only don't know what to do about Cuba, I don't know what to do about Africa, Egypt, France, Russia, China, Johnson grass, the state legislature, the high cost of living, or the knock in my 1949 tractor.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

NEW GRANULAR INSECT CONTROL FOR COTTON

Thimet® 10% granular protects young cotton up to six weeks or longer . . . one soil application replaces three or more foliage sprays.

Easy to use
Thimet granules are distributed in the furrow at planting time. Rates range from 5 to 15 lbs. per acre depending on the length of control desired and soil type.

For further details on the use of Thimet to cotton, contact your local pesticides supplier or write: Pesticides Dept., address below.

Systemic Action

Diagram of how Thimet is picked up by roots and carried to all parts of the plant.

Continuous protection
As the young cotton plant emerges and starts to grow, the Thimet in the soil is taken up through the roots. Immediately, it is carried by the sap stream to all growing stems and leaves (see diagram). The plant itself becomes toxic to insects which try to attack it.

Because Thimet is in every growing part of the plant, insect control is steady and continuous. It eliminates those danger periods when an insect infestation may go unnoticed until the crop is damaged. And, since Thimet is inside the plant, it cannot be weathered away by wind and rain.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

Cost-Cutting In Cotton Growing
Cotton is still regarded as King in the south but it is one of the most expensive crops to produce. The first breakthrough of this economic barrier may have been achieved recently during experiments on the High Plains of Texas.

The first unorthodox step was in planting the rows only nine inches apart on irrigated land. Purpose of the nine inch middles was to determine how much cultivation could be eliminated. Cultivation during the growing season to get rid of weeds is a major cost item in cotton production.

The initial tests were conducted at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock. Cotton was planted in the nine-inch rows, instead of the usual 40 inches, and then an application was made of a pre-emergence herbicide. On this first experiment, a bumper two bales were taken from a one-acre plot without a single cultivation.

In another test plot, cotton planted in the usual 40-inch rows yielded 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 bales per acre. The weeds in this plot were controlled by several machine cultivations and by hand hoeing.

Weeds didn't stand a chance in the narrow-row plots, according to observers. The emergence herbicide controlled the early season weed growth. As the season progressed, the closely spaced plants shaded out weeds that emerged.

The narrow-row cotton was planted by grain drill like wheat. Normally, about 30,000 cotton plants are grown on an acre but on this plot more than 200,000 plants per acre were permitted to stand. Each plant produced only three or four bolls but the dense planting offset this loss and helped raise the total yield.

The close row spacing produced plants that were more ideally adapted to stripper harvesting than plants grown in 40-inch rows. The closely spaced plants were short and had few branches and then stems.

The experiments were conducted primarily for the High Plains of Texas and Oklahoma where stripper harvesters are in fairly common use. These machines harvest cotton by stripping both mature and immature bolls from the plant.

Both the narrow-row and the wide-row plots in the experiment were sprinkler irrigated three times with three inches of water. The water activated the herbicide and aided seed germination. Both plots received the same fertilizer treatment—80 pounds of nitrogen and 40 pounds of phosphorus per acre applied before planting.

Close plantings may not work in the humid areas of Texas and the South where boll rot is a problem, however. These growing conditions may be tested by this method later. And tests have not yet been made on the harvested cotton's spinning quality.

Nevertheless, for certain areas of Texas where irrigation is available, the experiment may be a significant factor in reducing the high costs of cotton production.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by the State Health Department

Today is not only the Space Age. It is also the Chemical Age.

One of the main benefits of living in this chemical age is availability of numerous pesticides. They have been essential for the improvement of our agricultural output and therefore for raising our standard of living. Also, these pesticides have been helpful in the control of many insect borne diseases.

Unfortunately, the most effective pesticides are often the most toxic and precautions against them the most difficult to enforce. In 1962, 13 Texans died as a result of mishandling of these toxic materials.

With the increased use of these highly toxic materials, both at home and in industry, it is essential that we stress safety measures at every opportunity. Listed below are some important points to remember when handling and using toxic insecticides.

1. Follow the instructions on the manufacturer's label to the smallest detail.
2. Store toxic sprays and dust away from children and irresponsible individuals, as well as livestock, foods and animal feeds.

3. All regular handlers of phosphorous insecticides should have cholinesterase tests at intervals not greater than 10 days during the periods they are working with the materials.

4. All applicators should avoid breathing dust, vapors, or spray from the insecticides.

5. Respirators, which meet the specifications of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, should be worn when handling or working around highly toxic insecticides.

6. Freshly laundered protective clothing and gloves should be worn when sprays and dust are being applied.

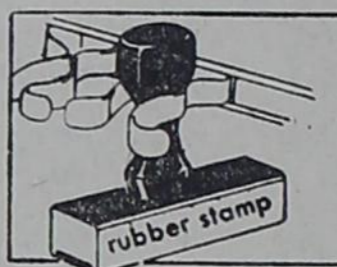

7. If toxic insecticides are spilled on the skin or clothing, work should be suspended and the person involved should bathe and change clothes.

8. Individuals handling toxic insecticides should bathe and change clothes immediately after completing jobs or doing any extensive breaks.

9. All personnel and livestock should be protected from drifts of spray or dust.

10. When toxic insecticides are applied to agricultural plants such as cotton or grain the fields should not be reentered for three days after application.

11. Toxic insecticides should be kept away from flames and sparks when being diluted for application since many solvents used in preparing insecticides are highly inflammable.

Trust Arrangements Explained

When property is placed in trust it is turned over to a trustee who will see to it that it is properly managed for the benefit of a person or persons you name as beneficiaries. It is a method of disposing of your property and may be used in conjunction with a will.

Trusts have many advantages. A trust may be used to provide income for persons unable to support themselves, to provide funds for a child's education, as a means of establishing an annuity, or to provide a gift for a charitable institution.

In these days of high taxes, a trust may be utilized to minimize the tax burden. If carefully planned, a trust may decrease income and inheritance taxes.

A trust arrangement works roughly in this manner. A person who desires to create a trust is called a grantor. The grantor chooses a trustee. The trustee may be a bank, an individual, or a trust company. The grantor through a trust instrument tells the trustee how to distribute the trust property or income. The trustee will then manage and distribute the trust proceeds or property in whatever manner the grantor desires.

A very common arrangement is to place the property in trust with directions to pay the income from the property to a wife for her lifetime, and upon her death the trust to end and the property to be distributed to the grantor's children.

An interesting type of trust is that which is sometimes called a spendthrift trust. This is an arrangement whereby one sets up a certain sum of money to be given to another at a definite rate per month or per year, or under definite restrictions.

This type of trust is generally used in wills where a person desires to leave money to an individual, but feels that the individual is not capable of properly caring for the money and that if left to him in full that the person receiving the money will spend and waste the money and not receive the maximum benefit from it.

Trust property quite often consists of securities. The law regulates the type of property in which trust funds may be invested. However, the grantor may designate the type of investments the trustee may make.

The effectiveness of a trust is dependent largely on its proper creation. To avoid the pitfalls and dangers of lawsuits and ineffective trust operations, a trust instrument should be properly prepared. A poorly planned or carelessly drawn trust instrument can not only defeat the objectives of its creator, but may prove costly as well.

Your lawyer can advise you whether a trust arrangement will be advantageous in your particular situation, and is qualified by education and experience to prepare properly the legal papers necessary to set up a trust. If you have in mind some bank or trust company to act as trustee, that firm's trust officer will be glad to discuss the matter in a conference with you and your attorney.
