Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

"This is rapidly becoming the year our nation puts its shoulder behind a program to defeat a powerful enemy—poverty."

Thus said Congressman Graham Purcell in the opening paragraph of his news letter last Monday.

Like we've said before, this war on poverty is nothing new to us. We've been waging such a war practically all our lives. For years we called it keeping the wolf from the door.

There were times when we thought we'd have to call for help in our war, and circumstances kinda gave us a reason for this belief. What we didn't know until a short few months ago was that the government had so much concern for the poverty-stricken.

Nor did we know that a person could earn as much as $3,000 a year and still be in the poverty class! Perhaps the definition of poverty is varied, depending on what class of society we place ourselves in.

Purcell said the Independent Bankers Association asserted the problem clearly in a recent statement. "Depressions have always had their beginning at a peak of prosperity, and they always are farm-led and farm-fed." So if we're in at a prosperity peak—enough to breed a depression—we'd like to know where the prosperity is.

The Congressman said further: "Each area of our society which can be strengthened by means of federal programs is receiving special consideration in the Congress."

"Better education, medical care for the aged, air and water pollution controls, research on disease, crime and delinquency controls, special regional recovery programs, higher business profit and income for workers, better transportation, city renewal, all these programs, and more, are receiving the attention of President Johnson and the Congress."

You will find many people opposed to a number of these programs, some possibility against all of them—medicare and federal aid to education being two of the uppermost. There are those, we believe, who would entertain the idea, if all these programs should suddenly go into effect, that we should revise The Lord's Prayer so as to say: "Our Government, which art in Washington... give us this day our daily bread," etc.

We've treated some of this lightly, we realize, but we all should do a lot of thinking about this "war on poverty" unless we want to enlist in "the walking man's army!"

Right here in Munday, though, we have a number of people—a dozen or so of them—who have other problems this week. They are that group of Chamber of Commerce officers and directors who are completing plans for the annual banquet.

These people will be breathing a sigh of relief, come about 9 p.m. next Tuesday, when the banquet is over. A lot of preparation goes into the planning and carrying out of such an event, and the let-down when it's over is pretty relaxing.

Having heard Cayce Moore in Amarillo last year, we told some local people that his jokes were clean. After that, we talked with some other publishers who disagreed to an extent. We hope Cayce won't make us out a liar, too. Anyway, he'll give you some laughs, and some food for thought, too.

C-C officials set today (Thursday) as the day for halting advanced sale of tickets for the banquet. They need to give the caterers an estimate of how many to prepare for.

This doesn't mean that you won't be able to get a ticket at all after Thursday—but it would be much better if you pocketed yours by this time.

Tax-Man Sam Sez:

If you haven't already got a copy of the Farmers' Tax Guide, Publication No. 225, from your agricultural agent or the Internal Revenue Service, you've been ignoring some mighty good advice.

Most of the farm news men on radio have advised you to get by the county agent's office and pick up this year's copy of the Farmers' Tax Guide. This is still mighty good advice and will help you keep your Federal income taxes from eating up all the profit.

Of course farmers who filed before January 15 can forget all the advisors except those who tell them to keep good records for next year.

THE PARAMOUNT OBLIGATION

David Lawrence recently wrote in U. S. News & World Report: ". . . no 'great society' will ever be maintained unless individual responsibility is recognized as the paramount obligation of the citizen, even as government expands and population grows.

"Government may guide and help its citizens but cannot supply talent to those who do not have it—or bestow ambition or initiative or creative ability on those who are not born with these qualities. And the individuals who do have these God-given capacities will not require governmental stimulus as they strive to improve the 'great society' of yesteryears."

This goes to the heart of the matter. Whatever the programs, whatever the dramatic names given to them, they must rely primarily on individual initiative, individual ambition, individual risk taking, and the desire of the individual to progress and to serve. Only in that way can we make material gains without sacrificing those freedoms and spiritual qualities which are the roots of true greatness.

LIKE DREAMS

Eugene F. Rinta, Director of Research of the Council of State Chambers of Commerce, has made an analysis of the proposed federal budget. And some of his findings point to dangers that are of the most direct interest to us all.

Appropriation requests come to a little under $100 billion. But when the new spending authority asked is added in, the figure becomes $112.4 billion.

The interest cost alone on the cumulative deficit of $36.3 billion for the six consecutive deficit years of 1961 through 1966 is $1.3 billion a year. And unless Congress substantially reduces this new spending authority, further deficits beyond 1966 are assured.

It would not be surprising if the final expenditure total for 1966 is ever greater than the budget estimate. For one thing, estimates of receipts could prove overly-optimistic, based as they are on the assumption that unbroken economic expansion will continue.

The implications in all this are of the utmost seriousness. At the top of the list is the possibility of more inflation—of further degradation of our 48-cent dollar. If that happens, the dramatic goals that are contemplated will fade like dreams.

BOSS OF THE MARKETPLACE

"Let's Keep Politics Out Of The Pantry." That is the title of an article by Charles G. Mortimer, Chairman of General Foods Corporation which appeared in a recent issue of Look magazine. And it is of very direct and personal interest to every consumer of the country.

The politics in question, of course, concern proposals to give government czar-like powers over such matters as the packaging and labeling of products. The argument is that, as of now, the consumer is the victim of all manner of deceptions and dubious practices. Mr. Mortimer sees no substance in that view. As he points out, laws now on the books provide effective safeguards over the purity of food products and the information printed on the labels. Beyond that, in his words, "Any manufacturer who tries to trick the housewife into buying his product by packaging or labeling it deceptively will soon go out of business. She may buy it once, but she'll never buy it again. And since marketing a food product involves heavy costs, no processor can remain solvent on one-time sales. He depends on repeat volume."

The point is that the housewife is her own best policeman, and no one knows that better than the people who produce, process, package and sell foods, as well as many other products. The proposed laws would deprive her of freedom of choice. They would add to costs. They would produce a drab uniformity. They would lessen competition. And they would substitute a bureaucrat's judgement for hers.

The housewife is boss of the marketplace now. That is the way it should be.

PERILS OF MEDICARE

Edward W. O'Brien, of the Portland Oregonian's Washington Bureau, writes: "An unpublished study by top government actuaries shows that the administration's medicare proposal would cost $3.8 billion a year by 1975 and that the proposed special health care fund would be just about broke by then.

"In this study, Social Security Administration experts found that the cost of operating medicare would exceed by 1972 the income to the fund from the new payroll taxes provided . . ."

These findings square with warnings given by nongovernmental authorities of the financial perils that medicare contains. And there is more than theory to back them up. Some foreign countries have invariably found that the actual costs far exceeded the optimistic estimates. In France, which took that step, reports indicate that the welfare system is perilously close to bankruptcy.

To make a bad matter worse, medicare is far more limited in its benefits than most people realize. Surveys show, for instance, that great numbers of people think it would pay doctors' and dentists' bills. It would not. Basically, it offers only a restricted program of hospital and nursing home care.

Other plans, which would provide much broader and more liberal medical services to the needy and which would avoid medicare's built-in dangers and weaknesses, are proposed. It is the duty of Congress to give every consideration to these alternatives and to see medicare for what it actually is.

SIKESTON, MO., STANDARD: "Don't tackle the job of shoveling snow with the vigor of a teen-ager unless you are a teen-ager. A shovel-full of fluffy snow weighs about four pounds. Shoveling ten loads a minute is equivalent to walking up three flights of stairs in the same time. Wet snow is even heavier and makes the same work equivalent to climbing to the seventh floor in one minute."

Crops and Robbers

The Weed Robbers

It's the biggest robbery in history; nearly four billion dollars! And it's taking place right now. Who are the victims? American farmers—you! Who are the robbers? Look out your window and you'll see them—weeds! According to figures supplied by the Department of Agriculture, the total yearly loss due to weeds on agricultural land in the U.S. comes to $3,747,036,000.

What's being done to foil the weed robbers? Plenty! Scientists at agricultural chemical laboratories are hard at work perfecting effective herbicides. Major chemical agricultural corporations have developed herbicides which arrest weeds before they can do any damage.

Preemergence weed killers like Atrazine, Simazine, or Caparol kill weeds before they even become juvenile delinquents. Preemergence weed control has proven more effective than mechanical methods, and the cost is lower.

Postemergence sprays on weeds are also valuable crop protectors. As an example, Atrazine will knock out weeds that have poked their larcenous heads about 1 1/2 inches out of the ground.

Corn growers plagued by weeds—like quackgrass, giant foxtail or northern nutgrass—formerly lost from $80 to $40 per acre to these weed highwaymen. Now corn growers have found they can harvest a better crop of corn by eliminating weeds with a herbicide that makes weeds throw up their leaves and cry, "Uncle." A single application of Atrazine—at or after planting—normally provides season-long control of most broadleaf weeds and grasses.

In like manner, cotton growers are turning to new herbicides like Caparol to give them cleaner cotton fields and protection from moisture and fertilizer-robbing weeds which steal billions from farmers each year.

REMEMBER WHEN?

"Ask your grandmother if she remembers this old 1893 Mosley oil-fired water heater and folding bathtub . . . I dare say, it would hardly meet the needs of 1964 living—supplying dishwashers, clothes washers, bathtubs, and lavatories with instant clean hot water upon demand.

Few of us actually realize that over 2/3 of the water used in the home is hot water. With the completely automatic electric water heater there is no fear of a flame going out when hot water is needed the most. And being totally flameless, it requires no venting, is easier to install and maintenance is practically nil.

What a change from the 'good ol' days!'"

FARM and RANCH Notes
 COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

A meeting will be held Friday night, March 19, at 8 p.m. in the Vo-Ag building in Munday to discuss nematode control. The build-up of nematodes in our soils is becoming a serious problem. We will have a chemical company representative who will demonstrate chemical control of these microscopic animals. Nematodes live in the soil and cause injury by piercing the roots and living on the plant sap. Some species enter the root itself and cause a knot to form similar to a nodule on a legume plant. The resulting drain on the plant can cause a severe reduction in yield. The injury to cotton roots give the Fusarium Wilt organism a chance to enter the plant and this is causing large losses in many fields in Knox County.

Small grains are growing rapidly at the present time in most of Knox County. The rust situation looks better but the critical time is still ahead. A good rain is needed all over the county and more especially in the northwest part since they have had less moisture. Land preparation is ahead of schedule for the coming planting season. Soil moisture is excellent for dryland cotton and grain sorghum.

Many farmers have their fertilizer placed in the rows for this year's crop.

Soil, water and air are among the most important considerations when growing plants indoors for long periods of time. The roots can't grow under improper soil conditions and the leaves will not develop properly if the atmosphere is poor.

Past research conducted at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station shows that the best growing medium for indoor plants is a mixture of 50 per cent horticultural grade perlite and 50 per cent coarse peat moss by volume, to which the proper nutrients have been added.

This mixture can be prepared for home use by uniformly mixing one and one-half bushels of horticultural grade perlite, one and one-half bushels of peat moss and four ounces of a complete all purpose rose fertilizer.

Be sure the mixture is thoroughly wet before potting or planting.

When indoor plants are grown in this mixture, watering once a week and feeding once every three months will be sufficient.

To feed the plants apply the all purpose fertilizer at a rate of one teaspoon for each six inch pot or one-half pound for each 100 square feet of surface soil.

Indoor plants do best when an air temperature of 60 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit is maintained at night. During the day, temperature can be as high as 85 to 90 degrees without serious problems arising.

Light is also an important factor to consider when growing indoor plants. However, the maintenance of minimum light requirements for satisfactory growth of indoor plants is not as exacting as is usually supposed.

The brighter the natural light during the daylight hours the shorter the period of artificial light that will be required. Also, the brighter the artificial light provided the shorter the period of illumination required.

Artificial light should not be provided for longer than a total of 16 hours per day, because eight hours of darkness must be provided during each 24 hour day period for healthy growth.

Also important in maintaining good appearance on indoor plants is the type of light used.

When only "daylight" fluorescent light is used, the color of many plants take on a cold and faded appearance. These undesirable effects can be overcome by the use of incandescent light often provided by the use of spotlights of incandescent tubes.

YOUNG TEXAN FOR DECEMBER—Frank P. (Pete) Brinkman III of Tyler has been selected by Texas Optimist Clubs to receive the Troy V. Post Award designating him Young Texan of the Month. Pete and the 11 other monthly winners will compete for valuable scholarships to be awarded at the statewide Troy Post Awards Banquet in Austin on February 27, 1965. One Month Remains For Safety Stickers AUSTIN—"Only one month remains for some 1,500,000 vehicles registered in Texas to secure the 1965 safety inspection sticker," Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today.

"The period set by law for securing the 1965 sticker ends at midnight, April 15, and there can be no extension of that deadline," Garrison pointed out. "Any Texas motorist whose vehicle does not display the new sticker after April 15 is subject to arrest by any sheriff or his deputy, any city policeman, or by officers of the Department of Public Safety."

Garrison said that in the remaining month of the inspection period there is sufficient time for the 5,300 official inspection stations to inspect the remaining vehicles without undue inconvenience to the motorist, provided the vehicle owners act promptly.

"From now until the deadline, every minute of the inspection station's time will be at a premium," Garrison warned, "and waiting lines will become general throughout the state."

Garrison suggested that congestion at inspection stations would be lessened if known defects in a vehicle were repaired prior to presenting the vehicle to the station for inspection.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

QUIET, PLEASE!

Satirist Ambrose Bierce once described noise as "the chief product of civilization." Bierce was prone to exaggerate. But there is no doubt that the noise level of our lives has risen alarmingly.

At times, the law must decide how noisy a person may be in his own home. One basic test can be found in the law of nuisance. Is Home Owner A committing a nuisance by making noise? Is Neighbor B entitled to have it stopped?

Oddly enough, both A and B stand on the same foundation: the rights of private property. One of those rights, argues A, is to do as he pleases on his own premises. B retorts that he is entitled to enjoy his private property in peace and quiet.

How to reconcile the irreconcilable? The degree of loudness is one factor, but only one. Justice is too elusive to be achieved by merely counting decibels. A court must seek out all the special circumstances that give color to the dispute.

For instance, noise is less lawful if made with malice aforethought. One woman was held liable for playing her radio loud and long at an open window, purposely to inflict a maximum of annoyance on the family next door.

Another factor is the ease of abatement. The owner of an incessantly barking dog was ordered to abate the nuisance, the court noting that it was simply a matter of not leaving the dog alone so much.

But noise appropriate to the time and place is usually no nuisance. Thus, courts have declined to interfere with the cackling of hens in a rural district and with evening croquet games that vexed only a single sensitive neighbor.

In another case, a court found no nuisance in the singing of popular songs on the front porch, even though the fastidious couple next door were scandalized. The court said:

"Those who enjoy the modern jazz cannot be restrained from producing it because it offends the classical ear."

Noise may not be the chief product of civilization. But civilization has certainly made more of a din less of a sin. One court, denying a home owner's complaint against the Little League baseball games on a nearby lot, had this rueful comment:

"Today we not only have modern conveniences but also modern inconveniences."

Knox Prairie Philosopher Invents A New Fountain Pen Designed To Help L. B. J. Save Time In Signing New Laws

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is in an inventive frame of mind this week, his letter indicates.

J. A.

Dear editor:
A lot of people think nearly everything's been invented that's inventable, and while there are more things invented than I have a use for, still there are some things yet to be invented that might come in handy.

Not though that all the time-saving inventions save time, except maybe for the rocking chair. I have save more time than anybody I know just sitting in one, part of the time listening to people complain about how their time-saving automatic washing machines or other gadgets are out of commission.

But what I started out to talk about was a genuine time-saving invention which I thought up the other day while watching President Johnson on television using 136 fountain pens to sign his name to just one bill Congress had just passed.

As I understand it, he uses all these pens so he can give them to various important people who helped out with the bill so they can go home and tell their children, and then their children and so forth down the line, that the family owns a fountain pen used by the President of the United States in signing such and such a bill.

Well now I have no quarrel with this, it's perfectly harmless and could become valuable—what do you suppose you could get for a ball point pen used by George Washington?—but I don't think it's fair to the President. What I mean is, when he wakes up in the morning he's supposed to start thinking about Viet Nam, Alabama, DeGaulle, tax cuts, labor disputes, newspaper reporters, his two daughters, Republicans, government waste, the farm problem, outer space, new legislation, etc., and keep it up till bed time.

But if he's got to use 136 fountain pens to write "Lyndon B. Johnson," which is nine pens per letter with one left over for the dot after the B., every time Congress passes a bill, you can see some problem is going to suffer, either Viet Nam, Alabama, the daughters, or something. It's bad budgeting of his time.

Therefore I have invented a special Presidential fountain pen which comes in 136 sections. He can sign his name with one quick flourish, get back to Viet Nam thinking immediately and let an assistant break it up and pass the pieces around.

This will also avoid endless bickering in the future. Have you ever stopped to think what's going to happen 100 years from now when 136 families turn up all claiming to have the fountain pen President Johnson used in signing a bill in 1965?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

COMMUNICATIONS Your Tool for Progress

Whatever happened to the Old Oaken Bucket?

One of our towns uses a communications system which automatically keeps the local water tower full from a distant water supply. In another of our towns the water supply lake uses our ELECTRONIC SENTRY® warning unit to notify authorities automatically when the water level reaches a low point. These are additional examples of how we serve in the ever-broadening field of communications. For full information about how our communications services can be your Tool for Progress, please call our Business Office.

Dropout Problem Is Cause For Concern

Three million of the nation's young people between the ages of 16 and 19 have become school dropouts.

Although this alarming number is cause for concern, nevertheless, the rate of dropout has decreased from 41 percent to 30 percent since 1950, says Patsy Reynolds, Extension Service specialist in family life education.

The term dropout doesn't bring pleasant pictures to mind. Many people often associate the colloquial term with juvenile delinquents. Yet the boy or girl who becomes a dropout may be a nice young person—just bewildered, unsure of himself and his goal in life, the specialist says.

Many youngsters face the decision of whether to leave school or continue before they are old enough or experienced enough to decide wisely. The process which leads to a student leaving school is a long one—and it is affected by the student, his family and his school.

"Youngsters need guidance and encouragement from their families and school officials. Many people must share the blame for a school dropout. We have made much progress in reducing the dropout rate—but 30 percent is still far too high," Miss Reynolds says.

While money to stay in school will help curb dropouts in some instances, yet people who care what happens to a youngster can help even more, the Texas A&M University specialist adds.
