Three killed, one injured en route to funeral here

Accident occurs on rain-slick highway

Three persons were killed and a fourth was critically injured about 5 p.m. Monday when their automobile was in collision with a truck-trailer on rain-slick Interstate Hwy. 20 just inside the Abilene city limits while they were en route to Post to attend the funeral of a relative.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Moore, both 55, and their daughter Sandra, 25, all of Detroit, Tex. Critically injured in the accident was the Moore couple's grandson, three-year-old Ricky Dale Moore, also of Detroit.

The Moores, their daughter and grandson were en route to Post to attend the funeral of Vancil Bowen of Post, who died Sunday night in McCloskey Veteran's Administration Hospital at Temple.

The east-bound truck, driven by George D. Wright, 59, of Brownwood, had gone out of control on the rain slick highway, careening across the grass median and into the path of the west-bound automobile.

The Moores and their daughter were thrown from the automobile. They were pronounced dead at the scene by Taylor County Justice of the Peace Roland Dunwoody.

The Moores' grandson, whose parents were in an automobile ahead of them, was pinned under the dashboard of the car, and it took 30 minutes for three pickup trucks and a wrecker truck to pull the automobile apart so the child could be extricated. He was still in the intensive care unit of an Abilene hospital Wednesday. The truck driver escaped injury in the crash.

There was also another car of relatives en route to Post, but they were further ahead of the crash scene and did not hear of the accident until they reached here.

The collision occurred about 500 feet east of the reconstructed Old Abilene Town on the outskirts of Abilene.

Funeral arrangements for the Emmitt Moores and their daughter were pending Wednesday with a Paris, Tex., funeral home.

Grand jury brings 11 marijuana true bills

You think the drug problem reached the small town, and in particular, read this:

Garza County district court jury returned 22 indictments Tuesday afternoon—and ex-hall of them were for possession of marijuana.

The most unusual indictment was against a Richmond, Tex., man out on bond, for offering a bribe to a highway patrolman to permit a prisoner to Six were indicted for burglaries, break-ins, or thefts here and all but one of these are in custody or are out on bond.

Three other indictments were for receiving and concealing stolen property and the other for unlawfully possessing an instrument for the smoking of narcotics.

Of the 11 indictments for marijuana possession eight came from arrests made in February and the other three for arrests made in city-county park here the night of April 8.

Those indicted for marijuana possession with dates of arrest are Bonnie Jay Hart, Feb. 23; Allen Murl Hayes, Feb. 23; Clifford James Redman, Feb. 23; Cynthia Curb King, Feb. 23; Lupe Perez, April 8; Mark A. Porter, April 8; Juan Perez, April 8; Jesse Cerda, Feb. 25; Augustine Cerda, Feb. 25; Elias Martinez, Feb. 25; and Cruz Villanvevo, Feb. 25.

Villanvevo also was indicted for possession of an instrument for smoking of narcotic drugs.

The bribe offer indictment was returned against Joe Ricardo Cantu, who according to the indictment "did unlawfully, willfully and corruptly offer to bribe K. E. Gilbreath Jr., highway patrolman, to permit a certain prisoner, to-wit: Joe Morales Hernandez, then in the lawful custody of said J. A. Holleman, Garza County sheriff, to escape, and the said Joe Ricardo Cantu did then and there willfully and corruptly attempt to give K. E. Gilbreath Jr. the sum of $100 in (See Grand Jury, page 8)

"The Joys of a Small Town". That's the title of an unusual "ad" on page 11 of today's Dispatch. It was written by The Dispatch local news staff and wasn't sold to anybody.

The advantages of small town living need stressing and this was the theme for the ad which was put together in a few minutes Tuesday afternoon to fill up some space because Dispatch advertisers were not numerous enough this week.

We are the first to admit that "our list" of "Joys" isn't the best in the world, so we are inviting reader contributions. We want better ones. For all of those we deem worthy of publication we will send the writer a check for $5.

Your list doesn't have to be long. We just want them sincere and thought-provoking. You don't have to be a "writer" to win publication in some future issue of The Dispatch. You need only speak from the heart in a way that comes across to those who read it.

Maybe we can stir up a little reflective thought about small town life, pass it along to others, and reawaken interest in small town living.

Pee Wee Pierce has an interesting old newspaper "under glass" at the library which was brought in to her recently. It is a Southland newspaper printed back in the 1924-26 era by Eddie Warren, former publisher of The Dispatch.

What caught our eye when we were looking at it—the other evening was a car ad—advertising a new "Chevrolet coach" for $695.

Ben Owen has quite a neat cabinet shop down at the east end of Main Street you ought to stop in and take a gander during his formal open house Saturday. We know Ben is mighty proud of his new plant—and he should be.

Welcome bonanza in most places

By now it shouldn't be any secret that revenue sharing is a welcome bonanza around the country in hordes of suburban towns, smaller cities, such as Post, and rural villages. Also in the middle-sized and less populous counties.

In many big cities and heavily populated counties, however, the story is far different. There, where depending on established social programs has become a way of life, the sweetness of revenue-sharing grants has been more than offset by the bitterness of budget cuts.

From New York to Los Angeles, from Portland, Ore., to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, governors and mayors have suddenly had to shelve some of the new spending plans they began to develop when Congress passed general revenue sharing last fall.

Instead, they are earmarking large portions of their revenue-sharing funds to replace money they expect to lose because of cutbacks. President Nixon has announced or already implemented in such key federal grant programs as model cities, the war on poverty, subsidized housing and aid to education.

The result: confusion, anger, frustration. Of course many of the small cities and counties such as Post and Garza have had to use revenue-sharing funds to keep some of the more vital federal programs going, but they have managed to do this without investing the staggering amounts it would take in larger places.

Moreover, here in Post and Garza County, the city and county have earmarked revenue-sharing funds for other much-needed projects, such as street and road improvements, just to mention one of the more important.

Like nearly every other town, city, county and state in the nation, we are taking our first taste of a very heady wine: our share of the $6 billion that the federal government will be distributing in each of the next 5 years under general revenue sharing, the program that lets local officials spend the money on nearly anything they want.

This is Phase I of Mr. Nixon's New Federalism, his controversial plan to "return power to the people" by eliminating complex federal grant programs and, instead, extending cities, counties and states bundles of untrammeled cash.

Will it work out? Some already have their doubts and say "no." Others, sold from the start, say they can't see how it will fail to work out. Time alone will tell.—CD

This is how it all came about

The annual transition to Daylight Saving Time starts Sunday, April 29. If you are one of the many who don't like it and are still looking for someone to blame it on—besides the Texas Legislature—blame it on the railroads.

In a news release to The Dispatch, Santa Fe Railway points out that few people are aware it was the persistent effort of American railroads to improve their service that brought about this "orderly" (the quotes are ours) method of reckoning and keeping time.

The railroad movement began at St. Louis, Mo., in May, 1872. During its first meeting an association of railroad superintendents formed a permanent organization which became successively the Time-Table Convention, the General Time Convention, the American Railway Association and, finally, the Association of American Railroads.

Years later, on Oct. 11, 1883, the General Time Convention at Chicago overwhelmingly voted adoption of Standard Time. A notice was issued immediately directing that all railway clocks governing train operation be set to the new standard at exactly 12 noon, Sunday, Nov. 18, 1883. Dubbed "the day of two noons," it was a significant milestone in American history.

The plan provided for four time zones—Eastern, Central, Mountain and Pacific—based upon mean sun-time on the 75th, 90th and 105th and 120th meridians west of Greenwich. These four meridians are approximately on the longitudes of Philadelphia, Memphis, Denver and Fresno, Calif.

In the eastern part of each time zone there was a noon based upon sun-time; then timepieces were set back from one to 30 minutes to the new Standard Time so that there was another noon when Standard Time in the community reached 12 o'clock.

Detailed instructions and recommendations were issued for adjustment of railroad timepieces to the new standard. Similar information was furnished public officials of cities and towns throughout the country since the plan's success was largely dependent upon the cooperation of all communities in adopting the new time locally. The American people soon accepted Standard Time without question and the standardization movement gradually spread to other lands until today it is in almost universal use.

Surprisingly, the new reckoning of time instituted by the railroads in 1883 was effected without federal legislation. Although adopted and used by the federal government and the states, cities and towns throughout the nation, it wasn't until 35 years later on March 19, 1918, that Congress passed the Standard Time Act.

The Standard Time Act gave federal sanction to the four zone systems adopted by the railroads and provided for "daylight saving" time to conserve fuel (especially important today as the nation faces an energy crisis) and to increase national efficiency.

It wasn't until just a few years ago, though, that Texas adapted Daylight Saving Time, which has proved a boon to some, a bane to others.

So, now DST regulates the lives and habits of people in Texas, as well as elsewhere. The transition itself can be accomplished with little disruption simply by advancing our clocks and watches one hour when we go to bed Saturday, or early Sunday morning.—CD

WHILE WE ARE all so concerned with the Watergate case, what else is happening? Well, the Atlantic is widening, the Pacific is narrowing and the Alps are growing higher. Los Angeles is sliding northward and Africa is splitting apart.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Roy O. Miller of Lancaster, Calif., and the Lawrence Halls of Beaver, Okla., I had some new out-of-town papers to read over the weekend. The Millers, here for a few weeks' visit with their son, the Rev. George L. Miller, and family brought me a Sunday issue of the Los Angeles Times (I'll get it right this time. Mr. Miller said the last time he brought me a copy of the Times, I called it the Herald-Examiner when I referred to it in this column.)

THE HALLS, WHO used to be our neighbors here, sent me a copy of the Beaver paper telling about the National Cow Chip Throwing Contest to be held there. They wrote on the margin, beside the cow chip throwing story: "Ain't this something?" I agree. But it's helping put Beaver, Okla., on the map.

The man up the street says nowadays children are called bright when they make remarks that used to call for a licking.

THE WEST TEXAS Area of the Texas Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, which recently shortened its name—but I can't recall to what—has honored Lou Marks of Post for more than 50 hours of service to the organization during the past year.

Lou has been in charge of the association's Christmas Seal campaign here the last few years and not only he, but his wife, Maxine, have given much time to the work of this worthwhile association in Garza County. Lou was presented his award at a recent dinner meeting of the group in Lubbock.

NANCY COOK, another in the long line of cooks to attend Texas Tech University, was one of the candidates for Rodeo Queen in the collegiate rodeo there last week. Nancy, a 1972 graduate of Post High School, didn't win the title, but she would have gotten my vote if they had sent me a ballot.

And down at Western Texas College, Snyder, another Post High graduate, Pam Petty, was named "Miss Western Texas College" from among a field of five candidates. She and Bobby Peeples of Odessa, who was named "Mr. Western Texas College," were announced the winners at the college spring formal last week. As it turned out, Pam didn't need my vote, but she, too, would have gotten it if they'd sent me a ballot.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS reports that the number of stray dogs in Mexico City has risen from 300,000 to 800,000 in the past 10 years. An official of the Health Ministry there said that if appropriate steps are not taken, soon there will be as many dogs as people in the Mexican capital.

In proportion to population, the stray dog situation appears to be just about as bad in Post as it is in Mexico City, especially in our area out in the northwest part of town, where many householders will tell you the dogs are about to "take over."

FUNNY, ISN'T it, how two of the City Council's biggest "headaches"—stray dogs and garbage—seem to keep running together. Hungry dogs, scrounging for something to eat, play havoc with trash cans—even those with lids and in racks. Many of these dogs are owned by people who won't feed them. And many of them are so big that when they get hungry enough they can get to just about any garbage can, no matter how high off the ground it is or how securely the lid is on.

One of our readers, knowing about my name hobby, asks if I can tell her how the word "maverick" originated. She came up with an easy one. Most names I am asked to research are much tougher, but it didn't take me any time at all to find out about "maverick"; it was already spelled out for me in a book.

THE WORD "maverick" was first used for unbranded cattle found on the range, after the Civil War. The name originated from Samuel Maverick, a Texas lawyer who had acquired some cattle in 1845. His cowhands were shiftless in branding the herds, causing unbranded cattle in Texas to be called "one of the Maverick's."

Mr. Gardner has posed this question to many friends over the past several years. He found the most frequently mentioned word was "Live." Live ranked among the three words most often mentioned for first place. The other two words were "Love" and "Learn."

AFTER THESE first three words, Mr. Gardner found that agreement breaks down for choice of a fourth, a fifth, and so on. However, after much researching and meditating, he arrived at what he calls "Seven Words to Live By." He placed them in the following order: "Live, love, learn, think, give, laugh, try." As a final observation he asked: "Can you pack better advice into seven words?"

Notaries public required to file for new term

Secretary of State Mark W. White Jr. announced that presently commissioned notaries public desiring reappointment for the new term which begins June 1, 1973, and ends June 1, 1975, must pay the required fee and file a new oath and bond with the county clerk between May 1, 1973, and May 15, 1973, inclusive.

Secretary of State White further stated that any person not now a notary public who desires appointment for the beginning of the new term on June 1, 1973, should apply to the county clerk before May 14. The required application forms may be obtained from County Clerk Carl Cederholm.

White emphasized that notaries public should not send requests for appointment or for commissions directly to the Secretary of State, inasmuch as the law specifically requires that the county clerk approve notary bonds and forward copies of the application to the Secretary of State.

The Lubbock seminar is one of six being presented throughout the state under grants from the National Museum Act (administered by the Smithsonian Institution) and the Moody Foundation (through the Texas Historical Foundation).

LIBRARY LISTENING POST

By GEORGE L. MILLER

At Easter time it's appropriate to mention that miracles still can happen — and furthermore you can see one down at the library right now!

About a month or so ago a gentleman drove up to the house just as I was about to drive off. The first miracle was that he caught up with me.

The second was much more spectacular. It seems Mr. Alexander — for that's who he was — lives in the house where the Gordon Lees used to live. One day he was rummaging through a cupboard or closet, and came across a scrapbook.

That scrapbook was a prize discovery worthy to be placed alongside the Dead Sea Scrolls. Upon investigation he discovered it was filled with clippings about the library — all the stories in The Post Dispatch in fact during the first year of its operation.

Miracle number three was the timing of this find. It had only been three days before this momentous discovery, that librarian Pee Wee Pierce had called me asking if I knew of any scrapbook or history of the library. I didn't, of course, and we both berated ourselves for not having enough foresight to begin such a collection years ago.

Now, wonder of wonders, an unknown scrapbook had come to light, and a beauty of a book I might add. Each clipping was carefully trimmed and handsomely mounted with blue construction paper borders. The information contained in it was priceless. Our rejoicing was great indeed!

There was only one hitch, the scrapbook ended abruptly at March 2, 1967. Pee Wee and I would have liked to have had a more complete scrapbook, but we were delighted with having that much.

Enter miracle number four. Friends of the library, Mrs. Delmer Cowdrey and Mrs. L. H. Peel, have complete collections of issues of The Post Dispatch from March 1967 to the present. What's more, they're willing to allow us to clip all library stories from the papers for our scrapbooks.

Pee Wee is once more rejoicing, this time in the middle of a mound of clippings that defies description. The important word, however, would be "complete", and praises be, that's exactly what it was.

One more miracle deserves our mention. Another friend of the library, Nell Morris, took on the job of trimming, mounting and putting together our scrapbooks. And she did it. Beautifully. So beautifully, you'd look long and far to find better looking scrapbooks anywhere. They're on display at the library right now, so you can see for yourself.

Yes, we've been blessed with a closet-full of miracles, and because of them, we have preserved a complete history of the library, from its birth to the present. You better believe we're grateful!

All of the Veterans Administration's 18 hospitals are now affiliated with colleges and other schools to help train medical and allied health personnel.

STATE Capital NEWS

By BILL BOYKIN

AUSTIN — "If we go through an intellectual debate on a new Constitution for Texas, and the Legislature turns down our recommendations, we will be trained as competent lecturers for high school civics classes."

That was the rationalization of Wales Madden, Amarillo attorney, and member of the new 37-member Constitution Revision Commission. He spoke before the Panhandle Press Association on the tedious chore before the Commission, and invited editors and publishers to attend the first public hearing of the Commission on April 25 in Amarillo.

"We will hold 18 public meetings throughout Texas," Madden told his Amarillo audience, "and we'll be hard pressed for time to get the new draft of the proposed constitution to the Texas Legislature by Nov. 1, 1973."

The Texas Legislature becomes a ConCon in January, 1974, and has been charged by the voters to write a new constitution by May, 1974.

There will be no changes in the Texas "bill of rights", Madden pointed out.

Texas Constitution is longest in the nation—five times longer than the U.S. Constitution. Voters have approved 209 amendments (out of 317 submitted) to the document since 1880.

"If the new constitution is not approved," he added, "we predict that we'll have 200 more amendments approved by the year 2,000."

Several Texas House members attending the Panhandle Press meeting said they believed that the voters would approve the constitution — as submitted by the Legislature.

Madden predicted that the Speaker of the House of Representatives would be the presiding officer of the ConCon in 1974 because "the House has more votes than the Senate on the decision."

"It will be a 'peoples' document," he concluded, "a document of 'all seasons'."

BUSY LEGISLATURE — Returning from a four-day Easter holiday this week, the Legislature is faced with a hurry-up schedule and a mountain of work before its late May adjournment deadline.

The House plodded for days through piles of mainly-foredoomed amendments before passing its $9.7 billion appropriations bill.

A $9.5 billion version of the state budget for 1974-75, meanwhile, zipped through the Senate finance committee and was expected to pass quickly and smoothly.

Since both houses were ready to bow to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's demand for a no-new-taxes appropriations bill, little hangup is seen for budget conferees in closing days of the session.

Main differences in the House and Senate spending bills lie in the area of public welfare, and that is a fast-changing field, considering federal funding laws are subject to Washington agency interpretation.

While the budget remains the principal job unfinished, there are numerous other major pieces of legislation awaiting action. They include:

- Code of ethics and lobby control strengthening.
- Election measures.
- A sweeping variety of environmental bills.
- Penal code revision.
- The newsman's "shield law" to protect information sources, which is stalled in a conference committee, with conferees at odds over whether courts should be empowered to force disclosure.
- Overhaul of the school finance system to benefit poor districts — a job which almost certainly will be left to a later legislature.

ALLOWABLE HELP UP—Texas Railroad Commission for the 14th straight month set the May oil allowable at 100 per cent of potential.

Chairman Jim Langdon said gasoline stocks were down 10 per cent from last year — or at 189.5 million barrels as of April 13.

Ten of 14 major crude buyers requested the same output for May as in April. Three requested less and one, more.

Exceptions to the 100 per cent allowable are East Texas field (86 per cent), Tom O'Conner (70 per cent) and some small fields (80 per cent).

SCANDAL COMMITTEE REPORTS — A House Investigating Committee named two years ago to investigate the scandal-marked Sharpstown banking bills of 1969 handed in a belated report and six recommendations, five of which already have been passed on by the House.

The Committee's new recommendation urged that speakers of the House not have personal legislative programs.

Other recommendations included an ethics code for public officials, a strong lobby control act, pre-filing of bills before sessions, making it a misdemeanor to divulge information on grand jury proceedings before official action taken, and adequate advance posting of bills for hearings.

The five-member panel said it is regrettable "the big fish" in the Sharpstown case was granted immunity from prosecution and that "the cloak of suspicion was improperly and unfairly thrown over the shoulders of several honorable and hard-working members of the House, resulting in their loss to the State of Texas."

COURTS SPEAK—The Court of Criminal Appeals once more refused to condone admission of lie detector test results, even by agreement of all sides, in a Nueces County trial for heroin possession. The decision reversed a 20-year conviction.

Upholding a life sentence for murder of an Abilene school girl, the same court concluded the trial judge was justified in admitting a watercolor sketch of the slaying scene.

MORE JOB INJURY BENEFITS — Workers injured in on-the-job accidents will collect more benefits under a bill passed by the Senate with only three dissenting votes.

The measure would raise weekly maximum compensation from $49-$63 September 1, to $70 September 1, 1974, and $7 a week thereafter for each $10 increase in the average weekly wage for manufacturing workers. Minimum benefits will also go up from $9 to $15 September 1 under the bill.

In addition, lifetime death benefits would be paid to surviving spouses and children up to 18 (or 25 if attending school). More workers would also be included under workmen's compensation through SB 283.

HUNTING-FISHING FEES UP — Legislation boosting hunting and fishing licenses fees sharply is now near final passage.

The Senate approved with minor amendments the House bill raising hunting licenses from $3.25 to $5.25 a year and fishing licenses from $2.15 to $4.25. A combination license could be obtained under the bill for $8.75. The nonresident hunting license would go up from $25 to $50.25.

What to Do When Your Easter Lily Dies

By George L. Miller

Christians warm up their religion at Christmas and Easter. The pageantry and music of these holidays give added zest to their faith. The drama of these special times makes us glad to believe in Jesus Christ.

Only the color fades, the excitement wanes, the Christmas trees drop their needles and the Easter lilies die.

Some people tend to panic when the glamor fades away. They think their God is less real, or worse, that he was never real at all, that it was all emotion and bright show.

When that happens, it's tempting to try to recapture the lost glow. Much fervent prayer and Bible reading has been inspired by the need to revive the joy and enthusiasm we once felt but have temporarily lost. Unfortunately instead of renewing our faith, such religious exercise too often ends in frustration.

When the Easter Lily dies, faith may turn cold as well, and the harder we search for its lost beauty the more it will elude us.

There's an alternative. Instead of looking frantically for the beauty of Christ in increased religious ritual, how about making your own life beautiful? Easter lilies have to fade, religious holidays will pass, but the beauty of God's love can thrive in us—if we will let it.

Stop looking outside yourself for signs of God's presence, he is within you. Make up your mind to be the continuing bit of bright color in the drab dullness of our daily life. Wear a smile, keep a hint of laughter in your voice, let your life sing.

If you can do this you needn't worry about your faith suddenly growing cold, you won't have to think about it at all—your faith will be you, a bright light for God in a shadowed world.

First 4-H Congress Set for July 10-12

County expects to be represented at the first Texas 4-H Congress, July 10-12 in Houston, which will involve members between the ages of 15 and 19 in a program of ideas that will help solve the concerns of young people.

There are two objectives for the first 4-H Congress," points Don Stormer, state 4-H Extension Service leader for the Texas Extension Service. "One is to identify specific areas of concern to older youth that have not been included in the 4-H program. County Extension Agents and 4-H leaders will present their effort in meeting needs and interests of older youth."

Second objective is to provide information that will be of interest to county delegates. The Texas Extension Service has recommended a representative group of older youth, has recommended a value-related theme is being developed for the Congress," explains the 4-H official.

Stormer expects a total attendance of more than 500 for the Congress, which will be held at the Shamrock-Hilton Hotel. Participants will include county delegates, members of the 1972 and 1973 Texas 4-H Councils, and 28 county agents.

Each county is entitled to at least one delegate. Additional delegates will depend on the number of older 4-H members in each county. State council members are not included in the county quota.

According to the 4-H leader, a grant of $3,000 by the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo has helped underwrite some of the Congress costs. However, each delegate must still pay his own expenses.

Arts, Crafts Fair set for Kerrville

KERRVILLE — The greatest number of Texan artists and craftsmen ever assembled for a single show, 289 demonstrating 75 different arts and crafts, are scheduled to exhibit their talents, show and sell their wares May 25-28 during the annual Texas State Arts & Crafts Fair in Kerrville.

Of the exhibitors, 279 were chosen from over 450 artists and craftsmen who applied for participation. Another 10 (possessing skills in making sling-shots, saddles, quilts, bread dough dolls and lye soap, corn grinding, sheep shearing, dyeing wool by using herbs and vegetables, and blacksmithing) were specially invited so that their crafts would be represented.

This year's lineup reflects an increase of 114 exhibitors and 21 crafts over last year's number.

Among the crafts marked for first time showing at the fair are making of arrowheads, belt buckles, sour dough bread, bread dough dolls, small clay flutes, terrariums, and tombstone rubbings. Marble painting, decorative painting, silk screen painting, tole painting and wax painting will also make fair debuts.

In a custody fight between an unwed father and the maternal grandmother, the court awarded the child to the father. The court felt that, other things being equal, the closer relationship should make the difference.

Of course, the father himself may be disqualified by his own failings. In another case, an unwed father filed suit to gain custody of his two young daughters. They had been entrusted by their mother to her aunt.

However, the court decided that the children were better off where they were, with the aunt. The court pointed to evidence that, on several occasions, the father had been guilty of "cruelty and depravity"—hence, was not likely to provide a proper home for the girls.

As one judge put it: "The polar star for determining the custody of children is what serves the best interests of the children."

It's the Law . . .

RIGHTS OF UNWED FATHER

Does an unwed father have any right to the custody of his child? As a rule, in case of dispute, the law gives preference to the mother. Two arguments are generally cited in her favor:

- 1) that mother's love is a more powerful emotional tie than father's love; and
- 2) that the mother's kinship to the child is more certain than the father's.

But suppose the mother is out of the picture—perhaps uninterested in the child, perhaps unfit, perhaps dead. Then, may the unwed father insist on custody if he so chooses?

The question arises in conflicts with the mother's relatives or with a community agency. The tendency in recent years—perhaps reflecting greater attention to the role of the unwed father—has been for the courts to rule in his favor.

For example: In a custody fight between an unwed father and the maternal grandmother, the court awarded the child to the father. The court felt that, other things being equal, the closer relationship should make the difference.

Of course, the father himself may be disqualified by his own failings. In another case, an unwed father filed suit to gain custody of his two young daughters. They had been entrusted by their mother to her aunt.

However, the court decided that the children were better off where they were, with the aunt. The court pointed to evidence that, on several occasions, the father had been guilty of "cruelty and depravity"—hence, was not likely to provide a proper home for the girls.

As one judge put it: "The polar star for determining the custody of children is what serves the best interests of the children."

SECRET ATHEIST
"I am a believing, God-fearing Christian," George assured Kathy repeatedly during their courtship.

But after the wedding, he confessed that he had been lying. He had been an atheist all the time.

To Kathy, a devoutly religious woman, the situation was unbearable. As soon as possible she went to court for an annulment, and the judge granted her a decree. The judge said the marriage lacked the "meeting of the minds" that was essential to make any contract binding.

While the law will tolerate a reasonable amount of "salesmanship" in court, it will not tolerate deception that strikes at the heart of the marriage relation.

However, not every statement connected with religious matters is considered to be that vital.

Take another case in which the bridegroom, having promised to go through a church wedding after the civil ceremony, failed to carry out his promise. For five months he managed to find one excuse after another for staying away from the church.

At last his wife filed suit for an annulment. But this time, the court turned her down. The court reasoned that if she was willing to put up with her husband's excuses for five months, the religious ceremony could not have been so important to her after all.

Of course, the more firmly the marriage is established, the more reluctant the courts are to annul.

A number of cases have been based on the premarital consent by one spouse to have the children raised in the religion of the other spouse. In this situation, even if the consent turns out to be fraudulent, courts have generally refused to find enough grounds for an annulment.

PLANS TO USE METRIC SYSTEM TAKE FORM

"You're never too old to learn," or let's at least hope so since plans for converting to the metric system of measuring and weighing things are taking shape in the United States and making appearances in grocery stores.

Labels on some processed foods give a measurement in liters or grams—in addition to usual information using quarts, ounces or pounds.

Some labels use the metric system because the product is exported to other countries, or imported to the United States—but other labels carry metric system figures because food processors have begun the changeover.

Considered simple and consistent, the metric system of weights and measures has been lauded by some educators, who believe that children learn it more quickly and easily than the system now in use.

But what about us "old dogs who have trouble learning new tricks." In addition, the metric system uses decimals instead of fractions, making arithmetic simpler. This I agree with.

Others have questioned the need for changing from the system we understand and seem to make work.

Advocates of the metric system point out that the United States is the only major industrial nation not using it. In fact, they say, there are only 13 other countries—all quite small—not using metric weights and measures.

The rest of the world is either already metric, or committed to becoming metric.

Advocates argue that conversion to the metric system would be an economic advantage, giving the United States a more competitive role on the world market.

Many have raised questions about cost of a metric changeover and who will pay for it. Reports from industries which have already made the change indicate that it took less time—and cost less money—than expected.

Some propose that the cost be allowed to "fall where it may," letting everyone bear some of it. Proponents of this approach note that everyone, in turn, will share benefits.

Homemakers have asked about converting recipes and measuring utensils, so some manufacturers are producing utensils with metric markings on one side and the customary markings on the other. Recipe writers may follow that example and include figures for both systems.

But let's face the fact that the metric system is coming and we will have to learn it. So let's not be prejudiced, but take it on as a challenge in continuing education. The American way is not always, evidently, the best way.

Nation's postal workers to be honored April 30 by special stamp issue

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Postmaster General E. T. Klassen has announced the design of a unique postal tribute in the form of 10 special postage stamps to honor the nearly 700,000 employees of the U.S. Postal Service.

"These stamps are designed to emphasize to the American people the important duties performed by the men and women who are responsible for moving almost 90 billion pieces of mail a year," Klassen said.

Ten eight-cent commemorative stamps on the same sheet, each depicting a service performed by postal people — from window clerks selling stamps to workers on the workroom floor to letter carriers — will be issued simultaneously at more than 40,000 U. S. post offices, stations and branches on Friday, April 30.

Survey needed for city to decide on land bids

The Post city council, at a special meeting last Thursday afternoon, tabled action on accepting bids for purchase of 40 to 45 acres comprising the old city reservoir until the exact amount of acreage involved is determined by a survey.

In its advertisement for bids, the city had described the property as "40 to 45 acres comprising the old city reservoir on the edge of the caprock west of Post, plus a narrow right-of-way down to the present city water storage tanks."

The council opened and read time bids on the property, but because of not knowing the exact acreage was unable to determine if the bid of J. Martin Basinger or the one of Rex Allison was highest. Basinger's bid was $8,789 for the entire property, and Allison's bid was $152.75 per acre.

The council, with Mayor pro tem Donald Windham serving in the absence of Mayor Giles C. McCrary decided to defer the bid letting until the acreage is surveyed.

Pete Maddox, director of public works, told The Dispatch today that a surveyor is supposed to come in "anytime now" to survey the property.

In the only other action at the special meeting, E. R. (Buster) Moreland and Ed Sawyers were sworn in for new two-year terms by the mayor pro tem. Mayor McCrary, who was re-elected to office along with Councilmen Moreland and Sawyers, will be sworn in later. He was out of town at the time of the special meeting.

NEW SCHOOL PROPOSED

Close vote predicted in Southland bond election

Southland Independent School District voters will go to the polls Saturday in a special $500,000 bond election for construction of a new Southland school.

A close vote is anticipated. One community meeting already has been held on the school bond issue and the second and final one is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Southland school auditorium to give voters an opportunity to acquaint themselves with full particulars of the plans and costs involved.

Architectural plans call for construction of a new school building which will contain 11 classrooms, a science room, a library, a "cafeteria" (combination cafeteria and auditorium), and a gymnasium.

If the bond issue carries, construction is expected to get under way sometime around Aug. 1 with school officials hopeful of being able to move classes into the building next January or February.

Voting Saturday will be in the hours of 8 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Competing in the Quarter Horse Show at the Texas Tech Intercollegiate Rodeo Saturday, John Bill Hedrick, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hedrick, missed winning the high point saddle by only three points.

Winner of the saddle was Mona Henderson of Floydada, who competed in the same age group, 13 and under, as John Bill. She scored 27 points to the local youngster's 24.

John Bill, a member of the Graham 4-H Horse Club, won first in barrels, second in pole bending and reining, third in showmanship at halter and western horsemanship and fifth in western pleasure.

Funds lopped off for student work

There will be no Neighborhood Youth Corps program at the Post schools this summer as there was last year when the program made it possible for the school to hire eight students for 260 hours of summer work, Supt. Bill Shiver told The Dispatch today.

Funds for the program, which is administered by the Office of Educational Opportunity, will not be available for this summer, Shiver said he has been informed.

In addition to providing employment to eight students who needed jobs during the summer, the Neighborhood Youth Corps program also is providing jobs for four students during the school year.

Although the school could hire only eight students under the program last summer, there were at least 50 applicants for the jobs, the superintendent said.

Babe Ruth loop reorganized; tryouts set for coming week

The Babe Ruth League was reorganized at a meeting Monday night with A. J. Howell Jr. elected president and league tryouts set for Monday and Tuesday, April 30 and May 1.

Edna Owen, concession chairman, and Bill McBride, publicity chairman and announcer.

Monday's tryouts, which will be for all ages—13, 14 and 15—will be held at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday's tryouts will be held for those who missed Monday's. Boys who want to play in the Babe Ruth League will have to make one of the tryout sessions to be eligible, the new league president said.

There will be four teams this year, with the possibility of a fifth team coming in from Southland, Howell said. The four teams already in and their managers and assistants are: Braves, Eddie Valdez, John Valdez; Indians, Paul Quinonez; Cubs, Fidel Navarro; White Sox, Troy Holly and Larry Scrivener.

Howell said plans are to start the season about May 16, with a league shutdown for the final examinations week at the schools.

Monday's reorganization meeting was held following a recent resignation of officers, announced in a letter to The Dispatch, because of an apparent lack of interest on the part of adults in the league.

Monday night's meeting indicated, however, that there is sufficient interest for the league to operate again this summer, and two of the officers elected were two of those who had announced their resignations in the letter to The Dispatch.

AUSTIN — Last year auto visitors from other states and nations left more money in Texas equivalent to $1.6 billion for every resident Texan.

The Texas Highway Department's annual Visitor Industry Report, issued today, revealed that out-of-state visitors left $1.6 billion in Texas last year. Calling tourism an industry without smokestacks, H. H. Taylor, director of the department's Travel & Information Division, described tourist dollars as "new money."

Throughout last year the Highway Department tallied 16.6 million visitors who came to Texas by car, camper, and other motor vehicles. Although the total was about one per cent more than the previous year, the daily rate of spending increased by 21 per cent.

Phyllis' Phrases

By PHYLIS ECKOLS

Before this column goes one step further, I had better warn you: am writing this in the late hours of the night. Also I have a horror of tornados, and the weathermen have already succeeded in scaring me until I'm near the edge of sanity with their severe weather forecasts. So I may not make too much sense this week. With shaky legs, bitten fingernails, and an extremely nervous, unstable state of mind, I will continue.

You know I have several solutions for dealing with this so-called tornado season. The first solution is to shut yourself up in a closet and let your fingernails (by the time you get the tenth nail bitten down to the quick, it should all have blown over for THIS time anyway. This solution is for the chickens—ME!) The second solution is to buy a yacht and cruise the Caribbean until "tornado season" leaves. This solution is for the people who have enough money to escape. But listen, chickens, the Caribbean has sharks!

Another solution (this is for the really creative person) is to do an "anti-rain" dance. (Maybe if they put in some real dramatic movements it'll rate good enough to be "anti-tornado.") But if you've already digested your last ingernail, don't have enough money to cruise the Caribbean, and aren't creative enough to make up the steps to an "anti-tornado dance"—YOU'RE JUST UP THE TREEK WITHOUT A PADDLE like me).

I hope everyone enjoyed their Easter vacation as much as I did. Now it's almost time to start sticking the last month of school out at those HOT classrooms. (It's hard to concentrate on things like Shakespeare and such when perspiration is running down your face, arms, etc.)

The track girls will be going to regional this week. Good luck!

The Speech classes are in the process of electing candidates to run for president of Post High school. The election is only a model election—it is not the real thing. The purpose of it is to teach the students the process of elections, from writing platforms to voting a candidate. Even though the whole thing is just a model, everyone in high school will be allowed a vote. The election is to be in a day.

Lately, I have been reading up on Women's Liberation. I won't express my own opinion—but I will say that some of the articles are quite interesting. I found the ones about marriage particularly interesting. I think possibly Barbara Reinsand summed up one school of thought quite well. "Why does a woman work ten years to change a man's ways and then complain that he's not the same man that she married?" Another interesting thought was expressed by Perry Tanksley. "Marriage is like the army. Everybody complains—but you'd be surprised at how many reenlist."

I have a few fair words of warning to the Junior class—look out, your Senior year is EVEN MORE expensive than your Junior year! Better start pinching pennies—you'll need 'em.

I've come to the conclusion that wealth may not make people happy—but it sure can make the misery a little more enjoyable!

DOLPH BRISCOE
GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

GREETINGS: AUSTIN, TEXAS
The State of Texas has had a proud and colorful history; an unsurpassed heritage filled with dedication, devotion and individualism.

We owe a great debt to our forefathers; the pioneers and early settlers whose accomplishments have been an inspiration and a guiding light to all Texans.

All too often, in these modern times, we tend to overlook and fail to recognize and appreciate the labors of these great men and women.

Increased public appreciation is needed for the men and women who toiled, under extreme hardships, and traveled to the far corners of our great state, and established themselves as the pioneers of our proud heritage.

The Texas State Historical Survey Committee and the two hundred fifty-four County Historical Survey Committees are working diligently and efficiently to preserve Texas' historic past. The County Committees, this year, are making a special effort to focus public attention to the dramatic course of events in their Counties, thus designating each day of a week for special activities highlighting the various elements of the state preservation program such as the beautification of the approaches to and areas surrounding historic sites and markers; the locating and recording of noteworthy landmarks; honoring pioneers and early settlers; involving the youth in historic work, and touring historical exhibits, sites and markers.

THEREFORE: I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate March 22 to April 30 as COUNTY HISTORY APPRECIATION in Garza County, Texas, and urge all citizens to support and participate in the activities of this observance.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 30th day of March, 1973.

History of Motley County published

MATADOR — The land of the big ranches and the wild west has broken into print with the publication of a voluminous History of Motley County.

Texas' newest county history, "Of Such As These — A History of Motley County and Its Families," has been authored by Eleanor Mitchell Traweek, daughter of a pioneer Motley County newspaperman and a life-long resident of the north central rolling plains that makes up one of Texas' most colorful counties.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: What I am to be—I'm now becoming.

SPAG meeting is slated on water, sewer, drainage

LUBBOCK — The Water, Sewer and Drainage advisory committee of the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG) will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Reddy Room, Monterey Shopping Center, on 50th Street in Lubbock.

Included on the agenda is a progress report on the rural water and sewer comprehensive plan which is being prepared for 11 of the 15 counties within the SPAG region. The committee will also review and comment on the environmental impact statement on the natural salt pollution control study, Brazos River Basin, Texas.

While the study is basin-wide in scope, it affects the South Plains region in that, of the three proposed salt retention reservoirs, two will be partially within King County to retain natural salts which would otherwise drain into the Brazos River.

CURTIS DIDWAY

Didway introduced Raphael at the banquet as "my first football coach." Raphael was a junior high teacher and coach here when Didway first enrolled in the Post schools as a sixth grader.

Mrs. Raphael attended the banquet as district president of the

The Joys of a Small Town!

The advantages of small community living need advertising. With this in mind The Dispatch staff in a few minutes assembled this list:

Knowing which dogs are strays and which are not and being able to call them by name.

Knowing how the fellow down the block REALLY got that black eye.

Waiting from one week until the next for the only newspaper in the world that gives a hoot about your town.

Being able to shout a greeting across the street without drawing curious stares—or getting arrested.

Feeling welcome in just about any business place up and down the street when your feet get tired and you want to go in and sit for awhile.

Knowing that someone means it when they say, "Come back to see us."

Being able to take a nighttime stroll without the danger of getting "mugged."

Getting a laugh instead of a cussing when you absent-mindedly try to get into a car parked near your own.

Going home for lunch—and a nap if you want one.

Not locking up the house except for the annual two weeks vacation.

Supporting your schools, not just as the educational center for your children but as the activity hub of the community.

Finding it the hardest place in the whole world to be lonesome, or which to carry a heavy burden.

Finding it the easiest place to help others because you know them so well.

Going to church Sundays and finding your special niche in God's Work.

Speaking to everybody—and having everybody speak to you.

We are sure there are many who can write better lists—and we want them. For each we accept for future publication we will be most happy to mail the author a check for $5.00—but what's more important we want to publicize them in the hope it will help to renew interest in small towns everywhere.
