SANITARY PREVENTION IS BEST INSECT CONTROL

Insects have bothered man since the beginning of recorded history. They have stung him, bitten him, destroyed his home and his food, and even worse, carried germs that brought sickness and death. Entomologists report that they can identify some 10,000 "public enemy" insects that do $4 billion damage annually.

For thousands of years man probably did little but swat and squash the insects to defend himself against them but by 1909 E. C. Horner was writing about sulphur as a fumigant. Since that time insecticides have steadily improved. One, DDT, was developed in 1942 and gave promise of providing the knockout punch against insect hordes. However, many insects, including flies, salt marsh mosquitoes, roaches, and lice quickly developed resistance to the chemical. Other insects including Mexican beetles, spider mites and many aphids were not affected by it.

Even today there is still only one sure defense against insects. A simple but complete program of community and home sanitation. Start this program at home by clearing the weeds from around the garage, stock ponds and fence corners. These are ideal breeding places for mosquitoes and flies.

Check your garbage cans for leaks and corrosion, replacing those that are worn or misshapen. Garbage cans should be washed weekly to keep them clean and dry.

Always replace the lid when depositing refuse. Inspect the house and ground carefully for stagnant water catchers. Vases and flower pots inside the house are frequent offenders as are old tires, wood piles, tin cans and empty jars in the yard.

BROOM SALE A SUCCESS

Last Friday members of the O'Donnell Lions Club sold over $500 in brooms and allied products in the Light House for Blind. $125 of total remains here with local Lions Club.

For sale: house, three rooms and bath, to be moved, cheap. See Dick Harris, 439-2330 1tp

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS -- INSURANCE CONTRACT

It is possible today to insure against almost anything within reason. You can insure yourself against home accidents, thefts, automobile injuries, life, fire, health and business risks.

The law covering insurance is vast. Yet basically your protection rests on the same simple elements of any contract.

1. Offer and acceptance: You must offer to pay for the insurance and the company must accept you as a proper risk.

2. A "consideration": The premium you pay in return for which the company gives you certain protection.

3. A lawful purpose: You cannot insure an unlawful activity. You may insure yourself against burglary but a burglar cannot take out a policy to insure his success.

4. Competency: The parties to an insurance contract must be "competent" to enter it. And, as a rule, anyone who can enter any other contract can enter an insurance contract.

5. A special rule: You must have an "insurable interest." You cannot take out fire insurance on some old house down the street that you think will go up in smoke. That is, you cannot insure it unless you have some interest in it, such as a mortgage or an option to purchase. Nor can you insure the life of just anyone. You can only insure somebody whose life means something to you--a close relative, a breadwinner, a partner or the like.

You can insure your house against loss by fire, but you cannot take out several policies with different companies which total more than the true value of your house and expect to collect the full amount on all of these policies in case of fire. The theory behind insurance is to protect you from loss, not to enable you to make a profit.

TYPHOID IS NEARLY GONE —

There was a time in Texas when one of the ravaging diseases was typhoid fever. Whole communities were struck and many victims died. With the advent of chlorination for public water supplies, increased education efforts on the construction of private wells and water supplies plus modern epidemiological techniques, typhoid fever has steadily declined.

Deaths from typhoid fever run lower than any other disease except typhus and malaria which are no longer public health problems in Texas. Typhoid fever is still endemic to some rural areas of the nation but in Texas cases are usually sporadic with an occasional small cluster traceable to a single source or carrier. Transmission can be by direct or indirect contact with a patient or carrier, ingestion of contaminated food and water can spread the typhoid organism over a wide area.

COOK CLEAN THE FLAMELESS ELECTRIC WAY WITH HEAT AS CLEAN AS ELECTRIC LIGHT

Most homemakers will admit they have a hard enough job cleaning the inside of cooking utensils. Scouring fuel grime from outer surfaces, too, just adds unnecessarily to kitchen chores. But clean, flameless, electric heat is free from by-products of combustion that smudge and soil utensils. Pots and pans, walls and curtains, and the range itself, stay cleaner. You'll be surprised how much time you'll save for other household activities when you cook the clean, flameless electric way. See your electric appliance dealer today.
