Perhaps Gandhi got his civil disobedience idea from our American bootleggers.

If the statesmen would stop worrying so much about the next war it might be less likely to happen.

In at least one respect Alabama is the luckiest state. Its legislature meets only once in four years.

Like those of our own statesmen, Mussolini's fiery speeches are principally for home consumption.

If blonde hair had a chameleon-like property it wouldn't show up so disastrously on a blue coat.

Rumors of presidential appointments should be accepted with reserve until confirmed by the Senate.

We doubt that the members of the Farm Board are burdened by the necessity of answering their "fan" mail.

After our first summer picnic we are convinced of our attractive personality. A million chiggers can't be wrong.

Militarists of all the powers are dissatisfied with the London treaty, so it must be an eminently fair arrangement.

A Lincoln girl sued a girl friend who squeezed her so hard as to break three ribs. Those Nebraska lads get—and how.

A book entitled "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" has had an immense sale in spite of the fact that most of us don't.

When Nebuchadnezzar ate the grass he probably didn't appreciate the fact that he was getting the benefit of vitamins A and B.

Selectivity in radio sets would be better appreciated if there were more worth while programs from which to make the selections.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

One of the perplexing political problems of the day is that of campaign expenditures. How much should a candidate for office be permitted to spend in behalf of his candidacy?

Some of the amounts expended by recent candidates for the Senate seem unreasonably large, and in some cases investigations of campaign funds have resulted in the barring of successful candidates. If such investigations are continued, and they doubtless will, it seems that there should be a lawful amount that may be spent, as is done in some state with respect to state officers.

With our ever growing number of voters it takes a lot of money to reach each voter in the larger states with even one piece of campaign literature. In New York state there were 4,850,000 registered voters in 1928. If a single piece of literature were sent to each of these and the cost of each piece including postage, printing and addressing, were only five cents, it would take nearly a quarter of a million dollars to do the job. This sum would leave little margin for the expense of compiling lists, travel for speechmaking, newspaper advertising or other expenditures inseparable from an aggressive campaign.

In Illinois and Pennsylvania the number of voters is approximately one-third less than that in New York, so it would take at least $200,000 to reach each registered voter with one piece of campaign literature and leave a small amount for other expenses in either of these great states.

These figures would only cover primary expenses, while in all three states mentioned there would be additional outlays necessary incident to the general election.

All of which illustrates how futile it is, generally speaking, for a poor man without rich support to aspire to high office.

ACCIDENTS DECREASE EXCEPT WITH AUTOMOBILES

Last year the accidental death toll reached a new high record of 97,000 as compared with 95,068 in 1929, according to the National Safety Council. This increase was due entirely to the automobile, which claimed 31,000 lives, 3,600 more than in 1928. In all other categories of death show a gradual decline.

Accidents to school children are increasing far less rapidly than accidents to adults, being largely to the accident prevention work in schools is encouraged by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. Between 1922 and 1928 total fatalities of persons of all ages, increased almost 25 per cent, while in the same period accidental deaths of children under 15 gained less than one-tenth of one per cent.

The states with drivers' license laws are making better records in relation to their own past experience than the states where examinations are not required.

Reports from two cities where fatalities decreased during the year are interesting. St. Louis, the credit is largely given to effective school work, school patrols and strict enforcement of traffic laws by police.

San Francisco to scientific studies, adequate enforcement, safety work in schools and a continuous campaign of education by the press, radio stations and service clubs.

The National Safety Council points out one encouraging factor in the analysis—eliminating the annual toll of deaths due to the automobile, the national death rate from all other accidents has declined 30 per cent since 1913.

THE FOOD INDUSTRY

One-fourth of all the money spent by the American people is for food products, according to a study made by the General Foods Corporation.

The annual income of the United States is around $0 billions of dollars, and of this $21 billions is used to supply the dining table, in addition to three billion more for products consumed and not eaten.

The significance of this is shown by the fact that the value of all textiles in this country is about 12 billion yearly; automobiles, including trucks, tires and accessories, five to six billion; building construction, seven to eight billion; and iron and steel about six billion.

The food industry is thus the largest as well as the oldest, of all businesses.

The trend in the food industry seems to be away from small producing and distributing units toward mass production and distribution, in line with automobiles, electricity, clothes, banking, etc. One famous company provides the American family with more than 40 favorite food products.

TAX FACTS

In a recent article, Merle Thorp, editor of the Nation's business, brings out some interesting facts about taxation.

The tax collector according to Mr. Thorp, takes from each of us a day's labor out of each week. We earn around $0 billion dollars a year and the tax bill is 13 billions—almost one-sixth.

Out of every 11 persons working, one is a public employe. A comparatively few years ago the ratio was one to 22. If the modern trend toward higher burer continues, probably one person in every five will soon be living off the rest of us.

Mr. Thorp blasts the old reputation that taxes are paid by the corporations and the wealthy, and points out that every dollar taken in taxes from railroads or any other business, must be collected, in turn, from the customer buying that business.

Sixteen cents out of every American dollar goes to the government. That's a fact worth thinking about before enlarging governmental functions in any direction.

ENGLISH IS QUEER

In a plea for greater consistency, a spelling reformer has called attention to a few of the many vagaries displayed in English spelling and pronunciation.

The sound of long "a" for example, is represented in many different ways, as in lady, ai in rain, eign in reign, ay in pay, ei in veil, ey in they, ie in any, and e in en, in goal, au in gauge, ag in champagne, aigh in campaign, aigh in straight, and ai in wait.

Other sounds are represented by an almost equal variety of spellings. Words pronounced alike have different meanings, such as right, write, write, right, two, too, oh, how, and many others. Words spelled alike may mean entirely different things, such as row, how, lead, saw and so on.

These peculiarities have to do merely with orthography. When the other innumerable inconsistencies of the language are considered, the wonder is that anyone ever learns to speak and write in English correctly.

As a matter of fact, hardly anyone ever does.

WOULD CURB BUREAUS

Alive to the ever-increasing centralization of governmental power in Washington, Congressman Louis Ludlow of Indiana has introduced a bill calling for a commission to study and report on this usurpation of the rights of states.

It is his view that this centralization of power in departments, bureaus and independent establishments at the national capital is contrary to the spirit of the founders of the Republic, and tends to place too much authority in the hands of Federal officers.

This has resulted in the harassment of the public by an army of executive agencies, such as the Federal Trade Commission, who try to prescribe rules and regulations for every conceivable phase of business and individual conduct.

Citizens are inspected, investigated and bedeviled generally, whether they have violated any law or not, under the mere suspicion of some office-holding parasite that possibly something is wrong with them. The net result is more bills for the taxpayer, in addition to the annoyance caused by the pernicious activities of a horde of spies and snooters. At the same time, really serious crimes against society go largely un punished.

Reception Committee

The situation is being well nigh intolerable, and if by virtue of law we do anything to curb these evils he will deserve the gratitude of a long-suffering public. However, as all these bureaucratic agencies are the direct result of legislation by Congress, it may be too much hope that anything will be done to check them.

It appears to be the business of Congress to continually create new government jobs—never to do away with one.

THE PROFESSIONAL REFORMER'S MOVEMENT

A great barrier to crime prevention is the reformer.

He continually asks for more laws, in spite of the fact that unenforceable and unnecessary legislation has become the great American joke. He cries, at one time, for strict punishment for offenders, and at another for less punishment. Cold logic and intelligent analysis of facts mean nothing to him. He is ruled by his emotions. His movement is the ten of thousands of laws that now burden the statute books.

It is a historical fact that most of the great reform movements have turned upon themselves and become boomerangs. The movement which culminated in the New York anti-revolver law is an example. A few months ago the Brooklyn Grand Jury petitioned for the law's repeal.

American prisons are overpopulated, yet many of the worst criminals remain at large, practically immune from punishment by virtue of legal technicalities that make justice impotent. The law-passing machine has been productive of the greatest period of lawlessness in our history.

Fewer fool laws and better enforcement; judicial procedure that finds out the facts, instead of discussing irrelevant technicalities; more efficient, better paid and better equipped police departments; quicker, surer arrests and convictions of malefactors—in this direction, lies crime prevention.

URGES DEFEAT OF TAMMANY CANDIDATES

We are again in the midst of a campaign to keep Texas dry as well as to rescue Texas democracy from Tammany Hall domination.

The state candidates fighting Tammany and for the dry cause will win in the state convention which will prevent Texas from being dominated by Tammany and the wets, which is now the case.

Having these conditions in mind we should rally to the support of the state candidates fighting Tammany and for the dry cause. Their fight is our fight and if they win, our cause wins.

Forcing us to go to the Supreme Court to be vindicated, we should not fail to take part in precinct and county conventions so we can be assured of a state delegation committee to uphold our cause.

ROYAL HEN

"Ah," began Red Top, "my poor grandfather was terribly frightened by these automobiles."

"I can understand his fear," said Mrs. Red Top, kindly.

"You dear, good, sympathetic hen," said Red Top, smiling at her in his rooster way.

"I interrupted," said Mrs. Red Top. "I'll continue at a later date with your story."

"I want so much to hear it, and to be a comfort to you I can."

"Ah, my dear Mrs. Red Top," said Red Top, affectionately, "I will continue at once."

"I don't believe my grandfather was frightened by automobiles—"

"I don't think he did," said Mrs. Red Top, "but I never heard him say so, but I know one thing—"

"He and roosters lived long before automobiles."

"That's so," Mrs. Red Top agreed. "It seems a pity," continued Red Top, "that automobiles should take so much room."

"Yes, they take up the greater part of the road, it seems to me."

"And what annoyed my dear grandfather so was that their honk-honk was hearing a great deal more attention than our crowing."

"In fact, people didn't have to pay attention to our crowing except the early morning, but they always did pay attention to the honking of an automobile, and if they had a sad fate befell them."

"And so it is really not mysterious that bothered my grandfather, and I am not sure whether it bothered my grandfather or not, but I think so, for automobiles are so different things, and roosters are old and wise."

"Yes," sighed Red Top, "the art of being is very old."

"We can surely be comforters to each other," said Mrs. Red Top, "for we all about horrid automobiles—"

"Certainly I do," said Red Top, "and at this she had her eyes on her leaf handkerchief which she had."

"They're so foolish," said Red Top, "they only stir dust and cause much trouble."

"The great difficulty which I have had is that I never know which side of the road to go."

"One moment I will go one way and the next moment I decide to go the other way."

"My Dear Mrs. Red Top," said Red Top, "I very narrowly escaped danger, but then I'm not going to those people who run automobiles so they can make me go just as they please."

"If they think a hen can't change mind they're very much mistaken. It is only our right."

"And those stupid people don't seem to understand."

"Yes," said Red Top, "that's the way they talk. You're a royal hen, talking splendidly."

"I'm proud of you, cock-a-doodle-do."

DAIRY KING

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-eight years of veterinary work. Extensive experience in raising of dairy cows, other livestock, and poultry. Nationally known lecturer, writer and author.

The Cow is King

Milk, Man's Best Food, is Produced by the Most Efficient Domestic Animal We Have

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles on dairying written by the well known national dairy and poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis, Mo. The entire series will appear in this column. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them for further reference.

A great general once said that an army travels on its stomach. A modern sage has gone further and declared that a nation is great in proportion to the amount of milk consumed by its citizens.

Whether the United States is the wealthiest, powerful country it is because we are a people of milk-drinkers might be questioned. But the fact remains that we are a healthy lot, our athletes are among the best in the world, our soldiers, when they have to, can lick any equal body of men in uniform—and we do recognize milk as one of our most valuable foods.

Milk for babies and invalids has always been considered essential. In recent years the reasons for this have been better known. Milk is a complete food in itself. It contains nearly everything the body needs. It is rich in proteins. Milk contains the minerals we require with the exception of iron and iodine. And last but not least, milk contains the four important vitamins needed by growing children and adults who wish to keep fit.

Now health is one of the most important topics before the American people today. In magazine articles, in advertisements, on the public platform, the subject of keeping fit is discussed. We have learned that it is just as easy to eat to excess as it is to drink to excess. Diets are being followed as never before. There are more bathroom scales in use today than at any time in history. We watch our weights as closely as we do the weather.

The future for milk, man's best food, looks rosy. The dairy industry, already the biggest of all American industries, is destined to enjoy still greater progress. There are as many quires large capital and involves certain risks. The subject we are most interested in is that of improving the herds and increasing the profits of the average farmer. In the series of articles which are to follow, I propose to discuss topics which will be of interest to the owner of herds. There is a mistaken notion among farmers that the dairy animals they see on exhibit at state and county fairs are raised for show purposes only and their chief value is in the prizes they win. As a matter of fact, the purebred cow is the most profitable cow for the farmer to own. This is easily proved. Correct breeding, correct feeding and faithful adherence to a few simple rules will enable any farmer to produce milk at a profit as a side line without increasing labor costs and with only a moderate investment.

Texas has 8,000,000 wild peach trees with an annual crop of 40,000,000 pounds or 75 per cent of the total produced in the United States. Topping and budding of wild trees would increase the value of the Texas crop to $200,000,000, according to Congressman Buchanan of the Austin District.

From July 16, 1929—date of the new gasoline tax law going into effect—to May 1, 1930, the State of Texas collected $20,819,388.23 in gasoline taxes. One fourth of it went into the available school fund and the remainder into the highway fund.

About The Farm Board's COTTON PLAN

THIS IS THE FOURTH OF A SERIES OF QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS RELATIVE TO THE FEDERAL AID BEING EXTENDED TO THE COTTON FARMER:

Q. What is the Farm Board doing now for the cotton farmer?

A. The Farm Board has helped to create the American Cotton Co-operative Association, through which all cotton farmers of the South may sell cotton and receive information from the Farm Board, and join in all the movements which the Farm Board puts forward from time to time to aid the cotton grower.

Q. Why can the American Cotton Co-operative Association sell cotton better than the individual farmer or small merchant?

A. The American Cotton Co-operative Association is supplied with information by the Farm Board, from all over the world. It finds out, as nearly as any one can, how much cotton is needed in all parts of the world, how much is being raised in foreign countries, what is being paid for it everywhere, how much different grades and staples of cotton man cannot know, it is able to the individual farmer or cotton man what it will bring the most money, sell cotton at the time and place that it will bring the most money. It also has practically unlimited funds to finance its operations.

Q. How does the Texas farmer's cotton get to the American Cotton Co-operative Association?

A. The farmer who is a member of the Texas Cotton Co-operative Association delivers his cotton to the receiving agent nearest him, who will be his ginmer or some other local representative, or to the federal classifier at the nearest branch or district office of the association; and these agents will ship the cotton according to directions received from the American Cotton Co-operative Association.

On June 11th H. R. H. Edward, Prince of Wales, Britain's popular heir-apparent, broke a bottle of champagne across the bow of a new Atlantic greyhound, the 42,000 gross-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, at Clydebank, Scotland. This is the first time that a member of the royal family has sponsored a merchantman and it increases interest in Canada and things Canadian. Incidentally the Prince of Wales is one of the wisest men in Europe, and the vessel's owners feel highly complimented to have consented to journey with him on his first voyage.

1914. Besides being the biggest ship to ply to and from Canada and Europe she will be one of the most modern vessels afloat, and as she is capable of developing a speed of 26 knots she is expected to make a strong bid for the blue ribbon of the Atlantic. Her speed will enable her to cross the ocean in five days or less, and her advent on the historic St. Lawrence route will shorten materially the journey between Canada, Europe and the of forty-two were in order, with three tables in play.

At the end of the afternoon the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Kitty May, served delicious ice cream and angel food squares to Misses, Guy Bradley, J. P. Bowlin, J. W. Campbell, Glen Allen, A. H. Koeninger, Waldo McLaurin, Harvey Jordan, R. O. Stark, M. B. Hood, E. Sorrels, Hal Singleton, Jr., Misses Christine Millwee, Sue and Mary Joe Gates.

Y. W. A. HOURS MEET WITH MRS. CARTER

The newly-organized Y. W. A. of First Baptist church met last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. O. D. Carter. As this was the day for industrial meeting, the girls made themselves very industrious by making blocks for a Dutch quilt. The next meeting will be with Miss Opal Jenkins, the organization will begin the study of their missionary book. This meeting will take place on Friday, June 20.

Mrs. Carter served dainty refreshments carrying out the Y. W. A. colors to the following: June and Jessie Middleton, Alta Lee Payne, Opal Jenkins, Zada Simmons, Claire Ruth Nichols, Roxie Hancock, Mattie Williams, Gwendolyn Lawler, Mary Dean Foster, Alice Thomas, Mmes. Jesse Williams and Homer St. Clair.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ENJOYS CHICKEN ROAST WED.

The Comrades Sunday School class of the Methodist Church spent a most enjoyable evening last Wednesday when they held an old-fashioned chicken roast at the Tahoka lake. Leaving town just at dusk, the merry group reached the lake just in time for the first stars to appear in the glow to the occasion while the aroma of roasted chicken was an appetitive tempter to all.

Games, songs and stories by the freight finished up the evening.
Those present were Mmes. Belle Knight, teacher of the class, Mrs. Schoeler, Rev. C. A. Duncan, Mary Joe and Sue Gates, Vivian Pierce, Vernon Kirkland, Jimmy Millwee, Newman Kirkland, Alice and Jeanette Thomas, Mattie Williams, William Cook, Christine Millwee, Era Harris, Rebekah Schooler, and Alice Busby.

METHODIST JUNIORS TO HOLD MEET AT SLATON

District meet for the Junior Epworth League will be held at Slaton Thursday, June 9. Active plans are being made here for representative to attend. Several have already indicated their intention of going, and others who desire to attend are requested to be at the home of Mrs. John Johnson at eight o'clock Thursday morning.

WITH THE CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS

Cumberland Presbyterian Society meets each first and second Monday. The Ladies Missionary Society of the Aid Society meets each third and fourth Mondays. All are invited to attend.

Rev. Campbell of Lubbock preached at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church June 15, taking as his subject "God Will Take Care of His Children." The pastor filled the pulpit Sunday morning, using as his thought "Be Ye Clean That Bear Vessels of the Lord." The Children's Band is a new organization of the church. All children are invited to be at the church Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Hal Singleton and Mrs. W. H. Thornhill, assisted by Mrs. Laign, are leaders.

Methodist
Social Meeting and Voice program were enjoyed at the home of Mrs. M. B. Hood Monday afternoon. It was decided to serve a chicken dinner in town on election day, July 26. All are invited to come and partake of fried chicken with all the fixings on that date.

First Baptist
All ladies who made quilt blocks are hereby notified that the blocks must be turned in by July 7. The W. M. U. members are deep in plans for the fifth Monday social, which will be held at the Baptist Church Monday, June 30. All the ladies of the other churches are cordially invited to be present. Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the mission lesson from Royal Service taking up the time allotted for program.

PERSONAL DONATIONS
He (who has been solicited by a pretty Salvation Army lass for money for the Lord)—"How old are you, little girl?"
She—Eighteen.
He—"Well, I'm twenty-seven, so I'll see the Lord first and I'll give him the money myself."

ENDURANCE
John Long had fourteen children, and they had all been rocked in the same cradle. One evening as Mrs. Long was rocking the fourteen child, she said to her husband with a wan smile:
"John, this cradle is pretty near wore out."
"Yep," said John, "it's about used up." Then he handed Mrs. Long a $10 bill and added: "Next time ye go to town, mother, get a new one—that will last."

JUNIOR G. A. ENJOY PICNIC IN BRAKES

Chaperoned by Mmes. Homer St. Clair, Jeff Musick, Irvin Street and Harry Harville, the Junior Girls' Auxiliary of the First Baptist church spent a most enjoyable day Wednesday in the breaks southeast of town.
The gay party left town about ten o'clock, and spent the remainder of the time in taking full advantage of the opportunities for climbing hills, exploring canyons, and eating the beautiful picnic lunch.
Those present were: Marjorie Musick, Margaret and Norma Ruth Vermillion, Francis Foster, Mary Hamilton, Marge St. Clair, Lorene Beach, Iona Mae Caddell, J. Vernat, Fern and Fawn Baldwin and Alvera Lawler.

KIRBY MUSICK CELEBRATES TWELFTH BIRTHDAY

Kirby Musick was the surprised honoree at a birthday party Tuesday evening when his mother invited a large number of his friends to help celebrate his twelfth birthday.
After exclaiming over the many lovely gifts, the guests entered into all kinds of games with all the enthusiasm in their nature. And that, according to those who heard the party, was some enthusiasm.
As a fitting climax to a most enjoyable occasion, delicious ice cream and cake were served to Bobby Carroll, Raymond James, Howard Scott, A. C. Lambert, Jr., Thornton Musick, Earl Wayne Gaye, Jr., Verna Street, Sue McIlroy, Vera Shumaker, Merl Miles, Alvera Lawler, Margaret Vermillion, Norma Ruth Vermillion, Marjorie Musick, and the honoree.

SOCIAL AT C. P. CHURCH ENJOYED BY CROWD

Sponsored by the Ladies Aid and Missionary societies of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, the social on the church lawn Monday evening was enjoyed by more than seventy-five persons.
A sumptuous feast was spread on the lawn about eight o'clock, and full justice was done to the bountiful meal. All the usual good things, fried chicken and all the things that go with it graced the festive board, and when the fragments were gathered up, one was reminded of the loaves and fishes.
As is usual in large gatherings, some accident mars the happiness of some individual. In the gathering of Monday evening, Hal Singleton Jr. was the unfortunate party, being totally disabled after the feast, and unable to rise unaided. He was wheeled into the church in an invalid chair, but when called upon by the pastor to say a few words, Hal was plenty able to get himself into a pew in record breaking time. Dr. Campbell, in his quiet way, advised Mrs. Cathy that "too much food is never good for the stomach."
A short program was carried out, and at the end Mrs. Sorrels asked Rev. C. A. Duncan to make a few suggestions on how to keep a good Sunday school. Bro. Duncan obliged with a few pointed remarks, and then asked Pastor Parr and his wife to come to the front. Rather suspecting his motives, they hesitated, but when they at last complied, he presented them a token of love from his church members and friends. Many useful articles were in the array of gifts.

The surprise took the pastor so completely off his feet that he asked Mrs. Parr to express their appreciation, but she promptly notified him that he was the speaker for their house, and left the matter to him. His short and graceful speech of thanks concluded the pleasant occasion.

MRS. HOOD HOSTESS AT M. S. SOCIAL

The Methodist Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. B. Hood in their regular social meeting.
The voice program was very interesting and was enjoyed by all. Several business matters were discussed, after which the hostess served sandwiches, cookies, and lemonade to the following: Mmes. Ritzenthaler, Stark, Bowlin, Estes, Shook, Pearce, Christianson, Boss Johnson, Moore, Garner, Curtis and John Johnson.

PICNIC SUPPER ADDS INTEREST TO JUNIOR PROGRAM

A decidedly pleasant feature of the Junior Epworth League meeting Sunday afternoon was the delicious picnic prepared by Mmes. J. P. Bowlin, John Johnson, and D. M. Estes. The spread was much enjoyed by the youngsters present.

An interesting program featuring booster songs and inspirational talks preceded the picnic on the church lawn.

MRS. GARNER ENTERTAINS THURSDAY CLUB

Mrs. Maek Garner was hostess to the Thursday Club last Thursday afternoon when that organization met in a business meeting.
New members were elected to fill the vacancies left by the absence of former members, and tentative plans for a study course were discussed. Plans for a picnic are also in charge of a committee with Mrs. Guy Bradley chairman.
After the business session, games

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Rockefeller, Jr., Buys 100 Year Old Norfolk Home To Use Bricks In Restoring Colonial Williamsburg

OLD STATE PRISON, WILLIAMSBURG

NORFOLK, VA.—In bringing back Williamsburg, the seventeenth and eighteenth century capital of the Old Dominion, to its cavalier days with curled wigs, silk stockings and buckled shoes were reborn on Duke of Gloucester Street, it is not always possible to use the many fine old buildings that are still standing, as the framework for a complete restoration of the historic town to its colonial aspect. Some of the ancient structures, however, vanished, must be entirely restored; others partially restored; still others are standing just as they stood when Patrick Henry made his famous speech against the Stamp Act. These require less materials though great care is being, and will be, devoted to their interior finishing in consonance with the period they represent.

In the newly built structures, and the older ones that are being repaired, it is desired to use the old characteristic materials, for the great work now being under way with the aid of Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is not imitation but reconstruction.

Hence old materials are desired even in completely building old homes on the plan of their vanished prototypes. Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., which has charge of reconstruction, has recently purchased the bricks, hand-made shingles, and similar old building materials from the Bousch Brick and Shingle Co. of Norfolk.

ing very fast, however, if the fine weather continues we will soon have our crops cleaned out.

Last Sunday night several of the Randall people gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Davis where they passed the hours singing. We do not have a chance to sing very often since our school building was wrecked, hence we enjoy the times when we can get together to sing more than we would otherwise. We are hoping that our building will be repaired soon so that we can start our Sunday school again and have our singings.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo. Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ohio Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Trained author and lecturer.

ARTICLE I Layin' or Lyin'?

Scientific Culling Out of Drones the Key to Real Poultry Profits, Says Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis, Mo.

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

"Chicken, is you layin' or is you lyin'?" exclaimed Rastus as his one-hen poultry flock burst forth into loud acclamations of alleged performance. That's an old joke, it's true, but it suggests with graphic good humor one of the basic principles of success in poultry raising. Any poultryman who persistently eliminates the liars from his flock to increase his profits from the flock to an almost unbelievable degree.

The value of a regular, scientific culling out of drones from a poultry flock is vividly illustrated in the results of a survey conducted not long ago by the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois and their farm advisors. The average profit on 264 flocks averaging 161 hens each was $2.28 per hen. Of course, not all of the least productive ones deserved to be eliminated, but there certainly must have been an astonishing large number that were getting in the way and without giving an adequate return on what it cost to keep them. Culling out and marketing such hens can only result in a decreased expense account and a vastly increased average profit for each hen remaining.

There is nothing difficult or mysterious about culling, nothing a person of average intelligence cannot learn in a few minutes. First of all, start with the chicks as soon as they are out of the shell. Any that are obviously deformed should be killed at once. Culling should be made a continuous process from that time on.

At least once a month the growing stock should be looked over and the undesirable removed from the flock. All thin, underdeveloped, "crow headed" birds should be discarded. Such pullets will eat their heads off, but will never develop into profitable layers, so you are better off without them than with them. Further culling will be in order when the young birds reach laying age. Those that are backward in maturity should be discarded. Two hundred days is a fair age for a pullet of the heavy breeds or 150 to 165 days for the light breeds to start laying, but those taking much more than that are unlikely to develop into good layers.

For mature birds, the time of the molt is an important indication of laying habits, although other factors should also be considered. Generally speaking, hens that molt late in the fall are the best layers. The poor layer exhausts her energies early and may start molting anytime during June, July or August. The hen that is just beginning to molt late in August, early in September or later is usually the one to keep. All underdeveloped hens for the breed should be discarded. The eggs they lay are usually small, and they should never be used as breeders.

During the normal laying season there are a number of points by which the laying capacity of hens may be judged more or less accurately. The eye of a good layer is prominent, large and bright, set in an oval socket. The comb and wattles will be large, full, smooth, waxy to the touch and bright in color. Poor layers will show exactly opposite characteristics in these respects.

The state of the vent is another important indication of laying condition. The laying hen has a large, moist, dilated vent. That of the non-layer is small, hard and puckered.

The back of a good layer will be long and broad all the way out. In the poor layer, it will be narrow near the tail. On either side of the vent may be felt the points of the pelvic, pubic, pin or lay bones. In the good layer these bones are thin, straight and flexible. In the poor layer they are extremely thick, with layers of fat and digid. The measurement of these bones is taken at the terminal or tip of the bone and includes also the skin, fat and gristle over them. If the spread between the pelvic bones is 1 1/2 inches, the hen probably not laying. If it is two fingers or more, it generally indicates that she is laying.

To accommodate the extra food a good laying hen must eat and the expansion of the laying organs, the rear of the keel bone of the good layer will be a greater distance from the pelvic bones than it will be in the poor layer. This shows abdominal capacity which is very important and measured by the number of fingers that can be placed between the last rib and the pelvic bones. With smaller breeds like Leghorns, a spread of three or more fingers indicates laying condition. With larger breeds the spread should be four fingers or more. Other things being equal, a long bodied fowl measures three fingers, is equal to a short bodied fowl measuring four.

A presence of yellow color around the vent and whitish or pinkish color of the skin indicates that she is laying. We also find a bleached eye ring, white bleached legs and beak she has been laying for some time.

I have discussed in as great detail as space permits, some of the more important points by which to be guided in culling. (Further information will be gladly given to anyone writing to me in care of this newspaper.) Do not depend on any one factor in judging your hens, but form an opinion based on all considered together. Cull carefully, persistently and relentlessly, and before long you will have a flock of red dividend layers. It takes time and patience, to be sure, but the reward is well worthy of the effort.

If you drive a car, you've had close shaves. If you drive long enough, you'll probably have an accident. Not a cheerful thought but one which you might as well face. You never know what sort of protection you might need when that accident occurs—but there is one thing sure—you can not afford to jeopardize all you have, your savings, your property, even your income by not having Property Damage and Public Liability Insurance. You will be surprised at the low cost of this essential protection. May We Explain?

Practical Aviation

Through the Courtesy of the North Texas Flying School, Dallas. QUALIFICATIONS NECESSARY FOR PILOTS LICENSE

All flying is under the supervision of the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce, which has full charge of licensing pilots and airplanes. It has established certain rules and regulations which must be followed by any student desiring to obtain a license. The general public may not understand or appreciate the reasons behind all these regulations; these articles attempt to discuss the problems and development of aviation in language that any man can understand. It is the intention of this newspaper to lay before the students certain facts which will save him mistakes, some of which are expensive.

The Federal Government, through the Department of Commerce, has jurisdiction over all commercial flying. All ships flying interstate (from one state to another) are under stricter regulations than ships flying within the boundary of one state, although the majority of states have adopted ordinances closely paralleling those of the Federal Government.

Two licenses must be considered. First, the plane must be licensed and second, the pilot. The public generally does not understand the protection which our Government is trying to give it.

Every licensed plane has painted on it the letter C, or the letters NC (international license), followed by a number; such as, NC 116. These numbers are displayed on the wings and rudder of every licensed plane. Any plane not bearing such letters has not been licensed to carry persons or property for hire. The absence of these letters should be a warning to the public.

To fly a plane one must have a pilot's license. There are five types of licenses to be obtained by the student before he reaches that far-away and coveted goal—his Transport license. The first license to be considered is the Student Pilot License. It entitles one to pilot a plane for instruction purposes only. The student pilot must stay within ten miles of the home field when flying by himself. He may carry no one with him but a qualified instructor and cannot fly cross-country alone.

To obtain a Student license it is necessary to pass a physical examination before a physician designated by the Department of Commerce. The local Chamber of Commerce should be able to give the name of such a qualified physician to any interested person. The examination for Transport license, the highest license obtainable, is naturally more rigid than that for Student licenses and anyone considering entering the field of aviation for commercial purposes would be wise to take the Transport health examination at the outset. The physical test is the first safety precaution the student must take and weeds out at the very start those who have not the health necessary to pilot a plane. Particular attention is paid to the eyes, in examining the prospective student, for obvious reasons. If the permit is issued, the student is ready to take his first lessons in learning to fly, but should choose his school with care.

In choosing a school, particular attention must be paid to four things: climate, with regard to flying weather; size and condition of the field or airport; equipment, as regards type and class; last, but most important of all, licensed planes and licensed instructors. It is only natural that a student flyer gives extra hard usage to a plane; he puts more strain on many of its parts than would an experienced pilot. All the more need for the best of modern equipment. A student need have no fear in a modern licensed ship, with a licensed Transport pilot to help him over the "bumps."

Now that the student has decided on his school and has enrolled, he is ready to begin his instruction and work up to the next license, the Private Pilot's license. The period of elementary instruction is very interesting, often thrilling, and will be described in the next article.

Questions concerning aviation answered in this department. Enclose stamped self-addressed envelope. Q. I would like to earn my living as a flier but have only money enough to pay for a Limited Commercial license. What is the chance of getting a job with such a license? A. A Limited Commercial Pilot is permitted to do industrial work such as aerial dusting, etc. in Texas, an ideal place for such work. You could also take up passenger operations from one field only. You will very likely be able to get a job that will pay you enough to live on until you get your Transport license. Q. What is meant by three-point landing? A. A landing when both wheels and tail skid, or tail wheel, touch the ground at the same time. This is the only correct way to land.

"I CAN'T PRAISE THIS KONJOLA TOO STRONGLY"

Says Wichita Lady Who Suffered For Twelve Years From Stomach Trouble

MRS. DELLA SETTLE

"I cannot praise this Konjola too strongly, because I tried many other medicines and treatments, but none gave the remarkable relief that Konjola did," said Mrs. Della Settle, 1719 Mildred Avenue, Wichita. "I just had to force myself to eat, and nearly everything I ate made me sick. I was cramping pains in my stomach and bowels until I could hardly endure them, and I simply felt miserable all the time."

"When I decided to put Konjola to the test. That proved to be a wise decision. Right from the start I noticed improvement. I now have so much better appetite, and meals are a pleasure as food digests without pain or misery in my stomach. My bowels are functioning as they should, and it is certainly relief to be rid of that tired, worn-out feeling. I gladly endorse this splendid medicine that restored my health."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. And Konjola makes good in the most stubborn cases when given a fair trial and from six to eight bottles used. Konjola is sold in O'Donnell, Texas at the Whitsett Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

Calling By Number Takes Less Time

If you know the numbers on your out-of-town calls you can get many of them about as quickly as local calls. It is worth while keeping a list of numbers you frequently use. If you do not know them, "Information" will get them for you.

If there are a lot of them, write to our business office and ask us to make out the list for you. If you want someone in a hurry, the telephone number is as important as the street address. Knowing the number will help you to speed your long distance calls.

HERE'S TO BEAUTY

Hands Show Age And Neglect Unless Cleansed And Protected

IF ALL the things that you can do at home to preserve a good appearance, nothing is more important than the care of your hands. Most women, however, think of their faces first, and the skin on their faces darkens and wrinkles begin to appear, and the skin on their hands immediately takes steps to remedy this. Of course we all want to keep our faces fresh and youthful as it should be. But did you ever realize that your hands can betray you as often as your face? That is why it is unnecessary for your hands can be kept young as well as your face.

After your daily facial treatment, thoroughly rub into your hands the remaining tissue cream or skin food and muscle oil, smoothing and gripping from the tip to the base, and push back your cuticle so it will not be tight or ugly. If you do this just before going to bed, slip on an old pair of gloves and wear them all night. In the morning wash your hands with mild soap and warm water. But if you take this hand massage before going out, wash your hands with warm water and mid soap immediately after the massage, and then apply hand cream.

Before manicuring your nails, always apply skin food or tissue cream to your nails, and rub it in well. Then gently push back the cuticle with an orange stick. Be careful not to bruise your nails, and do not, as a rule, cut your cuticle. That only makes it tough and hard, and gives your nails a careless, untidy look. But if the cuticle is very ragged, and you must cut it off, use your cuticle scissors instead of your nail scissors. Then again rub in tissue cream or skin food, as plenty of lubrication soon will cure any tendency to hangnails and ragged cuticle.

If your hands are rough and dry, instead of washing them top often with soap and water, try a basic cleansing occasionally to cleanse your skin without drying up its natural oils.

For this basic cleansing, first apply a liberal amount of cleansing cream to your hands, and after a minute remove the cream with soft cleansing tissues. Next, just as in your daily facial cleansing, smooth pads of cotton saturated with skin tonic over your hands. This will remove all traces of cleansing cream, but never will leave your skin feeling drawn and dry. Last of all, apply a bit of hand cream to whiten your hands gently without leaving them sticky or greasy.

PROGRESS IS MOTTO OF ANDERSON

By Ben Moore

One of the most attractive and best managed farm homes to be found in the immediate vicinity of O'Donnell is located one and one half miles northwest of town. Its owner is John A. Anderson. We have watched this farm as it has been transformed from a mere bald spot on the prairie to that of a beautiful home with trees in every thing that goes to make a home attractive to the passerby.

The orchard has received the very best of care and is a thing of rare beauty. A fine garden is in evidence each year. We have not ventured to ask, but doubtless there are fish in the surface tank.

Mr. Anderson has shown marked ability as a cotton grower. Although a tractor has displaced horses on this farm, Mr. Anderson only utilizes this excess power in the preparation of his soil for planting. Shallow planting is practiced in order to avoid the covering of young plants by heavy rains such as we have this season.

A year or so ago we were asked to assist in the culling of the farm flock of hens. A little later a large coop of var-colored ducks and geese were "shipped". Nearly this season 600 high grade White Leghorn chicks were purchased from a reputable breeder. Thus a mighty good foundation has been laid for poultry profits around the Anderson farm.

rection of the Sudan patch. There is nothing strange about the stock on this farm wearing a contented appearance. Their owner sets a good example for them to follow. If you've been a bit down on farming and are in need of encouragement, drop by this farm and you'll feel better or we miss our guess.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY JUNE 22

Subject—What Worthwhile Results We Have Achieved. Leader Louise Edwards. Song, "Higher Ground". Scripture, John 15:5-17. Prayer. Song, "A Charge To Keep". Pressing Toward The Mark, Vivian Pile. The announcement came that John Brown was retiring from business to spend the remaining years in travel and leisure. "How did it happen?" asked the newspaper. "Give us the secret of your success?" "Well," said Brown, "today I am worth $200,000, and I attribute my success to three things: First, do hard work; second, to absolute honesty; third, to an aunt who recently died, leaving me $199,999.50."

Militarists of all the powers are distressed with the London treaty, so it must be an eminently fair arrangement. Help make O'Donnell grow.
