Service will be offered to houses in the 100 block, N. Atlantic; 800 block East Bank; 800 and 900 blocks East Cash; all of Kathleen street; 1300 block Emma Drive.

Supt. Keith Swim reminds all students they must have certificates for polio and smallpox vaccinations before entering school in Sept. This includes elementary, junior high and high school students.

Pupils entering first grade must also have birth certificates and must be six years old before September 1. Under no circumstances will a student be enrolled without these certificates.

Yankees Honored as Good Sports

Dud Rowntree, president of IP Little League Baseball, presented the Billy Wayne Koonce 1963 Sportsmanship award Tuesday night in a short ceremony to the Yankees of the Major League division, at W. F. George Field. The trophy given by friends of the family of the late Billy Koonce was received by Billy Gene House and George Richter, managers of the Yankee team. Rowntree also presented each team member, the bat boy and the managers a medalion. This honor went to the team selected by a 3-man secret committee made up of individuals extremely interested in Little League baseball. The Yankees and their managers showed the best sportsmanship throughout the season. Team members are Ronnie and Steve Berry, Mike Miller, Danny Custis, Dennis Thomas, Eddie White, Craig French, Mike Mitchell, James Richter, Eddy Prince, Bill Bickley, Vernon Overstreet, Mike Coulter, Larry Lucas, Terry Hamilton. Bat boy is Gary Wayne House.

Another trophy and medalions will be given each year to a major division team showing the best sportsmanship. The Heidelberg catechism begins with a rather different approach: "What is your only comfort in life and death?" Answer: "That I with body and soul both in life and in death am not my own, but belong to my faithful Saviour Jesus Christ."

Rembrandt himself seems to haunt the streets and to throw discreet colors over a vast canvas. Canals and ancient buildings and stately squares and great museum and arty galleries blend together in an overwhelming Dutch treat.

A no-nonsense, no-clackityclack train glides you down welded rails through the Rhine valley toward Heidelberg. Ancient crumbly castles whiz past your eyes, mountain after stately mountain; and you really expect to see the Student Prince, Snow White, King Arthur and the Midgard Serpent all come dancing down the hill.

You coast along the Rhine gazing at the incredible agricultural gymnastics of farmers who cultivate, plant and grow wine grapes in neat, straight, healthy rows that gleam climbing up the side of the hill at, perhaps, a 60-degree incline! And Beethoven's Ninth Symphony seems to float from nowhere, and again you are transformed, transmuted, transplanted.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Booher and daughter Rynn of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Booher and children Russell, Stevie and Kelli DeAnn of Lubbock were guests of their parents Mr. and Mrs. F. Booher, Route 1, last week.

Christ and a Faith for Our Day

by Boyd Schlenther

A few swift Swifties: "It was only hair," said Samson baldly. "Look back for yourself, Lot," said his wife saltily. "Please join my fan club," said Mickey mously. "Publishing a paper is no snap," declared George gingerly.

This article wings its way from Heidelberg, Germany, where I have been attending the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Heidelberg catechism.

This Reformation-period summary of the Christian faith, along with the Westminster shorter catechism, is the most widely used means of instruction in the branches of the Church which grow out from the Reformation. The Westminster's first question is: "What is the chief end of man?" Answer: "Man's chief end is to glorify God and to enjoy him forever."

The Heidelberg catechism begins with a rather different approach: "What is your only comfort in life and death?" Answer: "That I with body and soul both in life and in death am not my own, but belong to my faithful Saviour Jesus Christ."

If you're looking for some help in fulfilling the responsibility of rearing your children on Christian truths, a catechism such as one of these is a refreshing aid. Certainly your minister could give you information on how to obtain a copy of one of the leading catechisms.

More and more, judging from current events, Christian instruction of children is being thrown right back into the laps of parents. It certainly cannot be left with our public schools any longer, even if that ever was a valid approach.

Traveling throughout Holland and Germany can really shuffle-up your pre-conceptions. Rotterdam, in the Netherlands, is the most modern city I've ever seen. It had the gruesome distinction of being one of the most bombed cities in World War 2. Its material resurrection has been incredible—and breath-taking. There are wide plazas with shops and stores, and not a honky car in sight, or earshot. A brand new Hilton hotel reminds you that you can't escape the homeland for long.

But in little over an hour via excellent train service, you are hurled madly back into another world. Amsterdam, though so close, was not an industrial area. Therefore it remains nearly untouched by scars of war, so magnificently covered over by Rotterdam's face-lifting job. There in Amsterdam is an old-world charm which charms.

Rembrandt himself seems to haunt the streets and to throw discreet colors over a vast canvas. Canals and ancient buildings and stately squares and great museum and arty galleries blend together in an overwhelming Dutch treat.

A no-nonsense, no-clackityclack train glides you down welded rails through the Rhine valley toward Heidelberg. Ancient crumbly castles whiz past your eyes, mountain after stately mountain; and you really expect to see the Student Prince, Snow White, King Arthur and the Midgard Serpent all come dancing down the hill.

You coast along the Rhine gazing at the incredible agricultural gymnastics of farmers who cultivate, plant and grow wine grapes in neat, straight, healthy rows that gleam climbing up the side of the hill at, perhaps, a 60-degree incline! And Beethoven's Ninth Symphony seems to float from nowhere, and again you are transformed, transmuted, transplanted.

But while that is reality, it is not the reality of human life. What would people think — about the war? This was the question that lurked in the shadowy background of those lovely pastoral scenes. Can you talk about war? Already I'd met three young men and women, British and French, whose fathers had been killed during the war. Their reactions varied to some degree, but they all had buried the past. And so had the Germans I met. There was a woman, social worker in a large German city, whose father had been killed when a stray bomb hit their home in the closing months of the war — a horrible incident which would allow her to be renewed in her mind, time and again, from the scars which covered her arms and legs. She had been luckier than her father.

There was the young German, a student in England, who with his family had faced the terrors of war. His father had been forced to fight and die for a cause in which he did not believe; and following the war the family barely escaped from Poland, smuggled out during the night, as a great metal curtain became more and more tempered and hard: from iron to steel.

"Yes, my friend," I said as we faced each other on the speeding train. "If we had been born a few years sooner, we might easily have been facing each other across a trench. What then?"

"Now," he said, "I want to fight to keep the West free." And I prayed that the West would be free without his having to fight.

The Church in western Germany, at least the part I saw this trip, is vital and living and witnessing. It claims the deep devotion of many people. How many is not so important. How deep the devotion is everything. I thought of our "American Christianity," and I was sad.

With all the racy news coming from England these days, we must be careful not to let the recent Cassius Clay "fight" pass without weighing its real significance. Its real significance is not racy but race. Being an American overseas these days is anything but pleasant at times, what with the Ku-Klux-Klan, Citizens Council mentality threatening to turn the US into a battleground where Negro and white blood really will get mixed!

But when a Negro American who bears all the qualifications of the upliest of Ugly Americans, runs loose as an "ambassador" of the United States, and at such a crucial time as this, we must tremble.

If nothing else, Cassius Clay is one lovely final argument to knock out the prize fighting business completely, let it take the 10-count and then give it as unceremonial a burial as possible. I would hope that Christians and all intelligent citizens would work toward that end.

Century Plant Blooming Here

A century plant in front of the Will Burnett home has been blooming for several weeks. Mrs. Burnett planted it in 1935. She transplanted it from the yard of the late Mrs. Rolling when she resided where the Virgil Scott family live now on Electra highway.

Mrs. Burnett had three plants and only two lived. The other is in the backyard and shows no sign of blooming. The huge leaves are dying on the plant. Mrs. Burnett says it is told that century plants die following the blooming.

Blooms are on stems approximately 10 to 15 feet high and are white clusters of flowers. It was also nice to visit the Will Burnetts and talk over old times in Iowa Park. Will is confined to his home following a stroke several months ago. Despite this handicap he has never lost interest in the youth of our town. He loves children. The children and grown-ups return this affection to both Mr. and Mrs. Burnett.

This is a personal invitation from Sheriff Ham Vance and Dr. Robert M. Sims, director of the band.

Contact Dr. Sims, 569-3241 in Burk Burnett or 723-2393 in Wichita Falls after 5:00 p.m.

Mrs. Joseph Tovano and sons Peppy and John of New York are visiting her parents Sgt. and Mrs. L. Shelton and other relatives.

Corvair 700 Club Coupe

The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel

That may be a slight overstatement, but such jauntiness comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.

And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting.

That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.

But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more useable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.

Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no antifreeze or water for you to add. Ever.

All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
 A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

The Mayflower Compact
 From the dawn of Western thought, men like Socrates have wondered what claims the laws have on us — aside from pure force.

Some thought men had contracted to set up and obey the laws to keep the peace: "You don't hurt me and I won't hurt you." But until 1620 at least, nobody had ever seen men enter into such a social contract.

True, Socrates in return for the good Athens had done for him, said that he had entered an implied unwritten contract to obey her laws, even the unjust judgment against him to take the hemlock and die.

Still, not until the Mayflower band, 20 centuries later, sailed over to settle in the New World did we get a social contract actually signed and sealed.

It comes down to us in 193 vital words, the granddaddy of all written constitutions, as well as a document in the history of liberty under the law. Its gist:

"We . . . do by these presents solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and one another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation . . . and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions, and offices from time to time as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the colony, unto which we promise all due submission and obedience. In witness whereof we have subscribed our names at Cape Cod on the 11 of November . . ."

Much took place in the next 163 years. But in 1783 the new states wrote and ratified the world's first and now oldest and most successful constitution. Why do men obey the laws? It says:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America."

WSCS

Mrs. S. B. Keeter conducted the third session of the study "The Churches' Missions and Persons of Special Need" for the Methodist WSCS Tuesday morning.

She plans to conduct the last study as a participation program and asked that each person come prepared to tell of some experience she has had with a handicapped person.

The women voted to bake 40 birthday cakes for the state hospital, which will take care of the birthdays for a month. Each member will bring her cake to the Aug. 13 meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pearce and Judy have returned from a vacation trip to Missouri and Arkansas.
