ABLEST DOCTORS IN AMERICA

Declare There is a Sure Cure for Nervous Ailments.

Use of Paine's Galery Is Openly Advised.

Wonderful Results Recently Effected by Compound.

Without exception, the physicians interviewed declared that nervous prostration, indigestion, resulting as it most frequently does, from deranged nerves, dizziness, headache, and most liver and kidney ailments, were absolutely cured by the use of Paine's Compound.

But the answer to the second question was most remarkable, because, with two exceptions, all the doctors mentioned by name gave the compound, a well-known remedy, as a cure for nervous prostration, indigestion, etc., after a thorough investigation of its merits.

Associated Charities Held Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Associated Charities of Colorado Springs, was held yesterday. The meeting of the subscribers was held at the offices, 215 East Bijou street, at 4:30 in the afternoon and the public meeting was held in the First Congregational church last night.

The public meeting was not largely attended, probably because of the numerous other gatherings held in the city last night. The meeting, however, was very interesting to those who were present. Rev. J. E. Finkbinder, D. D., who is the president of the organization, presided in the absence of Dr. Slocum, the president. Dr. Finkbinder outlined the exercises of the evening with a statement in which he reviewed the general idea of the Associated Charities and gave some of the important details of the work accomplished during the past year.

lished in full for the benefit of the public at large. The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. Urdahl, professor of social science and political economy at Colorado college. Dr. Urdahl spoke briefly but comprehensively on the subject of "Individualism and Pauperism."

At the afternoon meeting of the subscribers, the following well-known citizens were elected as trustees for three years: E. W. Giddings, Jr., William G. Hax and S. B. Berritt. The gentlemen are also ex-officio members of the board of directors.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND FEDERAL APPOINTEES.

The following significant dispatch appeared in the daily press last Saturday morning:

Washington, Oct. 11.—At the cabinet meeting today the president is said to have told the members that the character of Republicans who hold office in the south must be improved and that this policy will be carried out in all other states.

To those who know President Roosevelt personally, or who have watched his career with any degree of care, the above information will not cause any surprise.

In every office which he has held, in every public declaration upon the subject which he has made, he has consistently advocated the employment of the best man for the place.

Public office with him is not regarded as a private snap, but an occupation which requires the best talent and the most devoted attention of the most honorable man who can be induced to accept it. His record as civil service commissioner, as president of the New York police board, as assistant secretary of the navy, as governor of New York bears witness of his convictions upon this question.

Roosevelt is not a machine man. He has not been dependent for his political success upon the devious workings of those who gain party domination by midnight meetings or public favor through a back door or a dark lantern entrance.

He has made his fights in the open, and he has won by appealing to the people rather than by cringing to the politicians.

Neither has he ever believed it possible for the stream of political purity to rise higher than its source, nor for appointees to office to be any better than those who vouch for them.

He detests personal immorality, and political depravity will find no supporter or defender in him.

Those defiled federal office holders who think they may win spurs of honor from him by neglecting their posts of duty to create and operate political machines will probably discover their mistake when it is too late to mend their political fortunes.

He will belie his entire past life if he permits such conduct on the part of his own appointees or those who hold office under his control.

Just why any person should hold a federal office who is not fit personally or morally for an equally important position in private life, has many times been a mystery to the American public, and it is refreshing to know that so early in his term President Roosevelt has determined that no opprobrium shall attach to him nor to his administration by having such persons in the public service.

WELCOME TO THE ODD FELLOWS.

THE Gazette voices the unanimous sentiment of the citizens of Colorado Springs in welcoming the grand lodge of Odd Fellows. The visitors come from all parts of our great state and they are representative of the leading business men of their communities. They come on a mission of love and charity, for the work of carrying on the grand lodge of a fraternal and charitable order like the Odd Fellows, is as much the work of love and charity as is the actual bestowing of alms. Organization is the world's watch-word today and the Odd Fellows are among the best organized of the fraternal bodies.

This great order was founded in Baltimore in 1819, so that it is approaching the century mark. It had a rapid growth as soon as its works and tenets began to be known among men. Like other secret societies it had a serious setback during the war, but it recovered from that and is now bigger, stronger and better prepared for the work it has to do in the world than ever before in its history.

Colorado's grand lodge is becoming known as one of the strong bodies in the order, and its leaders are capable. It is these men, with representatives from the Rebekahs and the Patriarchs Militant, affiliated bodies, that we are entertaining. Their good works are done secretly so far as the individual is concerned, but the order has done so much since it was planted in this state, many years ago, that it is recognized as a power for good. We hope that those who have come to the grand lodge sessions will not only succeed in transacting all the business necessary, but that they will have the best time in all their lives. No doubt the local lodge men are looking after that, and they have an excellent reputation as entertainers.

Undoubtedly it is all right for the cabinet to make as full an examination into the questions affecting the Pacific ocean cable that Mr. Mackay proposes to build as is necessary. Any reasonable rights that are asked should be immediately granted. In fact we do not see that anybody has any rights to grant. It seems that it is to be an American company with American capital and touch American territory altogether, so who is to prevent the building of it. A Pacific cable is a necessity, and the fact that some capital is now ready to build it without a subsidy speaks a volume for the increase of American business with the orient. Cyrus Field did not have to get consent to land his cable, that we have ever heard of, and a number of foreign companies have been given rights, so Mr. Mackay and his associates should be as little hindered as possible on this side of the water.

Carrie Nation will soon be competent to write a book on "Jails That I Have Met."

TERRITORIES KNOCKING AT THE DOOR.

UNDOUBTEDLY a very strong effort will be made at the coming session of congress to secure the admission of Arizona and New Mexico. Conventions are being held in both those territories this month for the purpose of securing joint action of some kind. Although both the territories have sufficient population they have never been able to secure an act from congress admitting them to the union of states.

The argument chiefly against them is the character of a majority of the residents. As an off-set to that, however, the applicants can always point to the experience of Colorado, Utah and other states that admission has always been followed by a rapid increase in population of a very desirable kind. A home government beats the carpet-kind every time. That the territories will find opponents to their ambition is voiced in the following from the Providence Journal:

The population of Arizona is less than that of New Mexico, but it has ordinarily been regarded as superior in quality. There has been a large New England invasion of the territory and much eastern capital is invested there. The soil is arid until watered by irrigation, when it blossoms like the rose. In both territories there are rich mineral deposits, and where water has been introduced by artificial means the most various crops have been raised. The future of both looks bright, but many of us would be unwilling to see either admitted as a state at the present time, when the inequality of population among the present members of the union is so startling. New York has more than seven million inhabitants, Nevada less than forty-three thousand. To say that we let some of our western states in before they had as many inhabitants as Arizona and New Mexico has does not furnish a conclusive argument in behalf of these two. Because we are unwise on one occasion does not justify us in emphasizing our unwisdom. Moreover, there is a territory that deserves to be admitted before these aspirants. Oklahoma has a population of half a million and is far better equipped in all the essentials of an American commonwealth than New Mexico and Arizona.

DIFFERENCE WHOSE OX IS GORED.

TEXAS, of all states in the union, has had "anti-trust" the worst. The wickedest thing in the world apparently to the ranger has been a combination of capital. But that was before Beaumont spurred up its gushers, and now it is different. The oil industry is likely to be swallowed up by the Standard Oil company—greatest of combinations—because of the anti-trust laws that were recently enacted in that state. Watermelon raisers in the Arkansas valley made very poor progress at the business when they first started in because the individuals did not know whom to ship to, did not get the cars ready when they had the melons ready for shipment, etc. Then they organized an association and the crop is now handled in a business-like manner.

That is what the owners of the oil wells in Beaumont are now facing. They find that they cannot meet competition individually and want to get up a big combination to resist the Standard octopus. They have submitted their plan to the attorney general of the state, but he declares it illegal. Their only hope now seems to be in organizing one company and selling all the oil wells in the state to it, which may be a form of trust. The Standard Oil people are organized in shape to take up the individual companies now existing, so that it is likely to get the best of it in spite of the state laws. In California the new oil fields have had the same trouble and are now organizing big combinations to handle the product.

THE DUKE PASSED US BY.

GEORGE, DUKE OF YORK, some time king of England, had the pleasure yesterday of looking across the Niagara river and inspecting the land of the free and the home of the brave. Our fathers and mothers gave his father a mighty good time long ago when he came over to see us. Sorry we can't show the son around so that he can go home and tell his dad. The United States is a very different place from what it was in the early sixties when Edward was here, the difference, in fact, that exists between a big, awkward, growing school boy and a symmetrically developed young athlete. It is an impressive fact that the duke has made this tour all around the world and only landed on British soil. He is heir to the most wonderful empire the sun ever shone on; it never sets on the British empire.

Alexander pushed his conquests into Asia about as far as one can travel in a couple of days' railroading. The Romans conquered a few hundred miles in land along the borders of the Mediterranean and adjacent country. Hannibal overcame many obstacles, but his travels were limited. The Spaniards made extensive acquisition of territory, but failed to hold it. Napoleon over-rode Europe, but he sold a greater territory and a mightier empire when he parted with Louisiana, than any that he ever conquered. Russia has a vast landed area, but only a small percentage of it is populated. It is the English empire that encircles the world, and from her dark and foggy capital on the banks of the Thames, she dictates the policy of continents and sways the destiny of millions of people of every race, color and condition.

We are quite sorry, George, that you could not come over the river and see, not an empire, ruled by sword and fear, but a compact, homogeneous, patriotic, progressive people who have not yet extended themselves around the world, but who are doing well, nevertheless.

The handsomest piece of printing that has come to this office in a long time is an announcement that the New York Evening Post is about to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary. On the 15th day of November the Post will issue a beautiful souvenir number, which if carried out as planned will be worthy of the event celebrated. The Post is one of the best papers in the great metropolis, always typographically neat, printed on good paper and conducted on clean lines. The Post's century is one of honor. That it is a very conservative paper is demonstrated in that at the time of the souvenir issue, illustrations will be used for the first time. It is to be hoped that the Post will go on for centuries yet to come, ever representative of the best traditions in American journalism.

Of all the state exchanges that come to this office the Montrose Enterprise seems to be the most enthusiastic in presenting the advantages of the home country to the outside world. Their front page nearly every week is devoted to industrial matters regarding the region. It is a thing that is bound to tell in the end, and is one of the ways in which Colorado Springs has achieved its present greatness.

Kirk B. Armour left an estate of seven millions, made in the pork business in Kansas City. He willed it all to his family and the city where he had made so much in no way remembered. Now the Kansas City people are rather of the belief that a man cannot associate over long with hogs without acquiring a few bristles.

WORKING POLITICS.

Demand and Supply Its First Principle.

"Here we have the first principle common to business and politics—demand and supply. The people do not want much, nor do they want it long, but any real requirement of theirs is a demand which it pays to supply. The Romans could be kept quiet by amusements, so the emperors provided the circus. The French long for 'la gloire,' and the man who can furnish glory can become almost anything in France. Americans ask fundamentally only for freedom—freedom from bother, responsibility and excitement. They want to be left alone to attend to their own business. They are not willing always to let other people alone. The Anglo-Saxon is inclined to regulate the conduct of others, and sometimes the tendency to do so is a real public demand. No matter what it is, however, if the people want it enough the politician, like the business man, knows that he must supply it or suffer some competitor to take it up and 'make capital of it.' The national Republican party was established to supply a demand which the other national parties of the day would not take on. In a small way, the temperance parties of the middle west and the thrifty socialist parties of the eastern manufacturing neighborhoods, are examples of the neglect of the 'regular' politicians—deliberate in these cases. In the larger cities, the demand for 'good government' has been regarded as a 'long-felt want,' and since the machines would not provide it, independent organizations have been formed to market the commodity. These have failed, partly because they were unprofessionally managed; partly because the demand is limited. Reform seems to the politician, who is an expert in a way, to appeal only to what, commercially, is known as a 'fad' or 'narrow' market."

"No trait of the politician is more business-like than his respect for the market, the popular demand, but with this as a corollary goes his contempt for the passing fancies of the few. The few are the 'reformers,' and their complainings have a use that is strictly political; they give us only what we want for new things. But the regular politician won't offer the cotton gin to the farmers of the north nor a self-adjusting plough to the brokers in Wall Street; they play melodrama to the Bowery, and, even in Broadway, they would not try to give us only what we want, they give us only what the market is very broad, and though he will promise anything, he sells it little as possible 'for the money.' The mistake of the reformer who sets out with amateurish notions and proceeds upon uncommercial methods, is to offer to the majority what the not only offer to the majority what they want, but actually give more than the few want."—(J. Lincoln Steffens, in Ainslee's.)

The New Sea Ports of America.

"The Great Need of Our Lake Commerce is a Deep-Water Way to the Sea," is an important subject which the Magazine Success has dealt with in a notable manner in its October issue. The article was written by Major Johnson of Cleveland; Mayor Harrison of Chicago; Mayor Jones of Toledo, and Mayor Hugo of Duluth. Three routes are advocated, and the cost of construction, distances, and feasibility of these routes are accurately given. The route which Success presents as being the shortest and most advisable is by the St. Georgian bay, and the Ontario river, thence by the Lawrence and a canal into Lake Champlain, and then through the Champlain canal and Hudson river, to the sea. By this route, New York city could retain its supremacy as the commercial center of the continent. The opinions of the four mayors on the project are interesting.

Mayor Johnson, says: "It would seem that the United States, with its extensive coast line, and its position on the Pacific, could find locations for a sufficient number of seaports to accommodate its increasing trade. But this is not so. The principal cities of the great lakes are looking forward to a salt water service that will carry their vessels to all parts of the world. Cleveland does not intend to be backward in this matter. She stands ready to grasp the opportunity and time by their forelocks, and to promote such projects as will point to a successful waterway to the Atlantic. Such a route is being coming more and more a necessity every day. The vastness of the commerce of the middle western states proclaims that they must have their own routes to the sea."

Mayor Hugo, says: "No enterprise could be inaugurated by the United States government, with the same amount of money, which would more redound to the success and emolument of its citizens than this much mooted plan of a system of canals to connect the lakes with the ocean. Either the Canadian government will improve the St. Lawrence river route, and share with us in the benefits, or the United States will adopt a plan and keep within its own borders a prize so rich in promise and so advantageous to its own millions of people."

Mayor Harrison, says: "The trial trip of the Northwestern Steamship company's liner, the 'Northwestern,' has demonstrated the practicability of the new connection, and is certain to lead to immediate and enormous developments. The success of the enterprise will result in lower freight rates between Chicago and the various ports of Europe, on certain commodities. Practically will the butter and cheese export trade be stimulated, as trial shipments of these articles, notwithstanding the delays incident to the first trip, have been delivered on the other side. I am informed, in excellent condition."

Mayor Jones, says: "This saving would largely benefit farmers. The price of grain at any lake port is the price in Europe, less the transportation charges. Reduce the latter, and the farm product is enhanced by so much. Make seaports of the lake cities, and you reduce freights, not only to Europe, but also to our Atlantic ports, for water transportation is cheaper than by rail, and it is a well-understood fact that the cheapest mode of transportation is the basis of the freight rates by other methods or routes. A practicable waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic would compel a reduction of railway freight rates between the Atlantic and the west."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND FEDERAL APPOINTEES.

The following significant dispatch appeared in the daily press last Saturday morning:

Washington, Oct. 11.—At the cabinet meeting today the president is said to have told the members that the character of Republicans who hold office in the south must be improved and that this policy will be carried out in all other states.

To those who know President Roosevelt personally, or who have watched his career with any degree of care, the above information will not cause any surprise.

In every office which he has held, in every public declaration upon the subject which he has made, he has consistently advocated the employment of the best man for the place.

Public office with him is not regarded as a private snap, but an occupation which requires the best talent and the most devoted attention of the most honorable man who can be induced to accept it.

Roosevelt is not a machine man. He has not been dependent for his political success upon the devoted workings of those who gain party domination by midnight meetings or public favor through a back door or a dark lantern entrance.

He has made his fights in the open, and he has won by appealing to the people rather than by cringing to the politicians.

Neither has he ever believed it possible for the stream of political purity to rise higher than its source, nor for appointees to office to be any better than those who vouch for them.

He detests personal immorality, and political depravity will find no supporter or defender in him.

Those defunct federal office holders who think they may win spurs of honor from him by neglecting their posts of duty to create and operate political machines will probably discover their mistake when it is too late to mend their political fortunes.

He will belie his entire past life if he permits such conduct on the part of his own appointees or those who hold office under his control.

Just why any person should hold a federal office who is not fit personally or morally for an equally important position in private life, has many times been a mystery to the American public, and it is refreshing to know that so early in his term President Roosevelt has determined that no opprobrium shall attach to him nor to his administration by having such persons in the public service.

WELCOME TO THE ODD FELLOWS.

THE Gazette voices the unanimous sentiment of the citizens of Colorado Springs in welcoming the grand lodge of Odd Fellows. The visitors come from all parts of our great state and they are representative of the leading business men of their communities.

This great order was founded in Baltimore in 1819, so that it is approaching the century mark. It had a rapid growth as soon as its works and tenets began to be known among men.

Colorado's grand lodge is becoming known as one of the strong bodies in the order, and its leaders are capable. It is these men, with representatives from the Rebekahs and the Patriarchs Militant, affiliated bodies, that we are entertaining. Their good works are done secretly so far as the individual is concerned, but the order has done so much since it was planted in this state, many years ago, that it is recognized as a power for good.

Undoubtedly it is all right for the cabinet to make as full an examination into the questions affecting the Pacific ocean cable that Mr. Mackay proposes to build as is necessary. Any reasonable rights that are asked should be immediately granted.

TERRITORIES KNOCKING AT THE DOOR.

UNDOUBTEDLY a very strong effort will be made at the coming session of congress to secure the admission of Arizona and New Mexico. Conventions are being held in both those territories this month for the purpose of securing joint action of some kind.

The argument chiefly against them is the character of a majority of the residents. As an offset to that, however, the applicants can always point to the experience of Colorado, Utah and other states that admission has always been followed by a rapid increase in population of a very desirable kind.

DIFFERENCE WHOSE OX IS GORED.

TEXAS, of all states in the union, has had "anti-trust" the worst. The wickedest thing in the world apparently to the ranger has been a combination of capital. But that was before Beaumont spurted up its gushers, and now it is different. The oil industry is likely to be swallowed up by the Standard Oil company—greatest of combinations—because of the anti-trust laws that were recently enacted in that state.

THE DUKE PASSED US BY.

GEORGE, DUKE OF YORK, some time king of England, had the pleasure yesterday of looking across the Niagara river and inspecting the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Alexander pushed his conquests into Asia about as far as one can travel in a couple of days' railroading. The Romans conquered a few hundred miles in land along the borders of the Mediterranean and adjacent country.

The handsomest piece of printing that has come to this office in a long time is an announcement that the New York Evening Post is about to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary. On the 15th day of November the Post will issue a beautiful souvenir number, which if carried out as planned will be worthy of the event celebrated.

Of all the state exchanges that come to this office the Montrose Enterprise seems to be the most enthusiastic in presenting the advantages of the home country to the outside world.

Kirk B. Armour left an estate of seven millions, made in the pork business in Kansas City. He willed it all to his family and the city where he had made so much in no way remembered. Now the Kansas City people are rather of the belief that a man cannot associate over long with hogs without acquiring a few bristles.

WORKING POLITICS.

Demand and Supply Its First Principle.

"Here we have the first principle common to business and politics—demand and supply. The people do not want much, nor do they want it long, but any real requirement of theirs is a demand which it pays to supply.

"No trait of the politician is more business-like than his respect for the market, the popular demand, but with this as a corollary goes his contempt for the passing fancies of the few. The few are the 'reformers,' and their complaints have a use that is strictly political; they give us only what we want, the majority of us, for his market is very broad, and though he will promise anything, he sells it little as possible 'for the money.'"

The New Sea Ports of America.

"The Great Need of Our Lake Commerce is a Deep-Water Way to the Sea," is an important subject which the Magazine Success has dealt with in a notable manner in its October issue.

Mayor Johnson, says: "It would seem that the United States, with its extensive coast line, has not connected the Pacific, could find locations for a sufficient number of seaports to accommodate its increasing trade."

Mayor Hugo, says: "No enterprise could be inaugurated by the United States government, with the same amount of money, which would more redound to the success and emolument of its citizens than this much mooted plan or a system of canals connecting the lakes with the ocean."

Mayor Harrison, says: "The trial trip of the Northwestern Steamship company's liner, the 'Northwestern,' has demonstrated the practicability of the new connection, and is certain to lead to immediate and enormous developments."

200,000 SHARES OF STOCK

OF

The Vacas-San Marcos Mining and Milling Co.

ARE ON THE MARKET AT $.00 A SHARE

The Vacas-San Marcos Company is organized under the laws of the State of Colorado and the Republic of Mexico, with 3,000,000 Shares at $1.00 per Share.

The Company owns acres of rich mineral land, sixty miles from the City of Durango, State of Durango, Mexico.

One Million Shares of Stock will be left in the Treasury, for future sales, at higher prices.

The Mill now working the Vacas Mine, in which there is over Six Million Dollars Worth of Ores in sight, is now concentrating 1,800 tons a month, that brings $33,000, at an expense of $12,000.

November 1, 1901, one enlargement of the mill will be started up, and 2,800 tons a month will be treated and a higher percentage of values saved, producing at least $45,000 a month, at an expense of $16,000.

By the 1st of February, 1902, another enlargement of milling facilities will be completed, enabling 300 tons of ore to be mined and treated per day, which will produce $100,000 a month, at an expense of not more than $25,000.

The money realized from the sale of this stock will be used in completing the milling plant now building, in erecting machinery on, and developing other mines of the group, that have millions of dollars worth of ore in sight.

Nearly all the machinery for the new, 300-Ton Mill is on the ground and in transit, and a large force of men employed in construction.

This is one of the most famous properties of Mexico, having produced many million dollars, and will produce, at least $50,000,000 more.

I have succeeded in settling all litigation over the property, that has been going on for years, and organized the company.

Beginning in January, 1902, at least 1 per cent. per month dividends on the investment of one dollar per share will be paid. The value of the stock, and the dividends, will more than double, soon after the completion of the proposed milling and mining facilities.

The chance to buy this stock at this price will last but a short time.

Orders for stock should be sent by letter, wire or phone. Reports, references and Prospectus shown or sent on application.

The names of the Mines of this famous Group of Properties are:

THE COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

Colorado Springs, Oct. 14.—The mining stock market today did not present any special features. The absence of all 30-day trading made the trading appear somewhat light, or at least the trading appeared light, whatever the cause. The strongest stock on the lists was El Paso which advanced to 67 1/2 under very good trading, and Doctor and Jack Pot, which advanced to 55 1/2. The trading in the mines list was very inactive and the preferred list presented much less activity than usual, and no especial strength was developed.

EASTERN MARKETS

By Associated Press. New York, Oct. 14.—Efforts by large speculative interests to sustain and advance the stock market continued in evidence today. They succeeded in overcoming the early weakness, but as the level of price rose over that of Saturday, their following decreased and the advance lost its force.

The suspension of the plan to set the Northern Pacific tangle, but apparently last week's reports on that subject were early in the way to findered the market. The suspension has gained force that the circulation of those reports was a manipulative measure against the shorts, or was designed to get the possible effect upon speculation of the actual announcement of some such measure.

The perception emerges that measures to finance the Northern Pacific settlement are the great object to be attained at present rather than large ulterior projects of additional consolidations. The prevalent rumor of an assignment by the financial powers of the control of St. Paul to Union Pacific as a competitor of Union Pacific throughout the Burlington system as a competitor of Union Pacific, which was the vital contention of Union Pacific throughout the quarrel, nevertheless St. Paul showed itself the most sensitive stock in the market today, falling early in the day to below Saturday's closing and rising later to 2 1/2 above. The rest of the market followed the movement in St. Paul, though over a lesser range throughout. In spite of favorable interpretations of Saturday's bank statement there is some uneasiness persisting in the safety of the money market for the rest of the season. The seemingly acute demand for funds at Paris awakens considerable surmise as to the extent of the demands to be satisfied at that center. The prevailing ease of money in London is dependent upon the large amounts of French capital loaned by that market and heavy withdrawals from London may have serious effects.

FROM THE ...SIDE LINES

The Colorado Springs High school football team is after big game. The football management of the High school is trying to arrange a game with the State School of Mines team to be played in this city next Saturday afternoon.

The High school had a good practice yesterday. Principal Mason, who has been coaching the team, was assisted yesterday by Mr. Allen, who has been helping Ewing coach the college team.

The college football squad did not do much work yesterday. A number of the men were not out in suits but this is usually the case on Mondays, especially if a game has taken place the Saturday before.

The game scheduled between Colorado college and the State Normal school for next Saturday afternoon will not take place, as the Normal school is out of football so far as the intercollegiate league is concerned.

The athletic clubs of Denver seem to have difficulty in getting enthused over football this year. Both clubs are relying mainly upon their members for the men to make up the teams and the experiment does not seem to be proving a success.

Washington gave Colorado college a hard beating last year and is anxious to repeat the trick this year. So far as reports go no steps toward a game in this city this year have been taken by the college authorities.

COACHING WOMEN WHO ARE LED ASTRAY BY MISCHIEVOUS MARSH FIRES.

Illustrative of the baneful power of the marsh fire, there is told a story of a woman who lost her way. She turned in this direction and in that, hopeless, puzzled as to her whereabouts in the murky light.

Colonel William E. Hughes of Denver, drove his coach and four back to Denver yesterday after spending Saturday and Sunday as the guest of Miss Everhart, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Whitney of Denver accompanied Colonel Hughes on the drive up and returning.

AMUSMENTS "THE RUNAWAY GIRL"

Pretty girls and plenty of them, catchy tunes and song books of them, lovely voices and choruses of them, rich costumes and trunks full of them—and these you had to see in the city if you can ever have it without going to see it, as is very much to be doubted.

MR. BRITTON'S BODY TAKEN TO NEW YORK

The sudden death of Frederick V. Britton, of this city, was a great loss to his friends here who had been under the impression that Mr. Britton was recuperating very rapidly.

Illustrative of the baneful power of the marsh fire, there is told a story of a woman who lost her way. She turned in this direction and in that, hopeless, puzzled as to her whereabouts in the murky light.

It is a bitter lesson learned by many a woman who thought that sufficient to her love alone can be the foundation of the home. It needs health. Strange as it may seem the beautiful loving woman who is weak may lose the love of her husband for whom she broke all home ties.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is altogether free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. Do not allow the dealer to push off on you a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" claiming that it is "just as good."

Some of the stockholders are Dr. J. A. Hart, R. C. Thayer, J. P. Sanger, R. P. Davie, Verner Z. Reed, Percy Hagerman, Dr. Gerald Webb and E. P. Shove. Dr. Hart is president; R. C. Thayer, vice president; J. P. Sanger, secretary-treasurer.

Ladies need not look shabby in old fashions, when they can buy new ones so reasonable at Mrs. Ramo's, 9 E. Kiowa street. Special attention paid to rettrimming.

There is nothing which quite takes the place, in a boy's life, of the consciousness that somebody—his teacher, brother, sister, father, mother, or friend—believes in him.

One of the most discouraging things to a youth who is apparently dull, yet is conscious of his power and ability to succeed, is to be depreciated by his teachers and to feel that his parents and friends do not understand him.

There is nothing which quite takes the place, in a boy's life, of the consciousness that somebody—his teacher, brother, sister, father, mother, or friend—believes in him.

They will be at home at 219 East Eaton avenue.

SUPERINTENDENTS—All Sunday school superintendents, assistants and department superintendents, are requested to meet in the Christian church this evening at 7:30 sharp. It is an adjourned meeting and important that there be a good attendance. The committee on permanent organization, which was appointed two weeks ago, will report and it is hoped to perfect an organization of Sunday school superintendents of Colorado Springs, Colorado City, Manitou and vicinity.

If there is one thing more than another that Colorado Springs can boast of, it is the quality of its mercantile establishments and the enterprise of its merchants. Most prominent among them is "Kaufman's." This progressive firm will celebrate, on Wednesday, the fifth anniversary of their existence in this city, and it is due them, to say here, that since their advent, they have revolutionized the local dry goods, clothing, shoe and housefurnishing goods trade. With methods and merchandise that would do credit to a metropolitan city, with courteous treatment to all, they have earned and enjoyed the fullest confidence of the community, and if past experience is any criterion, the store will be packed to overflowing on the morning. There will be music all day and every purchaser will receive a handsome souvenir. Everybody is invited and all will be made welcome.
