Spivey's work on exhibit

Sandy Spivey receiving plaque for 13th District entry from Congressman Beau Boulter in May.

PAIGE HOLT

Sandy Spivey's "Six Flags over Texas" was highlighted yesterday evening in the basement rotunda of the Cannon Building in Washington, D.C.

Miss Spivey was present for the ribbon cutting of the national high school art exhibition, which was jointly produced by more than half the members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Miss Spivey's work, which represents the 13th Congressional District, was highlighted in the collection of winning paintings, drawings and prints by students from all over the United States. 13th District Congressman Beau Boulter was on hand for the opening of the exhibition.

The ceremony began at 6 p.m. and was followed by an invitational banquet, which honored winners of the art contest.

The exhibit will be displayed in a corridor leading to the U.S. Capitol through May 1986. It is expected that thousands of visitors to the Capitol will view the exhibition.

The exhibition is part of AN ARTISTIC DISCOVERY - the fourth annual Congressional Art Competition sponsored by the Congressional Arts Caucus and conducted by Members in their own District. Boulter coordinated a local competition centered in Amarillo to select one piece of art to represent his District in the national exhibition.

AN ARTISTIC DISCOVERY was launched in 1982 to provide Members the opportunity to recognize young artists. Since then, more than 800 local contests have conducted involving nearly 45,000 high school students.

Miss Spivey graduated from Gruber High School this spring.

Miss Spivey said she was very excited about her accomplishments and the prospects of the trip. She will return from the capitol next week.

Miss Spivey is a 1985 graduate of Gruber High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hix Spivey of Gruber. She plans to pursue a degree in art at West Texas State University where she received a scholarship.

On The Go With Joy

Oh what a thrill it is to take lunches out to the field for harvest crew. This has been going on for nearly 2 weeks and it is beginning to get a little old. I have cooked 6 roasts, fixed ham, steak, hamburgers, tuna, burritos etc. and by Sunday, I was racking my brain for new suggestions. (Besides fried chicken, tater salad and just a good old fashioned picnic style lunch). So, I came up with the idea of a left-over field lunch. I happened to have a little of this, a dabble of that, something kind of unidentifiable under the mold. And I rounded it out with some mixture from the store and I threw it all into a brown bag with the stale potatoe chips and green onions. I was real proud of myself but something terrible happened in the transition and I got quite a few tacky comments from the combine crew on down to the dog. Such as, when I asked if they wanted me to bring supper out, I got "If what you brought the last 2 days is the best you can do, forget it - I'll cook my own when I get home." The dog ignored her sandwich because she didn't like the mustard on the bread and refused to eat period. Oh well, it was left over from day before yesterday and I would have had to throw it away anyhow.

These little episodes make me wish for a good rain just to cool certain people off including me. Maybe with a little bit of good luck, it will be over in a few days then we can all go back to fun things. Such as hoeing the foot-high weeds in my garden.

Recent tests on freezing cheese should be good news for those who would like the convenience of having a stock of their favorite cheeses on hand.

Ten different varieties of cheese proved successful for home freezing in tests reported by the Minnesota Experiment Station.

But the success depends on rapid freezing as well as the composition of the cheese.

The temperature in the freezer should be zero degrees F or lower, and the pieces or packages of cheese should weigh no more than one pound.

The varieties of cheese that were successfully frozen and kept in freezer storage for six months in the Minnesota tests were: Cheddar, Brick, Port du Salut, Swiss, Provoloni, Mozzarella, Liederkranz, Camembert, Parmesan and Romano.

Lee Greenwood at Tri-State Fair

The 1985 Amarillo Tri State Fair,

entertainment each night during the six-day run. Fair officials are happy to announce the appearance of Lee Greenwood at the fair on Monday night, September 16th for phenomenal ascent to genuine star status began in August, 1981 with the release of "It Turns Me Inside Out." His debut single for MCA remained on the Billboard Country music charts for 22 consecutive weeks. Single after single garnered such impressive radio airplay and sales that they leaped to the top of

of fans of many musical tastes.
Then the awards went to Lee
Greenwood. In just eight months, he was honored as Male Vocalist of

Mommy said "No"

By Paula Sinise

Spend over ten minutes with any child and you'll run into a problem parents face every day - your will versus his or hers. And you'll have to answer the same question that parents ask: "Should I spank my child? Will he understand if we just talk about it? How should I discipline my child?"

Unfortunately, there is no hard and fast rule for disciplining children. Raising children is a difficult and complicated task, requiring good judgement, flexibility and a careful evaluation of each situation. In the following paragraphs, I'm going to suggest some ways to help parents as they are dealing with this question.

First, what is your goal? What do you hope to accomplish with your child by disciplining? I would suspect, when faced with a rebellious or disobedient child, that this question goes unanswered. Ultimately, we want to teach our children right from wrong, possibly to be obedient to authority, and to be self-disciplined. Keeping those goals in mind, we move on to how to discipline.

Before we go any further, let me say that I am neither for nor against spanking. A few swats on the fanny won't cause brain damage or severe emotional trauma, as long as the child is not spanked 1) in anger, 2) hard enough to leave bruises, or 3) without a reasonable explanation for the spanking. "Because" or "Daddy is disappointed with you" are not appropriate explanations for children (or anyone else, for that matter). "Cleaning your room is your job, and when you don't do your job, there are consequences" is a clear reason, with the task and the misdemeanor clearly stated.

Giving an explanation to a child will help him or her to do two things. First, it improves reasoning skills and introduces the idea of "natural consequences." For example, when you tell a child to be home at 8:00, add the explanation, "because you need your rest so you won't be tired for school tomorrow." The natural consequence of coming home after 8:00 is that the child will be tired at school.

Secondly, it teaches the child to plan. Using the "if...then" principle of reasoning, a child learns that if he wants to do XX, then he must also do YY. If he doesn't do YY, then he won't be allowed to do XX.

By disciplining in this way, you are giving your child skills that he or she will be able to use long after they have left home and your supervision. By effective discipline, your child learns how to control himself at school, at work, in marriage and with his own children, and that, essentially, is the goal of discipline.

One final word. Be consistent. As with children, there are natural consequences for every behavior. If today you tell your child not to watch TV until his chores are done, and tomorrow you tell your child it's ok to watch TV before his chores are done, you are working against yourself. The natural consequence of that is a confused and disobedient child and frustrated and embarrassed parents. If you say, "Pick up your room NOW or else," decide what the "or else" is and do it, NOW. When your child knows that you won't follow through with discipline, they have no reason to obey you. There are no natural consequences.

Discipline, as with any difficult task, requires planning, a calm mind and a clear picture of the goals. Keep this in mind and raising children can be a pleasure for both of you and your child.

PSU will not close

A recent petition that was signed in the Oklahoma House of Representatives calling for the closing of the University of Arts and Sciences at Chickasha and Panhandle State University was unfortunate. The petition signed by eighteen legislators had no effect of law and was born out of frustrations and the desire to strike back at someone the petition signers viewed as being opposed to their goals concerning taxes. It was viewed by many as a type of pressure tactic to persuade Senator Tim Leonard to vote as the petitioners wished. President Tom Palmer at Panhandle State University said, "This move was unwise and came at a very inappropriate time when most legislative leaders were working hard to pass a tax package for the state of Oklahoma." President Palmer continued, "I cannot understand the actions of these representatives because Senator Leonard and Representative Hill from the Panhandle and northwest Oklahoma have always been supportive of education. I have visited with numerous legislative leaders and the petition was treated in many instances as a joke. I do not consider this a joke when a fine educational institution has been maligned in this matter. It is kind of ironic that we have just concluded celebrating our 75th Anniversary here at Panhandle State University and were really on a high note and then something like this comes up. I wish to inform all people in the area and the students who attended here that Panhandle State University has been in existence for 75 years and will certainly be in existence for many years in the future. Our strong academic programs will continue, and as always we will serve as a center in public service for cultural and athletic activities. It would have been easy to strike out and use the same tactics that were used by those who signed the petition, but this would not have been helpful to anyone.

"It appears there is going to be an adequate increase in appropriations for higher education this year, and we are looking forward to a banner year in 1985-86".

Xi Psi Kappa meeting held

Xi Psi Kappa members stepped from the every day world, Tuesday, May 21 to the world of Don Ho, the magic of Hawaii. The exciting pulse of the Islands greeted each guest as she stepped into the home of the Gordon Stedje's. Kathy Stedje was the hostess for the day. Each guest was presented the traditional lei to complete each colorful outfit. Judy Stedje received a flower for being the "most authentic" in her dress.

Linda Venneman, chapter president presided at the Ritual to welcome new members, Debby Odom, Peggy Barkley, and Sally Jones.

Among the sea shells, parrots, and flowers, the members found a delicious lunch awaiting them on the patio. Alexa Thoreson and her social committee had prepared the exotic fare.

After the business meeting, Kathy Stedje presented hostess gifts to several members. Each was delighted with her plant.

Members will recess for the summer with great expectations for the coming year.

Members present were: hostess Kathy Stedje, Judy Stedje, Linda Venneman, Alexa Thoreson, Mary Jo Cluck, Sally Jones, Regina Barkley, Debby Odom, Kathy Logsdon, Peggy Barkley, Marian Shapley, Fran Duncan, Mary Jane Henson, Terri Etling, Judy Park and special guest Katie Jones.

Chrystal French, 10, and Corey Rasor, 7, are the winners of the bookmark contest, and we congratulate them for their efforts! Their bookmarks will be printed along with other winners in the Texas Panhandle Library System and distributed at the TPLS booth at the Tri-State Fair in the fall of 1985.

During the spring, the Gruver Library challenged the lower grades in the Elementary School with a bookmark contest. We were pleased with the cooperation by the teachers and students, and two of these bookmarks were chosen as winners from the Gruver Library. Many of the bookmarks were excellent, and it was a difficult decision to choose the winning bookmarks. However, those were specific guidelines to follow in order for the bookmarks to qualify.

When the bookmarks are printed the back of the bookmark will have information about library services of those of the Texas Panhandle Library System.

All should go by the booth at the fair and see how Gruver is represented by these two talented "Gruverites!"

BOOK REVIEW

Wheel of Fortune by Susan Howatch is her finest, most ambitious, most absorbing novel to date. Like her previous bestsellers—Penmaric, Cashelmarra, The Rich Are Different and Sins of the Fathers—The Wheel of Fortune is the story of a family.

At its center is Oxmoon, the family manor of the Godwins, which for four generations, from the glittering years before the First World War to the present time, obsesses and haunts every member of the family, turning brother against brother, son against father, its changing fortunes inexorably linked to theirs, its decline mirroring the family's descent from Edwardian prosperity and social position to the straitened circumstances of middleclass life.

With a rich cast of characters, an ear for dialogue that places her in the first rank of novelists and a sense of drama that has made her worldwide best seller, Susan Howatch has written a family saga that tears us out of our own lives and places us forever in the lives of the Godwins - and unwilling to emerge from their struggles, joys and tragedies until the very last page.

State occupation information

In an effort to help "spread the word" about a new way to obtain occupational information in Texas, the Texas State Library is lending its support to SOICC.

Because we want to provide our community with timely and useful information, we are happy to introduce you to this committee whose purpose is to provide Texans with a single source of career, occupational and educational information. The information has been developed by the Texas Employment Commission, the Texas Education Agency, the Texas Rehabilitation Commission, the State Job Training Coordination Council, Texas College and University System and other sources.

The information will benefit career planners, students and the general public in addition to agencies, professional data users, contractors and recipients of Job Training Partnership Act grants and members of Private Industry Councils who plan job training partnership programs.

This service will save hours of searching through government agencies and other information sources for the latest occupational information. SOICC's goal is to be the "one source" to connect you with the information you need about future job trends, educational opportunities, career planning and other occupational information.

SOICC now has a toll-free telephone number for answering information requests. This "hotline" will eliminate the dilemma of gathering information from countless sources. Just dial 1-800-822-PLAN for the occupation information you might need. You can use this information in various ways to plan, shape and build your future.

Thomas P. O'Neill, House Speaker, (D-Mass):
"We are ready to negotiate our differences in good faith. But we are not ready to go back on our word to Social Security recipients."

SUMMER READING PROGRAM

Dates will be announced soon for this "fun" time for your children. Tentatively the last two weeks of July, and the first of August are set aside for a weekly story hour, plus lots of fun and surprises.

More publicity will be forthcoming, so be watching for dates and times. We have received new children's books that will be available for the Summer Reading Program.

Awesome Adventures is the theme for this summer, and a summer of awesome adventure lies ahead for the youth of Gruver. This program is sponsored by the Gruver Library and the Texas State Library System.

LIBRARY HOURS

Library Hours are 2:00 - 6:00 Monday through Friday. We will be closed on Thursday, July 4.

Out on the JOB

WATCH UP FOR POWER LINES

Out on the job, power lines bring needed electricity to the site. But they can be dangerous... if you don't watch up! You need to be especially careful when you are handling re-bar, pipes, scaffolding, or tools that are long enough to contact overhead lines. Contact with power lines is also a potential danger to operators of front-end loaders, dump trucks and any other equipment of unusual height.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.
