Module Builder Shows Way to Potential Gin Savings in Handling Seed Cotton

Dallas—The cotton module builder system for handling, storing, transporting and ginning seed cotton can cut $3-$4 a bale off direct gin labor costs and trim another $2-$7 in indirect costs.

Robert G. Curley, agricultural engineer from the University of California at Davis, told an audience at a seed cotton handling and storing seminar that direct labor savings can come through eliminating gin down-time caused by waiting for cotton deliveries. Added savings are possible by increasing gin output with stored cotton.

Curley said his conclusions, based on an analysis of cost records from 26 gins in the San Joaquin Valley of California, apply to gins with high per-bale labor costs.

Curley appeared as panelist at a day-long seminar sponsored by Cotton Incorporated, the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by America's cotton growers.

The gin audit showed the three gins with the highest labor costs per bale spent $6.44 to $8.73. The three with the lowest costs spent $2.86 to $3.44.

To illustrate his calculations Curley used the gin with the third highest labor costs—$6.44 a bale, computed at the normal ginning rate of 15 bales an hour.

Labor costs for ginning with the module builder were calculated at $2.08 a bale. Another $1 a bale might be added for labor costs in gin preparation, maintenance and breakdown, making a total of $3.08 with the module builder.

Subtract the total labor cost in ginning modules ($3.08) from the total cost of ginning trailer cotton ($6.44) and the new per-bale ginning labor cost comes to $3.36—a saving of almost one-half.

Curley said the module builder system, by extending the ginning season, can effectively increase gin output and cut labor costs still more. An increase of 50 per cent in output can reduce costs by $2 to $4.50 a bale. Increasing output 100 per cent can trim $3 to $7 a bale.

Cotton growers must be careful, though, in determining the number of pickers per module builder for maximum harvesting efficiencies, Curley warned.

For example, he said a grower using three pickers on one module builder in 2.5 bale-an-acre cotton might experience a picker waiting time of 2.31 minutes per dump. Adding a second module builder for the three pickers could shave two minutes off the waiting time—but the net result would be to add 85 cents a bale to the cost.

However, if that same producer ran a fourth picker with a second module builder—assuming he can increase his acreage accordingly—the overall cost per bale would be cut by $1.50 to $1.75 a bale.

Curley said the module builder system has demonstrated beyond question that it can save money for both grower and ginner. The gin can save by operating more independently of harvesting. Ginners can run on a continuous schedule and enjoy considerably higher output over the season.

The 32nd Annual ABC Rodeo will be held in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum March 20-23. The ABC Rodeo has been sponsored for the past 31 years by the Downtown Chapter of the American Business Club of Lubbock as a fund raising effort to support the Lubbock Boys' Club. This year's rodeo will feature Miss Texas, Judy Mallett, Walt Garrison, Dallas Cowboy's star running back and Leon Adams' Famous Bull Act. The rodeo parade is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. and the Grand Entry at 7:30 p.m. on March 20.

The proceeds for the annual event will go to the Boys' Club with this year's fund emphasis going to the building of the new John W. Wilson Boys' Club.

This is the first year in the history of the Rodeo to have a reigning Queen. She is chosen on the basis of beauty, horsemanship and advanced ticket sales. The Queen competition was held Sunday, February 17, in the Afill's Arena on Lubbock's Tahoka Highway at 2 p.m.

The five finalists are Donna Henley, 16, a sophomore at Frenship High School; Miss Jeanine Hinson, 17, a junior at Brownfield High School; Miss Michelle Phillips, 11, of Abernathy; Miss Glenda Settle, 16, a junior at Monterey High in Lubbock; and Miss Lana Lea Smith of Big Springs.

The ABC Rodeo Queen will be announced March 1, 1974. The winner receives a $1,000 western wardrobe and a saddle valued at $500.

The Center will also be available to other groups and businesses interested in conducting educational programs.

About $1 million has been pledged by business, industry, foundations and individuals. In each Texas county, 4-H members and leaders are presently conducting fund raising activities.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Bill Boykin
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Austin—Long before the Constitutional Convention completes its work, serious thought is being given to when revision of the basic laws should be scheduled for a statewide vote.

At the same time, a group of lawmakers (probably in the minority) is agitating to recess along about the middle of next month until after the primary election.

Convention President Price Daniel Jr. favored a May 4 vote initially—on party primary ballots. With legal difficulties in sight and uncertainty over convention completion date, he indicated he could go along with a November 5 (general election) vote date on the revision product.

Daniel felt the election should be called while interest in the convention's product is hot—and still sees some points in favor of a special election before November.

Proponents of November balloting argue time is needed to develop public understanding of the revision document and to refute opposition attacks.

Lawmaker-delegates backing a recess until after the primaries feel more objective voting on revision can be assured after election campaigns are behind them.

Others contend a shorter recess is advisable so delegates can see what they have done and take the pulse of voters back home on revision proposals before a final, irrevocable vote.

Daniel insists there is still grounds for optimism about completing work of the convention by early April—with or without a recess of just one week.

Gambling Referendum Sought—A campaign is underway to force a statewide referendum at May 4 primary elections on legalizing horse race gambling.

Enough signatures have been obtained to get a place on the Republican ballot, but supporters of the referendum are far short of the 110,000 signers needed for a Democratic vote.

Heads of Texas Citizens for Parimutuel Horse Racing reported they have collected 40,000 signatures on petitions.

Texans last voted on the issue in 1968 and rejected it in both primaries. Democrats turned it down 764,173 to 664,859 and Republicans nixed it 55,525 to 50,837.

Such a referendum has no binding effect on the legislature.

Courts Speak—Upholding a fine and jail sentence assessed a Lubbock film exhibitor, the Court of Criminal Appeals concluded Texas' new obscenity law meets U.S. Supreme Court standards.

Former State Rep. Walter Knapp of Amarillo lost his final appeal from a four year prison sentence on charges of stealing state postage stamps.

Evangelist Lester Roloff, cited for contempt of court for keeping children in an unlicensed home for girls, was ordered by the State Supreme Court freed from jail pending March 20 hearing.

A Dallas man won reversal of a 20-year sentence for fondling a nine-year-old daughter, when the Court of Criminal Appeals found testimony in trial court insufficient.

Crime Goals Adopted—A new criminal justice plan for Texas seeks to reduce major crimes, burglary, robbery, drug abuse and theft, up to 20 per cent by 1978.

The Governor's Criminal Justice Division proposed 24 programs, and has $29.1 million in federal funds to help state and local agencies with crime curbs.

The plan reflects input from citizens, officials, criminal justice personnel and staff aides and executive committee members of the Criminal Justice Council.

Schoor - Kirkland Vows Exchanged

Miss Patricia Schoor and Garry Ron Kirkland were united in marriage Saturday, Feb. 9 at 4 p.m. in the Quaker Avenue Church of Christ in Lubbock. Dr. Kline Nall performed the double ring ceremony before a candle-light altar, flanked by baskets of burgundy and pink flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white wedding dress with empire waist and an overlay of lace with Juliet sleeves, featuring a high neckline and long train. The veil was layers of net with seed pearls and lace madellions. She carried a bouquet of white carnations atop a white bible.

Miss Cindy Jovett was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Debby Horton, Pam Thomas, and Cindy Luck, all of Shallowater.

Mr. Wallace Hill of Hereford was best man, groomsmen were Larry and Barry McNutt of Hereford and Carl Kirkland of Farwell. Ushers were Mike Flowers, Lubbock; Larry Schoor, Jerry Kirkland, Jimmy Lester, all of Shallowater.

Candle lighters were Kathy Schoor, Shallie and Leigh Ann Kirkland. Stephanie Holden of Cleburne was flower girl. Curtis Laneford was ringbearer.

Miss Sherry White of Lubbock accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Dora Potter of Shallowater rendered 5 numbers, "For All We Know", "Twelfth of Never", "Our Lord's Prayer", "Savior Lead Us Like A Shepherd", and "Walk Hand in Hand."

The brides attendants wore dresses with empire waists and burgundy velvet, pink skirts and sleeves, accented with white lace at waist and on sleeves with white accessories.

A reception followed in fellowship hall immediately after the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to Dallas, the couple are at home in Hereford where Mr. Kirkland is employed by Kirkland Drilling Co.

House Passes Increased Deposit Insurance Bill

Capital, the American Bankers

Association news weekly, reported that public funds in time deposits in banks and other financial institutions would be 100% covered by insurance under a bill passed by the House.

While public funds in savings and loans, mutual savings banks, and credit unions would be 100% covered, full insurance would not apply to demand deposits. The FDIC has been authorized to limit the total amount of funds that may be deposited in time deposits in any bank under the provisions of the bill.

The bill would order an increase in deposit insurance for all institutions to $50,000 per account.

SPORTS

by Joe Kelly

The city was Lockhart. The night was Tuesday. It was the first day coaches could sign football recruits. It also was a basketball night, with key games.

Phil Miller, the friendly, smiling sportscaster for a leading Austin TV station, took his turn at the mike. My, but Texas had a great day recruiting! Such big boys! So many blue chippers! All of this was followed by glowing descriptions of their size, ability, etc.

I had not been able to get any of the games on the radio and, as Phil babbled on, I had that well known feeling. The station broke away for a commercial.

When Phil came back on he said, almost matter-of-factly, "well, it happened in Fort Worth tonight. The Longhorns were upset by TCU..." etc. Then came the news that Tech now had a two-game lead and my fondest hopes were realized.

Unless Tech falls apart, the race is over and that Texas defeat by TCU could well be the biggest game of the campaign. The Longhorns still were in the race. Now they are all but out of it.

But the Raiders aren't winning the title by default. They are winning it by playing good, sound basketball. They have won the games on the road that they've had to win and they've stayed unbeaten at home. It's a combination that must be put together to win.

Because of the mails, this is being written even before Tech ventures into Aggieland and no one knows about that one. The Aggies, and Tech, are the only teams in the league unbeaten at home.

Baylor, A&M and TCU, going into last Saturday's games were the only teams without a road victory. Every team has lost on the road, with Tech and Texas each losing only once.

But, if Lanny Van Eman and Leon Black ever hold a talk, the subject could well be: How do you beat Tech? Arkansas now has dropped 11 straight to the Raiders and Texas, ten.

The Austin paper made a big to-do about Texas signings, which is natural. At the same time, they pointed out that Tech had a good crop and TV mentioned Jim Carlen two or three days running.

It's apparent, reading the list, that Tech did do well. As has been said before, the blue chip list isn't really all that important. Many of the current stars of the league never were on the list and yet they became winners.

The appointment of Dick Davis, a former SMU star, as athletic director for the Dallas institution probably will be greeted by SMU alumni and friends with enthusiasm.

At the same time, it was a disappointment to his many friends that Jim Brock didn't get tapped for the job. Jimbo, always smiling, capable and experienced, had a lot of support. He'd have been great in the job. Hopefully, Davis will keep him as assistant athletic director. Few men in the league are held in higher regard.

Davis, as might be expected, is eager to build SMU back into the glory days he knew when he was an end on Doak Walker teams. He faces problems in reaching that goal, of course.

In his first statement, he indicated that he would like to see SMU become the Southern Cal of the Southwest, to say nothing of being the Notre Dame of this area. Shoot, he might have added Penn State to make it a clean sweep. Wonder if the other conference schools are trembling?

Baseball season—is it possible?—is just around the corner. The major league teams have been announcing signings for some time, and most have gone almost unnoticed, except that spring training in Florida and Arizona is coming up within two weeks.

Most of the attention is going to be focused on the Oakland A's and how well the key veterans fall in line. Winter talk is cheap. But when workouts start, somehow the lure of the diamond overcomes all the obstinance of winter.

Every place I go people are talking about fishing and a lot are doing something about it. I called on a neighborhood grocer in Lockhart last Wednesday and the traffic through his store was something else. People were buying minnows and shrimp left and right.

Most agreed that the fishing isn't the best right now. It is still a little early. But some bass are being caught and the crappie are starting to run. And with the temperatures in the middle 70's to low 80's, fishermen are getting into action.

All of this talk about expansion, whether it be major league baseball, football or basketball, continues to amuse me. Maybe I'm just easily amused, but it seems as though everyone wants to have a major league team.

It doesn't matter, of course, that there aren't that many athletes of major league ability, no matter what sport. The name "major" is the important thing, since it sets the city apart from minor.

Television, of course, has been one of the prime culprits. The over exposure given to sports, almost saturating the airwaves at times, has made a sports conscious nation even more so.

As a result of fans seeing the best, they want the best right in their home town. So, there is more and more clamor for expansion. The result may well be satiation through saturation and maybe, just maybe, those "no shows" for NFL games last fall might be the first sign that even cities with major league teams have grown weary.

The Roundup—Murray Evans, former Hardin-Simmons coach, is in the sporting goods business in Abilene....A Brownwood Bulletin photo recently showed Mike Blackburn, 6-1, 235 pounds, after he had signed to play for Howard Payne. He's a former Monterey Plainsman, who went to Cisco JC....An Austin TV station last Thursday night began to speculate on basketball prospects for UT next year....Talked to an Aggie ex this week. He has two sons, one is going to UT and the other to SMU....Leon Black, UT basketball coach, says that pro scouts have been looking at Larry Robinson....Tech, now that it has the top Texas quarterback prospect signed, may well have the best stable of college signal callers in the conference....After you've been in Central Texas only a couple of days, a West Texan can understand why track, baseball and other sports flourish here. The weather is pleasantly warm, but the humidity makes you run for the air conditioner.

Let's conserve fuel...and help drive down the high cost of living.

You know that stop and go driving wastes gas. But did you know that even in light traffic, your gas mileage drops off by 15%? And in heavy traffic by more than 45% when compared with 40-miles-per-hour in unobstructed traffic? Under these conditions gas mileage of 17 miles-per-gallon drops to somewhere around nine.

Traffic congestion costs you in other ways, too. Nearly everything we use—food, clothing, appliances, necessities and luxuries alike—travels by truck. And when operating costs go up due to poor road conditions, guess whose grocery bill goes up?

We could keep traffic flowing more smoothly, a lot more economically, and a lot less wastefully, by improving road conditions. Like paving or repaving sub-standard roads. By putting passing lanes on steep hills. By replacing narrow and weakened bridges, widening underpasses, getting rid of bottle-necks.

Smooth, steady driving means lower fuel consumption, thus lower operating costs. And that means one less thing to drive up today's prices. The Road Information Program, Inc., 485 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20004.

Drinks For Teenagers
It doesn't seem to matter what time of year, when two or more teens get together, it is a signal to drink something. What that something is depends on the groceries the homemaker brings home each week.

minutes. Remove the cinnamon sticks and orange peels and pour into mugs. The recipe serves 10.
Teens will enjoy making a Mock Sangria, a fruit flavored refresher. Slice 2 oranges and 1 lemon and put them in a large pitcher with 1 can (46 oz.) chilled very berry canned punch. With a big spoon, crush and stir the fruits slightly without breaking peels. Chill for 1 1/2 hours to develop flavors. Just before serving, add 1 bottle (12 oz.) chilled club soda and stir. Pour into ice filled glasses. This makes about 7 cups, enough for six tall drinks.

Try this unusual, spicy punch. For fun, serve it hot in heatproof mugs. In a large saucepan, combine a 46-ounce can of very berry canned punch, 4 cups cider, 2 cinnamon sticks and the juice of 2 oranges. Cut the skin of the oranges into large pieces and drop into the saucepan. Heat until the punch bubbles, then simmer 10 is being taken after some growers have made irreversible financial commitments and if allowed to stand is going to create serious and unnecessary inequities as well as reduce chances for adequate cotton production in 1974." Similar statements have been made by PCG to the office of Congressman George Mahon of Lubbock.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1973, provision is made for farmers who are unable to plant or who lose their crop after planting to receive one-third of the "target price" on an amount of cotton equal to their established 1974 payment yield times their acreage allotment. In 1974 the disaster payment would be one-third of 38 cents or 12.66 cents per pound. Also, if because of conditions beyond the farmer's control his total production falls below two-thirds of "expected yield" he would be entitled to a payment of 12.66 cents times the difference between total production and expected production. Expected production is defined as payment yield times acreage

From The Editor

Eighteen and a half Minutes, what can you do with it?

The other day a friend of mine came to me and asked the inevitable. "What can you do with eighteen and a half minutes worth of tape?" he asked.

"Do you really want an allotment.

Some producers, expecting to avail themselves of this insurance feature on more than their base allotments, have either leased or plan to lease acreage from farmers not wishing to plant, Riley explains. "But if this most recent ruling is not changed," he continues, "leased acreage for which we have paid good money will be worthless."

The communication from Washington to the State ASCS office at answer?", I asked warily. "Of course" he said. "The suggestions I have you might not like", I replied.

"No, no", he started irritably. "I mean how could you erase that much tape and not know it?"

I thought as we walked down the street filled with traffic trying to escape the luxuries of the city. Half way down it, we ran into your friend and mine Jim Derma.

"Jim, how do you lose eighteen and a half minutes of tape?" my friend asked anxiously.

"Have a hole in your pocket?" he replied.

"Come on, I'm serious", my friend pleaded. "Well, he started, pondering for a moment, "you could eat it".

"Eighteen minutes, come on. How do you eat eighteen and a half minutes worth of tape", I shouted over the traffic noise.

"With great difficulty. It's easy you ought to know that."

"Oh, sure. Do you realize how much eighteen and a half minutes is?"

"No, but if you cut it into small segments. Of course, it's just like a tape worm you know." Leaving Derma talking to a six foot tall pigeon.

We asked a few more people about losing that much tape and they all gave us the same answer. "You could always put it in an envelope and sent it to Russia."

The natural response was, why? Their answers was that the Russians would find a way to College Station, in part, says "coverage will be extended only to the historical allotment on each farm. In the case of cotton this would be the basic allotment and would not include acreage leased or re-apportioned."

As not interpreted, this would mean that acreage transferred to a farm on a permanent, purchase basis, would be eligible for disaster payments, but temporary transfers of acreage by lease would not.

It is reported that the decision to exclude temporary allotment transfers from disaster coverage was made to preclude the making of payments on acreage leased or re-apportioned to farms where it is known in advance that planting will be prevented by flooding or other natural disaster.

"But be that as it may," Riley says, "it is no justification for penalizing Plains farmers who wish to obtain the meager protection against disaster that was intended by Congress when the law was written." PCG has also pointed out to Congressmen Poage and Mahon that with 1974's greatly increased production costs, some farmers will not be able or willing to plant cotton above their basic allotments without some kind of protection and that the breakdown of acreage leasing will therefore have an adverse effect on total plantings at a time when the government is calling for all-out production.

"It is obvious that under present market conditions the only advantage to be gained from leasing cotton acreage in 1974 would come from the disaster protection in the law," Riley said, "and to make leased acreage ineligible for that protection would completely stop leasing and cause downward adjustments in farmers' planting intentions."

The time to take care of your health is while you have it.

decode it and invent something to destroy themselves.

My friend and I parted company in front of Picky Ricky's office and went our separate ways.

What can you do with that much tape, anyway?

The Ghost Story

"George Tell Her". This play was really hilarious. The cast consisted of students with great talent.

In this play, George played by Don L. Grimes, tries to tell Anna how he feels about her. Due to all the kids around Anna, he never gets to. George gets a change at the beginning, but he blows it. The words never come out. Then someone knocks at the door. Immediately all of Anna's friends come in.

George gets an ingenious idea to tell a ghost story. You see in his mind, if he could really scare them, then they would leave Anna and then he'd be able to tell her what he wanted. George succeeds, but he scares Anna too. He volunteers to stay with her but the gang won't let him, so everyone leaves.

After a while, George comes in to apologize to Anna and to explain why he told the Ghost Story. Anna replies, "I know". You see, he wanted everyone to leave so George could finish what he had started to say.

It was really a great play and I enjoyed it very much. The cast consisted of Don L. Grimes, Cindy Coward, Caran Connor, Gracie Lupton, Shirley Hayslip, Rusty Lusk, Richard Krebbs, Mike Beckham, and Kay Williams.

The girls wore long timey dresses, bobby socks and Caran Connor really fixed up her hair perfect for the 50s. The boys wore sneakers and I have to say Mike Beckham was great. His hair was greasy and combed back. To top it off, Mike wore a leather jacket, just like in the 50s. It was really a good play.

"Reserved For The Builders"

"There's a lot of friendly kidding among the men who meet each noon at a special table reserved for them."

All these men are rich builders. Waterman told his story. He had gone bankrupt. His son had quit college in order to help out. There was one thing that was bothering Mr. Waterman. Even if he was poor, was he included at the same table?

The 8 men in this play were J. Vaughn-Mr. Curtis, B. Reeves-Mr. Bregman, B. Stewart-Mr. Carter, B. Heinen-Mr. Ross, A. Rice-Mr. Waterman, K. McMenamy-Mr. Keyner, D. Caddell-Scotty.

Even though they did not speak loud enough, these boys did a good job. All of them knew their lines. The only problem was that they did not talk loud enough. Some parts of the play did not make sense because the audience did not know that the actors were saying.

This play seemed like it wasn't a play. There was not enough action. They were not pretending when they ate. They had real food, which made the play more realistic.

This was a good play with meaning to it. Can a poor guy fit in the rich? The students enjoyed this play, which helped break up the regular class routine of everyday.
