The standard strip to collect is 18 inches long. One kind had a block of wood every 12 inches so the stock could see it, for they were not used to fences and would run into the fence.

The wood was later replaced with an iron block, it would stay longer and was not affected by the weather. Then there was the one half inch wide ribbon wire, but it did not prove sucessful in this part of the country for the wind would cause it to whip until it came apart. It was later made with a twist but this was not it came apart. It was later made with a twist but this was not successful either. Another interesting wire was one with a spur rowel and it did not have barbs as the rowels acted as barbs. There were over 260 different kinds of wire patented and this included a large buffalo wire. It was a single strand wire almost as large as a pencil. The buffalo would run through and tear down the barb wire fences, they had no fear for the barbs, but could not break the large round wire.

Another good collection is rocks, minerals, and fossils. There is the selenite "Rose Rocks" one of the most beautiful formed rocks in the world. It contains a mixture of selenite and fine red sand. school were combined for one year, it would be sufficient to circle the earth three times!

According to an annual transportation report, school buses will travel a total of 76,510 miles this year. The longest daily bus route for the school is almost 110 miles long while the shortest is only 33. The route with the most mileage travels to southeast of Turkey, to bring children to school. The shortest route travels to Quitaque, picking up children along the way. Another long route winds its way north of Turkey almost to the district boundary about 100 miles daily in order to bring children to school. Other bus routes include distances of 55 miles, 65 miles, and 74 miles. The total six bus routes travel a total of total six bus routes travel a total of 437 miles each day if it is necessary to journey the full length of the routes.

The State of Texas funds the transportation program with an allocation based upon the length of the bus routes and the number of children transported. The school district is required to take a one-day accounting each month for six months, beginning in September, and ending in February. The average number of children transported each accounting period help determine the funding process necessary to pay transportation costs.

Through an intricate formula process used by the state, the mileage plus the number of students transported, the school district is placed into a group of schools which will receive $.88 per mile allocation. According to an application submitted to the state, Valley School should receive something over $70 thousand this year with which to operate the transportation program. From the year with which to operate the transportation program. From the allocation the school district is expected to purchase necessary buses, pay bus driver salaries, maintain buses, or any other costs which may arise in the operation of transportation.

Social Security News

By Terry J. Clements
Today I would like to discuss a late development that concerns the effect that Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) payments have on social security benefits. The decision was recently made that CRP payments will not count as earnings in applying the annual earnings test. In other words, CRP income will not prevent a beneficiary from receiving social security benefits. This latest interpretation is drastically different than previous policy that considered these payments as countable for the annual earnings in most cases. in most cases.

The annual earnings test requires that social security benefits will be reduced one dollar for every two dollars that a person's earnings exceed the exempt amount. The exempt amount for 1987 is $6000 for persons under age 65 anfd $8160 who are age 65 or will be come age 65 during the year.

It has been determined that the payments made under CRP are based solely on a person's participation in a conservation program and that there are no significant services rendered by the participant. Therefore, these payments are not considered earned income for the annual earnings test and are treated like rental income, annuities, interest and early the participant.

rental income, annuities, interest and other "non-earned" income. Social Security tax still must be paid on income received under the CRP program.

Individuals who are receiving Individuals who are receiving social security benefits or are approaching retirement age and are deciding whether to participate in the CRP program should note this change. You may wish to recontact the Social Security office for clarification even if you have already received an explanation that the CRP payments will affect social security checks.

ABUSING THE SYSTEM

is done in the nation's capitol has never really been too high. Billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money is either wasted, or thrown at problems. Political games, and highhanded partisanship tie up vital issues that need to be decided promptly and with a great deal of wisdom.

This past week, however, my per-onal opinion of the political games being played with this nation's future dipped to an all-time low. While millions of Americans are struggling to make ends meet and feed their families, the leadership in the House of Representatives stalled action on a iece of legislation, and allowed a $12,000 raise for Members of Congress to slip through the cracks and into the pockets of legislators who hadn't really earned what they were already making.

The law that allowed this under-handed act to take place dates back to 1967, and provides for the appointment of a High-level Commission to study the differences between government pay scales, and those of the private sector. This Commission is required to make recommendations to the President every four years on these differences. The President, in turn, makes his own recommendations (based on those of the Commission) in his yearly budget proposal. These pay recommenda-tions unfortunately, go into effect automatically unless Congress, with-in 30 days, passes a joint resolution disapproving them.

This past year, the Commission recommended a $60,000 dollar a year raise for Congress, which the President cut to just about $12,000. The Senate adopted a resolution disapproving this pay raise two weeks ago, and attached it to a Housepassed measure to provide $50 mil-lion in emergency aid to the homeless. Despite assurances from the House Leadership that the pay issue would come up for a vote before the midnight, February 4 deadline, the House adjourned on February 3 vithout voting on the resolution, and this latest raid on the national treasury

At least that's what the leadership in Congress would like us to believe. I don't believe the American public is going to sit still for this one. I know I'm not going to.

On the day after this latest injustice, I became party to a lawsuit filed in a United States District court which challenges the constitutional-ity of the 1967 law. The suit specifically challenges the law's require-ment of Congressional action to disapprove the salary increases as an un-constitutional delegation of authority from the Congress to the President.

I will also be active in legislative attempts to rescind the pay raise. Un-fortunately, a bill of this type would be killed in House Committees by the House leadership, so the only chance we have is for Members of the U.S. Senate to attach it to legislation upon which the House must act. A number of Senators have indicated to me that they will pursue this

Sen. Bentsen Promises Ag Support

Senator Lloyd Bentsen has pledged to use his powerful posi-tion as chairman of the U.S. Senate Finance Committee to restore equity to American agricultural equity to American agreements and delegates attending the Toxas Farmers Union convention, Bentsen said a first step is to tighten up procedures for trade grievances under the international General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs.

"Today, if you file a motion before GATT on an unfair trade practice, it's like dropping a rose petal in the Grand Canyon and waiting for the echo. What I'd like to see us have is legislation that will see that these things get resolved while we still have an industry."

Bentsen said he expects Reagan administration support for a bipartisan bill. A reluctance to deal forcefully with the issue in the past has been based on foreign policy interests instead of a realistic look at competition, he said.

"Texas farmers and ranchers are on the firing line on trade, since agriculture is more depen-dent on trade than any other in-

ORIGIN.

By Jimmye Taylor Guess quite a few of you readers can remember how we used to walk on "stilts." You know, those long sticks with a foot-platform on them that you could hold onto and walk.

We had a wide open area outside our front yard fence, and bounded on one side by shelterbelt, another by the barns and lots, and on the front side by the farm to market paved road, up a steep incline.

Dad made stilts for my little sis Dad made stilts for my little sist and me, when we were, I guess, about 11 and 7 years old. Mine, as befitting a big sister, were 2 x4's, cut about 6 ft. long, with the footbraces about two feet off the ground. He fixed them up nice, with a leather strap made of old harness, nailed to the brace and stilt to hold my foot in place, somewhat like a stirrup.

My little sister were quite a bit.

My little sister s were quite a bit shorter, but she used them like she rode a tricycle -- at top speed.

We got so we could literally RUN on those things! Of course, if we did happen to get tangled up, or hit a loose rock or pebble, or just put one down a little crooked, BAM! down we'd go, and that's a pretty good fall!

We would sometimes race in the open area, which was

We would sometimes race in the open area, which was probably100 to 150 feet wide, dirt, hard-packed by the tires of cars and tractors. I suppose we had great fun on the stilts for a year or more, then our attention was taken by something else.

I had this friend, see, who lived just down the road from us, . . . his mother was the one who made the taffy . . . he could whittle airplanes better than anyone I had planes better than anyone I had ever seen.

We used to get fruit, or pick up our groceries at the grocery store, in wooden apple-crates. They were just great for whittling. Dad could whittle a hand-gun, with a nail for the trigger, that was really lreal-looking; but this boy, my friend, could fix that same hand-gun to check wither hands there. gun to shoot rubber-bands that would knock your ears off.

And could he ever whittle those planes! Taking the center portion of the wooden box, the thick part, he would first saw the rough body of the plane; then with a pocket-knife and sandpaper, he would work that rough wood into a perfectly shaped Piper Cub, which was the only plane either of us had ever seen. Then from the thinner slats of the box-sides, he would carve and shape the wings . sometimes it would be a bi-plane with double wings — over and under the body — sometimes just a single wing. He could carve the propeller with the exact right curve and twist in it, so that when it was nailed onto the body with a very light shingle nail, it would turn in the wind, just like I supposed a real plane's propwould. The wings were sanded and glued to the body, then the whole thing was painted, and we whal a toy that cost absolutely no and gued to the body, then the whole thing was painted, and we had a toy that cost absolutely nothing, Besides, the fun of making it . . . well, I didn't do the work, but I gave him a lot of encouragement and praise . . . was worth at lot.

I have said it before, and I'll say it again (you knew I was going to), we as parents and grandparents make the mistake of always buying for our children -- and grandchildren -- those expensive toys and playthings that they think they want; but we take away from them the joy -- albeit a little trouble and mess to clean up -- of making things for themselves. I believe we have destroyed much of the creativity and natural enthusiasm of children by always giving and children by always giving and buying them things, instead of giving them the ego-boosting thrill of doing it themselves!"

Even my tiny grandson, if left to his own devices, will pick up a wooden spoon and a noisy pan and make his own toy, amusing himself for an hour, banging away in the kitchen floor.

I remember how much fun it was to make the things I played with, and how proud I was of them, how real they seemed to me. Children are born with that sense of imagination that sees a beautiful car in a simple block of wood; a lovely baby in a stuffed piece of cloth with a hank of yarn sewed on. They don't NEED expensive things! They need to be allowed to let their imagination and creativity work ... a gift that will last them work...a gift that will last them all their life...not be played with for a few minutes, then tossed aside forever more.

gives hair more time to suffer from wind, cold and dryness.

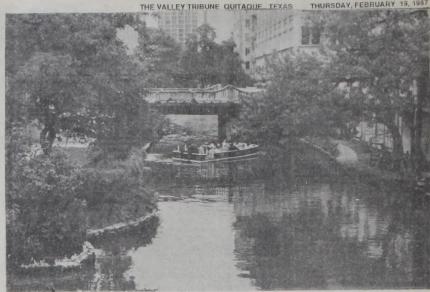

Many people help their hair get through everyday damage with a weekly hot oil treatment. Salons offer them, but you can do it economically at home with VO5 Hot Oil Treatment. Newly formulated for today's busy lifestyles, this one-minute, once a week treatment actually penetrates the hair shaft to strengthen, moisturize from within, and protect hair from winter damage. Since it is used before shampooing, no residue remains on the hair to weigh it down.
