damaged, and it was necessary to use the Silverton Volunteer Fire Department's Jaws of Life to free Newton from the wreckage of his car. Ambulance personnel speculated that his seat belt may have saved his life.

Quitaque Senior Citizens Continuing To Serve Sunday Lunch

The Quitaque Senior Citizens will continue serving the noon meal on Sundays until further notice. Plan to eat with them beginning at 11:45 each Sunday.

The Senior Citizens removed the concrete slab that was originally the site of the Kimbell's Drive Inn in Quitaque this week and they are preparing to gravel the parking lot east of the Senior Citizens Building. The gravel already has been hauled there. They also put up a ramp for those who had rather walk up instead of climbing steps, and it can be used for those in wheelchairs or otherwise incapacitated. The ramp has guard rails, too.

Things are really shaping up for the Quitaque Senior Citizens.

FLU VACCINE NOW

AVAILABLE AT

DR. CRANDALL'S OFFICE

The flu vaccine for this fall is now available from Dr. Crandall at the Turkey Clinic. It is especially advised for the senior citizens and anyone with respiratory or heart problems. Please come by early so you will be protected when the flu season begins in September, the doctor advises.

Silence is often an intelligent explanation.

Melvin Watkins of Canyon, nephew of the editor, Lottie Owens, is in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo in very serious condition. He may have to have a foot amputated because of diabetes.

Mrs. A. B. Ramsey of Quitaque, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Chadwick and boys of Amarillo, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Jameson and family of Claytonville spent a week recently in Tres Ritos, New Mexico. They took sight-seeing tours, Mrs. Ramsey reports, and enjoyed the week very much.

"Safe At Home" Workshop Held At Valley School

Eleven boys and girls participated in the "Safe at Home" workshop Tuesday, August 13, in the Valley School Homemaking Department, conducted by County Extension Agent Lynda Fogerson.

The participants discussed rules parents make when children are home alone; procedures for handling problems, phone calls, accidents and strangers; and safety in the kitchen when preparing food.

They were shown a film, "Better Safe Than Sorry," which showed how children handle situations when they are alone.

Jerry Maupin, local EMT and member of the Quitaque Volunteer Fire Department, spoke to the group about using emergency services, coping with accidents, fire safety, and handling medications.

The participants prepared their lunch of individual pizzas, cheese dip and fresh vegetables, Captain Crunch snacks and apricot-orange slush. These foods are nutritious dishes they can prepare safely by themselves.

They also learned nutritious snacks they could eat from each of the four food groups. TV viewing, doing homework, and chores were also discussed as a way to occupy time when home alone.

Those attending were Bradley Price, Heather Gray, Donnie Calvert, Clay Merrell, Alecia Weir, Tina Clay, Julie Clay, Julie Ross, Oleta Lane, David Lane and Kari Elmore.

Jessica Jones Nominated For Who's Who

Jessica Jones of Fritch was nominated for Who's Who Among American High School Students for the year 1984-85. She will be a senior in Sanford-Fritch High School where she is active in band and FHA.

Miss Jones is the daughter of Robert and Mary Nell Jones and is the granddaughter of Maxine Jones of Turkey and Rose Carlile of Pampa. She is the great-granddaughter of Mrs. Ida Jones of Turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hood returned recently from a month's vacation in Lake City, Colorado. They took the Jeep tour across the mountains to Silverton and Durango and saw some breathtaking scenes, it was reported. Mrs. Hood said the weather was really cool for July, but they enjoyed their time there very much.

Local History Is Topic Of Painting On Display At Quitaque Bank

A bit of local history is related in today's Valley Tribune on the 1841 Texas Santa Fe Expedition. This event occurred in this area 144 years ago this week. This is the subject of a painting by Otho Stubbs which will be on display in the lobby of the First National Bank in Quitaque for the next two weeks. The setting for his painting is the north bank of Los Lingos west of Cottonwood. The subject is an attack by the Kiowa Indians on the sojourners encamped along the creek. The picture was researched for authenticity as evidenced by the type of guns, wagons, saddles, and the dress of the Indians and recruits. Even the late August drought is evident by his dry vegetation and cactus apples. The Caprock is portrayed in its usual vibrant colors. You will want to visit the bank to enjoy this beautiful painting.

In June, 1841, President Lamar commissioned 250 recruits on a mission to Santa Fe for the purpose of establishing a trade route and to induce the Mexicans to become a part of Texas. Col. Hugh McLeod left Austin with a brass-six pound cannon, 21 wagons, 133 horses and innumerable cattle on an uncharted course, unknown route, and without a compass for direction. It is not surprising that the mission met many setbacks—poor scouting, no knowledge of the terrain, vast unexplored areas, rattlesnakes, unfriendly Indians and fire. The wagons needed constant repair. Water and food became scarce. The grasslands gave way to successions of rugged hills, cedar-brakes and ravines. Their Mexican guide, incorrect in his directions, became lost and deserted the pioneers while encamped near the present town of Matador.

The expedition entered the Caprock country in late August during a severe drought by following the Pease River from Whiteflat to a bubbling freshwater stream called "Quitafue." This stream actually was Los Lingos Creek two miles below its junction with Quitaque Creek. The good water was followed upstream to the Caprock, or "mountains" as they called it. Protected by cottonwood trees, with wild turkeys and berries available for food, an attractive stopping place was found for the worn-out animals and men. Scouting parties were sent out to look for passage, finding only deep impassable ravines. Kiowa Indians drove off many of their horses and stampeded their cattle. On the fifth day of encampment, five scouts were mutilated within 1½ miles of their camp by a group of Indians who then attacked the wagon train. Wagons were put into a square with the remaining animals inside. The cannon was fired alerting the men to the war party.

Ten days later the group was still encamped, having moved only a few miles into what is now Lake Theo. Discontented, enfeebled men surrounded by hostile well-mounted Indians wanted to return home. It was therefore resolved to divide the command. Capt. Sutton would take an advance party of 90 men on to San Miguel to obtain a guide and provisions. Thus Camp Resolution was named. Wagons were burned, oxen killed, meat jerked over slow fire, and provisions taken for a five-day trip. This group made its way via Tule Canyon through Tierra Blanca to Glen Rio and never returned. A second and third group were dispatched—also never returning. Each group was met by Capt. Salazar's Mexican regiment, hostile toward Texans, and captured as prisoners. Some were executed by a firing squad against adobe walls by Manuel Armijo, the Governor of Santa Fe.

Over a century later Joseph Mooney found a story of this encounter with the Texans recorded in "Calendar History of Kiowa Indians" confirming the battle in his mention of the Sun Dance in 1841 at a stream called To-n-zo-godal P'a ("Swift Water River" or Los Lingos) and Pa-bo-P'a (American Horse River) named because of the large number of horses taken.

The remainder of the warriors were captured without resistance at Lake Laguna and taken on foot to Mexico City. To keep count of the number dying along the way, Capt. Salazar cut off the ear of each dead and strung them on a leather thong. Very few made their way back to Texas.

—Otho Stubbs

He was able to be about Wednesday and said he was getting along all right. But he hasn't figured out yet why the solid two-inch iron had snapped in two, nor just what happened . . .

SLEEP TIME DEPENDS ON METABOLISM RATE

New studies show that a creature's sleep time may depend not only on its metabolism rate, but also the animal's "danger factor," reports "National Wildlife" magazine. Animals that have few natural enemies, like the opossum and bat, sleep as much as 20 out of 24 hours. But the small roe deer, which has many predators, dozes only 2 1/2 hours a night.

The world's first parachute jump from a balloon was made by Andre Garnerin of France in 1797.

"Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink" is the thought in everyone's mind because of the current complaints.

Regardless of how about our water, it still the absolute BEST thirstier during these hot months.

The American College of Sports Medicine recognizes water as the thirst quaffer over all commercial products. The body needs water to exercise since water loss of more than three percent of total body weight can result in decreased strength and endurance.

Drinks high in carbohydrates (like soft drinks) delay the fluid which leaves the stomach thus increasing absorption. If you do drink a sweetened fresh fruit juice or commercial prepared athletic tonic, the thing to do is to dilute with water.

Drinks high in sodium increase the amount of water your body loses. Only in extreme circumstances, when your water loss exceeds exercise equals six percent more, should you worry about replacing sodium and electrolytes. Even then, be sure to include adequate amounts of water.

Alcohol may be a part of your summer activities, but nothing for quenching your thirst. When it comes to quenching your body's water balance, an alcoholic drink does the opposite. It's a diuretic that increases the amount of water the kidneys excrete. The more alcohol you drink, the more you lose.

Caffeine and other stimulants found in cola and tea also have a diuretic effect, increasing water loss.

For an all-around great thirst-quencher, for athletes and spectators alike, beat WATER! Don't let anyone tell you we could be without it!

"Water, water everywhere and not a drop to drink" may be the thought in everyone's mind because of the current water complaints.

Regardless of how we feel about our water, it still remains the absolute BEST thirst quencher during these hot summer months.

The American College of Sports Medicine recommends water as the thirst quencher over all commercial products. The body needs water during exercise since water losses greater than three percent of your total body weight can result in decreased strength and endurance.

Drinks high in carbohydrates (like soft drinks) delay the rate at which fluid leaves the stomach, thus increasing absorption time. If you do drink a sweet soda, fresh fruit juice or commercially prepared athletic tonic, the best thing to do is to dilute it with water.

Drinks high in sodium actually increase the amount of water your body loses. Only under extreme circumstances, such as when your water loss during exercise equals six pounds or more, should you worry about replacing sodium and other nutrients. Even then, be sure to include adequate amounts of water.

Alcohol may be a part of many summer activities, but it does nothing for quenching a real thirst. When it comes to restoring your body's water balance, an alcoholic drink does just the opposite. It's a diuretic, so it increases the amount of water the kidneys excrete. The more alcohol you drink, the more fluid you lose.

Caffeine and other substances found in cola and tea also have a diuretic effect, increasing water loss.

For an all-around great summer thirst-quencher, for athletes and spectators alike, you can't beat WATER! Don't knock it—we could be without it!

Texas to Face Major Burdens Due to Cancer

Texas will face major medical and financial burdens by the turn of the century unless action is taken to marshal the state's cancer problem in the near future, according to Phillip Periman, M. D., medical director for the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center.

In 15 years, the number of new cancer cases in Texas will double to approximately 84,000. Multiply that by today's cancer care costs for Texans, which tops $400 million annually, and the economic impact becomes approximately $1.25 billion by the year 2000, he said.

Periman, one of several Amarillo area leaders and medical professionals appointed to the Governor's Task Force on Cancer in Texas, is helping devise a statewide cancer plan. As chairman of the Clinical Investigation Workgroup, Periman will report his workgroup's findings before the West Texas regional subcommittee.

Periman's report will propose state funding for (1) development of curative cancer therapies, (2) adequate access to curative cancer treatment, and (3) concentrated efforts to stop people from smoking.

His report is based, in part, on three factors attributed with the rise in cancer in Texas. According to state health officials, the expanding population, the rising age of the population and cigarette smoking are the major forces in play.

Texas population is projected to increase 55% in the period 1980 to 2000 to total 22.1 million. In addition, major growth centers in Texas are experiencing an increase in the median age of the population.

At the present, however, cigarette smoking is the single major cause of cancer in our culture, he said.

"Cigarette smoking causes 15 to 20 percent, and some experts say up to 50 percent, of all cancer cases."

Lung cancer remains the number one cause of death due to cancer. In Texas, lung cancer accounts for 27 percent of the cancer deaths, a slight increase above the national average.

Periman supports the idea of using a portion of the tax monies collected on the sale of cigarettes to help generate future funding. "If only one cent of the tax is allocated, approximately $17 million could be generated and put back into proposed cancer programs," he said.

Periman also proposes that the state match private funds, up to a certain amount, donated by individuals and corporations.

Steps to reduce the burden of cancer for Texans were initiated in 1984 through the formation of the state's 51-member legislative task force. With an eye to the future, the group is charged with recommending plans and programs for legislative action in 1986.

Stress on Farm, Ranch Families

The bitter economic realities of low prices, high debt loads and increased bankruptcies translate into stress for farmers, ranchers and their families.

"Even a strong family can be temporarily disorganized under stress," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service family life specialist Dorothy Taylor. "When pressures become greater than the strength of the family, or stress uses up all the family's resources, devastating effects like alcohol and drug abuse accidents or suicides result."

The specialist says that early signs or symptoms of too much stress are dreading to go to work, feeling tired all the time without cause, a change in sleeping habits and problems with digestion.

Becoming extremely critical, developing negative attitudes about everything and everybody, withdrawing from people, becoming self-centered, being unusually worried about your health and losing faith in other people and yourself are also signs of stress, she says.

"Farmers and ranchers who are going through stressful times and realize they are struggling unsuccessfully with their difficulties may fear they cannot regain control over their situation and become depressed, confused or fear a nervous breakdown," Taylor observes.

Stress in farm or ranch families is not unusual, considering their close working relationships and the overlap of their personal, family and work lives, she notes.

But those families with open communication, shared decision-making and long-range planning seem to handle it better than those with little communication, authoritarian decision-making and day-to-day planning.

Developing communication, decision-making and planning skills may help families better cope with stressful situations, Taylor says. But if farmers or ranchers notice the signs of severe stress in themselves or other family members, they should seek professional help.

MR. AND MRS. BRYAN SHANE REAGAN

Hughes-Reagan Vows Exchanged At Booker Saturday, August 3

Miss Tracy Dawn Hughes became the bride of Bryan Shane Reagan at 7:00 p.m. Saturday, August 3, at the First United Methodist Church in Booker, Texas. The Rev. Richard Edwards, Methodist pastor from Olton, performed the double-ring ceremony in front of two cathedral arches with two candle trees holding white tapers and entwined with greenery, pink and lavender flowers and accented with lavender and pink satin bows. Baskets of greenery and candle trees flanked the arrangement.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hughes of Elmwood, Oklahoma. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Reagan of Silvertown. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Frizzell of Silvertown and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Reagan of Quitaque.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white formal-length gown of flocked dot English net. Her off-the-shoulder full multi-ruffle was edged with satin ribbon, beautifully accenting her fitted basque bodice. Her full skirt was trimmed with a multi-ruffle edged with satin ribbon and swept into a full cathedral train.

Her hat was designed especially for her to match her dress, with flocked net, satin ribbon and many pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of lavender and pink roses, baby's breath, pink and lavender daisies surrounding a silk rose corsage, showered with long streamers.

To carry out bridal tradition, she wore a pearl necklace belonging to her great-grandmother for something old; her wedding gown for something new; a diamond heart necklace she borrowed from the groom's mother, and added a blue garter.

Honor attendants were Bonnie Terhune of Perryton, cousin of the bride, and Shawna Boothby of Balko, Oklahoma, a friend of the bride. They wore pink voile gowns which complimented the bride's gown with their wide satin ribbon trim on off-the-shoulder ruffles and deep ruffle flounces on their floor-length skirts.

Bridesmaids were Misses Gina and Pam Hughes, sisters of the bride, and Kim Cowan, a friend of the bride. Their dresses were the same as those worn by the honor attendants. All of the attendants carried bouquets which were miniature copies of the bridal bouquet, and had circles of flowers and long streamers in their hair.

Little Miss Mindi Burke, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was lavender and was designed similarly to those worn by the bride's attendants.

Langdon Reagan, brother of the groom, and Kyle Hughes, cousin of the bride, lighted the candles.

Master Matthew Cates of Booker, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Zane and Todd Reagan of Silvertown, brothers of the groom, Graig Benson, a friend from Goodwell, Oklahoma and Eric Patton of Silvertown were groomsmen.

Jamie Frizzell of Silvertown, cousin of the groom, Kirk Saul of Quitaque, cousin of the groom, Shawn and Darren Hughes of Booker, cousins of the bride, seated the guests.

Best man was Keith Hendricks of Brownsville, a friend of the groom.

Lola Jost of Balko, Oklahoma played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Keith and Paula Custer as they sang "The Wedding Prayer," "To Me," "Suddenly" and "You're My Only Love."

The groom's mother wore a tea-length mauve silk crepe dress trimmed with rose silk appliques and pearls, designed with long sleeves with tiny buttons, and added a lavender silk orchid corsage.

The bride's mother wore a tea-length gown of French Chantilly lace designed with a full chiffon skirt in periwinkle and matching shoes. She added a corsage of lavender silk orchids.

RECEPTION

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Michalia Newhouse, was in charge of securing the guests' names for the wedding book.

The reception table was covered with a satin cloth with net overlay appliqued with flowers and bells. Silver candelabra accented with flowers and votive cups holding pink candles were placed between the silver punch service and the bride's cake and next to the groom's cake. The bride's cake was made in four tiers on top of six hearts with a fountain and fresh flowers inside it and a lighted musical top with a mini-groom carrying a bride. The groom's cake was a German chocolate confection designed in a tiered heart and decorated with footballs.

Large round tables covered with lavender cloths and accented with pink flower arrangements seated the reception guests.

Reception assistants were Cindy Cates, Kelly Cates, Kristi Lemmons, Tonya Boothby, Rhonda Frantz, Vonda McEachern, Michelle Brady and Tony Harris.

REHEARSAL PARTY

A catered barbecue was hosted by the groom's parents the evening before the wedding. Tables were covered with lavender cloths accented with arrangements of pink and lavender silk roses. Pink plates were used.

Following a honeymoon trip to Colorado Springs, Colorado, the couple will be at home at Goodwell, Oklahoma where she is a sophomore and he is a junior at Panhandle State University.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Balko High School, and the groom is a 1983 graduate of Silvertown High School.

Lottie Owens attended the fourth birthday anniversary celebration of her granddaughter, Kami Brooke Owens, in Plainview Sunday. Kami's birthday was Tuesday, August 20, but the grandmothers and uncle and aunt celebrated Sunday. They all ate at Furr's Cafeteria, then drove to Kami's house and had ice cream cake, made by Baskin Robbins. It was designed like a rainbow and was topped with four large candles. It was delicious. Kami had a "ball" opening gifts, which included a battery-operated "motorcycle" from her parents. She had fun learning to ride it. Her grandmothers and uncle and aunt gave her school clothes. She has attended Kiddie Kollege for the past two years or more and she is going into a pre-kindergarten school. She is excited.

Those present were Mrs. Delorious Scott, Seminole, Bill Bird, Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brotherton, Seminole, Lottie Owens, Quitaque, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Owens, and the honoree, Kami Brooke.

With his renewal, R. John Smith of Salem, Oregon writes that he enjoys the Tribune very much. He thinks it is the best source of information about the people and the whole area that he receives. Thank you, R. John.

Progression of our cotton crop is as well as can be expected with bollworm counts exceeding what we would expect above the 10,000 per acre threshold. As I explained in last week's article, continue to check the fields as often as possible. If your irrigated cotton, one application may not be satisfactory to control the bollworm this year. August 20 is the cutoff date across the South Plains, counting on a white bloom making a mature, harvestable boll. Anything beyond this date would be considered an exceptional year with an exceptional September.

For those of you preparing those wheat fields, it is not too early to start planning a fertilizer program. For your producers who plan to follow wheat with wheat, fertilizer recommendation depend upon fertilizer rate applied to the previous crop yields obtained. Also fertilizer carryover may have been higher than normal due to heavy infestations which plagued this year and reduced the crop's ability to utilize much of the applied fertilizer.

These factors and other unusual circumstances influencing nutrient status of the soil indicate that a soil test should be sound investment at this time, the agent explains.

Those of you who have not made a final decision to plant wheat this fall but wish to leave the door open to plant corn, grain sorghum or cotton next spring can submit a soil sample now request fertilizer recommendations for all cropping alternatives. Resulting fertilizer recommendations then can be used to assist each person in making cropping decisions.

Progression of our cotton crop is as well as can be expected with bollworm counts exceeding well above the 10,000 per acre threshold. As I explained in last week's article, continue to check those fields as often as possible. In your irrigated cotton, one application may not be satisfactory to control the bollworm this year.

August 20 is the cutoff date, across the South Plains, for counting on a white bloom making a mature, harvestable boll. Anything beyond this date would be considered an exceptional year with an exceptional September.

For those of you preparing those wheat fields, it is not too early to start planning a fertilizer program.

For your producers who plan to follow wheat with wheat, fertilizer recommendation will depend upon fertilizer rates applied to the previous crop and yields obtained. Also fertilizer carryover may have been higher than normal due to heavy rust infestations which plagued us this year and reduced the crop's ability to utilize much of the applied fertilizer.

These factors and other unusual circumstances influencing the nutrient status of the soil indicate that a soil test should be a sound investment at this time, the agent explains.

Those of you who have not yet made a final decision to plant wheat this fall but wish to leave the door open to plant corn, grain sorghum or cotton next spring, can submit a soil sample now and request fertilizer recommendations for all cropping alternatives. Resulting fertilizer recommendations then can be used to assist each person in making cropping decisions.

The Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratories at Texas A&M University and Lubbock are ready to assist wheat producers in making these economically important decisions. Although new automated laboratory procedures and computerized integration and reporting of soil test results have improved speed and precision, soil test recommendations can be no better than the quality of the soil sample analyzed.

It is important to collect soil samples which are truly representative of the field being tested.

A composite soil sample should be collected from each field or area of a field to be tested. Each composite sample should consist of 10 to 15 sub-samples randomly collected with a probe or shovel and thoroughly mixed together before taking the composite sample. To sample the soil, remove the top inch and collect the soil samples to a depth of six inches.

I have at my office the necessary sample forms and data sheets to send in with each sample. Standard soil samples cost $7.00 and an in-depth sample of micronutrients will cost $10.00.

For more information on agriculture, home economics, lawn and home gardening, and 4-H Club programs, contact the County Extension Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carter drove to Canyon Saturday and were met there by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carter and Melanie of Lubbock. They all joined Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hedrick and boys to attend the graduation exercises at West Texas State University. The Carter's grandson, Scott Hedrick, was a candidate for graduation. He received his bachelor of science degree and also received recognition as a National Honor Student. He will receive his grades and affiliation Friday of this week. There were over 300 graduates.

OLDER STUDENTS ON CAMPUS INCREASING EVERY YEAR

The percentage of older students on university campuses increases every year as Americans begin looking at education as a lifelong process. Project Re-entry, sponsored by West Texas State's Returning Student Program, has been designed to help the older students adjust to the university environment.

This year's Project Re-entry will take place August 24 from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. in the Faculty Dining Room (northeast corner) of the Student Union Building. Returning students or first-time college students 23 years old or older may participate in the special orientation sessions.

Participants will have opportunity to meet WTSU faculty and staff members, go through a mock registration, and attend study and note-taking skills sessions. They may also make friends with other returning students.

The entire day's activities, including lunch, are free to all participants. Child care will be offered at nominal cost. Phone (806) 656-2172 to make reservations to participate.
