Valley Slips By Crowell In Final Seconds of Play

The Valley Patriots hosted Crowell Friday night of last week and took their first district win.

The first half was scoreless, then in the third period, Crowell took the lead when Jeff Wright scored on an 11-yard run and made the extra point.

Valley rallied with Tim Clardy's eight-yard run, followed by Kirk Saul's pass for two conversion points to Shon Phelps.

Valley held the one-point lead until Criss Morrison caught a 13-yard pass from Kirk Saul in the fourth period. Then Morrison intercepted a Crowell pass on the Valley one-yard line in the final seconds to preserve the victory. Middle linebacker Bob Clay added a standout performance defensively.

The win brings Valley's record to 4-1 overall and 1-0 in loop play.

Crowell now stands at 3-3 and 0-1.

Statistically, Valley had 12 first downs to Crowell's 14. In net yards rushing, the Patriots had only 75 as compared with 140; Valley had 84 yards passing to 24 for Crowell; total yards gained was close with 159 to 164 in Crowell's favor. The Patriots completed seven passes, which probably will be their main suit this year with a young team, and Crowell had only two passes completed.

Coach Ted Giddens said, "A great effort resulted in a great victory. We are very proud of the Crowell win, but we must forget it now and prepare for Knox City. I'm afraid every district game may be as tough as the one we saw with Crowell last Friday night."

Criss Morrison received honorable mention in the Amarillo Daily News "Player of the Week." Congratulations, Criss! Keep up the good work.

Just how valuable is the teaching of Vocational Agriculture in the public school today?

The teaching of Vocational Agriculture was started as a program to disseminate agricultural innovations throughout the farming regions and to provide an education more relevant to rural life rather than city types of education provided. Further, students are encouraged to make independent decisions and take initiative. There is little doubt that Vocational Agriculture has been effective in its contribution to the growth of agriculture in America.

Not only has Vocational Agriculture contributed to a more productive agricultural America, but students who take part in its many activities also benefit. Education Week, which is a national education newspaper, says that "one of the most important features of Vocational Agriculture is the Future Farmers of America, which provides leadership training. The success of former FFA students is legendary—in the South alone its alumni includes Gov. James Hunt of North Carolina, Gov. Robert Graham of Florida and former President Jimmy Carter." The article further states that "Sears, Roebuck and Co. in Atlanta would hire any applicant wearing an FFA jacket to an interview." Beyond the training in leadership and productive agriculture, this program is strong in basic academic classroom training and complements the other components of the students' education.

Today in America and especially Texas, there are many political leaders who say that vocational agriculture has outlived its usefulness in its present form and that reform is imminent. They continue their attack upon the program by advocating that academic reform should take a higher priority when funds are divided for distribution to schools and that if funds are not sufficient then Vocational Agriculture should suffer first. Granted, academic education should go forward with full speed but there must be a place reserved for a program such as Vocational Agriculture. Students do not have to chose the vocation of farming in order to gain valuable benefits from the program.

The past Legislature provided money to fund the vocational programs but it was by far insufficient to meet the needs. There was a promise, however, to evaluate the program needs and take another look at adequately funding the program during the next legislative session. We, in the rural areas, see a continuing struggle to keep this worthwhile program as a viable part of our schools. The Valley Vocational Agriculture teacher, Glen Braune, along with other teachers and state leaders are forever working hard to keep a program in which they believe. Jay Eudy, former Valley Ag teacher and currently the state Vocational Agriculture director, has used his position of leadership to see that what he believes in is not lost without a fight. This program and its struggle could not have a better man on its side than Jay Eudy.

The attendance at Valley during the month of October has been excellent and parents are to be commended for observing the attendance laws under which the school is now operating.

Tutoring classes are now in full swing at Valley and are available to every student on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 7:45. This program could be mandated, if the school board so desired, for students who are failing but the board has chosen to allow student participation on an optional basis for the time being. Teachers are anxious to help and it's a great opportunity for students who need assistance in difficult areas of study.

There are now 327 students enrolled at Valley. Before the year started it was projected that somewhere around 290 average daily attendance would be tops but it appears that figures will be surpassed when all the October attendance figures are complete. That's good!

It was good to see the fan support and encouragement during the Valley 14-7 win over Crowell last Friday night. It was a very exciting game. The Valley players showed lots of character and deserved to win this important district game. This week we play Knox City at Knox City. Remember that Knox City beat Valley in the play-offs last year!

Last Friday was the letter "D" day in the kindergarten class and all the kinder-dads were invited to eat lunch with the class. It was a good turnout with 19 dads responding to the invitation. The kindergarten class has celebrated the letter "A" day where they enjoyed eating an apple, and the letter "C" day when each student wore a cap to school. Wonder what letter is coming up next!

The school board has adopted a policy concerning make-up work for unexcused absences. According to the policy, if a student receives an unexcused absence, he will be allowed to make up all missed work but 30 points will automatically be taken off the grade made on the make-up lessons. Make-up work must be completed no later than the next scheduled tutorial class.

COUNTY QUILTERS IN WICHITA FALLS

Quilters in Hall County can show their handiwork and compete for an array of prizes in a regional quilt show January 7-8 in Wichita Falls.

The quilt show will be a feature of the second annual Rolling Plains Cotton Show, to be held those dates at the Wichita Falls Activity Center, said Mary Streit, County Extension Agent for home economics. The Cotton Show is conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to promote cotton, a major commodity in the Rolling Plains.

The quilt show will include seven categories: individual hand-made quilt, individual machine-made quilt, group hand-made quilt, individual hand-made baby quilt, individual machine-made baby quilt, individual creative quilt, and antique quilt.

Prizes will be awarded in the amount of $25 for first place in each category, $15 for second place in each category, $100 for Best of Show, and $75 for runner-up.

Each entry must be tagged with a muslin or fabric label sewn on the back with the name, date completed, county and category typed on it. The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is not responsible for lost, stolen or damaged quilts.

Persons interested in entering the quilt show can do so by obtaining entry forms from their County Extension Agent for home economics. Entry forms may be returned to their County Extension office or mailed to Mary Streit, Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, Box 2159, Vernon, Texas 76384.

Entry deadline is December 1.

Time For End-Of-Year Crop, Livestock Reports

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state in late November for final 1984 crop acreage, yield and production totals and during December for end-of-year livestock and poultry inventory information.

The confidential interviews, conducted by mail or in person by field enumerators, provide information used by producers to make their production and marketing plans for the coming year.

"These surveys take on a new importance this year," State Statistician Dennis Findley added, "since the prolonged dry weather in many areas of the state cut crop and forage yields and forced heavy culling of livestock herds. Producers are depending on this information for an accurate picture of the 1984 agricultural situation. We all need a sound base to make the right decisions for 1985."

To reduce survey costs, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service is urging farmers and ranchers to return the mailed questionnaires as soon as possible. The reported information will be combined for state as well as county estimates.

Annual county estimates are published for livestock, dairy, poultry, cotton, field crops, small grains, fruits and pecans, vegetables, and cash receipts from the sale of farm products.

Mail, Phone Order Protection Not Always The Same

Thousands of Texans are getting a head start on Christmas by placing mail or phone orders for gifts now so they will get here in time for the holidays.

Most of these customers will be satisfied with the merchandise they order, but some will be disappointed. And whether they can get any satisfaction for their complaints or not will depend on how they placed their orders, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Nancy L. Granovsky.

Many mail-order companies now offer toll-free telephone numbers for easy ordering. "Using the telephone may seem more convenient than ordering by mail," she says, "but it's also riskier, since phone orders are not covered by the Federal Trade Commission's mail-order rule."

The mail-order rule—which applies only to orders placed through the mail, or shipped through the mail—requires companies to ship your order within the time they promise, or within 30 days after they receive your order, Granovsky explains. So if you order gifts by mail in October, you can be reasonably sure they will arrive in time for Christmas.

If the company must delay shipment, the mail order laws require that you be notified and allowed to either give your consent, or cancel your order for a full refund, she adds.

When you order by phone, you aren't covered by this rule and you assume responsibility for merchandise that is not delivered or is delivered late, cautions the home economist. So television ads that say "allow four to six weeks for delivery" may not make good on their promise.

If you receive unsatisfactory merchandise, you can ask the company for a refund, just as customers who order over the phone can. But mail order customers can also look to the post office for assistance if the company does not satisfy their complaints, notes Granovsky.

Since not every complaint results in an investigation and not all investigations result in refunds, the best policy for consumers is to be careful, whether they order by phone or mail, she says.

A Statement of Intent to change said rates was filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas on or about September 21, 1984, and is available for inspection at the Company's Amarillo office, 301 S. Veterans Can Leave Families More Than Memories

Veterans concerned about their families' well-being after they are gone can ease their worry by safeguarding basic documents relating to military service, life insurance and Veterans Administration correspondence, says Stephen Lemons, Director of the Waco VA Regional Office.

Securing papers, marriage certificates or child custody evidence from fire, theft or loss could be one of the most important legacies a veteran can leave the family, according to Lemons. Other documents that should be protected and filed with family papers are government and commercial life insurance policies, any VA correspondence with identifying claim numbers or social security numbers, wills and where applicable, naturalization papers.

The regional office director reminds families that they should be aware of survivor benefits as well. These include death pension, dependency and indemnity compensation for service-connected death, burial benefits and interment in a national cemetery.

"The last few minutes spent by the veteran organizing and protecting documents—and informing the family—can do much to avoid anguish during times of emotional stress," said Lemons.

He said veterans should encourage family members to seek information and assistance concerning benefits at the Waco VA Regional Office. That office can be reached toll free by using the number listed in the local telephone directory.

Ranch Ruins, Gr Allow Peek

A day at the ranch, including Indian camp sites, half-dugout ruins, a line camp, chuckwagon grub, buck-skinners and cowboy boys, is on tap for history buffs October 27 at the old Matador division of the Matador Ranch.

Reservations must be made for tours which will begin about every 30 minutes from the cattleguard 20 miles east of Floydada or 12 miles west of Matador on US 62/70. A sign will mark the turnoff for the heritage journey sponsored by members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

The day is planned as a heritage project on Texas history with an emphasis on West Texas life from the Indian to the nestle Groups already signing up include junior historians, Texas history students, scouting and heritage organizations.

The look at the past begins with Indian campsites where Wayne Parker, a descendant of Comanche war-chief Quan Parker will paint a few faces and will show how to follow animal and people signs.

At the half-dugout ruins, Lin Moore will head up activities that might have gone on when the homestead first was built in the Chimney Creek canyon walls.

Today, the fireplace and walls remain near a giant pecan tree that shades the rock marking the hand-dug well. Behind the dugout, other rock walls indicate what could have been a spring house for keeping food.

From the dugout, visitors will move to the chuckwagon for sampling of cowboy grub, hard tack, son-of-a-gun stew and beans. Fiddling and cowboys will complete the scene.

Ranch Ruins, Grub, Cowboys Allow Peek At Settler's Life

A day at the ranch, including Indian camp sites, half-dugout ruins, a line camp, chuckwagon grub, buck-skinners and cowboys, is on tap for history buffs October 27 at the old Mott division of the Matador Ranch.

Reservations must be made for tours which will begin about every 30 minutes from the cattleguard 20 miles east of Floydada or 12 miles west of Matador on US 62/70. A sign will mark the turnoff for the heritage journey sponsored by members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

The day is planned as a heritage project on Texas history with an emphasis on West Texas life from the Indian to the neoter. Groups already signing up include junior historians, Texas history students, scouting and heritage organizations.

The look at the past begins with Indian campsites where Wayne Parker, a descendant of Comanche war-chief Quanah Parker will paint a few faces and will show how to follow animal and people signs.

At the half-dugout ruins, Linda Moore will head up activities that might have gone on when the homestead first was built into the Chimney Creek canyon wall.

Today, the fireplace and two walls remain near a giant pecan tree that shades the rocks marking the hand-dug well. Behind the dugout, other rock walls indicate what could have been a spring house for keeping food.

From the dugout, visitors will move to the chuckwagon for a sampling of cowboy grub, hard-tack, son-of-a-gun stew and beans. Fiddling and cowboys will complete the scene.

At the buckskinner tent, history buffs will get a lesson in how it was to live off the land while learning about hunting methods.

The Cottonwood Mott line camp, named for the motto of trees growing around its weeping springs, could provide the drama of any wild west movie with its story of a shootout between cowboys over the singing of "Yankee Doodle" too soon after the Civil War to suit one of them.

Both died in the shootout and were buried side by side in a grave 18 inches deep. A new wagon sheet, torn half in two, provided their shrouds and coffin.

Visitors won't be able to see the graves, however, since the bodies were dug up and moved later. But the stump of a tree, said to contain lead from the shootout, is preserved for history.

When 15 corporations were formed to sell the Matador, J. C. and W. E. Bursleson joined with Bundy, Harold and Vance Campbell to buy the Mott corporation.

Marisue Bursleson Potts, a member of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, and Bundy Campbell will be among the hosts for the field trip into history.

Donations of $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for youngsters is asked for the day's outing.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. S. C. Bursleson at 806 983-2977 or by writing Route L, Quitaque, Texas 79255.

Now Is Good Time To Ammoniate Hay

Now is a good time for livestock owners to ammoniate poor quality hay.

Anhydrous ammonia should be readily available to treat hay, and treating now will get the hay ready for fall feeding, says Travis Harney, County Agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Hay ammoniation involves covering hay bales with black plastic and injecting anhydrous ammonia.

The practice can increase crude protein, digestibility and animal intake, all of which lead to increased animal performance.

Crude protein in hay can be increased three to eight percent by ammoniation while digestibility can be increased from three to 23 percent. Feeding trials have shown an increase in animal intake of 20 to 27 percent.

In feeding studies, steers fed ammoniated hay gained one-half pound more a day than those on the same type of hay but untreated.

Cost varies from $8.00 to $14.00 a ton—about $3.65 for the plastic and $4.40 to $7.50 for 60 pounds of anhydrous ammonia (or about three percent of the weight of the hay). And the payoff is an increase in the hay's feeding value of $22 to $25 per ton.

Low quality hay is a prime candidate for the ammoniation, emphasizes Harney. If hay has a crude protein of less than eight percent, ammoniation will pay.

However, Harney cautions against ammoniating sorghum type hays because of a potential problem in cattle fed such hay. Studies have found that the ammonia reacts with sugars in sorghum hays to sometimes cause wild behavior in cattle.

Keep treated hay covered for at least three weeks before feeding, recommends Harney. Since ammoniated hay becomes fairly loose due to a breakdown in the fiber content, it will not shed water well and should be protected from rain. So it's a good practice to keep the plastic on until feeding time.

Endometrial Symptoms

Know the warning signals of endometrial cancer. Any bleeding between periods, excessive bleeding during periods, and bleeding after menopause should be brought to the attention of a doctor, advises the American Cancer Society.

The largest bird in the world, the ostrich, is a strange bird, says "International Wildlife" magazine. A male ostrich typically stands seven feet tall, weighs 260 pounds, runs up to 50 miles an hour with strides as long as 15 feet and packs a kick of up to 500 pounds per square inch. Yet, the bird stops when a person waves a thorn-tree branch in its face.

The Eskimo make and use wooden "eyeglasses" with only narrow slits for eyepieces, to protect their eyes from glare reflected by ice and snow.

When it came time to stand and choose, Lloyd Doggett stood with you.

ELDERLY

★ Lloyd Doggett fought to preserve the fiscal integrity of all Texas retirement systems and believes that Social Security "is a sacred contract we cannot turn our backs on."

EDUCATION

★ Lloyd Doggett has always been one of Texas' leading advocates of a first class public education system. As a State Senator, he has been in the forefront of the struggle to improve the quality of teaching for our children.

PUTS TEXAS FIRST

★ In his eleven years as a Texas Senator, Lloyd Doggett has always put the needs and concerns of Texas first and the greedy special interests last. Lloyd has written and fought to pass 125 people-helping laws, including the Consumer Protection Act, utility reform, and the Human Rights Commission.

When it came time to stand and choose, Phil Gramm stood against you.

ELDERLY

★ Gramm led the fight to cut Social Security benefits out from under the most vulnerable people in our society. In fact, he has voted against Social Security on at least eight occasions.

EDUCATION

★ Gramm has been relentless in his efforts to remove all Federal assistance to education, going so far as to exclaim that educational assistance to the handicapped "(encourages) people to be handicapped."

PUTS TEXAS LAST

★ Gramm's record stands as a monument to callousness and insensitivity to the needs and concerns of ordinary Texans. He voted against helping drought-stricken Texas farmers and ranchers, border businesses hurt by the peso devaluation, and against loans to small businesses across Texas.
