Resthaven Cemetery Gets Improvements

The most recent improvement to Resthaven Cemetery has been the installation of a four inch water line to be used to water the cemetery during dry weather. This project was made possible through various donations and memorials that have been made to the Cemetery Association during recent months.

Other projects completed in the recent past include a new sign over the entrance built and installed by George Calvert, the pruning and/or removal of trees and shrubs, the filling of sunken graves, and an extensive general clean-up of the cemetery.

Plans are presently being made to install a water line, making available water for potted plants, mixing small amounts of cement, or other projects needing small amounts of water. Additional plans are being made to set out shade trees and install a drip system for these trees.

The Board of Directors, at their last meeting, again hired James Brunson as caretaker of the cemetery for this summer. James has served as caretaker for the past two summers and has done a super job.

Donations and memorials to Resthaven Cemetery can be sent to Johnny Morrison.

THEN & NOW!

by Eunice McFall

Summer is the time for vacations, picnics, baseball games, family reunions, church camps, trips, family visits, etc.--Yep, lots of enjoyment around in the good old summer time--or is there--

When you take a trip--how do you feel when you get home? Refreshed or tired?

When the family goes on a vacation--How do you react--full of delight at the prospect or full of dread at the mere thought of traveling?

When it's time for the summer baseball program to begin--are you full of vim and vigor--ready to travel wherever you need to go, to see that your child's team gets a fair shake? Or do you just sit at home and think let old so and so go--I worked all day today and I'm tired! No one will even miss me if I'm not there! Wrong!! What about that child that you are trying to raise with high standards? If parents don't show any interest for what the child is involved in--soon the child will become bored and ready to drop out of the program--an easy habit to develop--never to finish a job they start if it becomes uninteresting to them.

When you travel far distances to visit relatives, is it from a sense of duty or the joy of being reunited with your loved ones? Why do you go to family reunions?

Why Church camps? Why go on picnics--The answer is recreation--Oh the things we pursue in the name of recreation! Some good, some bad. But think about this word for a minute--recreation. Recreation is really meant as a refreshment for mind and body--To recreate or to rejuvenate ourselves. If what we do for pleasure only leaves us exhausted--there is no rejuvenation of self so why call it recreation--Why not be honest and call it a chore!!

Whatever you enjoy doing, while making you physically tired can refresh your spirit--so go to it and enjoy your re-creation this summer.

We reported last week about a Plainview man who had died. We made a mistake in saying his death had been ruled as a possible heart attack. Justice of the Peace Byron Young had not made a ruling on the cause of death. He has ordered an autopsy and the cause of death has not yet been determined.

Roys Car Stolen By Youths and Wrecked

Around 10:50 p.m. Saturday night, June 15 DPS Trooper Gordon Wade on a routine patrol came across an accident victim three miles west of Quitaque. The youth was on the highway attempting to flag down help.

Trooper Wade found another victim about 40 feet down an embankment along with the wreckage of a 1984 Olds Firenza belonging to Vera Roys. The other youth had open fractures to both legs, a fractured left wrist and a cut in his head and later found to have some back injuries.

Trooper Wade summoned help from Quitaque EMS. Manuel Leal from Turkey was first on the scene, quickly joined by Quitaque Ambulance and crew. DPS Trooper Dude Speed was also on the scene, along with several volunteer firemen, park personnel and Briscoe County Sheriff's office.

Both Quitaque Ambulances were summoned. Dennis Farley was driver of the first unit and David Brunson and Judy Barrett were attendants. James Cathey drove the second ambulance with Manuel Leal and Albert Castillo as attendants. The vehicle was totally demolished.

Around 12:30 while at the scene, Sheriff Roehr received a call of another accident at Silverton, Brad West's pickup left the road and rolled over one time landing on its top. Jaws of life were used to retrieve the victim, transported to Amarillo by Silverton Ambulance Service. The pickup was totaled. This wreck was worked by DPS Troopers Gordon Wade and Dude Speed, Bill Boling and Dick Roehr.

While in route to Silverton Briscoe County Sheriff's Department received a report by Vera Roys of Quitaque that while attending a birthday party in Silverton her 1984 Olds Firenza had been stolen. Sheriff Department personnel had previously attempted to locate

Mrs. Roys to advise her that her vehicle had been in an accident.

Park Fees To Change In September

After months of discussion and public input, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has set new fees for Texas' state parks. Entrance fees will increase to a maximum of $5 at the most popular parks, while camping fees at some less visited parks will stay at their current rate.

"The department was very sensitive to the impacts increased fees would have on visitation (21 million people visited Texas parks last year), and that's why most fees were raised only $1 or $2," said Executive Director Andrew Sanson. "We needed to raise fees without running people out of the parks." Park fees were last increased in 1986.

Some parks will not see any camping fees increased. Also, lower prices on weekdays will be a bargain for senior citizens and others who can visit during the week. Department officials hope this will encourage increased visitation during traditionally slower periods.

Caprock Canyons will have a fee of $5 for weekend entry with $3 during the week daily entry.

Increasing state park fees was first discussed during the Jan. 24 commission meeting in Austin. The fee increases are necessary because of declining revenues and the department's goal of eliminating dependence on general revenue funds.

For more information on state park fees call state park or TPWD headquarters in Austin at 1-800-792-1112.

June Best Month For Bagworm Control

Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Texas. Spring hatch began in early May on the South Plains this year. Hatching is usually completed in about three weeks. Insecticide control is most effective in early June when the bagworms are small, according to Curtis Preston, county Extension agent.

In spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves. They soon begin to construct their own protective bag of silk, twigs and leaves, making them camouflaged and hard to see. As the larvae and their bags continue to grow, control becomes more difficult.

Bagworms feed throughout the summer months, building their bags until the bags are about 1/2 inches long. In the fall, the bagworms become adults, mate and the females lay eggs inside their bags. They then overwinter as eggs in these bags in trees and shrubs. Each overwintering female bag on a tree contains from 500 to 1500 eggs.

Since the bagworm only completes one generation a year and spreads very slowly from plant to plant, picking the bags off infested plants in the winter will help a lot toward controlling this pest. But if bagworms were present on the plant last year and control measures were not applied, chances are very good that an insecticide will be needed this spring.

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include sevin, dursban, diazinon, malathion and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control, thorough coverage of the foliage is important. The addition of a small amount of liquid soap or surfactant to the spray solution will improve control because it helps adhere the insecticide to the treated trees and shrubs. Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.

If you have any questions, call Curtis Preston in the Extension office at 823-2131.

Couple Misses Graduation Due To Tornadoic Activity

Billie Sue Harvey and her fiancé, Phillip Cooper came through Estelline about five o'clock on May 24. They were going to a high school graduation at Valley School. Billie Sue had a daughter, Traci Harmon, that was graduating at eight o'clock.

As they left Estelline they were facing a storm cloud that didn't look too bad. Just before they reached Parnell that storm cloud became a nightmare for them, as they ran into hail, as big as golf balls, along with a very forceful downpour of rain. A tornado was also reported on the ground, south of Memphis.

For protection from glass breakage, they drove off into a clump of trees. When the hail stopped, they drove to a railroad track before they dared to turn around. Still in a downpour of rain, they headed for the highway, when all of a sudden like a river coming down, water and sand just engulfed them. Water from two broken terraces panned the vehicle down completely, but the couple got out and ran to an old vacant house nearby.

As the storm subsided and they started walking to Estelline, went up to one house, no one was there, two or three cars went around them, before one finally picked them up.

They finally reached Robert Doyle at the Phyllis Cheatham's, who was just leaving for the graduation. Robert told Phyllis he didn't know that little car could run that fast-he wanted to get Billy Sue back for part of the graduation, anyway, needless to say it was all over when they made it back. Robert didn't realize how for it was to Estelline.

At five o'clock, Mrs. Cheatham said, "you guys better start praying because those kids will try to come through that storm." Coming through after the storm subsided another car had been washed upon the steps of the Church at Parnell.

Anyway Traci graduated in spite of the Cheatham turmoil and we had a delicious graduation supper about 10:30, along with the tears and praising the Lord for the preservation of lives.

The next morning, we went to pull the vehicle out, water and sand had been over the motor and up to the bottom of the windows, towed it to Dallas, needless to say it was totaled.

Phillips Surprised Family June 14

by Carol Ramsey

Bert Phillips, cousin of Carol Ramsey surprised everyone in Pampa, Texas Friday, June 14, 1991 by showing up for his niece, Rhonda Daniels' wedding. He was to be in Saudi until October.

But Friday evening, June 14 he surprised all of us, me, his mother, Jackie Hobbs, and sisters and family by coming in the door in his camouflage fatigues.

On Monday evening he had surprised his wife by calling her to pick him up at the Kansas City, Missouri airport at 10 a.m. on Tuesday morning.

While in Saudi, Sergeant Major Phillips was a witness to the Scud Missile attack on a large housing unit for soldiers. Bert helped pull the wounded and dying out of the building.

Needless to say we are very happy and relieved to have him home, safe and sound.

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY See Store For Complete Rules And Odds

Brisco County Extension News

by Curtis Preston

Recent thunderstorms, high winds, blowing sand and hail-coupled with some problems of seedling disease—have many area cotton farmers facing a tough decision about replanting damaged stands. To help in those decisions, several factors should be considered, according to Curtis Preston, County Extension Agent.

Decisions about replanting should be based on objective evaluation of the remaining stand, its uniformity, condition of the surviving plants, the costs associated with replanting, the calendar date and availability of alternate crops which might show a profit.

There are no universal rules on which to base cotton replanting decisions according to Dr. James Supak, agronomist and cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The right decision depends on the circumstances in each situation. It may vary from field to field, or even among areas of a given field.

Cotton spacing studies in the U.S. for more than a century have shown that the optimum plant density, both for production and harvesting efficiency, ranges from about 25,000 to 50,000 plants an acre. That's about two to four plants per foot of drill in conventional row spacings.

In evaluating stand losses, it is generally recommended that if two or more plants per foot of row survive and if there aren't too many long skips, the stand is still adequate for optimum lint production.

When making replanting decisions, the first rule is to not make the final judgment on the extent of crop damage too quickly. Cotton has a great capacity to recover from adversity.

It's usually best to delay the final stand evaluation until after the crop is exposed to two or three days of good growing conditions.

In the meantime, use of a sandblaster or some other tillage tool on eroded fields can reduce wind and sand damage, improve aeration and hasten warming and drying of the soil which will reduce development of seedling disease.

Preston and Supak offer the following suggestions to help in evaluating the various factors crucial to decisions about replanting.

The degree and rate of crop recovery depends on the type and extent of damage and growing conditions following the injury. Types of crop damage can be broadly classified as acute and chronic.

Damage from hail, wind and sand can be called as acute. Although severe, it usually is of short duration and growing conditions are apt to return to normal in a relatively short time.

Damage from prolonged or recurring periods of cold, wet weather, possibly combined with hail or wind and sand injury, can be considered chronic because it occurs and intensifies over a long period. Damaged or damaged plants may or may not recover, depending on the duration of adverse growing conditions.

Evaluation of acutely damaged crops can be relatively straightforward, especially if normal growing conditions prevail after injury. The rate and extent of recovery largely depends on damage to stems and leaves.

Plants cut off below the cotyledonary nodes won't survive. Those with deep stem lesions may eventually die or only partially recover. Plants that lost terminals may survive if viable buds remain on the plant and the stem below those buds is intact.

Plants that are essentially defoliated can survive if stem damage is minimal. Any remaining whole leaves or portions of damaged leaves will increase the chance for survival and hasten recovery of plants with stems intact.

Plants suffering chronic damage are often afflicted with seedling diseases that attack roots, the vascular system and leaves.

During periods of cool, cloudy weather, the crop may appear normal, but will deteriorate rapidly when the weather turns hot and sunny.

With a shovel, dig up some plants and check the condition of the tap root. Inspect the stems for lesions at ground level. If the tap roots have a black, water soaked appearance, the disease is still active and more damage may occur. However, if the tap root is still intact and its outer covering, although discolored, has hardened, recovery chances are improved.

Cut the root lengthwise with a sharp knife and check for discoloration in the vascular tissues, especially if foliar disease damage is evident. Ascochyta blight and other disease organisms can invade and plug the water and photosynthetic conducting vessels in the plants.

If weather conditions remain marginal, count only the healthiest plants as potential survivors. With improved growing conditions, a larger percentage of plants will survive and be productive.

Do Gooders' Club Reminisce Hat Days

Mrs. Joe Taylor of South Plains presented an entertaining program on hats worn through the decades of history at the Do Gooders' Club meeting, Tuesday afternoon, June 11.

She gave historical dates, stories and modeled an array of hats worn in different eras of time including one of her great grandmother, grandmother and mother. She had the hat she wore leaving on her honeymoon in 1957 and stated she always wore a hat when attending church services. Her interest in estate sales are old hats.

She was stunning in a pill-box hat like the ones of Jacquelyn Kennedy in the 1960's. "However," she lamented, "in the 1970's the ERA was introduced, bras were burned and hats went out of style." She is pleased that hats are now resurging as a fashion asset. Mrs. Coy Franks and Mrs. Howard Rogers modeled some of the historical hats.

Those attending wore a hat or bonnet and related a story about it. As they arrived at the Community Center in Flomot, Mrs. Doyle Calver, president, wearing a Minnie Pearl hat, greeted them with a jovial, "How-dee-ee!" Old fashioned dresses and hats were on display throughout building.

White gloves trimmed in blue at the base of the blue mannequin adorned with a white straw hat and hairloom locket was the centerpiece on a table laid with a white lace cloth. Mesdames D.M. Gilbert, Wayne Hunter and Coy Franks served sausage balls, tortilla pin-wheels, fresh vegetables with dip, apricot bread and cookie bars with fruit slush punch, coffee and spiced tea.

Others attending besides those mentioned above were Mesdames George L. E. Shurter, Jack Starkey, Bill Washington, Junior Payne, Clayton Bond, Wilson Barton, James Monk and guests, Mrs. Joe Deagan and Mrs. Aline Welch.

Mrs. Leota Hargrove of Plainview will be the featured guest at 2:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 9 and present a program on quilting. Everyone is extended a cordial invitation to attend.

NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE

The United States Environmental Protection Agency has adopted requirements that all public water systems notify their customers about lead exposure. This notification is intended to educate and inform consumers on this issue in light of the fact that your drinking water may be a potential source of lead exposure. This is being done even though your water system is not in violation of the current standard. There are also other potential sources of lead contamination in the environment.

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million. Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly. Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

"Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

1. if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
2. if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours.

"Ways to avoid potential lead exposure are to "flush" faucets before use and to use cold water for drinking and cooking. You may wish to have your home tap water tested for lead content by a competent laboratory. You may also wish to check to see if lead pipes, solder, or flux were used in your home plumbing."

For further information you may contact the City of Turkey at City Hall, 423-1033.
