Geral Daniel has been suffering with Reflex Sympathetic Dystrophy Syndrome (RSD) for the past three years. While there are many people who struggle with the disease, little is know about it, especially by the general public. The Daniels got in touch with the RSD Association in Haddonfield, N. J. when Geral's diagnosis was confirmed. They have been able to gain understanding and support from their doctor in Lubbock, who is the leading authority in the nation, and the Association.

You can imagine how their frustration is compounded as the months go on by the lack of knowledge and lack of understanding. Charles recently shared a very informative brochure with me that was put out by the Arthritis Foundation. It is an excellent resource on RSD and it tells us:

RSD is thought to be a reflex (automatic) action caused by a disturbance in the sympathetic nervous system. This system, located alongside the spinal cord, controls the opening up and closing down of blood vessels and sweat glands. In RSD there is some evidence that this process is impaired. This results in an irregular blood supply to the affected areas. These areas are usually the hand or foot, but may be the knee, hip or shoulder. The main symptom of RSD is severe, burning pain.

They talk in terms of managing the disease, rather than curing, at this point.

The exact cause of RSD is unknown. It often develops after an injury to bones, muscles, ligaments or tendons. The injury may as mild as a minor sprain or as severe as a broken bone. Surgery of bones or soft tissues also may bring on RSD. About 30 percent of the time it appears without any recognizable cause. (In Geral's case a minor surgery on a toe is thought to be the cause.)

Valentine Day will be here on Sunday. The traditional day to let that special someone know that you love them. When we think of love what do we mean?

Love can mean many different things to to us. One of the meanings of love is trust-to love someone is to trust them.

To love is to be willing to sacrifice one's own willful desires so that the loved one can be happy

Love is always forgiving -- to love is to love unqualified. If we put a price on love it fails to be love but a greedy need! Love is also reinforcement. If we love someone we want to give them help and reinforcement when they need our caring. Love is closeness, also. To be a friend we need to feel a certain closeness. Someone who can bring out the best in you, is your friend stated Henry Ford.

Laughter too has to enter into love. For if you are never happy can this be a real love?

Last but certainly not least. Love is when we feel the presence of God in our lives. Let us tell all those that are so very special to us how we really feel on the Sunday, February 14.

Judge Young Receives Thanks From Morales

by Ann Coker

Judge Byron Young of Turkey recently received a letter from Dan Morales, Attorney General of Texas, thanking him and his colleagues for their unwavering support in the state's proposal to end the 20year old Ruiz prison litigations.

No longer will Texas prisoners enjoy the comforts of a Holiday Inn atmosphere. The state is not only free to manage its own prisons but may do so without also having to pay millions of dollars in legal fees to lawyers for the convicts.

Restrictive limits on prison population have been lifted, allowing additional inmates into existing and future facilities, and eliminating the necessity for some construction costs. Alternative housing, such as tents and abandoned military bases may now be used. Other restrictions and requirements have been lifted, as well, which may result in savings of more than $100 million to the state. The united support of people like Judge Young and others in the law enforcement community across Texas was a primary reason Morales' office was able to hold firm in their insistence that the inmates' lawyers drop their demands for certain unacceptable concessions from the State.

It offers tips on the type of records to review, how to make the most of your filing status, determining whether or not to itemize, how to maximize your deductions and

USDA Sets 1992 Cotton Deficiency Payments

USDA officials announced that the final 1992 deficiency payment rate for upland cotton is 20.3 cents per pound according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

The final payment reflects the difference between the weighted average price received by famers for the 1992 calendar year and the 72.9 cent target price mandated by the 1990 farm bill.

PCG officials note that the 20.3 cent final payment rate will translate into a 12.8 cent final payment to the producers who received the advance payment of 7.5 cents.

"The announcement of the 1992 deficiency payment rate of 20.3 cents is good news for High Plains cotton growers," says Donald Johnson, PCG Executive Vice President. "This should really help get most producers on firm ground financially to begin the 1993

USDA's estimate for the 1993 deficiency payment rate was announced February 3 and set at 20.55 cents per pound, with an advance payment of 10.275 cents available at sign-up. Sign-up for the 1993 cotton program will begin March 1 and run through April

Program provisions announced so far for 1993 seem to parallel last year's provisions with the exception of the Acreage Reduction Program (ARP) percentage which fell to 7.5 percent.

Producers are reminded that flexibility provisions written into the 1990 Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act are still applicable. The following is a breakdown of the flexibility provi-

Normal Flex Acres (NFA) equal 15 percent of the crop acreage base on the farm and is not eligible for deficiency payments.

Optional Flex Acres (OFA) equal 10 percent of the crop acreage base on the farm and is eligible for deficiency payments only if planted to the original program crop. Program crops planted on NFA and OFA acres are eligible for loan whether or not the producer is participating in the commodity program for that particular crop.

Maximum Flex Acres (MFA) equal the sum of NFA and OFA. Other information regarding the 1993 crop are the Target Price and Payment Yields which remain frozen at 1990 levels

This information will allow cotton producers on the High Plains to start planning their 1993 crops," notes Johnson. "Producers who are still putting the final touches on the 1992 crop need to be aware that the final day to apply for the 1990/91/92 disaster program is February 12." All necessary signatures on disaster contracts must be obtained by the February 12 deadline.

In addition to the disaster program sign-up deadline, Johnson adds that the final day to request a loan or Payment on 1992 cotton is May 31, 1993.

by Laurie Cruz, Jamie Taylor, Jess Yeary, B. J. Price

The class of 2,000 has been doing a lot of activities this fifth-grade year. We have put on a play in game show form. We had characters played by students in the fifth grade. We also had a time when we ordered T-shirts. It had a lot about being Smoke Free on it. We signed a pledge with Keshia Knight on it. Keshia is well-known for playing the role of Rudy Huxtable on "The Cosby Show." We signed it to show that we would be tobacco - free from here on to infinity! These are the activities the Smoke Free class of 2,000 did this fifth grade year.

TAXES AND OTHER PESTS

Texas residents pay no state income tax, but many citizens here are under attack from other state governments hope to raise extra revenue.

California, for instance, has been very aggressive in its efforts to squeeze former residents who now live in states with no income tax. Some Texas retirees who once lived in California have been receiving income tax bills on their pensions, even though they no onger have any connection with that state.

This unfair situation would be helped by my Senate Bill 17, which would prevent another state from placing a tax lien on a person's property in Texas for the payment of an income tax on his or her S.B. 17 was voted

There is no argument about the devastating effects of the boll weevil on the agricultural economy of Texas over the past 100 years. Like many other cotton farmers, I have waged my own private war against the pest, with varied results.

Senate Bill 30, passed last Wednesday and sent to the House of Representatives, allows farmers to set up a boll weevil eradication program. A coordinated effort cotton producers can be an effective tool in getting the upper hand on the boll weevil.

I have introduced a constitutional amendment to alleviate potential legal problems with S.B. 30 if

WTU Announces Study Of Renewable Energy Project

Abilene, Texas (February 1, 1993) West Texas Utilities Company announced today that it is partici-pating in a renewable energy project which will include locations in its service territory. The company and the other three electric utility com-panies of Central and South West Corporation(CSW) are planning the most comprehensive study of renewable energy technologies ever undertaken in the Southwest.

The $10 million, five-year program calls for installing a large photovoltaic system connected to the electrical network, individual photovoltaic panels on customer rooftops, two solar-dish Stirling engines and several wind-powered turbines. This project will increase the CSW system's research expenditures for 1993 by more than 40

Glenn Files, president and chief executive officer of the Abilene based electric utility company, said the renewable energy program is designed to lead to alternative sources of clean power for the CSW system's 1.6 million customers.

The multipurpose program will include testing for the best potential sites for sun and wind exposure in WTU's 53,000 square-mile service territory, and in the 100,000 square miles served by the other three utilities.

Initial tests indicate the best combination of solar and wind resources is located in the Fort Davis area of West Texas. Some equipment will be located in the region

Files said that research, technoscale could help make the use of sun and wind for electrical power an affordable alternative for customers early in the 21st century

Using renewable energy in the Fort Davis area will enhance the reliability of electric service there because the community is 100 mile from the nearest power plant. "A solar unit and wind farm could provide backup energy during power line maintenance," Files said. "It also could help us meet a significant portion of the electricity demand of the area while reducing the need for

The four technologies that will be tested are: •A 200 kilowatt flat plate photovoltaic module. The photovoltaic cells are grouped to electric distribution lines that serve the University of Texas McDonald Observatory and other Fort Davis customers. *Roof top photovoltaic units for six commercial buildings or residences in the area. Each unit will provide at least one kilowatt of supplemental electricity to the building. • Advanced wind turbines. A 2,000 kilowatt small wind farm consisting of at least six turbines vill be installed. •Solar powered Stirling engines, developed by Cummins Power Generation Abilene, Texas. The solar dish Stirling engine uses an array of mirrors to follow the sun and focus its energy on the engine, which powers an alternator to generate electricity. The Stirling engine can convert up to 30 percent of the sunlight into electricity, compared to the 10 percent to 15 percent efficiency of photovoltaic modules. The Stirling engine also can be fueled with natural gas. Two sizes of Stirling engines will be tested - a 7.5 kilowatt unit and a 25 kilowatt unit.

Files pointed out that research studies indicate wind power in Texas could supply approximately 10 percent of the electrical needs of the United States. he said the CSW project will help determine how much of this resource can be practically used as well as the environ mental effects of renewable technology. Central and South West's electricutility subsidiaries - West Texas Utilities Company, Central Power and Light Company, Public Service of Oklahoma, and Southwestern Electric Power Company use a variety of fuel sources. For 1992, the system's fuel use by Btu was 40 percent natural gas, 42 percent coal, 10 percent lignite and 8 percent nuclear energy.
