Helm's Irrigation on Main Street in Quitaque will again be the place to enter and taste the Best Hot Sauce from the area. Entries are expected from all across this part of Texas as residents enter a quart of this year's homemade sauce to vie for bragging rights as the BEST!

South Plains Playboys To Open For Ray Price October 25, 1997

The south Plains Playboys, celebrating its 10th anniversary this year as South Plains College's premier western swing ensemble, has been invited to be the opening band October 25 in Turkey, Texas for a benefit concert featuring country music legend Ray Price.

The concert spotlighting Ray Price and the Cherokee Cowboys will raise funds for renovation of the Gem Theater in Turkey, Texas.

Concert times are 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the old Turkey High School Auditorium.

Tickets are still available for the matinee performance and the evening performance. Interested persons can contact Lawana Cruse, president of the Turkey Heritage Foundation, for ticket information at 806/423-1273.

The SPC group, under the direction of Joe Carr, will perform a 30 minute set of western swing classics such as Bob Wills' Faded Love, San Antonio Rose, and Milk Cow Blues.

"What a kick this is going to be, to perform on the same stage with this legendary figure in country music," said Robyn Hobson from Grandview, Texas, one of four fiddlers with the student ensemble.

Cruse invited the South Plains Playboys to perform for the momentous occasion, based on the reputation of SPC's commercial music program. "I have heard they are really good; they were recommended to me by someone who knows their top reputation," Cruse explained.

Concert proceeds will be used for the renovation of the once-popular Gem Theater, which closed down more than 30 years ago. Cruse is spearheading the renovation project along with her sister-in-law, Marie Cruse. They bought the old theater and hope to open the newly remodeled version in six to eight months.

"We want to bring in live entertainment, such as cowboy poets, dramas, jamborees and we want to promote classic country music of such greats as Ray Price and Hank Thompson," said Cruse.

Cruse noted that Price got his start in country music with the help of famed Turkey Native Bob Wills.

Price has had a number of country western hits, including Make the World Go Away, Heartaches by the Number, Crazy Arms and Heart Over Mind.

Price began playing his brand of music before many of the young people in the student ensemble were born. "They are very aware of his music, however," said Joe Carr, assistant professor of music and the ensemble's director. "One of the characteristics of that kind of music is that musicians get to play a lot," Carr explained.

That was the impetus behind the birth of the South Plains Playboys in 1987.

"We had a number of beginning fiddlers that year, and at that time not much music featured fiddlers predominantly,"

Girl Dies In Hereford After Bout With Salmonella

courtesy Amarillo Globe News by Linda Kane

A five year old Hereford girl died Thursday from what her mother said was salmonella poisoning. Officials do not know how the youngster contracted the bacteria.

Randi Brooke Harrison did not have the classic symptoms - vomiting and diarrhea - of salmonella, Beverly Harrison said.

"Brooke had been sick for about seven or eight weeks," her mother said. "We had five specialists and our local doctor looking at her."

Harrison said blood tests revealed the presence of the salmonella bacteria in the girl. Harrison said her daughter had some discomfort urinating, but did not begin vomiting until early last week.

THEN NOW!

by Eunice McFall

Fall seems to be making itself felt around the area. The mornings are quite cool and you really need to have a jacket available to keep the chill off. By noon it is usually a beautiful sunny day and quite warm. During the afternoon it continues to warm up but by dusk the temperature is falling rapidly. It makes us realize that soon the cold days of winter will be upon us and we will wonder where the nice sunny warm days of summer went and how in the world did they pass us by so quickly.

The last of this month it will be time to change our clocks once again to the regular time. And the afternoon will once again be quite short but the morning will be rather long. Personally I like the normal time. I would rather stay up late and sleep late—even seem to do my best sleeping early in the morning—if you don't believe me just ask Sid—he is the one who has the problem of getting me to greet the day. It seems that I just get my second wind and it is time to call it a day but oh how differently I react when it is time to arise!

Every season seems to have its merits. Summer is supposed to be the lazy time of year—don't know where that comes from when you have all the weeding, hoeing, watering, mowing etc to do every week! Fall is the time of bright leaves, smells of fall, fabulous colors in the flower world, and of course all the weeds are racing against time to make seed so that you will have to break out the hoe again next year to rid you place of their descendants.

Winter is my personal favorite time of the year—especially when there is snow on the ground but I do not say this very loud at our house—as Sid is a lover of the good old summer time. Winter is a time to curl up with a good book, cook a pot of soup and just enjoy the bliss of being alive in such a glorious time.

Spring of course always brings new life to everyone and by then we are rather tired of all those good books, pots of soup and are ready to venture out and plant those unending rows of crops, gardens, flowers and to rejoice in the new leaves on the trees, the fresh green in the lawn and the great smell of the spring flowers!

But then again they have to go and change the time to the Daylight Saving Time and there goes my good sleeping hour early in the morning and another summer is rearing its head for me to drag through with never enough sleep! But that is far away and I shall enjoy the shorter days of winter and even more enjoy those blessed hours of uninterrupted sleep!

Public Attitudes On Private Organizations

(NAPS)—Americans are expressing more confidence in private, charitable institutions, especially those geared towards our youth, a survey shows.

The more money spent on helping our young people means more opportunities for them, whether it be a private education, recreational programs or health services.

An overwhelming 71% of the population surveyed stated that they had a great deal of confidence in non-profits.

Confidence in private higher education increased the most, to a 57 percent confidence level in 1996, from 49.6 percent in 1994.

Religious institutions came in second on the confidence charts with a 54.7 percent confidence level in 1996, from 49.6 percent in 1994. The survey shows that from 1994 to 1996, more and more people overall expressed confidence in most charitable organizations.

The not-for-profit sector counts on people's trust. That's why charities and nonprofits provide regular reports on their income and expenses to the government, donors, and anyone else who is interested in knowing, according to the INDEPENDENT SECTOR, a national coalition that includes 800 voluntary organizations and foundations.

For more information, write INDEPENDENT SECTOR, 1828 L St., N.W., Washington, DC, 20036; e-mail them at info@indepsec.org, or visit them on the World Wide Web at http://www.indepsec.org.

TURKEY TALK

Things Seen or Heard

by Ann Coker
 Estelle and Tink Lane returned last week from a trip to Greeley, Colorado to visit their son and wife, Keith and Jan Lane. They also traveled up to Wyoming and reported they had never seen the aspen trees more beautiful, they were solid gold in color and still on the trees. The most beautiful they had ever witnessed.

Visiting with Dot Arnold last week-end was her son, Sherrrod Arnold of Amarillo. Sherrrod and Dot enjoyed Sunday dinner with Sherrrod's sister and family, Janice and Billy Wheeler. The families of Barry Wheeler and Brian Wheeler joined them.

Bob and Janice Russell were in Childress last week. They had doctor's appointments.

Jim Majors was in Plainview last Monday. He received a good report but must have bed rest for seven more days.

Doing some shopping in Childress last week were Arlie Williams and Gelene Proctor. Arlie's car was parked on the Wal-Mart parking lot when a big semi-truck, with no driver slipped out of gear and backed into Arlie's car. Some damage was done to Arlie's back fender. On Monday she took her car to Clarendon to be repaired. Chamberlain's Motor Company furnished her with a car while hers is being repaired.

Aspen Fest was held recently in Ruidosa. Our two grandsons, Zach and Josh Hamilton, rode in the parade on their bicycles. Our daughter, Linda, said some of the visitors were quite upset because the trees hadn't turned!

We recently killed a big rattlesnake just a few feet from our front door. The next day Squint, Dan and Mike House caught a rattlesnake with 12 rattlers right across the road from our house. I've quit going out for my paper before sun-up. Our little dog alerted us and the House's were picking up bales of hay.

Traveling to Childress last week were Lorene Setliff, Dot Arnold and me. While there we saw Tina Carson doing some shopping. Her son was visiting with his aunt, Margaret Lans. Traveling to Lubbock recently were Bettie and Keith Greene. They had doctor's appointments.

We received an interesting letter recently from the Texas progress—an official publication of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas.

A 15 year old son of the Executive Vice President of this company, Paul Fulham, has been reported missing.

The boy is 6' 2" and weighs 200 pounds. He loves to hunt and may be camping somewhere. He drives a 1983 blue Chevrolet pickup. His parents thought someone in a rural area may have seen him. His name is Jackson Fulham. Hopefully someone in this area has seen him.

Saying "No" to Diets and "Yes" to Exercise

HEALTH FOCUS
James L. Phillips, M.D.
Baylor College of Medicine
Houston, Texas

Baylor College of Medicine in Houston recently studied 127 overweight men and women for two years. The participants were divided into three groups -- diet and exercise, diet only, and exercise only. While the diet and exercise and diet-only groups lost weight during the first year, they gained it back the second year. The exercise-only group is the only one that lost weight and kept it off. Exercise proved to be the critical difference. Also, remember to make changes gradually. Dr. John Foreyt of Baylor's Behavioral Medicine Research Center believes people fail at weight management because they try too hard, too fast. In the book Living Without Dieting, Foreyt and co-author Dr. Ken Goodrick recommend a one-day-at-a-time approach. You can learn to enjoy healthy eating by starting with one low-fat meal and slowly working up to low-fat eating days. The same advice applies to exercise. Find something that appeals to you, like walking or bicycling, and begin gradually. Over time, you will find you enjoy exercise and how it makes you feel and will not look for excuses to avoid it. It's important to realize that society's current concept of thinness is not possible for many people. By letting healthy eating and exercise become a habit, you can find a weight that is comfortable for you.

Weight loss is an American fascination. At least one-fourth of the adult population is obese and looking for a weight management program that works. So, if you don't want to lose weight, you probably know someone who does. More often than not, diets do not work and can even be harmful. Weight management is not about the newest, quick-loss gimmick. It's about changes in lifestyle and attitudes.

Valley Jr. High Loses Close One

by Coach Saul
The Valley Jr. High suffered a heartbreaking loss last Thursday night against Happy. The final score was Valley -- 30 and Happy -- 32. The kids played really hard and once again showed lots of improvement in the game.
The offense moved the ball consistently both on the ground and through the air. The defense stepped up late in the 4th quarter and stopped Happy twice, but the offense was unable to convert on one opportunity and time ran out with the Patriots driving on Happy's end of the field the second time. Several key plays proved to be the difference in what was a very emotional and exciting ball game.

On Valley's first drive, Tate Bennett threw a 12 yard TD to Wes Henson to get Valley on the board. The 2 point conversion failed and Valley led 6-0.

In the second quarter, with Valley trailing 6 - 8, Cliff Yeary scored from 1 yard out. Tate Bennett completed the 2 point conversion pass to Danny Hinojosa and Valley led 14-8. Later in the second quarter, with Valley now trailing 14-16, Bennett connected with Hinojosa for a 58 yard TD. Bennett once again found an open Hinojosa for the 2 point conversion and Valley led 22-16. Happy scored once more before the half and led 22-24 at halftime.

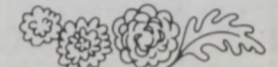

In the 4th quarter, with Valley trailing 22-32 Bennett connected with Hinojosa for a 14 yd TD pass. Bennett ran in the 2 point conversion to narrow the score to 30-32.

Thursday Valley will play Farwell at Kress at 5 p.m.

CRP Enrollment Need Evaluation

provided by Pammy Millican, CEA-Ag
Because of acreage caps imposed by Congress, millions of environmentally sensitive acres in Texas and the nation are no longer in the Conservation Reserve Program. The program pays landowners to take highly erodible land out of production to improve air and water quality or provide additional wildlife habitat.

Extension agricultural economist Dr. Joe Outlaw says areas with plans for wildlife development score higher on the evaluation. He says something as simple as changing from native ground cover to a grass that's more beneficial to wildlife will improve your score.

Outlaw says having your land re-evaluated by the Extension Service, Farm Services Agency or National Reserve Conservation Services is another way of improving your odds if you plan to reapply this October.

Scout Master Is New Computer Program

provided by Pammy Millican, CEA-Ag
Computer bugs are what computer junkies avoid, but Texas Agricultural Extension Service agents think computers and bugs are made for each other. Extension pest management agent Ray Huffman created the Scout Master program to make this combination a reality.

With a field computer, Huffman identifies potential insect problems, records those observations and feeds that data directly into a network so producers online can have immediate access to that information.

Extension entomologist Dr. John Norman says the early warning system can help growers decide whether insecticide use is necessary or if predators and insects can keep the bad bugs at a tolerable level. Huffman plans to make it commercially available within two years.

However, Extension Agents in some areas are already using Scout Master and making that information accessible to growers upon request.

4-Hers Study Endangered Species

provided by Pammy Millican, CEA, Ag
Inner-city children may never see a bald eagle or a black bear, but they are learning about those and other endangered species through an innovative 4-H program put together by Dallas County Extension Agent Allen Malone.

It allows students to learn more about wildlife that are threatened or nearing extinction. This traveling program involves games, displays and computer programs to help the students learn as much as possible in the short time they have.

It is programs such as this that help inner-city children to step outside the concrete jungle and explore vastly different parts of their world.

Plant In the Fall For A Better Spring

provided by Pammy Millican, CEA-Ag
The fall is a great time to tackle landscape projects. Extension horticulturist Dr. Doug Welsh promotes getting your hands dirty now so you can enjoy a more beautiful yard come next spring. He says the early planting allows the root system time to establish itself because Texas soil doesn't freeze.

He says pansies, johnny jump-ups, dianthus and especially petunias are best when planted in the fall. They'll bloom in the fall and even sporadically during the winter. When spring comes, the plants will appear bigger, stronger and they will bloom better.

Breast Cancer Awareness Month

by Calley Payne, CEA-FCS
October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Breast Cancer is the leading cancer diagnosed in women in the United States. It is also the leading cause of Cancer deaths among women in the United States. It is also the leading cause of Cancer deaths among women aged 40-55 years. This year more than 180,000 women will learn they have breast cancer for the first time and more than 40,000 women will lose their lives because of breast cancer.

Fortunately, breast cancer is highly treatable if detected early. With early detection and proper treatment, suffering and ultimately the loss of life can be reduced significantly.

Research has demonstrated that there are several factors which may put you at risk for developing breast cancer, including the following:

Age: Breast cancer risk increases with age. You may be at risk for breast cancer if you are aged 40 or older, however, breast cancer can occur at an earlier age.

Family History: Breast cancer risk increases for women whose close female relatives have had breast cancer. You may be at risk for breast cancer if you have a mother, sister, daughter or two or more close relatives, such as cousins, who have had breast cancer.

Personal History: A woman's personal menstrual history and other breast symptoms history may put her at higher risk. You may be at risk for breast cancer if you: 1. Have had cancer of the breast, ovary, colon or endometrium (part of the womb) previously; 2. Have had a growth on your breast that was not cancer; 3. Started your period before age 12; 4. Ended your period after age 50;

5. Have never been pregnant or had your first pregnancy after age 30.

Other: Current research is continuing to study other breast cancer risk factors. You may be at risk for breast cancer if you: 1. Are obese, 2. Eat too many foods high in fat, such as whole milk, fried foods, lard and fatty meats; 3. Regularly drink alcoholic beverages; 4. Have been on hormone replacement therapy 5 years or longer.

Note: Having none of these risk factors does not make you exempt from getting breast cancer. It is essential that all women do regular breast self-exams and clinical breast exams. Breast cancer is highly treatable if detected early. There are three methods for early detection: 1. breast self-exam; 2. clinical breast exam; 3. mammogram.

In addition to methods for early detection, you can reduce your risk by controlling your diet, your eating behaviors, and your alcohol consumption.

The Nibbler's Survival Guide To Halloween

What's the scariest thing you'll see this time of year? Forget the spooky masks and the Dracula fangs. It's the mountain of Halloween candy sitting there, tempting you. Every grownup knows that those treats can really trick your determination to eat sensibly. Candy is scary because it is packed with calories and fat and short on vitamins, mineral, protein, fiber and other nutrients.

Let's face it: We are heading into the dangerous season between Halloween in October and Super Bowl Sunday in January. That's when many people can add as much as seven pounds because of party foods and celebrations.

So what's a nibbler to do? How can you keep the trick-or-treating children happy while you refrain from snatching a handful of candy? A pound here, another pound there. It all adds up, ruining the waistline and the best intentions. The staff at Scott & White want to help everyone have a healthy and happy holiday. Scott & White is the largest multi-specialty group practice in Texas with 488 physicians and 17 regional clinics.

Here is some timely advice, just in time for the trick-or-treat hoards at your doorstep:

BUY LATE, BUY LESS: Even though the grocery stores start pushing Halloween candy before the 4th of July, there's no reason to buy it early. The longer the candy is in plain view, the more tempting it is. Buy the candy just a day before the major haunting. When you do shop, buy less than you did last year so you will have fewer leftovers. Those big family-sized bags of goodies simply scream, "Eat me NOW!" So what if you run out of candy during the Halloween onslaught? Toss a few nickels and quarters into the children's sacks. (Have you ever known a kid to turn down money?)

BUY WHAT YOU DON'T LIKE: Buy only the stuff that turns you off. The quickest way to kill the nibbling urge is to take away the enjoyment. One friend gives out individual packages of Sweet Tarts, her least favorite candy. "Of course," she adds, "it would be a disaster if I had M&Ms or Snickers. I'd eat more than I would give away. So I don't even stock them."

Carters Will Move To Lubbock Soon

Ralph and Hattie Lois Carter will soon be traveling to Lubbock to stay. They have sold their home to Linda and BoBo Morrison and are moving to Lubbock. They will be closer to their son Melvin and his family.

Hattie Lois was born in Venus, Texas to Dora (Smith) and C. W. Broxson. They arrived three miles south of town in 1923.

Ralph Carter was born to W. J. and Thornton Jane (Thomas) Carter who came to Gasoline, Texas in 1924.

Ralph and Hattie Lois have two children, Mozelle Hedrick who graduated from Quitaque High School in 1954 and Melvin who graduated in 1960 from the Quitaque High School.

Mozelle and Larry Hedrick who live in Canyon have three sons, Scott, Lane and Todd.

Melvin and Donna Carter who reside in Lubbock have two daughters, Melody and Melissa.

Ralph and Hattie Lois have farmed for many years on the land where they now live. They have been very active in community affairs and also very active in their church.

The reception Sunday is to show these long time Briscoe County residents how much they are appreciated and that the people of the area wish them well in their new home at Lubbock.

NIBBLE LIKE A BUNNY: Keep a constant stock of raw vegetables and fruits handy. As you dole out the candy bars, chomp down on a carrot stick. Yes, we know it isn't like eating a chocolate bar but you hips will show the difference.

LOOK FOR ALTERNATIVES: One way to keep from consuming Halloween candy is not to buy it at all. Rather, hand out alternatives such as pencils, decorative erasers, tiny bottles of bubbles, stickers and inexpensive trinkets.

DONATE THE LEFT OVERS (AND WE DON'T MEAN BRING IT TO THE OFFICE): Every year, it's the same ritual. People don't want to be tempted by candy at home, so they bring it to the office—where they are still lured to nibble at their desks. Instead make it an office project to donate everyone's leftover candy to a school, a homeless shelter or a food pantry that serves the poor. These candies will be a welcome treat to many people who cannot afford them.

WRITE IT ALL IN A FOOD DIARY: Keeping a log of what you eat helps you to track the fat and calories for the day. Most important, record how you're feeling as you eat. Are you bored, stressed or angry? This helps you identify trends and patterns to your overeating.

REMEMBER MODERATION: The world won't come to an end if you snare three chocolate kisses. But remember to balance the rest of your day's diet by eliminating the fat and calories from another part of your day's menu.

Yearly Flu Shots Urged For Everyone, But Especially For The Elderly

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) urges all Texans to get yearly flu vaccinations. The experts also warn that the elderly and others who may be at high risk of influenza and its complications should be immunized even before the flu season begins.

The flu season usually lasts from December through April.

The U. S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) each year predicts which strains of influenza pose the greatest public health danger in the U. S.

The vaccine CDC has recommended for the 1997-98 season is meant to combat the A/Wuhan, A/Bayern and B/Beijing strains of the disease. The effectiveness of each year's shots declines with time, therefore, annual immunizations with the appropriate vaccines are recommended for everyone except people with serious allergies to eggs.

People most at risk of severe or fatal complications of the disease include those 65 or older, anyone with chronic respiratory or heart problems, diabetics and children on aspirin therapy.

Influenza kills about 20,000 in the U. S. each year. According to Jim Schuermann, public health technician in the TDH Infectious Disease Epidemiology and Surveillance Division, the elderly are the group hardest-hit by influenza and its complications.

"Fewer than 30 percent of elderly Americans and others in high-risk groups heed our regular warnings to have yearly influenza vaccinations," he said. "We know that one reason some older people fail to be vaccinated is because of a persistent, unfounded fear that the vaccine can actually cause influenza. The truth is that a vaccinated person may still contract some strains of influenza, but not from the vaccine. If they do become ill with flu, the vaccine usually helps lessen the severity of the case."

Physicians are advised to offer vaccine to all their patients during routine clinic visits, beginning in September and throughout the influenza season. The vaccine can take two weeks to become effective and about six weeks to reach peak strength. Children younger than 9 who have never received flu vaccine need their first shot, followed a month later by a booster. Adults need only one shot each season.

Schuermann said that the only persons who should not receive the influenza vaccine are those with severe allergic reactions to eggs. Influenza vaccines are produced with virus cultured in eggs.

Under Use Of Pneumonia Vaccine Costs Lives

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) has reminded the public, physicians and nursing home personnel that the elderly, the very young and others with weakened immune systems are at risk of potentially life-threatening infection, if they have not been vaccinated against Streptococcal pneumoniae bacterial infections.

Also called pneumococcal disease, the illness can be entirely prevented, in most cases by a one-shot immunization. However, lack of public awareness about the vaccine and its effectiveness contributes to serious illness and death each year in Texas.

Beverly Ray, in TDH's Infectious Disease Epidemiology and Surveillance Division, said that although outbreaks of pneumococcal disease are uncommon, they can be devastating, spreading rapidly among unimmunized people. Such might have been the case last year when an outbreak occurred in an East Texas nursing home, where two patients died of pneumococcal pneumonia and another was critically ill but survived. None of the other residents became ill, since Ray and a team of TDH experts intervened with testing and preventive treatment to halt a spread of pneumococcal disease throughout the home.

"If it hadn't been for quick action by the nursing home personnel, who called TDH for expertise and vaccines early in that outbreak, the number of fatalities might have been much higher," Raysaid.

Other categories of people who are most likely to develop influenza complications are: Adults and children with chronic heart or lung disorders, including children with asthma; People under medical care for chronic metabolic diseases, diabetes, kidney or blood problems or weakened immune systems; and Children (18 and younger) who already are receiving long-term aspirin therapy, which can place them at risk of developing Reye's syndrome after influenza.

"We strongly recommend influenza vaccinations for all people in high-risk groups, international travelers or pregnant women," Schuermann advised. "People infected with the human immunodeficiency virus (the virus which causes AIDS) also may be at increased risk for flu complications." TDH also recommends that physicians, nurses, emergency medical technicians and other health professionals be immunized against influenza to avoid spreading the disease to their patients. Residents and employees of nursing homes and other facilities treating chronically ill patients also should be immunized.

Physicians are advised to offer vaccine to all their patients during routine clinic visits, beginning in September and throughout the influenza season. The vaccine can take two weeks to become effective and about six weeks to reach peak strength. Children younger than 9 who have never received flu vaccine need their first shot, followed a month later by a booster. Adults need only one shot each season.

Schuermann said that the only persons who should not receive the influenza vaccine are those with severe allergic reactions to eggs. Influenza vaccines are produced with virus cultured in eggs.

Youth Professional Returns From Conference At Wichita Falls, Texas

Calley Payne, Briscoe County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences, attended the annual conference of the Texas Association of Extension 4-H Agents (TAE4-HA) in Wichita Falls, Texas. Payne was among 115 youth professionals from across the state who attended the conference on August 6-8, 1997. The theme for the conference was Branding a New Frontier. This is the first TAE4-HA annual conference for Payne to attend.

Established in 1976, the purpose of TAE4-HA is to enhance professional skills and competence in education and to strengthen the youth development profession, it's image, standards and support. Members continue to support these goals in conjunction with administrators of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Conference participants attended seminars, workshops and research presentations covering topics such as youth, volunteer and personal development, professional development and program management. Because this is the only time that the general association membership gathers, business meetings are also another important function. Many association members were also recognized for their tremendous efforts and achievements in youth programming.

Wichita Falls Justice of the Peace Janice Sons entertained the participants during the opening session. Noted throughout the state for her humor and wit, she left the participants feeling light-hearted and up-lifted.

Ed Jones, a nationally recognized speaker, provided motivational and leadership development training. He has conducted numerous staff development workshops across the country through the GTE company.

Four-H and youth development programs are conducted in 254 counties in Texas by the Texas Agricultural Extension service of the Texas A&M University System, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the County Commissioners.

New Uses For Peanuts

How about the use of peanut oil in fire ant control? Researchers at Texas Tech University have developed a tasty way to feed "Beauveria," a deadly fungus, to fire ants: they coat the granule in peanut oil. According to university sources, it will be at least two years before the products are available for commercial use.

Texas lawmakers recently approved funding for fire ant research in the amount of $2.5 million. These monies are going to the research departments of Texas' three major universities—Texas Tech, Texas A&M and the University of Texas.

Conservatory Uses Pest Control At Galveston

Botanical gardens are becoming popular tourist attractions. While many of us are captivated by their beauty, we don't realize the work that goes on behind the scenes.

Texas A&M is helping one conservatory to control harmful insects without pesticides. When Moody Gardens was built in Galveston, managers immediately contracted Texas A&M for a plan to keep pests off its more than 12-hundred species of plants.

Horticultural exhibits manager Gary Outenreach says the goal is not to kill all the bad bugs. If you eliminate the damaging insects, the beneficial insects will soon die from lack of food. Then you are at risk for a more intense return of the harmful insects.

The other reason for not using chemical control agents is that they can harm the butterflies, birds and fish. It's a delicate balance which conservatories are learning to help keep the balance of nature elsewhere as well.
