THE CROSS PLAINS REVIEW

CHAPTER I

The Fray in Mincing Lane "Watch! Ho, watch!"

The words rang through the misty tarkness of the narrow street. I gathered my cloak around-me and skulked closer to the nearest house-wall. Could It be possible the Bow Street runners had picked up my trail again!

And a new worry assailed me. Did the cry come from in front or behind? The fog that mantled London, and which so far had stood my friend, now served to muffle the source of this sudden alarm. Which way should I turn? "Watch! Curse the sleepy varlets!"

The houses past which I had been feeling my way came to an end. An alley branched off to the right and from its entrance echoed the click of steel-music after my own heart. The blood coursed faster in my yeins. No, this could be no trap such as had awaited me ever since I had stepped from the smuggler's small boat. Here was sword-play, a welcome change from the plotting and intrigue which had sickened me.

I cast my cloak back over my shoulder and drew my sword from its sheath, as I ran over the uneven cobbles which paved the alley. Dimly I saw before me a confused huddle of figures that tussled and stamped about in the ghostly mirk of the fog.

"Hold, friend," I shouted.

"Make haste," panted a voice from the middle of the group.

One man against a gang of assassins ! So that was the story. It savored more of Paris than of the staid London of merchants and shopkeepers over which the Hanoverian exercised his stolid sway

But I had scant time for philosophy They were on me in an instant, one assailant in front, an assassin on either hand, slashing with hangers and cut lases that knew no tricks of fence, but only downright force. Their former prey was left with one to handle.

"Get to his rear, one of you fools," snarled the ruffian in command whilst he pounded at my guard.

But I backed into a handy doorway and barely managed to fend them off. And all the while the real object of their attack continued his appeals for the watch.

'Twas this which spoiled the fray for me. I could not but wonder, as I dodged and parried and thrust, what would happen if his cries should be heard and the watch appear. Would they know me? Or perchance should I have the opportunity to slip quietly away?

I stole a glance about me. Several windows had gone up along the street and nightcapped heads protruded to add their clamor to that of my friend.

Surely- Aye, they had done it. The ruffian on my left leaped back with ear aslant toward the alley en-

But he was interrupted from an unexpected quarter. The captain of the watch returned alone.

"I crave your pardon, Master Juggins," he began. "But we have been warned to keep a watch for a dangerous malefactor, an enemy of the state, one Ormerod, an emissary of the Pretender who is here on an errand against the crown.'

Juggins favored me with a cursory glance of a somewhat peculiar nature. It was not exactly hostile, and yet much of the friendliness which had characterized his manner was gone. I felt cold chills running down my back. Would he give me up? What right after all had I to expect better treatment from a total stranger, a man who had nothing to gain from shielding me? "Go on," said Juggins coldly to the watchman, withdrawing his attention

"Why, worshipful sir, there is no more to say. It is just that I thought, the attack being made upon you, a wellknown citizen, it might have been--" "And how should I know this person of whom you speak?" "Why, sir, that I cannot-"

"Be about your duties, sirrah," interrupted Master Juggins, "and peater me no longer.'

The captain stumped off to where his faithful band awaited him, the several curious-minded citizens who had listened to the altercation from the vantage-point of their bedroom windows retired to resume their slumbers, and Master Juggins strode back to my side.

"Is your name Ormerod?" he asked "I am Harry Ormerod, once a captain of foot under the duke of Berwick; and I formerly had the honor to be chamberlain to the man whom some people call King James the Third."

"You are a rebel, a conspirator

"I do not expect you to believe me, of course," I answered as lightly as I could, "but I am not a rebel-in spirit or intent, at any rate-and I am not conspiring against the Crown at this moment-although I have done so in

My friend left my side and strode toward the captain of the watch, who gave back a pace or two until he felt the stomachs of his followers at his back.

"How, now," said he who had called himself Robert Juggins, "hold up that lantern, you, sirrah, with the shaking arm. Look into my face, lazy dogs that you are. Dost know me?" He poked his finger into the fat figure of the captain.

"Quick, bullies," he yelled. "'Tis the watch !"

With a celerity that was almost uncanny they disengaged their blades and melted into the fog. Their footfalls dwindled around the corner as I detected the clumping footfalls of the approaching guardians of London's peace.

This brought me to my senses. 1 sheathed my sword and ran across the roadway, glancing to right and left for the best route of escape. But I reckoned without the other participant in our brawl

"Be at ease, my master," he said in a voice which had a good thick Dorset burr in it-I liked him from that moment. I sounded so homelike; I could fairly see the rolling fields, the water meadows, the copses, all the scenes that had meant so much to me in boyhood, even the sprawling roofs and chimney stacks of Foxcroft house itself. "Tis only the watch you hear. Hark to the jingling of their staves."

"I know that full well, my friend," I answered him, gooseflesh rising on my neck as the jingling staves and clumping feet drew nearer. "But I happen to have pressing reasons for avoiding the watch.

My friend pursed his lips in a low whistle.

"So, sets the wind in that quarter! Yet you came fast enough to my help against those cut-purses a moment back."

I laughed. The watch were all but in the alley's mouth. 'Twas idle to think of running now.

"Oh, I am no highwayman," I said. "Well, whatever you may be, you aided Robert Juggins in his peril, and 'twill be a sore pity if a worshipful alderman of the city may not see you through the scrutiny of a band of lazy bench-loafers."

"That is good hearing," I answered. "Will they have your description?"

"I think not, but if they ask me to account for myself I shall be at fault. I am but lately landed from France, and I have no passport."

He pursed his lips once more in the quaint form of a low whistle.

'I begin to see. There is a foreign cut to your wig that I do not like," he commented. "However, we will brazen it out. Here they come."

The watchmen rounded the corner into the alley, lanterns swinging high, staves polsed.

> Master Juggins was suddenly all animation.

"I know it well," he returned "You and Charles, your elder brother, were both out in the '19. Charles died in Scotland, and you escaped with the remnants of the expedition to France." "And Foxcroft house was sequestrated to the Crown," I amended bitterly.

"The Hampshire branch have it now," went on Master Juggins. "They toadied it through the Pelhams." "Yes, ---- them !"

Ormerod has known the ingratitude of princes, but he is to discover that gratitude is a quality that has not altogether disappeared from the earth.

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There are many people suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching cold after cold. They realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles.

Dr. Blosser, for years a specialist in catarrh, was the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by women and children as well as men. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a small pipe or ciga-rette, and inhale the vapor into the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs, carrying medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. It contains no cubebs, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is effective in all forms of colds, catarrh, catarrhal headaches and ear troubles that may lead to deafness. You will breathe better and feel better after using it.

If you suffer from catarrh, catarrhal deafness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or, if subject to frequent colds, you should try Dr. Blosser's Remedy. Get one of the pockef size packages from any drug store and prove for yourself the pleasant, beneficial effects.

Springs, Colorado, has retired with a huge for-tune. Michel came to Colorado ten years ago and like hundreds of prospectors found his funds insufficient to purchase a claim, so was finally forced to accept a job as a common mucker. There was a time when the mine did not have sufficient funds to meet their payroll, and it was at this period that Michel used his Ger-man ingenuity, accepting a small interest for his labor. However, within a few months all liabilities were paid from the sale of ore and claims, and Michel's little old investment of $162.25 grew and grew and when he retired his income was in excess of $1,000.09 per month. A Word With the Old Folks

To-night! Clean Your Bowels and stop headache, colds, sour stomach

Get a 10-cent box. Take a Cascaret tonight to cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, a bad cold, are bilious, nervous, upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets-or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets immediately cleanse and egulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10cent box from your druggist means healthy bowel action; a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

LUNCHEON SUGGESTIONS

For a nourishing salad, the following will be liked by those who favor bologna sausage:

Holland Salad. - Mix half a pound of bologna cut into very thin slices with one pint of cold boiled potatoes, also sliced very thin, one medium-sized onion shaved thin, and six sardines freed from skin and bones, then cut into bits. Add two hard-cooked eggs, sliced. Pour over three parts of oil to one of vinegar, a teaspoonful of horseradish and one of tomato catsup. Serve on lettuce. Breslau Beef .-- Put lean beefsteak through a meat chopper, season with minced onion, pepper and salt, and add one large soda cracker rolled fine. Shape an inch thick in a greased baking pan and bake; cover with slices of bacon after it has baked a few minutes. Serve when the bacon is crisp and brown.

Chicken Griddle Cakes .- Beat one egg, add two tablespoonfuls of melted chicken fat, a cupful of minced chicken, half a teaspoonful of salt, a pint of milk and flour enough to make a cake batter; add three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and beat well.

Pear Pie.-Line a baked pastry shell with quartered pears; add a bit of lemon juice and a sprinkling of the grated rind; cover with whipped cream and serve chilled.

Waldorf Oysters .- Put three table spoonfuls of olive oil in a saucepan with a small onion sliced, one shredded green pepper, fry slowly until well cooked. Add a pint of oysters or more, season with salt, butter, red pepper, and a few tablespoonfuls of currant jelly. Cook five minutes, then add a tablespoonful of tomato catsup. Boll up and serve hot. Coconut Drop Cakes .-- Soften one-half cupful of butter (do not melt it), add a cupful of light brown sugar, a cupful of sour milk, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and soda, two cupfuls of flour; beat well, then add onehalf cupful of coconut. Drop by.small spoonfuls on buttered sheets and bake in a moderate oven. Add more flour if the cakes do not keep their shape.

What to Eat. For a change from the regular

Baked Steak. - Rub fine one canned pimento, add a pound of minced beef, one-half pound of minced veal, a fourth of a pound of minced ham, and season with sait. Form into a loaf and lay in greased paper, folding it well together; set on a pan in a hot oven

General Motors cars and trucks are sold and serviced in 104 countries. The export shipments in 1925 amounted to 119,632 motor vehicles; and the overseas assembly plants and warehouses of General Motors now number 19. This vigorous development of the worldwide market for a complete line of quality cars is important to the car buyer. It is not only a contribution to international prosperity

They did not minimize the task before them, but asserted with God's help that they were well able to get possession of the land, and urged immediate action.

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

> IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. (vv. 1-3). They lifted up their voices and cried, and the people wept that night. They even wished that they had died in the wilderness or in Egypt. God took them back to wander in the wilderness for thirty-eight years.

2. Proposition to return to Egypt. (vv. 4-10).

Their crying was followed by a proposal to organize for the return to Egypt. They purposed to select a captain as their leader. Joshua and Caleb protested against this, which so exasperated the people that they were about to stone them. At this point God interposed in their behalf.

3. God's wrath upon the people (vv. 11-12).

Because of their unbelief He proposed to smite them with pestilence and to disinherit them, supplanting them with a nation mightier than they. 4. Moses' intercession in behalf of the people (vv. 13-19).

Moses plead with God against this judgment because the Egyptians would hear of it and blaspheme and this they would pass on to the other nations, saying that God was not able to bring them into the land.

5. 'The-Lord's response to Moses' plea (v. 20-39).

He assured Moses that He had granted pardon according to his intercession, but told him that although He would bring them into the land according to His promise, yet with the exception of Joshua and Caleb the men of that generation should be debarred.

6. The presumption of the people (vv. 40-45).

Having in unbelief refused to go up at the command of Moses, now in presumption they go. Moses advised them against such presumption, saying "the Lord will not be with you."

Dainty Croquettes .- Mix a cupful of boiled and chopped calves' liver with half-cupful of minced bacon cooked brown. Form into balls, dip into egg, roll in crumbs and fry in hot fat until brown.

Minced Chicken With Green Peppers .- Cover a green pepper with boiling water and cook ten minutes, drain, remove the seeds and cut into narrow strips two inches long. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour; stir until blended, then pour on two-thirds of a cupful of chicken broth. Bring to the boiling point, add a cupful of diced chicken and the peppers, again boil, and serve on pieces of toasted bread.

Strawberry Trifle .-- Cut strawberries into halves and mix with granulated sugar, let stand an hour. Arrange lady fingers log-cabin fashion, fill with the sugared berries and cover with sweetened whipped cream.

Chicken Souffle .- With a cupful more or less of cold chicken cut into bits one may have a most delicious luncheon dish. Prepare a white sauce using half chicken stock and half cream, one cupful, three tablespoonfuls of chicken fat or butter, three of flour, cook until well blended, then add the liquid and cook until thick; stir in the chicken and add two or three wellbeaten egg yolks and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Add cooked mushrooms, cooked green pepper, onion juice, salt and cayenne to taste. Bake until puffy and well-set and serve hot, as it is apt to fall very quickly.

Give Them a Place to Play

The children must play. We must provide places for them to play. If we drive them from our lawns and there is no place else for them to go death will coax them into the streets More than 21,000 boys and girls under the age of fifteen years were killed in accidents in the United States last year. England has a child accident fatality of less than half that figure It is up to their elders to decide whether the children shall romp an play in areas set aside for that pur pose or bat their balls and roll their hoops and coaster wagons beneath the passenger cars and trucks in the pub lic highways. In growing cities con stant attention must be given the prot lem of play space for the little ones.
