FIRST INSTALMENT

PROLOGUE

Ellen Church was posing for her mother. Posing—a slim, wistful figure—against the dying glory of an autumn garden. Her slender, fifteen-year-old arms were outstretched to the gold and crimson of the falling leaves.

Her mother said suddenly—
"Get a little more limber, Ellen. You're tightening up. Remember that you're the spirit of youth. It's now, and loveliness, and new ideas. Remember that you're a magazine cover! Remember that you're our bread and butter for a month. And perhaps," her mother sighed, "for the month after and the month after that!"

Ellen flexed her stiffening fingers and dragged her eyes away from the land into which they had been entering. Ellen obediently let her go limp, inside as well as outside. She wasn't self-conscious about it, not Ellen. All of her life, she had been posing for her mother. As a new baby, round and rosy and naked, in the spring sunshine. As a wee tot, in romping, making mud pies that would be splattered to canvas. As a child of seven, reading from a green and red story book. As an older child, sewing a long, tiresome seam. Ellen was used to posing—it was her life!

"Not me, Mother!" she insisted. "But, of course, I love you lightly," she said, with an aching sort of forced gaiety. "You ought to know that! If I loved you any other way, I'd spoil you. And even you, Ellen, must admit that I don't spoil you. Do I ever give you new hats for Easter? Or seed pearls, for Christmas? Have I even once, taken you to the city? Have you ever seen a skyscraper, or a hotel—or even a tea shop? Have you—?"

"How about the time, a year ago, when I had typhoid—and the doctor said I mightn't live?"

Ellen's mother was looking up swiftly, through tears. Her voice quivered very much. All of the laughter had been drained from it.

"But, my darling," she said, "of course, I don't love you lightly! I love you so much, whether you're desperately ill or annoyingly well that it hurts! I didn't want to love you so—why, there were times when I didn't even want you! For I knew that you'd get me, that I'd never be free, or myself, as long as I cared for someone. Your father taught me that. I loved him, too so much that it hurt—so much that it still hurts!"

Rapidly she was gathering up the twisted tubes of paint, the canvases—all of the paraphernalia of her trade.

"I wish," said Ellen, "that you'd tell me about father. After all he belonged to me, sort of, too; although I never saw him. I can't help wondering why you always say such queer things about him."

Great tears had begun to well in her mother's eyes, to roll down her cheeks.

"I always knew," said her mother, "that it would have to come, some time. You can't keep everything shut away, no matter how hard you try! But I couldn't hope to shield you from everything forever—some day something would come up! Perhaps it's better, after all, that you should hear my story from me."

Ellen had crept close. She didn't speak, but her mind, following her mother's voice, made pictures—
Pictures drawn from her lonely childhood, from the years which she had lived with her mother in the brown house that lay back of the garden—years that had been broken only by business letters and the rare visits of the art agent, who sold her mother's work in the city. Their very clothes had been chosen, wholly, from department store catalogues!

Once a week, always. Ellen and her mother had walked the two miles to the village and ordered their supplies. And Ellen stared at the village girls—and was stared at by the village boys—while her mother exchanged conversation with the storekeeper about her garden and the weather. A certain aged laborer came up to the brown house when there was hard work to be done. He reported, back in the village, that he thought the artist lady was queer.

Perhaps, in a way, he had reason to think so. Certainly Ellen and her mother were hermits, defying custom and convention—learning their own lessons of life from trees and flowers. But Ellen, even with a lack of preaching, knew about an unpagan God. Didn't God make, said her mother, the only dependable thing in the world, Beauty? And Ellen knew of the Christ who had played—perhaps, also, a solitary child—on the shores of a blue sea, and who had prayed in a garden (was it like their garden, she wondered) and who had died on a

"Think of Him," her mother had once said, "whenever you feel that you want to see, to love, people. He, Ellen, was love. He loved all of the people of the world. And people, Ellen, nailed His hands, and His feet to a wooden cross!"

These were the pictures that Ellen saw as she crouched beside her mother, in the fading garden. "I've had my fill of cities," her mother was saying. "That's why I never left this place not since your father brought me here more than twenty years ago. That's why I've kept you here, too. Don't think I was unconscious of what you were missing—I knew! But when I told myself that you needed boarding schools and beaux and sire to be an artist, once more. "I made my pictures, at first Ellen, with a rake and a hoe and a packet of seeds. I built the glory of blossoming things all around this house in which we live. And at last, when my garden was flourishing, I got out an old color box and dusted, it and began to make sketches. I hadn't a thought of doing anything commercial—that all came after your father's going, when I found that I must earn our livelihood. At the beginning I just made pictures for companionship. They were pretty, too—but they had an emptiness about them. I guess that's why God sent you to me, child. He knew I needed something alive and cuddly to make my garden perfect!"

"Oh, Ellen," the fingers that the girl held were returning her pressure fiercely, "I'd given up all idea of having a baby, ages before you came to me! I'd had ten lonely years in the city, and five lonelier years out here, before I knew that you were coming. I couldn't believe it, at first. It was just too utterly lovely. And the knowledge held something else beside loveliness—it brought a new hope to me. I couldn't help feeling that it would make a difference in the relationship between your father and myself; a baby couldn't help but bring a sense of responsibility into his life. He always liked new things—and there is nothing so new as a little baby."

When a town grows so large that the roosters don't crow for breakfast then it can be classed as a city. Otherwise, it is just an ordinary country town.

A two headed calf was born Monday on the Cam Lee ranch, about eight miles south of Ranger. It was stated that the extra head branched out from the shoulder to one side and the other head straight as a normal one. Dr. Ray Wilson intends to preserve the body of the calf, which was born dead. The two heads are perfect, and the freak is an offspring of a Jersey cow, but the calf was red with each face white. Eastland County News The Cisco Weekly Citizen

A cowboy who knows the business of cussing expertly was one of the group driving cattle through the suburbs of the town of Brady early Friday morning. At about 2 o'clock residents of the city were awakened by the march of a string of cattle to the stock pens. One of the riders was calling the animals by a well-known but unprintable name as they sought to reach the rich grass of Brady's well-kept lawns. Harry Curtis is said to have gotten up, as did W. C. Wegner, and others. Dogs barked, cows, bawled, the cowboys cussed and the night's sleep went eastward.

A fund of $500.00 was recently voted by the Commissioners Court to aid in the purchase of a 25 acre park site near old Point Lookout at the east end of Santa Anna Mountain.

The State Highway Department has agreed to build a park north of the highway east of Santa Anna with the provision that the county or city furnish the land. It is hoped that the park, erected on an historical spot, will eventually be taken over by the Federal government and developed into a national park.

Coleman may lose some of its east-west traffic if the plans of the state highway department to construct highway 36 from Cross Plains to Hamilton materialize, says the Coleman Democrat-Voice.

The plan is to connect Highway 36 with Highway 191 at Baird from Cross Plains. From that town the highway would extend on to Comanche and Hamilton.

CHEVROLET HIRES FAMOUS STAR FOR GRID BROADCASTS

Fifty-six of the most important college football games of the 1934 season will be covered play by play in a series of sectional broadcasts sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Company, announced H. C. Howard Chevrolet Zone Manager, headquarters at Dallas. Eight sectional games in the Southwest area will be broadcasted over the Southwest networks.

To make the broadcasts more interesting, Chevrolet Motor Company has secured the services of Jerry Mann, famed quarter-back of former S.M.U. Days. After leaving S.M.U., Jerry took his law degree at Harvard and is now practicing law in the city of Dallas.

The following is a schedule of the games to be announced over the Southwest networks:

- Oct. 13—Texas vs Oklahoma at Dallas.
- Oct. 20—TCU vs. Texas A&M at College Station.
- Oct. 27—SMU vs Fordham at New York City
- Nov. 3—SMU vs Texas at Austin.
- Nov. 10—Texas A&M vs SMU at Dallas.
- Nov. 17—Texas vs. TCU at Fort Worth.
- Nov. 24—SMU vs Baylor at Waco
- Nov. 29—Texas A&M vs Texas

Roosters on roller skates, next?

With everything "going mechanical" on the farm these days, one wonders if soon there won't be roosters on roller skates. Trucks, tractors, windmills, pumps, incubators, electric lighting plants—each of them needs some special fuel or some special lubricant. To aid you in keeping track of these needs Sinclair has developed a Call-me-by-postcard Service free to farmers. We supply you with postcards requiring no postage on which is printed a list of the principal Sinclair products. Opposite each item is a space for noting down the number of pounds or gallons you require. As your supply runs low you simply set down the amount required, sign your name and drop the postcard in the mail. The mail carrier and we do the rest. May we call and leave a supply of cards?

Headlines Scream Story Of Crime

"Two Brothers Waylaid, Robbed And Shot To Death", heralded the headlines of Tuesday's newspaper.

"Aged Couple Bound And Looted Of Life Savings", screamed the banner of another edition.

No doubt your none-too-distant paper will tell of other dastardly crimes, such as these. The motive for virtually all crime in money, and when that money is exposed to prying eyes and evil hands crime is formally invited.

A paramount purpose of a newspaper is to warn of approaching danger and if possible point out a "detour". Due to the fact that robberies—and even mercenary murders—are becoming so common, the Review feels that it is but a duty to warn readers to be cautious.

Now that deposits in banks are guaranteed up to $5,000 by the federal government, the best place for money is in a bank vault, where thieves seldom break through and steal, and where if they do you will be protected. Not only for the sake of protecting your savings but to safeguard your life should this precaution be taken.

Less than four months ago a Comanche county farmer and his aged mother were surprised by robbers, who demanded their money. Not until the man produced a deposit slip, proving that his cash was in a DeLeon bank would the culprits leave his premises. But when he exhibited his bank statement and deposit slips, he and the aged woman were permitted to go unharmed.

That story might have been tragically different had the man had money on his person or about his premises. One crime prompts another. And had the thieves been successful in their attempt they might have taken two lives to destroy evidence or prevent being identified with the act.

The old adage: "An ounce of precaution is worth a pound of cure" applies perfectly to this case. So in the interest of your welfare, the Review urges caution and no encouragement to crime.

MARRIAGE

Ha! The oldest topic on earth. Why talk about that this morning? Well, has it ceased to be important—or interesting?

One thing—our good editor, knowing my terrible superiority in years and human observation as a family doctor, tells me to talk about anything I want to, and say it the way I am in the habit of doing. The fact is, dear young man and young woman, there is no more serious topic in this world than—Marriage. Nor is there a sacred, heaven-born privilege that has been more violated by errant humanity. Denounce the moralist as "old fogy," and I'll refer you to Reno and Hollywood!

The chief contract for human beings is the marriage contract. Nothing more sacred belongs to earth. I have nothing but contempt for those who wilfully trample this beautiful arrangement in the swinish muck of commercialism and lust. And must I say it? too often the press refers to marriage and divorce and public license as—a joke!

If you contemplate marriage as you should—as a sacred institution, you are a good man—a good woman—the minute you enter the married state with sinister designs, your pedestal as an angel is crumbling, tottering, with the whirlpool of tears and sorrow at its base! Upon the sanctity of the marriage-vows, rests the security of this republic. When woman is prostituted—dragged down to the old testament level—man will become degenerated into the beast he was then, with his concubines and his harems and his queens selected for their fleshly attractions. Would you, dear reader, like history to repeat itself? No? Then, for heaven and humanity's sake, remember the marriage rites, and keep them holy. I speak for my race—my people—as Family Doctor.

Sunday School Lesson

The Christian and His Bible Lesson for October 14th, Acts 8:26 Golden Text: Psalm 119:97 The story of Phillip and the Ethiopian is very appealing. The picture of the eunuch seated in his chariot reading the prophecy of Isaiah, with the apostle beside him in the act of interpretation to one's imagination. Now many folk today are quite as puzzled when they read the Bible as was this Ethiopian. Their problem may be stated as follows. "Why should we go to the Bible for guidance, a book written centuries ago when life was so vastly different? Why not face our perplexities head-on, with our own vig or of mind and soul?" Prof. Mary Lyman, of Union Seminary, has given an effective answer. She points out that the Bible has the advantage over contemporary culture in that it presents the issues of life in a sharp and vivid form. Our age is enormously confused and complicated. In Bible times folk lived and thought more directly and naturally than they do now. It is a genuine, help to begin with a simple, clear outlook of the Good Book. Then, too, the Bible is essentially picturesque and dramatic. We can easily agree with Mrs. Lyman that pictures and drama are more convincing than argument, however skilful. Think of the amazing success of the Negro Bible play, "The Green Pastures," which ran for a before packed houses. And we must remember that the Bible, in striking fashion, combines successfully the particular and the universal. Although written thousands of years ago from an entirely different background from that of today, it is as fresh and timely as ever.

Let us then learn to love the Book of Life until we can say with a full heart our Golden Text, "O how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day." By Rev. Charles E. Dunn

Sunday Matinee Monday and Tuesday "BROKEN DREAMS" With RANDOLPH SCOTT, MARTHA SLEEPER, JOSEPH CAWTHORN, BERYL MERCER, and BUSTER PHELPS Plus Comedy and Cartoon

Wednesday and Thursday LORETTA YOUNG and CARY GRANT —IN— "BORN TO BE BAD" With JACKIE KELPK, HARRY GREEN AND HENRY TRAVERS Also Selected Short Subjects

LIBERTY THEATER ANNOUNCES CARD FOR COMING WEEK

Now showing at the Liberty Theater is "Devil Tiger", a picture of jungle activities and reported by W. A. Beavers, manager, to be actual sights—unparalleled thrills—hitherto unwitnessed by any living man. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, "Broken Dreams" with Randolph Scott, Martha Sleeper and others comes to the local screen. The Wednesday and Thursday billing is "Born to be Bad" with Loretta Young and Cary Grant.

The story of "Broken Dreams," the Monogram feature which comes to the Liberty Theater on Friday and Saturday, was written by Olga Printzlan, with screen adaptation by Maude Fulton.

Miss Printzlan's contributions to magazines and to the screen have established her as a writer with that distinctive human touch which is the result of a deep insight into the humanities gleaned from actual contacts with "the world we live in." Her stories which have scored as film vehicles include: "Camille," "His Dog", "Fashion Madness" and "Tragedy of Youth."

"Broken Dreams" is a gripping emotional story of paternal love versus the love of a woman. A father deserts his baby-boy when the mother dies in childbirth, hating the infant whose right to live has cost the life of the woman he loved so much. How the boy, six years later, was reclaimed by his father, and a strong affection established between the two, provides material for an absorbing drama.

Buster Phelps plays the boy. Randolph Scott is the father. Martha Sleeper and Beryl Mercer are also featured, Robert Vignola directed.

Born To Be Bad A motion picture camera in the role of private detective;

It may sound fantastic, but it is based on fact. A camera is seen in this capacity in "Born to be Bad", the 20th Century picture showing Wednesday at the Liberty Theater, with Loretta Young and Cary Grant sharing stellar honors.

In this original story by Ralph Graves, a motion picture cameraman is employed furtively to take motion pictures of a small boy at play—fighting, wrestling, running and romping.

Later the pictures are shown in a courtroom to the utter consternation of the boy's pretty and unscrupulous young mother, played by Miss Young, who has sued a wealthy man for heavy damages on the charge that a truck owned by his firm had maimed her small son for life.

LONDON... Princess Marina of Greece, (above), the bride to be of Prince George of England (below) whose wedding this fall is to be the highlight of European social affairs. Prince George is the youngest of the four living sons of King George and Queen Mary.

PIONEER F. F. A. IS WELL REPRESENTED AT STEPHENVILLE

Saturday several boys from the Pioneer F.F.A. chapter accompanied by adviser Hughes attended a milk judging contest at Stephenville, sponsored by John Tarleton Agricultural college. The contest was to get the boys ready for the state fair at Dallas. Those entered were; Ross Clark, F. W. Fore, Wilford Willvee, W. B. Gunn.

Last Thursday night the Pioneer chapter started a night school there were several present but we expect our crowds to grow as the school goes on. Problems that anybody wants to bring up are discussed and also the fathers and mothers know more about the F.F.A. and we think they will encourage more as they become more familiar with it, the purpose of this night school is not all together to tell some body how to farm or do something else but to take up farm and home problem and try to solve them", the Review was told.

M. A. Whites Are Honored Last Week

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. White, of southwest of Cross Plains were made to rejoice last week by the home coming of all their children and families. Mr. and M. E. White and family and Mr. and Mrs. L. S. White both of San Angelo, Tex. Mr. George A. Long, and family of Hope, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. John A. White of Dallas and Mr. and M. C. Baum and family of Cross Plains.

On Sunday, a family reunion picnic was enjoyed by the respective families and relatives at the Cross Plains park.

Those present at the picnic other than the immediate family, were Mr. L. D. Long and E. M. Long, both of Cross Plains; and C. H. Long of Byrds Store; all brothers of George Long, together with their families and Chauncy Long, nephew of George and Mrs. Leah Boden and her nephew of Cross Plains.

About thirty five were present at the picnic and after all had eaten to their hearts content, large baskets full of food were carried away.

No More Dynamite for Me!

And that's What YOU would Say, After Making the "Liquid Test" Described Here

DAVID H. WADSWORTH

Cold Springs, Kentucky, discovered the value of a liquid laxative about three years ago, and would never use violence again in relieving a constipated condition.

from the violent action of strong mineral drugs!

If you are a victim of "sluggish bowels"; an occasional sufferer from constipation, here's the secret of prompt and safe relief until nature restores your regularity. Use liquid laxative.

Start tonight with Syrup Pepsin. If necessary to repeat the dose use less each day, until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

If there is an occasional return of the trouble, Syrup Pepsin will comfort and relieve you again, as easily as it did the first time you ever took it.

Ask any druggist for a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and make the "liquid test."

If, by making one little change, you could relieve a condition of sluggishness within 24 hours, and feel about 100% better—would you do it?

David Wadsworth did. You can do the same. All that is necessary is to get your bowels in the right condition. But you can't do that by doing them violence.

Doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives. They've seen the damage, sometimes done by highly concentrated drugs in the form of pills or tablets! They know that a properly made liquid laxative containing senna (a natural laxative) does not do this harm. And they use a liquid laxative to relieve the bowels, because the dose can be easily regulated.

To Relieve Bowels

Constipated or sluggish bowels can be corrected with violent force. They can be safely relieved with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without forming the laxative habit.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an improved liquid laxative made from herbs, pure pepsin, senna and castor. It is most agreeable to take, and comfortable bowel movement with Syrup Pepsin is a joyful relief
